Lockney Youth Wins Sweepstakes Award

Doug Sparkman of Lockney won the 1980 Floyd County Junior Livestock Show sweepstakes award, presented Thursday night at the stock show awards banquet. Jill Whitfill was named 1980 stock show sweetheart. Miss Whitfill, who represented the Lockney 4-H Club, sold more than $900 in stock show memberships to claim the sweetheart trophy for this year.

David Foster, a former winner, presented the coveted sweepstakes award to Sparkman. The large traveling trophy, which the winner holds for a year, is furnished by "a friend of the Floyd County Junior Livestock Show." Weldon Pruitt sponsored the sweepstakes plaque, which Sparkman gets to keep.

Also revealed at the banquet were the winners of the county show herdsman and showmanship awards. Winners of the 1980 herdsman trophies were Dusty Burleson (beef), Kristi Dawdy (swine), and Hunter Smith (sheep). Showmanship trophies went to Danny Nutt (beef), Craig Ellison (swine), and Jodie Smith (sheep).

Tom Ross of Floydada took the trophy for overall high-score individual in the stock show judging contest. Ross scored 435 of a possible 450 judging contest points. Second place in overall judging went to Ty Williams of Lockney. Byron Brock and Todd Beedy tied for third.

Division winners in the judging contest were as follows:
Swine division — 1. Mack Sherman and Randy Ford (tie) 2. Craig Ellison 3. Jim Waller.

Lamb division — 1. Tom Ross 2. Karyn Foster 3. Phillip Kidd and Mack Sherman (tie).

Beef division — 1. Mitch Ross 2. Danny Nutt 3. Keith Nixon.

Stock show association president Ed Nutt conducted the awards presentation. Winners were announced by Roger Dawdy, swine superintendent; Bob Ross, assistant beef superintendent; and Kenneth Holt, who substituted for sheep superintendent Kenneth Broseh.

Banquet Emcee Craig Gilly introduced Velvet Smith, Ambassador for Agriculture for Texas Tech University. The Tech Freshman congratulated the Floyd County youngsters on their successful stock show and dared them to "go forth and be winners." She said "Success is having the courage not to let defeat beat you," and urged the

How Champs Bring Premium Prices

The reserve champion steer of the 1980 Junior Livestock Show weighed 1,250 pounds, according to Jett Adams, county extension agent. Ty Brock of Lockney was the grand champion. Buyers were Plainview Supply, Providence Farm and Oscar Golden.

The reserve champion barrow, shown by Kyle Brock, went for $2.50 a pound. Buyers were Western Beef of Amarillo and Western Lockney of Lockney. The Byron Brock family added $1.00 per hundred to all barrow bids, and Floydada Livestock Sales Company added $1.00 per hundred to all steer bids.

Commodities Seminar Slated February 28

Beth Pratt Predicts Carter's Re-Election

Editor's note: Jack Anderson, Washington columnist and self-described "muckraker" is noted for exposing graft and corruption in government. Anderson's appearance was a part of the Mass Communications week at Texas Tech and his speech was covered by Beth Pratt for Tech's University Daily.

Naming President Carter as the "hero of his own catastrophe" Washington columnist Jack Anderson blamed Carter's "big words and small actions" for the presence of Russia in Afghanistan.

Speaking at the University Center Theatre at Texas Tech, Anderson said Tuesday night that Carter's backdown in Cuba in October encouraged the Soviets to push their aggressive intentions further.

An opponent of the Vietnam War, Anderson said, "This is not Vietnam, it is our jugular vein. You would not agree to Russian control of our air or water. Third in importance is oil — we cannot survive without it."

Afghanistan is the gateway to the Persian Gulf and if the Soviets control the Persian Gulf, "they will have us on our knees," the columnist stated.

Judging by past actions, the Soviets do not think Carter means it when he says we will defend the area Anderson said.

"Hitler would not have crossed the line that drew America into World War II had he known what that line was," Anderson said. Appeasement encouraged him to think we would not fight and the situation is similar today Anderson continued.

Describing Carter as a "decent man, likeable — he just doesn't know what he's doing," Anderson said that the White House was no place for an amateur.

Anderson believes the polls indicate that Carter will be re-elected because of the situation in Iran and Afghanistan, which his ineptness created.

"It's easier to sit in the grandstand and yell 'throw the bum out' than to get on the field and play quarterback," said Anderson. "but I'm not sure we can survive another four years of Jimmy Carter and his present advisors."

In a question and answer period after his speech, Anderson expressed doubts that the FBI would obtain convictions in the "abscam" operation "since it is against the law to pay bribes as well as receive them." Viewing the FBI methods in this situation as "very questionable," Anderson said that it is his duty to lay out the findings for the public to see.

Disturbed about recent Supreme Court rulings requiring journalists to reveal their sources of information under threat of contempt of court charges, Anderson said "you are entitled to know what your government is doing and you don't get that from government sources."

"The people's right to know is obviously restricted in an emergency, but afterward I reported what had happened," he responded to one questioner.

"Our government is more tolerant than any other," Anderson said, "but you will not get the truth from the press secretary. Have you ever heard him criticize Jimmy Carter?"

We attempt to give you what the facts are — not what the government says or you wish or hope they are, Anderson said. Still, the government is better at covering up than we are at digging up he continued.

"We still have the best government on earth," Anderson said in closing. He warned the listeners against those who would misuse words like "democracy" and "the people" to destroy confidence in our system of government and emphasized the importance of taking care in whom we elect.

BEWARE OF "BUYING"

Cattlemen rebuilding their herds should be careful not to "buy" brucellosis or Bang's disease. This contagious reproductive disease is most often spread when newly purchased cattle are added to a breeding herd.

Brucellosis reduces calf crops and milk yields and causes breeding problems.

While the overall infection rate of U.S. cattle is quite low, the economic importance to individual cattlemen and market area restrictions are significant. The disease is most prevalent in Florida, Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama, Oklahoma, Kentucky and Tennessee.

When cattle are sold in higher risk areas, the law requires that they be tested for brucellosis. Reactor cattle must be branded with the letter "B" and sent directly to slaughter. The owner receives the slaughter price and also may qualify for an indemnity payment. However, these compensations amount to something far less than market value before the herd became infected.

Government control efforts include periodic testing of milk samples from dairy herds and testing of blood samples from certain animals sold or in marketing channels. Reactors are traced to herd or origin, and all animals in these herds are tested. If brucellosis is confirmed, the herd is quarantined and periodically retested until free. For the owner of a herd, prolonged quarantine, marketing restrictions and repeated gathering cattle for testing can be quite expensive.

Buyers should double check records to be sure the animals they are purchasing have actually been tested, and most importantly, they should be aware that ONE NEGATIVE TEST IS NOT ENOUGH TO PROVE ANIMAL IS BRUCELLOSIS FREE. It takes three weeks to three months sometimes longer, for an animal to develop a positive blood reaction. Longer incubation periods occur when a cow is exposed to just before or shortly after breeding.

A few rules for cattlemen buying replacement animals include: buy from low-infection areas; buy from sellers who have a reputation for brucellosis-free cattle; buy only animals that were calfhood vaccinated as indicated by ear tags, tattoos and health records; buy from herds that haven't had animals within the past 12 months isolated newly purchased animals to 120 days for observation and testing for brucellosis before mixing them with the rest of the breeding herd.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color or religion or origin.

Floyd Philosopher Examines One Aspect Of Nation-wide Bribery Scandal

Dear editor:

Some people have been bumfuzzled by one aspect of the latest scandal sweeping the country, the one involving bribery of public officials.

Taking a bribe, now that's not no-heard-of, except that excusing raw cases it's generally called a campaign contribution.

But what has floored some people is the plight some officials claim they're in. They say sure somebody dropped a big bundle of money on their desk, they didn't want it, they didn't want to embarrass the donor by handing it back to him right then, so they put it in a safe and for three months have been trying to figure out how to return it.

Some people consider this laughable, ridiculous. That's because they don't understand politics. Although they've struggled with the problem for years, politicians have failed to discover the proper procedure for returning a bribe. There's no precedent for it, it's an uncharted course, Robert's Rules of Order says nothing about it, and it will take time to work it out. It's not solved they're not working on it, and they recognize they've solved half the problem. They've learned how to accept money, they just haven't figured out how to return it. There's an opportunity here for some ambitious young congressman or State Legislator to improve the Proper Procedure For Returning a bill: House Bill No. 13,418—Proper Procedure For Returning a Bribe. The bill will go to a conference committee and should be acted on perhaps around the turn of the century. Which century is anybody's guess.

Yet there is an even more serious problem resulting from the FBI's seizure of rich oil sheikhs and snaring holders eager to get in on a good thing. They say they were double-crossed.

We hear a lot these days about confidence prevailing throughout the country and it's true. People are confident in everything, and I think you've reached a sorry state of affairs when a public official can't get the people trying to bribe him.

Yours faithfully,

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In today's world, it often seems that everything influences everything else. The current state of the U.S. economy and our lagging defense capability indicates the need for significant changes if we are to meet the challenges which lie ahead. There is no question that a healthy economy and a strong defense are inter-related, and are of vital concern to our national security.

Following the end of World War II, the U.S. emerged as the undisputed leader and spokesman for the "Free West." At that time, the U.S. had unequalled productive capacity, economic strength, and a seemingly endless supply of resources within our own borders. Through short-sighted policies, however, we have failed to maintain this position of prominence. As a result, we are experiencing high inflation, a dependence on unstable foreign energy sources, and an inability to deal with the global and political events which are threatening our national security.

Energy is, perhaps, the most serious issue facing the American people today. Current policies have tended to prolong our dependence on foreign energy sources, and have done nothing to reduce consumption of precious energy supplies. No one would dispute the importance of maintaining and guaranteeing our oil supplies, and this can best be accomplished through the use of a strong defense which can only be provided through a strong economy.

The United States can use its economic and military power to strongly influence the behavior of those who control foreign energy sources.

West Texas Appears To Have Chance Of Enhanced Oil Recovery

You're absolutely right when you believe the U.S. hasn't used up half the oil we know is there. About 40 percent of the U.S. oil reserves have been consumed. The only trouble is that the pump-jack hydrocarbons are the first 40 percent. The rest is in the form of oil, gas, and other hydrocarbons. The problem is that we don't have the technology to produce all that is left. To produce it, we need to expand our production requirements now. We need better trained people to do the job.

within the earth. "Petroleum will have to carry us through this century," he said, "even though per capita energy consumption is rising worldwide. Energy usage may be different 50 years from now, with alternate forms for transportation and heating and reserve petroleum supplies for petrochemicals." Smith described the demand for trained people the last five years as "wild," making it difficult to recruit or keep faculty at academic salary levels as well as to train enough new engineers. He said the demand for petroleum engineers is so great that 60 to 70 companies last year interviewed about 50 graduating Texas Tech petroleum engineers. December 1979 graduates are earning an average of $2,000 a month. Texas Tech, one of two dozen schools offering a degree in petroleum engineering, has raised entrance requirements and still has a capacity enrollment of 350 students. The reasons are easily apparent. Oil production began with people who had gamblers' instincts, modest drilling rigs, no government regulations and the incentive of tremendous profits. That phase has ended. "We are moving into the difficult areas," Smith said. "Our remaining oil is deeper, in more remote and in harsher environments than oil already produced. What oil is left is waiting for better technology to recover it, and getting it will be very expensive. "For instance, offshore drilling used to take place in water depths of 200 to 300 feet. Now wells are drilled in water more than 5,000 feet deep, and producers plan to go beyond that." That kind of sophisticated drilling costs more. Highly trained engineers plan the drilling, design equipment and supervise the process and solve hard, day-to-day problems. Emphasis on the primary recovery, where nothing is pumped into the reservoir to force the crude out, is shifting, Smith explained. "About 15 to 20 percent of a reservoir can be produced by primary recovery methods, and secondary recovery, with water flooding of wells, can produce another 10 to 15 percent. That leaves the remainder for enhanced recovery largely up to the engineers graduating now." Recovering the last of the oil from reservoirs is only part of the problem. Finding new reservoirs is another. Hunting oil is not guesswork, Smith emphasized, and each reservoir found has individual characteristics of its own because the oil was deposited under different geological conditions. Even fluids in the reservoirs are different, and mechanisms for recovery vary from reservoir to reservoir. "One of the biggest problems is finding what the reservoir characteristics are. We try to describe something that could be five or six miles underground with information we get from wells several hundred feet apart," he said. "Three people with the same information are likely to come up with three different answers. That is why it is difficult to say for sure what our reserves are." Some petroleum engineers specialize in reservoir engineering, which requires taking of data, analyzing it, estimating the amount of oil and gas present and then estimating how much of that can be recovered. Other engineers are moving into the expanded field of enhanced oil recovery, into government agencies concerned both with energy production and environmental concerns and into the development of alternate sources of energy. Compared to other areas of the United States, Smith said, West Texas appears to have the best chance of success for enhanced recovery.

District Lodges

Floydada Rebekah Lodge was host to all the lodges in district #9 on Tuesday night, February 19. A bountiful meal of turkey and dressing with all the trimmings was served to the group before lodge opened. Eula Parrack gave the invocation and lodge opened with Barbara Gilliland in the chair of Noble Grand and Ruby Davis presided as Vice Grand. Those reported sick were Dartha Westbrook, Dorothy Turner and Susan Turner, all home from the hospital following surgery.

The meeting was turned over to Grace Grundy, District Deputy President of district #9, who conducted a school of instruction.

Each lodge present exemplified some aspect of the lodge work. A love gift was presented to her for her work in the District the past year.

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all present.

Family celebrates 6 generations

The family of Neely Brookman celebrated her 108th birthday with a special six-generation reunion.

Mrs. Brookman resides in Hollis, Okla., where she has lived since she moved from Missouri in 1874. She was married to the late Cornelius Brookman.

The couple had seven children, five of whom are still living, eleven grandchildren, twenty-five great grandchildren, twenty-four great-great-grandchildren, and two great-great-great-grandchildren.

When great-granddaughter Mrs. Long asked the traditional question of to what Mrs. Brookman attributed her longevity, Mrs. Brookman said, "I always behaved myself."

Baptist Women Meet

Nineteen Baptist women met in the home of Mae Garrett, Wednesday morning for Bible study. Refreshments were served as the ladies arrived.

The program, entitled "The Servant: What We Have To Tell," which tells how the evangelist, Isaiah proclaimed the advent, character, ministry, suffering, death, and kingdom of the Messiah.

Thelma Crawford was Bible study leader and gave an inspiring message entitled "Good News." Others giving meaningful parts on the program were Aline Bradley — "Jehovah's Servant"; Wanda Turner — "The Servant's Hope and Rejection"; Carthel — "The Servant's Vicarious Suffering"; and Fay — "The Servant's Exaltation." Isaiah read the prayer and gave the prayer. Others present were: Evelyne Lawson, Evelyne Lawson, Frances McClure, Cline, Cleo Goins, Veda Meredith, Howard, and Mae Garrett.

Dorcus Sunday School Class

Meets With Mrs. Garrett

The Dorcas Sunday School class of the First Baptist Church of Floydada met this week with Mae Garrett, teacher of the class.

A short program was presented and plans for the class were discussed. Mrs. Cleo Goins was presented a birthday card in honor of special day. Refreshments of cream, tea and coffee served to Mrs. Sparks, Vada Meredith, Cline, Eula, Warren, Valree, La Denison, Cleo Mae Garrett.

Single Adults February

The Single Adults Club's regular February meeting slated for Saturday was cancelled due to inclement weather.

The next scheduled meeting will be March 15 at Lighthouse Electric Cooperative, Floydada, p.m. Hostesses will be Kendricks, Oleta Helen Johnson and Shipley. A salad supper for that night.

Senior Citizen News

Eighty-five persons attended the Thursday luncheon at the Senior Citizen Center in Floydada. Brother Dennis Sweargin and others from the First Christian Church entertained center members with song. A 25 inch TV has been purchased for the Center. Forty members attended the night.

Local Students Invited To SPC

Los Tejanos, service organization at South Plains College, is inviting all high school junior and senior students in the South Plains area to the annual Tejano Day festivities, scheduled March 7.

Activities will include tours of campus, an SPC talent show, oratory and beauty competition for $100 scholarships to SPC, dance and coronation of Tejano Day Queen. Theme for the 10th annual Tejano Day is "Progreso Con Educacion." Guest speaker will be Dr. Eliseo Ruiz, Jr., who has a doctorate degree from the University of Texas in special education administration. He is principal at Los Fresnos (Texas) High School.

Contestants for the oratory contest must prepare a 5-7 minute speech in either English or Spanish, on one of the three topics: "What are your views concerning higher education?" "What can you contribute to your community through higher education?" and "What are your views about Mexican-American involvement in American politics today?"

Interested persons can check with their high school counselors for entry blanks to the scholarship competition.

MAKE SURE YOUR CANNED FOODS ARE SAFE TO EAT

Now that you're using those home-grown vegetables that you canned so carefully last fall, you'll want to continue to follow precautionary measures to prevent their contamination by bacteria.

Before you even taste home-canned vegetables—or home-canned meats or poultry—boil them carefully. Bring them to a rolling-seething-boil, then cover the pan and continue boiling 10 minutes before tasting.

Also examine and smell canned foods for spoilage. Never taste or eat canned foods taken from jars or cans that show damage such as cracks or loose or bulging lids. Never taste foods from cans that spurled liquid when opened or that give off abnormal odors.

Heating food generally makes any spoilage more evident. If, during heating, any food appears spoiled or has an off odor, dispose of it out of reach of humans, pets or livestock.

Each year, more than 2 million people in the United States suffer ill effects from foodborne bacteria.

Fortunately, relatively few people in this country are exposed to the most deadly foodborne disease we know about — botulism — which results from a toxin produced by bacteria called Clostridium botulinum.

Once called "sausage poisoning" in Germany, botulism is dangerous. According to the USDA, in the United States in this century, for every 100 persons found to have ingested the botulism toxin, 56 have died. Since 1925, about 700 Americans have died as a result of eating botulism-contaminated foods canned or otherwise processed at home.

By contrast, fewer than a dozen botulism deaths have implicated foods processed by commercial manufacturers during that same period. Most botulism poisoning in this country has been associated with improperly processed home-canned, low-acid foods such as vegetables and meats.

Oxygen prevents botulism cells from growing, and sometimes it kills cells. But just under the surface of foods exposed to oxygen, anaerobic or oxygen-free conditions may exist, and when temperatures there are favorable, the cells can vegetate and produce their poison. Anaerobic conditions also are found inside jars or cans, in vacuum packages or under a layer of grease.

After a person eats botulism toxin, botulism symptoms may occur within a few hours or as long as 6 or 8 days later. Severity of illness may vary with the amount of sample, providing the most effective means of diagnosis. Preventing botulism in home canning is based on a few basic rules.

First, remember that botulinum spores—which survive when boiling—can't germinate in high-acid canned foods such as sauerkraut or fruit juices, highly salted items such as certain hams, or sugary foods such as jams or jelly.

However, this is not the case for low-acid foods such as green beans, corn, spinach or asparagus in which the botulinum spores must be destroyed by using a steam-pressure canner with at least 12 pounds of pressure—240 degrees F.—for an appropriate time. No other way is safe.

Instructions on "appropriate time" needed for pressure canning—which varies with different foods—generally come with new canning equipment bought at stores, but they also may be obtained from the Floyd County Extension Office. Most canning publications call for 10 lbs. pressure, but it should be noted that this recommendation is for sea level and must be increased to 12 lbs. for adequate processing at our altitude.

Foods low in acid, hence botulism susceptible, in addition to the above-mentioned, include meats, poultry, fish and all vegetables other than tomatoes. Properly fermented or pickled foods usually contain enough acid to prevent the growth of the botulinum bacteria.

It's only when botulism spores are contained in low-acid foods with no oxygen and stored above refrigerator temperatures that they grow and produce their deadly toxin.

BIRTHS

Bill and Anita Bigham of Lockney announce the birth of a baby daughter, Stacy Anika.

Stacy weighed 6 lbs. 14 1/2 oz. at birth at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday in Central Plains Hospital in Plainview.

Her big brothers are Gary, 13 years old; Troy, 9, and Clint, 6. Grandparents are W.T. and Lavern Cooper, A.L. and Mary Bigham, all of Lockney.

Happy Birthday Lorena McKinny

Every woman can look and feel younger.

Let Pat Walker help create a new you.

S. Nelson is perhaps one of the more spectacular examples of the stunning results that may be attained through Pat Walker's Figure Perfection Salons International. Read what she has to say about the program that has benefited millions throughout the world over the past 26 years:

"I hated myself fat, and every new year I promised to really get with it and lose; however, it never happened. Finally my doctor advised me, tactfully, to stay out of his office until I decided to lose weight. He just couldn't help me. Out of desperation, not believing, I called for a courtesy treatment at Pat Walker's.

This was the turning point in my life. With a loss of 51 pounds and several inches, I began to enjoy my life with my friends and family, especially my three grandchildren. The Pat Walker program gave me a positive approach to everyday living."

Now Size 5!

How's your approach to life?

Now the national director for Pat Walker, Ms. Nelson firmly believes the program can upgrade the life outlook of the overweight as surely as it makes them slimmer, trimmer, more confident of their appearance—and themselves.

In the elegant atmosphere of a Pat Walker salon (where there's none of the noise and confusion you may have encountered at gyms and spas), you can reduce IN ABSOLUTE PRIVACY. Moreover, you have assistance from interested professional counselors (who also conduct their counseling, by the way, in complete privacy).

Wood Cooking-Utensil Care

Always clean the surface of chopping boards, butcher blocks and other wooden cutting surfaces with a hot, sudsy cloth — or keep the surface wet 5-15 minutes with a bleach and water solution. Rinse thoroughly and dry with a clean towel.

Periodically, stains and scratches may need sanding with fine sandpaper. Wash the surface thoroughly after sanding. When dry, rub the board with clear mineral oil, let stand a few hours, then wipe off excess oil. For new wooden surfaces, the wash-and-oil treatment serves as a conditioning step before using the surface. Wooden spoons also may require occasional care, including sanding, washing and rubbing with oil. Avoid leaving a wooden utensil in a microwave oven when cooking, too, since it will dry the wood and may cause it to crack.

the Cults." Refreshments were served to eight members: Maudie Lawson, Vera King, Lorraine Nance, Ruth Reeves, Elvira Stewart, Helen Huffman and hostess Sybil Teeple. The next meeting will be hosted by Helen Huffman. The program will be "Making Seed Flowers."

Skin-Deep Beauty

AIR CONDITIONING AND STEAM HEAT — dry the skin. To combat them, use moisturizers and humidifiers.

COLD — shocks the skin. Avoid extremes of water temperatures when washing. Use moisturizers and skin protectors.

HEAT AND POLLUTION — generally make the skin dirtier since perspiration does not evaporate so readily. Cleanse your skin often.

SUN — ages and spots the skin. Use appropriate sun-screening products.

WIND — burns and chaps the skin. Use skin protectors and moisturizers. Finally, remember to add exercise to your basic skin-care routine. Exercise helps skin stay youthful.

When it gets too much

A President of the United States in the middle of a war that nobody liked turned to prayer. Abraham Lincoln explained simply that he had been driven to his knees many times by the knowledge that his own strength, and that of all around him, was insufficient.

Sometimes we have to pray! It gets too much

And don't feel awkward if you're not used to it. Folks before you have found that life gets too much. They have been driven to their knees — and turned to God — believing there was something better ahead.

Your worst day could become your best! Why not check it out in church? What Abe Lincoln was driven to may be what your soul needs, hungers for.

When it gets too much — there's a better way ahead.

26 Local Youth To Participate In Houston Livestock Show

20 4-H members from Floydada will be participating in the 1980 Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, February 20-March 2. With more than 27,000 expected livestock entries, the Houston Show will once again be the largest in the world.

For junior exhibitors throughout the state, the Houston Show is the culmination of a year's hard work of preparing their animals for the toughest of show ring competition.

It is hard work that often pays off; open show and junior exhibitors will vie for more than a half a million dollars in prize monies and premium auction prices about market value.

From a spectator's point of view, the young exhibitors are center-stage in a two-week extravaganza that begins when Houston, the fastest growing city in the nation, takes a step backwards in time and brings a bit of western heritage to its busy streets.

Horses, buckboards and stagecoaches take to the concrete and businessmen don western hats and boots to welcome the largest civic event in the history of this bustling oil and space flight capital.

Thousands of junior exhibitors are also competing in livestock and dairy judging contests where their knowledge of animals can win calf purchase certificates worth $400 toward the purchase of a purebred, registered beef or dairy heifer.

More than just a crowd-pleasing rodeo event, the calf scramble offers winning boys the opportunity to earn a calf purchase certificate worth $400. With the top 40 winners of the livestock and dairy judging contests, calf scramble winners participate in a special year-long program that stresses education and responsibility. It concludes with special show ring competition at the following year's show.

Also on hand in a spectacular line-up of television and recording stars to perform at the rodeo. The line-up includes the stars rodeo fans most want to see and they hold more gold records than is usually found in Fort Knox.

Opening the rodeo on Friday, February 22, for the matinee performance only is SHAUN CASSIDY; on February 22, for the evening performance only, ANNE MURRAY; on Saturday, February 23, for two performances, CHARLEY PRIDE; on Sunday, February 24, for the matinee performance only, KC AND THE SUNSHINE BAND; on Sunday, February 24, for the evening performance, MOE BANDY AND JOE STAMPLEY; on Thursday, February 28, for one performance, MEL TILLIS; on Friday, February 29, for one performance and on Saturday, March 1, for two performances, KENNY ROGERS AND DOTTIE WEST; and on Sunday, March 2, for two performances, CRYSTAL GAYLE.

According to the Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, it now appears virtually certain that the six-year-old disaster program which expired with the 1979 crop year will be extended through 1981.

The House in Washington February 13 on a vote of 202 to 140 approved a two-year extension as part of a bill establishing a new and expanded all-risk Federal Crop Insurance program. The Senate passed a similar measure late last year and the issue now goes to a House-Senate Conference Committee for resolution of differences.

The disaster extension parts of the two bills are almost identical, notes Johnson, "so we don't anticipate any serious problem getting the bill out of conference or back through both houses."

The only major difference in the bills relates to the Federal Crop Insurance program. The House measure gives producers the option to secure private hail and fire insurance in return for a 25 percent credit on federal premiums for other coverage. The Senate bill has no such provision.

Details on the insurance program won't be available until sometime after the final measure becomes law. Nor is it now clear when all farmers will have access to the new insurance.

"But it doesn't seem reasonable to expect that federal crop insurance in 1980 will be much if any different from that available in 1979," Johnson says. Meanwhile producers will have the disaster program in 1980 and will have the option to either retain that protection or take federal crop insurance in 1981.

The next action on a disaster program extension will come February 19 when House and Senate conferees meet on legislation raising target prices for wheat and feed grains. Besides target price provisions, the Senate bill to be discussed also provides a one-year extension of the disaster program with a payment limitation of $50,000 per producer.

It is possible but by no means assured, Washington sources say, that the target price conferees will now agree to drop all mention of the disaster program from that bill.

Disaster protection was first written into the Agriculture Act of 1973 and was extended for the first two years of the four-year 1977 farm law, expiring with the 1979 crop year.

Farmers in the 25-county High Plains territory represented by PCG, where the disaster program was conceived, collected over $273 million in benefits under the disaster program for the five-year period 1974 through 1978. Final disaster payment figures are not yet available on the 1979 crop but are expected to bring the six-year total to over $300 million.

Farm Bureau News Summary

EMBARGO AND SUPPORT PRICE

There is a law that requires the Secretary of Agriculture to increase the floor rate to 90% of parity for loan for wheat, corn, grain sorghum, soybeans, oats, rye, barley, rice, flaxseed and cotton that are embargoed because of supply shortage.

Section 1002 of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 entitled "American Agriculture Protection Program" requires the Secretary of Agriculture to increase the loan to 90% of parity for a named commodity, when the President of the United States suspends the export sales of the commodity because of short supply. The loan level is to stay at 90% of parity as long as the commodity is suspended from export sales.

The President's decision to suspend sales of commodities to Russia was not based on short supply. It was based on the national security and foreign policy provisions of the Export Administration Act of 1979.

RUSSIAN FERTILIZER TRADE

President Carter has temporarily restricted the imports of anhydrous ammonia from the Soviet Union to a one year quota of a million tons. The imports totalled about 900 thousand tons last year, officials said, but might have increased to 1.2 million to 1.4 million tons this year without the quota. Last year's imports were valued at about one hundred million dollars.

The Carter administration is currently considering cutting off phosphorus exports to the Soviet Union totalling about 60 million dollars a year.

Russian export-import of fertilizer is due to an agreement made several years ago between Occidental Petroleum Corporation of Los Angeles and the Soviet Union. The Soviet Union would export anhydrous ammonia and import phosphorus.

A check with the U.S. State Department reveals that a commission will be created to review exports of products to Russia to determine if they should continue. A decision on the phosphorus exports to Russia or other products could come at any time, but it will probably be four to six weeks before decisions will be made on what items can continue to be exported to Russia, if any.

FOREIGN OWNERSHIP U.S. LANDS

Foreign groups and individuals have reported they own 5.2 million acres of U.S. agriculture land as of October 31, 1979. The 5.2 million acres is .485% of total 1978 land in farms - 1,072,333,000 acres.

PEANUT PENALTIES

Agriculture Stabilization Conservation Service has announced a reduced penalty for unintentionally over-marketing peanuts by 92% for the 1978 crop and by 84% for the 1979 crop.

The penalty rate for the 1978 crop of peanuts is 102% of the basic support price for quota peanuts, which is determined to be $42 per ton or 2.1 cents per pound. The 1979 crop peanut penalty rate is 20% of the basic support price of quota peanuts, which is determined to be $84 per ton or 4.2 cents per pound. Copies of the proposal are available from this office.

ALCOHOL MANUFACTURE PERMITS

An important recent opinion of the Texas Attorney General concerning the issuance of alcohol manufacturer's permits was announced in the January issue of the Texas Register.

The official summary of the opinion reads as follows: "There are residency requirements for a local industrial alcohol manufacturer permit (gasohol). A corporation may hold a distiller's permit if it is an affiliate which holds a manufacturer's permit. As such, a corporate permit holder may be held by a person residing out-of-state. The facts of any specific situation will be examined to insure that the question of subterfuge ownership is not involved."

The "local industrial alcohol manufacturer's permit" mentioned above was created by House Bill 102.01 of the 66th Legislature, which became effective as state law on September 1, 1979. The permit allows the manufacture of denatured alcohol, which may be mixed with petroleum products to create gasohol. Consumables may not be manufactured by this permit, which is administered by the Alcoholic Beverage Commission.

The "tied house prohibition" mentioned above, has reference to Section 102.01 of the Alcoholic Beverage Code, which defines a "tied house" to mean "any ownership...between those of the alcoholic beverage and different levels", that is, manufacturer and a wholesaler, retailer, or between a wholesaler and retailer.

RABIES VIA CORNEAL TRANSPLANT

A U.S. Department of Health and Welfare publication, "RABIES VIA CORNEAL TRANSPLANT AND MORTALITY" was issued January 25, 1980, reported that on November 28, 1979 a 36-year-old man from eastern France died of rabies days after receiving a corneal transplant. The donor was a 57-year-old woman who had died following quadriplegia syndrome. The eye is known to have had rabies virus in it. The person in eastern France received a corneal transplant had no contact with animals.

SCIENCE AND EDUCATION COUNCIL

Secretary of Agriculture and president of the National Association of State Universities and Grant Colleges, Robert C. Anderson, signed an agreement on January 25, 1980 extending their sponsorship of the International Science and Education Council for another two years.

The International Science and Education Council is established by agreement with nine member departments and nine member State Universities and Grant Colleges Association. The group is to promote science and education through world.

ALCOHOL FUEL PRODUCTION

USDA's Farm and Home Administration is opening up its rural industrial loan guarantees to expand the production of alcohol.

A NATIONAL COTTON COUNCIL SERVICE

BILL WOULD HURT COTTON: Rep. Borer (D-Tenn.) has introduced a bill that would require the Consumer Product Safety Commission to extend the children's sleepwear flammability standard to all items of children's underwear. Under the bill, the standard would take effect 18 months after its enactment, regardless of when the CPSC issued the necessary regulation. Some 100,000 bales of cotton currently are used in the children's underwear market, according to the National Cotton Council.

HOTLINE WILL HELP COTTON: A new hotline is being set up at the U.S. Department of Agriculture to help the cotton industry overcome serious transportation curbs imposed on by increased exports. Secretary Bobby Smith says the Office of Transportation and Logistics telephone hotline to reduce curbs that may occur in cotton shipments. Smith said the number (202/447-5617) may be used by industry members to report bottlenecks and expedite shipments.

EXPORTS REPORTED: New sales of upland cotton were reported at 66,900 running bales for the week ended Feb. 3 to bring the season's total to 8,478,200. The major buyer was Japan at 52,700 bales. The week's exports were reported at 201,300 running bales (24,400 to China) compared with 168,
