Three 'new' rivals on 'Wind grid schedule

Roosevelt, Olton and Abernathy are "new" opponents appearing on the 1986 Whirlwind football schedule, although the latter two squads are longtime gridiron rivals of Floydada from years past.

The 'Winds scrimmaged Roosevelt last fall.

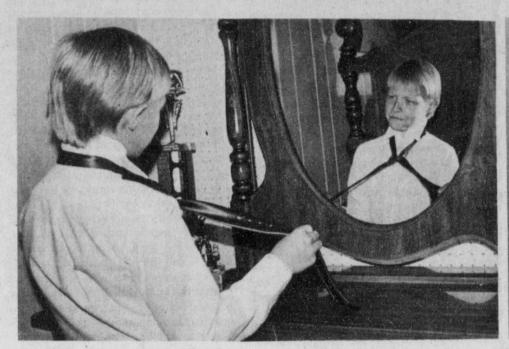

The '86 football schedule, revealed by Coach Joe Paty, shows five district games and an equal number of non-conference rivals. This represents one additional game than last fall's nine-game slate.

Missing from the Whirlwinds' list of opponents this fall are Idalou and Clarendon. Idalou was the lone District 2-AAA squad from the past two years which was moved to another league. The Wildcats are a perennial powerhouse. Floydada, Tulia, Muleshoe, Dimmitt, Littlefield and Friona will comprise 2-AAA for the next two campaigns. Crosbyton, Roosevelt, Olton, Lockney and Abernathy are the non-conference Whirlwind rivals for the '86 and '87 seasons. Coach Paty says two scrimmages have been arranged for the Mean Green: August 22 at Post and August 29 at home against Lubbock Cooper.

This will probably be another of those long columns, gentle reader, so perhaps you should check the ads first, then come back when you have the time. Our comments will concern the Philippines, recent events there, and some thoughts about the situation.

Now. A few years ago the agency of our government I then worked for determined that my presence was again needed in the Philippine Islands, a place where I had spent some time in another incarnation, as it were, and where I still had a friend or two. So at the moment I was in Manila, on the way to one of the southern islands of Cebu. It was my practice, in those years, to awaken early and get some exercise by taking a walk through empty streets before the city came to life, whichever city it was. This morning I was walking along the beachfront of Manila Bay. There appeared alongside me a young Filipino who had evidently spent the night on the beach, and who, at first, seemed intent on practicing his English. As we walked, and after we had exchanged pleasantries, he began this long and sad story. He was a fisherman from the southern islands, his father-in-law was a fisherman as well. He had a wife and small son, whom he had left with the family while he came to Manila to seek his fortune. Then he was to bring his family to Manila as well. But things had gone badly. He could find no work, and he wanted to go back home. But he needed money for passage. A boat was leaving next morning for Cebu, and he could wrangle his way aboard as third

Sesquicentennial coins arrive at museum

The Sesquicentennial Coins are now available at the museum. The face of the coin designed by Floyd County native, Larry Smitherman features the artist's conception of Alamo defender, Dolphin Ward Floyd, centered between the Alamo and the Texas flag. The reverse side of the coin bears the Sesquicentennial logo inside the map of the Republic of Texas.

The coins were minted in gold, silver, antique bronze and antique silver. This coin is the second in the Floyd County Series. A few of the 1976 coins are still available in gold and silver as well as the antique finishes. Everyone who purchased the numbered collector coins in 1976 will be given first option on the , 1986 coins bearing the same number.

Inscribed cases may be purchased for the antique finished coins as well as belt buckles, bolo ties, key chains, necklaces and other jewelry.

The coins are offered by the museum as a quality memento of the Texas Sesquicentennial with the design reflecting Floyd County's connection to the Alamo and the Republic of Texas.

'First comer' Ruth Pitts Battey remembers

Ninety-six year old Ruth Pitts Battey of the Harmony Community, has courageously elected to undergo surgery on March 31. This operation, the first of two scheduled, will correct a cataract condition if it is successful.

"Having eye surgery at age 96 may seem foolish to some," says Battey, "but, I am healthy and active and being able to see better would make my life much fuller and enable me to do more for myself."

Battey currently utilizes the services of talking books, tapes, and records to keep up with current events and new literature. She also enjoys television, hand crafts, and tending to her many plants. She continues to live alone, ably assisted by her son David and her daughter-in-law Lee, who reside next

"I never planned to live to be 96," says Ruth. "It just happened. Now that I have come this far, though, I aspire to make it to a hundred."

A past Sunday school instructor, Battey remains active in the Methodist Church and in the United Methodist Women's Circle.

"The years I taught Sunday school were very precious to me," says Battey. "I had to really study and make an effort to stay ahead of the kids, but the attempt really helped me learn the Bible better than anything else ever has. It was a really rewarding experience for

As a 'first comer' to Floyd County, Battey recalls the sight which greeted her eyes when her family first arrived in the area from Florida in 1905.

"When I came here, the country was so beautiful," recalls Battey. "There were a few farms fields under cultivation and the native grass was visible for miles and miles, just waving so prettily in the sun. It grew to about waist high and was so pretty and green when there was plenty of rain. I still think this area is beautiful, but in a different way now that so much of it is worked and so many people live on it."

The Pitts family came to Floydada after farming in Jones County and raising cattle in Crosby County. One of Battey's most vivid memories of her youth is the day the family conquered

"We had been on the road for about a month when we had to make the dangerous climb up the caprock. It took a full day and the use of double and even triple teams to get three wagons and a hack up the steep and rocky incline to the top. There were no roads and it was a treacherous climb, but we made it, cattle and all.'

Battey also remembers the ingenious ways people used to keep food in the early days. "Our refrigerator was a wooden trough that was kept cool by the well water as it was sent on its way to the storage tank. Meat was hung from the tip top of the windmill in the winter. It would freeze and crust over and we sliced off what we needed to use and raised the remainder back to the top of the windmill for later use," recalls Battey. "No one now would even consider using food supplies that had been stored like everyone did back then."

Floydada was the first place Battey and her brothers and sisters were able to attend school regularly. Prior to this, they had gone to school during the four summer months, if at all. Battey fondly remembers one of her teachers in particular, Miss Annie Lou Smith, "She was just the best teacher. I think she is one of the reasons I was so attracted to

After finishing school in Floydada, Battey traveled by train to and from Canyon until she received here teaching certificate in 1917 at the age of seventeen. The school in Canyon, now WTSU, was then known as West Texas Teachers Normal. The certificate enabled her to begin teaching in the rural schools of Floyd County.

"I wanted to teach in the rural schools," says Battey. "More people

The Lamplighter

To be honest about it, I had seen it coming, not long after he began his story. Years of experience in that part of the world, at that time in history, had perhaps prepared me for it. But I was headed for Cebu also, and had long wanted some photographs of native fishermen at work in the early morning hours of the southern islands. So as he talked I developed a trade. If he and his father-in-law would allow me to go out with them in their bankos (a small dug-out type canoe with outriggers) and take pictures of them throwing their nets, I would provide the money for his passage back home. The only stipulation being that I get back to Cebu in time to go about my mission. That was no problem, he said, since they always got back shortly after sun up. He was elated, the deal was struck, and the money changed hands. I was to meet him in Cebu three days later.

The next morning I was awakened by a phone call from the manager of the hotel where I was staying, and informed that "a Filipino" was down in the lobby wanting to talk to me. I went down and, surprise, there stood my new friend. I asked what had happened, I thought he would be on the boat headed for Cebu. Well, he explained, he had taken the money and bought a uniform so he could get a job as security guard at some local business, which required, as a matter of employment, that job applicants have uniforms. Now he needed money to buy a sidearm, which was also required. Then he would have the job he was searching for when he came to Manila, he could send for his wife, and was I not happy at this turn of good luck? Surely now that I had an investment in him, I would go the rest of the way and provide for the security of him and his family. Needless to say, I saw things a little differently. No more money would be forthcoming, because he had lied to me, he was told. He could not understand. So I explained as aptiently as I could that if he had told me of his plans in the first instance I could have made a decision based on that information. The decision I had made was based on the story he told me at the time. I hoped this would be a lesson to him, and so forth. When the conversation ended, I asked if he had learned anything. He tearfully replied that he had. I asked what he had

"I have learned that when you help someone one time, you should never help them again," he replied.

"That is not it at all," I told him. "I am trying to tell you that when you want help from someone, you should be honest, so they can make a decision based on the facts of the situation as they understand it. That is all. If you lied to me in the first instance, how can I be sure you are not lying to me again?"

He simply could not understand what I was talking about. After all, had I not voiced sympathy with his plight, and his desire to find a good job to help his family? And had I not expressed the hope that he would find work in Manila? Yes, was the reply, but that was before he told me he was going back to Cebu. The help that had been extended was on that basis, and was based upon misleading statements by him. There would be no more money from me, and the matter ended with him crying and voicing his

About a week later, in the evening in a hotel room in Tokyo, I had reason for the matter to again enter my thoughts. Having difficulty with sleep, I rummaged the bedside table for reading material. Japan is an exceedingly literate society, and while we may know them primarily through their electronic wizardry, they are before that a society of readers. One of the books present dealt with the teachings of Buddha, which finds much favor in the East. I thumbed through the book and my eyes came to rest upon a parable about a rich man who had left his little village to go to the city to take care of business. While there he purchased some toys for his children, whom he had left behind in the care of servants. Upon returning home, the rich man noticed that his house had caught fire, and his children were still inside, playing. He called to the children: "Come out, come out, the house is on fire." The children heard the warning, but seeing no fire they remained inside, playing. The rich man then called "Come out, come out, and see the new toys I have brought you from the city." Whereupon they rushed out, and were of course saved.

The parable went on to illustrate the wisdom of Buddha, which seemed to be one of the points of the parable. But there also seemed to be a deeper, underlying theme...that the end justifies the means if the end is good.

I had long puzzled over differences in the thinking of people East and West. Truly, it seemed to me, Kipling was right when he said "East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall

In the Christian faith we are taught not to "bear false witness." We are not taught, as I understand it, to refrain from false witness unless we can do good by bearing false witness.

I will leave to theologians, and to more learned people than myself the rightness or wrongness of all this. I only know that there is a difference in the thinking of those of us brought up in Western culture, and those brought up in culture of the East. The Philippines, of course, are basically Christian except for some of the southern Islands where the Moslem faith runs strong. Still, the culture of the East hangs heavy over all of them and is a strong influence in their lives. We make a big mistake when we do not take that in consideration when dealing with them.

Recent events in the Philippines are a case in point. We keep expecting them to act like a highly developed society, steeped in the traditions of Western democracy. The traditions are not there. It is not just that fraud and corruption were present under Marcos, that he used his office to acquire great wealth, and that he stole his votes. We have had a little experience with that sort of thing in this country also. Perhaps not on the scale of Imelda and Ferdinand, but nevertheless we have had more than our share. And the business of favoring one's cronies with fat government contracts. How did Brown and Root become one of the world's largest construction companies? Who did they support, and who supported them?

No, the problems in the Philippines run deeper than that. When I first went to the Philippines more than forty years ago head hunters were still operating. And it was not at all unusual for the Moros to "run amuck" with a bolo, intent on killing as many Christians as possible before being killed themselves, thereby paving the way into the Moro heaven. One tribe was still hunting with blow guns. To assume that people of that culture are going to make the leap, in less than half a century, to full fledged members of a democratic society is asking an awful lot.

It is true of course that there are a number of highly intelligent, well educated Filipinos, concentrated primarily around Manila and some of the other larger cities. But any government formed by those people will have to deal with the countryside where things are entirely different, where the thinking and culture of Asia and of the jungle still exercise a tremendous influence. This has nothing to do, in my opinion, with whether they are "good" or "bad" people. It merely has to do with how they freely choose to govern them-

In our view the Filipinos ought to have the widest possible latitude in forming their own system of government. We influenced them greatly during the years when the Philippines were an American commonwealth. And we influenced them more, when, after World War II, they set up a governmental system patterned after our own. Clearly it has not worked exactly as planned. They were simply not experienced in the stresses and strains of democratic self governing. Now an 'elected'' potentate has been deposed, with a great deal of help from our own government, and a new "elected" leader has been put in place. The Philippine business community, which long ago fell out of favor with Marcos, and vice versa, is no doubt elated. The American business community operating in the Philippines is even happier. And Marcos had his own detractors, even enemies, within the American intelligence community where some saw his regime as growing fat and corrupt, unable or unwilling to properly address the growing communist insurgency within the country. This, they felt, would ultimately threaten American bases at Subic Bay and Clark Field. This feeling was shared widely within our own military, as well as segments of the Philippine military.

The change in the Philippines will, in the short run, probably be much better for the Filipinos and for American interests in the Philippines. It is ironic, in a way, that American television jumped on the story early, in the manner they did. Judging from the selfcongratulatory statements made by t.v. anchor persons, they seem to think they were responsible for the change.

Actually they were patsies in the matter, used wittingly or unwittingly to pave the way for changes much sought by others. But in the long run I see little prospect for peace, tranquility, and prosperity for the Philippines. The country is terribly over-populated with little likelihood of that situation getting anything but worse. The average Filipino has a history of looking abroad namely to America, for solutions to Filipino problems. Our own advice, for what it is worth, is to try to convince them that the answers to Filipino problems lie within the people of the Philippines, and that they have the ultimate responsibility of solving those lived in the country then than in the cities and towns. I felt that the children in the country needed everything they could get in the way of education. Country children then were so isolated and missed so much back then. I worked really hard to see that they learned all they could. It was a challenge, but I loved teaching them."

Mark my word, however. They will say, "Yes, we agree, but it is going to cost you many billions of dollars."

Battey met her future husband, David Battey, while teaching at the Lakeview School. "I had seen him at the Sunday afternoon singings and I kind of liked his looks," remembers Battey, "but he always had a lot of girls around him and I just never thought he would be interested in me."

After meeting and "going out together" for a while, the pair decided that "we liked each other well enough to marry" and eloped to Plainview. They were married by a Methodist preacher and lived in Lakeview for a short time before moving to the family's present home in Harmony.

Battey began her family late in life compared to most of her peers, being thirty at the time of her marriage in 1920. A first born daughter died at birth and David was born in 1926. A second daughter, Jeanne, was born four years later. Both children were born in the house Battey still lives in.

Being an independent lady used to having an income of her own, Battey resented having to give up her teaching career, but found a way to make money on her own at home. She began raising turkeys to sell. The broad breasted bronze turkeys she produced became a profitable business and grew to include the sale of eggs and young turkeys as well. Orders for her dressed birds came from as far away as New York and the Battey turkeys won prizes at various shows and fairs around the state. Her children tease her about liking her turkeys more than she did them.

Life has not always been easy for this gentle lady. She fought and won a bout with cancer of the uterus at age 85, saw her husband of sixty years go to his reward in 1980, and underwent colon resection surgery to correct a second cancer episode in 1982.

"I just never gave up. I take good care of myself and I intend to keep doing so," says Battey. "I have had a happy life and I have seen our family grow to include four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. I am eagerly awaiting the birth of two more greatgrandchildren that are on the way. I think the secret to being happy is to want to be happy and to work at it just like you do at anything else."

'Wind Between the Houses' teaches lesson

By Alice Gilroy

Saturday night's performance of the Floyd County Arts Association's play, "A Wind Between the Houses," was well attended by an enthusiastic crowd.

Cecil Osborne, the director, had suffered a stroke earlier in the week and was not able to attend. The cast dedicated the night's performance to Mr. Osborne, who would have been proud.

The comedy-drama centered around elderly Gracie Martin, played by Virginia Stringer, the mother blind to her two children's obvious selfishness, who is trying to cope with the sudden death of her husband. Gracie's way of coping makes up the story. Gracie discovers that she can help overcome her grief by including her husband in her day to day goings on. She does this by putting his cremated remains in her favorite porcelain urn and placing him on the fireplace mantle. When she pours coffee in the morning, she is sure to pour him a cup and she is always sure to include him in her conversations. The children, Shiela and John, played by Elaine Galloway and Jerry Thompson have busy lives away from home and even though they live very close they never seem to find time for their mother. They discover their mother talks to their father in the urn, and terrified of what their friends will think take drastic measures to make their

The antics are hilarious but the results are disastrous. The audience was led from one emotion to another by an excellent cast. Laughter, pity, shock, and sorrow were felt by all who Justifying their actions with, "It's best for mother," the son John and daughter Shiela have their mother plan a picnic in the backyard where the wind always blows between the houses. John tells his mother that he wants to include his father in the festivities. Gracie is overjoyed with the idea that her children finally understand and happily lets John bring out the urn. However, John picks the spot where the wind always blows and "accidently trips" breaking the urn, losing the ashes to the wind. This plunges the happy Gracie into a state of deep depression, especially after she finds out that it was planned and she sees her perfect children for what they really are.

Just when you're sure there's no happy ending in sight, Gracie's daughter sees the error of her ways and comes up with a solution. Contacting the funeral home she concocts a scheme whereby the funeral director, Mr. Farrington, played by Don Chesshir, visits Gracie and tells her there has been a dreadful mistake. The ashes she had had in her urn were not that of her husband, Henry. Gracie is overjoyed when presented with a brand new sterling silver urn containing "Henry's remains." "The only problem," says Gracie, "is what will everybody think. Its improper that I've been living with someone else these past few months." Mr. Farrington is somewhat shocked but recovers nicely and assures Gracie that it was a woman's remains. He also assures Gracie that she shouldn't be embarrassed that she talked to the woman, because the deceased was deaf.

The nosey, outspoken, and supportive best friend of Gracies, Amelia Pritchard, played by Darlynn Hambright, provided lots of laughs as did Shiela's husband, Morton, played by Dallas Ramsey. Morton is the hero, who truly loves Gracie and is willing to stick by her no matter what, even if she is his mother-in-law.

Other supporting cast members were Sue Chesshir, playing the part of the neighbor Lucinda Sparks, Jana Lawson who was Gracie's loving granddaughter, Laurette Winter, and Rusty Galloway who played, Jason March, the always hungry boyfriend to Laurette.

The lessons learned by Gracie and her family were good lessons for all to remember. Gracie's daughter, Shiela seemed to be the one most obviously affected by the events, learning that the simple basic things in life are the most important and that loving and being loved are more important than worrying about what other people think.

We even learn something from John's inability to feel remorse for what he done. Responding to his mother's final outburst accusing John of the inability to love because he didn't have a heart, he replied defensively, "I do so

More than 1,250 students at Texas Tech University received degrees in commencement exercises at the conclusion of the 1985 fall semester.

Recipients included the following from Floydada: Bachelor's degrees: William T. Potts, engineering technology, and Shelley L. Brock, education.

Ron Hance visits Floydada

Ron Hance, son of Republican candidate for governor Kent Hance, swung through Floydada on a 24 city tour of the state representing his father. Young Hance used his spring break from Texas Tech University to campaign in support of his father's bid to capture the republican party nomination for governor this fall.

Hance stated that the campaign was going very well and that he felt extremely optomistic about the outcome. "Our latest polls show support for my father is moving up while support for Clements is falling off," he said. "Kent Hance has the federal and state experience that no other candidate at this time can offer. He has the experience and background to defeat Mark White."

"We are making this spring tour with the express purpose of emphasizing the importance of everyone getting out and voting in the republican primary," stated Hance. "It is imperative that we present a strong candidate with a united front at election time. The party leadership is behind us all the way. We need to make an all out effort to get the rest of the voting public behind us too."

"The strengths of the Hance campaign lie in the fact that the traditional city support is with us and a majority of the rural base of conservative democratic voters will be voting republican in order to defeat Mark White," stated Hance. "We also have concrete plans to offer for economic diversification to strengthen the Texas economy."

Hance expressed the opinion that the state depends entirely too much on the traditional base of agriculture, oil and gas to support the economy. "We need to be aggressive in letting the world know that we also have a vast pool of educated manpower and other resources available in our state," said Hance. He continued in the same vein, saying, "The Hance plan calls for establishing offices in eastern Asia and Europe so that we can be on the spot when a opportunity arises. An ad in the Tokyo Times is fine, but a representative on the scene would have served the purpose better than the ad did. We need to attract foreign business to the state of Texas."

Hance said that White's efforts in making a trip to Japan were admirable, even though the visit was a week after a Mitsubishi plant was awarded to Tennessee. "We could have had that plant in Texas with the proper representation," said Hance.

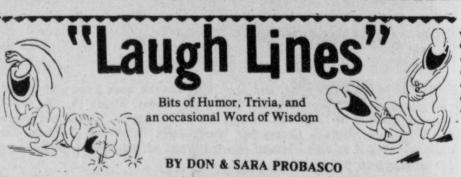

When questioned concerning the reaction among colleagues to the party switch Hance affected last year, his son replied, "It has been very positive. We had coordinators in 245 counties at the time of the switch and only lost ten because of the change. The majority of my father's supporters have continued to support him. Many who did not support him as a democrat will support him as a republican because they have been represented by him in the past or have friends or relatives who were represented by him and found him to be a good representative." Meeting with Hance during his brief stop in Floydada was the Hance campaign chairman for Floyd County Art Barker and his wife, Fay, both of Lockney. Bill Hale of Floydada was also present. Kelly Williams, a Hance aide, was traveling with the younger Hance on this section of his tour.

GEORGE SCHUSTER has served as the pastor of the Main Street Church of Christ in Lockney for the past year. He received the bulk of his education at Abilene Christian University and holds both bachelors and masters degrees in religious education.

He and wife Nell came to Lockney from Groom and prior to that they were in Rusk for four years. They have two children, Christi, a student at Abilene Christian University and Ben who attends Lockney High School.

Yes, I Was Called of God!

By George Schuster

Over the past twenty years I have often been asked, "Just how were you called by the Lord?" In anticipation of my answer, they expect me to recite some mysterious and strange experience which compelled me to preach the gospel of Christ. Or they expect me to give the lurid details of some "inward, outward feeling of all-overishness" that attested to the fact that God had gloriously saved me, right there, "johnny-on-the spot," without even consulting Johnny! And they are disappointed when I inform them that my calling was not at all after this order!

Make no mistake of it, God calls every man that obtains salvation! But He calls all the rest. Some men just do not respond to His call, and are never saved. Long ago the Lord cried: "BECAUSE I HAVE CALLED, AND YE REFUSED; I HAVE STRETCHED OUT MY HAND, AND NO MAN REGARDED; BUT YE HAVE SET AT NAUGHT ALL MY COUNSEL, AND WOULD NONE OF MY REPROOF: I ALSO WILL LAUGH AT YOUR CALAMITY: I WILL MOCK WHEN YOUR FEAR COMETH." (Prov. 1:24-26) What a calamity when God calls, and man fails to respond! Those who jest at religion and religious obedience will arrive at that awful moment when they will then call upon God--and God will laugh at them! Sure, God called me! He calls every man. Just don't ignore Him!

The reason God has called all men is that He doesn't want any to be lost. Therefore God has given man every opportunity to obtain salvation. If man is lost it is because man deliberately refused God's call: not because God did not call him! Paul said of Him: "WHO WILL HAVE ALL MEN TO BE SAVED, AND COME TO A KNOWLEDGE OF THE TRUTH." (1 Tim. 2:4) "GRACE AND TRUTH CAME BY JESUS CHRIST," but in offering that priceless commodity to man, God gave His only begotten Son! Don't ever accuse God of not caring! Even yet, God still extends opportunities to man, and for one good reason--God "IS LONGSUFFER-ING TO USWARD, NOT WILLING THAT ANY SHOULD PERISH, BUT THAT ALL SHOULD COME TO REPENTANCE." (2 Pet. 3:9) God has always had a call for man.

Even after Jesus Christ ascended on high, God still calls man. The world today is called to eternal life by the gospel of Christ. This is, for us, God's one exclusive call. This call was and is effective in all who have accepted the gospel. Paul wrote, "WHEREUNTO HE CALLED YOU BY OUR GOSPEL, TO THE OBTAINING OF THE GLORY OF OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST." (2 Thess. 2:14) In view of this Scripture, who would infer that God has not called every man today? It is a call from God's and mercy.

Sure, I have been called of God! Through His Son, God promised, "HE THAT BELIEVETH AND IS BAPTIZED SHALL BE SAVED." (Mk. 16:16) Reviewing all cases of conversion, I find that God's call brought forth the same pattern of obedience, in that they all heard, believed in the Lord repented toward God, and were baptized into Christ for remission of sins. The same call to obedience must be heard today!

I exhort you, "MAKE YOUR CALLING AND ELECTION SURE." (2 Pet. 1:10) When God calls, respond in complete obedience!

helps finger wheat thieves

NCC LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN: The National Cotton Council is preparing to tackle the textile import problem through a Beltwide campaign designed to (1) encourage retailers to stock more U.S.-made cotton textile and apparel products, and (2) convince consumers to buy those products.

A resolution authorizing the campaign was adopted by delegates at the Council's recent annual meeting. A pilot program kicking off the campaign will be carried out by Delta Council Women's Steering Committee in Mississippi. The idea for the Beltwide approach was initiated by two of its members, Mrs. Joy Barrett of Belzoni and Mrs. Janet Flowers, Tunica.

A Council kit containing suggestions for cotton wives clubs and other industry groups to carry out the campaign in their communities has been prepared and will be distributed to interested organizations upon request. Promotional materials for use in the campaign will feature a logo with a cotton boll superimposed on a bolt of fabric, and the slogan, "Grown and Made in the U.S.A. -- IT MATTERS."

Maid of Cotton Sherri Moegle will play a major role in the campaign, emphasizing the textile import problem and the importance of buying Ameri-

COTTON'S ANNUAL USE RATE UP: Reflecting continued consumer response to Cotton Incorporated's promotion and other factors, U.S. textile mills' cotton consumption rose to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 6.5 million bales in January, the highest of the current marketing year. This was 5.2 percent above the annual rate in December and 19.4 percent above the rate in January, 1985, according to James T. Howell. Jr., market research analyst for the National Cotton Council Total fiber use rate in January was 23.5 million bale equivalents, down 4.9 percent from December but up 10.4 percent from the same month a year ago. The use rate for man-made fibers was 16.9 million bale equivalents, down 8.2 percent from December but up 8 percent from a year ago. A large part of the drop in man-made fiber use was in nylon fiber, possibly reflecting a drop in carpet production. Synthetic use also declined in cotton/synthetic blends. Cotton's share of total fiber use climed to 27.5 percent in January from 24.9 percent in December and 25.5 percent in January, 1985.

Cross compliance not required under 1986 farm programs

Under Secretary of Agriculture Daniel G. Amstutz explains that cross compliance will not be required by farmers participating in the 1986 wheat, feed grain, cotton and rice programs.

When cross compliance is in effect none of the crop acreage bases for a participating farm may be exceeded.

Amstutz also announced that crop acreage bases for wheat and feed grains will be determined based upon the average acres planted in such commodi-

Bankruptcy alternative offered

A farm debt restructuring plan has been announced by Farm Bureau which could help save thousands of farmers and ranchers from bankruptcy or liquidation, according to S.M. True, president of the Texas Farm Bureau.

The Plainview farmer said the twotier restructuring program approved by the American Farm Bureau Federation board of directors in Chicago essentially would allow a farmer's debt to be paid back over a longer period of time.

"This could save a lot of good farmers who otherwise might lose everything they have, and it would enable some troubled banks to salvage would otherwise be lost," said True, who is a member of the AFBF board.

The AFBF will seek support of its program with private and government lending institutions, True said.

"We will seek regulatory and legislative changes, necessary to allow commercial banks to institute such a program and the regulatory changes necessary from the Farm Credit Ad-ties in each of the five crop years immediately preceding the crop year for which the determination is made.

For upland cotton and rice, most crop acreage bases will be determined on the same basis as for wheat and feed grain. However, when the planted acreage for one or more of the years of the five-year base period is zero, such years must be dropped. Cotton and rice bases in these cases must not exceed the average of the planted acreage for 1984 and 1985.

Before recent amendments, the Food Security Act of 1985 mandated cross compliance requirements for wheat and feed grains. The amended act leaves cross compliance for all the program crops to the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Amstutz also announced that a farmer that does not believe a base or yield was correctly established may file an appeal with the local county Agricultural Stabilization Conservation committee. The farmer may further appeal to the state ASC committee and to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service deputy administrator of state and county operations.

Wheat farmers bracing for leaf rust epidemic

Leaf rust, a fungal disease that took a big bite out of the 1985 Texas wheat crop, appears all set to strike again.

Spores which lead to the disease infection have been found in increasing numbers in central areas of the state in recent weeks, say officials with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service who are monitoring the situation.

"This winter's mild weather plus the fact that the disease was severe last year increases the potential for another major outbreak this year," points out Dr. Wendell Horne, Extension Service plant pathologist.

Horne says that the warmer weather has wheat progressing rapidly and that the crop is reaching the critical stage for control measures in some areas of the

"Since the cost of a fungicide application to control leaf rust is quite expensive, a farmer must be sure to treat his crop at the right time," Horne emphasizes. "Past experience has shown that a fungicide is most effective when applied just as the flag leaf is starting to emerge. This is the last leaf formed before the grain head is exerted."

Horne also emphasizes that only fields with a good yield potential should be treated to be cost-effective. "The greatest benefit is likely to result when the yield potential is 40 bushels or more per acre," he points out. "If two applications are anticipated, the yield potential should be in the range of 60 bushels per acre. Second applications should follow the first by 10 to 14 days."

The plant pathologist advises farmers to use 3 to 5 gallons of water per acre to insure good coverage when applying the fungicide by air.

County Extension agents can help farmers monitor the situation to determine if control measures should be taken against leaf rust disease, notes Horne. If the disease is present, then a farmer needs to take a close look at his situation to determine if there are any factors that might limit the crop's potential, such as stand, fertility level and available moisture.

A group of young men in Floydada, who are interested in establishing a scholarship program, are trying to gather the names of all former students in agriculture classes and former F.F.A. members. There are several years which have no available records of this information. The years we are missing are the graduation years of 1940, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, and 47. Anyone who could help us gather these names, please write Hulon Carthel, 901 W. Mississippi or 983-2377. We appreciate any information you could supply.

Floydada cable adds USA

Floydada Cable TV will soon be adding the USA Cable Network to its basic cable lineup, according to the company's manager, Joe McKinnis. The new channel will appear on converter channel 17 or 8, depending upon which type of converter is used (some have remote control option). Those subscribers with "cable ready" television sets will receive the channel without the use of a converter.

McKinnis says the new channel is a family-oriented, all entertainment service, and is one of the most popular cable channels in America today, viewed by millions of households. The 24-hour-a-day channel includes movies, sports, children's programming, women's shows and more. "Much of USA's programming is exclusive to the channel," said McKinnis. This includes programs like the new views; award-winning Calliope for program has found a whole new group ------

Police investigate three traffic mishaps

Two Floydada High School students were riding in a 1977 Dodge van when it overturned in a vacant lot in the 900 block of West Missouri just after noon last Wednesday. The time was placed at shortly after 12:30.

Greg Lawson, the driver, was taken to the local hospital and later transferred by ambulance to Methodist Hospital in Lubbock. The 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Lawson resides at 901 West Lee.

He was unconscious after the accident, but suffered "no serious injuries," doctors informed his parents. He had bruises and minor lacerations.

Richie Porter of 620 West Lee was a passenger. He also was taken to the local hospital, where he was treated and observed before being released Saturday morning. He suffered no broken bones.

Lawson was thrown from the van, according to information given to The Hesperian.

City officer Harold Snell investigated. He said that neither lad apparently was wearing a seat belt. Snell reported that the vehicle skidded over 230 feet before hitting the dirt and overturning on the vacant lot.

The van was traveling east on West Missouri (Farm Road 784)

H.C. McElyea, who resides at 904 West Missouri, adjacent to the vacant lot where the van came to rest, said he and his wife were eating lunch when they heard noises as the accident occurred. He believes the van overturned three times before stopping on McElyea said the lads told him that the van's left front brake locked, causing the mishap. Snell described the van as being

The Wednesday mishap was the third within six days investigated by the Floydada police department.

A 1978 Oldsmobile Cutlass driven by Derrick Jenkins of 314 E. Kentucky skidded "on the wet street" about 6:30 p.m. Friday, March 14, and "skidded sideways" into a 1979 Volkswagon convertible. The accident occurred in the 200 block of South Second Street.

O'Brian Barker of Route Three, Floydada, was driving the Volkswagon. Impact of the accident shoved the Volkswagon into an '82 Buick, driven by Helen Terrell of Terrell Trailer Park.

The lone injury was received by Rod Davis, 709 E. Thornton, who was riding in the back seat of the Oldsmobile. Sustaining a "bump on the head," he was taken to the local hospital by ambulance. Davis was treated and released.

Jenkins was charged with negligent collision and having no insurance.

Total damage was placed by Snell at approximately $3,000.

Four different charges were filed against Catarino Ramirez of 318 West Kentucky in connection with a Sunday, March 16, "hit-and-run" accident in the 200 block of West Kentucky. The site is near First United Methodist

According to police department information, the '69 Pontiac driven by Ramirez struck a 1981 Cadillac belonging to A.L. Wylie Jr. and also hit a 1980 Ford owned by Wayne Poteet of Route Three, Floydada.

Both the Cadillac and Ford were parked in front of the church during evening services.

Ramirez, who reportedly left the scene, was later apprehended and charged with driving while intoxicated, leaving the scene of an accident, having no insurance and having no driver's license.

There were no injuries. Officers placed damage to the three vehicles at approximately $2,000.

Farmers hiring seasonal help must report Social Security wages

By Terry J. Clements

Farmers who plan to hire seasonal help should be sure to note the special rules for reporting farm workers' wages for social security purposes. Because farm work is often part time and irregular, special rules control how it is counted for social security protection.

Farm workers' wages count and must be reported when a worker is paid cash wages of $150 or more during a calendar year. If this test is not met, wages count if they are paid on a time basis—by the hour, day, week, or month-for any part of 20 or more days a year.

As an employer of farm workers, a farmer should keep a record for each worker showing the worker's name, social security number, cash wages paid and taxes withheld from pay. If wages are paid on a time basis, both the exact days worked and the wages for each day should be recorded.

The farm employer must collect and pay social security taxes on the wages. The tax rate in 1986 is 7.15 percent each for employees and employers on wages up to $42,000.00. The farmer deducts the taxes owed, pays the employer's share, and periodically sends the report to the Internal Revenue Service using federal tax deposit Form 511. How often these payments must be made depends on the total tax due.

At the end of the year, the farm employer must complete IRS Form 943—Employer's Annual Tax Return for Agricultural Employees-generally by January 31 for each employee who was subject to social security tax withholding for services during the year. The farmer should send copy A of the W-2, along with Form W-3-Transmittal of Income and Tax Statement—to the Social Security Administration by the last day of February.

If the farm workers are hired by a crewleader who pays them, then the crew leader is the employer and should handle the social security matters. If the farmer or the farmer's agent pays the workers, then whoever has the final right to control the workers on the job is

Galloway observes March birthday

BIRTHDAY HONOREE-Maude Galloway, who turned 91 on Sunday, March 16, was the only Floydada Nursing Home resident to mark a birthday this month. She was delighted to spend the afternoon with her family and friends on

By Lorilla Bradley March brings many changes ... From winter into spring... And just to keep us smiling A party is "the thing"!

We greet our Mrs. Galloway .Whose years are 91... And though she's slowed her step a bit She still loves having fun!

Let's serenade this lady With the same old Birthday Song To let her know we love her So sing out good and strong!

Thursday, March 20th, was party time at the Rest Home with ladies of the City Park Church of Christ as hostesses. The Hesperian photographer came for the "picture taking" after which residents and guests were ushered into the dining room.

The honoree was seated at the "honor" table which was laid with a white cloth and was centered with a floral arrangement in shades of pink. Mrs. Galloway's place was marked with a special card and she wore a lovely fresh corsage provided by Williams Card and Flower Shop.

The poem was read and all joined in singing the Happy Birthday song.

Seated with the honoree and helping her celebrate her "day" were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Galloway and Carryanne, Gwen Randall, Jo Bryant, Bessie Wilson, Doug and Elaine Galloway, Rusty and Robin. We surely appreciate all of these people taking time out from their busy days to be with us and we hope you will do the same when your loved one is being honored.

A delicious refreshment plate of angel food cake, iced birthday cakes and tangy fruit punch was served to the honoree, guests, residents and employ-
