 The manager, Bill Feuerherber has asked that drivers observe the speed limit signs at the school crossings.

The two school guards this year are Mrs. Adrian West and Mrs. Wayne Smith. They report that cars have been speeding through the crossings and it is a danger to the children.

The Floydada police will be patrolling the areas with radar units and will be giving tickets.

The speed limit is 20 mph when the lights are blinking.

 During a Band Boosters meeting Friday night, discussion of whether or not to use bumper stickers was declined by a majority vote.

JOE RICE, new hospital administrator, and Dan Powers, whose management firm has leased Caprock Hospital, are being shown the new respiratory facilities at the hospital by Rhonda Stovall.

Caprock Hospital leased to management firm

Caprock Hospital has been leased to a management firm and a new doctor will begin practice; both events are to take place October 1.

Hospital board president, Aldine Williams, announced Tuesday that the management firm of Dan Powers, Brownfield, will assume full management responsibilities of the hospital on a five year lease. Powers has been acting as consultant for the hospital board during the last six months.

Powers, whose credentials in hospital management are impressive, said that the hospital will continue as it is at present with the exception of bringing in a company administrator.

Joe Rice, Lubbock, will replace Nell McClung as administrator. Nell will continue at the hospital in a similar capacity.

Rice, who is single, will be moving to Floydada this month.

Powers was resident administrator of the Brownfield Hospital before forming his own company almost two years ago, Caprock Hospital Medical Services, Inc. is the company title, but he used the name, Dan Powers Management Services.

He now acts in a supervisory capacity at Brownfield. He manages three other hospitals, has this one on lease, and serves as consultant for two other hospitals.

"My real interest is in helping the small rural hospital," Powers said. "We try to provide the additional service to try to meet the needs of the community."

One of those needs will be supplied when a fourth doctor begins practice in Floydada.

Dr. Ferit Acar (pronounced A-josh) who is completing his United States residency in internal medicine in Dallas will occupy the fourth suite of offices in the Floydada clinic.

Dr. Acar is from Turkey. He served his residency at Gulhane Medical Academy in Ankara, Turkey. He has studied hematology and oncology at Wadley Institute of Molecular Medicine in Dallas from October of 1979 until the present.

This will complete the clinic facilities with four physicians; two are internalists, one is a surgeon, and one is a general practitioner.

"This provides an excellent medical staff," Powers said.

"I have probably been in 50% of the hospitals in Texas," Powers said. "serving in my capacity as district advisor to the Texas Hospital Association Board of Directors, and I also audited hospitals for Texas Blue Cross and Blue Shield. And I don't know of any other that has any more potential than this hospital does."

Powers said that Floydada has an excellent staff of physicians, and that the physical plant and equipment are also excellent for the size of the hospital.

"This hospital has everything going for it," Powers went on enthusiastically. "and that is why I decided to approach the board with this lease arrangement. I had studied the facility for six months and believe it has tremendous potential for serving the community."

Powers stated that within the year his management firm hopes to be able to reduce the hospital tax rate.

Powers stressed that there are no plans for changes in personnel or in the hospital routine other than the hiring of Rice.

Powers says that he has a unique approach to hiring administrators. He wants them to be strong in management education and skills, but doesn't want them to have worked in hospitals before.

His other criterion is that they are young, talented and enthusiastic.

"I show them the ropes in the health field. I provide the leadership. They put in the leg work," Powers said. "The result has been very successful in all the hospitals."

Rice graduated from Texas Tech in 1975 with a BBA in management.

He said, "I think we can make this the best hospital in the South Plains area."

Rice, originally from Kentucky, has spent the past seven years in Lubbock.

Aldine Williams said that he has served on the hospital board for ten years, and this decision to lease the hospital is the most important one they have made. He said the board spent many hours studying the proposition and came to the decision that this would be the best possible procedure for the good of the community.

"I go into this with mixed emotions," Williams said. "yet I'm as excited about this as anything that has happened since I've been on the board. I think it has more chance of growth than any other way."

He also confirmed that to reduce taxes is the ultimate goal.

The hospital board will still meet as usual once a month and at that time will hear the hospital report from Powers and from Rice.

"They will be watching very carefully the operation of this hospital," Williams added.

At the end of the five years the hospital board will have the renewal option.

Sunday mail to be stopped

Effective this Sunday, there will be no box or star route mail service in either Lockney or Floydada.

A discontinuance of Sunday service is the result of cutbacks in the federal budget made by President Reagan.

In addition to the discontinuance of Sunday service, there will be no box service in either town on major federal holidays.

The decision will save money both on the transportation of mail from U.S. Postal Service sectional center facilities at Lubbock and Childress to Lockney and Floydada and on salaries at the two Post Offices.

Floydada Postmaster Ed Wester said the decision will save two hours of Sunday salaries at his Post Office and Lockney Postmaster Doug Meriwether said his Sunday payroll will also be cutback by two hours.

As a result of the decision, boxholders will not receive any mail on Sundays.

That includes Sunday editions of newspapers.

Lockney's Meriwether suggests that those people who receive their Sunday newspapers by mail may want to cancel their subscriptions and buy Sunday newspapers from vending racks in either city or have home delivery of the Sunday editions where that is possible.

The decision will also have an affect on mail going out of both towns, too.

Since no mail will be coming into either Lockney or Floydada on Sunday, that means no mail will be going out of the two towns, either.

The last mail going out of Lockney on weekends will be picked up at 1 p.m. Saturday.

The last mail going out of Floydada on weekends will be picked up at 2 p.m. Saturday.

There will be no other mail going out of either town until Monday.

"It's going to make it pretty hard on us on Mondays," Wester said since the Post Office will have to process two days worth of mail on Monday.

Wester said it'll be even worse on those occasions when Monday is a holiday such as this next Monday which Labor Day.

No box mail will be processed Labor Day as a result of the budget cutbacks.

That means that on Tuesday Post Offices in both towns will have to process mail from Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Floyd County Fair will open Sept. 10

The 28th annual Floyd and Surrounding Counties Fair will open next Thursday, September 10 and run through Saturday, September 12.

The midway carnival will, however, open on Wednesday evening with 13 rides and 15 game booths at the fair grounds.

Also next Wednesday, entries must be in place for the women's department art contests.

On Thursday, the first official day of the fair, other exhibits will be put in place, and there will be judging of exhibits in the community exhibits, women's division and the agriculture department.

The tractor driving contest and the children's pet show will also be held on Thursday, instead of Saturday as in previous years.

The Maines Brothers will present a concert at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, with tickets available for $4.00. Those who buy tickets before the time of the concert will be admitted to the fair free on that date.

Friday, September 11, is Ladies Day. Programs will be given on flower arranging, ways to handle family stress, recognizing the signs of teenage drinking, and sewing tips.

The fair parade is Saturday, September 12, at 10:30 a.m. in the Lockney business district, beginning at the north end of Main Street and proceeding south. Prizes will be awarded for community club floats, commercial floats, school and youth groups and antique cars.

Livestock judging and lamb judging will be held on Saturday morning, as well as the junior showmanship contest. In the afternoon will be the children's rodeo and play day, featuring games for children ages 2-through-10.

Residents receiving bogus book offering

Residents of Floyd County and surrounding counties have been receiving postcards in the mail advertising genealogical information about their particular families.

The post cards are signed with the name Beatrice Bayley.

In reality, however, buyers receive only a book containing general American history with blanks where the individual can fill in information about his own family tree.

The book is offered for $27 to $29. According to the Better Business Bureau of Lubbock, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin have initiated legal proceedings against the Beatrice Bayley company, and the U.S. Postal Service is investigating the company for misrepresentation in direct mail solicitation.

What should you do if you have been taken in by this scheme, and do not think that a leather-bound book filled with blanks is worth $27 or $29?

"File a complaint," said Better Business Bureau spokeswoman Joyce Cornaud. "We've had pretty good luck getting money back for people who have complained about Beatrice Bayley Inc."

To file a complaint, call the Better Business Bureau in Lubbock toll-free at 1-800-692-4466 and request a complaint form.

After you fill out the form and return it to the BBB, they will forward the complaint to Beatrice Bayley Inc. and request the company to respond.

"It's a nice bound book on the outside," said Joyce Cornaud, "but most people don't seem to want a book full of blank pages."

Fund raiser set for Charles Stenholm

Preparations have been completed for the Third Annual Funday Festivities at the Ericksdahl Picnic Grounds near Stamford. The event is scheduled for Saturday, September 12, 1981, and is the principal fund raising event planned for Congressman Charles Stenholm.

This is the third Funday that Stenholm and his wife, Cindy, along with their three children, have returned to Texas to visit with friends and supporters from the thirty-three county 17th Congressional District. The event is sponsored by the Friends of Charlie and the Stenholm for Congress Committee.

Stenholm is presently Coordinator of the much publicized Conservative Democratic Forum. He serves on the House of Representatives's Agriculture Committee and Small Business Committee.

Congressman Stenholm will address the gathering at Funday concerning issues that face Congress at the present time.

Academy seminar sponsors

The Texas Academy of Family Physicians will be sponsoring their Second Annual Physician Placement Seminar October 24-25 at the Inn at Turtle Creek in San Antonio.

The purpose of the seminar is three-fold:

1. Provide an opportunity for representatives of small towns to meet together to exchange ideas and to hear speakers talk about physician recruitment and physician retention.
2. Provide an opportunity for residents and their spouses to meet together and exchange ideas, to hear speakers talk about what to look for and what to avoid in future practice setting.
3. Provide an opportunity for physician recruiters and family practice residents to meet together in private or in groups to arrange for visits to various communities and perhaps even to "sign on the dotted line". Each community will also be given the opportunity to make a short presentation to all of the residents at the beginning of the seminar.

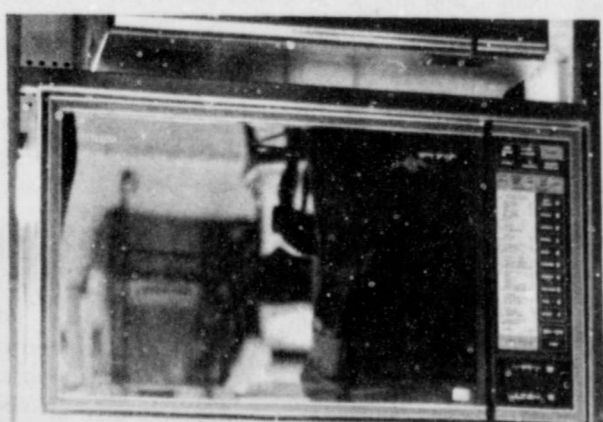

The Texas Academy of Family Physicians is very much aware of and concerned about the areas of the state where there are physician shortages. The Family Physician can provide the most cost effective health care treatment for families.

Candlelight ceremony unites Burlleson, Brock

Burlleson and Brock exchanged vows August 22 in a ceremony at the First Baptist Church in Brownwood. Don Morehead, pastor, officiated the ceremony.

Song" was sung by Kristy Brock, sister of the groom. Mrs. Lon Davis, organist played "Jesus of Man's Desiring" as the mothers were seated. Ushers were Dusty Burlleson, brother of the bride and Chuck Evans, friend of the groom.

After the mothers were seated the "Lord's Prayer" was sung by Kristy Brock and accompanied by Mrs. Davis on the piano.

The "Bridal Chorus" was played as the bride was escorted down the aisle by her father. The bride presented her mother with a white rose on the way to the altar.

Wedding vows were exchanged before the altar decorated with a massive arrangement of agapanthas, snapdragons, killian daisies and sprays of dendrobium orchids in a large brass footed urn. On either side of the altar were tall brass candlesticks holding white cathedral candles with a unity candle placed in the center. A candelabra holding white tapers and decorated with woodwardia ferns, were placed behind the altar, then corresponding candelabras were placed on each side.

After the vows were exchanged, the couple lit the unity candle as Kristy Brock sang "You Needed Me." The bride then presented her mother-in-law with a white rose.

RECEPTION

Shonda Fulton provided music during the reception that was hosted by the bride's parents in fellowship hall. The bride's table was draped with ecru brocade fabric and pleated around the sides. Behind the table was a white lattice covered in Southern Simlax. The centerpiece was a silver tray which held a large arrangement of white flowers with touches of yellow and apricot. The three-tiered cake was decorated with fresh flowers of phalenopsis and dendrobium orchids. Punch and mints were also served.

Attendants at the bride's table were Jonna West, Julie Morton and Karen Turner, all friends of the bride.

Assisting at the groom's table were Mrs. Harvey McLarty and Mrs. Doug Adkins both of Levelland. The table was backed with panels of bamboo reeds and covered with rust corduroy. Accenting the table was a antique copper and brass coffee service, and complimented with fruit arrangements and cheese logs.

Serving in the house party were Joy Fulton, Polly Cardinal, Johnnie Delle Cogdell, Sue Hardy, Martha Farris and Carolyn Marble.

Flower arrangements for the reception were through Park Florist, designed by Kelly Marble.

Following a honeymoon trip to Ruidoso, New Mexico, the couple will be at home in Levelland.

REHEARSAL DINNER

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Brock on August 21 at Buffalo Springs Lake in the First Baptist Church lodge.

Free school meals

Free and reduced-price meals will be offered in the Floydada Independent School District again this year to children whose families meet certain economic criteria. Children from families whose income is at or below certain levels may be eligible for either free meals or meals at a reduced price of 40-cents for lunch and 30-cents for breakfast. Regular prices are 80-cents for lunch in the elementary schools and 90-cents for lunch in the junior high and high schools and 50-cents for breakfast throughout the school system.

Parents may apply for free or reduced-price meals at anytime during the school year. Applications are available from the school district. Parents will be notified within 10-days of filing the applications if their application has been accepted.

If there are changes in family size or income during the school year, such changes should be reported to school officials so appropriate adjustments may be made. Superintendent Jerry Cannon said there are a number of factors involved in determining if a child qualifies for free or reduced-price meals.

Among those factors are:
Proof of Current Family Income — If you have applied for free or reduced price benefits in other school years, you will note some changes to the application form. The application now requires the name and social security number of all adult family members. Adults without social security numbers must indicate that they do not have one. Schools may verify the source and amount of income as well as household composition.

Foster Children — In certain cases, foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If you have foster children living with you and you wish to apply for such meals for them, please notify us or indicate it on the application.

Nondiscrimination — All children are treated the same regardless of ability to pay. In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, creed, color or national origin.

Fair Hearing — If you do not agree with the school's decision on your application, you may wish to discuss it with the school. If you wish to review the decision further, you have a right to a fair hearing. This can be done by calling or writing: Jerry Cannon, 208 S. Main, Floydada, Texas 79235, or call (806) 983-3498.

Senility is treatable

"Grandpa has really changed. He's lost his sense of humor. He's cranky and demanding. And he's so forgetful. It's a shame he's become senile."

But he hasn't. What we think of as "senility" is not a normal sign of growing old; in fact, it is not even a disease.

Instead, problems such as increased forgetfulness, confusion, depression and irritability can actually be symptoms of a wide range of mental and physical disorders. Some can be treated and cured or even prevented. Others are irreversible.

The most common incurable form of mental impairment among older persons — affecting anywhere from 500,000 to 1.5 million American adults — is a little-known disorder called Alzheimer's (pronounced alts-hi-merz) disease that affects the cells of the brain. It is estimated that of all older persons with mental impairment, more than half are suffering from Alzheimer's disease.

An individual with Alzheimer's disease may first experience only minor, nearly unnoticeable symptoms that are often attributed to emotional upsets or other physical illnesses. Gradually, however, he or she becomes more and more forgetful, particularly about recent events. As the disease progresses, memory loss increases and other changes in personality, mood and behavior are likely to appear. Judgment, concentration, orientation and speech may also be impaired. In the most severe cases, the disease may eventually render its victims totally incapable of caring for themselves.

Although the person with Alzheimer's disease may deny or be unaware of the full extent of his or her limitations — especially in the later stages of the disease — the unexplained changes in personality and behavior are a source of deep frustration for the individual and his or her family and friends. The emotional and financial drain on victims of Alzheimer's disease, their loved ones, and society at large is enormous.

But while the disease is incurable, it can be treated. Proper medical diagnosis and care can help control many of the symptoms and, perhaps more importantly, help the individual and the family cope with the illness' effect on their lives.

The National Retired Teachers Association — the country's oldest retiree organization — has launched a nationwide public service campaign to inform older people and their families about Alzheimer's disease and to stimulate research aimed at finding a cure. For a free booklet which gives the facts about the disease and where to turn for help, write: Alzheimer's, c/o NRTA, 1909 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20049.

agri-facts
The cry is still being heard for modernized beef grading. Gene Schroeder, National Cattlemen's Association spokesman, said the USDA's beef grading standards must be modernized to encourage the growth of leaner beef which, in turn, will make cattle feeding more profitable. The beef industry, Schroeder said, is facing serious competition from other livestock producers, and "Our challenge is to improve the image of beef... and to discourage over-feeding which produces excessive fat which is wasteful of energy and costly to produce." He made the point that although one can trim away a lot of excess fat, one can't trim away the cost of putting it on. The NCA has submitted a new grading system to the USDA which would widen the prime grade, be more objective and result in more uniform eating quality within each grade, while also shortening, by 15 to 30 days, the time cattle were on feed.

Charles W. Stenholm's Congressional Comment

WASHINGTON, D.C. — There is an old axiom, long valued in our part of the country, that contends that "A man is only as good as his word." In the eyes of a cynical world, beset with conflicting examples, that might seem a naive rule of ethics long outgrown by modern society.

In light of the current Air Traffic Controllers illegal strike, however, it is an ethic that deserves a second look.

Is it naive to have expected the 13,000-plus air controllers to honor their oath to their government not to participate in a strike, rather than walking out on their jobs in the first "declared" national strike against the federal government?

Is it naive to question the right of any small band of public employees to place the safety and economic welfare of the American public they supposedly serve in danger in such a fashion?

Is it naive to have expected them to follow established procedures to seek redress for what are, undeniably, some justifiable complaints concerning their unique job situations?

Is it naive for the American public to look to their government and expect it to make its own employees obey the law?

One of the controllers who chose to stay on the job, rather than participate in the controversial strike, answered those questions best when he explained why he chose to remain in place. "How can I teach my young son respect for the law if I am not willing to obey the law myself? he asked.

This is an important moral question that every American, not just an individual segment of society no matter how dissatisfied or how justified they might be, must ask themselves. The loss of what have been considered traditional values of our country can be blamed on those who cannot answer, without reservation, without hesitation, "Respect for all law begins with me."

I have some sympathy for the families of the air controllers who have now been fired (I really think that, through their actions, they voluntarily quit) from their positions by President Reagan, but I feel the President had no alternative but to enforce the law regarding the oath taken not to strike and I support him fully. Public employees should

(and do) have the right to present their grievances to the proper officials, but I do believe it is important to realize that strikes by public employees disrupt many of the essential services that our society depends upon. Each federal employee must realize that when they are employed by the government, strikes are illegal.

The law must be upheld. If the law is considered unjust, our system of government provides adequately for changes. It may take time, but the alternative is anarchy.

Unclaimed bank accounts recovered

James Curry of Dallas, Texas, could you use $250.91? If so, State Treasurer Warren G. Harding needs to talk with you. And Paul Fairchild of Houston, you have $11.51 coming your way.

Harding, who recently sent $1,974.27 to Dominga A. Ortega of Brownsville, also has $10.12 for John Baum of Corpus Christi, and $11.99 for Grace Sweigart of El Paso.

The State Treasurer's Office through its Escheat Division tries to match Texans with their unclaimed bank accounts, inheritances, or insurance benefits. Amounts due to hundreds of individuals across the State range from a few cents to thousands of dollars.

After a seven year dormancy with the entity holding the funds, the money is sent to Harding's office, where the State makes a last effort to locate the proper owner by letter and advertising. Bank advertising is done by the individual financial institution during the month of May, and corporate and insurance advertising is done by the Treasury in the latter part of August of each year.

If the lost owner appears, the money is returned to the owner. The State has custody of the money, but never becomes the owner of it. In other words, if a person can prove proper ownership, he can claim his money even 50 years later. In the interim, Treasurer Harding has had the money invested benefiting all Texas taxpayers by the interest earned.

By contacting State Treasurer Harding's office in Austin, you can have his staff ascertain whether or not you may have missing funds. The more facts you have about the missing amounts, the more quickly your inquiry can be traced. The Escheat Division may be reached at (512) 475-3337, or by writing P.O. Box 12608, Capitol Station, Austin, TX 78711.

Oh, yes, Harding has $,02 for Daniel Munoz of San Antonio, and $1,010.44 for Ronald Childs of Fort Worth.

Texas Tech Museum sets new hours

The Museum of Texas Tech University will have new public hours beginning September 1.

The Museum will be open year-round 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday; until 8:30 p.m. Thursday; and 1-4:30 p.m. Sunday.

Dr. James A. Goss, museum director, said the new hours reflect times when the museum draws more people.

He said the institution is growing and needs to have regular, permanent hours that can be recognized by the public.

In addition to the new hours, a museum holiday schedule has been announced.

The Museum will be closed for Labor Day September 7; for the Thanksgiving holiday, the afternoon of November 25 and all day November 26; December 24 and 25 for the Christmas holiday; and December 31 and January 1 for the New Year's holidays.

Next year, the museum will be open July 4 from 1-8:30 p.m. because the Independence holiday is a good museum visiting time, Goss said.

The Museum will be open afternoons for other official university holidays, November 27-29, December 26-30, January 2-3, and spring break, March 18 and 19.

The Museum will be closed April 11 (Easter Sunday) and May 31 (Memorial Day).

Young Farmers focus on education

Education is a lifelong process. Rapid technological advancements in this age have made this so.

Possibly no one realizes this more than members of the Young Farmers of Texas organization. Today there are over 150 Young Farmers chapters operating in Texas.

The Young Farmers plan and carry out educational activities designed to increase their efficiency and skill in the business of agriculture — production, management, and marketing. Though organized primarily for educational purposes, chapters participate also in many civic and community service activities. Rural leadership development and recreation are also important parts of each chapter's program.

The vocational agriculture teacher in the public school serves as advisor to local chapters. In its many-phase program, planned annually on a 12-month basis, the Young Farmer chapter becomes an instrument for strengthening family ties and for making the rural area a better place in which to live.

The Young Farmer program had its origin in clubs formed by FFA alumni.

These clubs met in 1954 and formed the State Association of Young Farmers of Texas. Membership was opened up to anyone ages 18-35 in farming, ranching, or other phases of agriculture.

There has been a gradual increase in the number of chapters and members since 1954. Today there are over 3,500 paid members in the 150 chapters making up the State Association of Young Farmers of Texas. The Silverton Young Farmer Chapter is proud to be one of the 150 chapters.

Fishing cabins to be awarded to public drawing winners

Thirteen fishing cabins on state-owned coastal lands will be permitted to winners of a public drawing by the Texas General Land Office on October 20, 1981.

The cabins are located in Brazoria, Arkansas, Calhoun and Nueces counties. Adults at least 18 years old wishing to participate in the drawing should write for instructions, application forms and cabin locations. The address is: Cabin Permit Public Drawing, Coastal Division, General Land Office, 1700 North Congress Avenue, Austin, Texas 78701.

Participants will receive a list of the cabins with descriptions, annual rental rates, a sample contract and rules governing cabin usage. Rentals range from $100.00 to $200.00 annually.

Applicants may apply for only one cabin and one winner will be drawn from among those who apply for each cabin.

Each cabin to be included in the drawing has been marked with a large fluorescent-orange "X" painted on each side. Participants are urged to view the cabins before submitting an application since the condition of the structures varies.

The deadline for submitting applications for the drawing is October 1, 1981.

Floydada Nursing Home Happenings

We would like to welcome Mrs. Ethel Burnham to our home. Mrs. Burnham is Shelly Harris' aunt. Ethel lives in room one down the west hall and needs your visits.

We would like to thank Wene Kendrick for the canteloupe.

Others have brought canteloupe and squash which the residents have enjoyed very much.

Kim Sherman was quite pleased with the large number of residents who attended the musical therapy class Monday afternoon. There were twenty-three residents who enjoyed singing along with Kim. We had a few visitors who enjoyed the program too. They were Laurita Bertrand, Ruth McIntosh and Mary Adams.

We had a great Bible Study Tuesday. We were studying the book of Hebrews. Those attending were Juanita Bailey, A.G. Eubanks, W.C. Cates, Iva Simpson, Myrtle Roy, Geneda Roberts, Emmitt Lawrence, Verna McSwain, and Clara McNeely.

We went to Plainview Wednesday for supplies and the residents got an extra treat, besides the frosted cake. Before we returned to the home we stopped at My-T Burger and enjoyed a hamburger, fries and coke. Those enjoying the trip and treat were Emmitt Lawrence, W.C. Cates, Verna McSwain, Iva Simpson, and Juanita Bailey. Velva Pricer took the trip but didn't want to eat with us. This was a treat I had promised the residents several months back for being so good to help me.

W.C. Cates and Clara Williamson tied in bingo with three games each. Verna McSwain, Vera Duke, A.G. Eubanks and Clara McNeely all won two games each. Willie Stambough won one game.

Juanita Bailey went home to visit family and attended Old Settlers in Roaring Springs.

Mr. Emmitt Lawrence was all smiles Thursday when he came back to the home wearing a red carnation he won for being the oldest person from Motley County at Old Settlers in Roaring Springs. Mr. Lawrence's son Jewel Lawrence from Mineral Wells carried his dad to the all day occasion.

Mrs. Iva Simpson enjoyed spending the day with her daughter, Floy Graham Friday.

It really gives our residents a lift to get out and spend some time with their family.

We would like to thank the Sunshine Sunday School

Persistent program needed for ditchbank weed control

Application Options

A program McHenry recommends centers around applications of Roundup herbicide to dry ditches and ditchbanks when actively growing Johnsongrass has reached the boot-to-seedhead stage. Roundup is commonly broadcast applied at a rate of 2 to 3 quarts/acre with specialized ditchbank sprayers, usually a truck-mounted tank with three to four eight-foot boom sections. Each section can be turned on or off independently of the others, allowing farmers to spray ditchbanks varying widely in size. In ditches where bermudagrass is also a problem, broadcast treatment will necessitate applying a higher labeled per acre rate of Roundup.

Hand-held sprayers are another option for light ditchbank infestations, according to Dr. Sheldon Blank, weed control specialist for Monsanto. This treatment calls for a one percent solution of Roundup with hand-held, single nozzle applicators, which may also be mounted on a truck.

Farmers should keep the ditches free of water for seven days following application in order to allow Roundup to "Translocate" and thus achieve best weed control. The chemical is especially effective for use on Johnsongrass because it moves into the plant's rhizomes via its vascular system, controlling both above and below ground growth. After using Roundup to control emerged vegetation and the rhizomes, farmers should follow with a fall application of a seedling control residual herbicide such as Karnex or Hyvar X.

Farmers who would like to benefit from the most sophisticated equipment as well as highly trained application personnel often opt for custom application of Roundup to dry ditchbank areas. "What's most important is that the application is handled by someone who has the experience to spot the problem and the know-how to correct it," contends Stan Gable of Desert Weed Control in Arlington, Az. An outfit which treated 6,000 miles of weed-infested ditchbanks and canals in 1980.

Gable has his own specially designed truck, capable of spraying as many as 50 miles of ditches a day. The truck is equipped with a computer that tells him how fast he's going in tenths of a mile per hour, and a unit that transfers the contents of five gallon cans into the two 1,000 gallon tanks.

Like most weed specialists, Gable feels the bottom line is following an intensive program for up to three years for best control. "I am constantly reminding farmers that they need to take a program approach to non-crop weed control. In other words, a year-round program that keeps weeds in check effectively, so eventually all they'll need is a maintenance program."

D&PL field day September 22 at Lubbock

A cotton variety that licked the 1980 drought to rank number one in yield will be among those shown by Delta & Pine Land Company at its annual field day near Lubbock, September 22.

Some 3,000 cotton growers, ginners, researchers and other cotton industry leaders have been invited to the event, scheduled to begin at 10 a.m., a barbecue lunch and entertainment at noon and concluding at 3 p.m.

The field day plots are located at the D&PL Research Farm one mile east and one mile south of Idalou on FM 400. This is about 12 miles east of Lubbock.

"After 20 years of cotton research in West Texas we are now marketing four stripper type stormproof varieties bred especially for West Texas and are highly pleased with their acceptance," Jay Marks, marketing manager, Southwestern Division, Lubbock, noted in announcing the field day.

"We're especially proud of Deltapine SR-5, which proved tough enough to yield number one out of 50 competing varieties in the regional Texas A&M dryland cotton performance tests at Lamesa in 1980. This was a disastrously dry year but one in which this cotton excelled in yield, strength and uniformity and ranked right at the top in micronaire."

Delta & Pine Land Company's cotton research program began at its headquarters in Scott, Mississippi in 1915. It is one of the world's largest plant breeders with operations in Mississippi, Arkansas, West Texas, Arizona, and California. D&PL began breeding storm resistant varieties in West Texas in 1961, concentrating on heat and moisture, fiber strength, and smooth leaf characteristics associated with less dust and higher quality demanded by textile mills.

County bollworm activity remains high

BY PAUL TREPTOW

Cotton bollworm activity remains at a high level in some areas of Floyd County with more scattered infestations in southern Floyd and in Crosby County. In those fields I have checked egg numbers are at a low level. This could mean that worm problems are on the decline but I would not be surprised to see increasing activity before the season ends.

Marketing key to crop profits

Although most Texas farmers are looking at a good crop year, the financial rewards they reap will depend heavily on their ability as astute farm marketers.

"Developing pricing strategies and evaluating marketing options are activities that distinguish 'farm marketers' from 'farm producers,'" says Dr. Ashley Lovell of Stephenville, area economist in management with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Traditionally, many farm producers have sought to sell at the highest price during the marketing year, to sell everything at one time, and to market at about the same time each year. Selling based upon habit is unlikely to consistently result in maximum returns," warns Lovell.

Instead, farmers should take a look at these marketing options:

- Selling at harvest.
- Storing and selling at a later date.
- Forward contracting for delivery at harvest or at a later date.

- Hedging in the futures market.

- Using the Commodity Credit Corp. loan program or the extended grain reserve program.

To shift to the farm marketing orientation, current production cost estimates are needed for individual enterprises. Cost estimates should include variable expenses incurred to date plus projections of any remaining costs necessary to move the crop from the field, says the economist.

By combining actual preharvest variable costs with projected harvest costs and share rent, a farmer can estimate the breakeven price necessary to cover variable cost and land rent. Although this estimated breakeven value may not be adequate for developing all pricing strategies and evaluating all marketing options, it is an essential step, believes Lovell.

"When combined with the per unit fixed cost, the marketer has the production cost estimate which is required in making valid marketing decisions," says the economist.

Complete and accurate production cost estimates are essential for the consistent success of the farm marketer. Although the estimates may be less difficult to establish than achieving accurate price expectations, they alone cannot ensure successful marketing decisions. "However, a sound approach for developing expectations of future commodity prices, when combined with accurate production cost estimates, will have a positive impact upon this year's financial return to farm resources," says Lovell.

IT'S A FACT...that the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is working with farmers to help put more corn on your table. Extension is helping farmers compare commercial production of food corn varieties as an alternative to hybrid varieties for livestock feed.

Landscape & Gardening

By Ken Langley

OCCASIONAL LAWN PROBLEMS

Even with good management problems occasionally arise as a result of thatch accumulation, or excess shade.

Thatch Accumulation

The spongy turf which results from accumulated organic residues between the soil and the green leaves is referred to as thatch. A certain amount of thatch is desirable, as it adds resilience to the turf, reduces compaction of the soil surface and prevents soil erosion. However, excess thatch reduces water infiltration, creates shallow-rooted turf, encourages insect and disease infestations and makes mowing difficult.

Management practices such as thorough and infrequent watering, close and frequent mowing, proper fertilization and occasional cultivation (aeration, vertical mowing and topdressing) will prevent excess thatch accumulation. If lawns are mowed frequently, grass clippings will not promote thatch accumulation, and it is beneficial to leave them on the lawn. However, if a lawn is mowed so infrequently that the turf is covered with clippings, then the clippings should be removed. Excess tree leaves should be removed rather than shredding them with a mower. Scalping the lawn each spring by lowering the mower and mowing in several directions at the first sign of spring green-up will aid in thatch prevention.

Excess fertilization with nitrogen can cause thatch accumulation. Lawns should be fertilized in early spring and fall when the grass is not growing vigorously. During the summer months fertilization should be kept to a minimum and should not exceed 1 pound of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet every 60 days.

If thatch accumulation becomes a problem, lawns should be dethatched in early spring by vertical mowing in two or more directions. For bermudagrass or zoysia lawns the vertical blades may be spaced only 1/2 to 1 inch apart, but for St. Augustine or centipedegrass lawns the blades should be 1 1/2 to 2 inches apart. The organic debris brought to the surface by dethatching should be removed by raking or sweeping. Aeration should follow the vertical mowing operation. A hollow spoon aerator should be run over the lawn 3 to 5 times when the soil is moist so that the spoons penetrate 2 to 3 inches into the soil. After aeration the lawn should be fertilized to encourage rapid recovery of the grass.

Such a renovation may never be necessary or may be needed every 2 to 3 years, depending on the turfgrass species and maintenance program.

Shade

Shade from tree canopies creates several problems for turfgrasses, including reduced light and competition for water and nutrients. The results is usually shallow-rooted turf that is more susceptible to drought stress, wear and disease infestations. Of the warm season turfgrasses, St. Augustine grass is the most shade tolerant, zoysia and centipede grasses are intermediate in shade tolerance, and bermudagrass is the least shade tolerant. However even St. Augustine grass requires some sunlight to produce an acceptable turf. Mowing heights usually should be increased for turf growing in heavy shade. (St. Augustine grass should be mowed at 2 1/2 to 3 inches), and turf must be watered more to compensate for the moisture utilized by tree roots. Nitrogen fertilization of turfgrasses in dense shade should be less than in full sunlights. Where turf is being maintained in shade, trees should be fertilized by deep root feeding rather than by surface feeding.

If tree canopies are very dense and low growing shrubs or brush screen the lawn, it may be necessary to selectively prune tree limbs and remove shrubs or brush. Root pruning of shallow-rooted trees also will improve conditions for turfgrasses in shade. If dense, low growing trees and shrubs are an essential part of the landscape plan, a shade-tolerant ground cover such as English Ivy (Hedera helix) or Asiatic Jasmine (Trachelospermum asiaticum) should be used in place of turfgrasses.

Prairie dog and coyote control meeting Thursday

All persons interested in obtaining bait and/or fumigant pellets to control prairie dogs should plan on attending the Prairie Dog and Coyote Control Meeting on Thursday, September 3, 1981, at 7:30 p.m. in Floydada at the Lighthouse Electric Cooperative Meeting Room.

Mike Yeary of the Texas Wildlife and Fisheries Department will be on hand to take orders for the zinc phosphide-treated grain and the phostoxin pellets which are currently being used by the state in its prairie dog control program. Yeary will explain how and when bait and/or pellets should be applied and will demonstrate these application methods. Costs of these two products will also be discussed.

Ron Bibeau, Floyd County Trapper, will be present at the meeting to discuss coyote control measures that can be taken by producers to help alleviate this predator problem that exists in many areas of the county. The county's coyote control program will also be discussed.

All producers experiencing either prairie dog or coyote problems are urged to attend this meeting, particularly if prairie dog bait or pellets are needed for the winter when control measures are most effective.

Cotton aphids are still present in low numbers in most fields. I have not seen a fast resurgence of this pest but high numbers could develop before the end of the season. Beneficial insects should be present in high enough numbers to keep aphids in check. Some boll cracking will be seen in the next two weeks. If aphids are present in sufficient numbers problems with lint staining due to honeydew and fungal growth may be seen.

Texas' cotton crop outlook is promising

After a rough start in some areas a siege of wet spring weather, the cotton crop looks promising. In general rain the next few weeks and some letup in insect activity, crop could result.

Crop went through a stress period due to the extended wet weather but the return to cotton has encouraged fruiting," says

Dr. Bob Metzger, cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "We started the season with good deep moisture in most areas to sustain the crop, but a rain in early August would 'put the icing on the cake'."

About 7.4 million acres were planted to cotton in Texas this spring, which is more than half of the nation's crop of about 14.2 million acres.

"We currently have the potential range of 325 to 350 pounds of lint per acre," believes Metzger. "We might even get close to the 400-pound mark if needed rains come and insect damage is limited."

Boll weevils and bollworms are currently plaguing some producers, and fleahoppers caused damage in some locations, resulting in loss of early fruit set. In addition, some squares were lost to the wet weather, which also caused boll rot problems in coastal and southern areas.

"A problem looming ahead is that of cotton root rot, particularly in the Central Texas Blacklands," points out Metzger. "Root rot is always a problem when there is good soil moisture, and it tends to increase with hot weather."

Cotton in the High and Rolling Plains and western areas got off to a good start this year, notes the specialist, although heavy spring storms caused considerable replanting in some locations. Irrigation is now in full swing where water is available. Hot, dry winds are depleting soil moisture, and the dryland crop in these areas will need additional rain.

Harvesting is now under way in the Rio Grande Valley, with good yields, especially in well-drained fields, says Metzger. Bolls are starting to pop open in the Coastal Bend and in some parts of South Central Texas. However, rank growth of cotton along the Coastal Bend and in many Central Texas fields will likely cause some defoliation and harvesting problems.

This rank growth prompts Metzger to urge farmers to give particular attention to practices that will reduce the number of overwintering boll weevils. These include applying an insecticide in combination with a defoliant when preparing the crop for harvest, and then destroying stalks and plowing them under as soon as possible after harvesting.

"Efforts to reduce overwintering boll weevils is particularly crucial this year because rank cotton with late fruit can provide a safe haven for boll weevils," he emphasizes.

So, all in all it looks like a good year for cotton. A lot of things can happen before the last bale comes in, but for now the stage is set for a promising harvest.

Nichols has lunch with President Reagan

RM 2nd class Billy M. Nichols, Communications Dept. FPO, recently had the opportunity to be present at a luncheon with President Reagan.

Nichols, son of Mr. and James Lee Nichols of Floydada, is aboard the USS Constellation CV64 CR Division homeported in San Francisco, California.

He was chosen by his division to have lunch with the president following a presidential visit to the ship on August 20. The carrier has 5000 men aboard.

Approximately 150 persons attended the luncheon including, besides the president, the Secretary of Navy, Commander and Chief of the Pacific fleet and the Commander of Air Forces of the Pacific fleet.

Nichols resides in San Diego.

Chowning participates in "Readiex 5-81"

Navy Gunner's Mate Seaman Billy D. Chowning, son of Mr. and Mrs. A.L. Chowning of Floydada, recently participated in exercise "Readiex 5-81" off the Southern California Coast.

He is a crewmember aboard the destroyer USS Ingersoll, homeported in San Diego.

Ten ships, 60 aircraft and 10,000 sailors and Marines participated in "Readiex 5-81." Designed to prepare the 3rd Fleet battle group to react to a variety of threats, the involved units practiced electronic and anti-air warfare, and communications and combat systems tests.

The Ingersoll is 563 feet long and carries a crew of more than 250. Designed primarily for anti-submarine warfare (ASW), it is armed with two guns, ASW torpedoes and ASW rockets.

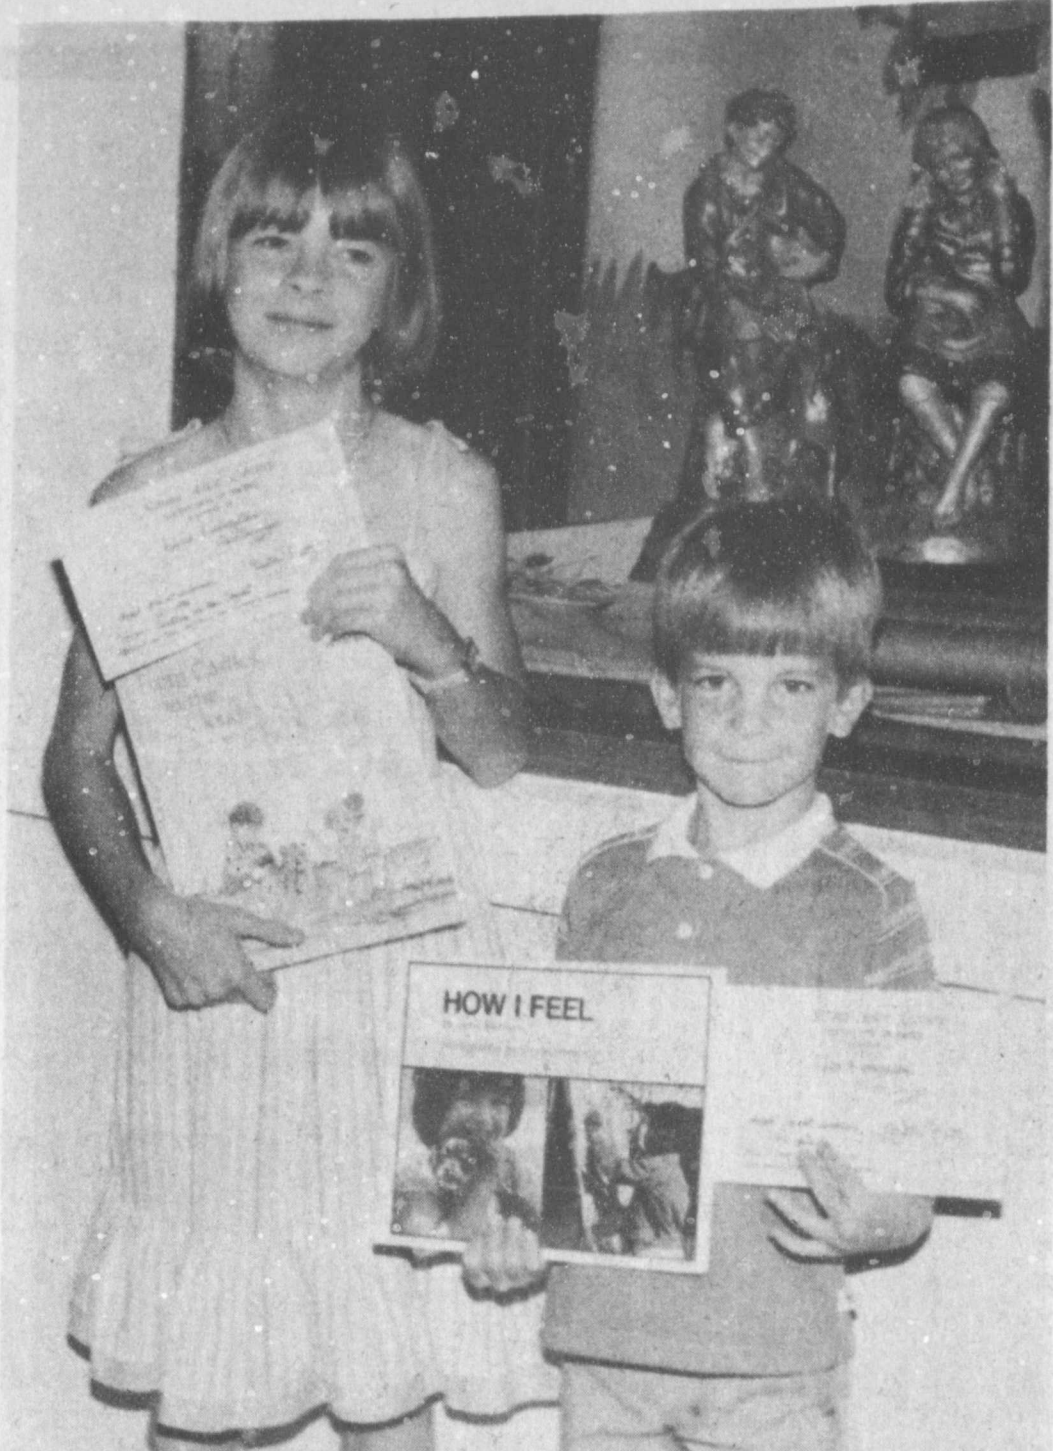

Army Reserve needs military veterans

The U.S. Army Reserve needs the skills of former sailors, airmen, marines and soldiers.

Veterans of any military service are eligible for part-time jobs in the Army Reserve and can make use of their military skills and capitalize on the time already spent in the service. With their prior military training and experience, they are often able to enter the Army Reserve at the same rank they had when they left the service depending on branch of service and length of time since discharge.

Aside from the part-time pay and the sense of pride that comes with being part of the nation's defense force, veterans get other benefits from joining the Army Reserve. The most impressive benefit is retirement pay after completing 20 years of military service. Reservists also get post exchange and limited commissary privileges, low-cost group life insurance and free space-available travel on military planes anywhere in the United States, including Hawaii and Alaska, and Puerto Rico.

A SISTER AND BROTHER DUO are high point winners in the reading club conducted at the media library in First Baptist Church this summer. Dina and Alan Livingston, children of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Livingston, proudly display their certificates and the books which were placed in the media library in their honor. The Tom Sawyer Reading Club theme, "Drift Into Adventure," was planned and executed by Terri Lloyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Lloyd.

Spurlock participates in "Fleet Exercise 1-81"

Navy Radioman 3rd Class John T. Spurlock, son of Bee Spurlock, formerly of Floydada, recently participated in "Fleet Exercise 1-81" off the California coast.

He is a crewmember aboard the aircraft carrier USS Constellation, homeported in San Diego.

The 11-day exercise provided a unique opportunity to give the ship's crew valuable "hands-on" training in polishing their warfare skills. Along with the aircraft carrier USS Coral Sea, and several escort ships, the units shared airborne offensive and defensive responsibilities as well as coordinating operations for countering surface and subsurface threats.

The Constellation is 1,062 feet long and carries a crew of 2,800. It can accommodate approximately 85 jet aircraft and more than 2,150 personnel assigned to an attack aircraft wing.

A 1975 graduate of Floydada High School, Spurlock joined the Navy in November 1977.

Perspectives

Freedom appreciate major changes in our lives, especially sudden ones. Perhaps a bigger fear in most of our societies that wind up in exile - tend to be assimilated, and very return from exile.

Other words, we may find, in spite of our protests to the contrary, that we have joined the ranks of the godless. Our response is typical, build larger armaments, fortify our weapons and better forts don't provide immunity.

Red Fort in India, for instance, a 60-foot thick walls, was considered impregnable, and almost was. But the Mongol invasions the fort was conquered, along with the government and country, because a careless failed to lock a gate.

Palmer recognized a long time ago that arms will not save us. He said, "some trust in chariots and some in horses, but we remember the name of the Lord. They are brought down and we are risen and stand upon the rock."

God led the Israelites into exile, but every time they were gathered. Massive arms build-ups are the answer, they are the speaker was making the point that Israel had pretty much thought they were to be invincible, mostly because they were God's chosen people. He had saved them in the past, so they would always be taken care of.

came the dreaded Babylonians following them, the Persians to Israel off to exile. The Israelites, as you say, were none too happy. The speaker continued, was just the removal of the people from their homelands, it also included the loss of customs, history, and identity.

When then asked to think about exile today. While the speaker was on one track, my mind took off on a defense posture these days. I stated, is carry a bigger stick. I would trust us not to use that whereas we cannot trust anyone especially the godless commun-

For many, there is an attitude that somehow we also, as Americans, are God's chosen people and He will not allow us to drop the baton of freedom. All this could, I suppose, be true. But what if, in our arrogance, we were to find ourselves suddenly being overrun?

Could it be that we were worried less about being God's standard bearers than we are about the possible consequences of exile? If the Russians controlled the world, everything about our lives would change, suddenly.

Carol Lea Clark's
It's Not Easy

Did you ever notice that advertising people kind of live in a world all their own?
I mean, they are not bound by the rules that affect the rest of us mortals. Certainly not when it comes to the English language, anyway.
For instance, Wendy's hamburger chain has a new advertising campaign underway that goes something, "there ain't nothing like a Wendy's."

Ain't nothing like no grammer, either. I suppose that ain't so bad.
The one guy I'd really like to meet is the guy who makes up the ads for McDonald's.
Don't get me wrong. There ain't nothing like a McDonald's.
Thank God.

But back in the recesses, or perhaps abcesses, or McDonald-land, there's some guy who comes up with the names for the McDonald products.
Like this new sandwich they have got out now called the McFeast.
What it is, by the way, is an over-priced hamburger with lettuce that you should get for free. Instead of simply calling it a hamburger with lettuce, it is a McFeast.

Pretty McStupid, isn't it?
And they've got a new item on the menu called McChicken. What it is is little pieces of fried chicken. Why couldn't they have called it something sensible like, little pieces of fried chicken, instead of McChicken?
It makes me McWonder what we are coming too.

The guy who comes up with these cutesy names for McDonald is probably a brother-in-law to Ronald McDonald who Mrs. McDonald persuaded Ronald to hire after he failed in the McInsurance business or something like that.
The snook probably has a McWife, two or three McChildren and lives in a McHouse in the McSuburbs, and has a McDatsun and a McDog. Each day he gets up and goes to his McOffice in McDonald-land.

He's famous, too. One of his distant relatives was McBeth, who was immortalized by McShakespeare.
The possibilities are all pretty McAwful, aren't they?
I would bet that if you asked the guy what he does for a living, he'd probably say, "I name McMeals for McDonald's."
Probably what really irritates me about all this is the guy who comes up with all these names gets a fantastic salary.
And I just bet he feels bad about it all the way to the McBank.

Hightower Highlights

Congress has completed the President's bill was revised several times in the last two weeks before the vote. It was revised only after some of us energy-state Democrats succeeded in getting windfall profits tax relief provisions put in the Democratic version.

Windfall Profits Tax Relief
During my campaign for re-election last year, I reaffirmed my intention to work towards repeal of the so-called windfall profits tax. This would relieve the thousands of independent oil producers and small royalty owners in our district who are the victims of this ridiculous energy and taxation policy.

During the tax debate in mid-July, the Republicans opposed putting windfall profits tax relief in their tax bill, even defeating an amendment by Senator Bensten in the Senate. However, this was before we succeeded with the Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee. After several conversations with key Democrats, they agreed to add provisions helpful to district's like ours.

I know people want to give this President and his plan a chance. Consistent with my advocacy of lowered federal spending, lowered taxes and a balanced budget, I voted for both the President's budget and tax cut plans.
On the day of the final House vote, there was more similarity between the Democratic and Republican versions than people realized. The President's bill was revised several times in the last two weeks before the vote. It was revised only after some of us energy-state Democrats succeeded in getting windfall profits tax relief provisions put in the Democratic version.

Reagan Version Revised
Then, concluding that many conservative Democrats were going to support the Democratic version because it was better at that stage, the Republicans reversed themselves and revised the Hance-Conable plan, putting in virtually the same or better energy provisions that some of us had successfully negotiated into the Democratic bill. With other changes too detailed to mention here, the Reagan version became much better for most people in our district.

The District Wins on Taxes
The great victory for the 13th District is twofold. First, we passed a three-year tax cut bill which I supported early in concept and which we all hope will relieve people of oppressive federal taxes which remove personal incentive and discourage national productivity. Second, we won some direct, significant energy tax relief for those who should have been exempted from the windfall profits tax to start with.

The ball is now in the President's court. If he succeeds, we all win. If his plan fails, we must try other solutions. Thank you, too, for calling in or writing to let me know your views on these matters; your awareness and involvement will be crucial if these policies are to work.

After this time, the President appeared on nationwide television and solidified support for his version. My staff and I talked to roughly 3,000 people calling in over a period of some 36 hours, most of whom were for the President and whatever he was proposing. On the day of the vote, I reviewed the final

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

The Bible Is For You

No matter which translation of the Bible we examine, one fact stands out with particular emphasis and clarity: The Bible was written for the people, for the populace at large, not for some special class among them.

St. Paul addressed his epistles to both "laity" and "clergy": "To all that be in Rome" (Rom. 1:7), "unto the church...at Corinth...with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord" (1 Cor. 1:2), "unto the churches of Galatia" (Gal. 1:2), "to all the saints...at Philippi, with the bishops and deacons" (Phil. 1:1), etc.

When Paul proclaimed the gospel at Berea his hearers did not take even this great apostle's word for granted, but "searched the Scriptures daily, whether those things were so," and for this God called them "noble" (Acts 17:11). They were the true spiritual aristocracy of their day.

Our Lord, when on earth, encouraged—even challenged His audiences to "search the Scriptures" for themselves (John 5:39).

Indeed, since God has revealed Himself and His plan of salvation in the written Word, we are responsible, each one for himself, to study the Scriptures. When Dives begged Abraham to be allowed to go and warn his five brothers about the horrors of hades, Abraham replied, "They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them," and when Dives urged that a word from him would be more effective, Abraham answered: "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead" (Luke 16:29,31).

Do not depend upon your clergyman to interpret the Scriptures for you but see for yourself what they say, for "every one of us shall give account of HIMSELF to God" (Rom. 14:12) and it will not be enough in that day to say: "But my minister or priest told me..." You are responsible to "search the Scriptures" for yourself to "see whether these things are so."

Search the Scriptures, especially the Epistles of St. Paul, and learn God's wonderful plan of salvation. "Christ died for our sins" (1 Cor. 15:3). "We have redemption thru His blood" (Eph. 1:7). "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).

NUTRITIONISTS STUDY FAST-FOOD FATS

Millions of Americans eat at fast-food outlets every day, which is one of the reasons USDA nutrition scientists decided to do a study of foods served at these outlets. The study focused on fats, because nutritionists as well as the public are increasingly interested in food fats.

Analyses showed that composition of simple sandwiches such as hamburgers and cheeseburgers may be substantially different from composition of specialty sandwiches. For example, a Burger King hamburger provides 270 calories and 40 milligrams of cholesterol (averaged figures); the Burger King Double Beef Whopper provided 662 calories and 175 milligrams of cholesterol. Condiments on some specialty sandwiches can add considerably to the calorie intake. For example, the amount of mayonnaise normally added to a Burger King Whopper has 159 calories; the amount of McDonald's special sauce in a Big Mac has 105 calories; and the amount of tartar sauce in a Burger Chef Skippers Treat has 81 calories. Desserts did not vary as much in nutrient composition as the sandwiches.

Reliable data on the fats people eat are not easy to get. Even if data are available on the nutrient content of foods people buy, it is difficult to relate that to what they actually eat because there is so much variation in food preparation methods, eating habits, and portions of meals thrown away.

So-called "fast foods" offer a unique opportunity for collection of data on foods as eaten. The large chains standardize their products which controls amounts and ingredients. In the hamburger-type outlets the entire serving is edible, which minimizes statistical problems caused by variation in eating habits.

The volume of sales in fast food chains is another factor that makes such data statistically valuable. It is estimated that the three fast-food chains from which samples were purchased for the USDA study—Burger Chef, Burger King, and McDonald's—provide about 1 percent of all the food eaten in the United States.

The USDA study is believed to be the most comprehensive ever done of nutrients in fast foods. Fifty items including sandwiches, French fries, onion rings, shakes, and desserts were analyzed.

Complete data are available from the Information Office, Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Maryland 20705.

WHAT TO DO WHEN THE FREEZER FAILS

What do you do with food when the freezer breaks down or the power goes out?

Try to find out how long it will be before your freezer is working again and keep the door closed.

A fully loaded freezer will stay cold enough to keep food frozen for two days. A half-full freezer will only keep food cold for a day.

Meats that still contain ice crystals or have been maintained at 40 degrees F. (5 C.) or below for less than two days may be safely refrozen. Some quality may be lost, but the product is still wholesome. Throw out any food that has an unusual color or odor. Never refreeze ice cream.

If it looks like the power will be off for a long time or your freezer will not be repaired for a while, use dry ice. If dry ice is placed in the freezer soon after the power goes off, 25 pounds should keep the temperature below freezing for two to three days in a 10-cubic foot, half-full freezer and 3 to 4 days in a full freezer of the same size.

Handle dry ice carefully. Be sure the room is well ventilated, and never touch dry ice with your bare hands. Place the dry ice on cardboard or small boards on top of packages, and do not open the freezer again except to put in more dry ice or to remove it when your freezer is working again.

If using dry ice is not possible, move food to a food locker. Carry it to the locker in insulated boxes or thick layers of paper to prevent thawing. Or possibly a neighbor may be willing to store some of your food until your freezer is working.
