Local program showing growth

'Tis the middle of May, the cotton and grainsorghum seeds are going into the ground and there is a strange smell of horse hide and resin in the air of West Texas. Yes, it's that season again and the sound of Steerike three, yerrout! is heard throughout the land.

And the Morton area is no exception, as its organized baseball leagues on three levels have already begun play or are tuning up for an early start.

The six-team Morton Little League launched play last Thursday and already have five game nights under their belts. The four team Frontier Junior Babe Ruth League will open play at Charles Hoffman Park at the county park Friday night. The five-team Minor League will open their five game night campaign at Little

DWI's dominate week's offenses

Charges of driving while intoxicated (DWI) dominated the offenses in a rather busy week of activity by the county sheriff's office and Morton city police.

The following charges and their disposition were made during the week ending May 15:

Ricky Bedwell, DWI charged by the Texas Highway Patrol on Saturday, May 11. He was arraigned before county Judge Glenn Thompson and released after posting a bond of $500.

Orvie L. Fought, picked up on a warrant from Austin by sheriff's deputies on May 10 and held in county jail until May 13 when his Austin bond of $1,000 was reinstated, at which

Bula school hires lawyer, tax collector

In its May 8th Board meeting the Bula ISD Board of Trustees approved an agreement with Thomas E. Tollett, Attorney at Law, for the collection of delinquent taxes due the school for fifteen percent of the total taxes due, including the interest and penalty. Court costs, if any, will also be collected from the delinquent taxpayer.

It is expected that Mr. Tollett will begin work by June 1, 1974.

Like most other schools the Bula ISD has found it necessary to increase taxes due to inflationary costs of operating the school. Finding that the failure of a relatively few to pay taxes results in even higher taxes and increases the burden upon the majority who pay taxes, the board has

"Command" Performance

Three days before concert time, a rock singer informed the promoter that he had changed his mind about doing the show. The promoter hastened into a local courtroom for help.

"I want a court order commanding him to perform," he said. "That is what he agreed to do when he signed his contract."

But the court denied the promoter's request. The court said it had no authority to force an unwilling man to sing.

It is true that motels—and hotels as well—bear a substantial responsibility for the property of their guests. This rule dates all the way back to the Middle Ages in England, when inns were considered a kind of safety zone for the traveling public.

But the rule does not go into effect until the property has been transferred to the possession of the management. In the case of automobiles, possession is ordinarily transferred when the guest surrenders his keys to a company employee.

The exact moment of transfer may become crucial. One woman left her car at the entrance to a hotel and went in to register. When the bellboy asked her for the keys, she replied that she had left them in the ignition.

Shortly afterward, a thief slipped into the car and made off with it. Had the woman delivered possession of the car to the hotel management, making it responsible for her loss?

A court said yes, even though the keys had never been physically handed over to the bellboy. The court said the woman's words had given him the right to take possession of the car—and along with the right went the responsibility.

Trash, garbage piles can be great asset to America

Environmental health authorities have found a vast, largely neglected treasure in an unlikely place: the nation's trash piles.

A couple of years ago, when the environment was at the forefront of public attention, the solid waste problem was a major concern. There seemed to be only two ways to deal with the ton of trash that every American produces in a year's time—either burn it, or bury it.

But today, according to environmental health officials of the Texas State Health Department, the solid waste "problem" has become a challenging opportunity, a sensible, economical way to help overcome some of the shortages in raw materials that have plagued the nation.

Solid waste, the authorities say, is our most neglected natural resource. Enormous progress has been made in the past few years in the development of methods for reclaiming usable materials from the nation's junkpiles. What was at one time a utopian dream is becoming an everyday reality: the ability to recycle virtually all of the waste and refuse produced by our high-consumption society. Furthermore, the growing scarcity of vital raw materials has naturally made those materials more valuable, and thus more expensive in turn, means that recovering materials from America's garbage has become economically feasible even every profitable.

Consider, for example, the fact that recycled steel and iron are worth "tin cans" in your kitchen pan—actually made of steel. Every newsprint is worth around forty cents a ton. One of the most valuable common household materials, aluminum, is worth about two hundred dollars a ton. Obviously, these materials are too valuable to bury in a landfill or an incinerator.

Of course, after all the newspapers, and aluminum cans, and there's still a lot of garbage left. Scraps and other organic materials can be recovered and recycled the way that even the most "useless" garbage can be put to good use.

You could, for example, put your garbage and table scraps into a composter and produce enough natural fertilizer for a good-sized garden. Or you could use methane gas—a gas that is already used for cooking, heating, and even small motor.

Or, better yet, your city could be the example of the electric utility in Louisiana. There, ordinary household garbage is being used as fuel in the production of electric power. Between five and ten percent of the electric power will come from garbage power; eventually, the power company officials hope to use as much as 25 percent garbage. The economic savings will be enormous. Not only will natural gas be conserved, but the cost of transporting the garbage to a processing plant is a good deal less than the cost of burning the same trash in an ordinary incinerator.

The State of Connecticut has gone further in its materials recovery. There, the entire state is being treated as a single massive recycling plant. Household and industrial waste is every where in the state will be taken to a number of centralized processing centers, where recoverable materials will be removed and the rest will be shredded and burned to produce electrical power.

According to authorities of the Health Department, Texas could have a system similar to Connecticut's. Of course, a great deal larger. Such a system could save the state of Texas literally millions of dollars a year in savings would come from a number of sources: first, there would be no need for costly incinerators to burn garbage; second, there would be no need for sanitary landfill operations, which are usually expensive to operate; third, recovered materials probably would be valuable enough to pay for the cost of the system. It's even conceivable that friendly neighborhood trash collectors would pay you for the privilege of taking away your garbage. Finally, electricity could be produced from the over garbage, thereby conserving valuable fuels such as oil, gas, and coal.

You probably have never realized your kitchen wastebasket is a veritable treasure. But, environmental health specialists of your Texas Health Department of Health want you to know that "garbage-power" is a reality today. That's why the Health Department says, "Don't waste it—recover it too valuable to go to waste."

This is the law's usual attitude with regard to contracts that call for personal service of one kind or another. Although the courts may award dollar damages for breach of contract, they generally won't force a singer to sing, a painter to paint, or a baseball player to play baseball.

Why? Because, say the courts, it would be too hard to tell whether the performer—acting under compulsion—was really doing a good job or was only going through the motions.

Furthermore, a forced performance is considered too close to involuntary servitude. Courts are reluctant, said one judge, to "turn contracts of service into contracts of slavery." (In that case, he refused to force a dancer to dance.)

Sometimes, however, a court will put indirect pressure on the performer by at least forbidding him to "do his thing" for anybody else. Thus, a basketball star who broke his contract was ordered by a court not to play for another team.

But even this lesser form of pressure is used only if the performer's services are unique—that is, if his employer cannot find a reasonably satisfactory substitute. For example:

A piano company went to court to prevent a disgruntled salesman from going to work for another firm. But the court decided that the circumstances did not justify such a drastic order. The court said the company was not facing any "irreparable harm," since it could hire another salesman to do pretty much the same job.

Motel and Your Car
Melvin's restless night at a motel came to a jarring end when he looked out the window in the morning. His car, which he had parked just outside the room, had disappeared. In fact, he never saw it again.

In due course, he tried to collect reimbursement from the management of the motel.

"I was their guest," he argued in a court hearing, "and my car was on their premises. Therefore, they are legally liable for the loss."

However, the court tossed out Melvin's claim. The court said his argument did not stand up because he had never turned over possession of the car to the management. He had parked the car himself and kept the keys in his pocket.

It is true that motels—and hotels as well—bear a substantial responsibility for the property of their guests. This rule dates all the way back to the Middle Ages in England, when inns were considered a kind of safety zone for the traveling public.

But the rule does not go into effect until the property has been transferred to the possession of the management. In the case of automobiles, possession is ordinarily transferred when the guest surrenders his keys to a company employee.

The exact moment of transfer may become crucial. One woman left her car at the entrance to a hotel and went in to register. When the bellboy asked her for the keys, she replied that she had left them in the ignition.

Shortly afterward, a thief slipped into the car and made off with it. Had the woman delivered possession of the car to the hotel management, making it responsible for her loss?

A court said yes, even though the keys had never been physically handed over to the bellboy. The court said the woman's words had given him the right to take possession of the car—and along with the right went the responsibility.

Farm-facts

Compiled From Sources Of The Texas Department of Agriculture
John C. White, Commissioner

IT'S ANYBODY'S guess what farming in Texas will be like by the year 2000. One thing that may be expected is that satellites may be helping, because they already are. Earth Resources Technology Satellite-1 (ERTS-1) circling the earth, is sending back photo-like images that make it possible to identify different crops, acreage, and even crop growth. It is expected that satellites will help track down water supplies—a talent West Texans, especially, could use now—and will be able to give every warning on crop diseases. An United States satellite probably will be able to tell Americans what neighboring farmers are doing. Oldtimers use to say they "planted by the moon." The future farmer may be farming by satellite.

THE FUEL situation may be easing for most farmers, but it is still tight for others. Very tight gasoline situations were reported in Hall, Foard, Hansford, Llano, Hemphill, Hartley, El Paso, Denton, and Archer Counties; and very tight diesel fuel situations were reported in El Paso and Hartley Counties, according to the U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

TEXAS CROP and Livestock Reporting Service reports that prices received by the State's farmers and ranchers declined six per cent during the month ending April 15. Livestock and livestock products price index was down four per cent from the month earlier and 10 per cent below a year ago. The all-crops price index fell nine per cent below the previous month. Wheat went from $4.76 to $3.78 a bushel. Sorghum fell from $4.56 to $3.96 during the month ending April 15; upland cotton from 49 cents to 47, broilers from 22.5 cents a pound to 21; eggs from 56.3 cents a dozen to 51.2; and calves from $47.80 to $43.70.

LIKE MOST things Texas farmers use or buy, utility rates have been increasing. There has been debate among candidates and Constitutional Convention delegates about possibilities of creating a commission to regulate utilities. Telephone rates are drawing much attention since one telephone company not regulated now has announced an increase in the "mileage rate." This company has said that its new pricing philosophy tries to place the cost of service on the "cost causer" or the customer using the service. TEXAS' STOCKS of four feed grains April 1 were estimated at 169 million bushels, the same as a year ago, says Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. (Those four are: sorghum, corn, oats, and barley.) Wheat supply was 41.4 million bushels, down 15 per cent from a year earlier. Sorghum stocks were 127 million bushels, down 13 per cent; corn 29.9 million bushels, up 89 per cent; oats 11.4 million bushels, 51 per cent above a year ago; barley 400,000 bushels, down 39 per cent; soybeans 8.3 million bushels up 41 per cent.

PROCESSING of red meat in Texas' slaughtering plants is increasing a little, but the 546.6 million pounds processed the first three months of the year was one per cent below the same period in 1973. The plants processed 184.7 million pounds of red meat in March, an increase of 15 per cent from February but one per cent lower than the corresponding month of 1973.

League Park Friday night.

The Babe Ruth opener promises to be quite an event, with the two Morton teams, The A's and the Reds squaring off against each other at Charles Hoffman Park at 8 p.m. A gala affair is planned with live music provided by high school students, drawings for door prizes, free cokes at the concession stand and other features. All this in addition to the promise of some real fine baseball for the true fan.

Boy Scout Troop 645 will honor the flag in ceremonies before the game and Cochran County Judge Glenn Thompson will throw out the first ball.

By dropping the Morton Babe Ruth teams from three to two, league officials are confident that there will be a greater concentration of playing talent and thus better ball games, both from the players and the spectators standpoint. They predict better baseball and more interest by the fans this year.

The other two teams that make up the Frontier League are the Great Plains Boys Ranch team, sponsored by the Morton Lions Club and the Sundown team, sponsored by the Community of Sundown. The Morton Reds are sponsored by L&B Supply of Morton and the A's are sponsored by the Morton Volunteer Fire Department.

Eddie Lewis is head coach of the A's, assisted by Alex Soliz. Jerry Schaeffer is the Red's head coach with the assistance of Hi Duncan.

Frontier League officials express great appreciation to the Morton community for supporting the league so well so far this year. From near total insolvency, the league is once more in the black and has some extra operating money, thanks to public support, league president Don Lamar has stated. League vice-president is Everett Bibrey, secretary-treasurers are Mrs. Frank Davidson and Maurice Lewallen and Frank Davidson is chief umpire.

All sportsmen and sportswomen are urged to attend the opening game Friday night.

John C. White, Commissioner

Drought Hurts Northern Wheat... Rainfall Spotty... Milk Makes Good News... Feedlots Plan Marketing... Auction Business Down

THERE IS a lot going on on Texas farms now that will have a big effect on how Americans live in the coming months. Planting is underway over much of the State, and the weather is having its usual effect. In the northern part of the State, dryland wheat farmers have marked up an unsuccessful year because of drought. Most their wheat crops have been grazed out, plowed up, or abandoned. Irrigated wheat is doing well, as is wheat in the southern half of the State where one field was reported already harvested last week. About 22 per cent of the cotton was reported planted over the State, compared to nine per cent at the same time last year. Replanting of cotton, corn and sorghum in the southern half of the State is complete. Sorghum planting is almost over from the Blacklands southward, and planting for the entire State is about 45 per cent complete. Rice planting is almost complete, and peanut planting is about 10 per cent complete. AS ALWAYS, rainfall has been spotty during the first three weeks of April, with Mercedes in the Valley reporting the most rain, 4.14 inches. Rainfall at various other places over the State during the same time will give you a picture of planting problems: Laredo 0, Corpus Christi .05, Victoria .85, Collier 1.41, Longview 1.47, Seymour 1.47, Falls 2.80, Amarillo .04, Big Bend 2.67, San Antonio 1.16.

MILK HAS been in the political and it is making good news agricultural front. Texas farm dairy products. That's 12 per cent of the total milk produced in 1972. The price of milk averaged 100 pounds which was 1.01 more year earlier, but the annual number of milk cows was down 1.5 percent from last year, to 255 million pounds, a drop of three per cent for 1972.

FEEDLOT operators plan to 1,200,000 head of cattle between June 30 this year, which is 50 percent of the total on feed April 1 and more than were marketed in Texas the same quarter of 1972. There are 2,219,000 head being fed for sale April 1 which is two percent below earlier, four per cent below the 1971 level. Feedlots are having their troubles as cattle declined, but there were 225,000 head in the state in April, including those feeding 1,000 head. However, 41 of the feedlots reported empty and the other 174 they had 2,172,000 head of cattle, a per cent capacity of the 225 total.

LIVESTOCK AUCTION showed a drop in business during the week. There were 328,000 head sold at auctions during that month, 40 per cent below a year ago, and 21 per cent below the previous month. Hogs sold at rings during March totaled 4,000 per cent below a year ago, and the cent above February sales. THE U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced that about 50,000 Mexican fruit flies will be released in Dimmit County each Wednesday next nine to 12 weeks to control infestations of the Mexican fruit fly. The number of sterile flies eventually will reach 100,000 per acre. This will be the first time this attack has been used against the fruit flies in Texas, but it has been used twice before in Mexico.

CAPAROL® TAKES THE WEEDS AND LEAVES THE MOISTURE BEHIND.

Unlike the preplant weed killers, Caparol herbicide in cotton doesn't need to be incorporated. You don't disturb the soil. You don't let out some of the soil moisture — moisture your cotton needs. You can broadcast Caparol, or band it. It controls the annual broadleaves that compete with your cotton, as well as annual grasses. And you don't have to apply it before you plant. Put on Caparol preemergence at planting or shortly after planting — take your choice. Order Caparol today. You'll kill weeds without losing moisture. Caparol® trademark of CIBA-GEIGY for prometryn

Swimming pools an ancient luxury

At about the time man started to write his own history, some 5,000 years ago, he also discovered swimming pools.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

As the rain and snow come down from heaven and stay upon the ground to water the earth, and cause the grain to grow and to produce seed for the farmer and bread for the hungry, so also is my Word. I sent it out and it always produces fruit. It shall accomplish all I want it to, and prosper everywhere I send it. You will live in joy and peace. The mountains and hills, the trees of the field — all the world around you — will rejoice.

"Thou wilt show me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy."
PSALM 16:11

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of the demand for man to respond to that love by leaving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedom which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, seen from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

COCHRAN POWER & LIGHT

Preliminary statistics on cotton ginnings from the U.S. Bureau of Census show the 25 High Plains counties represented by Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., of Lubbock, accounted for 2,779,805 gin-run bales or 15.5 per cent of a 12,594,370-bale national crop. High Plains ginnings come to 61.7 percent of the 4,500,544-bale Texas total, according to PCG figures.

The national average net weight per bale ginned from the 1973 crop was 493.8 pounds, so the U.S. running bale total converts to 12,956,458 bales of 480 pounds net weight. In Texas average net bale weights were 501.9 pounds, highest in the nation, bringing the net weight bale total for this state to 4,705,881.

Jessie Vasquez, Jr. rites held Tuesday

Services for Jessie Vasquez, Jr. 13, were held at 11 a.m. Tuesday in St. Anne's Catholic Church. The Rev. Nicholas Schneiders, pastor, officiated.

Burial was in Morton Memorial Cemetery under the direction of Singleton Funeral Home.

Jessie, a fifth-grade student in Morton Elementary School, died Saturday afternoon in Houston's M.D. Anderson Hospital.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Vasquez, Sr.; his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Moreno of Taft; his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Juanita Vasquez; three sisters, Diana, Gracie and Angelina, all of the home; and five brothers, Eugene, Morio, Benny Leonardo and Lupe, all of the home.

Although official figures are not compiled, indications are that the average weight of gin-run bales on the High Plains was higher than both state and national averages. The average net bale weight from three area compresses checked by PCG came to 503 pounds. If this figure is applied to all High Plains cotton, the area ginnings in net weight bales comes to just over 2.9 million, well above the 2,725,000 net weight bales estimated earlier by the joint PCG-Lubbock Cotton Exchange Estimating Committee.

The Bureau of Census ginning figures are broken down by counties but are not an accurate indication of county-by-county production because of significant amounts of cotton produced in one county and ginned in another. Actual county production figures in net weight bales will be released later by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, and these will be used as the "official" High Plains production figures.

The trend to heavier bale weights, begun in 1971 as the natural result of the change to net weight trading and more expensive bagging and ties, is expected to end in 1974 because of new Texas Cotton Association trade rules which impose stiff penalties on both heavy and light weight bales. TCA members handle some 80 percent of the Texas crop each year, and its trade rules for 1974 call for a penalty of $5 on bales weighing from 330 to 379 pounds and from 551 to 575 pounds. Below 330 pounds and above 575 pounds the penalty will be $10 per bale, plus the "right to reject." Only bales weighing between 380 and 550 pounds will escape penalty and this will force a deliberate reduction in bale sizes, PCG reports.

The penalties, according to TCA, were adopted as a result of loading problems caused by odd sizes and broken bands at Texas ports.

Comments on conservation

By Solomon Hamilton

A grassed waterway is a constructed or a natural outlet shaped or graded and established in suitable vegetable. It is designed for a safe disposal of run-off from a field with a diversion, a terrace system or other structures. They are designed to dispose of excess water from natural concentrated areas without damage by soil erosion.

This practice applies to all sites where more vegetative cover is needed to control erosion from excessive runoff. Seldom will the grassed waterway control erosion alone, it works better in combination with other practices such as terraces, diversion, cropping systems and residue use.

A grassed waterway is no longer a useless spot of land just for carrying off unwanted water. If waterway is used for annual crops such as wheat or close spaced sorghum, residues will be managed to provide maximum protection, maintain all residues on the soil surface. Tillage operations should not be performed on waterways even when annual crops are grown. If weeds occur use a stubble mulcher or chemical weed control. There are several types and kinds of grasses that can be used in a waterway. The type used will be determined by the producer and how he plans to use his grass or if the area is dryland or irrigated. Under all circumstances the plans of the producer on his overall farm will determine the kind of grass sown.

The Soil Conservation Service has conservationists available to assist producers with shaping and designing waterways.

Contact your local Soil Conservation Service Office for more information on this and other practices.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN—One popular investment today, and periodically throughout the past, is fine jewelry. Gold jewelry, diamond rings, and other jewelry with precious metals and stones are being purchased in record amounts.

But it is often impossible for an inexperienced consumer to tell if a piece of jewelry or an uncut stone is what it is represented to be.

Reports from other states indicate there is a rash of deceptive practices in segments of today's jewelry market, although most jewelers are honest and depend on customer goodwill. Sometimes, however, even an unwary jewelry store owner may be "taken."

One report revealed that a jeweler who had been selling "amber beads" for years discovered when he had the beads tested that they were not amber at all. His foreign supplier had misled him.

Federal Trade Commission officials report that the problem is compounded by the fact that so few people who are taken advantage of by deceptive practices in the jewelry industry ever discover the deception and file complaints.

It is usually only when a person has a piece of jewelry appraised for insurance or when he tries to sell it that he becomes aware that he has been taken.

A diamond engagement ring is often the first piece of expensive jewelry many persons purchase. It's of great importance to select a highly reputable jeweler and to depend on his advice when picking a diamond, since for most couples an engagement ring is a major investment.

There are four things to consider when buying a diamond: carat, color, clarity, and cut. And there are two standard grading systems that classify diamonds by these four criteria. One system is used by the Gemological Society of America, the other by the American Gem Society.

Attorneys in our Consumer Protection Division learned of a consumer who bought a diamond from one jeweler, only to have another jeweler appraise the stone a few months later at about half what he had paid for it.

To avoid such disappointments, have the jeweler indicate on the sales receipt the exact description of the diamond according to one of the two standards mentioned. The receipt should state which standard was used and should indicate precisely the diamond's carat size, clarity, color and cut.

"Carats" and "points" are terms of weight for diamonds. There are 100 points to a carat, so a quarter of a carat is written ".25." It takes 142 carats to make one ounce. The Federal Trade Commission standards require that there be no more than one-half point variance from the exact weight in grading a diamond.

Diamond color can range from colorless to canary yellow, with the colorless ones generally preferred. A very few diamonds can be accurately described as "blue-white," but they are quite rare. Occasionally a diamond may naturally possess an unusual tint, but it is also true that artificial methods such as subatomic particle radiation, heat treatment, or chemical methods may be used to tint a diamond or to conceal an off-tint. Such treatment should be disclosed to the purchaser.

Clarity refers to the absence of imperfections in a diamond. Most of them have imperfections, but if they are not visible to the naked eye, the stone is more valuable. Most jewelers advise consumers to purchase a stone with as few invisible flaws as possible. They say that any diamond with visible flaws is likely to have poor resale value.

Cutting is the fourth thing to consider. It's the method by which jewelers shape a diamond and arrange its facets (or reflecting surfaces) to get brilliance and fire. Experts advise consumers not to compromise on the quality of a diamond's cut, since poor cutting can ruin a diamond's proportions and beauty.

Jade and American Indian jewelry are two other types of jewelry especially popular today.

Because of increased trade with China and a corresponding interest in Chinese goods, jade is now in the limelight. It has been valued in China for thousands of years, although the best jade comes from Burma.

Our attorneys have reports from a consumer agency in the East about a woman whose $6,000 "jade" jewelry piece turned out to be a green garnet worth about $1,000, so investigate carefully before investing.

Due to the recent upsurge of interest in American Indian silver and turquoise jewelry, many amateur collectors are combing the market for good buys.

Experts warn that it's not the cost of the materials that makes Indian jewelry so valuable, but the quality of workmanship. Therefore, it is very important to rely on the guidance of a good dealer who generally trades directly with the tribes producing quality jewelry.

If you have a consumer problem, consult our Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.

Our Consumer Protection Division has received several reports from other states about some deceptive practices regarding the sale of meat by bulk meat dealers.

Some of the described tactics were observed in Texas during last year's meat price crisis and they could turn up again.

One tactic complained of in other states is the "bait and switch" technique, in which consumers are drawn to a store by low advertised prices. When they respond to the ad, the seller shows them very fat, old, or generally unattractive beef. The consumer then is shown better-looking beef and urged to buy it at much higher prices.

Many people do not know that the U.S. Department of Agriculture requires that all meat be coded as freshness.

Some bulk meat dealers sell meat by "hanging weight," without explaining that the term refers to the entire side of an animal, including all fat and bones.

Consumers should find out what the cost per pound is for take-home meat after trimming and boning. Sometimes edible meat may amount to only half the hanging weight, so you would be paying twice as much as the advertised price for the meat you can eat.

If you're buying from a bulk meat supplier you've never traded with, it's a good idea to watch while the meat is trimmed, cut and packaged, to make sure what you paid for is what you'll be taking home. Reports from other states indicate that dishonest dealers sometimes switch meat orders on customers.

In most of our columns — like today's — we concentrate on alerting the consumer to deceptive trade practices such as these that he should be on guard against.

The perpetrators of such schemes are a very small percentage of the business community — a percentage that the honest merchant deplures as much as the public and our Consumer Protection Division.

But instead of focussing only on the minority of merchants who deliberately try to confuse or deceive the public, we'd like to call attention now to an example of an entire industry that is attempting to clear up consumer confusion.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board has responded to requests for consumers who were having a hard time identifying such meat cuts as "New York" steak, "Delmonico's" steak, "this and her" steaks, or "charbroil" steak.

With a total of more than a thousand such different names for beef cuts being used across the country, the problem was widespread.

The NLSMB set up an advisory committee to study the problem and recommend solutions. The committee found that a single cut of meat now can be labeled with as many as a dozen different popular names, depending on the store and the part of the country you're in.

As a result of the study, the NLSMB has adopted a new set of meat identity standards that may be used by up to 80 per cent of the nation's supermarkets within a few months. These standards reduce the number of meat names by more than two-thirds, to around 315.

They require that each label on packages of meat in supermarkets identify the kind of meat, the wholesale cut that tells what part of the animal the meat is from, and the retail cut that consumers buy.

So you might find that the "Pike's Peak" roast you've been buying for years may soon be more accurately labeled as "Beef Chuck—Under Blade Pot Roast." But locally popular names such as "Pike's Peak" can also be included on the label, in addition to the required information, says the NLSMB. This will enable people to find their favorite cut under the new labeling system.

The committee also recommended that all hamburger be called "ground beef," that its percentage of lean to fat be shown, that only skeletal beef meat be used in it, and that an optional descriptive name (such as "Chuck" or "Sirloin") could be included on the label. A complete label might be "Ground Beef Chuck—Not Less Than 75 Percent Lean."

Although these meat labeling standards are not mandatory, the NLSMB expects that they will be adopted by a large majority of meat suppliers.

This voluntary self-regulation by an industry is a good example of the business sector itself recognizing an area of consumer confusion and moving to remedy the situation.

If you should have a consumer problem with a business or individual, try first to talk it over. Then if the problem persists, consult our Consumer Protection Division, your local Better Business Bureau, or your county or district attorney.

FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK

From the Christians who assemble at Taylor and SW 2nd Sts. — Greetings:—

Some twelve to fourteen years after the incident studied in the last article there came a time when the saints (Christians) in Jerusalem were in deep need of help to maintain necessary things to live.

In Acts 18:23-28 we learn of Paul — the Apostles — again leaving Antioch, and this turned out to be the beginning of what is commonly referred to as his third missionary journey. It was while on this journey that Paul wrote 1st and 2nd Corinthians — Romans — and Galatians. In Acts 20th chapter and 21st chapter we have account of Paul's journey by the writer of Acts (LUKE), and in 20:4 we have account of those who accompanied Paul at that time — near the end of this third journey. It IS important to keep these things in mind as we shall discover in following studies.

It was in Paul's first letter to the Corinthians that we learn of the need of the Saints (Christians). Read 1 Cor. 16:1-11. They WERE in Jerusalem — verse 3, and Romans 15:25-28. The letter to the Corinthians — the first one — was up to a year BEFORE the second letter was written. In Paul's second letter to them he reminded them of their knowledge of the needs of the Jerusalem saints and their determination to help — read 2 Cor. 8:10 and 9:2. — a year earlier.

Readers who are sincerely studying to learn the truth will turn to all these passages — 1 Cor. 16:1-11; 2 Cor. Chapters 8 & 9; Romans 15:25-28; Acts 20:4 — and carefully study them. They all have reference to the same events introduced above.

One thing is so very plainly set forth and cannot be ignored: This whole matter concerned the "saints" (Christians) at Jerusalem. It, of course, would be the worst of stupidity not to realize that those dependent upon those saints were also in the concern of all the brethren. Still — it was "saints" (Christians) in Jerusalem that is the one concern of Paul and brethren elsewhere. The context, therefore, demands that we accept the fact that this relief was limited to them. The word "men" in 9:13 is in italics by which we know it is a "supplied" word — not in the original. More on this is to follow. Remember your welcome to the assemblies at Taylor and SW 2nd Sts.
