Traffic deaths set record

Texas traffic deaths for 1980 reached a record number for the fourth consecutive year, according to the Department of Public Safety. The count for last year shows 4,424 persons killed on Texas streets and highways, reflecting an increase of 4.6 per cent or 195 more deaths, said Colonel Jim Adams, DPS director.

"Exceeding the speed limit was considered as having caused 1,040 deaths or 23 per cent of the total fatalities," he said. "Additionally, reports by investigating officers throughout the state attributed 1,006 deaths to driving while intoxicated accidents. This figure would have been much higher if Texas law allowed police to obtain alcohol content levels from blood samples from all drivers involved in fatal accidents."

Adams also pointed out that in the rural areas, the fatalities involving DWI increased 17.7 per cent or 99 more deaths. "This reflected a significant change in the overall statistical picture," said Adams. He said no trends have been established at this point, but he says it is obvious that drunk driving was increasing in rural regions.

Total accidents reported by state and local police during 1980 were down by 3.5 per cent. Last year, 432,940 accidents were reported as compared to 448,814 during 1979.

The DPS said the lower accident rate was offset by an increase in fatalities due to the large car vs. small car mix. "This is a newly created phenomenon on the number of deaths reported as the statistics show the chances of a death are about 8 times greater in a sub-compact car than in a full-size car with which it collides," he said.

"Of all the fatalities, 57 per cent or 2,542 persons were killed in single vehicle accidents," Adams said. "Additionally, over half of the total fatalities were under the age of 29." Motorcycles deaths also climbed again. "Three hundred and seventy eight motorcycle deaths were reported which is an increase of over six per cent from the previous year. And 74 per cent of those killed were not wearing protective headgear," he said.

Pedestrian deaths also increased from 650 in 1979 to 723 last year.

Estimates show that the number of vehicles registered in the state last year was 10,500,000 (10-and-one-half million) and the total miles driven increased slightly to 103,255,000,000 (103-billion, 255 million).

Adams said he thinks that more people would have been killed had it not been for the 55 mph speed limit. "This is truly a life-saving law that has also reduced the severity of injuries and helped conserve fuel. If the speed limit was increased, drivers would increase their speed and the death rate would climb to an even higher level.

Floydada Festival

Saturday, May 16, Floydada hosted a Jr. High Festival in which sixteen bands competed.

Sixth grade band took sweepstakes again as also did the Jr. High Band in their category.

This week, however, it was the Jr. High Band which took the outstanding band of the festival honors.

Two Floydada Jr. High students were awarded outstanding soloist trophies. Laura Jordan on woodwind and Diana Wilson at piano won on their solos.

Holiday driving safety reminder

Memorial Day weekend marks the end of school and the beginning of summer vacation driving. Summer vacations increase the number of vehicles on our highways. The Texas Department of Public Safety says, "Countless lives are lost because of drivers' disregard for safety or the safety of others. Carelessness, speed and the driver account for a high percentage of traffic deaths."

The 55 MPH speed limit originally was instigated to conserve fuel, which it has done; but an ever greater asset has been the saving of lives and the reduction of serious injuries in traffic accidents. Increasing your speed from 45 MPH to 60 MPH doubles your probability of being killed if you are involved in an accident; going from 60 MPH to 70 MPH doubles it again. That little extra speed could cost you your life.

Recital this Sunday

Charles L. Record will present piano, organ, and guitar students in a recital Sunday, at 2 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church in Floydada. The public is invited.

Performing will be: Jennifer Fortenberry, Veronica Blanco, Erik Jensen, Teresa Leal, Donna Vernon, Heath and Wyman Rexrode, David John Clymer, Jovita Castro, Jimmy Gomez, Daniel Michael and Marjorie Ferguson.

Performing will be: Aimee Green, Jayson Lusk, Matt Mitchell, Lisa Phillip Glasson, Linda Stephan, Jenny Turbeville, and Chad Golden, and from Floydada: Billy Villareal, Tana Turner, Brenda Michael Potet, Kay Hale, and Kelby Sue.

Wilson addresses photographers

Lockney photographer Chuck Wilson, has just returned from Reno, Nevada where he spoke to the Western States Professional Photographers Convention. Over seven hundred attended his lecture and demonstration, and they learned many new techniques. Wilson's slide presentation and demonstration illustrated some of his techniques in portrait and commercial lighting, posing, effective ways to photograph small products, and quick ways to build backgrounds, tents for outdoor lighting, and reflectors. There was interest in the baby-poser he designed and has had manufactured. Wilson and Joyce Wilson entered several photographic art prints in the Art Association Show held at the Herral Fine Arts Complex in Floydada the past two weeks. Wilson's photograph, entitled "Open Season," was awarded the "Best of Show" cash award. The photograph, "Hamilton's Mill," was purchased by the First National Bank, and the photograph, "Lonely Winter Fog," was awarded third place in the photography division.

Gleason-Clark attend advertising seminar at Texas Tech University

Melissa Gleason and Carol Lea Clark of the Hesperian-Beacon staff took a seminar in advertising copy and layout design at Texas Tech recently.

The one-day class was sponsored by the Department of Mass Communications at Tech in Lubbock. The instructors were Jim Marra, lecturer at the Tech Department of Mass Communications and Norma Spies, advertising manager at the Perryton Herald in Perrytown, Texas.

The seminar featured a lecture by Marra in the strategy of advertising: matching the advertising and the consumer, and using the visual aspects of advertising copy and layout.

Norma Spies led a discussion of advertising design to fit the needs of the weekly newspaper advertiser, and presented a sample advertising problem for the seminar participants to solve.

"It was good to hear some journalism theory but also to hear what other weekly newspapers are doing in this part of Texas," said Clark of the seminar.

"My ads improved since the seminar," said Gleason. "I'm trying some new ideas."

Shelly Harris, publisher of the Floyd County Hesperian and the Lockney Beacon said, "Having Melissa and Carol attend the seminar at Texas Tech is part of our effort to equip our staff to better serve the needs of Floydada and Lockney."

Educational exhibits needed for Floyd County Fair

Teachers should keep in mind the educational exhibits at the Floyd County Fair, when discarding projects at the end of the school year, according to Reeda Cay Smith, chairman of the educational exhibits.

Educational exhibits may be entered in one of two divisions, adult clubs or organizations and youth clubs or organizations.

Prizes of $25, $15, and $10 dollars will be given in each division.

The Floyd County Fair is scheduled for Thursday, September 10 through Saturday, September 12.

Those interested in entering educational exhibits can contact Reeda Cay Smith at 652-2338.

Vacation tips

Vacations are made simpler through the use of credit cards because they eliminate the need for carrying cash. However, credit cards must be protected as if they are cash, because their loss can quickly signal the end of a vacation. The loss could add hundreds of dollars in fraudulent charges to credit card statements.

To guard against the loss or fraudulent use of credit cards, the Wards Credit Card Security Service suggests several tips to travelers.

*Don't carry all of your credit cards together.

*Don't leave your credit cards in a hotel room.

*Do keep your credit cards in a hotel safe when they are not being used.

*Keep your credit cards separate from your wallet.

*Women should carry credit cards in a purse with a secure closing and shoulder strap.

*Men should never carry credit cards in a back pocket.

*Make sure you sign only one transaction receipt with each purchase.

*Never sign a blank transaction receipt.

*Keep transaction slips and check them against your monthly statement.

*Know the names of all the companies that have issued your credit cards.

*Protect your credit cards through a credit card security service.

Rev. Michael O'Connor's Perspectives

Many events rocked us during the past week. The Pope was shot, several bombs were discovered in Kennedy International Airport, one of those exploded and killed a man. Another IRA hunger striker died and had his place taken up. A volcano rumbled in the Mariana Island group at the time when we remember the anniversary of Mt. St. Helens' eruption. War threatens the Middle East, and the New York Times tells us that the war may be in the dictator disposal business again.

For one thing, I am enjoying this life. I have a good family, good friends, and most importantly, a pretty good relationship with my God. I don't think that it is perfect, by any means, but I am having an exciting time coming to walk as a Christian, fusing with God about the state of the world, hearing Him fuss about the state of my own soul. Certainly, going to heaven would be nice, but it is nice right now, too.

The way the apostle Paul put it, "to live is Christ to die is gain." Essentially indicates that Christians cannot lose, living or dying. So what would be the response we offer to the present world situation? On the negative side, we must be careful to avoid the tendency to withdraw and wait for the end to come.

In the last century, some groups of people, thinking the world was about to end, got their white robes on and waited for it to happen. I have not seen anybody do that yet, but we can withdraw in other ways, trying to change things we dislike in the world, for instance.

On the positive side, the Church must continue to be the Church, taking care of the poor, freeing the oppressed, doing justice, seeking mercy; all of these things the prophets urged the people of Israel to do during times of crisis. Come to think of it, the situation now is pretty similar to those ancient times, only the names have been changed - to convict the guilty.

Terry Willson and Georgia Finley

One building, many lives

BY TERRY WILLSON

The gray brick building at 101 Main St. has housed a variety of businesses in the past 75 years. A bank, a land office and a lawyer's office have all existed in the corner building.

W.J. Montgomery, Floyd County Pioneer, purchased three lots in 1909 on the corner of Main and Missouri streets. He established the First State Bank. A room-size vault was installed in the center of the building.

A.B. Martin purchased the bank building from Montgomery in 1924. Martin leased it to a new bank, the Floyd County National Bank in 1925. A second vault was installed. The two vaults remain intact.

The Floyd County National Bank closed in 1934. Mae Garrett, a ten-year employee of the bank, said, "Our bank was too liberal about loaning money, so free with it that a group of bank examiners closed the doors."

Garrett said the bank was popular with farmers as well as merchants because the availability of loans appealed to poor workers.

Garrett said the northwest corner of the square was busy because the post office and O.P. Rutledge's hardware store were next door to the bank.

Claude Hall, in "An Early History of Floyd County," said, "The Floyd County National Bank was one of the first banks on the Staked Plains between the Texas and Pacific Railway on the south and Fort Worth and Denver City on the north."

The bank's original ledger is on display in the Floyd County Historical Museum.

Martin sold the building to E.T. Williamson in 1936. During Williamson's ownership, the building housed an insurance agency and a land office.

The building remained vacant for several years in the late 1950s. In 1962, John Stapleton, an attorney, purchased the building. He established his practice there until he sold it to George Miller in 1973. Miller, district attorney, sold the building to John R. Hollums in 1976 when Hollums became the district attorney.

Some of the results of America's advancing science, technology, and economics are longer life, greater freedom from infirmity and illness, a higher level of living, and more time free from the tasks of making a living or maintaining a home.

As a consequence, there is greater opportunity for more people to retire early and have a longer life after retirement from work careers. Older persons and retirees now represent 12 percent of the population and this proportion is expected to rise for several more years.

The average retiree lives on about one-half his prior income. Many live with relatives. They no longer have the routine of the work week to organize their life. There is a new way of life. It is important to recognize these changes in life style and to prepare for them.

Planning for retirement is just as important as planning a career. In fact, one is planning a retirement career of sorts. A person should plan his retirement several years in advance so that the transition will be smooth with no unpleasant "surprises" down the road.

There are many sources to be used in planning a retirement career. One of these may be found at your employer. Most companies have counselors to assist employees; many even have pre-retirement packets that are quite helpful. Most of these stress pensions, health care, and social security.

In planning retirement, a worker can feel secure in one aspect of retirement; the timely payment of his social security retirement check. Unlike private pensions, social security is both tax-free and inflation-proof.

In fact, due to the cost of living increase in the last year, a 11.2% increase in social security checks will be in the July 3 check for most beneficiaries.

Self-employed workers and others who are eligible for individual retirement accounts usually will have an accountant or banker assist them in planning retirement. These workers need to project their financial needs for retirement into the future. They will also need to review their plans timely as inflation and the cost of living rises.

Another source of assistance for planning retirement is your life insurance agent. Many workers have several sources of retirement income. This is the objective all workers should strive to attain. Social security is a base for retirement; it does not replace a worker's earnings nor was it ever intended to do so. Normally, it replaces from 30% to 55% of pre-retirement income.

Of course, the basic source of information for retirees is the local social security office. We have many pamphlets in addition to the usual counseling and other information we furnish. Our services are also free of charge.

Remember, it is never too soon to plan your retirement.

Congressman

Charles W. Stenholm

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The House Agriculture Committee is in the midst of formulating American farm policy, through the Omnibus Farm Bill, that will set this country's food and fiber policy for the next four years.

This work is being done during a period of the most austere budgetary restraints for decades and in analyzing the budgetary cuts, there will be very few areas of our society that will face cuts as severe as agriculture. If the program is successful, however, farmers and ranchers will be among the greatest beneficiaries. While inflation and high interest rates have seriously affected all Americans, the agricultural industry, with its heavy dependence on energy and operating credit, has been especially hard hit.

It is still too early in the legislative process to accurately predict the outcome or the final form the Farm Bill will take, but I have noted a shift in concepts that make up the backbone of any farm program that cannot be ignored.

The days of direct payments to farmers are over, in my opinion. Farmers themselves are among the first to realize this and to make it clear that they do not want direct payments, but only to receive a fair price out of the market. The only effective marketing tool we have to get this price is a more realistic loan level.

I have proposed amendments that would increase the present loan rate to a more liveable level: $4.25 for wheat, a reserve entry rate of $4.70 per bushel and a set-aside trigger of at least 10 percent when a 900 million bushel carryover is reached.

These amendments have been made with the recognition that if we do set the loan rate at a higher level, there must be a mandatory set-aside, with only those producers who choose to participate in the program protected and only those producers affected. That option must remain open.

Many producers remain committed to the target price concept in operation under present farm legislation. That target price concept works fine — with one exception. We seem to have maintained the net price of wheat, for instance, considerably below the cost of production under that system. If the target price system is working well for the producer, then why are all of the producer organizations complaining about the fact that the net price of wheat is below the cost of production? I say quite honestly that what we have been doing is totally inadequate for the producer's welfare. Therefore, I can't see maintaining the target price system. As a wheat grower myself, I'm much more interested in seeing that the market price moves up to a profitable level on the wheat I produce for which there is a market than I am in maintaining a system that hasn't worked.

I think we now have a golden opportunity to implement some farm programs that will truly get farm commodities above the cost of production. There must be, however, an agreement that there are better ways to run farm programs and, at the present, we don't have that consensus. Once the hard realities of the budget impact become known, however, I think we will begin to see the solidity of the agricultural community behind that consensus.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS

The framers of our Constitution created a new system of government they called federalism. Simply stated, this new concept provided for a strong national government to do those things that only such a government can do — defend our shores, deliver the mail, regulate currency and other truly national functions.

But while the powers of this national government were considerable in its area of responsibility, all other powers were left to the states. Thus, the states, and in turn still more local jurisdictions, were responsible and sovereign in those areas which were more appropriately handled at that level.

Not only was this revolutionary, but also it worked. We Americans have enjoyed the benefits of a unified national government while preserving the maximum amount of autonomy to run our own affairs at the level closest to us.

But over the past half century, the federal government has slowly encroached upon powers intended for lower levels of government. It wasn't an insidious plot. Well-intentioned people saw needs and misguidedly thought only a federal law or regulation could meet them. The only problem was that often a national program failed to meet the needs of individual states or citizens because national rules don't allow for differences in local needs. As money became more centralized through federal taxes to pay for federal programs, more and more things were turned over to the national government — a classic vicious cycle.

The Reagan Administration has developed a plan to systematically reverse this trend, to restore federalism in its true meaning.

With the reams and reams of laws and regulations involved, it could take years to accomplish the process if only a hit or miss system was available. So the Administration has created two groups — the Coordinating Task Force on Federalism and the Presidential Advisory Committee on Federalism. The Task Force is comprised of the highest level presidential advisors and cabinet members. The Advisory Committee is composed of governors, state legislators, mayors, county officials, U.S. Senators and Representatives and private citizens. Both are chaired by Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada.

These people will be in a unique position to review current laws and regulations, draft proposals for new legislation and executive orders and help see that necessary actions are taken in timely fashion.

As President Reagan has said, too often the federal government has treated "elected state and local officials as if they were nothing more than administrative agents for federal authority."

Working out ways to reverse the trend, without loss of vital services and without returning responsibilities but not revenue sources, is a task little short of Herculean. But I am convinced it can be done. The Administration is committed to it. The present Congress will, I believe, be largely receptive, state and local governments want to serve their own people, and the citizenry wants the federal government off its back.

With concerted effort, perhaps we can celebrate the Constitution's 200th anniversary this decade with a true rebirth of the federalist system it invented.

Margie Savage's My Savage World

One of my favorite adventures is going to garage sales. It's fun to go into the dark recesses of an open garage and poke around in the boxes, racks, and bends of exotic treasures. Besides being fun, it can be profitable.

Once I obtained an antique, sterling silver tea pot for a mere pittance. So what if it doesn't have a spout? When turned against the wall, it looks lovely in my garage-sale hutch.

Once I found a perfectly good bike. It was perfectly good, after my husband spent two hours of his time and $20 of my money replacing the clapped tires, oiling the brakes, and blowing the dirt out of the steering.

My house and closet have practically been furnished with garage-sale treasures. As any bargain-hunter knows, you have to be there early if you intend to find any good buys. So early one morning, I donned my fencing gear (protection is vital for survival) and jogged over to the nearest garage sale.

There were already several people milling around, filling their arms with clothes, coffee pots, and dishes. I noticed this was a new garage-sale-giver.

You can always tell a veteran-garage-sale-giver from a beginner. A veteran has her merchandise well organized, the prices clearly tagged with masking tape bearing the seller's initials. The veteran can quickly rip the tape from the item and retape it into a book with blank pages. At the end of the day, the giver and the seller know how to divide the profits. A veteran always has a calculator and plenty of change.

A beginner not only has no calculator, she has no pencil, no paper, and no change.

The lady giver at this garage sale was obviously a beginner. She had no shoes. Not even house shoes. Her feet were completely bare.

This made me immediately look around for shoes for sale. Maybe the poor woman had to sell her very own shoes. There were no shoes anywhere. The poor woman must need the money to buy herself some shoes.

Although she had no shoes, the woman had dignity. She was neatly dressed in a pleated skirt and a freshly starched blouse. Her hair was neatly combed. Sometimes you can catch even a veteran with tousled hair as she comes out in her bathrobe.

I had no chance to speak to her. She was very busy looking for a pencil and some paper so that she might add up the dozen or so items that her customers were ready to buy.

I heard someone whisper, "Mrs. Jones is having her garage sale today, just around the corner."

I adjusted my head gear. I had to hurry or I would be late. Yes, indeed, garage sales are fun, exciting, and suspenseful.

I wonder what size shoe Mrs. Jones wears?

position the rack so it divides the oven in half. If you're going to be using two racks, then divide the oven into thirds. This simple little practice will insure proper oven ventilation and prevent prolonged cooking times.

Always try to use the recommended baking utensils in the oven. The size and shape of baking pans control not only the volume but the texture of foods. Fewer spill-overs -- and therefore fewer oven cleanings -- will occur when the right sized pan is used. Remember also, when using glass or porcelain enamel baking utensils, the oven temperature can be lowered 25 degrees. In the same vein, with porcelain enamel roaster pans where meats will be cooked for long periods, the temperature may be lowered by as much as 50 degrees. Your own trial and error can determine the best oven setting for you.

When the oven is used to capacity, it utilizes energy more efficiently than cooking on top of the range. So you save energy by doubling or tripling oven recipes. You can always freeze the surplus; but here again its wiser energy utilization to do your freezing after eight at night when the power demand is low.

If you have a self-cleaning oven, plan to use this marvelous feature either (1) in the "off-peak" period (8 p.m. to 8 a.m.) or (2) immediately after you've used the oven so you can capitalize on the retained heat. If you are the oven cleaner, plan to do the cleaning after you've had occasion to use the oven -- again to capitalize on the retained heat. Since most commercial cleaners work best in a warm oven, instead of "heating up" to apply them, try "cooling down" to the right application temperature (which, incidentally shouldn't be more than 200 degrees.) The pennies saved will add up over the years.

Lockney Care Center news

Nursing home week is celebrated

BY VICKIE HUTTON

There was much activity filled with excitement last week. Monday was Crazy Day and I mean CRAZY. We had everything from a baseball player to October's pin up girl to a couple of hobos. We got a lot of strange looks from some of our visitors until they found out it was crazy day.

One visitor walked into the home; saw everyone; turned around to leave when it dawned on her what was going on. I guess she thought we had all gone bonkers.

Tuesday was picture day. It was fun trying to figure out who was in the pictures. Bill Holt brought two pictures to me of him and his girlfriend. When I told him he was supposed to burn pictures of old girlfriends when he got married, he said "I don't know how my wife missed these two she burned all the others I had."

Thursday was filled with much competitiveness when Crosbyton Care Center came to visit and play games such as basketball toss and quarter toss. Winners in the basketball toss were: first place, Sherman Brashear, of Lockney; second place, Paul Ovalle of Crosbyton; third place, Juan Rubalcado of Crosbyton.

Winners in the quarter toss were: first place, Robert Reynolds of Crosbyton; second place, Curtis Johnson of Crosbyton; third place, Juan Rubalcado of Crosbyton. During the basketball toss Mrs. Brashear warned Mr. Brashear that he better not beat her or she was going to smack him. I don't think she scared him because he was our first place winner. She was very proud of him.

Friday was hat day. We had hats of all sizes and shapes. Thomas Jones decided he wanted to wear Joe Castro's hat until he realized that it was a king size Dallas Cowboy hat.

Those taking part in our domino tournament were Bill Holt, Alpha Kitchens, Albert Poole, Nellie Gray, Lewis Roberts, Vera Rogers, Joe Castro, Lupe Rodriguez, Mamie Wofford, Richard Lanham, Myrtle Payne, Anna Zubia, Alma McDonald, Nell Ferguson, and Sally Carpenter.

Players going into semi-finals were Alpha Kitchens, Vera Rogers, Joe Castro, Lewis Roberts, Bill Holt, Albert Poole, Nellie Gray, and Mamie Wofford.

Players going into the finals were

Vera Rogers, Lewis Roberts, Alpha Kitchens, and Joe Castro. Our domino champs were Alpha Kitchens and Joe Castro. They both received trophies and congratulations from all.

We had the privilege of having some great musicians with us Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Tuesday night John Francis, Clifton and Joy Stoghill, Jim and Bernie Brown all of Silvertown.

Thursday night the Hester family of Silvertown entertained us. We had an old fashioned ho-down both nights.

We received a special treat Thursday night when the Hesters added one extra member to their group, grandfather Donnie Hester. He sure was a great addition and it warmed our hearts to see the love and warmth in that family.

Our Mexican luncheon Wednesday went great. We thank everyone who came and bought tickets.

Also we thank Estella Castro, Food Service Supervisor, and all her wonderful cooks and all the nurses aides who came in on their days off to help with the luncheon. We raised $464.75 with the luncheon. All proceeds will go to the Charles Thomason Love Fund.

Our open house was a great success. We thank Mayor and Mrs. J.D. Copeland and the other members of the community for attending.

Also thanks goes to Gary Brown of Dallas, Rita Mullins of Tulia, Vicki Griffin of Crosbyton, Dan Wylie, administrator Care Inn of Plainview, and Billie Kent, activity director Care Inn of Plainview for taking time out of their busy schedules to attend.

We welcome community involvement and encourage everyone to come and visit.

LAVERN CHRISTIAN, standing, was hostess Sunday as resident from throughout the area attended the Lockney Care Center's open house. The open house marked the end of nursing home week.

LOCKNEY CARE CENTER RESIDENT ALPHA KITCHENS and maintenance man Joe Castro were the winners in the center's domino tournament. The tourney was part of the center's celebration of Nursing Home Week.

Lockney Auxiliary dinner

THE LOCKNEY GENERAL HOSPITAL AUXILIARY held a spaghetti dinner at the High School Cafeteria. The purpose of the dinner was to raise funds for the purchase of hospital equipment.

Lakeview News

A community look back at years gone by

BY JOYCE WILLIAMS

This week the Lakeview News took a look at other years, via the files of old Hesperians in the Museum.

February, 1914 — Since the war began in Europe last August, investments have been interrupted and building temporarily interfered with. As a result many mechanics have been out of work and building materials are cheaper than in normal times. Residences that cost $4700 ordinarily may now be built for $3900 of good Georgia lumber.

Pictures of "Floyd County Mortgage Lifters" include: sheep raising, an industry practiced by 15 farmers in Floyd County; a field where 75 car loads of threshed maize were sold at $1.30 per hundred; a remuda of mules drew buyers from portions of southwest Floyd County annually as carloads of the finest mules are raised here every year; and a picture of a pen of cattle with a sun bonneted woman putting out feed for the herd.

Other agriculture news was the Ft. Worth hog market had topped out for the year at $8.90 cwt. and cattle sales were brisk, averaging a little more than $5 a hundred pounds.

In March 12, 1914 — Blanco Community reported "The Candy Breaking at Mr. Grigsby's Saturday night was just fine and all had a good time."

C.D. Thatcher's baby got hold of some coal oil today and is very sick at present.

In Floydada people were talking about "Second Monday", as the biggest crowd in town since the fall trade was at its rush. Auctioneer Huskey covered himself with glory by his manner of selling. Much trading and trafficking among line stock dealers as well as in the merchantile line, was done. Mr. Marshall's "Chicken Day" helped swell the crowds, as he advertised to pay 10 1/2 cents for hens and fryers, the week before, warning growers to not feed chickens on day of sale, and hens with full crops would be docked one cent per pound. He bought a carload of chickens, and no doubt the farm families re-circulated the cash around Floydada stores.

Commissioners Court was buying rabbit scalps at a bounty of five cents per head, on each Tuesday. David L. Yandell had brought in 88 of the 200 scalps brought in the previous Tuesday. Fourteen wolf pelts were counted from the Trambidge precinct, at one dollar a pelt, three-fourths of which was paid for out of the State of Texas treasury.

The Odd Fellows lodge was urging members to attend the Grand Lodge in Ft. Worth on the special excursion train, round trip ticket priced at $13.10.

Over in Plainview 60 homeseekers had arrived at the train the day before on a semi-monthly train trip from Kansas, looking for land to buy. J.J. Rushing brought in land buyers from the north.

Tenant farmers had appealed to Washington and the Farmers Union was asking for laws to protect the renters. "For the past ten years more farmers have lost their homes than in any previous decade in the history of the nation." Annual sales of farms was $516, and cost of operating a farm is placed at $340, which leaves the farmer $176 to live on and educate his family. If he's a tenant farmer, he pays one-third rent, and building maintenance, etc. which leaves the man who follows the plow with $92 a year to clothe his family, buy groceries and educate his children, if the weather holds good. There are 220,000 helpless tenant farmers driven like dumb brutes into the basement of civilization by the lack of peasantry.

Society News, March 1914 — Mrs. Homer Steen entertained Friday evening with a rook party, three tables being arranged for the games. The guests were: Mesdames Hughes, Farris, Jenkins, Glad Snodgrass, C.C. Darsey, Triplett, L.O. Shropshire, McKinnon, G.V. Smith, and A.C. Hatchell of Plainview, Misses Bernice Henry, Dulce Gibson, Ola Taffinder of Texico, and McKinnon. After the games, a light luncheon of egg and olive sandwiches, pickles, olives, marshmallow salad, fried cakes and coffee was served.

1914 — According to the Crosbyton Review, construction work has begun on the Crosby County Courthouse, which will be fireproof throughout and a credit to the county.

Clay Dunlap of Petersburg was in Floydada Second Monday dealing in livestock. Col. Thomas Montgomery, John Farris, J.F. McCarty were attending the Stockmen's Association in session in Ft. Worth.

Dr. A.C. Traveek of Matador was in Floydada Saturday afternoon, meeting Miss Mattie Johnson at the train station. She had been attending Normal School in Canyon.

Dr. Green called Friday morning to say the town of Roaring Springs was clear of small pox. Not a single case is to be found anywhere. This has been a very lighter form of small pox and no one was ever put in the past house.

Also news from Roaring Springs, March 1914, is the Q.A.&P. will begin their extension about the first of May, only waiting for warm weather.

Mr. Frank Probasco and Miss Lizzie Freeman were married last Sunday at the residence of Rev. H.E. Smith in the south part of town. Miss Freeman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Freeman of Center Community, the groom is a well-known young man of the eastern part of the county, the son of George Probasco.

G.A. Linder announces for re-election as County surveyor, having as experience been chief engineer on the Matador Northern Railway from Q.A. and P to Matador in Motley County, special surveyor for the general land office in the northeast brakes country.

March 19, 1914 — Hale Center brought a play, "The Moonshiner's Daughter", with a cast of home talent to the Floydada Public school auditorium last Thursday night. Some of the parts were poorly played, and some were exceptionally well carried out.

The Bachelor Boys Commercial Club, secretary, E.H. Foster, of Lockney, is offering a prize of a $25 suit of clothes in Lockney as first prize, $5 pair of shoes as second for the best average yield of any crop raised in the county.

L.T. Lester, of Canyon City, who was for many years one of the principal stockholders and a director in the First National Bank of Floydada, completed transfer of his stock to Thomas Montgomery of Mt. Blanco, and George T. Moore of Kansas City. Montgomery was elected to succeed Lester as a director in the bank.

The new director is one of the largest cattle raisers and ranch holders in this section of the state, while Mr. Moore, whose principal interests are in Kansas City, is also largely interested in Floydada and the county. He was formerly owner of the old "F" ranch.

The change is considered an increase in the financial prestige of the institution, which is the oldest banking house in the county.

Miss Kate Butler was home from Plainview over Saturday and Sunday visiting with home folks.

March 26, 1914 — H.C. Teague vs. the Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone Company was tried in District court here Wednesday and Thursday. The suit was for $2,500 damage on the alleged failure of the dependant company to answer a telephone call last July to summon a physician to attend the bedside of the plaintiff's sick child. The jury rendered a verdict giving plaintiff $600. (I'll bet central answered when the phone was cranked after that J.W.)

At last in the 1920's a Lakeview column was started.

May 27, 1920 — On account of the rain Sunday morning, our program was postponed until Monday night. Supt. Claud V. Hall made an able address. The school children presented a program on "Texas" on Tuesday night.

REMEMBER your loved ones with a living memorial to the Caprock Hospital Auxiliary Memorial Fund. Mrs. Ben Whitaker, Treasurer.

REMEMBER your loved ones and friends with a memorial to Lockney General Hospital Memorial Fund. These memorials go toward equipment to help serve our community in the best way possible.

Bentsen intro business bill

(Washington.) — Senator Lloyd Bentsen has introduced the Small Business Investment Act of 1981, a $6.6 billion package of tax cuts targeted at small businesses.

Bentsen, second ranking Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee, said he will seek broad bipartisan support for the measure within the committee.

"Small business is the strong right arm of our economic system in the U.S. and we must take steps to insure that it remains strong. This program, which will reduce taxes paid by small businesses by $6.6 billion in fiscal 1982, is one important step that we can take," Bentsen said in remarks accompanying his legislation.

"Forty-three percent of this country's Gross National Product — almost half of all the goods and services produced in the U.S. — are produced by small business. Fifty-eight percent of all the jobs in private enterprise in this country are provided by small business."

"Yet small businesses, all too frequently, are starved for capital funds. Only 27 percent of U.S. corporate assets are controlled by small and medium-size businesses."

There are nine components in Bentsen's bill, some of which have been introduced as individual bills earlier this year. Among other things the Bentsen bill would:

- increase the corporate surtax exemption from $100,000

Diet tips for bikini wear

That bikini in the store window would look so good if it weren't for this roll here and that lumpiness there...

A bathing suit and bulges is like a chocolate cake with chicken gravy. Unappetizing. There's just no way that flab and good looks can go together. Yet it's nearly time to put on our swimsuits and bravely parade our winter-white, slightly over-padded selves along the beach and beside the pool. But millions of Americans, determined to look more glamorous, will torture themselves with all sorts of crazy, illogical diets — from periodic starvation to eating only grapefruit or hot dogs and bananas — in the attempt to lose those extra pounds. Moderation, not starvation, is the key to losing weight and staying healthy, says the Texas Medical Association.

In most cases crash diets lead only to bad nutrition and even vitamin deficiencies. Merely taking vitamin pills won't stop you from developing dangerous vitamin and mineral deficiencies while on a crash diet. Some vitamins must be eaten naturally in food to be effective, and others must be taken in

Carol Lea Clark's

It's Not Easy

Sometimes you can tell exactly what my daughter had for her last meal by the various smears on her shirt.

Pale green for peas, bright red for ketchup, yellow for creamed corn, and blue for grape jelly.

Even if I didn't know, I could sometimes tell you where she has been playing by the colors on her pants: dark brown smears on the knees from wrestling with the dog in the back yard after a rain, light brown all over her pants from the sandbox, or multicolor sploches from unauthorized use of the magic markers in my desk.

One of these days I am going to make a million dollars by designing a chic but practical new fabric for childrens clothes. It would closely resemble camouflage but be color coordinated for all the events in a child's life that are likely to leave marks on their clothes.

A fabric with little sploches of red, yellow, green and blue mixed in with streaks of brown on a beige background would solve many problems in a mother's life.

Now I have to make do with solid red, yellow, and blue clothes for my daughter.

An occasional dog or cat embroiled neck. They are not to be blended with the ketchup on the hot dog.

I know some children remain spotless throughout the day. Those must be designers have in mind those cute little ruffles.

My little two-year-old fine in one of those about two hours on the you don't let her eat that is beyond hope she will have to peel the slip of Koolaid from a little around the edges.

All the bibs in the ward off all the stray marks on a machine.

I'm not saying I want my child wear jelly on paw prints on her clothes would just be nice if she so much until I can change.

Giving blood is giving the gift of life

LEA CLARK begins the donation process by completing necessary forms with Deborah Riley, technician for South Plains Blood Services.

CLARK COMPLETES THE PRELIMINARY TESTS for donating blood as she has her blood pressure taken by Deanna Pintirsch, technician.

The importance of being volunteer blood donor

BY PATRICK CLARK

Giving blood is giving the gift of life. Millions of people are living today who many people realize the importance of being a volunteer blood donor.

South Plains Blood Service, which regularly visits Lockney and Dalhart, is a non-profit, Lubbock-based organization. It sells the blood to hospitals at its costs.

South Plains sends out two or three mobile collection crews each week to get blood. The organization covers a metropolitan area of a 100 mile radius around Lubbock and stretching into eastern Texas.

South Plains' collection supervisor, Barbara Wright, said the organization needs to take in 80 units of blood each day to keep pace with demand. Unfortunately, Mrs. Wright said, donors don't take in nearly enough to maintain a really safe margin of supply. She said, is the worst time of year for blood collection.

Most of people are on vacation and out of town," during the summer Mrs. Wright said, and miss the visits by the collection crews.

The holiday period around Christmas, Mrs. Wright said, is the second worst time of the year because people are "busy doing too many things," and they over look the need to give blood.

Most blood, Mrs. Wright said, is used for transfusions during surgery. For instance, open heart surgery will require six to eight units of blood.

Less blood is used for emergencies, such as accident victims, Mrs. Wright said, but the amounts needed in most emergency situations are usually larger than in non-emergency cases.

Surprisingly, the most common blood type, O-positive, is the one South Plains has the hardest time keeping in supply.

"It's the most common type, and we need so much of it. People with the rarer types," Mrs. Wright said, "are more aware of the need and they come in."

But, response in general, Mrs. Wright said, is good.

"Our donors," Mrs. Wright said, "are great. But we need more people to be involved and aware of the need."

CLARK BEGINS the actual donation of blood.

Carol Clark tells it from the donor's standpoint

BY CAROL LEA CLARK

I've always been a little uneasy about giving blood, although I'm not quite sure why.

Certainly, I would be the first to admit that donating blood to meet the needs of hospital patients is a worthwhile thing to do, but I've always managed to find excuses not to give.

This time I didn't have much choice, since my husband not only volunteered me but promised to record the experience in pictures for the newspaper.

I entered the Lockney General Hospital waiting room where South Plains Blood Services was set up to receive blood donations.

First I was asked a number of questions by Donor Technician Debora Riley, such as whether I had ever had hepatitis or other diseases that might be transmitted through the blood. I hadn't.

She also asked my telephone number and address. I could remember the address but had a little trouble with the telephone number. I was just a little nervous. She didn't seem to mind, and patiently explained the procedure for donating blood.

Debora pricked my finger and took a sample of blood to check the iron level in my blood, which was probably the most painful moment of the whole proceedings.

She then took my blood pressure, pulse, temperature, and pronounced me healthy.

I was ready.

Another young woman working for South Plains Blood Services, Deanna Pintirsch, led me into a room furnished with what looked like four comfortable lawn chairs.

I reclined on one of the chairs. Deanna checked my arm for a good blood vein, told me to look the other way, and inserted the needle.

It did hurt, but only for a couple of seconds.

Surprisingly, it took only about five minutes for my blood to fill a little plastic bag holding slightly less than a pint. It really didn't hurt at all once the needle was in place.

After the little bag was filled, Deanna removed the needle, and had me press a piece of alcohol soaked cotton over the needle mark and hold my arm over my head for a couple of minutes to stop the bleeding.

Deanna gave me a glass of lemonade and offered me cookies as I rested for about ten minutes after giving blood, since some people feel a little weak afterwards. I really didn't feel weak but I did as I was told just to be on the safe side.

I watched as Deanna sealed the bag containing my blood and stored it in an ice chest.

She explained that it would be processed when they got back to their office in Lubbock and would be used within 35 days.

Looking at that little plastic bag I really began to realize that someone would really benefit from my donation in a very personal way, although I would never know who.

It may not be a big thing to give blood, but if people didn't give then other people might not live.

After the ten minutes were over I gathered my things, thanked Deanna and Debora, and left still feeling a little uneasy but better because I knew my blood would help someone, somewhere.

TECHNICIAN REMOVES THE EQUIPMENT from Clark's arm while Amber Clark looks on.

CLARK AND AMBER relax with a cup of orange juice after giving blood.

A NEW SHOWCASE of antique handwork and memorabilia will be on display Saturday at the museum.

BEST TOMATOES EVER

To many of us, gardening simply means growing tomatoes. A few tomato plants in the backyard garden can be a fascinating and rewarding adventure or they can be a disaster. Sickly tomato plants which produce few, if any fruit, certainly do not help the gardening spirit. Some simple advice might help those growing tomatoes for the first time and perhaps even increase yields and satisfaction for you experienced gardeners.

First, you should not attempt to grow tomatoes unless they can be placed in an area that receives sunlight at least six hours a day. They will grow with less light but simply will not produce much of a crop if placed between tall shrubs, beneath trees or between buildings.

Secondly, soil that has been well prepared and properly fertilized is essential for good growth and high yields. Poor soils can be improved with liberal amounts of organic matter and proper fertilization. A dark, heavy clay or even a fine sand can be improved by working 3 to 4 inches of organic matter and a small amount of fertilizer such as 10-20-10 or 12-24-12 into the area where your tomatoes are to be planted.

Transplanting guidelines discussed earlier certainly apply for tomatoes. Something that you should do is use a starter solution when planting tomatoes to insure adequate fertility during early stages of growth. Starter solutions can be purchased at local garden centers or they can be made at home by mixing one or two level tablespoonfuls of a complete fertilizer in a gallon of water. Pour about a cup or so of the starter solution into the transplant hole prior to planting.

For best results set transplants in your garden on cloudy days or late in the afternoon. Space plants at least 3 feet apart in the row and 3 to 4 feet apart between rows. Protect plants from adverse conditions such as high wind and excessive heat for a week or so after transplanting.

recommended. To provide support, cut off the bottom ring of the cage so the ends can be pushed into the ground. You may want to support cages with wooden or metal stakes to keep them from falling over later in the season. The great thing about caging is that plants are allowed to grow naturally within cages. No pruning or suckering of plants is necessary.

Plastic bags can be used to protect caged plants from frosts or light freezes.

Another advantage of cages is that they can be used to protect plants from cold temperatures or high winds. If the weather looks bad, take a plastic trashbag and put it over the cage. For a greenhouse effect, use a light-colored bag. The top of the bag can be closed in case of a late cold snap. When good weather occurs, remove the bag.

You might also try using the "pot method" of fertilizing your tomatoes. Bury a planting pot, coffee can or similar container between each plant. (See accompanying drawing.) Make sure the lip of the pot or container is above ground and that it will drain well. This may mean punching holes in the bottom or side of the container. As soon as you can find the first small tomatoes, apply one level tablespoonful of garden fertilizer in each container and fill it with water. Allow the water to drain and fill with water again. Apply fertilizer about once every 7-10 days. This will supply the plant with sufficient fertility to maintain good fruit size and high yields throughout the harvest season.

Since this is a method of fertilizing tomatoes and not watering them you still need to water as required during the season.

This method of growing tomatoes also works well for peppers and eggplants. It may sound like a lot of trouble, but I suggest you give it a try this spring. You may grow tomatoes like you've never grown them before.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Cages used for support are an ideal way to grow tomatoes.

Stake, trellis or cage all tomato varieties for best results. I recommend using cages to support plants. Cages are nothing more than cylinders of concrete reinforcing wire, hog wire or similar material used to support plants and deep fruit off the ground. Make the cylinders 18 to 20 inches in diameter and from 2 1/2 to 5 feet tall. Concrete reinforcement wire is readily available and is generally considered best for tomato cages. It usually comes in 5-foot widths, and a 5 1/2-foot length will make a tomato cage about 18 inches in diameter. The cage can be held together by bending or crimping the wire ends around one of the vertical wires.

Place cages over plants shortly after transplanting. One plant per cage is

The "pot method" of fertilizing tomatoes results in high yields of large fruit.

THE USE OF STARTER SOLUTION will encourage good, early growth of transplants.

Demand for oilseed crops expected to increase

(COLLEGE STATION) — Looking at this year's production and marketing of oilseed crops such as soybeans, sunflowers and peanuts, it's a muddled picture.

"The 1981 marketing season for oilseed crops will depend heavily on weather conditions, and prices will likely be erratic," points out Johnny Feagan, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "Prices will likely move up or down due to rumors rather than fact."

World production of oilseed crops is projected to be down slightly this year. At the same time world demand is expected to be up about 4 percent over last year. This demand could increase even more depending on conditions in Western Europe and the Soviet Union. Although world demand is up some, U.S. exports of oilseed products have suffered during the past year, says the economist. The value of all oilseed products exported during 1980-81 is expected to be down about 10 percent.

As far as U.S. production is concerned, Feagan sees the 1981 soybean crop at some 70 million acres, down about 4 percent from last year. Poor domestic demand and about a 27 percent reduction in exports have pushed prices down to near the $7 per bushel level.

Soybean oil is at a record high level in the U.S. due to sluggish foreign demand. This is slowing domestic crushing. U.S. soybean inventories should total about 275 million bushels at

VEGETABLE BLOOMS DROPPING

Before long blooms will be dropping from squash, cucumbers and tomatoes in many home gardens.

On squash and cucumbers, male flowers which produce pollen are separate from female flowers which produce fruit. To complicate matters even more, male and female flowers may not be open on the plant at the same time. If this happens, flowers will fall off due to lack of pollination. Usually male blooms will appear first on squash and cucumber plants. Male blooms are attached to the plant by a green stem while each female bloom has a small squash or cucumber attached directly behind the petals. Female squash and cucumber blooms falling off early in a plant's life when male blooms are not present is normal. However, when female and male blooms are both present and female blooms continue to fall off, then there's a pollination problem.

Pollination means the transfer of male parts to female parts. This task usually is accomplished by bees or insects visiting the flowers. Blooms of squash and cucumber plants are only open for one day. If pollination does not occur during this period when the bloom is open due to a lack of pollinating insects, then inadequate pollination occurs and fruit drop follows. If pollination is a problem, you can hand-pollinate the blooms. This involves pulling off a male bloom and rubbing or dabbing it on the female bloom. The

Spring is the time for termites to swarm

Spring is the time for insects to swarm, warns Paul Treptow, Floyd County extension agent for entomology. Perhaps nothing is more alarming than for homeowners to suddenly find hundreds or thousands of small winged insects flying around outdoors, particularly around night lights. What is worse is to find these termite swarms indoors, almost always, indicating an infestation somewhere in the house, Treptow said.

Swarming is a naturally occurring phenomena for termites; it's the way well-established colonies extend and perpetuate their own kind. Termites swarm outdoors regularly in the spring, with swarms coming from dead trees, fallen logs, fences and outbuildings, according to Treptow.

When swarms are found indoors, homeowners should take a calm, reasonable approach to solving the problem.

American vegetable consumption changing

Along with weather, insects and other problems, farmers must also consider consumer demand. That's certainly the case with vegetables.

"It's important for farmers to keep up with the ever-changing trends in consumption of individual vegetables," says Tom Longbrake, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Of the total amount of vegetables purchased from 1977-1979, 45.5 percent were fresh, 44.8 percent canned and 9.7 percent frozen, Longbrake explains. This compares to the 1947-1949 average of 60.3 percent fresh, 36.4 percent canned and 3.3 percent frozen.

The average American consumed 226 pounds of vegetables per year in 1977-1979, up from 198 pounds in 1947-1949, Longbrake says.

An increase in consumption of certain vegetables is balanced by a decrease in others.

However, watermelon consumption has declined 26 percent since 1940, Longbrake notes, while cantaloupe consumption has dropped 10 percent.

"Despite a decrease in per capita consumption of some vegetables, overall production has remained generally steady due to population growth," notes the horticulturist.
