a view from
The Lamplighter

By Ken Towery

Once upon a time, many years ago, I found myself in the pine forests of East Texas near a place called Ratcliff, about 19 miles east of a place called Crockett, in a county named after Sam Houston. The year, as I recall, was 1939, and a President named Roosevelt had been in power since about 1933. I was then 16, going on 17, and about a year away from the Army, where I enlisted as a volunteer on my 18th birthday for the princely sum of $21.00 per month. I was, in short, in the old Civilian Conservation Corps, or CCC as it was called in those days, earning eight dollars each month for myself, and $22 dollars each month that went to the family, my mother and father and younger brother, or anyone else who happened to be eating out of the family larder at the time. From the eight dollars we paid our laundry, our barber bill, and whatever other incidentals might be attendaht to life under those conditions. The rest was saved.

It had been seven long years since Mr. Roosevelt took over with the promise of cutting government expenses and balancing the budget. Somewhere along the line things changed somewhat, as they have a tendency to do in politics. In an effort to drag the country out of the depression, an effort that was only partially successful, we had a whole proliferation of government agencies, the WPA, the PWA, the AAA, you name it, we had it. The CCC was one of those, and as far as I am concerned, the best of the lot.

Our job was to replant and restore the forests that had been laid waste by people who had made fortunes in the waste-laying process, and whose descendants, in more than one case, went on to become powers in Texas politics by championing the environment and the cause of "the little man". Now visitors to what is known as the "Davy Crockett National Forest" can walk in the solitude of giant pines planted and nurtured in those days. It is very beautiful.

But I did not always think so. I remember on one occasion I had decided that I had about all of East Texas I could stand. I approached our Captain (The 160 man camp was run by one retired Army Captain, one retired Army mess cook, and a retired sergeant. Now the government, in a similar program, would have at least one supervisor to each worker.) and told him I did not wish to reenlist for another six months. I wanted to go home.

His response was one of incredulity. Why would I want to leave, he asked, and I remember his words, "Why man this is the garden spot of the universe". I couldn't believe my ears.

A youngster in that condition does not talk back to the captain, but I remember thinking how wrong he was, and how limited his travels must have been. How could this be the garden spot of the universe when there was no cactus within 200 miles, no mesquite, no huisache, no catclaw, no ebony, no whitebrush, no sage, not even the friendly howl of coyotes at evening time.

I reflected on all that the other day after another foray around the countryside, up north a little ways through the canyons, then back down through the countryside and over through Dougherty and east to Roaring Springs and up to Matador and then back to Floyd County, to what now increasingly seems like "home". Perhaps as one gets a little older one can see beauty in all God's creation. I know I do. But still some things seem more beautiful than others, and I must confess that when the wind and sun are right we have beauty beyond compare all around us, from the fertile fields here to those rolling grasslands where the High Plains give way to the broken country below the Caprock. There is something infinitely beautiful in the way wind plays on tall grass at the close of day, especially so with cattle gathering in the distance, against a freshening north wind, and with the rays of a setting sun filtering across a serene landscape.

I don't know how that beauty can be improved upon, and, believe me folks,

Election date may change

April 6 is the date set for this year's city election, but it is questionable at this point that the date will hold. Monday the city rejected an offer of settlement issued from the office of William L. Garrett, attorney at law of Dallas, legal council for the plaintiffs in the pending lawsuit against the city's at-large voting system. Named as plaintiffs in that suit were Francisco Morales, Angelita Cortinas, and Higinio Villareal.

The offer of settlement, requiring acceptance or refusal by Monday, March 4, asked that the city establish a 4-2 system consisting of four single member districts and two at-large. According to the proposal, the at-large position receiving the most votes would determine the candidate elected mayor. The proposal was to be implemented with the April, 1985 elections, even if the city elections would have to be postponed.

A counter-offer from the city officials was made by Tom Milam, the city's attorney, associated with Crenshaw, Dupree & Milam of Lubbock, would have established two single member districts, three councilmen elected at-large and the mayor elected at-large under that system. The 2-3-1 would be implemented with the April, 1986 elections.

The suit, even though it has not been certified as a class action suit yet, was originally filed against the city December 21, 1984. Floydada, with a population under 5,000, is governed by state law. "There is no law authorizing single-member districts in cities under general law," said Mayor Powell.

Supporters of the lawsuit and attorneys for the plaintiffs, denying that they are costing taxpayers money (estimated from $8,000 to $76,000 initially.) If the city loses the case, the costs would escalate sharply with the city being liable for attorney's fees on both sides.

Rolando Rios, attorney for the plaintiffs, gave several example cities and school districts in the state that had had to alter their process for single-member districts, either by losing their cases in court or settling out of court in satisfaction with plaintiff's terms.

Even though Floydada is, according to the attorney, the smallest city he has filed on in a single-member district case, "large or small doesn't make the difference." Several factors, he said, that the court uses to reach a decision on such a case might include whether districts could be drawn to establish minority control in any certain area, how many board and commission members and how many city officials had been minorities, and whether there had been any history of discrimination in the city. Some of those cities include Alvin, Victoria, Midland, Corpus Christi, Lubbock, Taft, Portales and Clovis. Big Spring, Lamesa and Lubbock school districts have also been involved.

At press time no injunction had been filed in the Federal District court as the Offer of Settlement proposed by the plaintiffs had set out. Such an injunction would halt the upcoming election and would prevent further elections from being held until a plan was worked out by the Justice Department and the court.

With Wednesday, March 6, closing the period for filing for the two positions of councilman and mayor, five candidates had filed for those three respective positions by late Wednesday. Mayor Parnell Powell is the incumbent candidate in the mayor's race, running unopposed. Four candidates have filed in the councilman's race: Don Green, Ginger Warren, Tino Morales, and Wayne Russell. Green and Russell are seeking re-election. Morales ran unsuccessfully for the same position in 1983.

More tax lawsuits to be filed

Chief Appraiser Sheila Faulkenberry reported that 82 more lawsuits requesting judgements will be filed in district court on March 7 for the purpose of collecting delinquent taxes. "These suits are the first step in the process of collecting delinquencies in both personal property and real property taxes on 82 different people," stated Faulkenberry.

Eight more suits have now progressed to the point of seizure and are scheduled to be presented to Judge authority for the seizures. "Four of these are businesses and will be closed Miller on the 25th of March to request for non payment of taxes if the taxes are not paid within 24 hours after the documents are served," said Faulkenberry.

Other action in the March 6 meeting included the payment of the bills for the month and reading of the monthly report. Faulkenberry reported that collections for the year are 90% complete. This percentage is smaller than last year at the end of February and has been attributed to the fact that some people are paying delinquent taxes before looking at current taxes.

The board authorized the payment of a $40.00 bond and a $14.00 filing fee for Arlene Bearden to apply for a commission as a Notary Public. "A Notary in the office would alleviate the need for one of us to be out of the office a great deal of the time in order to have documents notarized as we frequently must," said Faulkenberry. The commission would be valid for four years.

The Whirlwind Relays will be held Saturday, March 9. Field entry and preliminary running will begin at 9:00 a.m. The finals begin at 1:30 p.m.

Mail offer scam hits South Plains

Hundreds, perhaps thousands, of South Plains consumers have received a mailing from American Heritage Redemption Center, Inc. of Los Angeles, California. The mailing offers consumers their choice of a RCA Model PKC-600R 45" projection television for $89.00 or two ATC110 three wheel Honda motorcycles for $264.00. The mailing includes a $1,500 look-a-like check to be returned with the consumer's check. Locally, the television set accepting this offer. Not only is the offer completely illogical from a business standpoint; but the company's phone number has already been disconnected after being in operation for five days. Local Honda dealers have received a mailgram from American Heritage informing them that Honda has no arrangement with American Heritage to distribute the motorcycles through American Heritage and does not support the program. The BBB of Los Angeles has been unable to identify the company and is coordinating efforts in investigating the company. Customers who have sent in money should contact the BBB/South Plains for more information.

Other action at the meeting was minimal. Superintendent Jerry Cannon, high school principal Ronnie Wood, and Andrews Elementary principal C.E. Tyler were appointed to the career ladder committee. I've seen more than a little of this earth's surface. From the beaches of Tanzania to the plains of Africa to the islands of the South Pacific to the frozen steppes of Russia to the fringes of the great Gobi in China and the slopes of the Andes; wherever my country called, usually with one suitcase full of clothes and another full of sardines and dried milk.

It was, and is, all beautiful in its own way. I remember going through the San Bernadino Straits near the island of Samar in the Philippines as a young recruit on the way to Corregidor many, many years ago. We entered the straits before daylight, and as the ship treaded its way among the multitude of small islands that dot the strait, the first moments of dawn appeared. Suddenly, it seemed, we were sailing in a sea of red paint, and scores of fishermen in their little banks were all around us, also sailing in a sea of red paint. That's the way it happens there; the sun, from below the horizon, reflects off clouds in the sky, and in turn bounces off the water, turning the whole into a kaleidoscope of colors. In this instance the whole was a deep red that changed from one moment to the next, as the sun came nearer the horizon. But almost as suddenly as it began, it was over; the sun rose, the day began.

Here the beauty is different. There is a permanence about it, a permanence that sometimes is taken for granted by all of us as we go about the daily task of earning a living and paying the tax collectors. But once in a while, it seems to me, we ought to take a second look, and give thanks to God for making it all possible.

ENERGY SAVING TIPS

Added Duct Insulation Improves Heating

If you are troubled by high heating bills or cold, drafty rooms, un-insulated ductwork may be part of your problem. In many homes, energy bills can be lowered and heating efficiency increased by insulating two parts of the ductwork which are often left "in the cold."

The return ducts, which carry slightly cooled room air to the furnace for reheating, are often either poorly insulated, or not insulated at all. These ducts usually run through chilly attics. If they are not adequately insulated, the returning air cools to well below room temperature before it reaches the furnace. This means that the furnace has to work harder to heat the air, resulting in cooler register air and higher heating bills.

The other section of ductwork which is often a problem area includes all the upturns from main ducts into floor registers near the outer walls of the house. The outer faces of these bends in the ductwork are usually left uninsulated. Since the joint between masonry and woodwork on the outer wall is unsealed, cold air can blow directly against the bare duct. The result, of course, is cooler register air.

By insulating these overlooked areas of the ductwork, and sealing the joint between masonry and woodwork near floor registers, you can ease the burden on your furnace and stop cold drafts from finding their way into the rooms of your house.

And if you live beyond the natural gas mains and want to get the greatest energy savings possible from your heating system, you should consider investing in an efficient propane gas furnace. Propane provides safe, comfortable heating at a very affordable price.

For further information on the economical alternative of heating with propane gas, call the Texas L.P. Gas Association's hot line toll-free at 1-800-252-8232.

OUR BATTLE AGAINST RESPIRATORY DISTRESS SYNDROME IN NEWBORNS HAS HELPED BABIES — AND THEIR FAMILIES — BREATHE A WHOLE LOT EASIER.

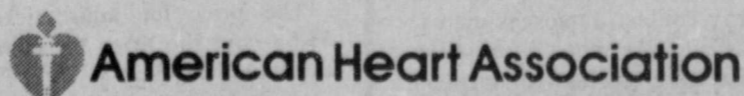

The world is pretty tough if you're born with immature lungs. The tragic fact is Respiratory Distress Syndrome is the leading cause of death among newborns, killing over 7,000 babies each year.

But American Heart Association research scientist John A. Clements, M.D. is working hard to discover its causes — and cures. He has shown that victims don't produce enough of the crucial chemical that promotes full lung expansion. Knowing this, doctors can perform a pre-natal test for the presence of this chemical in the womb. If a problem is foreseen, drug therapy can help save the baby.

And Dr. Clements is continuing to develop new treatments for babies born with Respiratory Distress Syndrome.

We support thousands of projects as important as this one. But we need your help. A contribution to the American Heart Association is an investment in research that makes a difference. And even gives the littlest among us a bigger fighting chance.

Make a Milk Carton Windmill

by Peter Hamilton Kent

Have you ever wanted to see a windmill in action? You can—if you make this milk carton windmill. You'll need a quart milk carton, construction paper, paint, a drinking straw, a piece of stiff wire about 7" long, and strong glue.

Cut the top from the milk carton. Paint the carton, or cover it with paper. Cut two central slots on opposite sides at the top edge of the carton. Glue a piece of straw 1" long in each slot. Now make a pinwheel from a piece of construction paper 5" square. Cut along the lines shown in the drawing. Bend and glue every other tip to the center. Push the wire through the center of the pinwheel. For a "gear" cut a paper circle with slots around the edge. With the pinwheel in front, slide the wire through the first straw. Next, hold the gear inside the carton and poke the wire through its center. Slide the wire through the second straw and bend both ends of the wire to hold in place. Now watch the wind turn your windmill and the paper gear!

Floyd County Probation Office starts new project

A new Intensive Supervision Project (ISP) is now underway in the adult probation department in Floyd County. The ISP began January 1, and out of 254 counties in the state of Texas, Floyd county is one of the about 30 counties who are participating. Only 19 of the 116 judicial districts have this program.

The county probation officers involved in this program are James Williams and James Pevehouse. They serve the whole 110th judicial district which includes, Floyd, Briscoe, Motley, and Dickens counties. Williams works 2 1/2 days, 20 hours a week, and Pevehouse, Chief Adult Probation Officer, is employed full time.

The probationers who are set up in this new program come out of the 110th district. All in all there were 180 people on probation within the last month in this district. The largest amount of people being from Floyd County. Out of these probationers a few are started in the Intensive Supervision Project. Since the start of the program in January there have been five probationers put into the ISP. Pevehouse feels that the figure will pick up at about two each month and stabilize to between one and two dozen.

In the ISP only felony cases of non-violent repeat offenders will be handled. The district attorney and the state judge decide who is eligible for ISP. No violent offenders or sex offenders are admitted into the program. First offenders are also not allowed into the program; instead, only someone who would probably go to the penitentiary because of prior offenses on his record, are put into the ISP for intensive individual treatment.

Williams states that, "The terms of probation are harder in the ISP. There is once a week contact which includes office visits, home visits, and on the job visits. The probationer needs a travel permit to leave the city, suitable employment, has to support dependents, and have no association with persons of questionable character. Even though many of these stipulations apply to the regular probationer." Williams adds that, "The probationer on ISP does not have as many chances as a regular probationer. It is much easier to revoke probation and go to the pen when you are in the ISP. If he messes up one time then he goes back—within reason of course."

There are certain requirements the probation department has to meet before it can implement the ISP. The case load has got to be about 1/5th the size of a normal caseload, because in the ISP four to five times more paperwork is required. Also the contact with the probationer is once a week instead of the normal once a month. There has to be 10 people in the program in order to get funding from the state.

The funding for this program is higher with 10% of the funding going toward treatment such as drug counseling and psychological testing. The probation officers work up treatment planning which may help the offender stay out of prison. The offender will only be in the program one year and then go to the regular probation terms.

Pevehouse states that, "At this time the majority of the offenders in this district's program are felony D.W.I.'s. A joint program is worked out with the Vernon State Hospital that will coincide with their rehabilitation program. The probationer is sent to the Vernon State Hospital for a period of time and goes through their detoxification."

Naharin appears at FJHS and Lockney Elementary

Dancer/choreographer Ohad Naharin, an Aetna Affiliate Artist, is scheduled to appear with the Lubbock Civic Ballet during late February and early March. He will also perform informally and discuss his life as a dancer with a variety of community groups while in the area. One of his final performances was in Floydada on March 5 at 11:30 a.m. Naharin appeared at the junior high and repeated his performance at Lockney Elementary. The Floyd County Arts Association has been instrumental in bringing this informal educational experience to Floyd County youngsters.

Lake Mackenzie offers fishing and camping

With the weather warming and fisherman and week-end campers are beginning to try their fishing skills at Lake Mackenzie. With the water temperature in the lower forties fishing has been very slow. However, with Spring just around the corner the temperatures will continue to rise and the fish will become more active and start moving from the deep water into the shallow warmer water. Last summer more bass, cat fish, hybrid and walleye were caught than any previous year. Results from fertilizing the coves three years ago really made a difference in the size of crappie caught last spring and with another years growth we are expecting

It is pointed out by Pevehouse that, "This project is better economically for the taxpayer. It costs approximately $28.00 a day for a person to stay in the penitentiary, and approximately $13.00 a day to stay in the county jail. For the Intensive Supervision probationer it is $5.00 a day. The probationer himself pays $15.00 a month supervision fee, which goes to the district fund for the probation departments operation and to help pay salaries.

"The ISP program originally started in Georgia. All similar programs are patterned after the Model Georgia program," says Pevehouse. Pevehouse feels that since they have only been in the program two months it is too early to determine the success rate, but he points out that of the districts in Texas who have had it for a year, none of them have gotten out. He says that, "on regular probation terms the revocation rate is 10%, and on the ISP the revocation rate is 50%." But Pevehouse is quick to point out that that is also a 50% success rate. "The figures are misleading because it has to be understood that the non-violent habituals are the hardest to rehabilitate because you are breaking acquired habits."

To help out in the program the probation department hopes to be receiving a testing machine next month. The machine will take a urine-analysis to determine if someone has been drinking or using drugs. The funding for the machine will come from the state.

Besides supervising probationers the probation department also collects fines, restitutions, court costs, and attorney fees. The state and county get the fines collected and the victims get the restitution. The probation office works both the county and district courts.

The probation office is funded thru various areas besides the $15.00 collected from each probationer. The county supplies the office space, phone service, and equipment. The state pays for travel, salaries, supplies, and training. It is required of each probation officer that he attend a 40-hour school in Huntsville every year, and attend additional workshops to supervise on the ISP.

James Williams, 36, was born and raised in Floydada. Except for five years in the army in the military police, he has lived in Floydada all his life. He married his wife, Cindy, from Midland, 16 years ago. Cyndi owns and operates Williams Florist, where James helps out in his spare time. The couple have two children, a son, Austin, who is 9 years old and a five-year-old daughter, Ashleigh. He has been with the probation department almost one year.

James Pevehouse, who is 28, is single and was born and raised in Spur where he is now living. He has been the Chief Adult Probation Officer for five years. He also has a full time office in Spur. Before working in this probation office he was also a probation officer in Lubbock and before that worked as "a type of house-parent" in a juvenile home.

Pevehouse and Williams are used to negative outlooks on probation in general, but as Williams points out, "The prisons are so full now that the non-violent criminals have become low priority for them. Each year there is an increase of 35-40,000 people put on probation." It is Williams and Pevehouses' hope that the Intensive Supervision Project will help those on probation who want to change and help themselves.

Social Security News

By Terry J. Clements

Although Social Security learns about deaths of people getting Social Security benefits in a timely fashion, in most cases from relatives, friends and funeral home directors, in a few cases they are not reported.

If a death is reported but checks continue to arrive, it means Social Security's system has not yet been corrected. The person who made the initial report should simply write the word "Deceased" on the envelope of the check and give it to the postman or drop it in the mailbox. When the check is returned to the Treasury Department, Social Security will automatically be notified of the death.

Sometimes the failure to report is intentional because someone is trying to defraud the Social Security Administration. However, Social Security is making an intense effort to prevent this from happening.

To assure that checks are stopped after a person has died, Social Security has been matching its records against those of other Federal agencies in an effort to identify those on the rolls who have died.

In addition, Social Security is in the process of arranging to match its records against State death-certificate computer records. Despite any measures Social Security takes, the quickest way Social Security can be notified of a death is to call a Social Security office or to write "Deceased" on the envelope of the check and give it to the postman.

People who are interested in learning more about reporting responsibilities can get a copy of the free booklet, YOUR RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES, at the Social Security office located at 1401-B W 5th street, or you may call us at 293-9623.

RUTH BARNETT—The First National Bank guest artist for March spends much of her time out of doors in a successful attempt at capturing the beauty and wonders of nature.

Barnett is Floydada FNB March Artist of the Month

Ruth Barnett, a Hale Center native, has been selected as the First National Bank of Floydada Artist of the Month for March. Barnett has a talent for translating her perception of nature into lovely scenes with oils and pastels. She also creates exquisite sketches.

Barnett's detailed work is the result of constant study of the relationship of nature to shape and color. A sensitivity to the mood of the day, time, and place adds an extra dimension to her work.

Scenes are the primary focus of Barnett's repertoire. She favors old houses, windmills, and barns of Texas. The mountains of New Mexico and scenes of New England are also featured. Barnett displays her seemingly unlimited talents in still lifes and flower arrangements, as well as in portraits.

Asked to write a thumbnail sketch of herself and her work, Barnett replied,

"I can not put my thoughts down on paper with a pen. I can only do that with a paint brush."

A veteran artist and teacher of art, Barnett studied six years with the late Henrietta Ludeman of Plainview. She has also studied with Kathleen Hail Travis and William Golf of Ruidoso, New Mexico, Emily Guthrie Smith of Dallas, and William Earl of Connecticut, among others.

Barnett has received innumerable art awards and her works can be found in many homes and private collections throughout the United States. Her art is also on display at the Llano Estacado Museum in Plainview.

The first National Bank is proud to welcome this distinguished artist to Floydada. Her paintings are available for viewing during regular business hours, 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Monday thru Friday in the bank lobby.

Rankin reads DAR winning essay

The Buffalo Grass Chapter DAR met at Lighthouse Electric on February 26 at 7:30 p.m. Marisue Potts, Emily Johnston and Mamie Yeates were hostesses to this meeting.

The Regent, Anne Swebston called the meeting to order. After the ritualistic opening, Jeanette Wilson read the President General's message for February. Sherry Colston gave the National Defense report using an article from the National Defender. A report on Liberty Love Day was given and Emma Lou Whitaker reported a sum of almost $200 had been given for the fund for the restoration of the Statue of Liberty.

Guests, Mrs. Beth Rankin and her daughter, Robin of Ralls were introduced by Jeanette Wilson. Anne Swebston presented Robin with a certificate and pin in recognition of her entry in the DAR Good Citizen Contest. Robin was also designated as the winner of the essay contest and Miss Swebston presented her with a check for $100 from Buffalo Grass Chapter. Robin read her essay "America and its People." The essay read as follows:

America and its People

America, land of opportunity, hopes and dreams, has brought pride and patriotism to its people. The freedom of liberty, speech, and the pursuit of happiness have been achieved through the sweat and blood of our fore-fathers, so that we may be able to live in a land flowing with milk and honey; a land that is prosperous in growth and in love.

Our fore-fathers came to a land with dreams of being successful; they came to America, however, when they arrived they encountered many problems. Nevertheless, these problems did not stop our ancestors from settling the land, and thus, America was born. Throughout the years, our fore-fathers continued to fight for their new-found country; America soon became bountiful and a sense of patriotism was instituted.

As patriotism grew within the hearts of the American people, a sense of independence began to flame in their eyes. This new country possessed an independence where the American people fought and died for strength and unity.

The American Revolution was the final stage in establishing American independence, and our "Founding Fathers" wrote of liberty, equality, and happiness which still stands strong today as a part of our American legacy. However, independence is not over because with each passing day patriotism and pride continues to flourish within the souls of the American people.

When patriotism and pride are developed, a country begins to be prosperous and fertile; America is such a country. Prosperity and America go hand in hand to form a strong country. With the will and hope of the American people to succeed, America succeeds and we see how a country is united with its people.

America is what the American people are; the unity in love, prosperity and opportunity is eternal. As an American citizen, I also live in this unity, however, with unity comes responsibility: the obligations we have as an American citizen toward America.

We are a democratic nation where the people have freedom of speech, religion, and other personable rights. As America gives us these rights, we, in the same sense, have rights to our country; duties that are needed for America's survival.

Voting is only one major responsibility I have toward my country, I must also obey the laws America has endowed for its people. I honor my American heritage and pledge to the American flag with pride. As freedom of religion allows, I trust in God and He gives me the love to keep believing in the American way of life; to believe in hope, dreams and opportunity.

As I have said, America has come a long way; first being an unproductive land, then transforming in to a nation with liberty and justice for all. The American people, with hope in their hearts, brought to America well-being and prosperity. With dreams in their minds, the American people determine America's future. America was and is indeed what each individual citizen is; America's fate has always been held in the hands of its people.

Following the reading of Robin's essay Anne Swebston conducted a quiz on American History. Loretta Denning reported the flag had been obtained for the Ralls Senior Citizens Center and a group will go to Ralls Thursday, March 7, for the presentation of the flag to that organization.

The chapter voted to present the historical book "The Texas Connection to the Ralls, Matador and Floydada libraries in observance of the Texas Sesquicentennial next year.

Marisue Potts announced the winners of the essay contest for Junior High school students. They were: Tiffany Gentry, Tim Julian, Sue Hong and Diana Coronado.

Members and visitors present included: Beth and Robin Rankin, visitors from Ralls; Mary Lou Bollman, Loretta Denning, Ona Ruth Neff, Marisue Potts, Anne Swebston, Sherry Colston, Venoy Sanders, Emily Johnson, Janis

Julian, Blanche Williams, Jeanette Wilson, Margaret Wheeler and Emma Lou Whitaker.

The next meeting will be March 26 at 7:30 p.m.

SOS holds quarterly meeting

Floydada Spirit of Sharing Board of Directors held its quarterly meeting at the First National Bank community room on February 26th. Several reports were presented to the board by the Executive Committee. Among these were: The 1984 annual financial statement and the budget for 1985; the SOS client log which showed that over the past thirteen months, SOS has dispensed emergency assistance in the form of food, clothing transportation, and lodging to approximately 435 families, 1531 persons; interesting statistics compiled by Bennie Leibfried, Volunteer Coordinator for the period from March, 1984 to January, 1985: total workers-70; days worked-1,062; total man hours=3,186. This did not include outside time spent by committee chairman and officers.

Several changes were made on the executive committee. Emily Johnston was appointed Interviewer Coordinator, and Si Medley was named chairman of the building committee. Helen Lipham, Communication Chairman, was re-assigned. She will assist Peggy Medley as co-chairman of the food pantry; and John Key West will be assisting Lorin Leibfried as co-chairman of the transportation committee.

Grant Chapel Church of God in Christ was welcomed as a new SOS member church, bringing the membership total to thirteen. It was the consensus of the board that a personal invitation to become a member church be extended to all non-member churches in Floydada.

The board agreed unanimously that the Constitution and By-Laws need study. The officers were commissioned to do this. Necessary amendments are to be made and presented to the Executive Committee for discussion and approval. Finalized amendments, which will be voted on at the May meeting of the Board of Directors, are to be sent to board members for study, prior to the meeting.

Those present were: Helen Martin, Peggy Medley, Margie Sue, Jack McIntosh, Helen Lipham, Pauline Pierce, Jo Bryant, Bennie Leibfried, Lorin Leibfried, John Key West, Evelyn Latta, Rev. Javier Fernandez, Delia Fernandez, Pat Gonzalez, John Campbell, Esterlene Windom, Lou A. Williams, and Regi Gross.

Wilson tours with groups

At the beginning of the 1984-85 school year two musical groups called "The One Accord" and "His Song" were formed within the Baptist Student Union at Texas Tech University.

Beginning March 8 these groups will be traveling to South Padre Island to conduct a series of concerts on the beach.

Following this they will also perform at area churches, First Baptist Church, Brownville Weslaco, and Matamoras, Mexico.

Among those musicians traveling with "The One Accord" is freshman student Christine Wilson from Floydada.

FmHA offers credit help

New Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) regulations allow commercial banks and other lenders to write down interest rates for farm borrowers who could not otherwise get a production loan for Spring planting according to Texas FmHA State Director J. Lynn Futch.

The regulations, published in the Federal Register February 15, are in addition to earlier rule changes which helped lenders make loans to some farm borrowers who were having trouble making payments on their loans.

The earlier changes, announced last September, offered an FmHA guarantee on a portion of the loan if the lender agreed to write off at least ten percent of the principal. The FmHA guarantee is an agreement that the Federal government will make up part of the loss to the lender if the borrower defaults.

Banks and other lenders told FmHA that they could help more farm borrowers if they could write down interest rates instead of, or in combination with, writing off part of the principal. In response to their requests, FmHA made the rule change allowing the interest write down in exchange in lieu of a write off. The borrowers loan payments must be the same under this option.

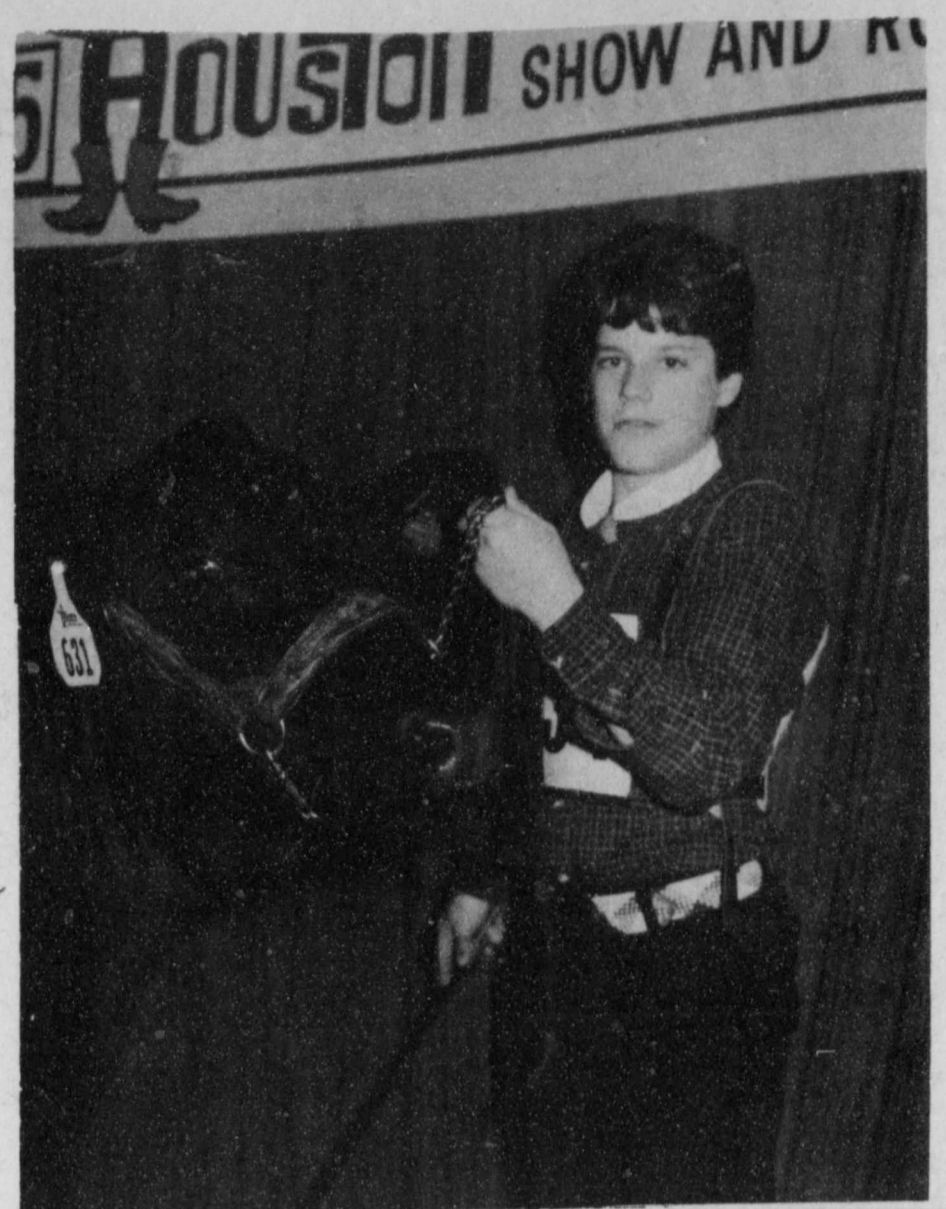

Futch said the new rules will enable many lenders to help some farmers, whose loans are classified as substandard. "Lenders, who feel this Debt Adjustment Program can help, will review loans they now have with farmers who are having trouble repaying. They will determine whether or not the farmer could make payments if the loan is reduced by at least ten percent. If so, the lender can come to FmHA to get our guarantee on part of the remaining debt."

"With the assurance that a large portion of the debt is guaranteed, the bank or other lender is in a better position to extend credit to farmers for production expenses this Spring," Futch said.

"Even this additional assistance will not reach every farmer who is having economic problems. The farmer must be able to show that debt payments can be made within the expected cash flow. To do this, the farmer's expected income from all sources must exceed expenses by ten percent. Expenses include debt payments, tax payments, and family living expenses as well as production."

"With the cooperation of banks, other lenders, and FmHA, many good farmers who, for reasons beyond their control, are suffering financial stress will be able to continue their operations," Futch said.

The new regulations are being sent from the national office in Washington to the nearly 2,000 local FmHA offices. "Official agency instructions will be sent to local offices, including the 136 county offices in Texas as soon as possible," Futch said.

Dealers convene for historic meet

It was agricultural history in the making last week in Las Vegas when Case IH dealers from around the country joined forces for the first time.

Steve Brown, owner of Floydada's new Case IH agricultural equipment dealership, Brown's Implement joined nearly 2,200 other dealer principals for the formal kick-off of the expanded J I Case agricultural equipment operation. On January 31, 1985, the U.S. Justice Department gave the final green light to Tenneco Inc.'s purchase of International Harvester's agricultural equipment business, which has now been merged into Tenneco affiliate, J I Case, headquartered in Racine, Wisconsin.

A high point of the dealer meetings was the unveiling of colors and graphics for the new Case International product line. Displayed on a Case IH 2096 tractor, the new graphics feature a major IH hallmark -- the characteristic IH red.

The new logo retains the best of both traditions, putting the two established logos side by side -- Case IH. This fresh look will soon be a familiar sight across the continent.

"There was a terrific feeling in the air," said Brown. "The entire Case IH dealer organization was excited -- excited to see the equipment, excited about the new look, the new logo, the new colors -- and excited to be a part of the new Case IH Agricultural Equipment dealer network."

"Our Case IH dealers can offer the most complete product line in the industry, backed by the financial strength of Tenneco," he said.

Case IH dealers participated in intensive training seminars on product features such as the Case IH Intelligence Center, CDC engines and power transmissions. The seminars also profiled equipment lines including combines, hay and forage tools, planters and tillage equipment.

In addition to product information, dealers learned of new financing programs, warranties, parts availability and other information vital to farm customers.

"I think our customers will be delighted the way things are shaping up," said Brown. "Both Case and IH warranties will be fully honored, parts availability will be excellent -- and Case financing, warranties and service will just be outstanding," he said.

New Case IH dealers carry two- and four-wheel drive agricultural tractors up to 400 gross engine horsepower, plus a full line of planting, harvesting, tillage and other agricultural equipment. The equipment line reflects the technological expertise of two strongly innovative companies.

Early Riser CycloR Air planters and Axial-FlowR combines offer unparalleled productivity and efficiency. The Case IH Intelligence Center, standard on most tractor models, is the industry's most comprehensive electronic monitoring system.

New Case state-of-the-art diesel engines, already featured in the Case 96 Series tractors, will gradually be phased into all of the company's agricultural and construction equipment.

Case is a worldwide manufacturer and marketer of construction and agricultural equipment.

Tenneco, Inc., with headquarters in Houston, is a $15-billion, multi-industry company with major operations in integrated oil, natural gas, pipelines, construction and agricultural equipment, automotive components, chemicals, shipbuilding, packaging, life insurance and agricultural/land management.

LANDSCAPE AND GARDENING

By Benny Butler

PRUNING WOODY ORNAMENTALS

Conditions are still very good for pruning woody ornamentals and fruit trees if you haven't already done so. However, don't just prune automatically or because you need the exercise. If you can't justify the removal of each limb or branch, put up your clippers and go spade the garden instead.

Some of the right reasons for pruning include removing dead or winter-killed growth or balancing the top with the root system when setting out new plants. Diseased or insect-injured wood, as well as storm or accident-damaged limbs, should be removed as soon as possible.

Older shrubs can be rejuvenated by removing the older branches at the base. Pruning can also help develop a desired shape or size as well as aid in producing better flowers and fruit.

Severe pruning should be avoided if possible. It is better to prune lightly and more often to prevent sunscald to the sensitive inner branches. Never leave stubs that invite the entry of insects and disease.

Plants which bloom in early spring with the appearance of new leaves should be pruned after they flower. Those that bloom later in the spring or summer should be pruned during the dormant season. Always use sharp tools to make pruning less burdensome. For additional pruning information contact the county Extension Office.

RUST EPIDEMIC IMPENDING IN HIGH PLAINS WHEAT

The threat of a devastating outbreak of leaf rust in Texas High Plains wheat fields is the greatest it has been in more than two decades, a plant pathologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service warned.

"In 22 years in this area, I've never seen such active rust infections at this time of year," said Dr. Robert Berry, the pathologist.

Berry issued the warning to producers following a survey Thursday (Feb. 28) of fields in Hale County with Danny Nusser, assistant Hale County Extension Agent. They found extremely active rust spore production in southern and western parts of the county.

The disease requires moisture on the plant leaf and suitable temperatures, such as have occurred across the Plains in recent weeks, Berry said. "At 70 degrees, infection can occur in four hours and the complete cycle, producing spores which then repeat the infection of other leaves, takes 10 to 12 days," the Extension specialist explained. At 60 degrees, the cycle takes twice as long, he said.

A fungus, the rust appears as small, round orange spots or pustules. They appear right at the groundline on the oldest leaves of the plant.

If the infection is heavy enough, it will defoliate the plant. "Even light rust will interfere with development of the grain," Berry warned.

"Many fields which we saw in our survey have high weed populations. Many also have thin stands. These conditions don't promise a high yield potential," Berry noted.

He suggested that dryland producers who have thin stands and poor yield outlook may want to consider grazing out their fields hit by rust. "If an irrigated crop with good potential develops rust, the producer might want to consider a fungicide application at the jointing stage," he said.

"It is generally thought that, economically, fungicide should only be applied to wheat that has a potential for a yield in the 80-100 bushel range," he said. He noted that new fungicides, such as Bayleton, are very effective, but are rather expensive.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Cheese consumption in the United States has grown from 8.4 pounds per capita in 1960 to 20.8 pounds in 1983. Canadian cheese consumption is currently 17.4 pounds per capita, and in Argentina it is 16 pounds per person. Other Western Hemisphere countries, however, report per capita consumption at less than five pounds per person. In some European countries, cheese consumption is more than double that in the United States. People in Greece consume an average of 43 pounds each, in France 42 and in Italy 33.5.

BY DON & SARA PROBASCO

Don't knock the weather. Without it nine out of ten people couldn't start a conversation.

No man is really a failure until he begins to blame somebody else.

There are two kinds of failures: the man who will do nothing he is told to do, and the man who will do nothing else.

Despite all of our accomplishments, man owes his existence to a six-inch layer of topsoil and the fact that it rains.

Ninety percent of the work done in this country is done by people who don't feel well.

A mother was having a difficult time persuading her son to go to school one morning. "Nobody likes me," he said. "The teachers don't and the kids don't. And the superintendent wants to transfer me." "That doesn't make any difference," said his mother. "You're forty years old, you're the principal, and you've got to go."

A little kindness from person to person is far better than a vast love for all mankind.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Thurston were among the guests who attended the supper at the Massie Activity Center Saturday evening. The delicious ham and all the trimmings were prepared by the junior high and high school classes of the City Park Church of Christ as a gesture of appreciation toward all the adults of the church. The youth were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Danny Hutt, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Washburn. Seventy guests were present.

Mrs. Choise Smith and son, Dean, worked in the Junior Historian refreshment booth Saturday during the UIL meet at Floydada Junior High. The young people were raising money to finance their trip to Washington D.C. during Spring break.

Spring-like weather impelled Mr. and Mrs. James McLaugh to get in their camper and travel to Roaring Springs for the weekend.

Weather has been warm and sunny during the daytime and still freezing cold at night.

Miss Marlyse McLaugh and other high school girls are looking forward to flag corps tryouts within the next few weeks.

At the 4-H meeting Monday night March 4, Misty Bertrand gave the inspiring thought. Angie Bertrand conducted the business in the absence of regular officers. Austin Williams also attended the meeting at the M.A.C. The junior boys are getting ready for the 4-H rifle project.

Mrs. Juli Womack and Mrs. Q.D. Williams helped at the U.I.L. meet at Junior High Saturday.

The oil well is lighted up again as the workmen prepare for pumping oil. A study of old Hesperian files reveal the first well back in the 1950's pumped around 300 barrels a day, and it is believed this one is as good. This good fortune couldn't happen to better people than Dee and Nita Adams. They are always ready to help a neighbor and lend a hand. What a fitting reward for a lifetime of hard work to get an oil well in their backyard.

Judge Choise Smith and son Hunter returned home Friday from the Houston Livestock Show.

Wheat fields are green as emeralds now. Cattle are grazing on nearly all wheat patches.

Mrs. Monte Williams helped at the Chinese Auction sponsored by the Floyd County Fine Arts Association last Saturday evening.

Congratulations and best wishes to one of Lakeviews young bachelors Jeff Bertrand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Bertrand. The engagement of Jeff and Miss Cindy Marie Marble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marble of South Plains was announced last week. It's good to have our young couples settle in our county and we wish them every happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. Q.D. Williams attended funeral services for George Self in Crowell last Tuesday.

Spring Break begins Friday afternoon, March 8, for ten days until March 18. Have a good rest.

Mrs. Riley Teague visited in Lubbock Sunday afternoon to see a new great grandchild.

Mrs. Louis Pyle returned home by plane over the week-end from the Houston Livestock Show where her son, David, was an entrant with his animal in the junior show.

DID YOU KNOW?

To be effective, prescription medicines must be used correctly. • Pharmacists report an average of 25.2 questions daily from customers concerning prescription drugs.

• About 300,000 people are hospitalized each year from prescription drug reactions and 2,500 die from alcohol-prescription drug interactions.

• Now pharmacists have free patient information leaflets (PILs). They're part of a consumer education program of the National Association of Retail Druggists, in cooperation with the United Pharmacopoeial Dispensing Information and its Updates. It was started in the hope of reducing the likelihood of underinformed consumers needing treatment for drug interactions, due to mismanagement of their drug therapy.

• Over 130,000,000 Americans take at least one prescription drug a year.

South Plains News

By Mrs. Murray Julian

South Plains, March 4th:

Sunday's wind storm was terrific and those of us who were in Plainview during the afternoon could hardly stand up, nor see in the dust and wind. It blew straight through the day and some part of the night, with beautiful, cold weather then on Monday, and no wind. It is 29 degrees with calm, blue skies.

Several from here went to Clovis, New Mexico this Saturday, March 2nd, to attend the funeral services for Mrs. Vera Armstrong, who passed away at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock on the Wednesday before. Services were held in Clovis, at 10:00 a.m. at the First United Methodist Church there, with burial in the Lawn Cemetery. Vera had spent part of her growing up years here in the South Plains community. When she married, she and her husband had lived in Clovis, where she had taught school for many years, then she had retired. Those who went to the services from here were Rev. Cecil Osborne, Nina and Raymond Upton, Ruby Lee Higginbotham, and Frances and Billy Staniforth. We extend our sympathy to Johnny and Oleta Wilson and all the grieving relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan and Bobbie Kinnibrough spent the past week-end down at Truscot with his father, J.A. Kinnibrough who was celebrating his 93rd birthday. Sylvan's sisters, brothers and families were there including Beth and Robert Spain and Latham of Plainview with Melissa and mother, Marilyn Horne of Iowa Park who came to help him celebrate.

The Junior American Citizen Club of South Plains School met February 27 at the school. The program was "What is a Patriot?" The next meeting will be March 27th, and the club will be participating in a poster contest. 30 members of the club were present.

Mrs. Letha Mulder went Wednesday to Amarillo to visit her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Taylor and children. She returned home Friday.

Mrs. Wanda Teeple is now at the Heritage Home in Plainview. She was formerly at the Floydada Convalescent Home.

Mrs. Hansel Sanders (Connie) was home the early part of this past week after she had spent some time in Lubbock taking tests, with doctors looking to find about gall bladder trouble. This past week on Tuesday she had other tests which showed she is doing fine at this time, we are glad to say.

Mrs. Mildred Thornton is still in Methodist Hospital at Lubbock. She is much improved, and hopefully it won't be long before she can be ready to go to her home in Plainview. She had fallen and had broken her ankle. She is in room 628 in Methodist Hospital, if you would like to call or write her in the next few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marble of South Plains have announced the engagement of their daughter, Cindy Marie to Jeff Neal Bertrand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Bertrand of Floydada. Cindy is 1984 graduate of Floydada High School and attended Texas Tech. Bertrand served three years in the United States Marine Corps. The couple plan their marriage on April 12, 1985 in the First United Methodist Church in Floydada.

The Mary Hill Davis Home Mission offering is the Easter offering of the Baptist church. They are studying the missionaries and their needs at the churches as they pray for help for the churches and in the mission areas. At the South Plains Baptist Church it will soon be time for Vacation Bible School.

Mr. and Mrs. Roby and Teresa Lutrick, their twins, Tessa and Tobi, and the littlest one, Erin Rochelle have moved the past two weeks to their new home in Lockney. We wish for them a happy home.

The Hobby Club scheduled to meet on March 13th, has been postponed until March 20. The program on slides and quilting, by Betty Royal will be given at this meeting. Please come and bring your favorite quilt pattern. The time is 2:00 p.m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Navolia Kinslow.
