Rodeo-Fair countdown continues

WYLIE, who grew up on a ranch near Brownfield, has come up in the world as a painter of rural scenes in the short 2 1/2 years that he has been applying his brush. He has had several shows over the past year and has sold 50 and 60 of his paintings. Texas Tech University recently accepted one for permanent hanging in the museum, one is on display in the South Plains Museum in Levelland and one hangs in St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock. Four of his paintings are now on display in the Tic Toc Restaurant for viewing by local citizens.

Tentative schedule announced

As the countdown for the Last Frontier Rodeo and Country Fair nears its end, tentative schedule as to time, date and place for each event has been announced. Exact time and place of a few of the events have not been made definite and any changes made in the schedule will be announced in next week's Tribune.

Many of the events will be continuous throughout the three days of the fair while others will take place only once during the celebration.

Those that will continue throughout the fair include the women's exhibits, the Bazaar, Fleamarket and antique exhibits and sales, horseshoe pitching competition, Bingo, Chicken Shoot, operation of the tenderfoot jail, airplane rides, military exhibits, information and announcement booth, and the operation of many concession booths and food stands.

The three day celebration will begin with the rodeo parade at 4:30 p.m. Thursday followed immediately by the Chamber of Commerce barbecue and old fiddlers contest to be held in the park behind the city hall. Several of the antique cars that will participate in the parade will be parked near the park so that those attending the barbecue may inspect them at leisure.

The grand entry before the first rodeo performance will

Survey shows county receiving health pinch

To what degree are residents of Cochran County affected by a condition that is plaguing most areas of the country - the shortage of doctors, dentists, nurses and other health personnel?

What is the ratio of health workers to population locally, as compared with the ratio in other communities?

According to the most recent government figures, although there has been some increase throughout the United States, during the last few years, in the number of people engaged in health services, it has done little more than keep pace with the change in the population and with the added load created by medicare and medicaid.

A persistent problem, also, has been and continues to be the concentration of medical

End of line for all-stars

Playing is always hard for a pitcher but in every contest he is a winner and a loser.

Last Monday night it was the Little League All-Stars on the losing end of a 10-9 game against the visiting Stars from Brownfield. The game wound up the baseball season for the local pitchers and this phase of careers for some of the

The final sixth inning was explosive for both teams.

After the first hitter for Brownfield had struck out, errors put two men on and a single loaded the sacks. Freddie Rodriguez then

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

May you have grace and peace from God who is, and was, and is to come! and from the seven-fold Spirit before his throne; and from Jesus Christ who faithfully reveals all truth to us. He was the first to rise from death, to die no more. He is far greater than any king in all the earth. All praise to him who always loves us and who set us free from our sins by pouring out his lifeblood for us. He has gathered us into his kingdom and made us priests of God his Father. Give to him everlasting glory! He rules forever! Amen!

The Alaskan Pipeline

BY SEN. JOHN TOWER

The Senate this week passed legislation authorizing the necessary right-of-way to construct the Alaskan oil pipeline. Previously, construction of this pipeline had been halted because of a ruling by Federal courts under earlier rights-of-way legislation which failed to give authority to the government to grant the necessary land to build it. I supported this bill, primarily because of the current very serious energy crisis. To sit idly by while this crisis grows worse is irresponsibility in the extreme. Now, the Alaskan pipeline cannot be completed for several years, and to add on to the couple of years to study a Canadian alternative — or 10 years if we actually construct — would be foolhardy. For too long, the government has been making decisions which have interfered with the exploration for, and development of our petroleum resources. I am encouraged by the stand of the Senate on the pipeline bill.

Of many amendments offered in the course of consideration of the pipeline bill, Senator Bartlett of neighboring Oklahoma offered a particularly important one. It exempts stripper wells with a production of 10 barrels a day or less from any new controls or allocations programs. It is particularly important that we not burden small oil producer with controls at a time when these marginal wells are being closed because it is simply not profitable to operate them.

The importance of the Alaskan pipeline legislation is underscored when one looks at these resources in the light of current energy shortages. Vast new resources of oil and gas were discovered in 1968 in the region of Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's north coast. Subsequent confirmation wells affirmed that at least 10 billion barrels of crude oil had been discovered there.

Plans were made by the producer companies to lay a pipeline 784 miles from Prudhoe Bay to the Alaskan port town of Valdez as the fastest and cheapest means of bringing out about 2 million barrels of oil per day to market. Pipe for this line was purchased and shipped to Alaska in preparation for the laying of this line. Meanwhile, the 1970 Environmental Policy Act was passed, and it requires, among other things, that an environmental impact statement be filed prior to any major decision by a Federal agency. Ultimately, as a result of suits filed by various environmental groups, the United States Supreme Court held that the pipeline could not be built because it would require at least a 50-foot right-of-way, while current law allows only a 25-foot pipeline right-of-way across public lands.

While this topic was being debated, a regional issue was injected. Representatives of the states in the upper Midwest wanted the line laid down the McKenzie River Valley in Canada to terminate near the Chicago area. While the trans-Canada proposal has certain merits, there are several important factors which must be considered.

To begin with, the Canadian government would have and absolute control over the flow of oil out of Canada. It might well prohibit the exporting or even transporting this oil out of Canada if that government determined that this oil would be necessary to meet its energy needs.

Another factor is the environmental issue. If valid environmental hazards do exist along the line through the Alaskan wilderness, then these hazards would be multiplied three fold by a Canadian line that would be over three times longer.

The Canadian alternative also presents an important time factor consideration. It would lose at least two more years studying the Canadian alternative, plus the long period of time needed to construct that route. With the energy crisis worsening daily, we just can't afford to waste that much time.

In addition to these factors, the Canadian line would cost about five billion dollars compared with three and one-half billion for the trans-Alaska line. This would be the largest capital raising project in the history of the world. While the Canadians have expressed a desire to own 51 per cent of the line, they have given no assurance that they could raise 51 per cent of this tremendous amount of capital.

This situation on the Alaskan oil and gas reserves boils down to this: five years ago the discovery of this vast resource, the citizens of the United States are still denied the use of these vital energy supplies.

Meanwhile, we must move on in other areas to solve the energy crisis. I have introduced in the Senate legislation designed to help in the search and development of new sources of energy in this country.

Consumer Alert

By John L. Hill
Attorney General

You might imagine that people who deal with consumer complaints every day would gradually get used to hearing about troubles.

But that doesn't seem to happen. The assistant attorneys general who work in our Consumer Protection and Environmental Protection divisions, where complaints of abuse are received frequently, never appear to look upon anybody's problems as "commonplace."

I have observed that this is true, also among personnel in other agencies involved in problem solving.

Perhaps, it is because this type of work attracts persons who are compassionate and concerned. And, perhaps, it is because one never ceases to be amazed at the many ways in which true-con-men can perpetrate fraud, and the problems they can cause.

One example of this unfortunate brand of ingenuity was evident recently when a North Central Texas trial judge granted our Environmental Protection Division's request for a contempt of court order for a consumer fraud which was disguised as a "pest control" service.

Before discussing this case, let me emphasize that most licensed pest control operators are serious businessmen, trying to offer a needed service, and depending upon return customers who expect reliable and expert help.

If someone offers you pest control service, ask to see his Texas Structural Pest Control Board identification card—the card which is issued by the board to show an authorized operators license number, driver's license, social security and other dependable information. Be certain that the date of the license is current.

If the operator cannot show you that license, that should be enough of a warning not to do business with him.

There were several complaints involved in the North Central Texas case—including the report from one woman that the defendants had charged some $600 for spraying her house for pests, and another's charge that she had paid more than $1,000 for so-called "structural repairs" to termite damage, only to learn later that there were no termites, and, in fact, no repairs actually had been made.

These people were elderly and physically were unable to crawl under their houses or up in their attics to see with their own eyes if destructive insects were endangering their homes. They had trusted the words of the operators.

Inspectors for the Texas Structural Pest Control Board, which licenses and regulates legitimate pest control service operators under a law the Legislature passed in 1971, tell us that preying upon older homeowners is standard operating procedure for those who pose as pest control specialists, but are operating outside the law.

Some of them offer "termite inspection" services which turn out to be an excuse to gain entry, and, often to sell "structural repair" services. There have been instances, we have learned in which the operator would conceal a vial of sawdust and insects on his person as he began an inspection then tell the homeowner he had found this "proof" of pests.

Our office, acting on behalf of the Texas Structural Pest Control Board has gained injunctions in several parts of the state against unlicensed operators and we are cooperating with the board in preparation of several other units.

Often times, a consumer complaint can be settled with the help of our office or the Structural Pest Control Board. In just the past two months, the board's personnel have cured a dozen complaints by effecting licensee agreements to re-treat a house, or to reimburse a dissatisfied consumer.

Since the state board grants licenses, it can take them away. Several times, compliance with state standards has been achieved after a license is suspended.

But that sort of action is the exception, rather than the rule.

If you do run into difficulty, however, do not hesitate to contact the Structural Pest Control Board, Chevy Chase Building, Austin, 78752 or the Environmental Protection Division of the Attorney General's office.

Wheat production is now estimated at 95,200,000 bushels in Texas; this is more than double the 44,000,000 bushels produced in 1972.

Yield is expected to average 28 bushels per acre, a record, compared with 22 bushels last year. Harvested acres set at 3,400,000 compared with only 2,000,000 in 1972. Wheat harvest for the state is now virtually complete.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

Heavy rainfall throughout Texas is producing widespread mosquito production, and a lot of the problem may be occurring in your own back yard, says the Texas State Department of Health.

It only takes a little standing water and some adult mosquitoes to bring on the pain and discomfort—and sometimes disease from mosquitoes.

All mosquitoes need water in which to pass their early life stages. Adult flying mosquitoes frequently rest in grass, shrubbery or other foliage but they never develop there.

But give mosquitoes water and they'll multiply. Some mosquitoes lay their eggs in standing water where they hatch in a day or two. Other mosquitoes lay their eggs in old tires, tin cans, or other water-holding containers, in which they may remain unhatched for weeks or months until they are covered with water.

With both types of mosquitoes, the wigglers or larvae grow quickly and turn into tumbler or pupae. Soon the skin of the tumbler splits open and out climbs another hungry mosquito.

The director of the State Health Department's Vector Control Division, Kenneth C. Lauderdale, says that in addition to being pests, mosquitoes can be dangerous. Such diseases as encephalitis, yellow fever, dengue fever and malaria are common diseases spread by the flying insect. They are big health problems in other parts of the world.

One of the last epidemics of mosquito-borne disease in Texas was Venezuelan Equine Encephalitis (VEE), which entered the country through Mexico. It struck many people—mostly in the Rio Grande Valley—and made heavy inroads into the horse population.

While mosquitoes are a threat to health and bodily comfort, there is something that you as an individual can do to ease the situation, says Lauderdale.

Lauderdale calls this the Ten Commandments of Home Mosquito Control. They are:

1. Empty, remove, cover, or turn upside down any receptacle that will hold water—particularly old bottles and tin cans.
2. Change water and scrub vases holding flowers or cuttings twice each week—or grow cuttings in sand.
3. Discard old tires or store them indoors.
4. Screen rain barrels and openings to water tanks or cisterns. Seal cisterns not in actual use.
5. Repair leaky plumbing and outside faucets. They may cause standing water.
6. Connect open waste water drains to a sewage system, or construct separate sump or leach lines.
7. Clean clogged roof gutters and drain flatroofs.
8. Fill holes in trees with sand or mortar, or drain or spray them, as required.
9. Stock ornamental ponds with mosquito-eating fish.
10. Clean and drain evaporative coolers frequently.

And remember, says Lauderdale, that mosquitoes develop only in water. And, water standing just a few days can produce a crop of mosquitoes!

Passage of the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act late July 19 by the House in Washington has to be looked upon as a step toward final enactment of a farm program to succeed the Agriculture Act of 1970 which expires this year.

"But we are still a long way from having a farm bill signed into law," cautions Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. Johnson, along with PCG President Ray Joe Riley of Hart, was in Washington all of the week preceding the final House vote and during much of the previous debate on the controversial measure.

The House bill passed amid more than a little confusion by a margin of only 44 votes, 226 to 182, now goes to a House-Senate Conference Committee where the attempt will be made to reach an acceptable compromise between the House and Senate versions. No immediate move was made by House Agriculture Committee Chairman Bob Poage to send the bill to conference and there was no indication at noon the following day as to when such a move might be expected.

Both House and Senate bills are built on the "target price system" conceived in the Senate Agriculture Committee. For cotton the Senate's five-year bill sets the 1974 target at 43 cents a pound, with payments to make up the difference between that price and the average of spot market quotations for Strict Low Middling inch-and-a-sixteenth cotton during the first five months of the marketing year.

The House four-year bill calls for a 38 cent target, with payments calculated as the difference between 38 cents and the average price paid to farmers for all cotton over a 12 month period. So the two target prices are not directly comparable. Average prices paid to farmers over a full year can be expected to average from 1.5 to 2 cents per pound lower than a five month average of SLM inch-and-a-sixteenth spot quotations.

The different House language, according to Johnson, "is something PCG worked for and if upheld by the conferees will be a definite improvement wherever the conference committee sets the target price in cents per pound."

Both Senate and House Bills retain the two-way escalator clause, which provides for adjustment of the target price after 1974 to reflect production cost changes in production efficiency. The clause which caused Senate Agriculture Earl Butz to state he would recommend a presidential escalator clause could cause payments for the four years to reach as $12 billion.

"And there is a distinct possibility President Nixon will follow Secretary's recommendation," Johnson said.

One of the most debilitating features of the bill in the minds of farm leaders is the $20,000 per person limit on payments. And this becomes a serious fault when coupled with the action banning the sale and lease allotments, a provision not included in the Senate bill.

"We are bitterly disappointed," Johnson stated, "and it appears now our only hope for relief is that the conferees will delete the House's ban on sale lease."

"Thou wilt show me the path of life, in thy presence is fulness of joy." PSALM 16:11

shall love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself. Luke 10:27

The basis of God's first and greatest commandment is love. God gave man the freedom to choose . . . and therefore will not force his love on anyone. God took the first step and is always ready to receive any who would come to Him.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Split dove season proposed for 1973

Texas bird hunters harvested an estimated 7.1 million mourning doves during the 1972-73 season.

Last year's season was a split one, that is, it was divided into a fall segment and a January winter segment.

According to Ken Gamble, Parks and Wildlife Department biologist in charge of statewide dove research, some 91 percent of the total harvest — 6.5 million birds — were killed in the fall segment of the season.

Only 671,248 mourning doves were killed in the statewide Jan. 6-21 portion.

"We have requested a second year of the experimental split dove season from the federal government," said Gamble. "January weather during last year's season was so bad that few hunters got out and went hunting."

Gamble said that the first split season was not a good test and offered little information as to its effects on hunting doves later in the year.

North Zone hunters accounted for 5,235,704 mourning doves and those in the South Zone bagged 1,856,756 birds.

The Cross Timbers and Prairies ecological zone of North Texas yielded the most doves: 1,268,435.

According to Gamble's figures, the statewide average daily bag of mourning doves was six birds.

"We conducted our annual 'call counts' May 20-June 10," said Gamble. "The counts record calling male birds and provide an index to the breeding population from which we can estimate population changes. The index is down some 14 percent from last year."

Gamble pointed out, however, that last year's counts showed an increase of 34 percent over the previous year's index.

Gamble is hesitant about making any predictions for this year's season.

"This year's nesting season is a long way from being over," he said, "adverse weather could hurt the hatch or any of a number of things could happen."

Wing surveys during the 1966-68 hunting seasons showed that the normal statewide nesting season has its peak hatch in July. The bulk of production is over by the end of August.

Nesting peaks two to four weeks later in the South Zone than in the North which is justification for the later fall opening in the South. The 1966-68 study showed little variation between years in periods of peak production.

Another wing collection study is planned to begin this hunting season.

It is designed to establish age ratios in harvested birds, give indications of the season's production and when the hatches occurred.

begin at the rodeo arena at 8 p.m., followed by the first night's rodeo action. The rodeo dance will be held on a new concrete slab poured for that purpose close to the rodeo arena beginning at approximately 9:30 each night of the rodeo.

Friday's action will begin with the children's bicycle races around the courthouse square at 10 a.m. This will be followed by the children's pet show at 1 p.m. on the courthouse lawn. At 5 p.m. Friday the Morton Volunteer Fire Department will conduct a water polo demonstration on the street next to the courthouse square, utilizing a huge rubber or plastic ball and two teams manning fire hoses. The second rodeo performance and dance will wind up Friday's activities.

A ping pong ball drop from an airplane with certain numbered balls worth prizes is planned for two days during the fair, but is still in the uncertain stage.

Saturday will be a day of heavy activity, with the beard judging scheduled on the courthouse lawn at 4 p.m. This will be followed by the motorcycle barrel races and the children's horse races, both of which will be held near the rodeo arena. The motorcycle races will begin at 6 p.m. and the horse racing at 7 p.m.

The third rodeo performance, crowning of the rodeo queen and the last rodeo dance will close out the three-day activities.

A man vs horse race event has been proposed and plans have been made to include it in the children's horse races. This will feature a horse, with one of the girl rodeo contestants riding it, racing the distance and back on a 25-30 yard course. This should add much to the spectator interest.

Gerald Ramsey, project manager for the beard growing contest, has announced nine categories to be judged: Blackest, Thickest, Longest, Scrougiest, Most Unique, Just Plain Ugliest, grayest, dirtiest and cleanest. It appears that this leaves all but the faintest of hearts with something to shoot for.

The publicity caravan which will visit many of the surrounding towns to advertise the rodeo and fair will make up on the east side of the square early Monday morning, July 30 and depart at 7:30 a.m. All who can participate in this caravan are urged to do so. It will be an all-day tour and there will be only one—so a box lunch and cold thermos is suggested. The caravan will consist of a bus, a coke trailer, a loudspeaker system, a western band, many private cars and, it is hoped, many, many people, both young and old.

facilities and personnel in the big cities, leaving a severe shortage in rural areas.

In Cochran County, based upon the latest tabulation by the Census Bureau, the number of men and women employed in the health field is 51.

A breakdown of this total shows that 9 of them are in the category designated "physicians, dentists and related practitioners," which includes, when there are any, chiropractors, optometrists, podiatrists, osteopathic physicians and the like.

Another 11 locally are termed "health workers." This group is made up of dietitians, registered nurses, therapists, hygienists and technicians.

The remaining 31, called "health service workers," include nurses aides, practical nurses, dental assistants and lay midwives. To what extent do they fulfill Cochran County's needs? From a numerical standpoint alone, it means that there is one person employed in the health field, locally, for every 104 residents.

This compares with an average of one for every 69 elsewhere in the United States and with one for 77 in the State of Texas.

The geographic imbalance with respect to health care is indicated by the government's figures which show that in urban America there is a health worker for every 63 people while, in rural America, the average is only one for every 97.

In some areas the shortage is even more pronounced, so that sick people are forced to travel great distances to get medical or dental attention.

That year they moved to Dublin and in September, 1972, moved to Holliday.

The couple's 19 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren, all attended the reception.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Pond's nine brothers and sisters and his brother and sister. Attending from Morton were his sister, Mr. and Mrs. R.A. Thompson, and his niece, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Akin.

Applications now open for patrolman in DPS

Colonel Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, has announced the DPS is accepting applications for the post of patrolman.

Applicants selected as cadets will enter 18-weeks of training at the DPS Law Enforcement Academy in Austin in a class tentatively scheduled to begin September 25.

Speir said general qualifications for DPS patrolmen are: Applicants must be 20 through 35 years of age (inclusive); good moral character; excellent physical condition; height not less than 68 inches nor more than 76 inches; weight not less than two pounds nor more than 3 1/2 pounds per inch of height; visual acuity no worse than 20-40 correctable to 20-20; and a citizen of the United States. Educational qualifications, which require a minimum of 30 semester hours of college, will increase to 45 semester hours on September 1.

He pointed out that qualified female applicants are now being accepted for the uniformed services of the DPS, and that the department has been increasingly successful in recruiting persons from minority groups.

During the training period, cadets participate in some 850 hours of law enforcement classes on a wide variety of subjects such as criminal and traffic law, human and community relations, and investigative techniques. The schooling includes rigorous physical training, marksmanship, and skills related to pursuit driving.

After graduation, cadets will be commissioned as probationary patrolman I at a salary of $719 monthly and assigned to the Highway Patrol, License & Weight Service, Motor Vehicle Inspection Service or Driver License Service according to the needs of DPS and consideration of personal preference.

The salary automatically increases to $743 per month after six months. Upon completion of 12 months commissioned service, probationary patrolmen are promoted to patrolman I at a salary of $794 monthly. They become eligible for promotion to sergeant or positions in the DPS Criminal Law Enforcement Division after two years commissioned service.

Officers electing to remain in a non-supervisory uniformed position are

Hunting lease could be bad for your morale

Looking for a deer hunting lease for the fall? Beware.

Parks and Wildlife Department enforcement personnel have learned that Larry W. Tamplin escaped from the Sugarland Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections July 2 while serving a three-year sentence on a mail fraud conviction.

Tamplin was found guilty this year for using the mails to sell leases to some 110 unsuspecting hunters for an estimated $10,000.

Operating out of Livingston, Texas, Tamplin advertised bogus mule deer leases in Texas newspapers from July, 1971, to December, 1971.

The leases were in the Sanderson and Alpine areas of far West Texas.

Tamplin failed to produce any lease for the hunters.

Investigation of Tamplin for mail fraud began May, 1972. He entered a guilty plea May 17, 1973, in Federal Court in Houston.

Parks and Wildlife Department game wardens Jim Wood and Bob Hall of Livingston were instrumental in bringing Tamplin to justice by tracing his whereabouts across East Texas to Austin.

Tamplin is still at large after his July 2 escape from Sugarland.

Parks and Wildlife Department law enforcement officials and other state law officers are on the lookout for him.

Although it is doubtful that Tamplin would try to revive his lucrative lease operation, lease hunters are advised to be a little more cautious in finding a place to hunt this fall.

eligible to compete for promotion to patrolman II after 60-months commissioned service.

All DPS officers receive fringe benefits including hospitalization and life insurance, paid vacations and sick leave, and holidays as for all State employees. Uniforms, vehicles and equipment are furnished and patrolmen receive a uniform cleaning allowance. Expenses are paid when away from home station.

In addition, personnel are members of both the State Employees Retirement System and social security.

Speir said prospective applicants should contact any DPS office or patrolman for application forms. The completed material should then be taken to the nearest regional, district or sub-district Department of Public Safety office when the competitive examination is given.

Arrangements will be made for a physical examination. A character investigation will also be conducted and applicants who are selected for the Academy will be notified prior to the start of the recruit school.

Retailers need authorization for food stamp sales

Food retailers in counties entering the Food Stamp Program will have to be authorized by the U.S. Department of Agriculture before they will be eligible to accept food stamp coupons.

This word comes from Martin D. Garber, Dallas, administrator of the West-Central regional office of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service.

Under the Food Stamp Program, which is scheduled to be operating in all Texas counties by the end of the year, needy families are certified for the program by the State Department of Public Welfare.

Families then pay a certain amount of money, depending on income, resources and other factors, for food stamps, which they then use to purchase eligible foods at local stores authorized by USDA.

"Most grocers in a food stamp county apply for authorization," Garber stated, "since the program usually means a noticeable increase in business."

USDA will conduct meetings in advance of the start of the program in each county to acquaint grocers with the food stamp operation, Garber added. Although regulations are relatively simple, certain items cannot be bought with food stamps. These include all non-food items sold in the store, as well as most imported foods.

Grocers redeem the coupons through local banks and the Federal Reserve System.

FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK

From the Christians who assemble at Taylor and S. 2nd. Sts. — Greetings: The word "Christians" came to be used for the first time in the Bible in Acts 11:26. The word is never found in the Bible used in any way except as a Noun. It always referred to persons—never anything else.

Just WHO may wear, with God's approval, the name Christian? So far as the Bible is concerned—only they who are truly "disciples" of Christ. In the text of Acts 11:26 we have "...And the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch." No others qualify.

Who is a disciple? Turn to John chap. 8 verses 28-32. At the ending of Jesus saying many things we have "As he spoke these words, many believed on him." Jesus then turned to the Jews, which believed on him, and said "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed;"—verses 30 and 31. This, from Jesus himself, makes it definite that only those who continue in his word can qualify as "disciples" of Christ. No man can change that fact. It is yet an absolute fact.

The thinking person will also discover in the above facts from the "word" of Christ that simple belief on Christ is not enough to make one a "disciple" of Christ; hence, also, not enough to truly claim to be a "Christian." Also—that to "continue" in Christ's word requires that a person MUST learn that word. It is certain that no one can ignore Christ's word and continue in it at the same time. That would be the same as saying one can be ignorant of the law of this country, and just ignore the law, and keep the law—all at the same time. Thinking people just do not behave that way.

How are we to discover Christ's word to us today, and to continue IN that word, shall be studied in articles immediately following. The readers will do well to keep all articles for reference as we study. Please remember the public assemblies of the Christians meeting at the above named address:—Sunday morning at 10:00 Bible Study Classes; at 10:45 the General Assembly, and again Sunday evening at 6:00 General Assembly, and Wednesday evening at 8:00—Bible Study Classes, Singing, and Prayers. You are truly welcome and urged to be present.

Expert outlines methods for better beef purchases

Beef-hungry consumers can follow seven guidelines to keep meat on the table in spite of the "shrinking buck," a livestock marketing specialist said this week.

Dr. Edward Uvacek Jr. with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, cited careful spending of meat dollars as the key.

—Compare meat cuts on a cost-per-serving basis, rather than price per pound.

—For example, you can get about four servings from a pound of ground beef, but only two and a half servings from a sirloin steak. For them to be equal on a cost-per-serving basis—when sirloin brings $1.49 per pound, ground beef could sell for as much as $2.38 per pound," the specialist explained.

—A brisket at $1.19 a pound will cost as much per serving as a boneless chuck at 99 cents a pound, or short ribs at 79 cents a pound.

—Boneless chuck roast at $1.09 a pound and short ribs at 88 cents a pound have exactly the same cost per serving, but a T-bone steak at $1.59 a pound costs twice as much per serving as liver at the same price."

Uvacek also advised homemakers—when substituting other meats such as broiler chickens for beef—to remember that most of them have very low servings per pound.

—For example, a ready-to-cook broiler at 59 cents a pound is slightly more expensive per serving than brisket or rolled rump at $1.29 a pound."

—Don't pay extra for minor conveniences.

—Pre-formed ground beef patties are pretty—but expensive. The amount of work in making a hamburger patty is pretty negligible.

—Similar types of conveniences—at a cost—are built into such items as tenderized or formed steaks, cubed stewing beef, breaded chicken-fried steaks and precooked cuts. Do the work yourself, and save a bundle," he added.

—Carefully compare prices for beef cuts in different stores.

—All retailers don't charge the same price for individual cuts. In fact, it's not unusual to have very substantial variations in retail prices between stores—even in a small town.

—Shop around. Don't always buy your beef in the same old store, simply because that's where the watermelons are cheaper."

—Get your money's worth in quality.

—Unless you're an expert, the easiest way to insure consistent acceptability and quality is to buy only USDA Choice beef.

—If it's either labeled as such, or has a purple shield with the word "Choice" inside of it, stamped on the outside of the meat cut.

—Look for this before you buy. You could buy U.S. Good beef, but it's not as safe a bet in terms of quality."

—Don't be ashamed to return an unsatisfactory piece of meat.

—Most retailers, particularly larger chains, flaunt a money-back guarantee. Use it. If not completely satisfied, return it. Don't assume your cooking was bad.

—In some cases, cooking can intensify the problem (like well-done steaks), but in general, you need a good piece of beef to begin with."

—Learn some of the basic cuts of beef.

—Several different names are used for the same cut because of regional preferences. Just a little study will show you, for example, that a rib-eye steak is the same and probably cheaper than a Delmonico.

—Similarly, a rib steak and a club steak are basically the same. Sirloin steak is a much more tender piece of meat than round steak.

—Also, take a little time to learn the recommended cooking method for each cut—which should be broiled, braised, roasted, pot-roasted. It will pay—in satisfaction."

—Buy on sales—usually the weekend sales will save you money.

—Be cautious on double-stamp days and during mid-week, non-sales days.

—Don't be ashamed of buying just the sales items at several stores that might be close to each other. It's your money—so make the most of it."
