Commissioners court establishes law library, sets office rents for DA and county attorney

Bringing to an end a controversy which has spanned nearly a year, the commissioners of Floyd County voted July 13 to formally establish a law library to be located in the courthouse. The facility will house legal volumes the county acquired in the settlement of a lawsuit brought by former county commissioner Jack Lackey against resigning district judge George Miller last year. Other tomes undisputed in the legal action will also be housed in the library.

An exact location for the library has not been selected at this time. The law library will be funded by a $10 fee which will be assessed on all civil cases filed in the 110th District Court as recommended by County Judge Bill Hardin.

Commissioner of Precinct 1, Sam Spence made the motion to establish the library and set the funding fee at $10. The action was seconded by Precinct 2 commissioner Floyd Jackson. Precinct 3 representative Thomas Warren and Precinct 4 official Kay Crabtree joined the pair in voting to make approval unanimous.

A second issue which arose following the settlement of the Lackey vs. Miller lawsuit was also addressed at the

Monday-Tuesday session of the court. This issue concerned law books owned jointly by district attorney Randy Hollums and the county. Also addressed at the session was the question of rent fees due the county from the county attorney and the district attorney for private practice conducted from their courthouse offices.

Hollums offered by letter in February, 1987, to turn over his interest in the books in return for the court considering this as sufficient payment for rental fees prior to January 1, 1987. The second part of his offer asked that the court set the rental fee after January 1, 1987 at "$30 to $40 per month" bearing in mind pending legislation.

Physical exam forms must be completed by athletes

All local athletes, both boys and girls, are being reminded that physical examination forms should be completed prior to the beginning of the 1987-88 school year.

Schwertner house burns

The sudden and violent storm which rambled through Floyd County on Tuesday evening brought tragedy to a Sandhill Community family. Lightning was the cause of a fire which destroyed the home of the Arnold Schwertners south of Sandhill Community "around 10:30 or 11:00" according to Floydada volunteer fireman Larry Guthrie.

Guthrie stated, "I was the first to arrive in the pumper truck and there was just nothing we could do."

Whipped by high winds, the house quickly became a "total loss" claiming virtually all the family possessions in the blaze.

"We were out spotting clouds for the storm when the lightning strike occurred," said Guthrie. "When we arrived at the scene, Mr. Schwertner told us that the wiring and television in his house had begun to smoke and he went out on the back porch only to find it engulfed in flames. All we could do was slow it down a little bit. There was no way to save the house."

Schwertner, whose family was away from the home, managed to remove a few belongings from the house before the inferno claimed the entire structure.

Anyone wishing to assist the family with donations of clothing, household goods or money should contact the family or the volunteer fire department.

Marble Brothers seek reappraisal

Marble Brothers has filed in 110th District Court against Floyd County Central Appraisal District and Floyd County Appraisal Review Board seeking reevaluation of the Marble Brothers Gin in Lockney.

The "Petition for review of order determining protest" was filed July 8, according to records at the courthouse.

Don Marble met with both boards, seeking a reduced valuation on the Marble Brothers Gin. On both occasions, the request was denied by both boards.

He told the appraisal district board during its July session that he felt the appraisal of $220,600 was "way in excess of the actual value of the gin." He added that the facility itself is "mostly old, still running well, but old."

Marble related that Marble Brothers

Hail, heavy rains ravage Cedar Hill area Sunday

South Plains weather followed its normal erratic pattern late Sunday afternoon and Sunday night as hail destroyed some crops, particularly around Cedar Hill, and deposited heavy rains while other areas "hardly received a sprinkle."

Certain farm-to-market roads were under water following the deluge.

Bud Taylor said two clouds struck in the Cedar Hill area, with the last being the most devastating.

Hail in that region was "everywhere from tiny to marble size." This came around 6 to 7 p.m.

One source related that rainfall around Cedar Hill ranged up to six inches. Land "washed bad," according to Taylor.

Another source said crops were either damaged or destroyed both north of Cedar Hill and to the south and east.

Another person placed the hail band at "probably three miles across — it went from Craig Gilly's to Cedar Hill — and I don't know how far north and south."

Still another individual said hail fell "10 to 12 miles east of Floydada," although the exact location could not be determined. Dean Watson reportedly received 1½ inches of rain and no hail.

Kenneth Broseh at Sterley had little or no hail damage near Sterley although some hail stones did fall.

James Huggins said his gauge caught 1½ inches of rain at Lockney. Another report placed the Lockney rainfall at "around 2 inches." Brief, minor flooding occurred on some streets there, but no hail damage was reported.

Water was over the highway "east of Cedar Hill." Farm Road 207, "south of South Plains" reportedly was underwater for a short time. Heavy rains also fell near Petersburg. Also allegedly under water was Farm Road 97, "east of 207."

The town of South Plains received only "eight- or nine-tenths of an inch of moisture," but 1.7 inches were reported at the Ted Givens residence, located to the south of South Plains. Sue Givens told this newspaper that water was over the highway in five places in the five miles to the south of their home.

More moisture apparently fell between Lockney and Floydada than south of Floydada. Some producers were "needing a little more rain" following the Sunday moisture. Additional rain fell Monday morning in the extreme southern part of Floyd County.

THAT'S THE SPOT — Bill Gray points out to Donnell Govens the site of the 1814 Texan Santa Fe expedition while the two members of Floyd County Historical Commission examine the proposed plot where a Texas Historical Marker, along with a special Grand Lodge of Texas marker will be erected. The Grand Lodge marker will be in honor of members of the Masonic fraternity who participated in the expedition. A Sunday, Aug. 30, dedication of the markers is being planned with Curtis Tunnell of Austin, chairman of Texas Historical Commission, as the keynote speaker. The site is in the extreme northeastern portion of Floyd County.

Flora Warren recalls arrival in county on passenger train

"Mama's people lived in Lockney and word spread that the Nolands were coming in on the train. All the businesses closed and everybody came to meet the Nolands at the (Lockney) depot," recalls Flora Dean Noland Warren.

Her family's move to West Texas is one of many fond memories held by Mrs. Warren, who will mark her 90th birthday on July 27.

The family has visited in Floyd County "in 1910 or 1912, I don't remember which." In 1914, T.M. (Mac) and Ida Noland moved their one son, three daughters, livestock and other possessions to this county from McClellan, near Waco. They arrived Aug. 14.

"Alton and Audie" were born here, Mrs. Warren says of her two younger brothers.

Cattle, horses, chicken, hogs and "all our furniture" were shipped ahead on a box car.

The six Nolands "left about 2 o'clock" and traveled on the train "about two days. The stock took longer than the passenger train."

They changed trains in Fort Worth, after riding there from McGregor. They again changed coaches in Sweetwater and progressed to Amarillo, Plainview and Lockney. "The best I remember there were no tracks in Floydada then," she says.

Mrs. Warren, who was 16 at the time, remembers that ride almost 73 years ago. "Mama made biscuits, fried chicken and cookies for us to eat. The train didn't stop for us to eat."

"We didn't sleep much of the time, but we did sleep some after midnight. We could see lights coming from kerosene lanterns in the towns we passed through."

'A LOT OF LOVE'

The former Flora Noland says that when her family moved to West Texas, "We didn't have a lot of money, but we had a lot of love."

A lifelong Texan, she was married about two years after reaching Floyd County. She and her late husband, James Oscar Warren,

"would have been married 71 years in June if he had lived."

Vividly, she remembers her wedding day. "Back then we didn't have a car." She and Mr. Warren, along with "his sister (Alice Warren) and her fiancé (Vernon Payne)" were seated in buggies while "Brother Matthews" performed the ceremonies. The site was "about a block west of the present Post Office" in Floydada.

Actually, separate ceremonies were performed for the two young couples on that June 18, 1916 date. Each couple witnessed the other's wedding.

Flora — born July 27, 1897 and the oldest of a family comprised of three girls and three boys — and her new husband built "a two-bedroom box house on our (Noland) home place" in Center community. Her father originally purchased the section of land in 1919 or 1920 and the plot, seven miles northeast of Floydada, is now farmed by a nephew of Mrs. Warren, Joe Richard Noland.

FIRST HOME

The Warrens resided in their first home "about six years" before moving to a place "on the Ralls highway." The family moved two years later to Sandhill and remained there two years until Warren "quit farming in 1926."

After moving into Floydada, he operated Floydada Transfer and later owned a Phillips 66 service

Since that time, the state legislature has approved increasing the DA's salary to $50,000 per year while continuing to pay a $27,000 stipend for "salaries and office supplies for the DA." At the same time, the legislature voted to restrict the DA office to full time prosecuting, allowing no private practice by a DA. This ruling is to be effective as of September 1, 1987.

Controversy among the four Floyd County commissioners erupted over the amount of rent to charge Hollums from January 1 until September 1. Spence stated, "I personally don't feel like we ought to charge them anything. It is worth it to the county to have them in the courthouse and handy to consult."

A motion by Jackson, seconded by Warren, offered the DA a settlement, accepting the jointly owned volumes in lieu of rent up to January 1 and setting rent at $75.00 per month from January 1 to September 1. The motion was approved unanimously.

Judge Hardin indicated that he had spoken with Hollums between the Monday session and the Tuesday session and secured his agreement to the motion. Hollums indicated to Judge Hardin that he "thought we were being a little hard with him," but agreed to the terms offered.

On Monday, Kenneth Bain, the current county attorney, agreed to pay a monthly rental of $62.50 per month. Under a previous agreement with the county, Bain had paid $60 per year for the use of his county office space in his private practice. The motion accepting the agreed upon rental was made by Jackson and seconded by Warren (after Warren withdrew a motion to set the rental at $40 per month). Jackson, Warren and Crabtree voted in favor of the $62.50 rent, while Spence voted against the motion.

District Judge David Cave submitted a written request that the county "pay a portion" of the office supplies expense of his office in Spur. The cost was estimated at $225 per month. Judge Hardin pointed out that Floyd County currently pays the hospitalization insurance on the district court reporter, an expense of $130 per month.

A motion by Jackson approved payment of 55% of $355 per month towards expenses of the district judges office in Spur. This figure includes both the $130 for the court reporter's insurance and the $225 for office supply expense. Under this motion, Floyd County will pay $195.25.

The motion was seconded by Crabtree and approved on a unanimous vote.

More routine matters handled by the court during the two day session included the purchase of a backhoe for use by Precinct 4. Only one bid was received on a 1980 model G310A John Deere machine for a total of $16,700 including trade-in. The bid was awarded to Yellowhouse Machinery of Lubbock on a motion by Crabtree, seconded by Spence and approved unanimously.

Shirley Shaw, a public health nurse from the Texas Department of Health, reported to the court on the many services the department provided for Floyd County during 1986. The department oversees programs such as tuberculosis testing, WIC Program, early childhood intervention and immunizations high risk maternity programs and dental screenings. Shaw told the court that these services are provided for "any of the approximately 8880 residents of Floyd County who might need them." She asked and received permission to report to the court on a quarterly basis concerning the activities of her Ralls based office in Floyd County.

Joel Williamson, an insurance and investment planner from Dumas, appeared before the court to present a "cafeteria plan" of financial planning and employee benefits he is encouraging the county to offer employees. Williamson explained to the commissioners that the plan he offers allows employees to "voluntarily select and pay for certain medical and child care expenses with before tax dollars."

He emphasized that the plan would be virtually "no cost to the county and should save money for the employee and the county." Williamson offered to conduct a survey of potential participants at a cost of "$10 per employee surveyed with a 50% reimbursement if the plan is installed." No action was taken on the matter.

Penny Golightly, county tax assessor/collector, met with the court to secure authorization to purchase two new telephones for her office. The cost is estimated at $63. She was given an authorization for this purchase as well as an authorization to apply for a notary public commission for the deputy clerk in the TAC office, Nancy Barker. A second notary is necessary in the office to witness signatures on vehicle documents when the TAC is out of the office.

Commissioners voted to instruct Don Hardy Race Cars, Inc., to utilize "whatever equipment possible from the old truck in outfitting the new rural fire vehicle for the Floydada Volunteer Fire Department to use in fighting rural fires. This will result in a savings of "around $3000" said Crabtree.

Following a recess called at 5:15 p.m. on Monday, the court reconvened on Tuesday afternoon at 4:00 p.m. The issue of Lockney fire bills was addressed, with the court authorizing the signing of a rural fire contract with the City of Lockney, allotting them $250 per month and $200 per rural fire call made after June 8. The motion authorizing these actions was made by Jackson, seconded by Crabtree and passed on the unanimous vote of those present. Commissioner Spence was not present at the Tuesday meeting.

An application for public assistance in paying for a funeral of a Floyd County resident was denied by the court on a motion by Jackson, seconded by Crabtree. Although the applicant met the guidelines for income eligibility, Jackson maintained that "the application should have been made before the funeral and the funeral should have been conducted as inexpensively as possible if it had to be paid for with taxpayers' money."

The application was made "about a week" after the funeral according to Judge Hardin. His secretary, Margaret Herrera, informed the court that Moore-Rose Funeral Home said arrangements were for the family to pay for the funeral, costing approximately $2700, "within 30 days." Public assistance policy in Floyd County states that "acceptance of payment from the county by the funeral home constitutes payment in full and that the survivors may not be held responsible for further payment."

Jackson stated "I feel like this would be unfair to the funeral home that performed the services based on the family commitment to pay rather than on the basis of the $680 the county is allowed to pay toward a funeral for an adult."

Election judges and alternates were approved by the court for the November General Election. Proposed judges were submitted by County Clerk Margaret Collier. Most have served before and approval was unanimous. The list will be published in the Hesperian prior to the election this fall.

Action on the issue of joining a mediation service offered by South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG) was tabled following a brief discussion. Spence told the group that "I feel it is a worthwhile service, and I have already used it to settle a dispute successfully." Other commissioners appeared reluctant to authorize the action and questioned the means of financing the service. Judge Hardin reminded them that the service is "financed by a fee added to the filing cost of civil cases in the local court, usually $10."

County Treasurer Glenna Orman presented her monthly and quarterly financial statements which were approved and accepted as presented. The county began the month of June with a balance of $309,175.85, taking in receipts of $736,739.73 and paying out $873,424.26. This resulted in a balance of $172,491.32 to end the month and the quarter. The county has certificates of deposit totaling $732,000.00 on which $33,885.46 in interest has been earned to date. Tax collections are 96.07% complete according to Mrs. Orman.

The commissioners also approved a series of budget adjustments to allow more orderly payment of county expenses by moving dollars from accounts with excess funds to accounts which were nearing depletion.

Farm work contracts were approved for Billie Jo Smith, Dale Galloway, Gary Brown, Gary Carthel, Bill Glasscock, Louie Bybee, C.L. Henderson, Thomas Warren, J.A. Welch and Keith Phillips.

Flora Warren recalls arrival in county

"We hauled the first and last mail that went out on the QA&P trains" and also hauled mail to the Santa Fe depot, his wife proudly relates. He worked as an express agent "until they (freight line) closed here."

One of the service stations Warren operated was on the corner south of Oden Chevrolet-Oldsmobile. He sold the plot to Oden's when that firm expanded its facilities to its present size.

Rearing their two daughters — Joyce Alene McAdams of Lubbock and Mary Darylnn Hambricht of Floydada — in town, the Warrens moved to her present home at 720 South Fifth in 1942. Their oldest child, Zelma Dean, died at 34 months old.

The daughters' upbringing was different from their mother's childhood on farms in Central Texas and later in this county.

'PRAIRIE WOOD'
"When we first arrived in this country, Mama would send Tom (the late Tom Noland, the oldest brother) and me to gather prairie wood (cow chips) to cook supper with," Flora says.

She helped her mother cook "300 biscuits every day for two families. That was for all three meals...and they didn't leave any."

Cooking for "hired hands" during harvest was an awesome chore.

But harvest was not without its rewards. "We didn't eat light bread except at harvest time. The hands ate five meals a day, and we kids also got to eat five times every day."

Her parents expected their offspring to work. "Mama and Papa wouldn't let us sleep," Flora says. "We got up when they did. I ground coffee while Mama fixed the churn, then she brewed coffee and I churned (made butter)."

She says "There are a lot of things different" in 1986 compared with her childhood years. "We didn't know about picture shows, ice cream cones and such as that."

"We all worked in the fields. When it rained we cut weeds in fence rows; we just kept working," she remembers.

When the family moved to West Texas, "there were no regular roads, but trails that people followed."

Even without modern conveniences, those days were not uneventful. Nature played a major role in their lives. "I was riding on a harrow one day when a big tarantula jumped on me from the weeds. It didn't take me long to get it off me, because they are poisonous," she relates.

REMEMBERS DEPRESSION
Her rural background prepared

Mrs. Warren for the Depression, which "I sure do remember."

"We'd buy groceries by the month" and pay the food bill at the end of the month, she says. "I remember one time our grocery bill was $10 and my husband asked what we had bought extra that month. Our water bill was never over the minimum, which was $1.50 I believe."

During an "extremely cold winter in 1929 our gas bill ran $10 one month. I don't remember about the electric bill, but it wasn't much because we had small bulbs in our light fixtures."

Remembering those days well, she says, "We raised chickens and hogs, had a milk cow and a garden" at their Floydada residence. "We got some vegetables out in the country to can."

Mrs. Warren "sewed and made the children's clothes. I did a little bit of sewing for the public, too. We sold milk, butter, sweetmilk and buttermilk."

The Depression years allowed for few luxuries, but "we were happy." She speaks fondly of her husband, who was claimed by death on Jan. 13, 1968.

"Alton, Audie and I are the only ones left," from her immediate family.

Duties at home allowed little time for other activities. A member of First Baptist Church, Mrs. Warren was a member of a Home Demonstration club at one time.

A few days shy of her 90th birthday, she is still active. "I have crocheted over 20 afghans in my lifetime," she says, "including two this summer."

Her sight, hearing and memory are exceptionally keen for her years. "I still drive my car," she says proudly. She also does her own shopping and goes to the beauty shop.

PHILOSOPHY ON LIFE
Her philosophy on life is best described in a poem authored by Amanda Bradley, entitled "The Art of Staying Young at Heart." The poem:

Sometimes we watch the days go by wishing they could last,

And we can't help but wonder why time must fly so fast,

But we can keep in memory happy moments left behind,

And we can keep our special dream of joys we hope to find.

And if we seek God's will through every day we live,

If we consider what we have as what we have to give,

If we will try to see some good in all that comes our way,

He will bless us with contentment at the end of every day—

And then we will have mastered that very special art

Of growing rich in happiness while staying young at heart.

WASHER PITCH — Competitors are gearing up for the washer pitch to be held at the Burleson Memorial Roping.

Washer pitch changed for Burleson Memorial event

The Burleson "clan" and "faithful friends and neighbors," who donate their time and talent, are going full speed to be ready for this year's "Memorial Roping" on July 24, 25 and 26 at Burleson Arena on Farm Road 2009, east of Flomot.

A different aspect at one of the several events, that take place during this last week-end of July at the Memorial Roping, is the washer pitch event. Any team that pitches will now qualify to participate in the World Championship Washer Pitch Tournament, to be held in October at Amarillo. Previously, the washer pitch at Burleson Memorial has not been a qualifying tournament.

Washer pitching is similar to pitching horseshoes and can build up as much excitement as one team, which is comprised of a two-member team, continues to eliminate one team after another.

Father and son, husband and wife, two females or two male teams are all in competition together. The two and one-half inch washers are pitched into three-inch cups that are flush with the round. Teams build to a score of 21 points.

"This is an event that all ages can participate in and have a good time," sponsors point out. Belt buckles go to each member of the winning team and prize money goes to other competitors.

Other activities scheduled to take place during the week-end are:

Friday — Cutting horse, three divisions (ranch, notice and open) with entry books opening at 10 a.m. and cutting beginning at 11 a.m.

Saturday — Youth horse events with books opening at 8 a.m. and beginning at 9 a.m. There are three age divisions, and the youth do not have to be members of 4-H to participate. Team roping books open at 10 a.m. and the ropings are scheduled to begin at noon. The washer pitching begins at 9 a.m. under the hay barn and the art show gets underway at the "old barn."

Sunday — Team penning begins at 8 a.m. Introduction of pasture roping teams will be at noon and the roping begins at 1 p.m. The drawing will take place at 3 p.m. for the horse and filly colts.

Gate admission is $2 each day or $3 for three days. All profits go to the scholarship fund of the Ranch and Feedlot course at Clarendon Jr. College.

DEDICATED TO FOUR
As the name implies, Burleson Memorial proceeds benefit the scholarship fund of the Ranch and Feedlot Operations course at Clarendon Junior College. This year's benefit is being dedicated to the memory of Jack C. Lackey, H.B. (Jack) Johnson, John Barnhill and Eliza Jones.

"It is with appreciation that we want to remember these people who were supporters of the Memorial," the Burlesons say.

They add, "This three-day week-end of events — cutting horses, youth horse activities, washer pitching, western art, team penning, pasture roping and the drawings for horse and filly colts — could not be possible without the support, donations of time and talent of neighbors and so many friends to make it a success."

The three days of activities begin Friday, July 24, and go through Sunday, July 26 at the Burleson Arena.

$3,000 given away during three days

A total of $3,000 will be given away during the three days of events that are scheduled to take place at the Burleson Memorial Roping on July 24, 25 and 26. Burleson Arena headquarters are located on Farm Road 2009, east of Flomot.

The western art show, coordinated by Jo Goen, will again be held in the "old barn" at headquarters beginning at 10 a.m. and going all day Saturday. Penny Golightly, Margaret Calahan, Jack Robertson and Jo Goen are local artists participating this year.

Other area artists at the "old barn" will be June Keltz of Matador, Christeen Robertson of Flomot, Ruth Barnett of Hale Center, Vicki Digs of Tahoka, Billie Byrd of Petersburg and Buster Jones of Lubbock.

Art work on display will be available for purchase.

Ten inmates

Ten inmates were incarcerated in Floyd County Jail Monday morning after "one or two" had been released on both Saturday and Sunday.

No major incidents have been reported to the Sheriff's Department in recent days.

Still under investigation is an incident in which a juvenile was injured in a shooting last week. It involved two juveniles. The shooting "probably will be ruled accidental." The Hesperian was told.

55th ANNIVERSARY — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hamm of South Plains celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary on July 3, hosted by their daughter, Dena and her husband, Dr. Thomas B. Aufdemorte at their home in San Antonio. Other daughters with husbands and children present were: Annelda Staples from South Plains, Jeaneva Huff from Amarillo and Arlene Berkes from Arlington, Texas. They were entertained with dinner on their anniversary at the London Steak House in San Antonio, and with a private swimming party for the family on the 4th of July.

Leslie Soto named Lubbock High head baseball coach

Leslie Soto captured numerous football and track honors while studying at Floydada High School and earned all-American honors at South Plains College and Wayland Baptist University in both shot put and discus throw.

But his first love was always baseball. The former whirlwind athlete was elated when he was offered the assistant baseball coaching position at Lubbock High prior to the 1984-85 school year.

He was even more happy late last week when the 29-year-old Floydada High School graduate was announced as head baseball coach at Lubbock High School.

Soto replaces Rob Buffa, who opted to become a full-time assistant football coach for the Westerners after guiding the school's baseball fortunes for six seasons.

"Baseball has always really been my first love," Soto admits. "If there had been baseball in high school in Floydada, I probably would have played baseball and forgotten track. It's just a situation where I excelled in track and it put me through school."

"I did coach track at Muleshoe and my first year here at Lubbock High. Then the position (to assist Buffa) opened up to where I could move to baseball and I did."

Buffa said his move to football assistant also was in pursuit of a lifelong dream. He hopes this opens the door for him to become a head football coach.

Soto guided the Westerners baseball team for several games early in the 1985 season when Buffa was bothered with chronic migraine cluster headaches.

"It was a situation where I was just in the right place at the right time," Soto says. "I'm pleased that they were confident enough in me to give me the job."

Four Floydada girls compete at Cottle County

Four Floydada youngsters displayed their rodeo skills at the Cottle County Junior Rodeo in Paducah last Friday and Saturday, July 10-11. Competing in several events, Kerrie Pitts earned a first place finish in goat tying, a second in barrels and a second in poles. She is the daughter of Kenneth and Vickie Pitts.

Daralyn Williams, daughter of Sue and Leon Williams, garnered a first in goat tying, a second in poles, a second in barrels and a second in steer daubing. Her sister, Kimber Williams, earned a fourth in poles, a fifth in goat tying and a sixth in steer daubing.

Completing the foursome, Branda Breed, daughter of Joe Mack and Debbie Breed, racked up a first place in barrels, a first in steer daubing and won the girls all-around award for the weekend event.

The family includes descendants of the late Mr. and Mrs. R.E. Warren.

Guests were registered by Flora Warren. Guests were handed an information sheet to complete about themselves, their family and "important, funny and I-remember-when items."

A contest was held to determine which person could get the most autographs. Bobby Britton won the prize of a cake baked by Flora Warren for securing 55 autographs.

The Rev. Ricky Johnson, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, led the invocation.

A buffet dinner was served to: Irene Britton and June Ellis, Crosbyton; Bobby and Dorothy Britton, Delwin and Darcy Britton, Earth; Bill, Ann and Danel Warren, Dumas; Fred and Betty Ritchey, Cindy, Becky, Racheal, Nathan Davis, Fred and Gail Ritchey Jr., all of Longview; Mazzie Ellis, Cantonment, Florida; Paula Ellis Nightbert and Maynard Nightbert, both of Hilliard, Florida;

Also, Nina Wright and Bill Wright, Ralls; Teri Dewey, Doris Colwell, Tommie Dewey, Barbara, Julia, Rodney Campbell, all of Artesia, N.M.; Y.E. and Alene McAdams, John and Nancy Warren, Randell and Alene Warren, all of Lubbock; Mitchell Britton, Wolforth; ia Johnson, all of Plainview; Bud and Bo Warren, Flora Warren, Gordon and Darlynn Hambright, Ethel Warren, Dorcie and Mary Lee Warren, Leona Warren, Jerry and Ginger Warren and Elvis Warren, all of Floydada.

Flora Warren presented each woman attending a crocheted dust buster and asserole lid cover. Alene McAdams gave each man attending a crocheted weather forecaster. Each of the hostesses compiled a cookbook of favorite recipes of the Warren relatives and presented the cookbook to the women. Cover of the book was a picture of the Warren coat of arms.

A birthday cake bearing 90 candles was presented to Flora Warren as the group sang "Happy Birthday."

Leona Warren played religious selections. Bud Warren led the benediction before the group formed a circle, joined hands and sang "Til We Meet Again."

Saturday chase leads to arrest

A police officer had answered a call in the 800 block of West Ross about 11:30 p.m. Saturday when a vehicle passed at "a high rate of speed." The officer pursued the vehicle for several blocks through streets and alleys before stopping the car in the 600 block of West California.

Lorenzo Hernandez was cited for evading arrest and DWI. He was driving a 1979 Ford LTD at the time.

In another Saturday mishap, a six-year-old girl was "extremely lucky" to escape serious injuries in a traffic mishap. According to Sgt. Harold Snell, Jamie Dumas of 507 W. Grover was injured when she "rode the bike" into the street in front of a 1979 Pontiac driven by Leif Younger of Floydada.

According to Snell, the child was knocked away from the bicycle. The bike was "thrown under the car" in the 7:05 accident.

The girl, who suffered "scratches and bruises," was taken to Caprock Hospital by her mother and was transferred to a Lubbock hospital. She reportedly was kept overnight for observation and released from the hospital the following day.

No citations were issued.

In a minor traffic accident at 2:05 p.m. Friday in the 100 block of East Missouri no one was injured. A 1973 Chevrolet driven by Dominga Sustaita of Lockney was backing when it struck in the right quarter a 1976 Ford driven by Guadalupe Blakey. Both vehicles were able to be driven away.

The police department was notified on July 10 (Friday) of a child swing set having been stolen on "July 2nd or 3rd." The swing set was located at a residence on East Georgia. The alleged theft occurred outside the city limits and was turned over to the sheriff's department for investigation.

Police answered other calls during the week which did not require offense reports.

Viewing life from the edge

By Worth Howard

Knowing now that I will not live to be old, old and sitting in a rest home somewhere waiting for death since I have a terminal illness. I have to face the reality of this. I am sharing my thoughts in this more as a gift to my family.

I want to clarify that term "family". Today, family does not mean the blood relatives that we have. It is all of our friends, neighbors, members of our church family, everyone who loves and cares for us and touches our lives.

I have always known that life was very transitory, but now each day as I travel through it holds a special poignancy. I look at the fields and the plains which I have loved so well, the lacy green of the mesquite, the sound of the mourning doves, and I feel so close to my extended family.

Those who send lunches from the Senior Center Care Center and the people who are close to me, the long distance calls from friends in Soda Springs, Idaho, and those out on the reservation.

Yesterday I gave away my coat. I called it my reservation coat knowing that I will never return to the Navaho. Five of my friends came from the Navajo reservation traveling all one day from Phoenix, and my friend in leaving me said, "When I think of you, I think of you with tears." It is so great to have been loved and to have loved.

My past history means that I survived the five years since the operation for cancer. I don't like that word "cancer" or "malignancy." I would rather have a tumor, because sometimes tumors are benign. After many weeks of extensive chemotherapy. I found that the shingles interfered so I could no longer take the chemo. But the chemo never did bother me.

It turns most people inside out, but I took it with no feeling whatsoever; however, it was destroying the veins so after the shingles interfered I had to remove the catheter that was feeding the chemo into my veins and it was killing good cells as well as bad. I think I can understand someone who refuses to have anything done; however, I have seen in a close family member death and dying and cancer is a hard death, so therefore, I was a fighter.

I have been fighting and will continue to fight, but I may as well face the reality of making my plans. From an article that appeared in the Anglican Digest called "A Goal for the Dying and Care of the Living," Tasha Ann writes:

Number One is to help your family understand your decisions. You should see what options you have and try to figure out if you will go to a nursing home, hospital, stay with relatives or relatives stay with you. The hospice is a new concept in many communities.

In Plainview, St. Mark's has a hospice. There is a hospice in St. Anthony's in Amarillo. The hospice allows you to stay home for as long as possible with the help of a person or a group of persons that provide primary care. It provides support medically and emotionally.

I have always loved this old house that I live in. I don't think I have ever failed to enter it that I didn't thank God for giving it to me. It is a gracious old house with nine-foot ceilings. It is a very old house; I am sure it is over sixty-eight years old because it was here when I was a child.

I have talked with my family and wanted to relieve them of the concern, "Am I doing what she wants?" and "Am I making the right choice?" Now families need some period of saying good bye and a period of closure in your final stage. You must give your family the chance to bind together. It is most important because when death comes, they will need each other for support through the grief period so you should make an effort to have the family be together if that is possible and the logistics of the situation does not keep you from being together.

There is no agenda for dying. Tomorrow my family leaves for Europe to meet my grandson, but praise God he will be coming to me July 30 and stay until August 7. And that is just every day that I am counting that I can be with him and give him all my books and my blessing, a sense of saying good bye.

It isn't everybody that gets to say good bye. Just to stand by and wait would be destructive of energy, and I have given them permission. I don't want them to have any feeling of guilt for them to go on with their own lives. Sometime separations occur when one knows that one will be leaving and that it is terminal.

I have seen that happen in school. When I was teaching second grade, a little boy was beginning to realize that I wouldn't be a part of his life the next year, and he said, "I wish you were smart enough to go on to the third grade." It is true that these children have to make a break so they will be ready for the next year.

The third point is to let your family see that you can really be constructive and that is what I am trying to do. I have put off a lot of times doing things that were important to me and put my needs below someone else. If we could only feel that we had completed our work on earth. I guess it is only our Lord who could say, "It is finished."

There needs to be a sense of closure or completion to your life. My daughter had said she just knew God would not take me until, as she put it, "the Karma is finished" or whatever the destiny was. I wish that I could have written more.

It is very frustrating that I can no longer use my right hand and I guess the Lord is teaching me one of the gifts of the Spirit which is patience. I have been such an impatient person all my life with a great energy and wanting it done yesterday.

I am planning my own funeral because as a Christian - I am an Episcopalian - believe in Jesus' promise of life after death and so does my family, thank God. I have asked that they take communion at my funeral and if I were to die while they were overseas, I would have a St. Mark's Episcopal funeral in Plainview where Father Mark Myer has been so supportive.

I have chosen what I want done and how I want it conducted, and if they were gone and I died, I would want a memorial service at the First United Methodist Church here with all of my Black friends in attendance. I can just hear Ernestine and LaVada singing "Amazing Grace" in the Black style.

Of course, doctors are only human and they can't tell all the ramifications of an illness, but one must blame the doctors because the blood clot broke off and caused this swelling and horrible pain. I am never without pain, but I don't want to punish anyone with guilt for feeling they were responsible for something they did or did not do.

I wish to give a real gift to those I love and care for. Any help I can give is sort of a dignified way to go out. The Negroes have a spiritual called "Some day I will press the dying pillow and I want to be ready."

There are many things in my life which I feel wherein I have failed. I have not paid tithes and vows as I should, but I did give of my time and talent. I did bring up my daughter in the faith and fear, and I thank my Mother so many times that she brought me up with a religious background. From the time I was on the cradle roll, we were always in church, she gave me that Christian background.

This is not giving up. I have this friend who wrote me this beautiful card which said, "Keep fighting" and I hope I have fought the good fight with the help of all these friends who have been so caring and loving and so compassionate. That is the beauty of living in a community where people know and care for you, and if your prayers are not answered that I am healed, please understand that I am in the permissive will of God - perhaps not the perfect will of God.

Life is so precious and there is such caring for each human being, but life is so precious - each day. Sweet Jesus, let me just live for this day.

Recent research came out with the startling information that "a child that is born today, one in three will contract cancer and one in five will die from this disease", so those of us who realize that we don't know how much longer we can wait for the right solution to this, but I pray to God that it is conquered before any of my children or their children have to face the pain and the agony of this insidious disease.

Letter to a Grandson - From every loving Gran' merry:

For whom the bell tolls

Through the winter of 1623, the Rev. John Donne was ill previous ones being his "natural birth" and his "supernatural birth" as a minister. Each of the twenty-three stages of his illness became basis for a Devotion, consisting of Meditation, Espostulation, and Prayer. In them, the tolling of a bell, the sign of death, plays an important part. "Meditation 16" is especially concerned with bells. Later, in a sermon preached in 1628, he asked, "Is there any thinking man that in his chamber hears a bell tolling for another man and does with so violent a fever that upon recovery he claimed a third birth, the not kneel down to pray for that dying man?" In "Meditation 17," it is the brotherhood of man that concerns Dr. Donne. That is why Ernest Hemingway (1898-1961) chose from it the title For Whom the Bell Tolls for his 1940 novel. What happened in Spain three years earlier was part of that crisis of the modern world in which we all have a share. Dr. Donne, stressing the dependence of each man on all his fellows, wrote:

"No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main; if a clod be washed away by the sea, Europe is the less, as well as if a promontory were...Any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind; and therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee."

If all I had to do was die, that would be simple, but I still have many irons in the fire. As usual, I am riding my horse off in all directions.

Worth, just heard from the reservation this morning. Madge Segodi, a Navajo friend, is going to try to come to see me. As you will remember, I was the first white person who was voted the president of the Good Shepherd Episcopal Church Women.

Make love your aim. I have loved and been loved. (Matthew 22:37-39); (Mark 12:30-31)

Square Dance News

Whirlers Square Dance Club will have a workshop again next Thursday, July 23 after a three-week vacation from the Thursday practice sessions.

Club caller Sid Perkins will return from a calling engagement at Fun Valley to call the regular club dance Saturday night, July 18 and conduct the workshop.

Whirlers Paul and Zora Reece and Bill and Mary Louise McCarter enjoyed Sid's calling at the Colorado square dance resort.

Jim and Carol Huggins returned last week from a square dance vacation to Houston and Red River, N.M. They joined more than 20,000 other dancers for the 36th National Square Dance Convention at the Astrodome complex, then cooled off in the mountains, squaring up at the community house in Red River. Highlight of the Houston convention was the Parade of States and dance tips in the Astrodome, billed as the "largest square dance ever under one roof."

The Lockney couple also spent time in Austin, Galveston and Raton, N.M. Children Danny and Melanie went with them to New Mexico.

'A Distant Thunder' to be shown at Abundant Life

"A Distant Thunder," a Mark IV Pictures Incorporated production, will be presented by Abundant Life Fellowship Assembly of God on July 19 at 6:00 p.m. at Abundant Life.

"A Distant Thunder," a seventy-eight minute color film, is a sequel to Mark IV Pictures' 1973 release, "A Thief In The Night." — It begins where "A Thief In The Night" ended.

Patty, the leading character in "A Thief In The Night," is among a large number of people held prisoner because they have not received the Mark of the Beast. Since the day Patty awoke and found Jim, her husband, had disappeared, she has suffered grief, loneliness, hunger, and fear because of the Evil One that works for the control of the world. Patty and her two friends, Wenda and Sandy escape the attention of the authorities for a time. When Wenda and Sandy attempt to help an elderly man, they are arrested by an armed patrol. The girls succeed in warning Patty that their hiding place has been discovered. Patty makes a daring attempt to outwit the soldiers sent to seize her. Audiences are thoroughly engrossed with her predicament.

The film answers many of the questions raised by other recent motion pictures. Events foretold in the Bible as part of the Great Tribulation are vividly portrayed in "A Distant Thunder." You will remember this film as long as you live...perhaps forever!

Dead litter needed

Charles Schur, soil conservationist with the Floyd County Soil Conservation Service, stated this week that a dead litter cover crop must be drilled on Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) acreage by August 1, 1987. Many now have the moisture to drill the crop and it needs to be done now.

The land needs to be prepared as clean as possible before milo is drilled at 10 pounds per acre or forage sorghum at 8 pounds per acre.

Herbicides to control weeds in this cover crop can also be cost shared.

Schur went on to point out that soil tests are needed, if fertilizer is needed it needs to be applied to the dead litter cover crop, if one does not get a test, a 40-40-0 mixture is required.

Again, Schur stated the August 1 deadline must be met by producers for this cover.

COTTON PROGRAM WORKING REMARKABLY WELL

Testifying at a Senate Agriculture Committee hearing on the farm program, National Cotton Council board member W.L. Carter Jr., said the cotton program is working remarkably well for both the industry and the government, and should be retained through 1991, the final year of the current farm law.

He said the program is meeting all of its major objectives.

"Both domestic and export markets are strong, expansion of foreign acreage has been stopped, and taxpayers are benefitting from the increased economic activity that has been generated by greater domestic production, sales, and mill consumption."

The Scotland Neck, N.C., producer also pointed out that cotton program costs for fiscal 1986 are down to 8 percent from their historic 10 percent average, and are expected to fall to 4 percent in the farm law's remaining years. "With current prices about 15 cents over loan price, deficiency payments are greatly reduced, there are no producer option payments, no first-handler certificates, and CCC loan activity is curtailed," Carter stated. "CCC-owned stocks have been eliminated, and what few bales are acquired are bought up immediately by the trade."

COTTON TRADE TEAM OFF TO FAR EAST

The first of three Cotton Council International trade teams is in the Far East for a two-week sales mission to customers of U.S. cotton in Japan, Hong Kong, Indonesia and Philippines.

Down on the FARM WATCH UP FOR POWER LINES

Power lines can be dangerous.

Touching irrigation pipe to a power line can divert the electricity through the pipe... and to anyone in contact with it. In this part of the country, this is the leading cause of farm injuries and deaths in electricity-related accidents. Any equipment of unusual height represents a potential danger. Lift arms on field equipment, combine auger spouts and even radio antennas can cause serious injury or death if they, and you, make contact with a power line.

Keep an eye up for power lines. Watch up, for safety's sake.

Watch for stress signs in cotton

Cotton producers should watch their crop for signs of water stress and should prepare to irrigate if these signs arise, a Texas Tech crop physiology professor warns.

Dr. Dan Krieg of Tech's Plant and Soil Science department advises farmers that recent hot and dry conditions are causing each cotton plant to consume between one-tenth and fifteen hundredths of an inch of water daily. He added that there needs to be an ample supply of moisture in the 12 to 18 inch soil level to combat plant stressing.

"Our late May cotton is very sick since there is a very shallow root system, and it will need a lot of tender loving care. The late May cotton is squaring nicely, and the June cotton is going to square this week—right on schedule. It looks like we have a good chance for an above average yield for the June-planted cotton crop, provided the producers do not let it suffer from early season water stress," he said.

Krieg noted that water stress will restrict the number of fruiting sites as well as cause young squares to shed.

Loss of these first squares is the same as losing 14 days of the growing season and a large portion of the potential yield, he said.

"There is a myth in the area that the farmer should hold off irrigating until the first flowering. If water stress occurs before the first flowering, then the young growth will shed when irrigation does occur. The plant will set new fruit, but we will have a late crop. There just isn't enough heat units and radiation in late September and early October to bring the late-setting crop to maturity. We need to hold the first fruit sets if possible," he said.

Proper irrigation and the addition of nitrogen to the soil may help eliminate stress to the developing cotton plant.

Krieg suggests that furrow irrigators water every other row and push the water fast in order to get the surface foot wet. Those individuals with center pivot systems need to give their crops a one and a half inch application, he said. "If the cotton hasn't received one and a half inches of rain within the past 10 days, the producer probably needs to irrigate now," he said.

Also, he noted that 10 pounds of nitrogen should be applied for every inch of water distributed. The young growth will shed if adequate nitrogen is not available.

For additional information on water use efficiency for maximum yield, contact the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 at 2930 Avenue Q in Lubbock or call 762-0181.

EXAMINE YOURSELF FOR SKIN CANCER

Prolonged overexposure to the sun's rays may lead to skin cancer, and like all other cancers it's important to detect it early. This can be done with a simple self-examination. "Self-examination for skin cancer is painless, cheap, and gets less time consuming the more often it is done," Dr. Mary Ann Heussner, a health education specialist with the Agricultural Extension Service says.

"It's an easy way to catch the disease in its early stages, when it is easier to cure." According to the American Cancer Society, over 400,000 cases of skin cancer are reported each year. An estimated 7,400 of these cases prove to be fatal. "There are a few different warning signs to look for," the specialist says. "Look for changes in the size or color of moles, and the appearance of any new skin growths or patches of dark pigmentation. If you find any of these, consult with your physician immediately."

Conservation reserve may be farmers' best bet from highly erodible cropland

Next CRP signing scheduled July 20-31

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Conservation Reserve Program may be farmers' best bet to make a profit on highly erodible cropland and defray some of the cost of conservation.

"According to USDA rules, compliance with the conservation provisions of the 1985 Food Security Act requires farmers who plan to cultivate highly erodible cropland after January 1, 1990, to develop a conservation plan by 1990," says Jon J. LaBaume, district conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service in Floyd County.

"They must also protect their land against soil erosion with applied conservation practices by 1995 if they want to participate in USDA programs. These practices may include conservation tillage systems, terraces, grassed waterways, stripcropping, or other practices," he adds.

CRP offers farmers cost sharing and annual rental payments to convert this highly erodible cropland to permanent vegetation, and a chance to bypass expensive conservation treatment, retain eligibility for USDA programs, and ensure a return on this land.

"Most land fitting the highly erodible criteria is not only difficult to protect against erosion, but often produces poor crop yields and has a low profit potential," LaBaume says. "Most times, payments provided under the Conservation Reserve Program offer farmers greater rates of return to this land."

Under the CRP, farmers receive cost sharing to establish grass, trees, or wildlife plantings on highly erodible cropland. Cost sharing is provided for 50 percent of eligible costs of establishment. Annual rental payments are bid by the farmer and extend for 10 years, the length of the CRP contract. The permanent vegetation must be maintained during this time, and harvesting will not be permitted.

The Conservation Reserve is authorized by Congress to continue until 1990, a total of five years, as long as funds are appropriated. Currently, funds have been appropriated through September of this year.

In the last four months, farmers submitted bids on a total of 2.3 million acres in Texas, and 42,724.8 acres are now in contract in Floyd County.

A fifth CRP sign-up period has been announced by the secretary to begin July 20 and end July 31, 1987. Sign-up will be at the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office located at Floydada.

LaBaume says that all programs and service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture are provided without regard to race, color, national origin, sex, age, handicap, religion, or marital status.

Survey to focus on Texas producers, lenders

Upcoming surveys of Texas producers and agricultural lenders are aimed at learning more about current lending practices as well as farmers' attitudes on risk management strategies.

The two surveys are a cooperative effort of staff members of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and should provide the basis for future programming efforts to help producers deal with such key issues as diversification, competitiveness and profitability, and financial planning and management.

A special grant to the Texas A&M University System is supporting the two surveys.

Questionnaires will be sent to some 500 agricultural lenders and to about 2,500 producers in these production regions: Panhandle, Cross Timbers, Central Texas Blacklands, Upper Coast and Coastal Bend. Although the Cross Timbers Region is being surveyed now, the survey of the remaining regions is scheduled to begin about July 10.

"The surveys are aimed at obtaining current information regarding lending policies and producers' attitudes about alternative risk management strategies," points out Dr. Ashley Lovell of Stephenville, Extension Service economist who is assisting with the study.

"We want to determine the extent to which lenders influence the decision-making process of agricultural producers," notes Lovell. "To what extent are lenders' policies limiting the amount of funds provided for buying inputs such as fertilizer, herbicide, insecticide, seed and crop insurance? Policies regarding forward contracting or hedging the selling price of commodities as well as emphasis on enterprise diversification and farm program participation also enter into the total risk management picture."

According to Lovell, the array of risk management choices that some producers have are dependent upon lender policies, and these policies have a major impact on how successful farm managers are in earning profits to handle debt for financing their operations. And due to the risk associated with increased use of debt, many agricultural lenders are continuing to review and modify their policies.

"It's important that we get a better understanding of the perceptions as well as the realities of producers' and lenders' roles in risk management choices so that we can better direct educational efforts toward assisting both of these groups," says Lovell.

Information from the producers' survey should help producers in the use of alternative risk management strategies, the economist points out. On the other hand, the results of the lenders' survey should contribute to a better understanding of lending policies in the current agricultural climate and emerging changes in lending practices.

Directors of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. on July 8 adopted a $256,750 budget for the organization's 1987-88 fiscal year ending June 30, 1988. The figure constitutes an 11.25 percent cut from the $289,300 budget for 1986-87, and comes on top of a 14 percent reduction made that year.

Taking a sharp knife to the budget, according to Secretary-Treasurer and Finance Committee Chairman Larry Nelson of Tulia, has been necessary to bring expenditures into balance with PCG's expected annual income of about $250,000. About 85 percent of the 25-county service organization's financing comes from 25 cents per bale producer dues. The remainder is paid by oil mills, compresses, banks and other cotton-related businesses either directly or indirectly affected by the volume of High Plains production. Thus the organization's revenue has been hard hit since 1981 by an average of only 1.6 million bales from the High Plains 25 counties through 1986, compared to a previous five-year average of 2.7 million, Nelson pointed out. "We can expect good years and bad years," he told the board, "but we can continue to survive the bad years if we follow the example set by previous boards and add to our reserves on good years."

Among other actions the board developed comment urging several changes in USDA's recently proposed regulations regarding discretionary disaster payments authorized by the 1985 Food Security Act. Unless revisions are made, directors agreed, it would be difficult if not impossible for any country or any producer to qualify for such a program if one were announced.

The PCG board also added its voice to a growing roar of protest against the six percent tax on insurance premiums approved by the Texas House of Representatives July 2. PCG President Myrl D. Mitchell's statement that such a tax would be "totally unfair" met unanimous approval. Mitchell is a cotton producer and ginner from Leno-ran in Martin County.

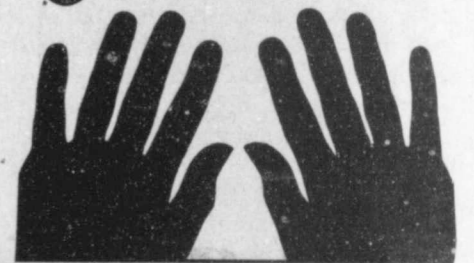

One new member, Jarrell Edwards of Lamesa. Re-elected to the committee were Bert Williams of Farwell, Bennie Claunch of Bula, Henry Kveton of Petersburg, Randy Arnold of Spur, and D.C. Newson, Jr. of Plains. Automatically on the committee under PCG by-laws are elected officers and the two most recent past presidents. They include President Mitchell, Vice President Steve Verett of Ralls, Nelson, and past presidents Tommy Fondren of Lorenzo and Gerald Caswell of Brownfield.

Two new members were chosen for the PCG Nominating Committee. Nelson, who as an officer is no longer eligible, was replaced by Arnold, and Wayne Huffaker of Tahoka was elected in place of Kenneth Wofford of Lockney. Re-elected were Jones and Kveton. Elected members will serve with the three most immediate past presidents, Fondren, Caswell and Gary Ivey of Ralls.

After adjournment of the official meeting, directors stayed for a discussion of the new conservation compliance provisions of the current farm law. Leading the discussion were Soil Conservationist Coy Garrett of Temple, Area vationist Coy Garrett of Temple, Area Conservationist Mickey Black, Soil Scientist Dan Blackstock and Conservation Agronomist Monty Dollar, all of Lubbock.

FOR ADULTS ONLY: Why Some God-Fearing Folk Are So Frightening

Phyllis Schlafly, a rather well known Catholic whose comments on complex matters are noted for their simplicity, has been quoted as saying that the dread disease, AIDS, is "God's punishment of the sinners" who contract it. Even less excusable is a statement made by an American Cardinal of the Church (and other preachers of the Good News) that says substantially the same thing. What, one might ask, has become of the principle that one should hate the sin but love the sinner? Is AIDS God's punishment for the sins of the homosexual, for example? To those cheerful souls who claim that AIDS is a punishment of God on the sin of sodomy, I respectfully respond that such a God is not the God I believe in and not the God that Jesus revealed. Venerably transmitted disease is a divine punishment for sexual promiscuity in the same sense that cancer and heart disease are divine punishments for cigarette smoking, or cirrhosis of the liver, a divine punishment for excessive alcohol consumption, or indigestion for too much eating, or runner's knee for jogging, or swimmer's ear for swimming: if you do certain things to the human organism, certain effects may follow. THAT'S GOOD BIOLOGY, NOT THEOLOGY! This is the Father of Jesus? The God Jesus compares with a nursing mother? You've gotta be kidding! If God is out to do in gay people, why don't they all get the disease; and if He's interested in punishing them, then why do others, utterly innocent of objectionable behavior, also contract the disease? Some hemophiliacs, who required periodic blood transfusions, became ill with AIDS. Other innocent victims are babies born of AIDS-afflicted mothers; and, as the epidemic spreads, a geometrically increasing number of heterosexuals are contracting the disease. Pretty inept, God, huh? The only proper Christian response to the AIDS epidemic is a passionate desire to heal the sick, just as Jesus did. That translates into a maximum effort to find a preventive and/or cure for this deadly infection as soon as possible. And any other posture is an insult to Jesus and unworthy of the name "Christian". I never cease to be amazed at those God-fearing folk who quote the Scriptures without regard to any context and who gather various statements, particularly from the Old Testament, and then the words and the life of Jesus (who is fulfillment) are utterly lost—He might as well not have come. It is for a very good symbolic reason that Catholic Christians stand for the Gospel (and sit through the other readings), standing for the Gospel acknowledging that all other Scripture and the preceding history of salvation must be interpreted in light of Him.

Also, David R. Carlin, Jr. takes to task America's preoccupation with the condom (remember this is for adults only) as the solution to the AIDS crisis. (Commonweal, 3/13/87): "The present moment of the AIDS crisis might be titled: 'by condoms we shall be saved'. If only Americans would get in the habit of wearing condoms while engaged in sexual intercourse; if only we could remove ridiculous taboos against advertising for condoms, thereby unleashing those great public health educators — the condom manufacturers; if only we could go into the high schools, junior highs, and grade schools of America to teach our dear children the dangers of unsafe sex and the merits of condom use; if only we could do all these things, why, then, our problems would be largely solved. When the Angel of Death visits our streets, he will pass over our household if we post evidence on our doorways that we own a six month supply of condoms and have successfully completed a course on instructions of how to use them."

Mr. Carlin suspects, however, that few people really believe this. Rather, he blames the atmosphere on "intellectual cowardice and dishonesty." If this disease did not have sexual associations, especially homosexual or gay rights associations, certain perfectly obvious public health steps would have been taken by now. We would have wide-spread and semi-compulsory blood tests as prerequisites for marriage license, for all hospital in-patients, for all persons being treated for sexually transmitted diseases, and for all drug-rehab clients).

There are four interest groups preventing such measures (and note the position of the Surgeon General of the United States and of the American Medical Society who have opposed the above examples in great part) - and these four interest groups are: the "Gay Rights Movement"; "Sex Education Enthusiasts"; "a certain kind of civil libertarian"; and "certain Christians with over-developed organs of compassion and under-developed organs of good judgement". Mr. Carlin concludes, "and what about the rest of us — those who do not belong to any of the above groups, yet have been unwilling to call for obvious health steps?" We are the intellectual cowards I mentioned above. We know what needs to be done, but we fear being called anti-gay or homophobic or intolerant or puritanical or sexually unenlightened or conservative or Falwell-ish or lacking in Christian charity. Better that millions should be infected and die than that we should suffer the anguish of having such dreadful adjectives hurled at us. Alcohol and drug misuse, war - with its nuclear potential, and AIDS present us, as a society, a splendid opportunity to save our soul; to confront these problems in a tough way but with love, precisely as Christians. The last thing we need in all of this is to be judgmental or condemnatory. What, one may ask again, has become of the principle that one should hate the sin and the evil but love the sinner? Much hypocrisy, of course, has been propounded in the name of that principle; but anything less than adherence to the second part of that principle would seem to be radically inconsistent with that great commandment: "Love thy neighbor as thyself." At times it seems like there are two epidemics: AIDS itself and the fear and bigotry it arouses.

City in sound financial condition, council informed

City council members were told by accountant Edd Henderson on Tuesday, July 14, that income derived from city utility operations and the city farm totaled $278,173.05 during the last budget year (April 1, 1986 to March 31, 1987).

Reporting on the findings of the latest city financial audit, Henderson told the group "You are in excellent financial shape and your overall position has improved during the past operating year in that your debts have decreased, your assets have increased and you are operating efficiently within the bounds of your budget."

Income derived from the Electric department (Floydada Power and Light) was calculated at $1,011,895.40 during the time frame examined. Expenses for the department totaled $840,911.22, leaving a profit of $170,984.18.

The water department brought in $430,462.74 while expending $411,602.37 in operating expense. Income from the sewer department was $120,137.84 and expenditures totaled $87,146.74. The city earned $12,215.93 and operating expenses were set at $1,584.69.

Other income, expenses, assets and liabilities resulted in an overall balance sheet total of $6,052,639.19.

The audit report was reviewed and accepted by the Floydada city council as presented.

Consideration of the proposed Energas franchise ordinance was tabled at the request of an Energas official who stated, "As you know, we have only just received complete information concerning the changes your consultant suggested in the ordinance we submitted. Due to this, the franchise agreement has not been run before our people and we would like to ask that you delay any action on the ordinance until we have a chance to review it and see how your changes affect us."

Council members agreed to postpone action at this time.

Candice Woods from the Hale County State Bank in Plainview met with the council to discuss the possibility of Floydada becoming a participating city in the National Flood Insurance Program. "Lenders cannot lend money into an area with potential flood problems if flood insurance is not available to home owners," said Woods. She urged the city to make an application through the Texas Water Commission for participation in the program which would make flood insurance available to anyone seeking such coverage. "At this time, it is virtually impossible to insure a home in Floyd County against flood damage," said Woods.

A motion by Leroy Burns, seconded by Wayne Russell, was approved stating that "We will do whatever is necessary to become a participating city in the National Flood Insurance Program."

A request by Ray Macha for "some sort of assistance" in removing the foundation of a condemned house he contracted to demolish was denied on a motion by Burns, seconded by Don Green. Stated Burns, "He bid on the demolition and clearing of the lot. Now he needs to live up to his bargain."

Bids were opened on the proposed demolition of the Elijah Pleasant property on 403 E. Jackson. Five bids were received: Jesse Morales bid $500, Don Dysart bid $550, Van Moore bid $640, Wayne Bennett bid $400 and Vernon Wickware bid $400. A motion by Burns, seconded by Russell, awarded the demolition contract to Wayne Bennett.

Bob Gee from the Central Plains Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center in Plainview met with the council to make them aware of the services his facility provides for Floyd County residents and to ask their assistance in the possible location of work projects for his clients.

"We supervise crews in yard and building maintenance as well as in other types of work suitable for them. We bid jobs just as anyone else does and sometimes we are the low bidder and get the job, sometimes not," said Gee. "We would appreciate your keeping us in mind if you hear of anything we might be able to do in your area or if you hear of anything we might be able to take into the facility to be done by those who are not able to work outside the facility."

Council members considered a letter from County Judge Bill Hardin asking that the city increase the amount paid for a dispatcher by the recent increase in county rates for Blue Cross/Blue Shield insurance and that the city of Floydada split the cost of a jailer with the city of Lockney. A motion by Green, seconded by Burns, was approved granting the increase in funding for the dispatcher's insurance, but the council declined any action on the matter of a jailer.

Approval was given for sending the city attorney, city manager, engineer and water superintendent to Austin to attend a meeting of the Texas Water Commission should the need arise in connection with a recent application for an amendment to the city sewage disposal permit.

Also approved at the evening session was a charge of $10.00 to be assessed when a meter must be removed from a utility customer's pole because of non-payment. Utility cutoffs are currently charged $5.00 for a cutoff performed during working hours. The additional $10 charge will be added to the $5 charge if meter removal is necessary in order to encourage the customer to pay an overdue bill.

The measure was approved on a motion by Green, seconded by Ginger Warren.

Updating service credit and annuity increase for employee retirement for the year 1988 was authorized. The updated plan will require the employee to pay 5 percent in contributions while the city adds a 6.94 percent contribution.

The council approved funding an additional $4500 for alley improvement. The money will be used to purchase gravel and smooth out alleys around the city according to City Manager Bill Feuerbacher.

Ricky Burns, J. Royce Bradshaw and

Monte Williams were each appointed to an additional two year term on the Planning and Zoning Commission. The term will expire July 1, 1989.

Payment of the next installment on the Currington Plumbing and Ditching contract for water improvement construction was recommended by the city engineer and approved by the council. Feuerbacher reported that the work on the water improvement project is "moving along well and should be completed on schedule."

In the final action of the evening, council members approved a funding of $1800 for three volunteer firemen to attend a week-long school at Texas A&M. The yearly school is a necessity for the city to retain its key rate for insurance purposes.

Attending the regular July session were council members Wayne Russell, Leroy Burns, Don Green, Ginger Warren and Nancy Willson. Councilman Frank Breed was not able to attend. Also present were Mayor Parnell Powell, City Manager Bill Feuerbacher, City Secretary Jimmie Lou Stewart, City Attorney Steve Hale and the Hesperian reporter.

Stork outraces ambulance

Stephanie Renee Flores born in Lorenzo convenience store parking lot

Stephanie Renee Flores undoubtedly has the only birth certificate which lists "Place of Birth" as "Parking Lot, Allsup's Store, Lorenzo, Texas."

And the one-week-old Floydada infant was delivered by "Doctor Nagar." That "doctor" really is not doctor, rather than the infant's grandmother: Betty Nagar.

Add to the drama of the convenience store birth and her grandmother serving as mid-wife the fact that the infant was two months earlier than expected.

The drama began Thursday night while Manuel and Betty Nagar — who were excited about the anticipated arrival of their first grandchild in "a couple of months" — were watching a softball tournament in their hometown of Plainview.

They were joined by the expectant mother, the Nagar's 16-year-old daughter Shondai Flores; her husband, Julio Flores Jr.; and his mother, Janie, from Floydada.

The future mother, who had suffered from bladder problems throughout her pregnancy, was planning to spend the night in Plainview with her parents. However, she was having pains and her mother decided to take her on to Lubbock General Hospital.

"She was a high risk patient because of her age, and she had to have a card to be admitted to the hospital and it was in Floydada," Mrs. Nagar explains.

Julio and Shondai started Floydada. Mrs. Nagar, a son, Jeffrey; and a niece, Suzy Nagar, followed in her auto.

When the Plainview trio arrived at the Flores residence in Floydada, the excitement accelerated. The Floreses met them and explained that Shondai was "bleeding."

"I knew the baby wasn't due yet," Mrs. Nagar explains, "but I got on the phone to the sheriff's office and told them to have the highway patrol meet us and to have an ambulance stand by somewhere on the highway from Ralls to Lubbock."

Little did she realize at this point that the stork would arrive ahead of the ambulance.

"I was driving 80-90 miles an hour but I didn't see anyone," the Plainview mother, who was about to become a grandmother, explains. "Shondai was screaming and I kept praying that everything would be OK. Finally, I pulled over to the side of the road and laid on the horn and the others (the son, niece, son-in-law and Janie Flores) got out and started to flag down a car. Some slowed down but nobody stopped. I guess they were afraid because we were acting so hysterical."

Mrs. Nagar told the others, "Ya'll pray hard. I'm going to stop at the first place where I see a light."

That light happened to be at the Allsup's store in Lorenzo. Mrs. Nagar told the convenience store clerk to call an ambulance. None of the three available ambulance attendants in Lorenzo at that time had experience at delivering a baby.

The radio dispatcher asked Betty Nagar if she knew "how to deliver a baby."

Mrs. Nagar responded negatively, but "I just said, 'Lord, just show me, just help me.'"

About 1 a.m. Friday the delivery was underway when Mrs. Nagar discovered that the umbilical cord was around the child's neck.

"I unwrapped the cord and cleaned out her mouth, but she was still choking. So I put my mouth over her nose and mouth and sucked twice, then I spanked her," the grandmother-doctor remembers.

"I put her inside my shirt to keep her warm and we put some blankets around her and the ambulance took her and my daughter on to Lubbock General," Mrs. Nagar says.

It was at the Lubbock hospital that she was bestowed the title of "Dr. Nagar" by more experienced doctors.

However, the grandmother confesses that she became ill when the impact of the hectic evening's events finally finally sank in.

Stephanie Renee Flores is "doing fine with no complications." And she was the lone infant in Lubbock General Hospital with an Allsup's parking lot in Lorenzo birth site.

purchased the gin for $15,000 and paid taxes of approximately $20,000 due

Adrain Helms, chairman of the CCCAD board, responded that "The state has an idea what property is valued at and we have to operate within the guidelines they set."

Chief Appraiser Shelia Faulkenberry explained that "Your gin is valued at a total of $220,000 and taxed at a rate of 50 percent good, resulting in a tax bill for 1987 of a little over $3,500."

The document states that "The taxable value of such property as determined by the Appraisal Review Board constitutes an unequal appraisal of Petitioner's (Marble Brothers Gin) property in comparison to the level of appraisals of other property in the appraisal district in a sum at least exceeding ten percent of the value calculated on the basis of the median level of appraisal of other properties in the district."

It continues: "Upon hearing, as provided by law, the Court should:

"(a) Fix the appraised value of the property and determine its true market value as of January 1, 1987, in accordance with the requirements of law; and

"(b) Enter such orders as may be necessary to insure equal treatment under the law for Petitioner with the taxable value of Petitioner's property to be calculated on the basis of the median level of appraisal of other properties in the district."

Graddy Tunnell of the Plainview law firm of LaFont, Tunnell, Formby, LaFont and Hamilton is representing Marble Brothers.
