Floyd Webb scores second hole-in-one

84-year-old Floydada golfer

Who says lightning doesn't strike in the same place?

On June 1, 1970, Floyd Webb used a six iron to score a hole-in-one on the 136 yard number two hole at Floydada Country Club.

Sixteen years later -- on Monday morning -- he repeated the feat with another ace on the second hole. Webb again used a six iron on the par three hole.

He and Travis Parr, with whom he was playing, watched the ball "hit the green, roll a little piece and drop in" about 10 o'clock Monday.

Making a hole-in-one doubly amazing is the fact that Floyd Webb is the oldest member of Floydada Country Club. At 84, he must be one of the South Plains' senior golfers. Due to a detached retina, he is blind in the right eye.

"It (Monday's hole-in-one) didn't excite me as much as it did the first time, but it gave me a feeling of satisfaction. I know it's luck, anyhow," he admits.

"I expect I play as much golf as anybody (at the local course), but not as well," he says modestly. "I'm retired and I play every day."

Webb didn't start playing golf until he was 59. He took up the game at the insistence of his son, Gene. "He knew I'd get hooked on it," the elder Webb proclaims with a laugh.

"I didn't think I could afford (country club) membership, a cart and everything," Webb confesses. "But after I got hooked I found the money."

He proudly bears evidence of the initial hole-in-one with a plaque in his home which bears both the ball he used and the scorecard with the second hole circled. The country club pro secured this momento for Webb, who also cherishes a June 4, 1970, copy of the Floyd County

Hesperian which bears his photo. Webb, who resides at 617 West Missouri with his wife, also a Polish your boots and dust off your straw hat because it's rodeo time.

The 1986 version of Floydada's 29th

The 1986 version of Floydada's 29th Annual Rodeo unreels Friday and Saturday nights at the arena in the southeast part of town. Grand entry is scheduled for 8 o'clock each night.

A rodeo dance follows the Saturday night performance.

Spectators will see nine adult events and the kids calf scramble during each performance. One of the most popular is the county ribbon roping, during which Floyd County residents vie for the first place money.

Youngsters 10 years and under vie in the calf scramble.

Charlie Thompson Rodeo Co. of Lubbock, the stock producer, will bring a clown. He helps protects cowboys in bull riding and also entertains the crowd.

Another highlight is the novice bareback and bull riding event, which features contestants who are just entering rodeoing.

Other popular events on tab are: bareback riding, saddle bronc riding, calf roping, bulldogging, girls barrel race and team roping.

Clinton Ware serves as president of Floydada Rodeo Association, which sponsors the rodeo each summer. Don McCandless again will be announcer.

Admission for each performance is $3 for adults and $1.50 for children 12 and under. Children under age 12 are admitted free.

Michael Porter & Malfunction Junction of Dickens will provide music for the Saturday night dance, which is to be held on the slab at the rodeo grounds.

Four girls are contestants to become rodeo queen. The individual who sells the greatest number of tickets on a one-half beef will be declared the queen and is to be crowned during the Saturday night performance.

A drawing will also be held Saturday night for the one-half beef.

Four girls are seeking the queen title, according to Kay Hicks, queen contest coordinator. They include:

Charity Arwine, daughter of Mike and Joy Arwine

Tiffany Bennett, daughter of Gary and Pam Bennett

Kerrie Pitts, daughter of Kenneth and Vickie Pitts Christy Rowan, daughter of Earl and Pat Rowan.

Branda Breed, the 1985 queen, will crown her successor.

Stolen auto found

1979 Porsche auto, reported stolen in Floydada on May 22, was recently recovered from a "double-car garage" in the eastern part of Floyd County. The garage and adjacent farm house had been vacant "several years."

Two Ralls men, relatives of the farm's owner, reportedly had traveled there to inspect the land. They looked inside the garage, where the Porsche was parked.

One of the men, a Ralls peace officer, reported the finding to Floyd County Sheriff's Department. Sheriff Fred Cardinal and Deputies Raymond Hamilton and Charles Overstreet went to the site.

The vehicle belongs to Dean Seymour, who reported it stolen on May

"As far as we could tell," a lawman toid The Hesperian, the Porsche was not damaged, although a stereo and speakers were missing. Rodeo queen contestants . . . -

CHARITY ARWINE is a daughter of Mike and Joy Arwine. Peppre Selman is her sister. Miss Arwine says "I like horseback riding and skating, but my favorite is swimming."

KERRIE PITTS, age 13, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Pitts. An eighth grader this fall at Floydada Junior High School, she is active in UIL, basketball and track. Her hobbies include horseback riding and swimming. Miss Pitts is a member of the High Plains Junior Rodeo Association and the Circle A Youth Rodeo Association. She has been competing in western pleasure, barrel racing, pole bending and goat tying this rodeo season. She is a granddaughter of Malvin Jarboe, also a resident of Floydada.

TIFFANY BENNETT is the daughter of Gary and Pam Bennett. Her favorite hobbies are swimming and riding horses. Miss Bennett, who will be a seventh grader when school starts, is a member of the Floyd County 4-H program.

CHRISTIE ROWAN, the 12-year-old daughter of Pat and Earl Rowan, will be in the seventh grade at Floydada Junior High. She enjoys riding horses, playing basetball and collecting unicorns. Miss Rowan is very active in the 4-H club. She says "this is my first year to try out for rodeo queen, and I wish everyone

Gubernatorial candidate Clements due Wednesday

Republican gubernatorial candidate Bili Clements, along with former Congressman Kent Hance, will appear at the Massie Activity Center Wednesday, August 6 at 1:10 p.m.

Clements, who was elected in 1978 as the first Republican Governor since Reconstruction, has vowed to oppose any state personal or corporate income tax proposal.

Strongly opposed to the early release program of the White administration, Clements said, "I am an advocate of a tough, but fair, criminal justice system." Clements has said that his top priority is the creation of jobs in Texas through the attraction of new business.

Governor of Texas from 1979 to 1983, Clements also is a former deputy secretary of defense and a member of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America. The public is invited to attend the question and answer forum.

Winds fourth, coaches predict

Whirlwind football squad will improve but will still not reach the playoff level during the 1986 football season, if a poll of District 2.3A is correct.

The poll, taken during the Texas High School Coaches Association annual convention, being held this week in Houston, places Floydada gridders fourth among the league's six schools in the upcoming grid chase

As expected, Tulia is the pre-season choice to enter the throne room. Littlefield is the second place pick, followed by Friona, Floydada, Dimmitt and Muleshoe.

The district champion and runner-up enter the playoffs.

Whirlwind gridders will be issued shoes beginning at 8 a.m. August 6 at the fieldhouse. Two-a-day practices are scheduled to start Monday, August 11, with 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. sessions planned.

[Editor's note: After publishing the first installation in a series concerning DWI, The Hesperian received an anonymous call from a recovered alcoholic and drug addict who offered to tell her story, under the condition of anonymity. The offer was made because of the individual's desire to aid others suffering from her former problems.

"I am a better mother, I am a more conscientious citizen, I am a taxpayer, I am a voter, I am a good PTA member. Things I could never do before, I can do today."

Following is her story.]

This claim is made by a 32-year-old recovered alcoholic and drug addict, who has been "dry" in excess of four

She was introduced to alcohol at the age of eight by a distant relative, an adult. "That was the first time I got drunk and it was on lemon extract. I was sick for three days."

The individual — whom we shall call "Mary" — claims to have been reared in a home where "alcohol was used as a social booster."

At age 15 she was placed in a children's home, "where I was given heavy dosage of mild tranquilizers for two years. I was placed on prescription drugs which weren't fully known, for hyperactivity. I was not hyperactive; I was a typical, rebellious 15-year-old teenager."

The woman emphasizes that "Drugs are no answer to any problem, I don't care what it is."

'WRONG CROWD'

Her situation did not improve when, at age 17, she "ran away" from the children's home and returned to her residence. "I spent four days cold turkey" and then "started running with the wrong crowd of teenagers," who introduced her to drugs.

'Drugs not answer to any problem'

"The girl who first introduced me to a (non-prescription) drug (marijuana) other than alcohol was 15, two years younger than I was. That was right here in Floydada. Her family was real prominent, too."

Reminiscing about her past, "Mary" confesses that "I've taken every drug that here is: pot (marijuana), cocaine, amphetamines (speed), downers, acid, LSD, you name it, and, of course, alcehol was the big one.

"At that time my dependency on drugs was any drug, including alcohol. I couldn't function normally without some drug in my system, even if it was just a sleeping pill at night." That began when she was 17.

FREQUENT MOVES

She would live in Floydada a short time and then be gone again. "I would move off and come back, move off and come back; I never lived anywhere longer than six months. That cycle continued as long as I was drug dependent."

Four times she was jailed in Lubbock.
"For some reason, it always happened in Lubbock" for "minor things like public intoxication and drinking after hours." She was never jailed in Floyd.

Alcohol and drugs dominated her life. She was twice married, but both were short marriages. Both "involved drugs and alcohol, but at that time it wasn't as much drugs as alcohol because both of my husbands drank like fish."

Her unsettled lifestyle led to frequent moves. "For years, I lived in Floydada for a while and then in Lubbock, or some other place, for a while. I usually worked in bars when I lived in Lubbock or a larger town."

Her life began to improve when "I met a person who said I could do something with my life, so I started going to a higher education school. While I was there I had an instructor who recognized my ability to work with people. He introduced me to people who were working with alcohol and drug addicts."

While working as a volunteer with alcoholics and drug addicts, "I began to realize what was wrong with me. I still had problems for about a year after

'DRIED OUT

that "the drugs and alcohol had finally caught up with me." She went through a drug-alcohol treatment program at the W. W. Allen Recovery Center MHMR (Mental Health-Mental Retardation) in Plainview. "I spent four days in the mental health ward, withdrawing from the drugs and alcohol" and remained in the center for 28 days.

April 24, 1982, is a date "Mary" will not forget. That date, at age 28, is her "drink dry date" or her final day to consume alcoholic beverages. Her drug "dry date and birthday is April 26, 1982."

An immediate action was to become an active member of Alcoholics Anonymous. "Through AA I learned how to live on a daily basis without the drugs and alcohol," the recovered addict explains.

Entering the sobriety state, her life was fully transformed.

Four plus years later she proudly proclaims that "I am a recovered alcoholic and drug addict."

In outlining her success story, "Mary" says "I was graduated from college a year ago." She has worked for the past year with alcoholics and drug addicts because "this is something I do and do well."

She emphasizes that "I haven't been in jail in a long time (eight years) . . . and I don't ever want to be again. Jails are not the nicest places I've ever been.

"I'm at peace with myself. And I'm hard as hell to make angry these days. Today, I am very responsible for my own actions.

hard stuff," says the woman whose husband's job brought her back to Floydada.

"This is my story. It is not unique; it is just what happened to me. It can happen to anybody, including doctors, lawyers, government officials, preachers, priests, nuns and Indian chiefs ... people from all walks of life. I know because I've met them all.

"Alcoholism affects people of all ages, social and economic back-

"Mary" feels that she is fortunate to be a recovered alcoholic and addict because "Only one out of 35 alcoholics, according to statistics, ever sober up enough to become productive citizens. Another sad fact is that there is one alcoholic out of about every 10 people," according to the federal government's statistics. "If you have 200 people in a crowd, chances are you'll have 20 alcoholics."

Alcoholic Anonymous data states:

· "It can happen to anyone. It's estimated that three out of four alcoholics are well-accepted members of their communities.

· "Women, not just men, are affected. Millions of women have alcoholism and other alcohol-related problems, too.

• "Young people may be even more susceptible to alcoholism than adults because their bodies are still growing. Some studies show that one out of five youngsters has experienced problems because of drinking.

"Mary" is willing to tell her success story publicly because of her desire to help others who have had or do have the same problems from which she has recovered.

She and a friend offered information to a newspaper in the town in which they were living about two years ago. "Mary's" phone number was listed as a contact for anyone needing assistance.

A man in that town clipped the article and "carried it in his billfold for seven or eight months before he called me. Today, to my knowledge, he is doing fine. After drying out, his home situation and his job situation both have improved drastically. That was not something I did, but the man desperately needed help and was reaching out. I met with him and put him in a place where he got dried out and was introduced to AA."

She stresses that "I want this to be a message to male and female alike," because either can have problems. People are screaming out for help. Most people (public) put down alcoholics and drug addicts, but they have a progressive illness and they need to know where to turn for help. It's like having cancer, you know, you can't get rid of it, but you can arrest it."

The recovered addict advocates a "community-based support network," including a treatment center, to aid victims because "Alcohol and drug abuse is not just an individual thing, it is a family illness and definitely a community illness.

"We can change the situation; all of us working together, we can change that. The public needs to be more tolerant of the victims, rather than trying to shove them off on the state and saying, 'here, fix this'."

Although media accounts of alcohol and drug abuse, along with countless other problems, make the USA sound like a sick society, "Mary" disagrees. "It really isn't because there are a lot of good people out there. Alcoholism and drug addiction is a problem which will get out of hand if it isn't handled right."

MOUNTING PROBLEM

She does believe that alcohol and drug abuses are a "mounting problem." While attending elementary school in another state, "Mary" remembers that "no one offered me a joint or alcohol."

By contrast, she recalls that her son, then eight years old and attending school in a neighboring area, "was offered marijuana or 'pot' in the second grade. And one boy would bring liquor to school in a thermos." Her son recognized that his classmate had alcohol, describing it as "the stuff that grandmother drinks occasionally."

A school principal once told "Mary" that when a child has deep problems, "Ninety per cent of the time it relates back to some form of alcohol or drug abuse in the family. The child's situation may involved neglect, sexual abuse or physical or mental abuse."

The interview volunteer stated to The Hesperian that "Everything I am telling you is my opinion. I have books with the facts, but these are my ideas and they parallel, to a large extent, what the

She stresses that "If you would like to learn more about Alcoholics Anonymous (AA), phone 983-3045. Meetings are held in Floydada each Tuesday night at 8:30. If you have a desire to stop drinking, you are welcome at any

Although help is available for those who desire it, most alcoholics and drug addicts are not transformed into success

The interviewee lists these tragedies:

· "An elderly gentleman tried for years to get sober. After he had one year sober time, he got off and got drunk one time and he died in a motel

• "A 22-year-old boy (drug addict) couldn't seem to get the help that he needed, so he hung himself.

• "I know of one boy (alcoholic) who got into a fight in a bar and was kicked

• "In the last couple of years I have worked with teenage kids - some are 10, 11, 12 years old. I particularly remember a 13-year-old prostitute who does this to get money for her drugs. The amazing thing is that her parents are not alcoholics and are very affluent." "Mary" - who readily admits to past activities of which she is not proud - is living proof that help is available for alcoholics and drug addicts.

BUSY AUGUST

People who enjoy activities should have a field day in August!

Floydada has a bevy of events planned: the rodeo, the wagon train's visit, the county fair up in Lockney and the Labor Day fly-in at the airport (which we can count as almost being in

At the same time, educators, youngsters and parents will be gearing up for back-to-school.

And it won't be long before the Mean Green dons its football gear. We'll be the first to predict a surprisingly strong campaign for the Whirlwinds.

Buckle up the seat belts . . . we're about to be off on a busy month. Better make that months, plural. ****

Lakeview News

by Joyce Williams July 31:

Summer is nearly over and mothers are starting to think about school clothes and supplies for their children.

The cold trout streams of Gunnison, Colorado and Crested Butte were fished by Mr. and Mrs. Randy Bertrand and Misty week before last. They took their camper and met the Jim Corneliuses and all camped near each other for a week. Miss Angie Bertrand had to miss the trip as she was enrolled in driver's ed class. She finished the course and is now waiting for her 16th birthday on August 18 when she can take the final

Mr. and Mrs. W. Earl Edwards are staying in out of the 100 degrees plus heat these days.

Mrs. Lucille Custer's son, Ken, called her from Dallas Sunday and said the news reported downtown Dallas temperature registered 122 degrees. The heat bounced off the brick and concrete.

Jeremy Moses, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dee Moses, won second place with his painting of a windmill in the youth division of the Crosbyton Arts Festival at the Pioneer Memorial Building Saturday. Jeremy is an art student of Joe Taylor, who grew up on Mt. Blanco.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Nichols attended the Lakeview-Mt. Blanco reunion Sunday at the Lighthouse Electric community room.

Mrs. Robert Louis Pyle took a carload of boys, along with two Methodist church vans full of children to Midland Monday. They spent the day at Water Rampage park and returned home late that evening. Brandon Harrison, Jason Pyle, Jeremy Moses and Rance Golightly were among the group at the water park.

The Truscott and Knox County Sesquicentennial pageant at Benjamin, Texas Friday evening was attended by Mrs. Joyce Williams. Her sister, Mrs. Clara Brown, was one of the authors and directors of the county-wide pageant presented on the football field. Each town and community in the county was assigned to present a skit on a portion of the county's history. The Goree community, where Wayland Jones has kinfolks, presented a skit entitled, "Cotton Fields and Aching Backs," depicting the first cotton grown in the county, and Goree farm in 1887. It involved the entire family in plowing, planting, hoeing, and picking the cotton crop that was hauled to Albany, the nearest gin, and sold for five cents a pound. A white cloth tied to the windmill signalled the family in the field that dinner was ready, or maybe "Mama, come to the house, the baby needs you." Children costumed as boll weevils did a dance that chronicled the decline of cotton farming in the area.

The Truscott story was entitled. "Drouth and Desperation," and told of a young family in a covered wagon whose water barrel fell and broke, leaving them with no water. A settler with a full barrel of water in front of his dug-out refused to even sell them a drink. The family traveled to a spring that had dried up. The children in the wagon were crying. Again the father beseeched the settler for water and was refused. In desperation, the young father pulled out his pistol, shot the man, and gave his family water to drink. Everyone in the county eventually knew of the shooting, but felt justice had been done and never did a think to the young father. His descendants are still living there. Another example of county justice took place in Knox County only a few weeks ago. Parents and other citizens of Knox, Baylor, and Haskell Counties got tired of the drug pushers and dealers selling to their young people. They appealed to the state and federal law officials, naming names and locations and times of drug deals, but the authorities never did crack down. So local people took up a cash fund for a crimestopper program, hired an undercover agent who infiltrated the area drug crowds. Sheriff Nix of Benjamin and sheriffs of the other counties arrested the dealers and over 90 indictments were made two weeks ago in a sting operation. Sometimes local people have to take matters into their own hands, was the general expression among the crowd at the history pageant, Friday. Several of the covered wagaons, hocks and buggies used in the pageant were acquired when the Sesquicentennial Wagon Train ended and broke up at Ft. Worth July 4. It was reported the drivers were almost giving away the vehicles, and several were bought by Truscott and Gilliland families.

Fay Hart returned home Wednesday after a stay in Caprock Hospital.

Jeremy Moses attended White River youth camp last week and was baptized there, into the Church of Christ.

Misty Bertrand's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Randy Bertrand, took her to Ceta Canyon Sunday for a creative arts camp. Mrs. W.H. Bunch had not felt well lately and is staying home where it is

Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Hammonds returned home Sunday from Granburg, Texas where they attended a Tuttle family reunion of her mother's people, at the Granburg Inn.

FHS FLAGS ATTEND CAMP-Members of the Floydada High School Marching Band Flag Corp attended a week-long training camp at Texas Tech University recently. Those

Fire ant battle rages on

The battle against the imported fire ant rages on-and it's an uphill battle.

Fire ants now infest about 115 of the state's counties, and earlier visions of eradicating this persistent pest have faded. Now the battle seems to be one of containment.

Brought into this country from South America, the imported fire ant is a fierce competitor and is more aggressive than other ant species, points out Dr. Bart Drees, an entomologist with and is not kept clean until it heals. the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The defensive nature of the ants is readily demonstrated as they swarm on anything that disturbs their mound.

Fire ant stings produce a burning sensation and a pustule usually forms soon after a sting. The sting usually is not serious unless the person stung is hypersensitive, Drees explains, Several hypersensitive persons have died from fire ant stings. The biggest hazard with fire ant stings is the possibility of a secondary infection if the pustule pops

MOUNDS AND MORE MOUNDS

Recent rains over the state have seemed to cause a proliferation of fire ant mounds, but that can be attributed to the fact that the ants are simply rebuilding mounds collapsed from the rain, says Drees.

Imported fire ants prefer to build their mounds in open, sunny areas, and mounds in clay soils may reach a foot-and-a-half in height. Fire ant colonies frequently locate a round stumps; in rotten logs, bales of hay and electrical boxes; and under other objects that offer some protection. The ants will rapidly reinfest land disturbed by construction, farming operations, flooding and pesticide use.

CONTROL PRODUCTS PLENTIFUL

As far as fire ant control is concerned, a whole arsenal of materials is available, including individual mound treatments, baits and, of course, home

More than 65 different products are now available for controlling fire ants. All work differently and vary greatly in cost. There seems to be a product for about every type of situation, Drees

Spraying surfaces for foraging ants is common in and around the home, and products for this purpose contain carbaryl, chlorpyrifos, diazinon, isofenfos, propoxur or resmetrin. These sprays can be used as spot treatments and to establish a barrier around areas or objects such as gardens, patios, electrical boxes and bee hives. Granular products containing chlorpyrifos or isofenfos can be applied to turf areas with a seeder or fertilizer spreader. After application, the treated area must be watered thoroughly. These granular products are long-acting and will kill foraging worker ants.

killing the queen ant and her brood to eliminate reproduction, explains the entomologist. Mound drench products contain chlorpyrifos, diazinon or isofenfos. They can be sprinkled on top of and around the mound and generally do not produce immediate results.

Mound treatments are aimed at Granules containing chlorpyrifos or diazinon also can be applied to mounds but should be sprinkled with one or more gallons of water.

Dust products containing acephate can be applied to mounds and act like a tracking powder. Or they can be drenched into the mound with water.

FAST ACTING CONTROLS

For more immediate results in controlling fire ants. Drees recommends products containing methyl chloriform (often shown as 1,1,1-trichloroethane on the product label). When poured into a mound, the liquid immediately turns into a gas and kills all ants within a minute. However, the vapor soon dissipates and leaves no residue to kill foraging ants returning to the mound.

Aerosols containing pyrethrum or tetramethrin also produce immediate results and work well in treating fire ant mounds in outdoor areas where picnics or other activities are planned.

New bait products such as Amdro, Logic and Pro-Drone are for treating individual mounds through broadcast applications. These products contain protein-containing products such as broken eggs. Worker ants return to the mound with food and feed the colony's queen and brood. Only larval ants that are nearly mature will eat solid food; the remainder feed only on liquids, according to the entomologist.

Amdro can kill ants in a mound in about a week. Logic and Pro-Drone are insect growth regulators that prevent queen ants from producing more worker ants and thus cause a slow decline in the ant colony. Several weeks to a year may pass before a total colony is eliminated, notes Drees.

DO HOME REMEDIES WORK? What about home remedies?

For a cheap, environmentally safe treatment, pour several gallons of hot, boiling water on the mound. Shoveling one mound on top of another has been thought to force colonies to "fight each other to death." However, this technique is not always effective.

Other home remedies include petroleum products, soaps, ashes, battery acids and bleach. Most of these generally are ineffective, dangerous or serious pollutants, says the entomolo-

Mites now marketed for fire ant control also are not very effective, adds Drees. They will readily attack humans, producing a severe skin rash.

Devices such as electronic probes, microwave units and explosive devices are exempt from required registration by the Environmental Protection Agency since no chemicals are involved. In most cases, their effectiveness has not been scientifically documented. Armed with all of today's information for controlling fire ants, what is the best approach?

First, evaluate your fire ant situation, suggests Drees. If total elimination is desired, intensive and costly control efforts may be justified. If only large mounds are to be reduced, another approach is in order. In pastures, broadcasting a bait in combination with dragging heavy objects over mounds will reduce fire ant problems. Baits can also be used in turfgrass areas. Few products are cleared for fire ant control in home gardens, notes Drees. Applying diazinon to control soil insects also kills foraging worker ants. Mounds can be treated with a hot water drench, shoveled out of the garden or treated with a product containing methyl chlori-

Amdro should not be used in a garden but can be broadcast around a garden where foraging ants will find it and take it to the queen and brood. Spraying around the garden with diazinon or chlorpyrifos also will keep foraging ants

'Intensive technology' utilized by USSR to hike production

A new system of "intensive technology for producing winter wheat is being adopted by the USSR, according to the U.S. team that has returned from a 9-day tour of parts of two of the Soviet Union's winter wheat producing re-

They visited research institutes and wheat breeding centers in the Ukraine Republic and in Krasnodar Kray. They also visited collective and state farms south of Kiev in southern Kiev Oblast in the Ukraine, and in Ust Labinsk Rayon of Krasnodar Kray, and met with officials in the administrative centers in Moscow, Kiev and Krasnodar. In Moscow the team met with representatives of GOSAGROPROM, the new organization responsible for coordinating Soviet agriculture policy.

According to the team, intensive technology combines the use of all the necessary inputs--seed, fertilizer, other agricultural chemicals, equipment and labor--on the best land.

The intensive technology system was introduced on a large scale for the 1985 crop, according to the team, and was used on 17 million hectares or all grains. The Soviets reported that the new technology was responsible for an additional 16 million tons of output. The increase was primarily in wheat production, but corn production increased as well for this year's crop, the intensive technology has been nearly doubled to 31 million hectares. The Soviets expect an additional output of 26 million tons.

However, the Soviets pointed out that this new system is more expensive and they project that they must increase wheat yields by 10 centners per hectare (about 15 bushels per acre) to cover the increased costs.

The Soviets reported that the target for the 1986 grain crop is 220 to 230 million tons. The production area is also expected to increase slightly over last year's 117.9 million hectares. This increase is the result of more land seeded to peas, which the Soviets use as a protein source for their livestock. USDA currently estimates 1986 Soviet grain output at 185 million tons from an area of 118 million hectares.

Feeding high-energy diets to foals does not cause skeletal problems

By Marilyn Brown TAES Science Writer

Despite the widespread belief that high-energy feeding causes skeletal disorders in growing foals, recent research at Texas Agricultural Experiment Station scientists showed that high-energy feeding itself did not cause bone malformation.

"Veterinarians frequently report that the incidence of skeletal disorders in growing foals is increasing in the horse industry," says Texas A&M scientist Gary Potter, who adds that the most commonly suggested cause of the skeletal problems is improper nutrition, including excessive energy consumption and associated rapid weight gain.

"Several theories as to how improper nutrition may be related to skeletal disorders have appeared in the popular cause and effect relationships were months of age, were fed control or became fatter than those fed the control

The skeletal problems under scrutiny include osteochondrosis, a condition in which the cartilage forms improperly, breaks away from the bone or mineralizes improperly; epiphysitis, which involves inflammation around the bone's growth plate; and angular limb deformities, which include any number of crooked leg anomalies.

These disorders have been reported in almost all breeds of horses, and many of them appear to be genetically influenced, Potter says.

The defects are not commonly observed in ponies, so to reduce the chance of genetic interference with the nutrition study, the scientists chose ponies for their research. The project was conducted by Karen Hansen, a Ph.D. student working in Potter's

Farmers must comply with land conservation rules

New proposed rules contained in the 1985 farm bill that relate to conservation of erodible lands and wetlands and conservation compliance provisions will have a major impact on Texas farmers.

The rules concern "sodbuster," "swampbuster" and "conservation compliance" provisions of the Food Security Act of 1985.

Sodbuster applies to any land newly cultivated for crop production since December 23, 1985 while Swampbuster deals with farmers who convert wetland for crop production after December 23, 1985. Conservation compliance requires farmers who benefit from USDA programs and who are farming highly erodible land to plan and apply locally approved conservation plans.

'Farmers who fail to meet these rules will not be eligible for commodity price support and other program payments, disaster payments, crop insurance, FmHA loans, farm storage facility loans and other farm program benefits," points out Dr. B.L. Harris, soils specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The rules are aimed at removing inconsistencies between soil conservation goals and traditional farm commodity program benefits."

"Essentially, the provisions on land conservation say that producers must comply immediately," Harris says. "This means they cannot produce crops on highly erodible land without following a locally approved conservation plan and they cannot produce crops on converted wetlands without being disqualified for certain farm program

If their bids are accepted, farmers must agree to take the land out of

In addition to the CRP, the 1985 farm tree plantings.

However, a number of exemptions are outlined that allow crop production on erodible land or on wetlands until January 1, 1990 or until two years after the Soil Conservation Service has prepared soil maps for a particular area.

Details of the provisions are published in the June 27 Federal Register, and producers have until August 26 to provide written comments to the Director, Cotton, Grain and Rice Price Support Division, ASCS-USDA, Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013.

"With these new rules relating to erodible land and wetlands, farmers may want to take a close look at the Conservation Reserve Program that also was created in the 1985 farm legislation," says Harris. "Some 3.8 million acres nationwide have already been accepted into the program (300,000 acres in Texas), and another signup period has been set for August 4-15.

"The conservation compliance provision could have a major impact in areas of Texas where soil erosion is a problem, particularly in the South Plains," says Harris. "With the proposed rules, farmers would likely have to change their cropping systems from a low residue crop such as cotton to crops which produce more residue and thereby help keep erosion in check. Cotton production in some counties could be reduced 75 percent or more."

Although late spring rains may almost have been too much of a good thing at the time, it may still be necessary for producers to apply some irrigation water to their crops to obtain a good yield at harvest time.

A surge irrigation system can be an economical and efficient way of applying that irrigation, because the name of the game in surge irrigation is savings.

In a 1984 demonstration by Leon New, area irrigation engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Amarillo, a surge system was compared with conventional furrow irrigation to irrigate corn.

In this demonstration on the Goerge Sides farm in Castro County, three surge irrigation applications used 16 inches of water to irrigate eight acres of corn Three conventional furrow irrigation applications required a total of 24 inches of water to irrigate four acres.

Production on the surge-irrigated acres equalled 203 bushels of corn with a gross income of $603 per acre at $5.30 per hundred weight. Production on the furrow irrigated acres amounted to 130 bushels of corn with a gross income of $528 per acre. Therefore, use of the surge system resulted in an increased gross income of $75 per acre.

Surge irrigation offers benefits in a number of ways. First, it pushes water to the end of the row more quickly than conventional irrigation because water travels faster over areas that have been previously wetted by alternating

Secondly, it allows a more even soil infiltration rate which reduces percolation below the crop root zone and promotes a more uniform crop. A more uniform crop usually results in higher

A third benefit of surge is that it reduces or prevents tailwater The timed cycles of surge allow an irrigator to apply just the amount of water needed to reach the end of the furrow. When water reaches the end of the furrow, the irrigator cuts back the length of his surge time and prevents Application efficiencies with surge irrigation can be raised anywhere from 10 to 40 percent when compared with conventional furrow irrigation. This increased efficiency not only saves dollars, but valuable ground water from the Ogallala aquifer as well.

Surge units are also cost efficient investments, with prices ranging from about $600-$1600 per unit, depending on the sophistication of the machine. Generally the systems pay for themselves within a year or two in fuel cost savings and increased yields.

Loan funds for surge equipment are available to qualified applicants from industry, notes Donald Johnson, executive vice president of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. "And how we remember it may well be decided by what industry people do or fail to do in the meantime," says

A vote coming up August 6 in the House of Representatives in Washing-

The vote will be on whether to override the President's veto of H.R. 1562, the Textile and Apparel Trade Enforcement Act (TATEA). At stake is the U.S. cotton producers' domestic market and hundreds of thousands of cotton and textile-related jobs.

Surging textile imports already have cost over three million bales of domestic markets per year, industry sources say, and have caused some 300,000 American workers to lose their jobs. Those who postulate on such things project the total loss of the U.S. domestic cotton market, about six million bales per year, in just eight years if the growth of imports continues at the present rate.

Congress passed the TATEA as a means to prevent further damage to the U.S. fiber, textile and apparel industries by achieving the objectives of the standing MultiFiber Arrangement (MFA). That arrangement, agreed to by the U.S. and its trading partners years ago, generously afforded exporting countries a six percent annual rate of increase in textile and apparel shipments to the U.S.

Instead, since 1980, increases have ton will make that date long rememberaveraged 16 percent per year, with a 65 ed by all connected with the U.S. cotton percent jump in the last two years. Essentially, H.R. 1562 would reduce textile and apparel imports to levels that would have existed if the MFA had been administered effectively, and allow those levels to grow at a rate consistent with U.S. market growth thereafter. And, an import licensing system would be established to ensure against the widespread circumvention of the limitations as seen under the MFA.

What should the cotton production and atttendant industries be doing?

"We must exert all possible influence with our congressmen before the August 6 vote," Johnson thinks. "There's a lot of pressure against the override, much of its from retailers who enjoy wider profit margins on many imported

"Our legislators who are committed to the override cause need our letters, telephone calls and telegrams assuring them of our continued strong support, and those who remain undecided need all the arguments we can provide that the override is justifiable.'

They need to understand, Johnson continues, "that we aren't asking that imports be prohibited, only that their growth be restricted to reasonable limits, allowing the U.S. cotton, textile and apparel industries to co-exist with foreign competitors."
