Floyd bank deposits increase $5½ million

DEPOSITS — Mid-year deposits in both Floyd County banks deposits are almost $5.5 million greater than last year. — have increased, according to June 30 calls. Combined Staff photo

Combined deposits in the two Floyd County banks increased significantly at mid-year as compared with a year earlier. Deposits at the June 30 call totaled $73,178,854.87, which represents a $5,478,947.90 increase over the same date in '86.

At the same time, loans decreased by $2,811,278.38. The two banks reported loans of $25,303,292.56 at the conclusion of the first half of business in '86, compared with $22,492,014.18 at the latest call.

Tom Farris, president of First National Bank of Floydada, says the increase in deposits is "probably still a carryover from the '86 crops plus deficiency payments. Also, I feel like we've been attracting some new, outside deposits."

Farris believes that, on the average, farmers have been able to operate longer this year without additional financing.

Farris believes that, on the average, farmers owe less money this year, which could contribute to the decrease in loans.

The Floydada bank showed a decided increase in deposits. Deposits on the last day in June totaled $49,126,422.38, an increase of $5,328,810.47 over the $43,797,611.91 reported at the mid-year 1986 report.

Loans decreased $1,133,052.82. They stood at $14,289,761.18 on June 30, 1986 and $13,156,708.36 at the latest call.

First National Bank of Lockney had increased deposits of $150,136.62. Deposits there were $24,052,432.49 on the final day of June this year, compared with $23,902,295.87 on the same date in '86.

The Lockney bank reported a decrease in loans of $1,678,225.56. They were $11,013,531.38 at mid-year 1986 and $9,335,305.82 at the latest call.

LaVada Garrett goes through life with wink and OK sign

LaVada Garrett received more than twice as much cash on a money tree during a retirement reception as she earned in a whole month at her first teaching assignment.

This depicts two things: the esteem in which former students and their parents hold the jovial retiree and the financial struggles she has experienced through the years.

"Forty-one years with somebody else's children is a lot of work," says a friend, Lee King, in describing Mrs. Garrett. "She had the love and understanding" for her students.

Not only did Mrs. Garrett spend 41 years "with somebody else's children," but she has reared seven of her own. All but one of her offspring are college graduates.

But the path to success has been rocky for the large framed black woman with an ever-ready smile. At one time she held four jobs simultaneously...in addition to her regular duties of being a mother, wife and teacher.

TEACH FROM HEART

"I learned early in my career to teach from my heart and not for money," Mrs. Garrett explains. "There is a saying among black people, 'If I can help somebody along life's way, then my living shall not be in vain.' This is my philosophy."

While explaining that statement during an interview, Mrs. Garrett walked to her piano and put music to the message. She is an accomplished musician, a trait she passed along to most of her offspring.

With pride, Mrs. Garrett shows retirement gifts. The Floydada school system honored her with a watch bearing a Whirlwind inset, fellow junior high faculty members gave her two pieces of luggage, a plaque came from the Caprock Co-op staff and a gold plated "G" tree during a retirement reception was presented to her by the local TSTA (Texas State Teachers Association). She served two years as president of the Floydada TSTA chapter.

In addition, she was the recipient of a money tree bearing $135 and other gifts during a June 28 retirement reception at Mt. Zion Baptist Church. "It was really something else," Mrs. Garrett says, with a sparkle in her eye, of the event. "There were at least 100 guests."

She and fellow junior high faculty retiree Norma Feuerbacher were feted with a picnic at the conclusion of this school year.

SPECIAL ED TEACHER

Since 1968, Mrs. Garrett's varied career has centered around special education in Floydada Junior High. A Floydada resident since 1963, she remembers that her 41-year career in education started in a black school before integration.

Allowing her mind to wander back 45 years to her initial assignment, she says "My first teaching job was at Jayton in the 1942-43 school year for $60 a month." Her pupils were all black.

She left the educational field and became assistant director of recreation at the USO in her hometown of Abilene, a position she held for "a year and a half."

But she could not rid herself of the quest for a greater education. "I went back to college at Sam Houston, a private Methodist school, and got my degree in English. This was a black school, funded by white Methodists, and the only school in Texas I knew of with an integrated faculty at that

County crops 'two weeks behind'; blooms expected

"The general outlook is we're a good two weeks behind" with cotton and milo production, believes County Agricultural Extension Agent Richie Crow. He points out that recent hot weather has helped cotton but hot winds are not desirable.

Although the county apparently had no cotton blooms on July 4, Crow predicts "We could have blooms by this Thursday or Friday." The blooms would appear on fields in the north part of the county "which were planted and got up a stand" before May moisture.

The agent estimates that "probably 25,000 acres were affected" by the hail which ravaged the county Monday of last week. He estimates that "probably 5,000 to 6,000 acres" were wiped out by the weather.

Contrary to some opinions, the cloud which damaged or destroyed crops south of Lockney was not the same one which advanced into Crosby and Garza counties. According to one source, the first cloud "danced around the canyon" and turned to the east. The second cloud "built up south of the canyon and advanced into the two counties to the south."

In addition to the area south of Lockney which was ravaged by the hail, McCoy and Barwise communities also had varying amounts of crop damage.

Crow estimates that the hail south of Lockney was approximately two miles wide.

Excessively high temperatures and winds have not helped milo and corn. The heat and winds have "put them (milo and corn) into stress, but they're not hurting yet."

HEAT UNITS

According to information secured by the agent, cotton planted late in April had received about 721 heat units through Friday. By contrast, cotton planted early in June had only about 450 heat units through Friday.

Crow believes the heat units which "built up last week and early this week" have been advantageous to cotton.

Approximately 2,200 to 2,400 heat units are required for optimum cotton production.

CORRELATION OF HEAT UNITS TO COTTON FIBER DEVELOPMENT

With "heat units" in cotton being widely discussed, The Hesperian is reprinting an article on the subject which appeared in the 1983 Floyd County Agricultural Demonstration handbook:

Plants (and other life forms including insects) grow, develop and produce best within certain limits of air temperatures. Above or below these limits, the heat or cold can hinder productivity. Within the temperature range at which plants can grow, the more heat that is available to them, the faster they will grow and develop.

In dealing with the effects of temperature on crop development, scientists developed the concept of heat units as a way of measuring how fast a crop is growing or maturing. The heat unit concept assumes that within certain temperature limits (about 60 degrees to 100 degrees for cotton) there is a direct relationship between crop growth and average daily temperature accumulation.

The heat unit requirements for normal cotton development are presented in Table 1. This heat unit schedule was developed in California but it seems to fit most cotton production regions in the U.S.

LOVE FUND STARTED FOR BRYANT FAMILY

Friends have established a love fund at First National Bank for the family of the late Nile Bryant. They encourage other friends to participate in the love fund in lieu of floral arrangements.

Mr. Bryant was claimed by death Tuesday afternoon, and the fund is to help defray his medical expenses.

INVITATION

Friends of Raymond Martinez are invited to a reception in his honor this Friday, July 10, at 7 p.m. The Spanish Baptist Mission, 400 W. Kentucky, will be the reception site.

Registration planned for Satellite Head Start

Linda Wallace will be taking applications for recruitment into the Floyd Satellite Head Start Program from July 21 and 22 through August 1 from 10:00 to 3:00 at the Floyd County Day Care Center.

This preschool program is offered to eligible families of children who will be 4 years old on or before Dec. 31, 1987 and who are in the daily care of someone other than the parent or legal guardian.

Eligibility is based upon income and/or handicapping condition. For eligible children there will be no cost for the services. Families whose monthly or annual income meet Day Care Head Start guidelines are automatically eligible.

For enrollment, the parent must bring child's birth certificate, immunization card and proof of income.

If your child is 3 or 4 years old and has a handicapping condition and or special needs, she/he can receive services through the South Plains Handicap Consortium, P.O. Box 4170 Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Tex. 79409.

The services include educational diagnosis, visual treatments and aids, speech and dental treatment, referrals, onsite teaching, and travel to and from service sights. No child seeking admission to this program will be discriminated against because of his/her race, creed, color, sex, national origin, or handicapping condition.

City council conducts workshop to review Energas franchise offer

Meeting in a noontime session on July 1, the Floydada City Council conferred with engineering consultant Bill McMorries following his persual of the Energas proposal for renewing the franchise agreement between the two entities.

The current Energas franchise which allows the utility the use of city streets and alleys for purposes of providing natural gas service to city residents is due to expire later this month. The company submitted a renewal agreement for the council's consideration at the June regular council session. Action on the franchise was delayed pending review by McMorries.

Reporting to the council, McMorries recommended decreasing the term of the new franchise from 25 to 15 years.

"Times are changing so rapidly that a city cannot afford to be locked into an agreement for such extensive periods of time," said McMorries. "I would really like to see these agreements limited to no more than three or five years, but that is unrealistic."

McMorries also recommended changes in the wording of sections of the franchise dealing with the use of city easements. "The phrase 'real property' needs to be deleted. A franchise agreement deals only with the use of city streets, alleys and right of way areas, stated McMorries. "You may agree to allow Energas to use other city property in the future should the need arise, but you will want to do so only after a request is made and approved by the council."

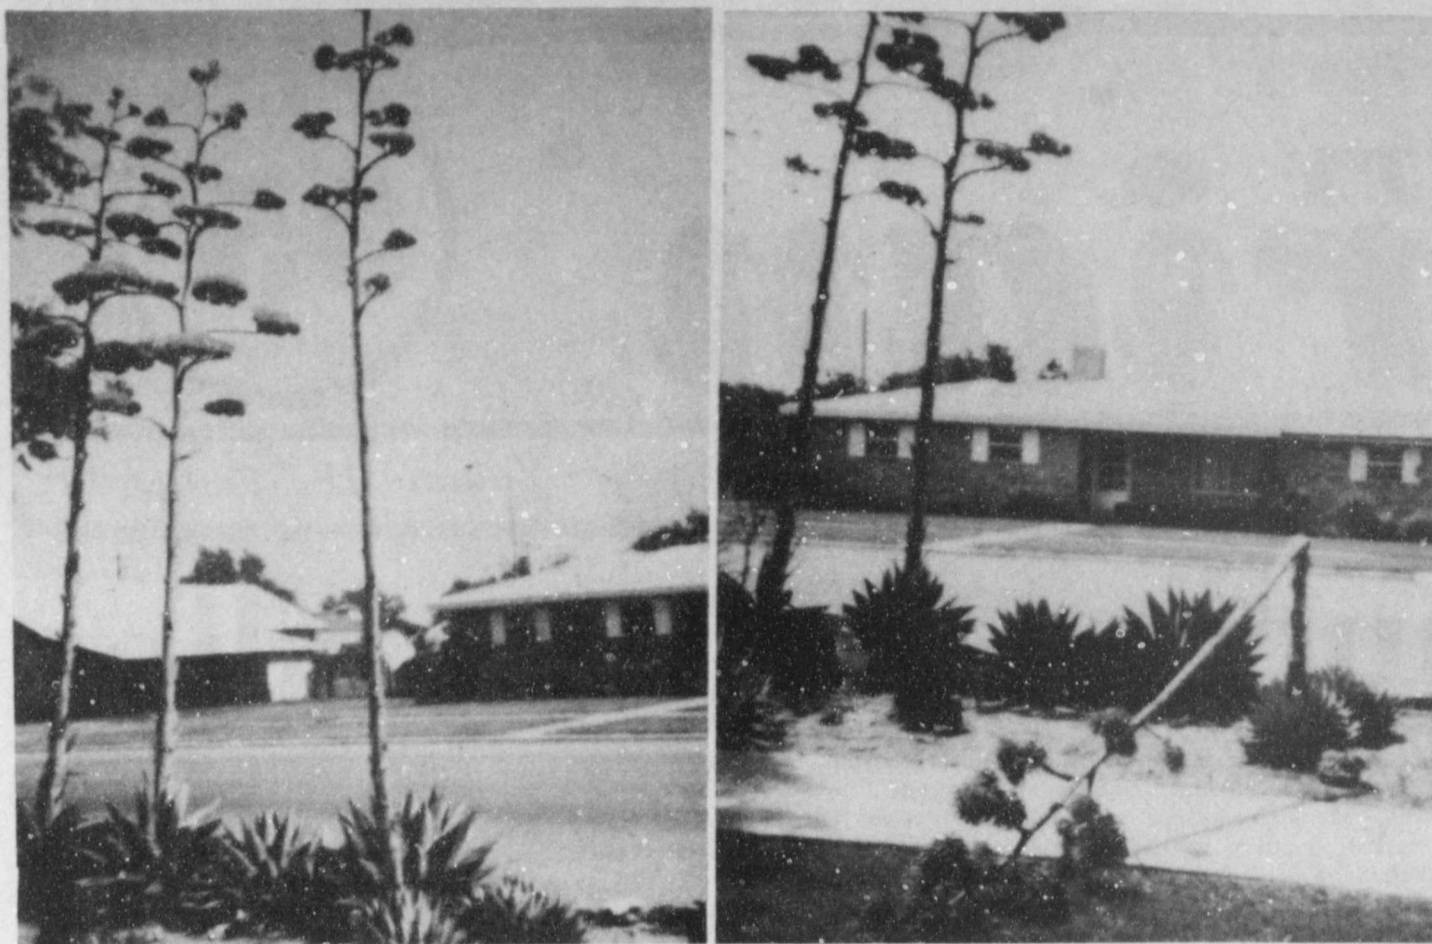

A third recommendation concerned a performance clause in the expiring franchise which is not a part of the new proposal. Council woman Nancy Willson asked McMorries if this would "be a good idea to have in the new agreement."

McMorries agreed that it would be "wise to include it." The performance clause allows the city to periodically review and amend the ordinance if the need arises. This would be done with the consent of Energas.

Attending the Wednesday luncheon meeting were Mayor Parnell Powell, City Manager Bill Feuerbacher, City Secretary Jimmie Lou Stewart, engineer Bill McMorries, council members Wayne Russell, Don Green, Nancy Willson and the Hesperian reporter.

CENTURY PLANTS BLOOMING — Mrs. Jewell Price had three century plants blooming at one time in the front yard of her residence, 528 W. Grover, before high winds "blew down" one of the stalks Friday night (right photo). Mrs. Price, who originally moved to Floyd county in 1908 and returned from Throckmorton in 1916, says the three plants were "as tall as this house." She has planted all of her century plants since moving her house to its present location in 1975 and now counts 10 in her yard, although "I have given two or three away." She expects "some of the smaller ones" to bloom later. A century plant dies after it blooms.

Plant damage resulting from hail, sand or even wind or possible stress conditions such as seedling disease, insects (thrips) or drought may alter the heat unit schedule.

To better understand the relationship between heat units and cotton fiber development, it is helpful to review how the cotton fiber develops. From the full-bloom to full-grown boll stages, cotton fibers mainly increases in length (staple).

During the period from full-grown boll to open boll, cellulose is produced and deposited within the fiber contained in the bolls. The more cellulose the fibers accumulate, the greater the lint weight and the higher the micronaire.

The rate of cellulose production is dependent on temperature; it begins to slow when temperatures drop below 70 degrees F and essentially stops at 60 degrees F. This relationship is — to a large extent — reflected by accumulated heat units.

Monthly accumulations of heat units for various locations on the High Plains are presented in Table 2. Summation of the monthly values shows that typical heat unit accumulation varies from about 1,700 in Castro County to about 2,500 in Dawson County.

Cool weather conditions in May and June slow growth and development, July, August and September usually are the months of highest heat unit accumulation.

Comparisons of monthly long-term heat unit accumulations with current accumulations can help monitor crop progress. For example, in 1983, heat unit accumulations in May and June were way below normal, and crop prospects looked dismal.

July and August were well above normal, and had it not been for the early freeze in September, lint production might have been near or above normal. In a "normal year" year, heat unit accumulations could be used to judge crop potential and subsequently crop inputs for the remainder of the season.

Average long-term heat units for this county are:

May — 239
June — 468
July — 582
August — 531
September — 306
Total — 2,126.

time." It was here that she met a young black man who had come from California to study: Jackie Robinson. He later broke the major league baseball color barrier as the first black player and became an all-time great in the sport.

Teaching assignments for black females were scarce, so LaVada returned to Abilene and accepted a job as cashier in a black movie theatre.

One day Dr. Graham, superintendent of schools at Whiteface, offered her a teaching position. Asked about the pay, he replied "$125 per month."

Remembering that the Jayton teaching position paid only $60 a month, she repeated, "$125!" Thinking she was declining the offer, he added, "I could guarantee $150."

MOVES TO WHITEFACE

She accepted, reluctantly, because "I had never been away from home much, and Whiteface was way out in West Texas."

She began with the 1945-46 school year and remained at Whiteface until 1953. She was head (and only) teacher, instructing "all classes" for seven students up to about the sixth grade. Older black children in that community had dropped out of school.

The seven student scenario changed rapidly and left the young teacher in a frenzy.

"Some black people came in to pick cotton and one morning I had 18 in school, elementary through high school classes. I didn't want the students to miss anything while they were away from home so I studied hard."

"The superintendent and principal from the white high school came and tutored me. This helped me to teach those children. All of them passed their tests."

Math was a particular challenge for the English major.

The experience impacted her. "I set my sights on the goal that the Lord had given me. I started being a teacher of individuals to start them out in the world."

Appreciating her efforts and the enlarged student enrollment, the Whiteface school district provided a lunchroom and the teacher prepared lunch each day. "They even put in a gas stove."

Before the lunchroom was provided, "The students brought cold sack lunches."

The following year the black school was moved to a larger building.

At Whiteface, Mrs. Garrett coached 13 participants in UIL track and literary events for competition at Lubbock.

"We won 12 first places and one third although our children were inexperienced," she remembers fondly. White coaches "came over to help."

BEAT THEM TO LINE

When the big day came for the track meet in Lubbock, the teacher "showed my students where to start...and I beat them to the finish line. I also had fun with the speaking and solo singing events." She was particularly adept at both speaking and solo, twice winning state in each as a high schooler.

Lubbock school officials must have been impressed with Mrs. Garrett's record because they hired her in 1952. She taught four years in Lubbock before taking a leave of absence following the birth of her first daughter (she already had five sons). Born Aug. 29, 1957, BraVada had a "nervous heart" and her mother stayed home with her. The youngest daughter was born Nov. 22, 1958.

OPERATES GROCERY

Mrs. Garrett and her husband, Austin, operated "a little community grocery in the black section of town," in Brownfield.

The merchant role didn't last long because "They had an opening for a black teacher - schools were still segregated, you see - at Shallowater for the 1959-60 year. Jack Brock, a Floydada native, was superintendent and he called me."

Mrs. Garrett remembers that "I taught out there four years before they integrated, but they integrated no black teachers."

This was a fortunate situation for Floydada, because it brought LaVada Garrett and her family here to begin the 1963-64 school year. She taught high school English and Spanish prior to the local system integrating for the 1967-68 school year.

The woman with the ever-present smile then taught remedial reading at Duncan Elementary for a year before becoming special education instructor at Floydada Junior High. Little did she realize this would continue for 21 years and would be her final teaching assignment.

TRYING TIMES

LaVada Garrett never lost her ability to laugh and to love her students, although at times she was hurting inside. She was twice widowed. Austin Garrett, who was in failing health for 18 years, died in 1979 on the day of his daughter BraVada's graduation from Texas Tech University.

Despite having the responsibility of rearing seven children and caring for an ailing husband and financial woes - which necessitated her holding down four jobs for a period of two years - LaVada never wavered from her course of "Teaching from my heart."

The respect she earned from black, brown and white students alike was evident at the recent retirement reception. It was sponsored by the "Della Plains community."

In addition to the money tree and various other gifts, former students and their parents honored her by appearing on a program.

Former students Nancy Robertson and Annie Craver, served refreshments of punch, cookies and mints. Another who was taught by Mrs. Garrett, Sandra Tolson, decorated a "special cake."

Gracing the table was floral arrangements designed by Joyce Williams, a fellow teacher. Mrs. Willie J. Windhom presented her with a guest book. Velma Craver emceed the program.

"She had the love and understanding," Mrs. King says, LaVada Garrett "always winked and gave the OK sign" with her hand.

PRIDE IN OFFSPRING

The same "love and understanding" she nurtured in the classroom obviously spilled over to her brood of seven. Her voice depicts the pride of her offspring:

*William F. Hiblow, her first born.

*Austin Garrett Jr., who earned a masters degree and currently works for State Farm Insurance in Lubbock.

*Clifton Garrett, who "traveled around the world twice" during his 10 years of service with the U.S. Navy. He played with the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra at age 16, currently attends Hardin-Simmons College and pastors a Baptist church in Winters.

*Norman Garrett, who attended North Texas State University and formerly was assistant band director in the Floydada school system.

*Douglas Garrett, a captain in the U.S. Army who is now teaching in the Army.

*BraVada Garrett, who is working toward a doctorate in clinical psychology at Texas Tech University.

*Elisa Garrett Washington, who graduated from college at San Marcos with a degree in home economics and business.

Austin Jr. was inducted into the Air Force from Texas Tech University. He received his first degree from the University of Colorado. Austin and Clifton, who was inducted into the Navy from Texas Tech, are both Vietnam veterans. Clifton was wounded in Vietnam.

Douglas received his degree from Texas Tech University and also entered the Army as a second lieutenant.

Mrs. Garrett, who confesses that "I love pretty hair and people with brains," has 10 grandchildren.

EDUCATION LEADER

She has been a leader among her peers, holding membership in TSTA, NEA, Delta Kappa Gamma and Delta Sigma Theta.

Mrs. Garrett served on the TSTA District 17 Executive Board for two years, completing the term in 1987. She helped to organize the chapter of Delta Sigma Theta for black women in Lubbock.

While the community has repeatedly expressed its esteem for and gratitude to LaVada Garrett, she feels that she should do the thanking.

"I really wish to thank all the people of this city for the many things they have done for my family and me. I shall forever be grateful," she says.

With her melodious voice, she confirms that Floydada will continue to be her home. Initially, she plans to "fix up my house (at 1004 South Leonard). It's like London Bride is falling down." Too, she is active in the Trinity Church here.

Regardless of what life holds for LaVada Garrett, she will wink and give the OK sign.

Weed control needed for CRP acreage

Weed control is needed now on acreage that has been planted to grass under the Cropland Reserve Program (CRP).

Jon J. La Baume, district conservationist for the Floyd County Soil Conservation Service, stated this week that recent rains have given producers perfect conditions for growing grass under the program.

Most of the grass is up and growing, however weeds are also up and growing. The best time to apply a herbicide is RIGHT NOW while the weeds are small and growing.

If a herbicide is not used and many fields are beyond applying a herbicide, then these fields need to be shredded now.

La Baume went on to say he cannot over emphasize the need for controlling weeds now.

The chemical Ally* can be used, this is the only chemical available that will not harm young grass. There are several chemicals on the market that will kill weeds, but will also kill young grass.

Shredding is the only alternative most producers have at this time. Producers may wish to apply herbicide and shred.

It is easier and less expensive to control weeds now than let weeds kill out a good stand of grass. The producer must then plant the grass at his/her own expense. Weed control is part of the terms of the contract. Violations of the contract can occur if weeds are not controlled.

La Baume also stated "Shredding needs to be done at the same height of remaining dead litter cover, cover is still important."

*Mention of trademark of a proprietary product does not constitute a guarantee of warranty of the product by the Soil Conservation Service and does not imply its approval to the exclusion of other products that may also be suitable.

Two July 4 accidents at 'Y', assaults investigated

The "Y" in Floydada was the site of two Independence Day traffic accidents. About 5 a.m. Saturday a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Tommy Lee Dixon of Floydada was northbound on the Ralls highway and failed to stop at the intersection. The vehicle struck a city light pole and an empty business building.

City police, who investigated, believe the driver "went to sleep." Officers say the mishap resulted in "considerable damage to the car and building," as well as the light pole, but Dixon was uninjured.

"At the same location," about 3:50 p.m. a 1974 Honda motorcycle driven by Felix Barbosa, 22, of Post struck the right back corner of a 1983 Oldsmobile, driven by Juanita Riddle of Hayes, South Dakota. The car was stopped to make a left turn onto the Ralls highway, according to officers.

The motorcycle flipped after the impact.

Both Barbosa and a passenger on the motorcycle, 14-year old Adam DeLaCruz of Floydada, were taken to Caprock Hospital by ambulance.

Barbosa reportedly suffered a broken right leg, plus bruises and scrapes. The DeLaCruz had had bruises and scrapes and was treated and released.

The cycle had "significant" damages and had to be "hauled away." The Oldsmobile had "some" damage.

Ms. Riddle was uninjured. The motorcycle was cited for failure to control speed, not having a driver's license and not having insurance.

THREATENING NOTE

A residence on North Fourth Street was entered July 1 when someone pried open a padlock on a door.

The resident reported that nothing was missing, but a "threatening note" was written in lipstick on the mirror.

FIREWORKS CHARGES

Sgt. Harold Snell says the Fourth of July week-end was "pretty quiet except for accidents and fireworks. We received lots of fireworks calls."

Charges were filed on parents for allowing their juvenile children to discharge fireworks in town, which is against a city ordinance.

DISPUTE DRAWS FINES

A longstanding feud between two local women again flared Saturday and resulted in $50 fines netted out to three individuals.

Irma Ramirez told police that she drove onto the highway department parking lot about 10:30 p.m. Saturday with friends and that Elvira Solis made an obscene gesture toward her and cursed her.

A short time later, she reported to police, that Herlinda Solis - mother of Elvira - came to the parking lot, cursed her and reached inside her car and hit her and tore her blouse. She wanted assault and disorderly conduct charges filed against the two Solis women.

The mother and daughter appeared at city hall about 3 p.m. Monday, coming before Judge Parnell Powell. The mother admitted the assault and was fined $50.

Elvira Solis denied being on the highway department parking lot Saturday and stated that the trouble occurred at the Fieldan Motel earlier in the day while she was with friends. She claimed that Irma Ramirez came by the motel, cursed her and called her names in front of her (Elvira's) friends.

Elvira related this incident to her mother, but contended that she was unaware until the following day that her mother had "jumped" the Ramirez woman.

Elvira Solis wanted to file charges against Irma Ramirez for the incident at the motel.

All three women were in Judge Powell's office Monday afternoon and the two younger women "argued and got nothing settled." Each desired that charges be filed against the other.

The city judge then levied $50 fines against Irma Ramirez and Elvira Solis, "with the promise that if it happened again they would be placed in jail until the judge was ready to see them."

FORGED CHECK

Doyle Walls reported that while inspecting his bank statement he found that a forged personalized check in the amount of $80 had been passed on his account.

The check, dated June 5, was passed at Pay-N-Save by a man described by an employee of the store as being a young Hispanic.

Wall said the check came from a checkbook carried in a farm pickup driven by his employee and he did not know if this was the only check taken.

Samples of Mr. and Mrs. Walls' handwriting has been secured to help avoid the possibility of another check being passed.

A 1985 GMC pickup owned by The Floyd County Hesperian sustained approximately $200 in damage when it was struck about 4:56 p.m. last Wednesday by a hit-and-run motorist. The pickup was parked in the median in the 100 block of East Missouri.

The following day, officers found the vehicle which struck the pickup.

Joe Starkey reported to police that he had an Alpin equalizer and 30 tapes - with a total value of $675 - taken from his '79 Tornado about 11:56 p.m. July 3. The vehicle was parked in Don Hardy's parking lot.

Rising star in country music field performs here Independence Day

Her name is Gail Veach, her song is "Would You Catch Me, Baby" on the Prairie Dust label and she's already catching the eyes and ears of Nashville producers and the best songwriters in the business.

Floyd County residents had an opportunity to hear Ms. Veach on Saturday during Pay-N-Save's annual July 4 celebration.

Also entertaining on the firm's parking lot that day was the popular Slow Motion Band.

"Would You Catch Me, Baby" was co-written by Jerry McBee and Conley White, and was one of the first songs chosen by the Plainview soloist during her recent recording session at Nashville's Soundtrack Studio. The song has been on the Cash Box top 100 for five weeks and is now in Billboard's top 100.

It was picked "Indie Spotlight" and "Dark Horse Consenses" in Cash Box. "Dark Horse Consenses" is when disc jockeys sent in their votes selecting the most promising record of the week.

Ms. Veach's feature is a traditional song with a universal story revolving around one woman finding herself falling in love again, all the while wondering whether she can trust her partner to share the same feelings. "We've either got to call it off or call it love," she sings. Her emotional vocals catch every bit of the character's hope and longing.

The reason Gail Veach began singing country is "because whenever I hear a song, I always try to find a song with a story, the sort that would make a great video. And those stories often can be found in country songs."

Credit producer Larry Morton with tapping the country enthusiasm within Gail Veach, as past years found her concentrating more on singing gospel. "There was a point in my life when I felt that gospel was all I knew. Daddy was a minister, and gospel is about all I sang." She already made her name in that genre. After recording a self-titled, 10-song album in 1982 at Lubbock's Caldwell Studios, the record was released to fine reviews and at least regional air play.

Her gospel recording days culminated with a nomination in the preliminary 1984 Grammy Award listing for best female performance by a gospel artist. Tentative about leaving gospel behind, she tested the waters by singing Charly McClain's "Sentimental Old You" - and was quickly convinced by all who heard her version that country was the field in which she should be working.

Recording dates in Nashville and Memphis followed, and it is with Prairie Dust Records that Gail Veach has finally been able to fine-tune her delivery and make songs already deserving of radio air play. Songwriters such as Don Godman, with several hits to their credit, have made a point of "personally sending songs" to her.

Floyd appraisal board meets with Don Marble

During the regular July session of the board of directors of the Floyd County Central Tax Appraisal District, Don Marble, representing Marble Brothers Gin, lodged a protest concerning the appraised value of the facility. Marble has already met with the appraisal review board seeking a reduction in the appraised value of the gin, to no avail. Marble stated that he felt the appraisal of $220,600 was "way in excess of the actual value of the gin." He added that the facility itself is "mostly old, still running well, but old." He then requested that the board decrease the appraised value since, "appraised value is supposed to represent fair market value. I bought the gin from Prudential Insurance for $15,000 and I paid the taxes of about $20,000 due on it. The best offer they had other than mine was $15,000 and they pay the taxes. The fair market value should be based on that figure."

Board president Adrain Helms told Marble that "The board of review has the final authority in these matters. We do not have the authority to change their decision." Marble responded by saying, "I have talked with a gentleman from the state appraisal board in Austin and I don't subscribe to the theory that the state is telling you how to run your business." Helms said, "I have to disagree with that. The state has an idea what property is valued at and we have to operate within the guidelines they set." Board member Eddie Teeter then added, "We underwent an audit of our values following the last reappraisal and the state was especially complimentary on the values we carry for commercial property."

Chief Appraiser Shelia Faulkenberry explained to Marble, "Your gin is valued at a total of $220,600 and taxed at a rate of 50% good, resulting in a tax bill for 1987 of a little over $3,500." Marble told the board that he did not "want to get into a lawsuit over this, but I have to have some relief."

Helms stated, "You are asking us to restructure all commercial appraisals in order to decrease your appraisal because this office treats everyone the same. Yours is the only gin to protest the appraisal. You had a hearing before the review board and your request was denied. We have to allow that decision to stand."

Marble then stated "I had a hearing before the review board, but I don't feel that they properly considered the request. Jimmie Willson just told the others that they couldn't decrease my valuation and that was it."

Helms said, "We are not saying that we are exactly right in our valuations, but we are saying that all the gins in the county are on the books at comparable values with other gins in the state and each other."

Marble left the meeting after stating, "If you can't help me, I am going to have to try to help myself and you know how that is going to happen."

The single other matter considered by the board was the replacement of recently deceased board member Jack Lackey. Faulkenberry told the board that letters were being sent to the entities concerning this and a decision on a replacement could be made at the August meeting. She also told the board that a memorial plaque was being prepared for the office and for Mrs. Lackey as has been the custom in the past.

Attending the session were Adrain Helms, Fred Zimmerman III, Eddie Teeter, Paul Glasson, Shelia Faulkenberry and the Hesperian reporter.

NILE BRYANT

Jessie Nile Bryant, referred to by a friend as "the original good Samaritan," was claimed by death at 3:55 p.m. Tuesday in Caprock Hospital following a lengthy illness. He was 57.

Memorial services are scheduled for 4 p.m. Friday in St. Mary Magdalen Catholic Church. Father Terry Burke will officiate.

Interment is to be made in Floydada Cemetery, under direction of Moore-Rose Funeral Home.

Mr. Burke was employed by Santa Fe Railway Co. for 37 years and was associated with the Post Office for nine years. He began working for Santa Fe as a telegraph operator in Crowell at the age of 19.

Mr. Bryant served four years in the U.S. Air Force, including 18 months in Germany. His military tenure was during the Korean War.

When both of his daughters were employed at Caprock Hospital they encouraged their father to "spread a little Christmas cheer" for hospital patients by playing Santa Claus. He borrowed the Santa suit from the Chamber of Commerce and paid hospital patients a surprise visit.

He later expanded his Santa Claus role by paying visits to jail inmates and others. His family and friends helped him prepare bags of fruit, candy and cookies.

"It is great," Bryant told The Hesperian during a 1984 interview. "My Christmas is seeing the joy in the faces of those I visit. This is a better present than any amount of money could ever buy."

He and the former Josephine (Jo) H. Halenack were married Sept. 2, 1950, in Vernon. They moved to Floydada in January 1959 from Bronte.

After his work with the railroad forced him to commute to Plainview, the couple chose to continue to reside in Floydada.

When extra money was needed to educate his two daughters, Mr. Bryant carried a mailbag for the Post Office during the days and worked at the railroad depot at night. He also worked for Kirk & Son for a time. His daughter Paula is a registered nurse and daughter Nila is a licensed vocational nurse.

Widely known as a cheerful individual, Mr. Bryant said, "Worry doesn't help, and it doesn't change a thing. Just do the best that you can and look for the good things, the good times and the good people."

During the 1984 interview, he related that "I could quit work tomorrow and live to be a hundred and still not do everything I have laid out to do. Life is to be lived and enjoyed."

He had numerous hobbies, including: making jewelry, fishing, hunting, playing both an accordion and harmonica, writing poetry and cooking. His specialty was hot sauce. Mr. Bryant was fluent in German and Spanish and spoke limited Czechoslovakian.

Mrs. Bryant said of her husband: "Nile is unique. Everyone can sense the love in Nile, and he brings out the best in everyone. Nile and I try to live life to the fullest and enjoy every day. We give God praise and glory in all things, and He gives us a beautiful life."

Jesse Nile Bryant was born June 24, 1930 in Hackberry in Cottle County. He was graduated from Benjamin High School in 1949.

In addition to his wife, survivors include two daughters, Paula Bryant of Brainerd, Minnesota, and Nila Ruth Ball of Plainview; three grandsons, Cody, Jonathan and Bryan; two brothers, Bill Bryant of Denver, Colo., and Newt Bryant of Abilene; and one sister, Mary Sue Collier of Markham.

Cotton growers grasp for alternate crops

From Richard Crow
CEA-Ag

Summer storms with hail and driving winds have dealt a heavy blow to thousands of acres of cotton across the Texas South Plains, forcing farmers to seek an alternate crop.

It's too late to replant cotton, said Dr. James Supak, cotton agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. There isn't time for even short season varieties to mature adequately, he said.

"This means that producers who suffered this damage must consider such crops as sunflowers, grain sorghum or vegetables if they have to replant," he said.

But he cautioned that cotton producers who incorporated Treflan or Prowl preplant herbicides have generally eliminated the possibility of growing sorghum on that land this year, unless they are able to get under the treated soil with buster type planters.

Sorghum seed must be planted below the herbicide treated zone, the agronomist cautioned. The depth of the herbicide can be determined by examining the root system of the damaged cotton plants, he said. "The point at which feeder roots are found typically indicates the end of the herbicide treated zone," Supak explained.

Wide ranging storms Monday night (June 29) saw hail cut a swath about three miles wide across portions of Bailey County and wreak heavy damage on fields in Crosby, Floyd, Briscoe, Swisher, Lynn, Dawson and adjacent counties. From one to two inches of rain fell across much of the area.

"Except for, possibly, Lynn and Dawson Counties, the rains will be beneficial to the (remaining) cotton,"

Supak said. "It would have been nice had it been delayed for another week, but we'll take the rain when we get it."

The Extension Agronomist urged farmers to carefully evaluate the condition of their crops before making the critical decision to plant something else.

"As we've said many times, don't make your final decision the morning after a storm," Supak cautioned. "Wait at least two or three days to evaluate the prospects for recovery. Run a sand-fighter or rotary hoe as soon as possible to prevent further damage from blowing sand."

Check the plants carefully, Supak urged. If portions of leaves remain on the plants and the stems aren't badly damaged, the plants may recover quickly, he noted. "Even if leaf defoliation is nearly complete, as long as the bark on the stems is intact below the functional blade, the plants will recover," he said.

Research studies conducted on the High Plains have shown that nearly optimum yields can be obtained from plant populations ranging from about 25,000 to 60,000 plants on acre. This corresponds to approximately two to 4.5

plants per foot on 40-inch rows.

"As a general rule, if a stand averages two or more plants a foot of row and is fairly uniform, without too many long skips, replanting isn't warranted," the Extension specialist said.

When considering alternate crops to replace the hailed out cotton, consider potential markets for the new crop, urged Dr. Roland E. Roberts, Extension vegetable specialist. A firm contract should be secured before planting an alternate crop, Dr. Jackie Smith, Extension economist and marketing specialist, stressed.

Market holds alternate crop key

From Richard Crow
CEA-Ag

Sunflowers, some vegetable crops, dried beans and soybeans may offer the best potentials for South Plains producers seeking to replace hailed out cotton, specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service suggest.

"Any of these crops should have a firm contract before being planted," stressed Dr. Jackie Smith, Extension economist and management specialist.

Check with local shippers or processing firms to make sure additional acreage of any crop is needed, echoed Dr. Roland E. Roberts, Extension vegetable specialist. "It's extremely risky to put in any crop without having made marketing arrangements," Roberts said.

Sunflowers are one good alternate crop for this area and this time of the growing season. Dr. Raymond Brigham, associate professor of oilseed crops with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock, said several varieties can still be planted and mature this season.

In addition, contracts for the crop are available, seed supply is plentiful and seed cost is lower than some other crops, such as soybeans, he noted. Brigham said producers will need to spray the field for sunflower moth at bloom.

Soybeans seed are in short supply and relatively expensive. If beds have been washed away, the producer will have the additional cost of bedding the field if he wants to maximize his harvest efficiency.

Some processing companies are contracting for fall broccoli, cauliflower and spinach, Roberts said. County Extension agents or the marketing department of the Texas Department of Agriculture may be able to assist producers in identifying such markets, he said.

Fall carrots, lettuce and cabbage are possibilities as alternate crops, but be sure you have a market for this fresh produce before you plant, the vegetable specialist said. This also applies to snap beans and cucumbers, he said.

Sweet corn can be planted for September harvest, but there may be a problem in marketing the fresh harvest, Roberts said. Peak demand for this is between July Fourth and Labor Day, he noted.

Before considering a melon crop for fall, check with a local shipper about demand, Roberts emphasized. Pumpkins are almost too late to plant now, he said. "If planted today, it would be after the first week of October before you could harvest pumpkins," he said.

Mung beans or dry beans such as pintos can be planted, but there may be problems with weather at harvest time, the Extension specialist cautioned. Dry beans will mature in September at a time this area customarily receives increased rainfall. "Harvest time is when these need dry weather most," he said.

Grain sorghum provides another alternative, with proper consideration for markets and production costs, the specialists said. They cautioned about planting sorghum in fields where cotton herbicides have been used. The sorghum seeds must go under the treated soil level.

Ag leaders to discuss foreign trade

International trade and agricultural exports will be the focal point of this year's Texas Agricultural Forum in Lubbock on July 13. The forum, an assembly of leaders from agriculture, agribusiness and government, will be at the Holiday Inn-Civic Center, 801 Avenue Q.

Featured speakers will include U.S. Rep. Glenn English of Oklahoma and Ann Veneman, assistant administrator of the Foreign Agricultural Service.

Area producers and businessmen are invited to attend the forum and share information.

English will present a Congressional perspective on international trade. Veneman will discuss multilateral trade negotiations in Uruguay.

Loan funds still available for agricultural water conservation equipment

Loan funds continue to be available from the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 for the purchase of agricultural water conservation equipment.

Through an Agricultural Water Conservation Equipment Pilot Loan Program approved by Texas voters in November 1985, the water district borrows funds from the Texas Water Development Board to lend to qualified irrigators to help promote water conservation measures. Irrigators may obtain loans for the purchase of agricultural water conservation equipment such as center pivot sprinkler systems, surge irrigation systems, low pressure drip irrigation systems, soil moisture monitoring equipment and underground pipelines.

Irrigators may borrow up to 75 percent of the purchase price of permanently installed equipment and 50 percent of the cost for contractor services, installation and non-recoverable items.

The pilot program was to expire August 31, 1987, but a bill sponsored by Senator John Montford of Lubbock extending the program until August 31, 1989 passed both houses of the Texas legislature and was signed by Governor Bill Clements on May 26th. The extension allows two more years to evaluate the success of the pilot program.

The funds are loaned at 6.75 percent interest, and a one-time service fee of 2.5 percent of the loan amount is charged to cover administrative costs. Loans are processed on a first-come, first-served basis.

For Water District loan guidelines and applications, contact Becca Williams at the High Plains Water District office at 2930 Avenue Q, Lubbock, Texas 79405, (806) 762-0181.

COTTON WIVES BLITZ APPAREL MART

Western cotton wives recently carried the "Grown & Made in the USA" campaign to the California Apparel Mart in Los Angeles, canvassing hundreds of showrooms, reviewing clothing lines, and distributing signs and hang-tags to U.S. cotton apparel makers. Meanwhile, campaign coordinator Nick Hahan has announced that Bardee Underwood, one-time National Council retail promotion manager and former head of Cotton Incorporated's Dallas Cottonworks, will rejoin CI on July 1 to assist in coordinating the campaign. Based in the council's Memphis office, she will assume the coordinator's position in January.

GROWERS RECOMMEND TOP TOP RESEARCH PRIORITIES

Development of a more efficient cotton plant that would make better use of water and other inputs, and the improvement of fiber quality are among research priorities identified by grower panels in the West and Southwest.

In the Southwest group were Texas growers Paul Schacht, Lockney; Gary Ivey, Ralls; Dan Pustejovsky, Hillsboro; David McMahan, Princeton; Larry Bickham, Odem; Homer C. Easterwood, Sinton; Jimmy Barger, El Campo; Rick Kocurek, Robstown; and Oklahoma producer David Stratton, Clinton.

Federal, state, and private agricultural researchers served as technical advisors to the panels, along with representatives of the National Cotton Council.

Lake report

At Lake Mackenzie, bass fishermen are doing very well up Tule and Cope Creeks using plastic worms and shad colored lures. Jerry Matlock and David Cochran, Plainview, both brought in bass weighing 4 pounds each. Hybrid stripers are still doing good in the late evening hours. Charlie Taylor and Alan Crosley, Amarillo, landed stripers weighing 4 1/4 and 8 1/4 pounds. Shad lures and spoons in deep water seem to be working best for the fishermen. Dale Love, Plainview, caught a 7 1/4 pound catfish using live perch. Crappie and walleye are slow. The temperature at Lake Mackenzie is 77 degrees and depth of the lake is 114 feet.
