Some thoughts on the passing scene: We see by the papers where a couple of our lawmakers became lawbreakers, in a minor way, and paid the price. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, the Chairman of the Democratic-controlled House Ways and Means Committee, paid a hefty fine for being caught driving while "under the influence," as they say. He failed his "breath-test", lost his license for one year and paid some $500 in fines as a result.

And Senator Teddy Kennedy paid a $75 fine for speeding, and for being without his drivers license when he was stopped. We really can't comment too much on the Congressman, being unfamiliar with his background, but we find the situation involving the Senator somewhat interesting. There was a time, indeed many times, when he sort of demanded special privileges. Now he seems a bit more relaxed about things, and a bit more responsible in his public comments, even if they do reflect the usual liberal position on issues. Perhaps it is because he feels completely secure in his position now that he has given up his quest for the Presidency and is concentrating on being a Senator for Massachusetts. Or perhaps he is just getting older.

At any rate we were surprised to see the item in print. Surely a person in his position could have pulled a string or two and gotten off the hook. Or he could have threatened to sue, or something, knowing there is always a chance he might run up against a local official who had his fingers crossed when he took his oath of office and swore to uphold the law. Or, that he might find a local official who would like nothing better than to have the Senator owe him a favor down the line. But perhaps he figured the resulting bad publicity would have been worse than just going ahead and paying his fine, like a lot of us have done. No matter. He paid his fine and went his way. And we predict his world will not come tumbling down as a result. In fact, we predict folks will think a little better of him. I know I do. It would still be difficult to vote for him, for anything. But I would do that before I would vote for someone who had been a party to corrupting the law.

Saturday on the Floyd County Court-

The marker dedication ceremony will have as special guests members of the Floyd family.

The public is invited to attend the marker event at 3 p.m. Following, at 3:30, will be a reception in the courthouse for the Floyd family and the public. The Floyds also are to receive a tour of the courthouse.

Floydada was selected as site for the third annual reunion of the entire Floyd clan in order that they might participate in the marker dedication.

Floyd County Historical Museum and Floyd County Historical Commission are sponsoring the Floyd family visit for the two-day event. The Floyds will have their private reunion Sunday at Massie Activity Center. Nancy Marble is chairperson of both the museum board and historical commission.

Members of the honored family planning to attend the Floyd County event hail from Gonzales, Texas, Georgia and other sites. This will be the initial visit to this area by most, although Rufus Floyd, a great-grandson of Dolphin Ward Floyd, was here in

The Floyds originally hailed from North Carolina.

TWO-DAY EVENT

Saturday begins with Floyd family registration at 9 a.m. at the Floyd County Historical Museum. A sack lunch, provided by the museum and local churches, civic organizations and clubs, is to be served at noon.

Museum directors are to host a picnic at Floydada Country Club in Blanco Canyon at 6 p.m. The Sunday family reunion in Massie Activity Center is scheduled to begin about 10 a.m.

ALAMO VOLUNTEER

Dolphin Ward Floyd was one of 32 Gonzales men who responded to Lt. Col. William B. Travis' letter for help at the beseiged Alamo. According to historians, these were the lone volunteers.

One story says the Gonzales men fought their way into the Alamo. Another historian believes Mexican soldiers were astonished at their fortitude at wanting to enter the old mission in the face of almost certain death and allowed them to pass through to the

New policy for classifieds told

Due to a large number of overdue classified accounts, the Hesperian and Beacon will no longer be able to charge classified ads. All classifieds will have to be paid in advance.

This will not affect the individuals and businesses who have already established acceptable credit with The Hesperian and The Beacon, and who do

Election totals unchanged after

Thursday recount

A June 12 recount of the votes cast in the Precinct 4 election for county commissioner on June 7 yielded the same totals as the original tally. Jack Lackey received 266 votes and challenger Don Green garnered 257.

The recount was performed at the request of Green and carried out by the recount committee for the Democratic Party in Floyd County. This committee is made up of Jack Stansell, Mrs. Weldon Hammonds, Mrs. Louis Pyle, and Mrs. Charles E. Holmes Jr.

The recount was held in the county courtroom of the Floyd County Courthouse at 10 a.m. on Thursday.

Bob Lotspeich chosen Floyd ASCS director

Bob Lotspeich, whose grandfather was a longtime Floydada area farmer, has been selected to succeed Tom Moore as executive director of the Floyd County ASCS office. Moore, who manned the post for 20 years, retired on May 30.

Lotspeich assumes his duties here in July.

He was selected Friday by the county ASCS executive committee following interviews. Nancy Bishop will continue as acting director until the new executive director reports.

A longtime Hale Center resident, Lotspeich presently is ASCS county executive director for-Ward and Winkler counties. He and his wife Martha plan to move to Floydada in the near future from Monahans.

"My wife and I are happy to be moving back to this area," the future Floyd ASCS official related to The Hesperian on Friday following his appointment. "I look forward to working with Floyd County farmers and certainly with the ASCS office staff." He stated that he was impressed with the staff, who he said "carry a tremendous load."

Lotspeich has served the past year in Winkler-Ward counties after working for two years at the Swisher County ASCS office in Tulia. The family continued to make their home in Hale Center while he was associated with the Swisher office.

The future Floyd ag official resided in Hale Center "about 20 years." He owned and operated a cotton gin during much of that time.

While in Hale Center, he was a member of the school board, city council and chamber of commerce board. He held membership in the Hale Center Lions Club and presently is a Rotary Club member in Monahans. Mr. and Mrs. Lotspeich are members of the Methodist Church.

They are parents of two sons: Mark, 25, of Lubbock, and Matt, 23, of Irving.

After growing up in Adrian and being graduated from Adrian High School, he attended Texas Tech University and later studied at West Texas State University, where he received his degree in Following graduation from college, he was drafted into the U.S. Army and served 16 months

Lotspeich's grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lotspeich, farmed in the Dougherty community for many years. They moved into Floydada following their retirement and were residents of this city at the time of their deaths.

Sesquicentennial martyr saluted

By M. Monette Benoit

A Texas Sesquicentennial celebration and the Third Floyd Family Reunion will be held June 21, and June 22, 1986, in Floydada, county seat of Floyd County which was named in honor of Dolphin Ward Floyd. He was born in 1804 in Nash County, North Carolina This young man became an Alamo martyr on his 32nd birthday, March 6, 1836, with the rank of private. He was a resident of Gonzales, Texas, a settlement about 70 miles east of San Antonio.

When William B. Travis sent out the urgent message for help, Dolphin was one of the thirty-two men who answered the call. They traveled from Gonzales as reinforcements after the siege of Santa Anna's army had started.

It was ninteen years before Dolphin's family in Georgia and North Carolina knew that their son and brother had died in the Alamo. The records listed his full name as 'Dolphin Ward' with the last name 'Floyd' being discovered and added later.

The Texas legislature authorized the formation of Floyd County 40 years later on August 21, 1876. The county seat was formed by an organization election on May 28, 1890; but not without its own unique problems.

The first settlers in the area had to travel to Clarendon, the county seat of Donley County to file for the state lands on their homesteads. The town of Della Plain was platted in 1887, and initially planned to be the county seat. Lockney was founded in 1889, and became a rival to Della Plain for the county seat in Floyd

The town of Lockney later combined forces with Floyd City for the privilege of becoming the county seat. Floyd City won this election by 22 votes with a final tally of fifty-five to thirty-three. The results of this election were appealed to the District Court and then later to the Supreme Court before the legality of the election was upheld, and Floyd City was proclaimed the official county

Floyd City remained the county seat until the post office was established four months later in September, 1890. A new issue arose when it was discovered that another office had the identical name. Floyd City subsequently was renamed to Floydada. Records reveal this was probably a combination of the county name with that of Mrs. Ada Price. (The Price family donated the 640 acres of land for the site of Floyd City in 1890.)

Floyd City was situated on the Pecos, North Texas, Quanah, Acme and Pacific railroads in South Central Floyd County. The combination of monetary problems, grasshopper plagues and droughts contributed to many settlers relocating their families and withdrawing from Floyd County.

The town of Lockney recovered in 1894 after Lockney Christian College was formed. Slowly the population increased resulting in a new attempt to relocate the county seat of Floyd County and to build a new courthouse. Floydada was triumphant in the election of 1912, but only by a small margin. Twenty-two years after the election in 1890, and 36 years after the Texas Legislature created Floyd County in 1876 commemorating Dolphin's contribution to Texas history; Floydada remained the county seat of Floyd

FLOYD HISTORY

Dolphin Ward Floyd was the son of Thomas Penuel and Sarah Beckwith Floyd. Records have recently been found to indicate that Thomas Penuel may have been the same person listed as 'Penuel, Newell and Nevill Floyd' in various documents.

The 1810 census of Nash County, North Carolina lists 'Penuel' as head of the Floyd household. He records several children by names and birthdates. A son, Dolphin Ward was born in 1804 to Research of the geneology reveals that over 200 years ago, Thomas Penuel and Sarah Beckwith Floyd bought a farm in Nash County, North Carolina. They gave birth to ten children, one of whom was Dolphin Ward.

Ten years after his father died in 1815, Dolphin left his mother and family in North Carolina on November 22. He settled in Gonzales, Texas, before joining the Texas Revolution and he purchased land. Dolphin married Ester Berry House April 26, 1832 in Gonzales.

The demise of Dolphin Ward Floyd in 1836 left his widow, Ester Berry in Gonzales with his son, John W. at the age of two. He had one daughter named Elizabeth born April 17, 1836, six weeks after his assassination.

Ester Berry remarried and both children remained in Gonzales. John W. lived to raise a large family with seven children. Elizabeth married William Kilpatrick Hargis and later died during childbirth.

Single Floydada teacher faces 'retake' of state TECAT test

Although school systems have received no formal information from the Texas Education Agency, apparently all but one of the "approximately 95" Floydada educators who took the TE-CAT test passed.

Supt. Jerry Cannon says, according to the media, only one Floydada teacher failed to successfully complete the test. A "re-take" is scheduled for June 28.

Since only individual faculty members receive their test results, Supt. Cannon has "no idea" which educator did not post a passing score on the initial test.

Teachers who passed the state-mandated TECAT examination received state notification. "All but 17" local teachers have turned in such certification to the superintendent's office.

The state education agency presumably will notify local districts of teacher status by August 1.

State average for the 202,084 educators who took the TECAT was 96.7 percent passing.

And for those of you who are interested in these things, the editorial writers for the Austin American Statesman are in a dither. That paper is now owned by a big corporation out of Atlanta, Georgia, and their top employees are rotated from one newspaper to another, somewhat like officers in the Foreign Service are rotated from one country to another, lest they become too friendly with the natives.

The editorial writers are up in arms because the INS established road blocks at three intersections in Austin recently and caught more than 200 illegal aliens in the process. That infuriated the editorial writers, and ACLU, and Democratic Congressman Jake Pickle, who is in a reelection battle. It also caused considerable unhappiness among other "good" people in the community who think it is intolerable that these people should be apprehended and sent back home. The paper pointed out that the illegals would not be here if there were not "jobs aplenty" for them to fill, which seems strange since they also frequently complain of the tremendous rise in unemployment in Texas which they blame, naturally, on President

What the Austin newspaper did not know, or at least did not report, is that about two weeks before the Austin raid, the INS undertook to intercept the illegals at a little town in Southwest Texas near Uvalde, with startling success. The Southern Pacific railroad runs through Uvalde on the way from California, and through the small town of Knippa, eleven miles east of Uvalde. There the Border Patrol, in one week, rounded up between 400 and 500 illegals just by checking the freight trains heading east toward San Antonio and Houston. That was in one town of less than 1000 population, on one railroad line, in one week.

While the Border Patrol was doing its thing in Austin and Knippa, the city of with frisbies.

Just one final word. I thought our coverage of the Old Settler's Reunion was first class. The issue of the paper that week was most interesting, informative and thorough. It would have done justice to a city four times the size of our own. In fact the paper just seems to get better and better, overall. If we can keep paying our bills we'll make it yet.

Houston was laying off some 700 city employees because of a continuing budget crunch, and Austin was wrestling with budget problems as well, despite a continuing boom in population. Continuing doldrums in the energy industry was not only causing a decline in state tax revenues, but a rise in unemployment as well. Houston energy companies reported substantial layoffs of personnel and vacant office space grew apace. A friend, Lance Tarrance, who owns the national polling firm of Tarrance and Associates, told us a few weeks ago that he had moved his operations from out in northwest Harris County into one of the new and spacious buildings just because the deal was too good to pass up. The new landlords gave him 36 months of free rent, and

And just in case you missed it: Dr. Spock, not the one on Star Trek but the one who made a fortune writing books about how to care for babies, has decided we ought to do away with Little League baseball and similar competitive games for youngsters. It's not good for them, he says, because it fosters a competitive spirit. Rather, says Dr. Spock, we ought to start all over . . .

Beware of small snakes'

Mrs. Vance Campbell 'glad to be home and still have my foot' following strike

"Beware of little snakes; they are deadly!"

That is wise, first-hand advice from a Dougherty area woman, who spent 18 days hospitalized as the result of a May 14 strike by a "small snake. I would say it was eight to 10 inches long. He barely had two buttons; he wasn't big enough to rattle." explains Mrs. Vance (Betty) Campbell.

After being on guard for rattlesnakes throughout her life, Mrs. Campbell was struck twice by the same rattler just outside her home. She remembers that "It was about dark. This small snake was laying right at the bottom of the steps going out on the patio. It was not coiled; they don't have to be coiled to strike. He coiled after

She says "when he first bit, I thought it felt like a wasp. He really bit the second time and I knew I had something besides a wasp." The young rattler struck the Dougherty woman on the side of her right foot.

Mrs. Campbell "stomped that rascal to death," her son Wes noted soon after the incident which sent his mother first to the Caprock Hospital emergency room in Floydada and then on an ambulance trip to St. Mary's of the Plains Hospital

"Because of the time required to get her to Floydada and on to Lubbock, there was no time to test her for a reaction to the anti-venom serum," this newspaper was informed. "The doctors in Lubbock decided to treat her with a series of incisions on

This treatment involved a surgical procedure to make incisions in the involved extremity. These incisions are then packed with gauze which was changed frequently as the venom drained from the openings. Campbell said that doctors told the family the procedure was preferred in his mother's case to the possible serious side-effects associated with the use of the anti-venom serum.

After eight days in the Lubbock hospital, Mrs. Campbell was released to her home. "I got to come home and stay exactly three days before I had to go back." she says. Then she was forced to return to the Lubbock medical facility. Due to the "highly inflammed" nature of her foot, doctors were concerned following her return that amputation of the foot might be required. Physicians "put me on an intensive antibiotic program for 10 days" before she was released the second time on June 6.

She relates that "I'm doing pretty good now, but I'm having some swelling in my leg. The doctor says I may always have some swelling in the right leg." She can not drive her auto and spends "most of my time hobbling around the house," frequently keeping the leg elevated to help keep down swelling.

"I'm certainly glad to be home and still have my foot," a relieved Mrs. Campbell

Prior to May 14, neither members of Mrs. Campbell's nor her husband's families had been struck by a rattlesnake, although the Campbells were residing in Motley County and Mrs. Campbell's kin in Hillcrest community of Floyd County "since before the turn of the century. Everyone has had some close calls, but thank goodness this was the first time anyone had been struck."

A Dougherty area resident "going on 70 years", Mrs. Campbell adds that "we have a lot of rattlesnakes and every summer we kill several here.

Ironically, a great-nephew of Mrs. Campbell, Ross Colston (son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Colston) had a near miss a few days after she was bitten. The 12-year-old lad was digging cactus in a pasture and "felt something hit his leg." He was wearing heavy jeans and cowboy (high-top) boots. The youngster went to the house where his mother examined him and found marks but determined that his skin had not been penetrated by fangs of another "small rattler." The snake "struck just right in the thick part of the boots.'

Although still having some complications, Betty Campbell bears a positive attitude. "Maybe my experience will help someone else from being bitten," she says in urging caution for persons living or working in rattlesnake country. She is highly appreciative to family members, neighbors and friends who have uplifted her on "bad days" during her ordeal.

She also is wary of "little snakes. They are just as deadly as large snakes, and they're always mad. They're so hard to see; you can come much nearer seeing one of the large ones.'

Guard yourself against home selling frauds

Dealing with a person who advertises "I buy homes for fast cash," can make you the victim of a costly deal.

Dr. Jane Berry, a housing specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service (TAEX), says that homeowners with assumable VA or FHA mortgages can be victimized by their ability to sell their homes through a simple rather than a formal assump-

She explains that in a formal assumption, the person buying the property assumes responsibility for any nonpayment of the loan.

For a simple assumption, however, the original mortgage holder remains responsible for any default which might occur on the loan. Simple assumption of FHA and VA loans can be accomplished between buyer and seller without HUD, VA or the mortgage compa-

In some cases, a homeowner will even pay the buyer a fee to take over his loan on a simple assumption, even though he's sacrificing the downpayment, equity and everything else that was invested in the property, says Berry.

This may seem like an attractive deal to families in financial trouble, she says, especially when the buyer agrees to let the family stay on as renters of the property for an amount less than their mortgage payment.

Such an arrangement may work out for both parties, as long as the new owner continues to make mortgage payments as agreed, notes the special-

But Berry says there are numerous instances of new owners taking deposits, rentals and other fees and then failing to make mortgage payments. Then when foreclosure results, the action is against the original owner of the VA or FHA mortgage, not the buyer who made the simple assumption of the

'Not all buyers in this circumstance are out to defraud homeowners," she remarks, "but it is up to the homeowner to determine whether the prospective buyer is legitimate and intends to meet the mortgage commitment.

The housing specialist advises making every effort to check out the credit record of a prospective buyer.

If you have any doubts, she recommends sticking to a formal assumption, where liability for any future default would rest with the new buyer.

Berry also points out that with VA and FHA mortgage rates falling, it will be to the advantage of most buyers to simply get their own mortgage rather than assume yours at a higher rate.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the people of not only Floyd County Precinct 4, but the people of Floyd County as a whole, who helped me in my campaign for commissioner. Even though we lost by a small margin we ran a good honest race.

Thanks Don Green

Dolphin's oldest brother, John W. Floyd left North Carolina and moved to O'Neals Mills, Georgia around 1830. He married the daughter of his employer, Oretha Ann Jones of Kings Gap in 1832. John W. wrote his widowed mother and requested that she move the family to Georgia. Three of her daughters remained in North Carolina.

Sarah Beckwith moved the family in 1835 to O'Neals Mills, Georgia. She lived in Troup County, Georgia, until 1863 when she died at 93 years of age.

Dolphin's younger sister, Adelih Floyd married Carter B. Jones and moved west sometime around 1851 to Leon County, Texas. His oldest brother, John W. Floyd relocated his wife and family in 1857 from Meriwether County, Georgia, to Upshur County, Texas.

Many families traveled in the long wagon train as they moved their cattle, slaves and furniture. It took three days for the entire procession to cross the Mississippi River while enduring great difficulties. They fought with Indians after arriving in Texas. Although no one from the wagon train died, Indians were reported to have been killed.

Of particular interest in the geneology is the fact that Dolphin Ward Floyd had many nephews who fought in the War Between the States. His oldest brother, John W. had sons who also were involved. One son, Willis Newell Floyd was wounded and died on Docember 11, 1862 in Arkenses.

December 11, 1862 in Arkansas. John W. had a younger son, Adolphus Dolphin Floyd. He enlisted September 10, 1861 as a Fifer in Gilmer, Texas, at 22 years of age. This nephew was wounded twice, captured twice and exchanged twice. He served in the 7th Regiment of the Texas Infantry. He was taken prisoner on February 16, 1862 at Fort Donelson, Tennessee under General Simon Boliver Buckner.

The prisoners of war were confined over seven months until September 30, 1862 at Camp Douglas near Chicago, Illinois. They traveled to Vicksburg, Mississippi, for an exchange of Federal soldiers. Adolphus Dolphin was captured again sometime later in 1864 in Franklin, Tennessee. His name appears on a Roll of Prisoners of War at Nashville, Tennessee captured by forces under Major General Thomas. He was transferred on December 5, 1864 back to Camp Douglas, Illinois, The second exchange of P.O.W.'s occurred May 23rd, 1865 after he was forwarded to New Orleans by order of Major General E.R.S.

Canby.

Another nephew who was involved in the Civil War was James Dolphin Floyd, son to Dolphin's older brother, Thomas Beckwith. He enlisted in the Confederate Army, Company B, 60th Regiment in the Georgia Infantry, as a private on April 10th, 1861 at the age of 24. James Dolphin fought in many battles including Gettysburg.

He received a chest wound on July 8, 1864 at Monocacy and was captured July 10th, 1864 at Frederick, Maryland. His name appears on a Roll of Prisoners of War at Fort McHenry and Point Lookout, Maryland. This young man survived the war to marry and have six children. After his wife died in 1876, he remarried the next year and six additional children were born to the Floyd family.

Part of this large family remained in Nash County, North Carolina; Troup and Meriwether County, Georgia; and in and around Gilmer and Gonzales, Texas. Some of the Floyd's later moved to Corpus Christi in 1900. Today's descendants of Thomas Penuel and Sarah are residing in over 24 states and six foreign countries.

FLOYD REUNION

The First Floyd Reunion was in 1979 in Pine Mountain, Georgia to celebrate the 150th (also a Sesquicentennial) anniversary of the Floyd migration in 1830 from Nash County, North Carolina to Georgia. Approximately 400 relatives gathered in an old one room schoolhouse.

Many of the Floyd children attended school and taught there. The remaining settlement homes of the children of Thomas Penuel and Sarah Beckwith Floyd were viewed in 1979 by their descendants.

The Second Floyd Reunion was in 1981 in San Antonio, Texas. Over 300 relatives gathered for the Floyd Round-up. A private memorial service was held at the Shrine of the Alamo honoring Dolphin Ward Floyd. Vice President George Bush mailed a letter conveying his best wishes and regards for this happy occasion.

Registration for the Third Floyd Reunion will begin Saturday, June 21, 1986 at 9 a.m. in Floydada, Texas. The East Room of the local museum has been reserved for the members of this family to gather. Many people will be traveling from North Carolina, Georgia, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Texas and other states.

The marker dedication will start at 3 p.m. on the courthouse lawn. An official Texas Historical Marker will be unveiled honoring Dolphin Ward Floyd. The inscription details the creation of Floyd County and Dolphin Ward's history. Larry Smitherman designed a commemorative coin using Dolphin Ward Floyd as the theme. Another book has recently been published by Floyd relatives and will be on sale.

The family will reconvene Sunday, June 22nd, at the Massie Activity Center before departing their separate ways until the Fourth Floyd Reunion.

This sesquicentennial year celebrates the independence of Texas March 2nd, 1836 from Mexico. It honors ALL the cultural heritages that have been recorded with the early settlers and pioneers. The Floyd Family and Floydada can be proud of their efforts to join in this special celebration of Texas history.

City council okays purchase of truck

A called meeting of the Floydada City Council was held on June 11 at 6:00 p.m. for the purpose of considering the purchase of equipment.

Following a short period of discussion, council members voted to lease/purchase a used truck from Wayne Tipton on a two month plan. The city will pay Tipton $3,000 a month for a total cost of $6,000.

A second vote approved the purchase of a dump bed for installation on the newly acquired truck. The estimated cost of this purchase is under $5,000.

City manager Bill Feuerbacher reported that the relocation of the back accomplished following the recent rains. The work was done by city workers in accordance with council's wishes. "Hopefully, this will alleviate most of the nuisance problems residents adjacent to the park have been experiencing," said Feuerbacher.

Council member Don Green notified the council that he had obtained the consent of the Rodeo Association for using the local rodeo grounds as a camp site for the Lone Star Wagon Train. The train, part of the continuing Sesquicentennial celebration, plans a weekend camp in Floydada on August 30 and 31.

Weather and aphids produce 'real poor quality' wheat

With the weatherman finally cooperating, wheat harvest was winding down early this week.

According to elevator operators, a combination of "dry weather, aphid problems and too much rain at the wrong time" have produced "real poor quality wheat" across much of the area.

A wide variation in yield has been noticed, with "some areas producing

8-10 bushel wheat and others going up to 20-25 bushels" per acre. With these variations, elevator operators find it difficult to arrive at a "county ave-

Daralyn Williams attends energy science symposium

The Texas Energy Science Symposium, June 9-12 in Austin, provided this area's outstanding high school science students and teachers with up-to-date information on developments in energy.

Attending among approximately 400 of the top science students and teachers from throughout the state was Daralyn Williams, 17, daughter of Leon and Sue Williams, 714 W. Georgia, of Floydada.

She was among 36 participants from the Panhandle and South Plains sponsored by Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS).

While today's nuclear power plants

While today's nuclear power plants generate electricity using fission, or the splitting of atoms, fusion is the joining of atoms to produce energy.

Fusion power is a form of energy that gets its power from water and, therefore, potentially offers a safe, clean, almost limitless supply of energy, if developed, according to the foundation.

In attempting to develop the fusion process, researchers are looking for a way to confine the fusion reaction, which lasts only a fraction of a second.

At this point, it takes more energy to create fusion than the process itself generates because of the brief reaction time, according to the foundation.

Several projects have been developed to try to produce and control fusion power.

The nucleus of fusion power research at the University of Texas is a machine called a tokamak. The tokamak uses magnetic fields to attempt to confine the reaction.

Besides offering information on fusion research, experts covered such topics as electricity, Texas energy resources, mathematics, traditional nuclear power and coal.

Dear Editor; Having worked with a number of volunteer organizations during the time I have lived in Floyd County, I have run into many of the same problems that beset others in the same position, namely, being unable to get enough people involved to accomplish the tasks necessary to provide a continuing, meaningful program of events. Recently, I have read in your paper of more than one event that failed to attract the very people who would have benefitted by it. Reflections on the nature of this problem prompted me to write the enclosed. I hope you will publish this, if you feel it has merit. As to those who may read it..." If the shoe fits...

Correction

The Hesperian correctly stated in an article appearing in last week's issue that Amy Beth Jones and Johnny L. Ferguson were married June 7 at First Baptist Church in Floydada. However, the headline incorrectly stated that the marriage ceremony was conducted in Lubbock. The Hesperian apologies to the couple for this headline error.

Candlelight ceremony unites Morton-Ellison

Julie Kay Morton and Charles Craig Ellison were united in marriage Saturday at 6:30 p.m. in a candlelight ceremony in the sanctuary of the First Baptist Church. The Rev. Howell Farnsworth, pastor, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ray Morton and the late Mr. Morton of Floydada. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ellison of Lockney.

Dozens of candles on decorated brass candelabrum lighted the sanctuary. A large brass arched candelabra, holding white candles and an arrangement of greenery and cerise love lilies centered the altar area. Six large palms in brass stands flanked the area with two, multi-tiered, brass candelabrum, also decorated with greenery on either side of the arch. Four, seven-branch candelabrum completed the altar decorations. The bridal aisle was marked with tall, brass hurricane candelabrum, entwined with white silk, lily of the valley garlands.

Soloists were Ms. Susan Turner of Lubbock and Ms. Laurie Noel of Plainview, cousin of the bride. Ms. Turner sang "That's What Friends Are For" and Ms. Noel sang, "Whither Thou Goest" and "With This Ring". Mrs. Lloyd Morton of Plainview, aunt of the bride, was organist and Mrs. Ricky Cross, also of Plainview and cousin of the bride, was the pianist.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Lloyd Morton of Plainview, the bride wore a formal gown of white taffeta with a portrait neckline. The fitted bodice of appliqued alencon lace was decorated with seed pearls and irridescent sequins and featured a dropped waistline. The long taffeta, Renaissance sleeves came to a point over the hands and were appliqued with alencon lace that was covered with seed pearls and sequins. The full skirt had vertical rows of alencon lace in the back and swept into a cathedral train. The skirt also featured a wide taffeta ruffle, edged in Alencon lace, while the front of the skirt was scattered with Alencon lace appliques, embroidered with seed pearls and sequins. To complete her ensemble, the bride chose a white, small-brimmed hat that turned up on one side, revealing a corsage of silk roses and pearls. The veil formed a French pouffe which fell to a finger-tip length. She carried a cascade bouquet of white dendrobium orchids. agapanthus buds, stephanotis, babies breath, and English ivy, along with a handkerchief that was her maternal great-grandmother's for "something old". "Something new" was her bridal ensemble". "Something borrowed" was her petticoat and "something blue" was her garter. Pennies minted in the years of the bride and bridegroom's birth dates were worn in her shoes.

Mrs. Kelly Turner of Lubbock, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Dianne Mitchell of Floydada, Mrs. Lane Thompson of Hillsboro, Mrs. Shane Cunningham of Abernathy, Miss Margo Donovan of Houston, and Ms. Laurie Noel of Plainview, cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids. Bridal attendants were dressed identically in cerise, taffeta tea length dresses, featuring self-ruffles over the shoulder and forming a deep-V in the back with a small bow tied across the shoulders. They carried cascade bouquets of love lilies, cerise gladiolias, agapanthus buds, rosaria alstromeria, and English

Candlelighters were Misses Karen Turner and Lynne Holcomb, both of Lubbock. They wore white taffeta dresses tied at the waist with cerise taffeta sashes. Their corsages were rosaria alstromeria and white agapanthus buds.

Barney Bill McCarter of Lockney was best man. Groomsmen were Steve Aufill of Lubbock, Johnny Dorman of Lockney, Don Hanks of Oklahoma City, uncle of the bridegroom, Todd Burleson of San Angelo, and Denis Casey of Ushers were Darell Edwards of Lockney, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; Kelly Turner of Lubbock, brother-in-law of the bride; Lance House of Graham, cousin of the bride; and Zach Zachary of Lockney. The bridegroom and all the male attendants were attired in gray tuxedos featuring cutaway coats, white tucked shirts and gray and white ascots. Their boutonneires were rosaria alstromeria and babies breath. The bridegroom's was white stephanotis and aganpanthus

Following the ceremony, a reception was hosted by the bride's mother in the Wall Street Parlor. White lattice panels covered with English ivy served as a backdrop for the bride's table, which was covered with a white, lace floorlength cloth. Appointments of crystal and silver complimented the table which was centered with a tall, floral arrangement of cerise gladiolas, alstromeria, and gerbera daisies in a four-tapered silver candelabra. The four-tiered wedding cake was decorated with pale pink and white confection orchids and pale pink satin steamers. Presiding at the bride's table were Mrs. Kirk Brock of Levelland, Miss Debbie Harrison of Lubbock, and Mrs. Lloyd Morton III of Plainview, cousin of the

A large cascading fruit arrangement centered the bridegroom's table, which was covered with a floor-length, ecru lace tablecloth. Cheese, crackers, nuts, and heart-shaped chocolate mints were served along with the fruit. A silver service from which coffee was served completed the table. A smaller, side table covered with a pink linen cloth held the bridegroom's cake of German chocolate. It was a large sheath cake topped with a tiered heart and iced in chocolate and pink flowers.

Misses Kay Hanks of Houston, aunt of the bridegroom; Connie Coffman of Lockney; and Shelly Gray of Lubbock served at the bridegroom's table.

Other members of the house party were: Mrs. Jim House of Graham and Mrs. Jim Morton of Hurst, aunts of the bride; Mrs. L. T. (Pete) Hickerson, Mrs. Lewis Reddy, Mrs. Alton Higginbotham, Mrs. Johnney West, Mrs. Joe Max Harrison, Mrs. Jerry Cannon, Ms. Janet Milam, all of Floydada; and Mrs. Brent Harkey of Lubbock.

Mrs. Darell Edwards of Lockney, sister of the bridegroom, presided at the guest registration table. Mica Edwards, niece of the bridegroom, and Rachael Noel, cousin of the bride, distributea the rice bags.

After a honeymoon trip to Ixtapa, Mexico, the couple will reside in Lockney, where the bridegroom is parts manager for Dick's Automotive. The bride is employed by the FISD and teaches home economics at Floydada High School.

The rehearsal dinner was held at the Elk's Restaurant in Plainview on Friday night and was hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

A bridesmaids' luncheon was hosted by Mrs. Lewis Reddy in her home southwest of Floydada on the day of the

Becker hosts Sesquicentennial party

Mrs. Weldon Becker was hostess at her country home to ladies of the City Park Church of Christ Tuesday evening, June 9, for a Sesquicentennial party back through the years of memory. Mrs. Stephen Becker assisted her mother-inlaw with hostess duties. The home was decorated with old fashioned bouquets from the garden and field of Myrtle Finley. Guests arrived dressed "as their grandmothers might have dressed," in skirts and shirtwaists, print dresses, aprons and bonnets.

One flapper was in the crowd, as Mrs. Lorilla Bradley arrived in black satin lounging pajamas, with gold pointed toed slippers, carrying a silver mesh purse, all from her wardrobe of the 1920's. Mrs. Judy Dunlap wore a pink and blue organdy evening gown originally worn by Mrs. Bradley at a music recital given by the late Mrs. Ohmar Kirk in the 1920's. Some of the ladies, wearing street length frocks, daringly rolled their seamed stockings in the vile of the '20s. Others, such as Mrs. Mark Nutt and infant daughter, Lindsey wore calico dresses and ruffled bonnets. Mrs. Lula Teague wore a beautiful ruffled dotted swiss "Sunday bonnet" which, had belonged to her late mother, Mrs. Lily Bishop.

Mrs. Stephen Becker led the group in a prayer of thanks for the bounty and freedom of America and our West Texas. Guests had been invited to bring food that grandma might have served. The salad table had the favorites of cole slaw, potato salad, sliced cucumbers, English salad, green onions, pickles and relishes. A large table offered bowls and platters of fried chicken, roast beef, salmon croquettes, baked chicken, red beans, hot cornbread, greens and vinegar, black-eyed peas, roasting ears, scalloped potatoes, an after-school snack of left over cornbread, bacon and onion, and many more traditional foods that are still favorites. The dessert table yielded rhubarb pie, bread pudding, rice pudding, angel food cake, fried pies and fresh apricot cobbler.

Mrs. Joyce Williams told the story of the Rock House and the Hank Smith family in Blanco Canyon. She also taught the guests a game, used in group dynamics, "Meet your Kinfolks." Guests were given flags with the alphabet and instructed to go to the flag bearing the initial of their given name. This helps large groups, such as at family reunions, to split up for small group activities, thereby getting better acquainted, and finally returning back to a large group to report what they learned. The small groups were given sheets of questions about selves, parents and grandparents. They chose partners. The partner with the lightest colored hair, or the least hair, was the first interviewer. After each had interviewed the other, they took turns telling the crowd what they had found out about their partners. Guests had so much fun, the evening flew past before all could tell what they'd discovered.

Another party was scheduled for July to continue the readings.

First Baptist Church slates VBS

First Baptist Church of Floydada will be having Vacation Bible School next week, June 23-27. All children ages three through the sixth grade as of September 1, 1985, are invited to attend each day Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

"The week will be an exciting time of Bible stories, learning activities, games, crafts, and recreation," says Sherry Hale, VBS director.

Each day will begin with a joint service in the church auditorium and will be followed by age-group departmental activities. Approximately 50 volunteer workers will be leading the boys and girls during the week.

VBS will conclude on Friday with a commencement and family night at 7 p.m. Parents are invited to attend this time of presentation by the children of the work they have done during the week. Certificates for attendance and other awards will also be given on this

'We want to encourage boys and girls from all over our area to attend this important time of concentrated Bible teaching and spiritual training," said Pat Ford, minister of education at First

Locksmith Assn's. gather at Probasco's for meeting

On Saturday, June 14, Don and Sara Probasco were hosts to a joint meeting of the High Plains Locksmiths Association and the Southeast Chapter of the New Mexico Locksmith Association. Forty-six members and guests attended from Amarillo, Borger, Denver City, Levelland, Lubbock, Pecos, and Post, Texas. Also attending were members from Albuquerque, Carlsbad, Clovis, Hobbs, Portales, and Roswell, New Mexico. They began gathering at 8 a.m. in preparation for a lock code class.

Bill Reed, locksmith and editor of "The Locksmith Ledger" from Chicago, Illinois, and Frank Agius, locksmith and president of Framon Manufacturing Company, Inc. of Alpena, Michigan, were co-instructors for the class. These men spent three hours teaching the value and basic use of code books, code machines, and their function as tools of the locksmith trade.

Bill Reed is the grandson of E.D. Reed, a mathematics teacher who first began publishing the "Reed Code Book" in 1924 along with S.A. Mc-Clean, a Dallas locksmith.

Frank Agius is a master machinist and has spent 26 years in the locksmith profession. He is the inventor of the Framon Code Machine.

Guests not involved in the class

Pet birds could carry health risks

by Marilyn Brown TAES Science Writer

Pet birds, from budgies to parrots, recently have enjoyed new popularity in American homes, but keeping a pet bird carries health risks, according to Dr. James E. Grimes, associate professor of veterinary microbiology and parasitology for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Birds are a potential source of psittacosis, a bacteria-caused upper respiratory illness that is transmissible to human's.

Affected birds may go off their feed, become emaciated, have lime-green colored diarrhea, and have diffuculty breathing, Grimes said. They may seem to vascillate between being sick and well.

"Or they may just seem depressed and sit around all fluffed up," he said. People contract the illness by breathing the bacteria, and the onset may be acute or insidious, Grimes said. An insidious form of the sickness may seem like a chronic cold. An acute onset is caused by a pathogenic strain of the virus. Symptoms will be flu-like, with aches, fever, and a cough.

If severe psittacosis goes unrecognized and untreated, it can cause heart valve problems, or endocarditis, within 10 days or 2 weeks, Grimes said.

Psittacosis, sometimes called "parrot fever," affects birds in the parrot family. It is found in both imported and domestically raised birds. Its significance to humans has long been discounted, but new studies from England and Norway show that the infection can be transmitted from human to human.

In a 1984 study, Grimes and Dr. F. Dustan Clark tested over 800 birds for the presence of Chlamydia psittaci infection. Using a serology examination, 11.1 percent of 461 birds were found to be positive for the organism. Using fecal specimens from live birds or tissues from dead birds, 12.3 percent of 407 birds were found to be infected.

The study of psittacine birds in Texas showed all species to be infected, including parrots, budgerarigars (commonly but incorrectly called parakeets), cockatiels, cockatoos, conures, macaws, and others.

As birds gain popularity as pets, the significance of the illness becomes more and more important, Grimes said.

"Birds may be found in households in arger cities and towns where apartment living is common and in which cats and dogs are unsuitable as pets or are not allowed," he said.

"In the area of human/animal companionship, birds are being considered as highly suitable pets in various kinds of institutions for retired or invalid persons.

"In deference to the value that companion animals may play in such institutions, it must be pointed out that only healthy animals should be used for such purposes," he said.

Health care professionals and veterinarians should be aware of the bacteria's prevalence and its symptoms, he said.

The infection is especially threatening to elderly and debiliated persons, whose resistance to upper respiratory illness may already be poor.

To avoid coming into contact with psittacosis, pet shoppers should not buy a bird that is obviously sick - sitting

Mid-season steps to reduce barky cotton

By Richard Crow Floyd County Extension Agent-Ag

Cotton farmers suffer stiff penalties on barky or trashy cotton each year, and certain cultural and management practices during the growing season can reduce these.

Giving close attention to the following tactics can mean money in the bank at harvest-time due to better prices for higher quality cotton:

-Scout fields regularly to control insects and thus ensure retention of early fruit.

-Protect terminal growth from insect and herbicide damage. Such damage causes lateral branching and high stick content in cotton—a situation likely to -Manage nitrogen and irrigation to obtain the right balance between vegetative growth and uniform, productive fruiting.

-Control weeds by spot spraying early to prevent strippers from harvesting weeds residue that can end up contaminating fiber.

-Avoid root pruning. Cultivating too deep cuts roots and causes rapid moisture loss which can result in fruit shed and lower yields.

An important practice following wheat harvesting is weed control. The fallow summer season behind wheat gives growers a good opportunity to control Johnsongrass. Johnsongrass can be a severe problem in crops following wheat, such as corn, cotton, and sorghum, unless control measures are taken.

The best way to control rhizome Johnsongrass after wheat is to allow regrowth to about 18 inches in height and then wipe it or use a low volume systemic herbicide such as Roundup. After this treatment, normal tillage operations should be delayed seven days to insure a good kill. Sweep tillage or another chemical application should be used to keep fields clean during the

An increasing perennial weed problem in wheat is field bindweed. A fall application two to three weeks before frost of Banvel or a tank mix of Banvel and Roundup will give good control. Spot spraying with a 3-4 qt. rate of Roundup as bindweed regrowth reaches the bud stage is effective early in the

Almost 280,000 acres of erodible

That total couples with the 29,052 acres accepted into the new government program in March brings Texas' total to more than 300,000 acres involving some 1,200 farms. Accepted bids on the land statewide averaged just over $41 per acre for the second sign-up period compared to about $39 for the first

'The program not only will protect some of our more fragile land from erosion but will also improve water quality and wildlife habitats." Harris

Farmers who have land accepted into the program enter into a 10-year maximum acreage farmers can plant is 75 percent of total base, which points to a maximum planted acreage on the Plains of 3,324,614 acres.

However there is a provision in the 1986 program under which producers can elect to plant only 50 percent of the maximum permitted and still qualify for 92 percent of deficiency payments. And they retain that option until the July 15 final date for acreage certification. So, theoretically, producers could qualify for program benefits by planting as little as one-half of the maximum

"We have a host of self-proclaimed food experts these days that are making it tough on consumers," says Dr. Ed Uvacek, a livestock marketing economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Consider all the TV personalities, movie stars, sports figures, singers and even politicians who are suddenly 'health experts.' Many advertise various food items, flaunting their goodness, their nutritional value, as being better than some other products.

That the current cotton program is dependent for success on its ability to make and keep U.S. cotton truly competitive in world markets is almost axiomatic. It's been a rare speaker in industry circles who hasn't agreed.

And, according to Donald Johnson, executive vice president of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., recent USDA figuring the adjusted world price, details of the inventory protection plan and other administrative decisions appear to assure an excellent start in that direction.

There has been more than a little concern that USDA's enthusiasm for achieving a fully competitive price, under pressure from the office of Management and Budget and perhaps from the State Department as well, might be somewhat blunted. And repeated postponements of the final rules suggest that such concerns were not without cause. But Johnson thinks USDA has stood its ground in an admirable fashion. "We see no indication that the Department's determination to give U.S. cotton a fully competitive price in world markets has wavered in the least," he says. "In fact I have nothing but praise for the way market-related sections of the program are being administered to inventory protection plan, Johnson notes, is the surge of old crop cotton purchases by the trade immediately following its announcement. He also points out that net export sales of U.S. cotton for 1986-87 delivery jumped to over 2000,000 bales during the week ended June 5, "which tells me the formula for figuring the world price, which will determine the value of first handler certificates, is getting the job done exactly as intended by congressional framers of the law.' Especially noteworthy from the High Plains' viewpoint was USDA's agreement, at the behest of PCG and others in the industry, when necessary to assure a competitive price, to provide a supplementary adjustment to the value of first handler certificates on cottons used for coarse count yarns. "This is only one of several instances in which USDA has shown its willingness to cooperate with the industry and go the last mile to make this program work," Johnson states. The second half of the "making and keeping" U.S. cotton competitve is where the PCG executive foresees the greatest difficulty. It will not be enough to offer competitve prices in 1986-87 alone, he explains, "and the high cost of the program is certain to generate demands that it be changed in future

"It will take more than one year to convince some of our foreign competitors that competitive pricing of U.S. cotton is here to stay. So the future of cotton in this country may well depend on the ability of the industry and its allies to forestall those demands," Johnson concludes

Base cotton acres in the 25 Lubbock area counties represented by Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. total 4,789,283 for 1986, down 2.3 percent from the 4.902.985-acre total in 1985. Of that

Garza, Dawson, Borden, Martin, Howard and Midland Counties. Those counties signed up 97.5 percent or 1,574,983 of their 1,615,182-acre total

On the low end of the sign-up scale in PCG counties was District 10. Gaines is the only PCG county in that district, and farmers there enrolled only 432,435 or 79.2 percent of a base totaling 546,010

Between these extremes were Districts 3 and 4 where PCG counties enrolled 91.7 percent and 93 percent of base acres, respectively. District 3, with a total base of 1,568,475 acres, includes Deaf Smith, Parmer, Castro, Swisher. Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Cochran and Hockley Counties. District 4, where the base totals 1,059,616 acres includes Briscoe, Floyd, Motley, Lubbock, Crosby and Dickens Counties.

Holt, LaBaume win scholarships

Heather Holt, Lockney 4-H member, brought home a $4,000.00 scholarship from College Station last week. She applied for a Texas 4-H Foundation Scholarship several months ago. She went through an interview while at Texas 4-H Roundup and was awarded a C.J. Davidson Foundation Scholarship on June 10. She plans to attend Texas Tech University this fall and major in Home Economics Education.

Kelli LaBaume was the winner of the main dish category of the Texas 4-H Food Show. She prepared a nutrient analysis, a daily menu plan and her famous "Sweet 'N Sour Meatballs" to win this category.

After arriving at College Station, Kelli prepared her dish. She then went through a fifteen minute interview where she answered questions concerning nutrition, food habits, food-borne illness, etc. After enduring all of this, she came out number one in the state in the main dish category! A $750.00 scholarship accompanies this honor.

None of the other Texas 4-H Roundup entries from Floyd County placed high, but they all did well! The other 4-H'ers attending Texas 4-H Roundup were: Clay Adrian, Angie Bertrand, Amy Burns, Grant Cage, Don Chesshir, Chad

The American Simmental Association, founded in 1968, maintains the herdbook registry for Simmental and Simbrah cattle. ASA membership totals more than 22,000 nation-wide, including 3,500 junior members. In terms of annual registrations, ASA ranks among 58 recognized beef breeds in the United States.

Junior Simmental activities are expanding rapidly on all levels and now include judging contests, educational seminars, annual meetings, fairs, field days, fitting demonstrations, showmanship, and recreational activities scheduled on a regular basis. The next event, Summer Classic VI, will take place in Louisville, Kentucky June 23-27. This is the association's largest single youth event.

USDA defines 'light' meat

"The U.S. Department of Agriculture has established some policies on labeling meat and poultry that can help consumers select lean beef," says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Mary K. Sweetan. She explains that "extra lean" will be reserved for products containing no more than 5 percent fat, while "lean" and "low fat" will be used only on products with less than 10 percent fat. In either case, the amount of fat must be stated on the label. The new USDA regulations also define "light," "lite," "leaner," and "lower fat" as terms that can be used on products which have at least 25 percent less fat than the majority of that product in the marketplace. She notes that labels with any of those terms must explain the comparison on the label. So, for example, a label for "leaner" ground beef might state, "this product contains 20 percent fat, which is 33 percent less fat than is in most ground beef." Processors have one year to change their labels according to the USDA regulations, but many will voluntarily comply prior to that deadline, she says.

Lakeview News

By Joyce Williams

June 19:

Wheat harvest is progressing in our community, although most farmers declare they do not know if it will pay the cutting. The tail end of the Cone tornado passed over Lakeview two weeks ago, with large hailstones and strong winds. Branches were broken off trees; bark was beaten off mesquites, and the wheat fared accordingly, as did the small cotton plants.

Georgia Mae Erickson reports her 18 acres of onions were undamaged and the hail did not get to her land.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Thurston were hosts to four grandchildren last week from Sunday to Thursday. Their two daughters, Sandy Core and Johnny Ward, teach in the pre-school at Broadway Church of Christ in Lubbock, and both ladies attended a teachers meeting in Austin, while their children were in Lakeview. Ashley, 11, and Alyssa, 8, Core looked after the two younger cousins, Leah, age 3, and Lance Ward, age 2. Joe made them a playhouse out of a cotton trailer and an old tarp, and they played the hours away. The children also enjoyed riding the four wheeler Joe bought back when his hip was giving him trouble before his replacement surgery.

When the weather turns dry, don't just turn on your lawn sprinkler and then gripe about your high water bill.

By watering, fertilizing and mowing your lawn properly, you can reduce your water bill as much as 40 percent, says a turfgrass specialist.

"Conservation by the homeowner provides the only solution to high water bills and excessive water demands during our hot and usually dry Texas summers," says Dr. Richard Duble with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, The Texas A&M University Sys-

In small cities where industrial demand for water is low, lawn watering may account for as much as half of all the water used during summer months. Even in larger cities, lawns get 30 to 40 percent of all the water supplied by municipalities.

"Most Texas lawns use about two inches of water per week during the summer, and most of this usually comes from irrigation," Duble says. "However, as little as one inch of water per week can keep lawns alive and green." Exactly what can a homeowner do to reduce his summer water bill? "First, water your lawn only when grass starts to show signs of drought discoloration and wilting. If leaves roll up in the late afternoon and footprints remain after walking across the lawn, then water within 24 hours. "Once you've decided that your lawn needs watering, do it right," he emphasizes. "Most homeowners don't water their lawns properly. They either water too often, causing grass to develop shallow roots and making it a prime target for insects, diseases and temperature extremes, or they water too infrequently and apply too much water at one time, resulting in a lot of runoff.

"When watering, soak the soil to a depth of four to six inches," recommends the specialist. In heavy clay soils, watering for 15 to 20 minute periods may be necessary to prevent excessive runoff.

"Cutting back on lawn fertilization can also reduce watering," says Duble. Applying fertilizer in the spring and fall will generally keep your lawn healthy Fertilizing during the summer, especially with nitrogen fertilizer, will green up your lawn, but it will also increase grass growth and water use.

"Mowing less often and cutting your grass at taller heights also will help

Payments will be processed by the County Auditor after notification of satisfactory receipt of items. Floyd County reserves the right to award by unit cost of Total Cost Bid and to waive formalities for the best interest of Floyd

To whom it may concern and the citizens of Floyd County:

My name in the near future will appear on a tax suit, for which I have signed a disclaimer, relinquishing all rights to the real property mentioned in

In consideration of the valued friendship of the Floyd County residents, I would like to take this opportunity to express my reasons for not having paid these taxes. In latter 1960, I invested and built four low-income rental properties in the City of Floydada. After the laws of government-sponsored low-income housing, this writer could not compete with the municipal and federal government monies.

At a direct loss, exceeding $20,000, we proceeded to sell the houses to be oved for $1,000 each and disposed of four city lots for the price of $300. This last lot and/or real property we were unable to dispose of.

With absolute no animosities toward the people and/or government of this city, I did want this explanation to appear regarding the abovementioned suit. I do own other properties and keep taxes paid currently, but this involves a totally unique situation.
