Floyd County 1985: Win a Few, Lose a Few

The year of 1985 was a time of change for Floyd County. January found a new Justice of the Peace, in Floydada, being sworn in as Lowell Bilbrey replaced the retiring Walter Hollums in the post. Several county officials were also sworn in following their re-election. These included Sam Spence and Thomas Warren as county commissioners, Fred Cardinal as Sheriff, Kenneth Bain as county attorney, Randy Hollums as district attorney, and Jonelle Favver as county tax assessor-collector.

Attorneys for the local taxing entities began filing suits against a number of delinquent tax payers in what proved to be an exceptionally successful campaign to wipe out the delinquent tax rolls in Floyd County. The Floyd County Central Tax Appraisal District ultimately collected more than $352,000.00 in delinquent taxes this year.

Longtime Floydada resident Warnie Hilton celebrated his 103rd birthday and Alice Towery joined the Hesperian staff in January 1985. Some citizens of Lockney both past and present marked milestones in their careers in 1985. Dr. W.J. Mangold delivered his 5000th baby in Lockney General Hospital, and Becky Bybee McPherson was named assistant Hale County District Attorney. Former Lockney resident Joe W. Rigby was promoted to Brigadier General and returned to Lockney in May to present the army awards at the high school assembly.

The city of Floydada was in the news as a result of a lawsuit filed by Hispanic residents in an attempt to secure single member voting districts. The case is unresolved as yet. The city also set a precedent in taxation in January, voting to discontinue collecting personal property taxes on licensed motor vehicles. The decision reduced city revenues by approximately $20,000 this year.

James Hale was appointed Acting Police Chief, of Floydada, following the resignation of Doug Brewer on February 12. Sgt. Roy Muniz halted a burglary in progress at Brown Gin on February 20. A burglary at Ruben's Game Room on East Highway 70 resulted in $500 being taken on February 21.

The Floyd County Livestock show judges named Shannon Edwards steer Grand Champion, Hunter Smith's lamb Grand Champion, and Jim Thrasher's barrow Reserve Grand Champion. The auction ending the show raised over $98,000 for local FFA and 4-H participants. At the Floyd County Fair, which was canceled early in the year and then reinstated due to the interest of local citizens, three Lockney girls were crowned as queens. Sherre Kinard was named Miss Floyd County and Allison Mangold and Jeri Lambert were named Little Miss Floyd County.

Floydada High School's Varsity boys basketball team won the Bi-District Championship. Their drive towards state competition was halted on February 26 when the Winds were defeated by Seminole. The Lockney High School athletic department had several honors bestowed in 1985. The boys varsity cross country team placed first at the State meet, the Longhorn football team again won the Floyd County championship and the team again advanced to the playoffs, after being named co-district champions.

A March 11 burglary at Perry's Variety Store netted thieves approximately $2,500 in merchandise. This followed a jail escape by a Motley County prisoner being held in the Floyd County Jail. The man was out of custody approximately five hours before surrendering in Plainview. A burglary at West Texas Mini Storage claimed $600.00 in missing items the same weekend.

Deficiency payments for the 1984 cotton crop in Floyd County topped $10 million dollars in March. This made the gross cash flow into the county on 1984 cotton in excess of $38 million before consideration of production costs.

The April 6 elections, in Floydada, returned Mayor Parnell Powell, and councilman Wayne Russell and Frank Breed to office for an additional term.

Freddie Morren, Weldon Pruitt, and Hulon Carthel were re-elected to the FISD school board and Jo Wester, Don Bean, and Louis Anderson were re-elected to the hospital board in Floydada. Caprock Hospital began offering HHCS as of April 19. The April elections saw three new faces added to the governing boards in Lockney. Jerry Johnson took over the seat on the Lockney city council and both Claude Brown and Jack Covington were elected to the Lockney General Hospital Board of Directors.

Joe Christian, basketball coach and science teacher at the Floydada Junior High, was selected to be the facilities new principal effective with the fall term. He replaced Jimmy Collins who moved into the FISD administrative office. Greg Thompson and Lisa Smith were named Valedictorian and Salutatorian of the 1985 graduating class.

The Lockney school board took measures to lower the tax payments of local citizens as they lowered the tax rate for the school district to 67 cents. The school district also implemented a new drug control and education program in the schools. Educational programs and a trained drug sniffing dog were used to help curb the drug problem within the school system.

Kelli LaBaume was crowned Miss Floydada 1985 in May. The Annual Old Settlers Day celebration registered more than 550 for the 1985 reunion. Mr. and Mrs. W.F. "Bill" Sauls were recognized as the outstanding pioneer couple.

Foreign exchange student Lars Alkemade returned home and a duo of Russian professors visited the local area as guests of the Gene Bloys family in June. Alice Towery Gilroy was appointed editor of the Floyd County Newspapers in July following the resignation of Carolyn Redding.

The Floyd County Jail was the site of a second escape on July 30. Two prisoners were out of custody for about two hours on July 30 before being returned to jail.

Gary Carthel resigned his position as Floydada City Councilman on August 12. Floydada got its first council woman with the appointment of Ginger Warren to the vacated council position on August 23.

The November 5 elections passed 14 amendments to the Texas Constitution and the Floydada Housing Authority received a $384,000 grant to remodel the 40 low income housing units in the city. Twenty units of low income housing were completed in Lockney during 1985 and have remained full since the Lockney Housing Authority began taking applications in October.

The Floydada volunteer fire department received emergency air bag equipment through the efforts of the local Lion's Club.

A dramatic train derailment near South Plains community early on November 16 was quickly and efficiently put to rights with no injuries occurring. An herbicide hearing in December gave area farmers a chance to air their views on the use and control of hormonal herbicides. The commissioners court voted to keep Floyd County an unregulated county as to use dates after the majority of the farmers expressed the desire to be unregulated.

The last cannery in the State of Texas closed with an auction in November. The Lockney cannery had been in operation for more than 50 years but it was closed due to lack of interest and because of the rising cost of the cans used at the facility.

Lockney General Hospital was fortunate in 1985. They received a donation of a computer system in January and in November the hospital received $100,000. Both donations were made by the Cogdell Foundation.

The Floydada Chamber of Commerce sponsored an Adopt a Decoration campaign and successfully obtained many new lighted decorations for the city street lights. The chamber has begun a fix up, clean up, and modernization project on a city wide basis in preparation for the 1986 Texas Sesquicentennial celebration.

The Floydada area was the site of ten major reported fires in 1982, leaving several families without homes and possessions. The generosity of local citizens has made the coming year brighter for these people as contributions of cash, household goods, and clothing have helped them begin again.

The business community has been active in Floydada during 1985. Sue's Gift's moved to a new and larger location. New businesses opening included: Gloria's Cleaners (replacing Gene's Cleaners), Kids Klostet, The Palace, B.W. Enterprises, Ship Shape, E-Z Mart (replacing Wylie's Git-N-Go), Pay-N-Save, Billie's Hair Styles, Nielson's Restaurant (replacing King's Restaurant), Floyd County Seed Co. (replacing Floydada Seed & Delinting), Pepper's Cafe, Second Chance Shop, and B & G Harvesters. Radio station KKAP added FM to their existing AM facility after moving to a new location, and a new church, The Trinity Church, was built.

Business's that closed in 1985 were City Trim shop, B.J.'s Barbecue, Star Service Stop, and Floydada Alternator & Starter Shop.

Three businesses were begun in Lockney in 1985. In January, Dr. Ricky Cross opened a dentist office on North Main Street, and in September the Longhorn Inn opened under the new ownership of David and Betty Jackson. Also in December, Connie Wood of Plainview opened a barber styling shop in the old Pasttime Arcade building.

Lockney had several retirements in 1984. C.L. "Mike" Moore took over as county judge for the retired R.H. "Raz" Ford, Olan Potec, county deputy for the past twenty five years retired and was replaced by Lennie Gilroy. City Judge, in Lockney, Ernest Fowler, retired after 16 years and was replaced by Earl Minter.

The farm crops look good at the end of this year, but the prices are low and the market is bad. Some portions of the county had too much rain and others had too little. The official totals hover near 30 inches for the year.

Taking the bad with the good, Floyd County and its residents have weathered another year and look forward to 1986 with optimism and good will.

District Court outlined

Editor's Note: This article completes the series on County Government. The staff of the Hesperian would like to thank the officials and employees of Floyd County for their cooperation and assistance in preparing the series. We hope that we have been successful in bringing a fresh insight to our readers concerning the government of their county.

Floyd County is served by the 110th District Court of the State of Texas. District Courts are general trial courts for the state and are the legal arena for most major litigation on the county level. Cases heard in a district court include felony cases, divorce proceedings, questions involving titles to land, contested elections, and any civil matter involving a claim of $1,000 or more. Rural areas, such as Floyd County, usually share a district court with other counties. The 110th District Court serves not only Floyd County, but Motley County, Briscoe County, and Dickens County as well.

The senior officer in the 110th District Court is the judge, George Miller. The district judge is an elected official, serving a four year term. He is required

People At Work...

BILL GILBREATH, owner of the Gilbreath Exxon service station, displays one of his many duties as a businessman. We caught him shoveling ice and snow from his bay driveways recently. Gilbreath has worked at the station for 28 years, owning it for the last three. He says, "It's about the only thing I know." Gilbreath helps to keep local residents on the road not only with oil and gas but with general maintenance services. He also keeps the town a little neater by providing car wash services. Commissioners hire CPA

A special session of the Floyd County Commissioners Court met on December 23 to consider the hiring of a CPA firm to conduct the audit of the 1985 records. Representatives of two firms submitting proposals were present to offer their estimates. Gary Lancaster of Matador told the court he could do the work for $3500 to $4000 and offered references such as Motley County, Cottle County, Briscoe County, and the City of Dickens. Don Williams of Williams, Adair, and Rogers in Plainview estimated their charges for the work at $4455 and offered references such as Bailey County and Memphis County. The court awarded the contract for the audit to Lancaster.

The court also considered the hiring of Charles Overstreet at the request of Sheriff Fred Cardinal. Cardinal asked that Overstreet be hired to replace Doug Brewer as a deputy following Brewer's resignation, which was accepted by the court at this meeting. Overstreet is a certified deputy and jailer with 2 1/2 years experience with the Petersburg Police Department. The court authorized the employment of Overstreet pending satisfactory results of a pre-employment physical and an investigation into his past workman's compensation use record.

The offshoot of this stipulation of employing Overstreet was the passing of a motion requiring all applicants for employment with the County to pass a pre-employment physical and an investigation into their previous workman's compensation record.

Sheriff Cardinal also requested authorization to purchase a prisoner cage and siren for an additional car in the department at a cost of approximately $500. The request was granted.

A letter from District Judge George Miller notified the court that Bobbie Hamilton had been re-appointed as County Auditor and Jane Bean as Assistant County Auditor for the term beginning January 1, 1986 and ending December 31, 1987.

Hamilton told the court that revenue sharing funding should remain at full levels for the first three payments in 1986 according to information received by her office. The fourth payment could be cut if congress passes a debt reduction bill next year said Hamilton.

Payment of end of the year bills was authorized and line item adjustments were made to close out the 1985 books. One farm work contract was approved for digging a water pit for Pat Frizell at a location seven miles north of Lockney.

Texas Department of Public Safety Officer David Rowell presented a request from himself and Officer Doug Whitworth that Joy Whitworth be employed for 40 hours per month to process paperwork for the DPS office in Floyd County in her home. Rowell stated that this would allow the officers more time on the road and result in safer Floyd County highways. The request was tabled until the regular January session of the court.

District Court...

is paid by the state.

Miller presides over the court and appoints a jury commission in charge of selecting prospective jurors for the Grand Jury. When a jury trial becomes necessary, the judge selects twelve jurors to serve on the jury. He is also responsible for designating one of the jurors to be the foreman or spokesman of the jury.

As a part of the district court, a grand jury hears the evidence regarding cases which are brought before the court. This evidence, usually presented by the District Attorney's office, is the basis the grand jury uses to determine if a trial should be held in the matter. If a grand jury feels that sufficient evidence exists to merit a trial, an indictment is issued in the case. A no bill is returned if the grand jury doesn't feel that there is sufficient evidence to warrant a trial.

Each district court has a court appointed reporter. The reporter is responsible for writing letters for the court, recording court proceedings, and preparing transcripts of proceedings. Carl Young serves as reporter for the 110th District Court. Floyd County pays a portion of his salary, as do the other counties in the district.

The District Attorney, who serves as chief prosecutor for the state in all criminal cases tried in district court, is elected by voters to serve a four year term. John R. (Randy) Hollums is the District Attorney for the counties served by the 110th District Court.

As district attorney, Hollums is responsible for preparing a case against an alleged offender, presenting it to the grand jury, and to a trial jury if a trial is deemed necessary. He also represents the state in any case in which an offender pleads guilty, making an indictment and trial unnecessary. In such cases, the offender appears before the judge to enter a guilty plea and receive the sentence imposed by the judge for the offense.

The judge presiding at a sentencing determines the length of prison term and/or fine to be imposed. In cases where probation is granted, the judge determines the length of probation and/or the fine to be imposed. The judge may also add special requirements to a probation if this is necessary to accommodate special circumstances.

Probation officers often carry the major burden of seeing that the sentences assessed by the judge are carried out. Adult Probation officers are appointed by the district judge to work with probationers from both the district court and the county court after sentence has been passed on them. The adult probation officers in Floyd County are June Ware, Nathan Mulder, and James Williams.

The duties of a probation officer require that the officer work with the probationer to see that the conditions outlined by the judge are met and that the probationer reports regularly on his activities as instructed. The probation officer also serves as a counselor to those under the jurisdiction of the office. Officers attempt to assist the probationer in handling problems which might affect their probation. If a probationer fails to meet the conditions of his probation, the judge who presided in the case may, after a proper hearing, revoke the probation and require the offender to serve the original sentence assessed by the court.

The juvenile probation officer is appointed by the Juvenile Board, consisting of the district judge and the county judge. In Floyd County, Bill Hendrix serves as juvenile probation officer and as secretary of the Juvenile Board.

Duties of the juvenile probation officer are basically the same as those of the adult probation officer. In addition, the juvenile officer works with the family or guardian of a juvenile offender to ensure that the youth meets the terms of probation imposed on him. The officer also coordinates efforts of the Texas Rehabilitation Commission, the Texas Employment Commission, and other organizations to obtain vocational training for a juvenile offender on probation. The program is designed to encourage the young offender to change his or her lifestyle, and become a productive member of the community rather than a repeat offender.

Floyd County also has a Deputy Probation Officer, Winona Jackson, who assists the other probation officers when necessary. She also assists the District Attorney's secretary, Penny Ogden, when necessary.

One additional employee works within the district court framework. This is the investigator, Vinson Smith. He works with the district attorney's office to investigate complaints filed in the district attorney's office.

FARM NEWS

Farmers face hard times

Texas farmers and ranchers might see their sagging financial status begin to stabilize in the year ahead. Keys to long-run prosperity on the farm front include a flexible farm policy that can make U.S. crops more price competitive worldwide, a reduced government deficit, lower real interest rates and an aggressive trade policy. "That's what it will take to turn around agriculture nationwide and in Texas, where the farm economy is at the lowest level since the 1930's," believes Dr. Carl Anderson, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Texas farmers facing the hardest times financially are in the intensified agricultural areas of the South and Rolling Plains," Anderson points out. "Yields in these areas have been poor for several years and have combined with low cotton, grain and cattle prices to bring on rural depression. Land prices, especially for irrigated farmland, also have declined some." Estimates show some 2,625 Texas farmers have been forced out of business during 1985 due to financial reasons, and a third of them have been in this 41-county region, notes the economist. An estimated 1,335 farmers and ranchers left Texas agriculture in 1983 and another 1,725 were forced out last year.

Anderson expects crop prices to remain under intense supply pressure during 1986, so farmers will likely make heavy use of government loan programs just as they did this year.

Since U.S. crop prices are still considerably higher than world prices, the Secretary of Agriculture may be given the authority to lower prices to the world level. If that happens, cash market prices for rice, wheat and cotton will drop even lower and far below the variable cost of production, Anderson points out. Thus, price insurance using commodity options may offer help for some producers.

"Current provisions of the proposed farm bill should offer some financial support to farmers in 1986," contends Anderson. "Target prices likely will be frozen at current levels, and that would ensure large deficiency payments to producers. However, the $50,000 payment limit, if allowed, will be a possible limiting factor for many Texas producers."

"These large deficiency payments will help most producers through the current period of low market prices, and with an effective export enhancement program, the stage could be set for a return to farm prosperity in a few years," says the economist. "Efforts to reduce the federal deficit will also tend to lower interest rates and boost exports."

As far as livestock producers are concerned, Anderson foresees market prices strengthening some in 1986 as meat production, mainly beef and pork, continues to decline, particularly during the first half of 1986. Increased poultry production should lead to somewhat lower turkey and broiler prices. Milk production is up and support prices should determine the overall price level.

On the farm credit front, agricultural lenders are working to develop an orderly transition to a sound lending program based on reduced levels of farm income, says Anderson. Farm lenders have returned to a more conservative posture. That means outstanding credit will decline.

"Credit will be available to credit worthy operations, but good records and financial statements are a must," Anderson emphasizes. "The basic factor is for debt to match earnings. Funds earned outside of agriculture and part-time farming will play an increasing role in furnishing capital for agricultural investments."

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

Friday, December 20:

Barring unforeseen developments the effect of the newly-passed farm bill in 1986 should be "income neutral" for most cotton producers, says Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock.

The bill, to be signed into law December 23, reduces the cotton loan rate from 57.3 cents to 55 cents, Johnson points out, "but it continues the current 81-cent per-pound target price. So what most producers lose in loan or market value of their crops will be offset by a higher deficiency payment rate."

However, he says, the bill retains the current $50,000 limit on deficiency payments, "which means the large producer who would have earned the maximum deficiency payment without a higher per-pound rate is going to come up with a loss of total combined income from the loan and deficiency payment."

After 1986 the loan is to be set each year under the same market-oriented formula contained in the 1981 Act, with a 50-cent floor and a five percent limit on year-to-year reductions.

The target price will drop to 79.4 cents in 1987, 76.9 cents in 1988, 74.5 cents in 1989 and 72.9 cents in 1990.

Deficiency payments will be made on actual plantings within permitted acres as now. A new feature, however, will permit producers to earn payments on 92 percent of base acres minus acreage reduction requirements and diversion if they plant at least 50 percent of those acres. The Secretary will be permitted, but not required, to pay up to 50 percent of expected deficiency payments in advance. Up to five percent of the full payment may be made in PIK cotton, in advance, but the producer won't be able to claim the CCC cotton until the normal harvest date for his region.

Payment yields, always a prime concern of High Plains producers, in 1986 and 1987 will be set at an average of each farm's program payment yields for the years 1981 through 1985, excluding the high and low years. For 1988 through 1990, the Secretary may at his discretion begin phasing in actual yields.

The new law leaves to the Secretary's discretion the setting of 1986 acreage bases, but it is reported the Secretary has agreed to set them at the average of planted and considered planted acres for the past two years. Thereafter the average of the previous five years' bases is to be used, with the total of crop bases limited to available cropland. Also the Secretary can permit 10 percent of total bases on a farm to be shifted between crops.

The Secretary is given authority for an unpaid acreage reduction program up to 25 percent. Any reduction above 25 percent must be paid. If the Secretary permits, producers foregoing loan and deficiency payments may lay out half the acreage required for program participation and receive a cotton PIK payment equal to the difference between the loan and the loan repayment level set under the program's "market enhancement" provisions.

The market enhancement part of the bill provides that the Secretary is required to make U.S. cotton competitive in domestic and export markets by allowing producers to repay loans at a level approximating the world price. He can (1) set a fixed loan repayment level not more than 20 percent below the loan and announced by November 1 of the previous year or (2) determine the world price from time to time and announce the loan repayment rate at that level periodically during the season.

Either way, if the resulting repayment rate is above the world price, certificates for CCC-owned cotton, valued at the difference between the repayment level and the world price, are to be issued to first handlers.

Your Co-op Gin. A Good Place to Do Business.

It makes sense to stay involved with your cotton after it leaves the farm. That's why taking your cotton to your co-op gin is a good idea—for a couple of reasons:

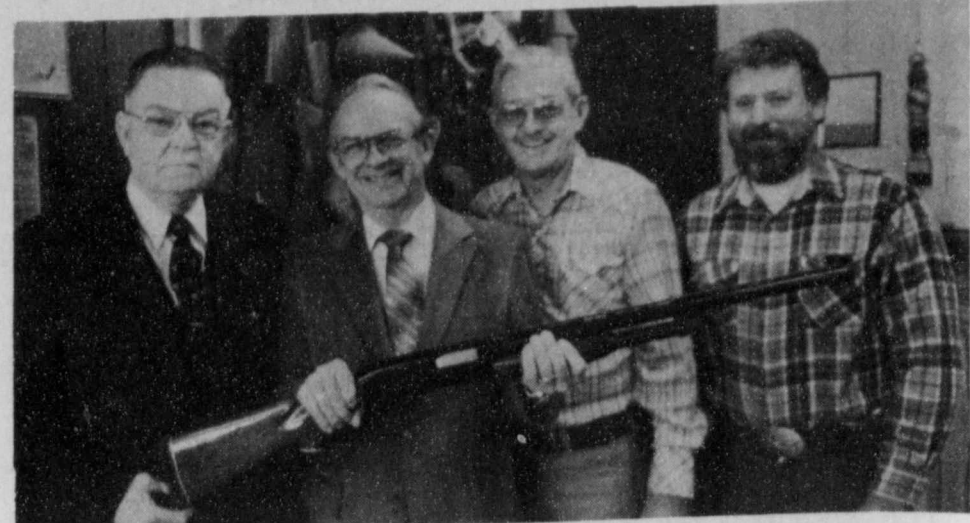

First, when you take your cotton to a co-op gin, that gin becomes a part of your business. You have a voice in how it's run and you share in the profits. The more cotton you bring, the more it pays.

But, even more importantly, when you bring your cotton to your co-op gin you become part of a system that takes your cotton all the way to the market. A system that joins your local co-op gin with other co-op gins to give you a voice in the market. Being a part of that system is important to you now and it's even more important to the future of cotton farming.

Take your cotton to your co-op gin. After all, it's just good business to do business with yourself.

"Laugh Lines"
Bits of Humor, Trivia, and an occasional Word of Wisdom
BY DON & SARA PROBASCO

The main thing most of us learn from our mistakes is how to blame them on somebody else.

A New Year's resolution is something that goes in one year and out the other.

One test of leadership is to turn around and see if anyone is following you.

When a husband is waiting for his wife to dress, the thing he wishes she would put on first is a burst of speed.

Following the birth of her first grandchild, a woman was asked how she felt about becoming a grandmother. "It doesn't bother me a bit," she replied, "but I do feel strange about being married to a grandfather."

Children who inherit fortunes are less well off than those who inherit good character and industriousness.

It is good to remember that virtually NOTHING comes out right the very first time. Repeated failures are the guideposts on the road to achievement. The only time you DON'T fail is the last time you try something and it works.

Let's all resolve this year to fail more, but to fail FORWARD, toward success. Remember that the act of failing at something does not mean that we are failures, but merely that we are willing to attempt something difficult.

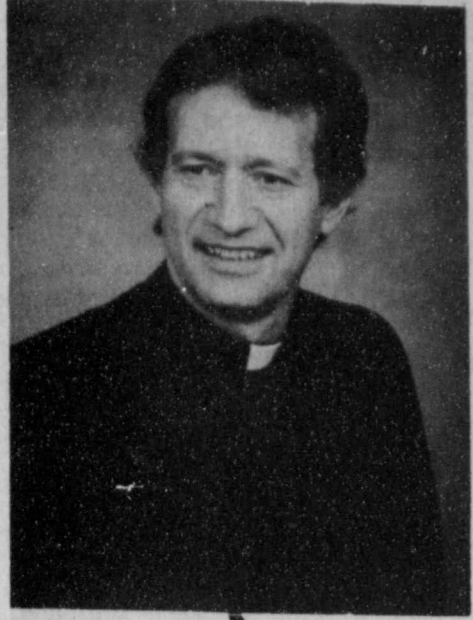

HAPPY NEW YEAR from the PROBASCO'S.

The Rev. Jack Gist was born in Brownwood, Texas and grew up in Lubbock. He was ordained in 1965. He served as Assistant Pastor at Our Lady of Guadalupe, Lamesa, from 1965 to 1968. He was the administrator of Blessed Sacrament Church, in Amarillo, from 1968 to 1970, and Pastor of St. Ann's University Parish, Canyon, from 1970 to 1982. He has been Pastor of St. Alice, in Plainview since August of 1982 and also of St. Joseph's, in Lockney, since October 1983.

Why keep Christmas ?

In the Roman Catholic tradition, Christmas extends throughout these early days of the New Year. Why keep Christmas? Why celebrate Christmas, one might ask, when the blessings it sings seem as far out of reach as ever? The answer, of course, is that we keep Christmas not because life is nice but because it is cruel and harsh, because all too often it is not fair and comes out uneven (and if you are all cozy, watch an evening news). We keep Christmas because it tells us that despite all that is wrong with us, we have the help and forgiveness to set it aright, that Jesus has come for all the ordinary people who keep company everyday with the pains of living.

A few years ago, Abraham Maslow, a sensitive psychologist, asked the kind of question that perplexes us at any new year: "Why are people cruel and why are they nice? Evil people are rare, but you find evil behavior in the majority of people." At holiday time you need not look beyond the family for enough hurt to fill an entire lifetime. The story of the Holy Family seems far away as we witness the impact of a life they cannot quite manage to share together. The child in the crib at Bethlehem is gentle and loved but recalls images, which are burned into our memories forever, of today's battered children. And the tenderness of Mary and Joseph toward each other is contradicted by the marriages in which men and women make war with each other. Then there are the children who disappoint their parents, leaving wounds that never heal.

Of course, all of this is seen against the background of a civilization that has known only a few days of history free of war, a "world" that seems to be possessed by the unjust rather than the meek, in which the innocent suffer and virtue regularly goes unrewarded.

We see men choosing power instead of love, betrayal instead of trust, and self-dedication instead of dedication to each other. Christmas with its New Year finds us curiously farm from the goals of a basically decent human life. I have known those who say that at least we can now view life without the superstitious weight of Religion, that we would be well rid of believing in the kind of God who could let such a world go on. For these people these holidays only underline the desperate loneliness they see as our ultimate bitter lot.

There are reasons we celebrate the Coming of God-with-us. We would hardly need Christmas were the world any different. It would be superfluous if we were already fully grown, or had mastered the lessons of love, or knew the combinations which automatically insure that tragedies would no longer occur and that the children of today would inherit tomorrow a world in which lambs fraternize with lions. There would be no point in Christmas if we did not know the taste of loneliness or the special suffering of hurting and being hurt by those closest to us. If the world were not in the agony of on-going creation, the birth of Jesus would have nothing to say to us. We would have no need for a God who lived our life, spoke our language, and knew first hand all of our heartbreaks. But God, the holy and ancient creator, became truly man that we might be shown the way to become fully human. God, becoming man, tells us that life resides in our becoming what we were created to be, and that the enormous difficulties involved in that process constitute the essence of faithful existence. We needed Christmas because we are yet half-grown; Jesus tells us that we can make our way, not by the light of some wondrous star, but in living the truths which he speaks to us. This is the season in which we can confront all that is wrong with us because Jesus knows and understands it. Jesus says that being human and tasting life as it is will reveal the meaning of the Incarnation. This is the way, he says; this is the road I took in the world that I knew, the road I pointed to when I said, "I am the way." We need this Christmastime in the midst of unrelenting and unforgetting life because it affirms again that our shadowed days are not empty but filled with grace and meaning.

Out of all the swirling bodies of the universe, "God sent his only begotten Son into our world." One billion hours ago, no human person yet walked on planet Earth. Of all the planets, it's my favorite, it's home, it's the place where we are to grow up. God in becoming man shows us the way.

Well our bazaar was a great success, we all enjoyed it, but are glad it's over.

We hope you all had a merry Christmas, we did! Santa was here Monday night, Tommy Assiter, carols were led by Claude Stallings, accompanied by Sylvia Yeary, and the Christmas Story read by Joe Cunyas. The Christmas party was enjoyed by many friends and relatives also. West Side Church of Christ presented the residents with a cassette recorder, and the have received fruit in loving memory of Judge J.W. Lyon of Silverton, and Cecil Price of Quitaque, by friends Austella and Blue Brown. We received flowers from Margaret and Elanore Schacht. There were many others who brought us gifts of fruit, cookies, cake, and flowers for which we are grateful.

We would like to welcome Lennie Gilbert to room 13A.

Eula Malone, Bessie Hunt, Earl Murcer, Esker Pyle, Zack Crawford, Alma McDonald, and Hassie Arnold traveled to Plainview Monday afternoon on the Senior Citizen bus and were treated at the Golden Arches with ice cream all around.

We have many birthdays in January, George, Setliff, Chaford Tipton, Daisy Burson, Lewis Roberts, Weta Hill, Betha Cunyas, Bessie Hunt, Pauline O'Neal, and Nina Loudermilk, Happy Birthday!

Over $400.00 donated by Lockney residents aided in purchasing gifts for residents of the Care Center.
