Crappie Fishing Reported Good At Lake Mackenzie

Crappie fishing is good at Lake Mackenzie.

John McCammon, assistant manager in charge of public relations at Lake Mackenzie, reports large catches of crappie, averaging three-quarters to one pound, being caught in Cope Creek and Coronado's Landing (where the cottonwoods are submerged). Most of the catches were being made at depths of eight to 12 feet.

Bass fishing is improving after being regarded as "fair" last weekend. Bass up to three pounds are being landed.

Walleye fishing was fair, for those experienced enough to catch them," McCammon reports. Walleye have been caught at 25-foot depths off rocky bluffs. Trolling is suggested.

The lake official notes that Mackenzie now has about 12 miles of shoreline and the depth is 100 feet. Water temperature was 60 degrees last weekend.

Luis Moore of Dumas, Brenda (Mrs. Dean) Watson of Lakeview, Mike Moore of Plainview, Cindy Moore of Floydada, Steve Moore, a West Texas State University student, and Bill Moore, a Floydada High senior.

The Moores have seven grandchildren: "There are four in Dumas and three at Lakeview."

"We've been sending kids to school 24 years without a break," the honoree noted. "Our youngest is a (high school) senior."

Mrs. Moore was selected by an anonymous committee after nominations explaining why "my Mom is the best in the world" were picked up at participating Floydada firms.

"IS THIS really necessary?" Misty seems to be thinking as she is about to receive a rabies vaccine during Tuesday pet clinic at Floydada city hall. Misty is a one-year-old Dashhund belonging to Coy and Kelli LaBaume.

'Dropout' Climaxing Teaching Career

Lois Guffee Educates Thousands In 42 Years

Lois Harrell seemed destined to become a public school dropout! The Arcadia, La., farm girl "quit school when I was in the eighth grade."

Fortunately for Floydada youngsters, this situation lasted only two years.

June 1, Lois Harrell Guffee is retiring...after 42 years as a public school teacher! The former "dropout" has spent her entire career "in the same (second) grade"...15 years in Athens, La., and 27 years in the Floydada public school system.

DIDN'T PLAN TO STAY

Another irony in her life is that she "came to Texas in 1952 for a visit...and never went back to live (in Louisiana)." She came at the request of her aunt, Mrs. W.C. Sims, and "Mr. Graves," late superintendent of Floydada schools.

She probably consented to the trip to please her recently-widowed aunt because "in order to come, I would have to take a cut in pay...and I wasn't thinking of doing that at all."

The second grade Louisiana teacher "was planning to return home next day," when she met Supt. and Mrs. Graves at church Sunday. She was an afternoon guest in their home, and Graves recruited a new instructor.

"In entered (Texas) Tech the next day, I called my parents and had my supplies from Athens brought to me," Mrs. Guffee remembers her rapid change of heart which transformed her into a Texan.

She lived with her aunt, Mrs. Sims, for four years prior to becoming Mrs. Homer Guffee in November 1956. Her husband succumbed in 1972.

The then Miss Harrell got acquainted with her first class of Floydada second graders in 1952 at R.C. Andrews Elementary. "Then they built Duncan Elementary and I moved over there," she explains in tracing her career as an educator.

That was 12 years ago.

METHODS DIFFERENT

Interspersing humor into her speech, Mrs. Guffee explains that "methods are quite different" from her early teaching years. "When I started teaching, you taught reading, writing, and arithmetic...now you have all those subjects to cover."

The veteran second grade instructor recalls vividly "lots of funny things... some I could tell and some you couldn't print in the paper."

One of the most humorous was "a couple of years ago" when Mrs. Guffee talked repeatedly to pupils about wearing their hair to the point that it covered their eyes.

A youngster, Scott Jarrett, started to have a seat and missed his chair. Glancing up at his teacher with a weird expression covering his face, the lad stated matter-of-factly: "I guess that got my hair out of my eyes."

Another funny experience occurred when "one little boy wouldn't remove his coat." Asked why he insisted on wearing the coat, the child said "I guess if you were zipped up in this thing you would stay, too."

WHAT ABOUT RETIREMENT

Will Mrs. Guffee miss the excitement of a classroom after 42 years?

"I have mixed emotions about retirement," she declares. "One day I think this is it...and the next day I wonder if I'm doing right."

Presently, she does not plan to substitute teach "although by the time school starts I may decide the doors can't open without me!"

Instead, she plans a leisure life.

"I want to start off (retirement) with a family reunion — if I can get gas — with my brothers and sisters in Indiana."

Then she plans to work on double knit afghans or "throws" — "since I have so few in my house" — to take to patients in hospitals. Also, she will become her own gardener.

"I own my home here, so I intend to stay as long as the government will let me..." A member of First Baptist Church, she does not intend to "become too active in too many things."

Born August 30, 1914, Mrs. Guffee will celebrate her 65th birthday in 3½ months.

'HARD WORK'

After 42 years as a public school teacher, Lois Harrell Guffee now sees the lack of wisdom in becoming an eighth grade dropout. In fact, she didn't think too much of the idea after two years.

"We lived on a farm (2½ miles from Arcadia, which is about 50 miles east of Shreveport) and that was hard work. I decided there was an easier way..."

The second oldest of 10 children born to the late Mr. and Mrs. John Harrell, Lois made the premature decision to drop out of school because "quite a few of my classmates were quitting and two of my brothers quit. I thought when you finished the eighth grade you were smart enough!"

The two lost years "made me about 20 or 21 when I finished high school," she explains, but that was the only interruption in her education. She went to college and acquired a "two-year teaching certificate."

The Louisiana native, whose speech still carries a Southern accent, secured her BA from Louisiana Tech in 1949 and her Master's from Texas Tech University in 1954.

"I also have a certificate in handwriting analysis...which I'm not about to use. I don't want people mad at me," Mrs. Guffee says, her humor again showing.

She began teaching when she was "about 22" at Athens, La., "which was just a few miles from my home town. Our post office was Arcadia...but we lived out in the country."

If Lois Harrell Guffee hadn't discovered that Louisiana country living was "hard work," she might have remained an eighth grade dropout rather than becoming a second grade teacher...of 42 years tenure!

NEWS 'N' NOTE (by Sharon Hillis)

PLACING Emphasis on Child's Experience Art - Not Finished Product - Helps Group

Art offers children important learning opportunities. Experiences in art help children develop physical coordination and social abilities.

Art also enriches a child's emotional and intellectual development.

During 1979, the International Year of the Child, all adults concerned with children should make a special effort to think about young people's needs - to set the stage for years that follows.

Establish a lifestyle that makes time for children and their activities, including art, one of their favorite activities. Art helps fulfill a child's desire to explore and discover the world around him, to make something new and to shape materials. Physically, children use art to develop small muscles in hands and eyes as they draw, paint, cut, paste and pinch. Manipulating materials also teaches coordination. Socially, through art, children begin to express themselves freely.

They get stronger in imagination and observation, and that fosters sensitivity to themselves and others.

'Nursing Home Week' Activities Outlined

The folks who live in Floydada Nursing Home will be specially honored during the week beginning Mother's Day, Sunday, May 13.

An announcement from Paul Westbrook, administrator of Floydada Nursing Home, said that a full week of special events will be observed as a part of Texas Nursing Home Week, Sponsored by Texas Nursing Home Association.

Celebrity hosts this year are entertainers Pat Boone and his daughter Debby, who is at the crest of popularity right now due to her recording to "You Light Up My Life," which broke all sales records.

"We have borrowed our theme from Debby's song," said Westbrook. "Light Up A Life" is the perfect theme, he said, because "that is what happens when our residents meet new friends."

"That's what Nursing Home Week is all about...to get the public to visit and learn for themselves the fine quality of the total care being delivered by today's licensed nursing homes."

"We are so grateful for this opportunity to invite the public to visit during our special week," he continued. "It is a heart-warming experience and as Pat Boone has said '...the life you light up most will be your own!'"

- Monday, May 14 — Family cook-out and homemade ice cream

May 19 Bike-A-Thon To Aid CF Campaign

Although Cystic Fibrosis — the most serious lung-damaging disease — is still incurable, the average life expectancy of children affected has been increased from infancy to the teen years and many patients now live into young adulthood.

These giant strides of progress are due to earlier diagnosis and improved methods of treatment, which have developed from a better understanding of the disease.

In addition, the treatment programs which CF patients are using have proven "very effective" in alleviating the suffering and often curing children with severe asthma, chronic bronchitis, bronchiectasis and a condition sometimes called "childhood emphysema."

"Naturally, we know more today than we ever have before, but we still have a long way to go before we have conquered CF," states Jan Thayer, chairperson of the Breath of Spring Bike-A-Thon in Floydada.

The bike-a-thon is planned next Saturday, May 19, in Floydada. Funds raised will help support the CF care, teaching and research centers across the U.S., where children with lung diseases are diagnosed and treated with the most modern techniques and equipment.

"Every dollar raised for the Breath of Spring Bike-A-Thon means better health and a brighter future for youngsters struggling for the breath of life," Mrs. Thayer says.

excuse for women's liberation in the popular sense, you will be disappointed. If you pick it up thinking it will be a book to use Jesus as someone to keep women in their place, you'll be even more disappointed. If you think it will be a quiet book which won't disturb you, you will be disturbed.

The outstanding thing about this book is the refusal to create artificial roles and the affirmation of woman as person.

The Floyd Philosopher
 Floyd Philosopher Doubts We're In As Much Trouble As Scientific Pollsters Say We Are

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm in Floyd County seems unalarmed about the state of the nation this week.

Dear editor:
 There is a tendency among some people to believe the United States is incompetent or, to put it another way, less competent than other major nations.

In fact, according to a recent poll — if you believe polls are competent — two-thirds of the people think we are in "deep and serious trouble."

Whatever the situation is, you shouldn't get the notion we're alone.

For example, according to an official news report in the Russian Government's own newspaper, the only kind they have over there, "40 per cent of the Soviet work force will be too drunk or too hung over every Monday morning to put in a good day's work."

That's what I'd call being in deep and serious trouble.

What I want to know however is who did the pollsters interview to find out that two-thirds of U.S. citizens think we're in deep trouble? Were any prospective candidates included?

I've seen few candidates, now or in the past, who didn't claim we're in serious trouble and the only way to get out is to elect them. After they get in and we're still in trouble they then claim the only way to get out is to re-elect them.

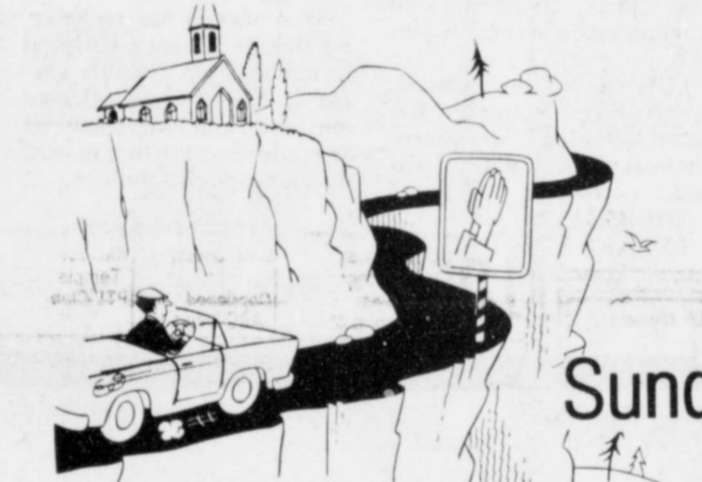

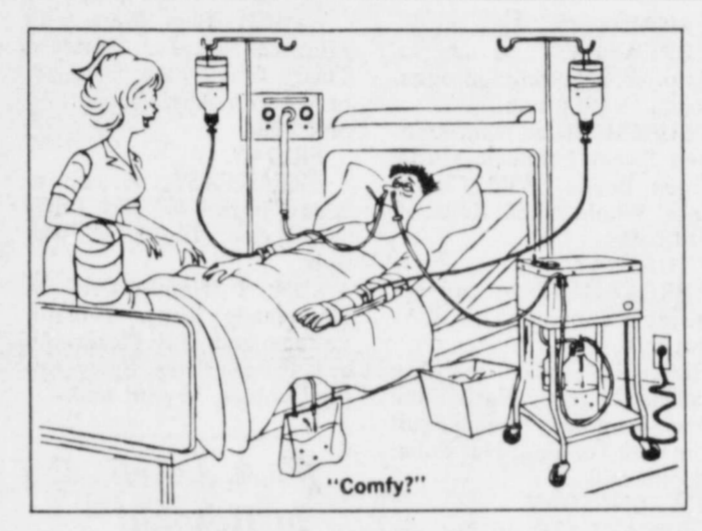

The world rarely solves its problems. It mostly just passes them around from one party to another or from one system of government to another. You can't tell how drunk a man is by the form of government he's living under.

According to some people the world has been on the brink of disaster ever since a brink was discovered.

I don't know how seriously we're in trouble but you can't make me believe that once we've got all these cars produced we aren't going to find something to run them with, or that once we've got all these buildings with windows that won't open we aren't going to find some way to air-condition them.

Yours faithfully,
 J. A.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS
 By Lyndell Williams
 TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Almost three weeks ago, Gov. Bill Clements said he saw no "compelling reason" to raise the state's interest rate ceiling and vowed to veto any legislation designed to do just that.

Luckily, the governor left his options open, saying he would keep his finger on the pulse of the housing industry and if he felt a drop off in activity, he wouldn't hesitate to call a special session if that was the action needed to remedy the situation.

When Clements arrived at his press conference this week, he had just received the news that the Federal National Mortgage Association—better known as Fannie Mae—was backing off from accepting low-interest VA and FHA home loans offered in Texas. Clements said he was numb from the news.

The effect of Fannie Mae's announcement—a tighter money market—was soberingly clear to the governor, lenders and people looking to buy or sell a home.

What Fannie Mae feared was purchasing VA and FHA loans in Texas that might exceed the state's legal interest rate of 10 percent. Home buyers had been turning to the cheaper VA and FHA loans after finding the conventional money market all but dried up.

Lenders normally add points (one percent of what is borrowed) to get VA and FHA interest rates up to conventional money market levels. But when VA and FHA interest rates went up last week to 10 percent that meant lenders charging on the market were bearing the brunt of the tighter money market as lenders continued to offer VA and FHA loans with points charged not to the buyer, but the seller.

The Budget
 While Clements was announcing his support this week for the repeal of the prevailing wage law, he was softening his stand on another key issue—teacher pay raises.

In the past, the governor has said flatly that he would veto any teacher pay hikes that exceeded 5.1 percent. But this week, Clements changed his tune, saying he had never pledged to veto pay raises of more than 5.1 percent.

The House appropriations bill bumps teacher salaries by seven percent in each of the next two years. Clements said that was unacceptable but believed it would be remedied in a conference committee. First though, the Senate must act.

Step One in that process was finished this week as the Senate Finance Committee completed work on its version of the 1980-81 state budget. That plan will cost the taxpayers $600 million more than the House appropriations bill.

Senate Debate
 Senate debate on the state budget will begin this week. The Senate's spending plan would give teachers only the 5.1 percent increase in pay that Clements says he can support.

The Senate's budget would cost the state $20.8 billion. The price tag on the House bill would be $20.3 billion. Earlier in the session, Clements proposed a $19.8 billion state budget—including a $1 billion cut in state taxes. Neither the House or Senate have left much for the tax relief Clements has been demanding since taking office.

Another interesting provision of the Senate Finance Committee's proposal is that it eliminates over $400 million found in the House measure to reimburse school districts for revenues lost because of the Tax Relief Amendment approved by voters last November. The Senate plans to take up reimbursement when it begins debate on school finance.

The Senate Finance Committee also did away with additional exemptions for the elderly and handicapped with yearly incomes over $10,000.

The House
 With the appropriations bill behind them for now, House members seemed to get a second wind this week as they passed a constitutional amendment legalizing bingo for non-profit and charitable organizations, approved legislation giving voters the power to rollback property taxes that exceed five percent, made it legal for farmers to produce alcohol to mix with gasoline (making "gasahol"), and, finally, overwhelmingly voted to require motorists to have liability insurance.

The "bingo" amendment, already passed by the Senate, was altered slightly and senators will now have to concur with a "local option" provision tacked onto the amendment before it is sent to voters for their approval.

"Gasahol"
 Farmers are hoping they can squeeze a little alcohol out of some of their by-products and then add that to gasoline. The House made that a little easier this week by first making it legal to manufacture alcohol (for cars though, not human beings), and by authorizing the state to provide loans so farmers can build alcohol-producing plants on their farms and ranches.

What farmers will end up with is called "gasahol," simply a mixture of about 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent alcohol. "Gasahol" is one of the less bizarre alternative fuels being mentioned these days and it has already proved successful in such divergent places as Brazil and Nebraska.

National Transportation Week

Governor Bill Clements has designated May 13-19 as National Transportation Week in Texas.

George C. Wall Jr., district engineer, encourages the public to visit a State Department of Highways and Public Transportation office during this week and participate in the observance. Department employees will be on duty to answer questions.

Members of the department will be available to show a new film entitled "Transportation-New Life Lines" to any civic club that would be interested in having a speech or the film recognizing transportation. "We're not having open house this year, but we would be glad to have everyone come out and look over our facilities," according to Donnell Gowens, maintenance construction supervisor for Floyd County.

Mayor Parnell Powell has signed a proclamation declaring May 13-19 as National Transportation Week in Floydada. Mayor Claude Brown has signed a similar proclamation for Lockney.

Gowens says the Floyd County department has 16 employees.

HIGHWAY Department personnel and machinery is shown in action. Gonzales and David Duvak, two of Floyd County's 16 highway department employees, operate mowers in Blanco Canyon south of Floydada.

Senior Olympics Planned

Senior Citizens in the 15-county South Plains area will compete in the second annual Senior Olympics on Wednesday, May 16, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the South Plains Fair Park Coliseum in Lubbock. The Olympics are part of the Senior Round-up 1979, a celebration by South Plains seniors of Older Americans and Older Texans Month.

Registration for the Olympics will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the Fair Park Coliseum. The Senior Olympics torchlighting ceremony will take place at 10 a.m., with Olympic competition to follow immediately.

Senior competitors will have eight Olympic events from which to choose: walking marathon, giant tricycle race, horseshoe toss, bean bag toss, softball throw, 5-member balloon bust relay, wheelchair race, and hula-hoop competition. Each event will be decided on a single-elimination basis, and awards will go to first, second, and third places.

Actual competition will be from 10 a.m. to noon. Following the lunch hour, Olympic winners will be recognized in a special awards ceremony beginning at 1 p.m. The Olympics and Senior Round-up will close with a group sing at 2 p.m. Other events in the Senior Round-up include the Health Fair, recognition of the 1979 Outstanding Senior Citizens, and a "Swing-Your-Partner" dance. These events are scheduled for Tuesday, May 15, beginning with Round-up registration at the Fair Park Coliseum at 1 p.m. and lasting through the dance, from 9 to 11:30 p.m.

The 1979 Senior Round-up, including the Senior Olympics, is presented by the South Plains Area Agency on Aging.

Mobaphone is now "leaving space in the computer."
Radio signals are transmitted to the repeater, then to the mobile unit. Maximum distance for conversation from one mobile unit to another is 80 miles.
Holland points out that the major benefit of this system compared to a home-based control system is the capital investment. He adds that FM radio operates on frequency bands which are "far away from CB."
General Electric FM 2-way business radio is particularly attractive to farmers, Holland says, because it allows them to coordinate more easily operations at farms which are several miles apart. A coupon appears in an advertisement in this issue which may be mailed to Mobaphone to arrange a meeting with a representative and secure additional information.

Scientist Studies Control Of Nematodes

Each year, a quarter of million bales of cotton are lost due to root-knot nematodes. On the southern High Plains of Texas, at least 60,000 bales are lost to this major disease of cotton. But nematode research has found treatments which can increase cotton yields 100-250 pounds an acre.

This research to control root-knot nematode is being conducted by the USDA-Science and Education Administration (SEA). Dr. Calvin C. Orr, nematologist, is working in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, north of the Lubbock airport.

"Here on the South Plains," Dr. Orr said, "nematodes are one of the most injurious pests to area crops." Nematodes are microscopic round worms universally found in all soils. The nematode injury is often identified as stunted plants and thin stands, particularly in cotton, he said. Below the ground, the injury can be identified by galls on the roots or blackening and an unhealthy appearance of the roots, the scientist added.

are injected into the soil and have given the very best nematode control of all chemicals, he said. The second group of chemicals is often referred to as granular nematicides, he said. These materials are also effective against insects, he added. Granular nematicides include such materials as aldicarb (Temick), fenamiphos (Nemacur), and phophos (Mocap).

"Although soil fumigants and granular nematicides are effective nematode control agents," Orr said, "there are special considerations with respect to the economics of their application." Fumigation requires a separate field operation, he said. However, application of granular nematicides during planting requires only one field operation, saving time, labor, and fuel, he added.

CROP ROTATION

"Crop rotation is a good practice," Orr said, "that controls nematodes." Grain sorghum is frequently used in rotation with cotton in order to control nematodes and disease, he said. "Although sorghum suppresses root-knot populations," the scientist said, "nematode continues to live in the soil for some period of time."

"The prudent farmer will use nematode resistant varieties," Orr said, "in a total management program. However, he cautioned, even resistant varieties available today require the addition of chemicals to maintain yields at a high level, he added.

"Root-knot nematode is among its hosts many of the South Plains," the scientist said. Therefore, a good weed program is necessary from the view, he said, including the nematodes.

Wildlife Habitat 'Alternate Crop'

Wildlife habitat in West Texas could provide an alternative "crop" for farmers threatened by declining underground water resources — if landowners want to lease hunting rights.

Researchers with the U.S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service and Texas Tech University report that the leasing of hunting rights could provide substantial supplemental income for farmers in the area.

The tourism industry and the general public might also benefit through recreational opportunities and the added amenities, or pleasant surroundings, without significant demand on ground water resources.

Project leader for the research is Dr. Fred A. Stormer, scientist in the Great Plains Wildlife Research Laboratory of the Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experiment Station. The laboratory is located at Texas Tech University.

Stormer sees a new future already for the South Plains, where much research to date has been concentrated. Playa lakes, which provide as much as a quarter million surface acres of water when weather conditions permit, provide an environment for approximately one million migratory game birds, representing about 20 species, he explained. These and other birds as well as big game animals could provide additional recreational hunting.

The lease of hunting rights frequently returns $1 to $3 per acre a year to landowners and, in special circumstances, as much as $20 per acre. These values justify looking at wildlife as a resource base, Stormer said. Overall mortal rates for game are not expected to increase significantly with regulated game harvesting because hunting preempts natural mortality with many game species.

In cooperation with the Forest Service laboratory, Texas Tech's College of Agricultural Sciences researchers have been studying the ecology of the region since 1977. Target animals for the research have included waterfowl, ring-necked pheasant, mule deer and pronghorn antelope.

Migration and movement patterns, food site selection and other features were explored with the help of tele-metry, a radio tracking system. Researchers attach small, matchbook-size transmitters to the animals to study behavior by remote monitoring.

In addition to economic return, there are other benefits from wildlife habitat management, Stormer said. Research into the potential benefits is essential to deriving practical decisions for land management alternatives for the future.

Tailwater Waste Problems Aired By District Board

During its May 7 session, the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District board reviewed management policies for handling district rule violations and determined to take action over persistent tailwater waste problems.

Members discussed legal options available, as indicated by the district's attorney, for dealing with chronic violators of the rules governing tailwater. The board agreed on the need for continued strict enforcement of the district's rules on tailwater waste with particular emphasis being directed against habitual offenders.

Violators will be notified of the district's intent to take action. However, landowners and operators will be encouraged to correct the problem themselves without court action.

The district's rules are enforced by seeking injunctions at the district court level. If a violation occurs after an injunction is issued by the district court, the violator would be in "contempt of court" which carries a maximum fine of $1,000 and/or six months in jail per occasion.

"The board's intent is to act in such a way as to seek remedy of the problem at the most local enforcement level to discourage further controls by the state or federal government," district officials state.

ROOT-KNOT NEMATODE

"There are many nematodes," Orr said, "that have been identified as causing crop injuries." Among the most damaging is the root-knot nematode, he said. These crop pests have been known to cause injury to most of the crops grown on the South Plains, he reported.

"There are several things we can do to live with nematodes," Orr said. Among those are chemicals that can be applied for nematode control.

"Chemicals can normally give increases in cotton yields from 100-250 pounds of lint per acre," the scientist reported.

"The type of chemicals used in nematode control can be divided into two groups," he said. First there are the soil fumigants, which include such things as DBCP and Ethylene dibromide (EDB), Orr said. The fumigants

Pump And Water Efficiency Can Save Farmers Millions

Increasing the efficiency of pumps and careful management of water from the state's 90,000 irrigation wells could save Texas irrigation farmers $100-million annually, says an irrigation specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

By improving pumping efficiency to attainable levels, farmers could reduce their annual fuel bills by $1,200-$1,500 per well, the specialist said. But he noted that the repairs needed to improve pumping efficiency that amount would cost farmers across the state approximately $350 million.

STRESSED IN WEST TEXAS
Ways to combat the skyrocketing costs of pumping irrigation water and at the same time conserve precious fuel and water are being conducted by Extension in 20 West Texas counties. Pump efficiency and water management are the key factors, the Extension specialist says.

"Irrigation fuel is the highest single cost in producing crops in highly irrigated West Texas," said Leon New, Extension area Agricultural Engineer-Irrigation. He is stationed at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center

In recent years the cost of energy to pump irrigation water has increased 400 to 700 percent in most areas of the state, he noted.

"This increase in energy prices has added substantially to annual crop production costs of the irrigation farmer," New said.

NATURAL GAS PRICES
In 1973, natural gas to operate a typical irrigation well on the High Plains cost about $835 annually, the Extension specialist said. In 1978, the same amount of energy averaged approximately $5,000 annually.

"An average West Texas grower who used 20 irrigation wells paid about $17,000 annually for natural gas in 1973," New said. "In 1978, his annual fuel cost totaled approximately $92,000."

To offset these increasing fuel costs, New said, irrigation pumps and power units must perform at maximum efficiency and water distribution must be carefully managed to reduce the amount required.

To determine pump efficiency, four measurements are needed. These are water delivery, depth from which water must be lifted, discharge pressure, and

MUST LEARN TECHNIQUE

Growers can make these measurements, but often need help to learn the measurement technique and evaluation procedure," New said.

To help them, Extension Service personnel have demonstrated measurement techniques in 20 counties and have conducted training sessions to assist county Extension agents. Extension also has developed step-by-step guidelines to help growers make efficiency calculations and identify hourly fuel cost and fuel cost for an acre-inch of water. The guidelines include attainable standards to which the grower can compare his system's overall efficiency and fuel cost.

Demonstrations conducted by Extension and cooperating growers indicate opportunity for significant reductions in energy consumption and pumping costs, New said.

Measurements have been made, New said, on some 100 irrigation pumping installations powered by natural gas, diesel and electricity. In overall efficiency, the systems ranged from a low of 4 percent to a high of 19 percent, with the average efficiency being 11 percent.

Livestock Sales Lead Ag Income

Livestock sales led the way in pushing estimated 1978 Texas farm and ranch marketings past the $8 billion mark. This was a billion more than in 1977 and compares with $2.7 billion 10 years ago, notes an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Net income should be moderately higher than the $1.1 billion earned in 1977. Meat animal sales accounted for about half of the $8 billion. Despite lower production, cotton remained the top cash crop with estimated sales of $1 billion.

Joe D. Unfred of New Home, well known cotton farmer with a long record of community and industry service, was elected President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. at the organization's board meeting in Lubbock May 2. He has been a PCG director since 1965 and served as the 1979 Vice President.

The Lynn County cotton producer succeeds Lloyd Cline of Lamesa, who as immediate past president became Chairman of the PCG Board. Following the election Unfred voiced his appreciation to the board for its expression of confidence and appealed to members for their help in continuing and improving PCG's record of valuable service to High Plains cotton producers.

The PCG board also voted to move producer Gary Cline of Ralls, a director since 1972, up from the office of Secretary-Treasurer to Vice President. Both Unfred and Cline serve on PCG's Executive and Finance Committees. Ivey is also a member of the organization's Legislative and Boll Weevil Steering Committees.

Charles Axtell of Route 1, Springlake, producer district from Castro County since 1975, was elected Secretary-Treasurer. Axtell is also an active member of the Texas Corn Growers and Texas Wheat Producers Associations and is Secretary of the board of Dimmitt Agri Industries. He attended West Texas State University for two years and holds a B.S. Degree from Texas Tech. Unfred and Cline are also Tech alumni.

The board meeting followed the organization's Twenty-Second Annual Membership Meeting, attended by approximately 400 people.

In addition to annual reports from then President Cline and Executive Vice President Donald Johnson, speakers included John Garner of Liverpool, England, Editor of Cotton Outlook magazine, and David Hull, Executive Director of Cotton Council International (CCI).

Garner, a cotton market analyst and reporter of world acclaim, told the High Plains audience he expected export markets for this area's cotton to "at least persist." He noted economic and political difficulties being experienced by some of this area's chief competitors in world markets, including Brazil, Pakistan, Argentina, Turkey and several African countries. He cautioned however against discounting the possibility of increasing competition from Russia and India.

Hull outlined CCI's many-sided approach to increasing U.S. cotton exports through trade teams, promotion cooperative advertising and mill technical services.

President Cline gave a running account of major activities in 1978, primarily in the areas of legislation, government regulation, administration of farm programs and organizational work.

Johnson, pointing to the potential for substantially expanding production on the Plains, stressed the necessity of a corresponding expansion in markets for area cotton. "When you have such an increase in the production of any given kind of cotton, whatever kind it is, you have to have increased markets for that kind of cotton to make the production profitable if it is to continue for any length of time, and it is going to take a very strong effort to expand these markets to equal the kind of expanded production that looks like we may have in the years immediately ahead."

No Injuries In Thursday Accident

DOGS — and a couple of cats — of all ages and breeds were brought to Floydada fire station Thursday for vaccinations during a pet clinic. Dr. Charles Overstreet administered shots during the clinic sponsored by City of Floydada and assisted by Floydada FFA Chapter.

Volunteer firemen were summoned Thursday night to wash gasoline from South Second Street after a traffic accident about 9:10 p.m.

Steve Hendrix, the investigating officer, said a 1967 Ford pickup driven by Samuel Segura, 24, of 1030 South Leonard in Floydada swerved to avoid collision with another pickup "as he came upon the curve," skidded around and overturned. The pickup came to rest on its top.

Gasoline leaked from the vehicle, which was described as virtually a total loss.

The mishap reportedly occurred when a 1973 Chevrolet pickup driven by an 18-year-old Floydada man, Julian Arredondo Jr., swerved into the right lane in front of the Segura pickup. The vehicles did not collide.

Segura apparently did not require medical attention. Traveling alone, he was enroute home from work, reportedly a Plainview welding shop.

Both men were riding alone.

Segura was issued a citation for driving while his driver's license was suspended. Charges of unsafe lane change were filed against Arredondo.

181 Attend Early Childhood Festival

Rough winds failed to discourage kite flyers who participated Tuesday night in the Early Childhood Learning Festival at Della Plains School in Floydada.

One hundred and 81 children and adults registered for activities. These included: tricycle races, movies and video tapes of local children, and lectures by Drs. Tom and Julie Jones of Texas Tech University.

Winner of the drawing for a free airplane ride was Lisa

Charles, daughter of Mary Charles. Lisa, a four-year-old, will be taking her first airplane ride. She is to be accompanied by her mother.

The staff of Caprock Co-op is "grateful to all who helped make the evening a success. Special thanks are extended to Joyce Williams and VEH Class for food service, Betty Fuller and day care staff, Peggy Neeley and all the energetic volunteers from FTA, and Regi Eure for child development films, and Sonny Holmes for video tapes."

Plans are underway for next year's festival.
