A special 4-H shooting sports camp will be held at Tarleton State University June 23-27 for 4-H members between the ages of 12 and 16, according to Don Steinbach, Fisheries Specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and a coordinator of the Texas 4-H shooting sports project.

Steinbach said arrangements had been made with the National Rifle Association for the organization and conduct of a special NRA Junior Olympic Training Program which will afford a selected number of 4-H members the opportunity to train in rifle marksmanship and trap shooting.

He said that Extension Officials were in the process of securing two top instructors to work with the 4-H members. Sixteen 4-H members will be selected for rifle marksmanship and fifteen for trap shooting.

The camp will be designed to encourage participation in the 4-H shooting sports project and to help beginning shooters learn to shoot properly, emphasizing sound basic shooting skills. Participants will be housed at Tarleton State University and training will take place on local shooting ranges.

Six volunteer 4-H shooting sports coaches will also be accepted to serve as assistant coaches and chaperones for the 4-H members. These coaches will receive special instructions on how to teach.

4-H members and leaders who are interested should secure an application from their county Extension agent. Deadline for submitting the application to the State 4-H Office in College Station is May 23.

Steinbach said that this is an excellent opportunity for both youth and adults to learn shooting skills and that the Texas Agricultural Extension Service was fortunate to have the services provided by the National Rifle Association to organize and conduct this camp.

Lions Club Learns Aerobics

By Renee Sanders

"You all know how to jog, jog seven steps forward and clap your hands. Ready?" asks the young blonde lady. Aerobic dancing to the song "Happy Days", the members of the Lions Club got a taste of aerobics.

Mrs. Ann Fawer Johnston presented the program at the Lions Club meeting on Thursday, April 24. She started off her program by telling the history of the aerobic exercise program. She encouraged everyone to get involved in some sort of exercise routine.

After the discussion, Johnston asked for volunteers to assist her in the demonstration. So many men volunteered, (no one) she decided to ask the whole group to participate. Even though the group did not look very eager, they all seemed to have a very good time trying, and they all learned a little.

Mrs. Johnston is a student teacher at Floydada High School. She teaches one P.E. class and four English classes for Mrs. Fred Cardinal.

Mrs. Johnston is a graduate of Floydada High School. She has attended South Plains College, West Texas State University, and will soon graduate from Wayland Baptist College. She is majoring in Physical Education and English.

When asked if anything unusual or different had happened while she had been student teaching she said, "I video-taped aerobics class one day and have been offered various amounts of money for the tape. It's safely locked away. Some of the teachers offered more than the students."

Besides teaching class at school, she also teaches two, two hour aerobic dance classes at Lockney one night a week. The Johnstons have two small boys: Corey 2 and Casey 5 to keep her busy.

Mrs. Johnston became interested in teaching because she wanted to help people.

"I think that everyone has a special talent and I think that this is mine." Working with the mentally retarded at the Lubbock State School inspired her to teach.

Mrs. Johnston tries to approach her English classes in a different way.

Many projects were used in her College prep. English class. Students were asked to write summaries of various acts and scenes in the play Macbeth. Different dialogues were used to summarize the act where Macbeth murders King Duncan. The class divided into groups and wrote in the following dialogues: Spanish, French, deep South Negro, and West Texas slang.

Another project was to act out a scene using the class as the cast. The scene chosen was the one where the witches employ their talents to make a brew and chant "Double, double, toil and trouble, fire burn and cauldron bubble." Three members of the class dressed in long black robes and danced around an imaginary cauldron. Other class members portrayed Macbeth and the apparitions.

From her experience student teaching, she felt that learning to deal on a one to one basis in the classroom with students was very important. This is something college education courses can't teach.

"I think she will be an excellent teacher, after all, she was one of my students," Mrs. Cardinal said jokingly. "No, really I think she has a great future as a teacher."

those with less cotton. This combination of more efficient use of resources and higher yields results in substantially lower costs, he added. Propst questioned why agriculture is being singled out for special attention to its structure. He noted that in the nation's manufacturing sector, the largest 50 firms account for a fourth of all value added by manufacture. By contrast, the largest 50,000 farms account for only 36 percent of farm cash receipts. "Is agriculture getting attention to its structure because it's more vulnerable to government manipulation than other sectors...and because government by threatening to withhold benefits like price supports, irrigation facilities, and others can more easily control?" Propst asked. If government should succeed in gaining more control over agriculture and other industries, he questioned whether the result would be similar to the experience of the railroad industry "whose structure has been virtually controlled by government for many years and which now through necessity is being deregulated by Congress." In its detailed statement, the Council supported the principles of the current market-oriented cotton program saying it has served the nation well and has allowed cotton's income and market position to improve.

industry. Bentsen cited Department of Agriculture statistics which show that hog producers and cattle feeders have been losing money since last year. "One cattle feeder I talked to this week had just sold a pen of steers on which he had lost $130 per head," Bentsen said. "Beyond the national problems of low prices and high interest rates, much of Texas suffers from a severe drought, and Texas ranchers are reduced to depending upon an overworked emergency feed program which has already approved assistance for 5,419 ranchers who are trying to save over a million head of cattle," Bentsen said. "The livestock industry lives on credit. Even when credit is abundant, bankers are reluctant to finance operations plagued by drought and low prices. This bill would save the younger, smaller producers who are hurt worst by this credit squeeze, and help them to get their feet back on the ground," Senator Bentsen said.

Farm Bureau Facts

Editors Note: After reading the following article, the Beacon contacted Ridge Pate, the author of news release for Farm Bureau. Pate said that if tested the law should stand as written. The main problem involved is that an individual grower would be unlikely to have the minimum amount ($200) in weight penalties necessary to bring a suit against a cotton buyer. Pate said that a class action suit would probably be the only to test this law.

On August 3, 1979, FACTS FOR YOU discussed Articles 5679b and 5679c of Vernon's Annotated Texas Statutes, passed in 1933. These statutes state that if a spot cotton buyer charges any cotton bale weight penalty at all on a bale weighing 400 pounds or more -- or if he charges such penalty in excess of $1.00 on any bale weighing less than 400 pounds -- a seller or grower can get back double the excessive amount of the bale weight penalty the buyer has charged. The procedure to be followed is apparently that which was allowed in 1933 for recovery by law for usury. Also, Article 2226 of Vernon's Annotated Texas Statutes, as amended by the 66th Texas Legislature and approved by the Governor on June 6, 1979, reads in part as follows:

"Any person, corporation, partnership, or other legal entity having a valid claim against a person or corporation for services rendered, labor done, material furnished, overcharges on freight or express, lost or damaged freight or express, or stock killed or injured, or suits founded upon a sworn account or accounts, or suits founded on oral or written contracts, may present the same to such persons or corporation or to any duly authorized agent thereof; and if, at the expiration of 30 days thereafter, payment for the just amount owing has not been tendered, the claimant may, if represented by an attorney, also recover, in addition to his claim and costs, a reasonable amount as attorney's fees. The usual and customary fees in such cases shall be presumed to be reasonable, but such presumption may be rebutted by competent evidence. In a proceeding before the court, or in a jury case where the issue of amount of attorney's fees is submitted to the court for determination by agreement, the court may in its discretion take judicial knowledge of the usual and customary fees in such matters and of the contents of the case file without receiving further evidence.... This Act shall be liberally construed to promote its underlying purposes"

From this information, some possible methods for recovering cotton bale weight penalties, as well as reasonable attorney's fees, may be stated:

(1) The proper first step for the grower, after having paid the penalty under protest, is to present the amount of his claim, and its basis in state law, to the buyer. The buyer would then have 30 days to refund any penalties wrongly charged. After that, legal action against the buyer would be possible, and attorney's fees could be recovered if the action were successful.

(2) Article 2226 refers to "suits founded on oral or written contracts" and this would presumably include a suit alleging that the bale weight penalty provisions in a cotton sales contract are in violation of state law.

(3) Article 2226 refers only to suits brought in county or district courts. The amount of money in controversy, or the cotton bale weight penalties wrongfully paid, must exceed $200 in the former court, or $500 in the latter. Of course, a number of growers may join in the same suit on the same form contract against a buyer. Also, the minimum statute of limitations for a usury action in Texas is two years, so any improper deduction collected within the past two years, and of which there is evidence, could be pleaded and recovered.

(4) In 1933, a usury action could have been brought before a justice of the peace, who has no minimum jurisdictional amount and could thus have handled cases involving the penalty on a single bale of cotton. However, in 1979 the Texas Legislature amended the usury laws to make such actions impossible before justice of the peace courts. The 1933 usury laws may still control bale weight penalty suits, though, in which case an inexpensive recovery could be had through a justice of the peace.

Many of the issues discussed in this article are still open questions, and they will not be decided until a case to recover cotton bale weight penalties is brought under Articles 5679b and 5679c. Since 1933, no such case has yet been brought, but the Research and Education Department is aware that at least one case may be brought in the future.

Williams Brand Added To "Stairway"

The search is on throughout Texas for outstanding cattle brands to include on county panels at the Kleberg Center's "branded stairway" at Texas A&M University. L.A. Mattox, chairman of the unique branding project, said that some 3,500 brands, or more, are expected to be imprinted on the 254 "county oak panels" in the University's new $9.5 million Robert J. Kleberg Animal and Food Sciences Center. "County Extension agents are working with their local beef cattle committees to select eight brands per county, and with historical societies to select other brands for the panels," Maddox, Texas Agricultural Extension Service beef cattle specialist, said. Recently, a delegation from Floyd County added another local brand to the county's oak panel. The brand, belonging to the Jerry Williams Ranch, northwest of Lockney, was placed on the Kleberg Center's "Branded Stairway" by Larry Williams. There are some 200,000 brands recorded in Texas and on file with the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association in Fort Worth. This is the state's most complete record. The "branding" was an idea of Dr. O.D. Butler, for many years head of Texas A&M's Animal Science Department and now associate vice president for agriculture and renewable resources. He said that not only are cattle brands a rich part of Texas livestock history but a prized possession of ranchers in identification of their cattle. "We felt that the branding ceremonies would bring about a closer tie-in between cattlemen and our animal science facilities on campus as well as with research and educational work throughout Texas," Butler said. Maddox said that branding ceremonies will be conducted by Extension district groups until "all panels are branded."

Cattlemen Association Tours Ranch

Teen Burleson hosted 50 members of the Oklahoma County Cattlemen's Association on a tour of the Burleson Ranch Tuesday. Burleson led the Oklahoma cattlemen to the north side of the ranch and through the foothill country to view his cattle operation. They were especially interested in the Spotted Hereford breed, which most had never seen before. The breed was started from a roan milk cow brought to the Silverton area about 1895 tied behind W.E. Burleson's wagon when he moved his family to a homestead from South Texas. Burleson started breeding cattle and as far as the family knows the Spotted Hereford breed of cattle started from that one old cow, according to Mollie Burleson, widow of W.W. Burleson.

"Down the line of Burlesons, Doc, W.E., (both deceased) and now Teen, they have bred them into very fine cattle," Mollie said. Other ranchers in this area have purchased some of the cattle and have begun their own herds. The group stopped at the Burleson home at Mott Creek Camp, an old Matador line camp, for a barbecue lunch catered by Walter Jones of Matador. From the Burleson Ranch the cattlemen left to tour the Pitchfork Ranch headquarters at Guthrie. They were to tour the Waggoner Ranch at Vernon the next day before returning to Oklahoma. The group has been making four-day tours similar to this one for 10 years. "The group was a nice bunch and we enjoyed having them as their guests, Mollie said.

ELECTRICITY FROM COAL...

It's good to know there's something we can depend on.

Almost all of us depend on electricity in our homes, factories, and offices to provide for more jobs... greater productivity... and a higher standard of living. Yes, electricity plays a big roll in the scientific and technological developments that make these things possible.

The constant striving for these innovative and advanced ideas and achievements of tomorrow means we will need more electricity. That's why Southwestern Public Service is continuing the building program of new electric generating plants that use coal as fuel. Because it's good to know there's something we can depend on.

Inflation Fighting NEWS OF Ideas Ideas PROGRESS

Four initials that could save you money are SEER. They stand for Seasonal Energy Efficiency Rating, a criteria established by the U.S. Dept. of Energy to designate how efficiently air conditioning products use energy.

What it all boils down to is this: the higher the SEER, the more effective the use of electricity; correspondingly, the lower the utility bill for a job well done.

When choosing an air conditioning unit, the SEER rating is as important to check as the BTU rating.

One air conditioner, Carrier's new two-ton Premium Round One, a central, residential air conditioning unit, has an SEER rating of 12.0, the highest yet announced by any manufacturer.

A key feature contributing to this high SEER is an extra-large, all-aluminum, wraparound condenser coil.

Other features include: simplified system controls; easy hatchback access for convenient installation and service; a high-efficiency, low-noise compressor; a two-speed automatically shifting fan; factory-installed, high- and low-pressure protection devices; a liquid refrigerant accumulator, and a heavy-duty, galvanized steel cabinet.

Whatever air conditioner you eventually get, however, you should be sure to see that its SEER is high.
