Floyd Voters

Approve Four Amendments

A few Floyd voters turned out Tuesday to vote on the State's seven Constitutional Amendments and approved Amendments 1,2,3, and 7. State voters approved five Amendments, turning down 5 and 6.

Big news in nearby Hale County was the vote against hail suppression 1,732 to 1,416.

It appeared there would be a run-off election between Bob Simpson and Bob Price in the State Senate race in the counties north and west of Floyd.

HOW FLOYD VOTED

1. Criminal Appeals Court Expansion-Approval 267; Against 165.
2. Veterans' Land Fund Increase-Approval 226; Against 200.
3. Denial of Bail-Approval 365; Against 64.
4. Historical Property Tax Relief-Approval 204; Against 231.
5. Authorize Marketing-Approval 198; Against 225.
6. Authorize Electronic Funds Transfer-Approval 146; Against 280.
7. Expand Judicial Commission Powers-Approval 209; Against 204.

Evidently the people who voted absentee did not have time to study the Amendments and just to be safe voted against all of them.

Holiday Spirit Costume

COLLEGE STATION- Capture the holiday spirit with fashion fantasies and favorites, says Beverly Rhoades, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Popular fabrics include suede-type cloth, cashmere, challis, velvet, and handspun polyester. Express your feelings in tailored, peasant, fantasy or soft, feminine creations. They're all great this season.

Pleats and tucks make a strong fashion statement for holiday dressing. They go in all directions and appear everywhere. They decorate sleeves, collars, and jabots. Crystal or knife pleats radiate into beautiful long or short dresses and skirts.

Shirring, ruffles, trims, lace and embroidery also provide interest, especially on yokes.

Colors range from winter whites to shaded pastels, to the brightest brights. Brights in combination make the biggest splash.

Styles include peasant dresses and blouses, cowl-necked blouson sweaters, and ankle-tied soft pants. The holiday scene will show butterfly or cape sleeves, drawstring or peplum blouses, tiers, and the victorian look.

Penseroso Discusses Book, Sees Portraits

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday conflicting with regular club meetings, II Penseroso Junior Study Club has met twice recently in one week.

The October 27 meeting was held in the home of Sheryl Bybee, with Kay Martin serving as co-hostess.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Douglas Degge who discussed the book Let My Children Go, which was co-authored by Ted Patrick. Mr. Patrick is a "deprogrammer" of young people who have become involved in religious cults. A lengthy discussion followed Mrs. Degge's program.

Door prize was won by Lisa Mosley. Her gift was all the making for caramel apples.

A guest at the meeting was Mrs. Benny Cates. Members present were Cindy Turbeville, Barbara McCormick, Jackie Holt, Cheryl Teeter, Jan Duvall, Lisa Mosley, Cheryl Bradley, Susan Flippin, Judy Jackson, Barbara Cawley, Gayle Jackson, Sharon Kinard, Anita Bigham, Sherry Race, Brenda Elam, Kay Martin, Sheryl Bybee, Debbie Stennett and Betonia Belt.

Sharon Kinard was hostess for the club's November 3rd meeting. Co-hostess was Treena Aston.

Mary Lois Montandon of Aiken, a well-known local artist, was present to show some of her portrait oil and pastel pictures. Mrs. Montandon told the group that interest in art is quite high presently and many more people are training themselves because of access or well-qualified teachers through short schools and workshops. Books on art techniques and improved materials that will age well have also encouraged potential artists to develop their skills, according to Mrs. Montandon. She did a pastel portrait of program chairman Lynda Gant during the program and answered questions from the group.

Roll call was answered with each member's favorite painting and artist. The business session was conducted by first vice president Anita Bigham.

Refreshments were served to guests Adeena Widenor and Jeanette Workman, and members Susan Flippin, Jessie Johnson, Betonia Belt, Sherry Race, Jackie Holt, Anita Bigham, Gayle Jackson, Kay Martin, Judy Jackson, Sheryl Bybee, Brenda Elam, Treena Aston, Barbara McCormick, Lisa Mosley, Lynda Gant, Linda Terrell, and Mrs. Montandon.

Cattlemen Cooperate With Deer Program

LUBBOCK—For Edwards Plateau farmers and ranchers who maintain co-existing livestock and deer herds three factors contribute to the success of this co-existence.

Those three factors are grazing rotations, maintenance of herd size and supplementary energy feeding programs.

Dr. Fred C. Bryant of Texas Tech University's Department of Range and Wildlife Management determined those factors in his research in the Edwards Plateau region, around Sonora, Texas.

The research was directed at examining forage competition in the Edwards Plateau region between the Spanish goat, a new introduction to the region, the Angora goat, sheep and white-tailed deer.

Bryant's study was begun in August of 1975 and information on the diet composition of the animals was collected monthly for a year. The study area was in a pasture grazed regularly by cattle, sheep and goats for 12 months and then rested four months. Deer grazed it regularly.

He found that livestock and deer compete with each other for three types of grazing including pasture grasses, certain weeds and browse or low growing bushes and trees.

Bryant suggested that, since grass is highly nutritious at its immature stage, management which increases its availability, such as grazing rotations, would be very favorable to the deer and livestock alike.

Bryant, however, found that new grass growth was mostly unavailable as a forage for deer because all types of livestock eat it as soon as it is produced.

Sheep were found to be the livestock group which competes most heavily with deer for weeds, which Bryant said are the most nutritious forage available to deer. He said ranchers could reduce this competition, again by using grazing rotation systems.

"This or any type of management that fosters good grass production seems to help reduce sheep's use of weeds as a forage by changing their forage selection or by decreasing their access to these weeds which are valuable to the deer as forage," Bryant said.

Both types of goats were found to be the deer herd's heaviest competition for browse, particularly in winter or dry months when deer rely on this forage most heavily. Bryant suggested a reduction in goat herd numbers might be essential if the rancher-farmer wants to successfully maintain a healthy deer herd.

He said brush control can be used with deer herds, as long as large areas are not cleared and if the clearing is done in irregular patterns so as to provide the deer with adequate cover.

Bryant found that one of the most serious problems in deer herd management was in over population of the deer herd itself. Bryant recommended that deer herds should be reduced to at least one deer to each 15 to 25 acres.

Deer were found to be most compatible with cattle as far as forage competition. He said, however, that over stocking of cattle could also result in a substantial reduction in deer forage.

Supplementary feeding programs were found beneficial for all types of animals during certain times of the year. Bryant said a rancher might want to provide deer herds with high energy type feeds, such as corn or oats, during hot, dry summers and dry autumns and winters.

This supplemental feeding for deer, he said, was only recommended to ranchers who want to intensively manage deer. He said this feeding program would also mean an equally intensive "harvest" program to control deer herd size.

"Feeding a poor deer herd that suffers from overpopulation is really ignoring the problem," Bryant said.

Sheep were found to require extra energy particularly during December and January. Bryant suggested a rancher could provide this by feeding energy high feeds from August to October, to provide extra fat, or by improving range conditions by using grazing systems and proper stocking. He said the latter system is obviously the cheaper.

Bryant said low energy levels were most noticeable in goats, particularly Angora goats, from November to March. He said low dietary energy levels in Angora goats have been found to cause them to abort their young. Supplemental feeding may be necessary, he said, but proper stocking and grazing management could also be a partial solution to this problem.

Bryant presented his findings at the Angora Field Day held at the Sonora Research Station near Sonora on Nov. 9.

Credit Union Receives Thrift Honor Award

For its success in stimulating savings, the F.C.S. Federal Credit Union, Floydada, was presented a Thrift Honor Award by Examiner Loyd E. Lovel according to Ray Motesbocker, Regional Director of the National Credit Union Administration.

The Federal credit union experienced a monthly rate of growth of 2.6 percent in share accounts, which was above the average for Federal credit unions of similar size.

Chartered in September 1966, the credit union primarily serves employees of Floyd, Crosby, Dickens, and Hall County School Districts who work in these respective districts. As of August 31, 1977, its 744 members had $795,954 in savings. Bob

L. Alldredge is president of the credit union and Nina Copeland is treasurer.

The National Credit Union Administration conducts its Thrift Honor Award Program to provide an incentive for Federal credit union officials to encourage members with small accounts to save regularly as part of their family financial management plans. Lawrence Connell, Jr. heads up the administration which is responsible for chartering, supervising and insuring Federal credit unions. There are approximately 13,000 federally chartered credit unions. State chartered credit unions may also be insured under the federal program.

Christmas Tree Editorial

THE PERMANENT CHRISTMAS TREE must wonder what has happened during the years as it now stands forgotten and neglected on the corner of the courthouse square. The evergreen was planted by the Study Clubs around 1938. There was a special program of Christmas tree dedication at Floydada High School Band played, and the tree was dedicated as an evergreen for the celebration. For a few years it was used for Christmas programs. The Study Clubs decorated it with lights a few times. The county bag worms. The Study Clubs forgot it. Two years ago it lost its shape when the bottom limbs were hacked off. Now all that is left of the days when Christmas was an important event in our

Football Contest

Dorothy Holland, of 117 West Kentucky, missed only the Plainview-Coronado tie game and takes this week's top prize money of $10 in the Hesperian football contest.

Carrie Davis, of Star Route, Floydada, missed three contests and was one of the few contestants who correctly picked Idalou in the all-important tiebreaker, to take second prize of $6.

Floydada's Abel Vasquez, of Box 84, also missed three contests and was closer on the total points but incorrectly predicted Floydada to win. He receives third prize of $4.

A number of participants missed four games and qualify for honorable mention status. They are Mrs. Sam Hale, Joy Denton, Lorene Newberry, Brandon Baxter, Claude Estes, Beth Vinson, Shannon Paty, Brent Sanders, Bobbie Minnitt, and Boyd Lee.

It's The Most!

Getting the most for their mortgage money has allowed nearly 2 million families to qualify for low downpayment private mortgage insurance which could cut the typical mortgage downpayment to as little as 5%. A colorful free

It explains how married couples, single men or women, single parents and non-related buyers can buy their dream house through the little known helper called private mortgage insurance.

FRESHMEN CLOSE OUT SEASON WITH WIN OVER CROSBYTON

An extremely balanced offensive attack, paced by the efforts of Moody Younger, Jeff Rainey, Hector Mercado, and Mike Self, coupled with a tenacious defensive unit that specialized in the big play led the 9th grade Whirlwinds to a convincing 40-6 win over Crosbyton Thursday at Wester Field, in the season finale for both schools.

The victory finalized the 'Winds season at 5-3 and was accomplished by a significant 24-point first half scoring outburst that captured all the game's momentum from the very beginning of play.

Rainey opened the scoring in the contest on a 5-yard run in the first quarter. The PAT failed, and Floydada led 6-0.

Moody Younger's pass to Hector Mercado on the next offensive series on a 20-yard play increased the lead to 12-0 at the end of the initial period.

In the second period, Self galloped 30 yards to put Floydada up 18-0, and moments later, Mercado scored again, this time on a 30-yard romp, giving Mike Coe another's troops a 24-6 halftime advantage.

Following a scoreless quarter, Mercado achieved his third TD of the evening on a 35-yard sweep run, and this time the PAT was successful, on a three-yard run by Mercado.

Self got the Whirlwinds final TD of the night, taking a 35-yard aerial from Moody Younger for the score. Self also added the two-point conversion.

Defensively, Kevin Noland, and Tim Radloff together accounted for three turnovers, while Jimmy Martinez, Rainey, and Joe Hinkle were other stand outs.

Local Officials Key

To Industrial Growth

COLLEGE STATION—The economist in business development for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service points out that the local officials should make the first step.

"Support for any new economic development can be encouraged simply by a letter from the mayor or some other elected official inviting the company to the community," suggests the business economist.

The industry then sends its representatives for a sampling of the present wage rates, labor market and possible production rates. These representatives will also assess the value the political leadership places on the offered economic development.

The industry is further interested in the local business climate as a future promoter and co-worker in their economic efforts.

"Recognition of the needs of the industry as well as those of the community increases the chances that both will be pleased with their ultimate choice," notes Floyd.

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — It started in December 1974 with a routine arrest. An Amarillo attorney was charged with driving while intoxicated.

For the most part the Panhandle political problems sparked by that arrest have been overshadowed by the capital murder trial of millionaire Cullen Davis. But local newsmen who have been watching the simmering scandal have dubbed it, perhaps inevitably, "Pottergate."

The DWI charge against the prominent local lawyer was dropped one month after it was filed. Instead, he paid a $152.50 fine for "no driver's license."

Pottergate—Corruption in Am

Three weeks later 16 members of the errant motorist's law firm made a $510 political contribution to Potter County Attorney Kerry Knorrp — who handled the case. But the contribution was the only one reported by Knorrp and 1975 was not an election year.

Pottergate was underway. Knorrp and two lawyers from the firm were indicted for bribery. Subsequent grand juries indicted the county attorney on a misdemeanor grand jury tampering charge and five counts of stealing almost $6,000 from the county treasury.

Allegations began to fly around the yellowed walls of the Potter County Courthouse.

The grand jurors asked State District Court Judge George Dowlen for help.

"The grand jury requested I convene a court of inquiry that would go into just why our system was such that it would be possible for someone to steal money as easily as this apparently had been done," Dowlen said.

The judge tapped Hugh L. Russell, a local attorney who would later become part of the Davis defense team, as special counsel to the court of inquiry.

But prior to the first session of the special court the commissioners summoned Russell to a closed-door session.

During that 45-minute session County Judge Russell, Archer resigned to fill a vacancy on a misdemeanor court bench.

Special counsel Russell became County Judge Russell on Sept. 1. Dowlen issued the oaths of office to Archer and Knorrp filed complaints alleging the commissioners had violated the open meetings law.

Several weeks later the commissioners renamed Archer and Russell to their new jobs. In the interim, Knorrp was suspended with pay from his post pending his trial.

Evangelistic Campaign At First Assembly Of God

Missouri Street. The evening services will begin at 7:00 p.m. and the Sunday services will begin at 9:45 a.m. and 6:00 p.m. according to the Reverend G.A. Vanhoose, Pastor.

Billy graduated from Andrews High School in And rews, Texas and later trained for the ministry at Southwestern Assemblies of God College, Waxahachie, Texas. While attending SAGC, he was active in preaching on week-ends and traveling with the Sign Language Choir. He has now been involved full-time in leading churches across America in special revival campaigns during the last two and one-half years.

His wife, Bettye is a graduate of Denver City

High School and Southwestern Assemblies of God College. Later she received her B.A. degree from North Texas State University of Denton, Texas. During her time in college, Bettye was very active in singing in the famous Harvester Choir and sharing her witness on the college campus.

Billy and Bettye will be singing during each service some of the favorite hymns of the church. Their ministry in song will lift your spirit.

Billy's exciting and forceful style of preaching will inspire you and help you to better understand God's will for your life. Pastor G.A.

Van Hoose extends a warm Christian welcome to people of all denominations to attend each service.

The announcement was made today by Chamber of Commerce Sports Committee Chairman Bud Cason. Idalou proposed Plainview as the site and the three coaches from 3-AA agreed.

Idalou, 9-0 and ranked third in the state, finishes the season at Lockney Friday while Littlefield is at Dimmitt, Muleshoe plays at Morton and Friona is at Olton. If all three win, a coin flip will be needed to decide who goes to the playoffs.

NEWS OF PETS

This ground-breaking ceremony really went to the dogs.

These Jack Russell terriers just naturally took over the show and broke the ground. They're born diggers from England, where they have been used as hunters for many years.

It was an appropriate time to get into the act. The ground-breaking exercises celebrated the start of construction for a new small-animal hospital at the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine.

Dean Robert R. Marshak (left) and U.S. Rep. Daniel J. Flood (D-Pa.), chairman of the House Labor/HEW Appropriations Subcommittee, yielded the ground—and the honor of the terriers. After all, the dogs represent the potential patients to be cared for in the $13.7 million facility.

Besides virtually unique capabilities for care of small-animal patients, the hospital will strengthen the veterinary school in its already outstanding educational and research missions.

Carter Energy Bill To Hurt Texas Farmers

WASHINGTON—Congressman Jim Collins, a member of the House Energy Committee on Energy, today warned his colleagues that the already hard pressed American farmer could expect nothing but more trouble if Congress does not change the Tax section of President Carter's Energy Bill. "By choosing to increase taxes on gasoline, diesel fuel, oil, and natural gas the Carter Administration is forcing the American farmer to bear the major burden of its energy conservation program," the Congressman from Dallas said. "Costs for fertilizer and pesticides will rise dramatically, thus greatly increasing the costs farmers will have to face. At a time when a farmer can only get $1.23 for a bushel of corn that cost him $2.10 to produce, these federally mandated cost increases are inexcusable."

Collins noted that studies done by Iowa State University demonstrate that agricultural production would only decrease by 5 percent from current levels if the President's bill is enacted. He also pointed out that the impact of doubled fuel costs on food prices would be no more than a 13 percent boost, of which the farmers' share would be little or nothing.

"The President's tax bill will have an even more severe impact on the Texas farmer than farmers in other regions of the country," Collins declared. "Besides increased production costs, Texas farmers, like the rest of Texas residents, will have to pay an estimated 25 percent of the total nationwide tax burden imposed by the entire Energy Bill."

The Third District Congressman stated that he planned to ask the Energy Conference Committee to agree to a special exemption from the energy conservation taxes for oil and gas used in the manufacture of agricultural chemicals. The Senate passed a similar amendment last week, however, it

The Floyd Philosopher Wonders How People Who Have Cut Down On TV Watching Now Spend Their Time

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm examines TV watching this week, more or less.

Dear editor:

People who think everybody -- not just kids but everybody -- is watching too much television these days have been greatly encouraged by the latest figures on the size of the audience the tube is now attracting. According to a survey just released, since March of this year both day and night TV viewing has dropped 3.4 per cent per month. The anti-TV people are elated.

This got me to thinking. What are the people who've cut down on their TV watching now doing with their time? Has it improved them any?

I can't tell any difference. I know they say it's more ennobling at the close of day to watch a sunset than Walter Cronkite, but while there's been no survey made, I doubt if sunset watching has gone up as TV watching has come down. Furthermore, if some more are watching sunsets, despite the fact it may lead to nothing more than bad poetry, is it any less irksome to have the view interrupted by an incoming jet than it is to have Walter Cronkite interrupted by a commercial for false teeth? Not to mention some of the more outrageous ads.

On the other hand, it may be that TV watching has come down because lots of sets have blown a tube and the owners are saving their money to apply on their utility bills.

Still other people say TV watching has come down because the programs have gotten worse. I doubt it. Programs already were as bad as they could get. It's said that TV producers design shows to appeal to the minds of 12-year-olds. This is wrong. TV shows are produced by people with 12-year-old minds.

Finally, other anti-TV people say cutting down on TV watching gives us a chance to enjoy the pleasures of the lost art of conversation.

I have listened to some of that conversation. Turn on the set. Let's see what's on tonight.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Texas Beef Producers Strive To Meet Growing Demand

AUSTIN--If you are one of the millions of Americans who love a good hamburger, you shouldn't have to worry about shortages in 1977, says Agricultural Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

Brown reports that the state's cattle feeders have increased the number of cattle and calves in feedlots by eight per cent over 1976. He says that as of Oct. 1 there were 1,570,000 head in feedlots statewide. The majority of those, some 1,070,000 head, were located in the Northern High Plains, he added.

"Traditionally, Texas cattle raisers pride themselves on their choice, grain-fed cuts of beef," said Brown. "But nationwide, consumer demand for hamburger is expected to reach 1.1 billion pounds this year."

It is evident Texas cattlemen are well on the way towards keeping Texas No. 1 in feedlot production. Current intentions for the fourth quarter of this year are to market 980,000 head, a 14-per-cent increase over 1976. Brown noted that marketings for the July-September quarter were up four per cent from the same quarter in 1976. In addition, 348,000 head were marketed during September, an increase of eight per cent.

"We expect the moderately higher prices we have experienced in the third quarter of this year to continue into the fourth quarter and on into 1978," Brown remarked. "We need to see Texas cattlemen receiving profits that are proportionate to the effort that goes into producing this great quantity of beef."

Canned "fruit cocktail" is diced peaches and pears with smaller amounts of grapes and pineapple, and a few cherry halves. Sirup may be "extra heavy" (very sweet) or "heavy" (medium sweet), says Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

FARM & RANCH NEWS

Texas Food and Fiber

By Reagan V. Brown, Commissioner
Texas Department of Agriculture

For the past 75 years farmers in the 17 southwestern and western states, the "reclamation states," have been tilling their fields and harvesting and selling their crops under the hovering dark cloud of the 1902 Reclamation Act. This Act had an important role in the winning of the west by turning the semiarid rangelands into rich farms irrigated by so-called "federal" water. However, the kicker—and sticker—in the Act limited the use of this "federal" water to 160 acres, or a quarter section for a man and his wife.

Since passage of the Act three quarters of a century ago, the "reclamation states," which include Texas, have become the home of huge farms of thousands of acres and large agri-business conglomerates, producing much of the food which graces the tables in America and in foreign countries.

A federal suit filed in 1975 by National Land for People Inc., a group of small California farmers who charged that the Department of the Interior had never enforced the 160-acre provision of the 1902 law. The federal court has agreed, and now Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, a former governor of Idaho, (also a reclamation state) proposes to redistribute more than 1,000,000 acres of federally irrigated farm land in a national lottery on the old homestead principle of 160 acres for a farmer and each member of his family.

Mr. Secretary proposes to force large landowners to sell off all acreage exceeding the 160-acre limit to small farmers (under the homestead principle, a farmer with a wife and two children can buy 640 acres, not exactly a small farm; larger farm families can move into the thousand acre class) at a stipulated price—stipulated by the federal agency.

How does this affect Texas agriculture? Not to any great extent as far as total acreage is concerned. We only have about 100,000 acres irrigated by so-called "federal" water. This farmland is in the El Paso area along the upper Rio Grande in Tom Green County near San Angelo and in Reeves County.

What is about to take place is land reform, a theory dear to the hearts of many of our young bureaucrats in Washington. This happens in the "banana republics," and in communistic countries. But not in the good old U.S. of A.

One encouraging aspect is that hearings will be held on Nov. 16 in El Paso before definite enforcement action is taken. This will at least give farmers in that area a chance to speak out. The Department of Agriculture will be represented at the hearings, and we intend to point out the fact that the old reclamation law is just no longer valid in these days of mechanized agriculture.

There's no question about it, the old law should be changed. And I guarantee I will do all I can to help bring about that change.

Growers Reveal Gross Receipts

Gross receipts from cotton, grain and livestock production in the 25 counties represented by Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. (PCG) at Lubbock came to more than $1.6 billion in 1976.

PCG officials compiled the total from a report by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service in Austin. The report shows that farmers received $1.59 billion in sales of the three commodities plus $37.9 million in payments under disaster provisions of the cotton, feed grain and wheat programs.

The PCG estimates that the value of cotton lint and seed in 1976 made up more than $675 million of the area total. Comparable cash receipts in the 25 counties surrounding Lubbock in 1975 were $1.4 billion, of which $47.6 million was in the form of disaster payments. The 1.73 farm act disaster provisions, the result of PCG legislative work, has now brought a three-year total of more than $165 million to High Plains farmers plagued by drought, hail or other conditions beyond their control.

Deaf Smith, Parmer and Castro counties were the top three ranked High Plains counties in value of farm production, followed by Hale, Lubbock, Lamb and Swisher. All seven counties are included in the top 10 farm counties of the state.

The accompanying table shows receipts from crops, livestock and government payments for each of the 25 High Plains counties, in thousands of dollars.

Farmers To

—By PAUL HARVEY

American are the world's most efficient farmers. This had to do partly with the evolution and mechanization of farming in the United States.

Elsewhere in the world, whenever farmers accumulate enough land to justify mechanizing, some dictator emerges promising to redistribute the wealth — to take the land away from the big landowners and give it to the peasants.

And wherever the dictator accomplishes this, the peasants remain peasants, each with a parcel of land too small for anything more than back-breaking subsistence.

America's factory farms, on the other hand, are so efficient that each American farmer can feed his own family plus 50 other people.

Surely our Government would never sabotage the efficiency by limiting each farmer to no more than 160 acres...

What'll you bet? In the Imperial Valley of California the courts are in the process of limiting each individual farmer to 160 acres.

They would give all farmers 10 years to sell off any lands in excess of 160 acres and the Bureau of Reclamation will set the price.

Imperial Valley farmers have been informed that confiscated lands must be sold for the price those lands brought before there was water available.

Obviously, $2,000-an-acre land could be force-sold for $400, wiping out the investment of generations, spending mortgaged farmers into bankruptcy.

How can the government do such a thing?

The Carter Administration believes that ownership of Western lands irrigated with water from federal reclamation projects must be restricted. That the big farms must be broken up in favor of small "family farms."

In this valley 160 acres is no longer — if it ever was — an economically sound farming unit. Banks will not finance 160-acre farming units.

Dry Weather Aids Harvest, But May Cut Crop Yield

AUSTIN—Harvesting of Texas crops proceeded ahead of schedule in September and October due to hot, dry weather, but the lack of moisture may cut yields considerably, reports Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

Grain sorghum production, estimated that 131.7 million hundred-weight (cwt.) as of Oct. 1, is down 20 percent from last year. Average yields are down over a hundred pounds per acre, Brown said, especially on the High Plains where moisture stress is hindering some late fields in reaching full maturity.

Moisture stress is also expected to cut peanut yields 75 pounds per acre, Brown added. Present estimates predict this year's production to be 437.9 million pounds, a drop of six percent from 1976.

This year's corn harvest, stated Brown, is expected to total 168 million bushels, down from the 1976 crop of 180 million bushels. Brown noted that dry, windy days on the High Plains have helped to lower grain moisture levels in that area.

Total production of both rice and sweet potatoes are down, Brown said, with yields some nine percent lower than last year.

Brown noted that revised figures place upland cotton production at 4.8 million bales, up 45 percent over 1976. In spite of a drop in average yields, he stated, the increased acreage devoted to the crop will allow a record harvest. Present estimates put production of soybeans at 18.75 million bushels, more than double last year's crop. In addition, pecan production is expected to double the 1976 total of 20,000,000 pounds.

"In spite of some reduced yields, we still expect Texas to retain the No. 1 spot in the traditional crops," Brown commented.

"Our next goal is to increase profits along with production, so farmers will not feel they're working for nothing."

Boot Care Tips

All a woman needs to be "in fashion" this fall is a pair of fashion boots. But boots are expensive—at least twice as much as an average pair of shoes. That's why it's important to know how to take care of them.

1. Polish your boots before you wear them. A conditioner and waterproofer that's good to use on leather and vinyl is mink oil.

2. To protect leather boots further, the boot experts at Kinney, the Great American Shoe Store, recommend that you use a silicone rain and stain guard—it protects boots against rain and snow. Just be sure to follow directions on the can—you don't want to discolor your boots.

3. Wipe your boots with a damp cloth. If they're rubber

As It Looks From Here

Omar Burleson, M.C.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—A FRIEND WHO RETIRED FROM CONGRESS a few years ago had this advice for us who expect to soon retire: "Space yourself. Don't get a haircut and mail a letter all on the same day."

THIS IS CONTRARY TO THE ADDICTION of most Americans who want to save time. Mostly, it seems we value saving time more than the way we spend it. Those of us who have lived on a schedule of appointments, committee meetings and the like for years, probably have the subconscious feeling that failure to conform to timetables is not only a waste of time but is almost sinful.

SEVERAL MONTHS AGO, AN OFFICIAL OF THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT flew from Paris to Washington on the Concorde. He was very proud to report to House Speaker Tip O'Neill that he had saved four hours by using the French supersonic plane. Speaker O'Neill then asked him what he had done with the four hours he had saved and the official's silence remains.

IT HAS TAKEN THE ACCUMULATION OF A CENTURY OF WISDOM to build this airplane which can span the ocean in about three hours, the same approximate time to fly from Dallas to Washington on conventional jets. This remarkable Concorde is noisier, uses more fuel to carry fewer people in less comfort from one continent to another and with greater expense. We, of course, call it progress and it is. It saves time as do the microwave oven, speed reading, and other marvelous inventions and developments—all to save time.

MOST OF US ARE BUSY PEOPLE and are always trying to find time for more things since we are geared to school bells, alarm clocks and appointments. Actually, however, time may not be really saved. The time-savers of one sort or another merely allow us to do more in the same number of minutes, leaving us with full schedules and the need to find more ways to save more time. If an official or businessman can turn a two-day tip into one day, well and good, but it also might mean two one day trips. People who learn to speed read likely do not spend less time reading, but, rather, read more in the same time.

COME TO THINK OF IT, THERE IS NO WAY we can bank our minutes. The best we can do with the most sophisticated machinery is to redistribute those minutes. Either we spend more and more energy processing ourselves through our busy days, doing more and more in the same amount of time or we throw away our "free" time as if it was something we didn't need.

IT IS NOT THAT ANYONE WANTS TO GO BACK to the oxcart, wooden wash-tubs or a pulley and bucket at the well, but it does seem deserving to give some thought as to how we are pushed on in the name of the clock. We have to ask ourselves does it really save time—our time? Is it going to cut down unpleasant time or pleasant time? And, what do we do with the time we save?

SOMEONE HAS SAID, "The secret of life is enjoying the passage of time."

WELL, ULTIMATELY, TIME IS ALL WE HAVE and the idea is not to save it but to savor it.
