ly an hour following a malfunctioning circuit on lines feeding into Floydada. The malfunction was credited to a possible blown transformer by the utility company.

Russian professors visit Bloys farm

By Juanita Stepp

The Eugene Bloys family in the Sandhill community were hosts to some very unique visitors this past weekend. A pair of Russian professors visited the Floyd County family farm for a weekend excursion to glimpse a bit of rural West Texas. Vladimir Goryanov and Gennady Vasilyev, participants in an ongoing research-exchange program between Russia and the United States, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W.E. Bloys and their son David.

Goryanov and Vasilyev were both born and raised in Moscow, also receiving their education in that city. Goryanov holds a doctorate in business management with a specialty in using computers as a business aid. Vasilyev is a doctor of petroleum engineering who specializes in pipelines. The pair have been doing research work at Texas Tech since last November. Each is carrying out specific projects in his chosen field during the nine month period they are spending in the United States. American scientists spend an equal time on the same mission in Russia.

The visit to the local farm came about after the professors toured Horizon Manufacturing in Lubbock and met David Bloys. David thought it would be nice for the foreign researchers to see a typical West Texas family farm. The invitation was extended and the State Department notified about the journey of more than 25 miles from their assigned station. With everything in order, the professors arrived at the Bloys farm on Friday, June 14.

After seeing how the Bloys operate their farm and gaining a fair understanding of how American agricultural producers function, the two visitors explained about the Russian farming system. Vasilyev said, "We have two types of farms in Russia. Collective farms are a little like your co-ops. Several farmers live and work on land which is like several small farms. They use the same equipment and live in a village-like group on the farm."

"All land in Russia belongs to the state. Private ownership is not encouraged. The workers receive a salary, and a bonus is paid on production after harvest."

"The larger state farms are similar in operation to the American corporate farms," stated Goryanov. "The largest difference being the ownership. The state is the only investor. Workers are paid a salary. Crops are grown according to what is needed for use in the USSR, not what will sell well on the open market."

Both men echo the sentiments of their government in saying that "private ownership of land and equipment is inefficient." With a growing season averaging around 100 days per year, efficiency has to be a primary concern. A larger number of agricultural products cannot be produced in three months, so many things common to the United States are rare in Russia.

Prices for food items in Russia have not been allowed to rise since 1961. Government regulations forbid increases; therefore citizens are paying no more for groceries now than they did 20 years ago. The average earnings for workers has increased to about "200 rubles" per week according to Goryanov. "Everyone is expected to work, but each person is entitled to a vacation period, too," he said. "Young unskilled workers receive 3 weeks each year. All workers with more advanced training receive one month and teachers receive two months off every year. Workers in hazardous occupations receive two months also."

Among the most significant differences in daily living in the United States and Russia, the lack of competition in the market place was stressed. "Since the state owns all the businesses, there is only one brand of anything. If you go to buy coffee, in the United States, you can choose from many brands. In my country, there is just coffee," said Goryanov. He also pointed out that the same type of foods are consumed in both countries.

More people attend live performances of the theatre in Russia than in the United States although there are less live theatres, according to Goryanov. "There are 7 million people in Moscow, with another 5 million in the surrounding suburbs. There are only 25 theatres for them to visit. It is very difficult to obtain tickets for performances," he said. "More people also go to the movies in Russia. I wondered why more did not go until I was told about VCR's. Now I understand. Why go out when you can see whatever you want at home. There is also more things on your TV. Soccer is also very popular."

According to the professors, there is no profanity, violence, or pornography allowed in the movies shown in Russia or on their public television. The populace is served by 4 to 6 channels depending on the area in which they live. These stations broadcast about 12 hours a day with a two hour break in the middle of the day. Commercials as such do not exist and any advertising about foods or medicines are banned, so twice a week a thirty minute program introduces new products, mostly fashions to the viewing public.

Another major difference exists in the educational system after secondary school is completed. Vasilyev says children begin their formal education at about 6 years old. Prior to that, they attend day care type facilities which teach them the fundamentals of reading and writing. "Degrees equivalent to the bachelors of masters are obtained differently in Russia," stated Vasilyev. "A student selects the one he prefers and attends school just for that. You can obtain a bachelors and go on to become a master. In my country, you are one or the other, and if you get a bachelors, you must begin again to obtain the master's." A variety of trade and technical schools are available in Russia also.

Russian schools lean heavily toward math and sciences, with emphasis on literature and languages according to Vasilyev. "The average citizen speaks at least two languages, his own regional dialect and Russian." He added, "Our schools also offer English, French, German, and Spanish. Training in foreign languages begins at around age 10 and continues throughout the educational process."

Women's Auxiliary donates $3,000 to Emergency Medical Services

Mrs. Jane Pruitt, treasurer of the Caprock Hospital Women's Auxiliary, presented a check for $3,000.00 to the local ambulance service on June 17. Coordinator for the Caprock Emergency Medical Services Unit, Mary Lee Padgett, accepted the check which will be used to purchase a Lifepak 5 unit for use in the ambulance as well as the emergency room.

The unit will serve as a cardiac monitor for emergency cases and is capable of providing a printout of the heart activity being experienced by a patient. This will allow the doctor to know exactly what has occurred from the time the patient is first contacted by EMS personnel until the patient reaches the hospital. It will also allow monitoring of the patient if he must be transferred to another facility for more intense treatment.

The unit which is manufactured by Physio-Control, is portable and lightweight. It will be easy to transport to the immediate site of an accident or a coronary emergency. The cost of the unit being purchased by the hospital is $4,000.00. The donation from the auxiliary will cover most of the cost, with the Caprock Hospital District picking up the tab for the remaining cost.

PREPARING TO RETURN HOME—Lars Alkemade, the AFS exchange student from Denmark who has been in Floydada is preparing to return to his home in Denmark. Pictured with him as he packs a suitcase for the journey are part of his American family, Jan and Jerry Thompson and their son Mark. A farewell reception is scheduled for Sunday, June 23, in the home of Pete and Wanda Hickerson at 815 West Mississippi from 8-9 p.m.

Arts Association to hold Summer Fine Arts Show

The Floyd County Arts Association will host its initial juried arts show this Saturday, June 22, at the Duncan Elementary School in Floydada. The public is invited to view varied works from artists throughout the area from 10:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m. Admission is free. Articles may be purchased, with the Arts Association receiving 20% of the sales proceeds.

A feature of the show will be presented by Paul Wiley of Lubbock, Texas. He is one of the foremost lost wax instructors and artisans in the southwest. He will demonstrate the lost wax method of bronze sculpture as well as a 4 1/2 foot clay sculpture that is currently in process. Floydada is quite fortunate to have such a renowned and respected artist to demonstrate his work. Other demonstrations will include chalk-talk and cartoon characters (Goldie Gray), Rope Sculpture (Dewane Franklin), Oil Painting (Jo Goen), and leather art (Bill Gray).

Chuck Wilson, M. Photog., Cr. will be the juror for the photographic division. Wilson, owner of Wilson Photography in Lockney, will be observing the twenty-fifth anniversary of that business in August of this year. It is located in a unique "Country Studio" one mile west and three and one-half miles north of Lockney.

He received his Master of Photography degree in July, 1977, and the Photographic Craftsman degree in 1981. A well-known speaker at professional photographic conventions, he has spoken at several state seminars. In 1984 Wilson served as a national juror for the International Exposition of the Professional Photographers of America in Chicago. He is past-president of South Plains Professional Photographers Association and served on the executive board of the Texas Professional Photographers Association. He has received numerous National Merit Awards for his work and has photographs in the National Traveling Loan Collection. The juror for the easel works (oil, pastel, water color, etc.) will be Marguerite Butler of Plainview. Mrs. Butler, an active member of the Plains Art Association, Lubbock Art Association, and the West Texas Water Color Society, studied drawing, oil, pastel, and watercolor at the University of Delaware and from various well-known instructors in New York, Virginia, and Delaware.

Returning to her hometown of Plainview in 1976, Mrs. Butler continued to study and paint in her studio, taking workshops from West Texas instructors, and participating in local shows. She has won many ribbons, purchase awards, and several Best of Show Awards. Marguerite has taught classes in her studio and has recently started teaching classes at Wayland Baptist University.

Billy Jameson, also of Plainview, will act as juror for Sculpture, Pottery, Designer Crafts, etc. She paints in oil, watercolor, and pastel, having studied under numerous noted art instructors in West Texas and Oklahoma. A graduate from the Famous Artists Schools in Westport, Connecticut, she also studied drawing and painting at Amarillo College and Wayland Baptist University. Mrs. Jameson also works in wax, paper mache, plaster, and sculpt-mold and has studied sculpture under Gerald Oglesby of Oklahoma City and Paul Wiley of Lubbock.

Mrs. Jameson is an active member of the Plains Art Association, Plainview, and served as president for two years. Over the past twenty years, she has won many awards for her painting and bronze sculpture and has exhibited her varied works in numerous art shows in Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico.

One segment of the Summer Arts Festival that is sure to please the public will be the "Peoples' Choice Award," in which the viewing public will be able to vote for their favorite work in the show.

CAPROCK EMS CO-ORDINATOR—Mary Lee Padgett accepts a $3,000.00 donation from Jane Pruitt, treasurer of the Caprock Hospital women's auxiliary. The auxiliary gave EMS the money to help finance the purchase of a Lifepak 5 Cardiac Care System.

RUSSIAN VISITORS—David Bloys (left) was instrumental in engineering the visit of Russian professors Gennady Vasilyev and Vladimir Goryanov (center) to the farm of Eugene Bloys (right) on June 14 and 15. The two professors have been conducting research work at Texas Tech since November. They are scheduled to return to Russia in July.

sed their pleasure concerning not only the visit to Floyd County, but their stay in the United States. "We have experienced no difficulties in getting along with the people, and we have made many friends while we have been here," said Goryanov.

Bloys said, "We wanted them to see us as we really are. Hopefully, more contact on a one to one basis between the people of Russia and America will help to diffuse the time bomb of war we live with every day. We enjoyed meeting these fine men and speaking with them. They have been excellent guests." The two professors are scheduled to return to Russia in July. They hope to have their wives join them for a few days in America before they return, but permission for this has not yet been granted. Goryanov, who is 39, and his wife Svetlana have two children. Their son Vasja is 11 and their daughter is 1 year old Svetlana (named after her mother). Mrs. Goryanov is a doctor of biology. Vasilyev's wife, Alla, is a student in the masters program in petroleum engineering. The couple has one son, Oley.

GRAND OPENING AT THE PALACE—Floydada's business leaders joined the families and friends of Wanda Williams and her daughters, Linda and Sarah Hinsley, in wishing them well on their new business venture. The Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce sponsored a coffee and cookies welcome for the Hallmark card shop the ladies have opened in our community. The ribbon cutting ceremony was held on June 14 with Chamber President Jerry Thompson doing the honors.

HAPPINESS IS A CHOICE
In a world consumed by the pursuit of happiness and fulfillment, we find a strange paradox. Rather than happiness - depression; rather than fulfillment - distress. The film, Happiness Is A Choice, takes full advantage of the interest the secular world has generated in both it's periodicals and media coverage on the subject of depression. It is obvious that the secular world is without hope in solving the stress, anxiety and depression that comes in a life apart from Christ. The film, Happiness Is A Choice, speaks out clearly on the hope, joy, and fulfillment available only through a relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ.

Happiness Is A Choice features Drs. Paul Meier and Frank Minirth, two of the world's leading Christian psychiatrists, Joni Eareckson-Tada, Beverly LaHaye, and Don Baker, pastor and author. This film will challenge you in finding the real source of happiness. It will be shown at First United Methodist Church June 23, 7:00 p.m.

Wexler, Decota Odam, Beady Owens, Ivola Walters and June Van Cleve.

On June 17 they again met at the church for mission study with the theme being "Woman to Woman" presented by Joyce S. Martin and led by Decota Odam.

The ten ladies present for this meeting were Mildred Haile, Decota Odam, Irene Wexler, Beady Owens, June Van Cleve, Edna Patton, Evelyn Pierce, Ivola Walters, Eila Meredith and Helen Curry, a visitor.

The group's next meeting will be Monday, July 1. All ladies are welcome to meet with them.

Alice Towery and Gilroy recite marriage vows

Marriage vows between Alice Towery and Leonard "Lennie" Gilroy were recited at 2 p.m. June 15 in the chapel of the First Baptist Church, Floydada. The double ring ceremony was officiated by the Rev. Hal Farnsworth, pastor, as the couple stood before a seven-branch candelabra adorned with blue carnations and white daisies. This was flanked with baskets of white gladiolas, daisies and blue carnations.

The bride is the daughter of Ken and Louise Towery of Austin and the groom is the son of the late Charles and Clarice Gilroy of Bladensburg, Maryland.

Escorted and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory floor-length dress with a caped lace ruffle around the scooped neckline. A cummerbund waistline accented the full circular skirt, which ended with a matching lace ruffle on the hemline. Her headpiece was an ivory wide-brim hat partially covered with tulle and completed with a bow on the back. The bride's cascading silk bouquet consisted of white daisies, blue forget-me-nots and baby's breath.

Following tradition, she wore a double strand of pearls, belonging to her mother, as something old; something new was her hat, something borrowed were her shoes, belonging to her mother; and something blue was her garter. She also wore pennies in her shoes dated in the years of birth of the groom and herself.

Maid of honor Rosemary Gonzales wore a baby blue colored tea-length dress of taffeta with an overlay of silver white lace. The dress featured a scooped neckline, blouson sleeves and a handkerchief cut hemline. A light blue ribbon accented the waist. She carried a bouquet of miniature baby blue and white silk carnations and baby's breath, tied with blue ribbon.

Acting as best man was brother of the groom, Lee Gilroy of Maryland. Dennis Smythe of Houston was usher and candlelighter.

Wedding music was performed on the piano by Cindee Davis of Floydada.

The Wall Street Parlor was the site for a reception following the ceremony.

The bride's table was highlighted with a two-tiered wedding cake decorated with white daisies and blue forget-me-nots. A silver candelabra with blue candles and the bride's and attendant's bouquets centered the table, which also served a pineapple slush punch, mixed nuts and mints. Presiding at the bride's table were Sabrina Stepp and Dee Williams, both of Floydada.

Neta Marble of South Plains served at the groom's table, which held a chocolate cake, decorated with a Floyd County Deputy's badge emblem. A silver coffee service was presided over by Juanita Stepp of Floydada. The setting was completed with a centerpiece of silk orange chrysanthemums, rust colored tiger lilies and yellow daisies in a silver vase.

The couple was also honored with a barbeque dinner at the Lockney Beacon Saturday evening. A western motif was carried out in the decorations. Tables were covered with red and white checked tablecloths and napkins. Each table held an oil lamp and two miniature lamps. The walls and ceiling were decorated with red and white streamers and balloons.

Catered by Judy Macha and Sande Reeves of Floydada, the meal consisted of barbeque brisket, wheat rolls, garden salad, baked beans, potatoes with cheese and chives, tea and lemonade, and a fresh fruit salad.

Other courtesies for the couple included a Mexican fiesta buffet held Monday, June 17, in the home of Keith and Neta Marble of South Plains.

The couple is currently residing in Lockney, where the groom is a deputy for the Floyd County Sheriff's Department. The bride is employed with the Floyd County Hesperian, Floydada.

MR. AND MRS. LEONARD GILROY

50TH ANNIVERSARY RECEPTION—A reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary will be held on June 22 in the Garden Room of the First Baptist Church of Lockney from 3 to 5 p.m. Frank Brown and the former Ora Calahan were married on August 10, 1935 in Plainview by C.E. Roark, then the pastor of the First Baptist Church of Lockney. The reception is being given by the children and grandchildren of the couple. They request that no gifts be given.

Miss Karen Shuck is bridal shower honoree

A bridal shower honoring Karen Shuck, bride-elect of Mark Nutt, was given in the home of Mrs. Ned Bradley on Saturday morning, June 15. In the receiving line with Mrs. Bradley were Mrs. Edwin Nutt, mother of the groom-to-be, Miss Shuck and her mother, Mrs. Bruce Shuck of Arlington, Texas.

The serving table was laid with a cutwork cloth of white linen and the centerpiece was a lovely arrangement of silk flowers in the bride's chosen colors of shades of pink.

County field day scheduled

An "Irrigation Demonstration Day" highlighting the latest in irrigation water management techniques and equipment has been scheduled for Thursday, June 27, from 9:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on land owned by Lloyd Widener located one and one-half miles south of Lockney on FM 378, and one mile west on the county dirt road, then one-eighth mile south.

Featured attractions during this hands-on demonstration day will include individual discussions and demonstrations of soil moisture monitoring equipment and techniques, pump plant energy efficiency testing, a mobile display of a drip irrigation system, irrigation application efficiency testing, soil infiltration testing, and a demonstration of surge irrigation.

Mike Risinger, Soil Scientist for the USDA-Soil Conservation Service in Lubbock, will demonstrate soil moisture monitoring tools including tensiometers, gypsum blocks used with resistance meters and the neutron soil moisture probe, as well as discuss the benefits of monitoring the moisture content within your crop root zone area. Ken Carver, Assistant Manager for the High Plains Water District, will have equipment set up and will explain the benefits of having an irrigation pumping plant energy efficiency test performed on your well. Additionally, Jerry Funck, Agricultural Engineer with the Water District, will demonstrate a surge irrigation system which is used to increase the efficiency of furrow irrigation.

Floyd County Soil Conservation Service personnel will demonstrate irrigation application efficiency testing using the mobile field water conservation laboratory, and Dan Blackstock, Soil Scientist with the SCS, will demonstrate and discuss the use of infiltration rings to determine the water infiltration rates of the soil on the farm. Also, Tim Dybala, Area Irrigation Specialist, will demonstrate and discuss the drip irrigation system.

Personnel from the Soil Conservation Service and the High Plains Water District will be on hand throughout the day to provide individual discussions of any or all of the techniques and equipment featured during this field day. District Conservationist Jon LaBaume invites area producers to "come as you are and at your convenience anytime during the field day for a one-on-one discussion of any of the new techniques available to help producers manage their irrigation water to its greatest advantage."

This hands-on demonstration day is sponsored by the Floyd County Soil and Water Conservation District, the Floyd County Soil Conservation Service, and the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District and its Floyd County Committee.

Focus on Entomology

General Situation

The weather situation is still clouded with showers, cooler temperatures and overcast mornings. Heavy rains reduced thrips numbers in cotton but brought weather-related problems to older stands such as seedling disease, ascochyta blight and wind burn.

*Only occasional mite colony in corn
*Emergence of southwestern corn borer adults from stubble continues

*Check early blooming sunflowers for sunflower moth
*No pest problems in sorghum.

Cotton

Weather-related problems continue to dominate the cotton situation at this time. Some of our older cotton got a severe case of ascochyta blight (wet weather blight), during the wet, cool weather. The fungus infected the leaf tissue causing the loss of many leaves, even killing plants in the most severe cases. Only warm, open weather can stop the development of this disease and allow the healing process to begin. Producers can speed up this healing process through tillage practices that allow aeration of the soil so that plant's roots aren't "sitting" in wet soil.

The rains did reduce thrips numbers significantly, but numbers are still high enough in some areas to necessitate treatment. This is especially true where blight defoliated plants leaving a very vulnerable terminal bud. Banded-in foliar sprays will cost only 25 cents-60 cents an acre depending upon which chemical you chose and will provide adequate protection in most instances for 10-14 days. I would use a foliar treatment threshold of 1-2 thrips per plant on very young plants or plants defoliated by the blight. On larger plants with more than two true leaves, up the treatment level to 3-5 thrips per plant.

Where thrips are adequately controlled, the blight problem is much less damaging. In my test plots north of Earth, ascochyta blight all but "burned off" all leaves leaving an average of only 0.28 square inches of leaf area on plants not treated for thrips. Temik treated plants had 1.9 square inches, the Orthene seed treatment had 0.5 square inches and the foliar insecticide sprayed plants averaged 1.3 square inches of true leaf area. So thrips control did produce a healthier plant, able to better withstand the stress of blight.

At-planting systemic insecticides appear to be holding up in the tighter soils. Apparently the clay particles in these soils swell up during heavy rains, closing off the leaching pathways for systemic insecticides. In the sandier areas, leaching did occur and most insecticide was lost. Plants under these last conditions could still be protected for 5-7 days following heavy rains. Incidentally, where soil-applied systemics were lost to rain leaching, you can bet you also lost your nitrogen.

More recently planted fields appear to have healthy plants with very few disease or insect problems. However, late-planted fields, coupled with delayed earlier-planted fields, will result in a later crop this year. ---JFL

Insect Management Guides
Insect Management Guides are available for cotton, corn, sorghum, sunflower and soybean. The cotton and soybean guides were revised for 1985. We will be mailing out the corn, sorghum and cotton guides under separate cover over the next two weeks. The soybean and sunflower guides are available at your county Extension agent's office.

If you are interested in more cotton insect information, there is a publication (B-933), Identification, Biology and Sampling of Cotton Insects, available for $5.00 per copy. Send your request to: Department of Agricultural Communications, Texas A&M University, College Station, TX 77843. Make checks out ($5 per copy requested) to TAEX Account #20130.
