WASHINGTON AND
"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Probably because it is an election year, the tubs are being thumped loudly to increase unemployment benefits as a recession panacea. Both increasing weekly benefits or lengthening time for which benefits may be received are part of this ballyhoo.

Some of the proposed programs would pay the idle an average of $51 per week for sitting home, in place of the present $28 per week average.

Yet there exists some substantial evidence that thousands, if not millions, are prefer to sit home and draw $28 per week than go to work for the federal minimum wage of $40 per week.
After all, the $28 per week, there are no deductions for social security, union dues and other deductions.

It is significant that every year since 1942 2.5% of the work force has been idle, even under the manpower shortage conditions that existed during Korea and immediately afterward.

For even with the present average of $28 per week, a man of any talent at all can live as well as his working brother whose check is clipped for all kinds of taxes, and dues, et al, et al. A quick odd job for an hour or two now and then, perhaps his own vegetable garden, a little of this and a little of that, and a lot of unemployment benefit recipients virtually live the life of Riley with no strain and time for fishing, hunting, and plain loafing
even visits to the old country.

When unemployment insurance is further hardened...

And thus, not only would the
nations independent business be further hardened... but loss of
national income would soar eventually into the billions.

In addition, this would be contrary to the sound principles expressed many times by the nation's independent businessmen
voting through the National Federation of Independent Business.

That principle is that instead
of continuing to shackle business
with higher taxes of all sorts,
reduce taxes, an independent
business and watch free enterprise provide employment.

was first launched, it was designed to give people something to eat on until they found a new job. It was never intended to create a new leisure class.

And of course, the bulk of the money that goes into building up these reserves for the idle comes from a tax on employers based on their payroll.

For example, New York has raised employers' tax one her 1/2 of 1% on their payroll to raise the unemployment benefits.

While Big Steel or Big Autos could conceivably pay this extra money merely by passing onto the consumer, to thousands of small business firms, this would be an added burden that could not be passed on.

And of course, as published in the Congressional Record, the taxer work earner makes $75 average wage at the present time, or a take home pay of less than $68 per week, out of which he must bear the additional costs of job transportation, work clothes, etc.

Thus, it seems apparent, that if by being without work, a man could get $51 per week, as proposed, there would be a powerful incentive to stay home and "let George do the work."

And thus, not only would the
nations independent business be
further hardened... but loss of
national income would soar eventually into the billions.

In addition, this would be contrary to the sound principles expressed many times by the nation's independent businessmen
voting through the National Federation of Independent Business.

That principle is that instead
of continuing to shackle business
with higher taxes of all sorts,
reduce taxes, an independent
business and watch free enterprise provide employment.

side by side and each 140 yds long. The rows must be tape measured and representative of the field.
2. Measurement of the 140 yards must begin and end at least 10 feet away from turn row or end of rows. No grain will be harvested for yield test within 10 feet of the ends of rows.
3. Where large combines are used, the grain sorghum on one or both sides of the test rows may be harvested previously. In all cases, combines should be adjusted for threshing grain sorghum before cutting the samples. The combine must have harvested at least 1/2 grain bin or more of grain sorghum immediately before harvesting the test. When emptying combine immediately prior to harvesting test, run the combine until all grain is threshed and quits flowing into the main bin. The mechanism which empties the grain bin should also be run until all grain quits flowing. Combine mechanism must be allowed to clean out mechanically with no manual cleaning or assistance. The combine is now ready to harvest the 4 test rows, and the grain bin must be emptied after the test is harvested in exactly the same manner as described above. The grain from the 4 rows must be caught or put in burlap bags or other containers for weighing purposes.
4. Weigh the grain, deduct weight of container, and obtain a moisture test immediately after weighing procedure: weigh the grain in a quart fruit jar, stopper, seal, with a representative sample. This will avoid moisture determining moisture content necessary. In all cases, moisture test must be run within 24 hours after harvest.
5. Measure a distance of 70 feet across the rows, starting 10 feet between two rows and then the number of rows in the 70 feet. Report acre yield determination as required on the 1946 Hybrid Grain Sorghum Contest Reporting Form.
6. Grain sorghum must be weighed when combined. A minimum of over 20 per cent will be considered an automatic disqualification.
7. All yields will be based on moisture, and the combine must be made at the State Extension Agronomy office.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

Stubble Mulching Proves Successful On H. H. (Hobbs) Rosson Rye and Vetch

H. H. (Hobbs) Rosson, who farms about eight miles southwest of Morton, has recently stubble-mulched approximately 40 acres of rye and vetch. Stubble clippings indicate that some 4000 lbs. of residue per acre was left on or near the surface of the soil. Following this practice, Rosson drilled grain sorghums into the mulched seedbed.

Stubble mulching is not a new practice but one which has been used extensively in the Great Plains states for the past number of years. The practice works equally well in the Cochran Soil Conservation District. Stubble mulching consists of leaving the residues of residue-producing crops on or near the surface of the soil. Actually this is but another of Mother Nature's ways of protecting the soil from damaging agents.

Crop residues are broken down by the bacterial action of microorganisms located within the surface of the soil. If the residue is turned under deep, then the organisms must work in unfavorable conditions thus taking more time for residue decomposition. It seems only natural, then, that we should leave our stubble where the bacteria work best.

Another factor to our advantage through the use of stubble mulching is the stabilizing effect it has on soil temperature. The temperature is held down through the hot summer months and presents a warmer temperature in the winter months. This of course makes for better working conditions of the soil bacteria. Also closely related to the stabilizing effect is the reduction of moisture evaporation. In this regard, stubble mulch of what rainfall we get can be lost to evaporation.

Recognition should also be given to the organic matter returned to the soil. We have often heard the remark "organic matter is the life of the soil." Residue is returned to the soil in usable form, namely organic matter, much quicker through stubble mulching because, as we mentioned, it is more vulnerable to bacterial action. Also this organic matter is so placed, near the surface of the soil, so as to make better use of rainfall. By this we mean the water holding capacity and infiltration rate is increased making more available moisture for plant needs.

ly in both wind and water erosion. The surface cover acts as a deflector to erosive winds and protects the young plants. Water erosion is cut to a minimum as the soil particles are held in place by the mulch.

Stubble mulching can be accomplished through the use of flat type sweeps on the stubble of any drilled high residue producing crops. Such crops as small grain and drilled grain sorghums make excellent crops for mulching. Following the harvest of these crops, the stubble is undercut with flat type sweeps leaving as much residue as possible above the surface of the soil.

Cost-share payments can be received through the ASC office for this practice.

Political Speaking Is Discussed
 Plans for the coming July 19 political speaking were discussed at Monday regular noon meeting of the Morton Jayvees. Bill Bridge, president, named committees to carry out the final plans. Also the group voted to continue meeting through the summer, and voted down an earlier vote that would have required members to pay in advance for all meals during the month whether in attendance or absent. James McClure, office manager for the Williamson Insurance Agency here, was a guest of S. M. Monroe.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT
 By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry University of Wisconsin
Use Horse Sense To Beat Heat

The remark "sweating like a horse" is sometimes made regarding a hard-working or hard-playing person during the summer heat. Sweating is one of nature's safety devices for preventing heat prostration. It has a cooling effect brought on by the evaporation of moisture from the skin. Horses perspire more than any other domestic animal. Maybe we should take our cue from the horses as to what is necessary during hard work, especially during summer heat. Every farm boy who has handled and brushed or carried horses after a hard workout, remembers those tiny bits of caked perspiration settling on his lips and leaving a distinctly salty taste. That's just it. Perspiration carries a lot of salt out of the body. There are about 3 grams of salt in every pint of perspiration, and if a man or horse should lose five pounds during a workout, there would be a body loss of 0.6 ounce of salt. A foal covered with sweat, loses more salt several times as much weight, and several times as much salt. Here is where the "horse sense" comes into play. Workers at the Michigan Experiment Station found that work horses would consume more than three times as much salt daily when subjected to hard work in hot weather. Their "horse sense" helped them avoid the dangers of salt depletion and resulting heat prostration. We wish to extend our thanks to those who gave food, flowers, cards, and to the doctors and nurses who were so good to our dear husband and father who passed away June 28th. May God bless each of you. The C. W. Vanlandingham family 18-1c

We must always do our best. To do less is unthinkable.

TOGETHER WE MAKE TOMORROW

CAMP FIRE GIRLS, INC., CONTINUES TO GROW, GROW, GROW in the USA

(The following is a report from the National Public Relations Department of Camp Fire Girls, Inc.)

Camp Fire Girls, Inc., extended its educational-recreational program to 500,000 girls in 1957, an increase of 20,000 over 1956. The 1957 annual report of the organization released this week outlines progress made in program development, leadership training and increased services to local councils.

This progress increased the ability of the group to provide

girls seven years through senior high school age with opportunities to develop into mature adults capable of meeting the challenges of the future.

As a result of a 1957 Audience Research Inc. study of Camp Fire Girls program and leadership, the governing body of the group authorized a controlled experiment to determine possible changes in program content and membership age groupings. Program materials are being carefully evaluated to insure their meeting the needs of today's youth.

In 1957, professional positions were increased to 547, an addition of 38 over 1956. The national organization accelerated leadership and volunteer training, and appointed a new staff of eleven national recruiters to secure additional qualified personnel. A scholarship fund was set up to provide for graduate study for staff members and other young women interested in Camp Fire Girls as a profession.

At its annual meeting, the National Council was especially concerned with strengthening the Camp Fire Girls organization in local communities. It recommended increasing the size of groups to bring the program to more girls and to enrich the group program experience. It also made plans for the organization's Golden Jubilee in 1960.

In keeping with the 1957 theme "Together We Make Tomorrow," men and women volunteers and professionals, locally and nationally, aided Camp Fire Girls to grow as individuals and as members of society. "Helping today's girls 'make tomorrow' is—and ever has been—the heart of the Camp Fire Girls program," Mrs. Harold H. Hartman, 1957 president, declares in the report.

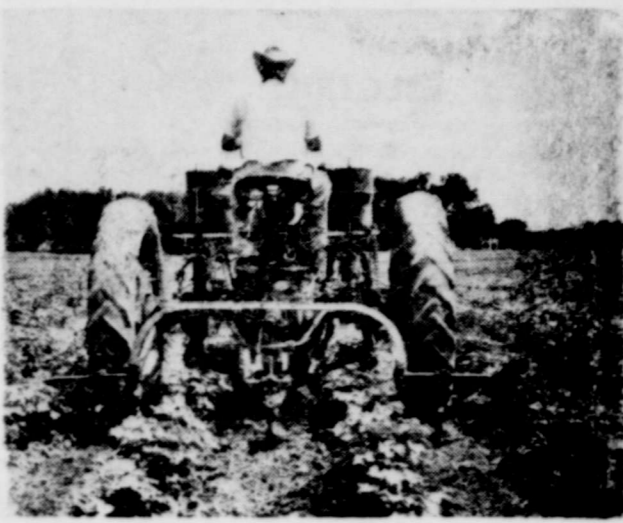

The 1957-58 national "Meet the People" project of Camp Fire Girls was carried out in cooperation with President Eisenhower's People-to-People program. Camp Fire Girls across the country studied their home town, met its citizens and photographed places and people. The photographs will be sent overseas to help children in other countries "Meet the People" of the United States.

This was only one service project of Camp Fire in over 3,000 communities in 1957. For example, Blue Birds, the junior group, distributed anti-litterbug posters and prepared gift boxes and scrapbooks for hospital patients.

One group of Camp Fire Girls distributed United Fund pamphlets, another baked cakes and prepared potted plants for elderly friends. Horizon Club members, the senior group, escorted blind children to a concert, sponsored a foreign exchange student and helped medical students pack supplies for shipment to disaster areas. In 1957, a total of 403 Camp Fire Girls day camps and 217 resident camps were conducted. Camp Fire Girls aided its members, girls of every race, religion and economic status, at a total cost of $753,224 in 1957.

Use Horse Sense To Beat Heat

The remark "sweating like a horse" is sometimes made regarding a hard-working or hard-playing person during the summer heat. Sweating is one of nature's safety devices for preventing heat prostration. It has a cooling effect brought on by the evaporation of moisture from the skin. Horses perspire more than any other domestic animal. Maybe we should take our cue from the horses as to what is necessary during hard work, especially during summer heat.

Every farm boy who has handled and brushed or curried horses after a hard workout, remembers those tiny bits of caked perspiration settling on his lips and leaving a distinctly salty taste.

That's just it. Perspiration carries a lot of salt out of the body. There are about 3 grams of salt in every pint of perspiration, and if a man or horse should lose three pounds during a workout, there would be a body loss of 0.6 ounce of salt. A foam covered sweating horse may lose several times as much salt.

Here is where the "horse sense" comes into play. Workers at the Michigan Experiment Station found that work horses would consume more than three times as much salt daily when subjected to hard work in hot weather. Their "horse sense" helped them avoid the dangers of salt depletion and resulting heat prostration.

As a farmer using "horse sense" you should take all the necessary precautions to avoid sunstroke or heat exhaustion too. A first step is to take extra salt with meals and salt tablets with each glass of water, or a tablespoon of salt to each gallon of drinking water. This will help replace the body salt lost in heavy perspiration.

In addition to taking extra salt with meals and water, the National Safety Council recommends the following precautions:

Avoid too much exposure to direct sunlight and wear a hat out of doors.

Avoid over-exertion, particularly in the early part of a heat wave.

Wear light, porous and loose fitting clothing.

Increase the use of salt in food, and use salt tablets or salt in the drinking water.

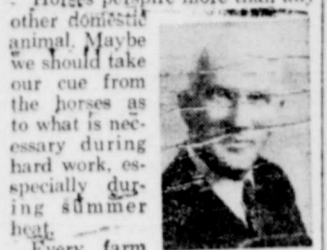

Drink plenty of water throughout the day, avoid ice water and alcohol.

Get plenty of rest and bathe regularly.

Question: I have a few bushels of hybrid seed corn left over from last year. It has been treated for smut and is marked poison. Could the dust be blown or soaked off to make it safe enough to feed, say as one-fourth or one-third of the mixture?

Answer: I would advise against using this seed in any feed mixture. Some seed treatments make use of organic mercury compounds such as ethyl mercury phosphate which are definitely poisonous for livestock. Even with quite thorough washing and use in small proportions in a feed mixture there would remain a grave risk in its use.

Questions from readers will be answered in the column or by direct reply. Please send your questions to Dr. Bohstedt c/o Salt Institute, 33 North La Salle St., Chicago 2, Ill.

The U.S. AIR FORCE Salutes A True American

...and so do we!

For the past 5 years, a loyal group of dedicated Americans has been standing vigil over our homes and loved ones. They are the "Skywatchers", volunteer members of the Ground Observer Corps. Every minute of each day and night, their eyes have watched, their ears have listened for possible hostile aircraft.

Radar does not provide all the information required. This is why Ground Observers are so vital. Their reward as Skywatchers is the satisfaction of doing their part in defending America.

Won't you join us, then, in paying tribute to our friends in the Ground Observer Corps, by saying "Thank You" for 5 years of tireless service. And you can make it a real "Thank You" — by finding out if you can serve, too.

"TOGETHER WE MAKE TOMORROW"

(The following is a report from the National Public Relations Department of Camp Fire Girls, Inc.)

Camp Fire Girls, Inc., extended its educational-recreational program to 500,000 girls in 1957, an increase of 20,000 over 1956. The 1957 annual report of the organization released this week outlines progress made in program development, leadership training and increased services to local councils.

This progress increased the ability of the group to provide girls seven years through senior high school age with opportunities to develop into mature adults capable of meeting the challenges of the future.

As a result of a 1957 Audience Research Inc. study of Camp Fire Girls program and leadership, the governing body of the group authorized a controlled experiment to determine possible changes in program content and membership age groupings. Program materials are being carefully evaluated to insure their meeting the needs of today's youth.

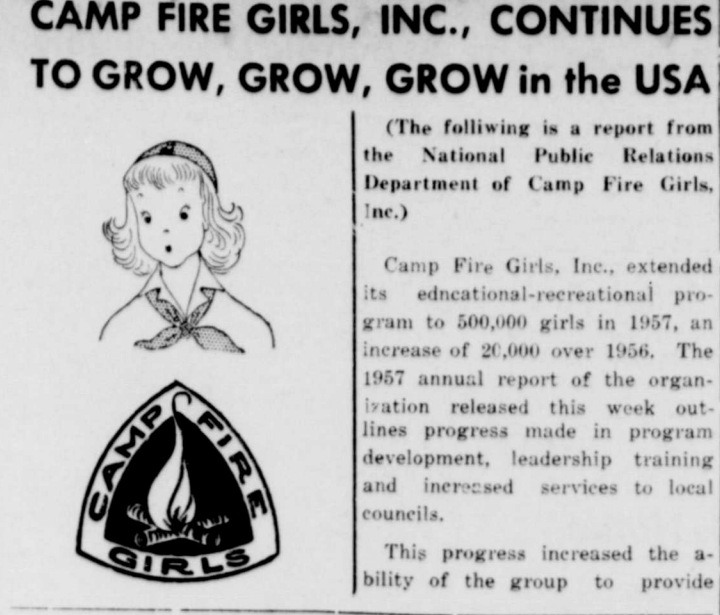

In 1957, professional positions were increased to 547, an addition of 38 over 1956. The national organization accelerated leadership and volunteer training, and appointed a new staff of eleven national recruiters to secure additional qualified personnel. A scholarship fund was set up to provide for graduate study for staff members and other young women interested in Camp Fire Girls as a profession.

At its annual meeting, the National Council was especially concerned with strengthening the Camp Fire Girls organization in local communities. It recommended increasing the size of groups to bring the program to more girls and to enrich the group program experience. It also made plans for the organization's Golden Jubilee in 1960.

In keeping with the 1957 theme "Together We Make Tomorrow," men and women volunteers and professionals, locally and nationally, aided Camp Fire Girls to grow as individuals and as members of society. "Helping today's girls 'make tomorrow' is—and ever has been—the heart of the Camp Fire Girls program," Mrs. Harold H. Hartman, 1957 president, declares in the report.

The 1957-58 national "Meet the People" project of Camp Fire Girls was carried out in cooperation with President Eisenhower's People-to-People program. Camp Fire Girls across the country studied their home town, met its citizens and photographed places and people. The photographs will be sent overseas to help children in other countries "Meet the People" of the United States.

This was only one service project of Camp Fire in over 3,000 communities in 1957. For example, Blue Birds, the Junior group, distributed anti-litterbug posters and prepared gift boxes and scrapbooks for hospital patients.

JUDGE JOE GREENHILL AT HOME—Between his duties on the Texas Supreme Court and campaigning for his first elective term as much as his court duties will allow, Associate Justice Joe Greenhill has little time to spend at his home in Travis County. Here he is shown with his family on a recent week-end. Left to right, his mother, Mrs. Violet S. Greenhill; his two sons, Joe Jr., 16, and Bill, 11, and his wife, Mrs. Martha Greenhill. Judge Greenhill is in the background.

One group of Camp Fire Girls distributed United Fund pamphlets, another baked cakes and prepared potted plants for elderly friends. Horizon Club members, the senior group, escorted blind children to a concert, sponsored a foreign exchange student and helped medical students pack supplies for shipment to the overseas.

In 1957, a total of 40 Camp Fire Girls day camps and 20 residential camps were conducted. Camp Fire Girls served the members, girls of every race, religion and economic status, at a total cost of $783,274 in 1957.

Error is Noted In Address

An error in a local news item in last week's Tribune has caused a certain amount of confusion in the Charles Taylor home. The story stated that the Taylor's daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Porter and son Jimmy, were visiting from Pasadena, Calif. The Porter's home is in Pasadena, Texas.

Mrs. Taylor says she has had to explain a countless number of times that her daughter has not moved. She even had one offer for a free ride to Pasadena, Calif.

She said she thought a correction in the Tribune would explain for everyone and maybe stop the confusion.

GUESTS OF BARRETT'S

Visiting last week in the L. W. Barrett home were Mrs. Barrett's daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Rube Hogan and Mrs. Barrett's granddaughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. David V. Orr and children, all of Ft. Worth.

Giants' Jimmy Bilbrey Leads Batters In Morton's Little League Batting Race

Pint sized Jimmy Bilbrey, a jack-of-all-trades on the baseball diamond for the Giants, led all hitters in the Morton Little League into the final week of play — on the strength of a nifty .515 batting average.

Little Jimmy had a sizable lead over the third place man, Tommy Terrill of the Cubs, hitting .415, but Clem Kaulher of the Sox, with a .489 mark, had a good chance of overhauling Bilbrey in the final week of play.

The overall averages, compiled by the league's scorekeeper, of course do not tell the whole story. There were no extra base hits, walks, runs, runs-batted-in, etc. But, in the batting averages, one could see several things that give an insight into the season's play. For instance, it was impossible to see how big a factor was the Sox' fielding, in remaining unbeaten, but a look at the batting averages shows that only one man among the entire starting lineup was under a .300 batting average. The Sox' team mark was .333, far above all other teams in the league. Of the league's top ten hitters, seven were Sox.

The group has been divided into a list of regulars, all of who batted 20 or more times, and a list of subs who batted less than 20 times. In the second list it is readily seen how important is experience, since only two of the subs have a .300 average.

Little Leaguers are cautioned to remember this, the list can only be used to draw general comparisons. No player should be overly discouraged on account of his average, since one hit, with so few times at bat, would make a difference of from 30 to 80 points in overall batting. And, in the case of the youngsters who didn't get to bat many times, one hit could have lifted them into the list with the better batters.

Here are the totals:

FLYING SAUCER?—This strange looking aircraft, flying on one engine, is actually an early warning airplane designed for Navy carriers. Long-range detection equipment housed in the saucer-like radome gives early warning of impending enemy attack.

PIGGY-BACK SCHOONER—Although this three-masted square rigger appears to be stealing a ride on the deck of a new U.S. sub, it actually was some distance away when photographed. The Norwegian old-timer has a feature role in a current movie called "Windjammer."

DESTRUCTION FOR NEW CONSTRUCTION—With just one steady pull on the cable, this International Drott TD-9 Skid-Shovel topples a shack that stood in the way of progress for the new Atlanta, Ga., expressway. After the tractor had pulled over the shack, it returned and loaded out the debris.

Tigers Clinch Title In Babe Ruth Loop With 11-7 Win

Posting an 11 to 7 win in a game that turned out to be pretty close, after a shaky start, the Morton Tigers wrapped up the Frontier Babe Ruth League title, Monday, by beating the Morton Indians.

The Tigers, using only one hit, a single, tallied five runs in the 1st inning and looked as though they would make a rout of it.

But the Indians came back to score six times in the second before Larry Pollard relieved Larry Du-pier on the mound for the Tigers, and they held onto a 7 to 3 lead as late as the fourth inning. Pollard didn't allow the Indians a hit in the final five innings and the Tigers went ahead in the fourth with a four run cluster to stay ahead.

The Indians managed only four hits in the game, the Tigers getting six off Wilson who pitched effectively all over the last five innings, if he hadn't been so wild in the first. He walked six men in the opening stanza, and that beat him, although of the 11 runs the Tigers got, only two were earned. The Indians had only two earned runs also.
