established a definite policy regarding the facility, officials anticipate that visitors will be allowed two free nights, with a service charge after that point.

Tentative plans call for the facility to be used on a "first-come, first-served"

The local Whirlwind Good Sams travel club encouraged the city council to install such accomodations for the traveling public, according to Brown.

The city manager says the site is approximately 90 feet north-south and 150 feet east-west. City employees have greater student number this year. The exception is high school, which had 317 enrolled Friday compared with 327 on the same date last September.

Duncan Elementary counted 12 more pupils after one week this year, Andrews Elementary had plus eight and 17 more junior high students were enrolled

Sixth grade is the largest class, numbering 113 youngsters last Friday. Six Floydada classes had in excess of 100 students enrolled after the first week. In addition to sixth grade, these include: kindergarten (110), first grade (105), fourth grade (106), fifth grade (107) and seventh grade (111).

Supt. Cannon told The Hesperian that he excepts the enrollment to exceed the 1,300 plateau.

September 17, 1987, marks the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution. This document, which was later ratified by the states, was the first written constitution in the world-no other constitution has lasted as long. The nation's constitution is the cornerstone of American democracy and symbolizes national ideals of freedom, justice, equality and hope.

Floydada will celebrate the 200th anniversary of the Constitution with a special program and reception at the Floydada Masonic Lodge on Thursday, September 17.

The event will be co-hosted by the Floydada Lions Club (Steve Hale, president); Floydada Rotary Club (Monte Williams, president); Floydada American Legion Post No. 118 (Aldine Williams, commander); Buffalo Grass Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution (Eugenia Bethard, regent); and Floydada Lodge No. 712, A.F.&A.M. (Mike Hadderton, worshipful master).

Reminder: no 'old news' published

This newspaper's policy of not publishing items which happened over two weeks prior to the publication date - except in isolated instances (such as obituaries of former residents which may arrive beyond the appointed time frame) - has prompted several questions and a few complaints.

Most persons have understood the situation. The Hesperian reiterates that it sincerely wants ALL community However, all daily newspapers and many weeklies have long operated under rigid policies about 'old news." Most dailies will not publish articles concerning events three days in the past. The theory is that "old news is no news." The Hesperian staff realizes that readers have, in the past, been allowed to submit articles with little regard for time. This privilege was

Friday deadline for entries in SPS-sponsored coloring contest

Youngsters are reminded that this Friday, Sept. 11, is the final day to submit entries in the "Sparky's Safety Coloring Contest," sponsored by Southwestern Public Service Co.

Entries in the coloring contest, which is designed to "encourage electrical safety," may be turned in at the Floydada SPS office, 220 W. California; Kirk & Sons. 119 E. Missouri: or Perry's, 114 E. California. Extra copies also are available at these sites.

Lewis McDaniel, local SPS manager, says that the contest is divided into three age categories: six years and under, seven and eight years and nine years through fifth grade. Ages as of Sept. 1, 1987, apply.

Generous prizes will be awarded, McDaniel says. First, second and third place awards in each category will be $50, $25 and $10 gift certificates, respectively. The gift certificates may be redeemed at Perry Brothers or Kirk

Any medium may be used in coloring the page: crayons, oil paint, watercolors or others.

Entries will remain at the three stores prior to judging. Winners are to be selected by "an independent judge." McDaniel expects prizes to be awarded by Sept. 25.

Governor Self said he was representing Rotary International President Charles C. (Chuck) Keller. A video message from Keller was presented to the local club. Self termed this "the next best thing to a personal visit."

President Keller said global eradiction of polio within five years is "an achievable goal." Rotary International is seeking to raise $20 million for the campaign.

"Rotarians...united in service and dedicated to peace," is Keller's motto. He reminded Rotarians of the "Service Above Self' motto of the international organizational, which includes over 23,000 clubs in 160 countries.

"Service is the heartbeat of Rotary," the California, Pa., attorney stated in his video message.

Governor Self announced that a series of video tapes - released on alternate months - will keep Rotarians at the grassroots level informed about Rotary activities around the world.

He stressed that membership development is particularly important on the South Plains, where "area economic falloff" has caused a drop in member-

Beth Pratt recipient of communication award

Beth Pratt of Floydada, regional editor and staff writer for The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, has been named recipient of the 1987 Texas Baptist Communications Award.

The award, presented annually by the Baptist General Convention of Texas' Public Relations Advisory Committee, recognizes an individual from the communications media who has made an outstanding contribution to the religious life of Texas.

While the award selection committee considers from each nominee a broad range of supporting material, it was extensive and in-depth reporting of the farm crisis and her articles on the present crisis in television ministry.

The farm crisis report was a joint effort with The A-J's assistant farm editor, Kathleen Davis.

Mrs. Pratt will be honored at a reception in Lubbock on Oct. 15 and will receive the award at the Baptist General Convention's 102nd annual convention in Fort Worth in November.

The award recipient attributes her decision to major in journalism as the direct result of her five-year experience as a columnist for a publication produced by the Church Media Library Department of the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board.

Texas kicks its oil dependency

worthy of Rube Goldberg and the State Representative Eddie Cavazos, a than what Democratic leaders wanted. largest increase in state taxes in the nation's history, but Texas legislators finally adopted a spending and revenue blueprint that staved off financial chaos.

The bottom line for the 30-day special legislative session was the adoption, on the session's last day, of a $5.7 billion tax increase, to compensate for the drama, which unfolded for a year like a Conference of State Legislatures. slow-motion train wreck, was about much more than money.

The budget crisis of Texas reflected an economic shift away from oil and toward services, a political shift from a one-party state to two, a shift from a rural state indifferent to state services to an urban and suburban state dependent on them, and an increasingly diverse population. "What this whole session was all about was whether Texas was going to be like California or Mississippi," said Paul Burka, a senior editor of Texas Monthly magazine, whose ranking of state legislators has become a state institution. "The state is a mass of self-doubt for the first time in its history, and it decided on California, but not by much."

The question was how to cope with the fact that oil revenues no longer paid for state needs. The answer, approved in the kind of overheated atmosphere that ranks among the oddest moments in the Legislature's colorful history, was described this way by State Representative Tom Uher, a Democrat: "What we came up with is a patch on a patch. And sometimes it's using the wrong size inner tube."

The patchwork of taxes adopted last week did not fundamentally reorder the state's revenue system. But it raised just enough in sales taxes, taxes on business franchises and other levies, about two weeks before Texas was on the verge of running out of cash.

The gridlock was broken on Tuesday by a Byzantine resolution in the State House of Representatives that suspended the state Constitution and the rules of the House requiring a two-thirds vote to put a tax increase into immediate effect. Under the resolution, which required eight separate votes to finish, Republican legislators and other conservatives were able to vote against a tax increase while voting for the immediate implementation of the increase passed by majority vote.

At stake could be a powerful backlash in next year's elections against legislators who voted for taxes. Republicans, who have 56 of the 150 seats in the House, said it allowed them to be on record as opposing a tax increase they did not support. "The people that refuse to cut spending are the ones that should have to vote for the spending they want," said Representative Gerald Geistweidt, a Republican. Democrats said it was a way for Republicans to get the money that flowed from a tax increase while casting a popular vote against it. "It's like the person who shoots his wife, and calls for gun control," said State Representative Steve Wolens, a Democrat.

For both sides the partisan battle, which dominated the yearlong budget struggle, was part of a fierce fight for control of a state that was once solidly Democratic and is now up for grabs. "You saw the end of a nonpartisan

It took parliamentary contortions legislature with this session," said higher education financing was less Democrat.

The solution to the budget crunch was as out of the ordinary as the process used to arrive at it. Texans have always had a fierce aversion to taxes. But the increase, coupled with one last year, probably moves Texas toward the median in terms of total state and local collapse of the oil industry and so tax load, according to Steven Gold, balance the state budget. But the director of fiscal studies for the National

> The decision to raise taxes instead of cutting spending reflected the state's changing demographics. Texas is becoming more urban and more ethnically diverse. The state's Hispanic populatio has grown from 16.5 percent in 1970 to 23 percent; demographers say that shortly after the turn of the century non-Hispanic whites will no longer be in the majority in Texas.

The decision to raise taxes rather than cut services also reflected a much less insular Texas, newly worried about its image. "In the past Texas thought, 'Who cares what the rest of the country thinks?' "Texas historian T.R. Fehrenbach said. "Today we're hypersensitive about it." Much of the image question centered on education. Among services most at risk were higher education and the state's hard-fought educational changes. Both survived the budget crisis in relatively good health, although

Officials said the session raised enough money to keep the state in good financial shape through the next twoyear budget period. But many economists said it did not reorder the Texas tax codes sufficiently so that tax revenue will grow as the state's economy does.

The oil industry is showing modest signs of recovery, but it will never provide the support it once did, officials say. "Texans need hope, but the oil and gas industry isn't the place to pin it," State Comptroller Bob Bullock, a Democrat, told the legislators when the special session began.

The task of longer-range tax revision has been given to a special committee that will report to the next legislature. But some skeptics doubt Texas is ready for another tax battle.

"The members are worn out on taxes," said State Representative Bruce Gibson, a Democrat. "I think it would take another funding crisis to look at fundamental changes, and I think there will be enough growth in the next two years that we won't have to do it. There's an old saying that taxes is the art of plucking the most amount of goose feathers with the least amount of hiss. Tax reform without revenue is all hiss and no feathers." -New York Times (used by request).

Elderly woman injured in 'attack

A 94-year-old Floydada woman, Mrs. W.A. Lovell, required 60 stitches to close wounds inflicted Thursday morning when she was "attacked" by "three full-grown" German shepherd dogs while walking near her home, according to her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Clyde Lovell. The "attack" occurred "about 9 o'clock," two miles east of town.

Mrs. Lovell was treated at Caprock Hospital in Floydada. The daughter-in-law contacted The Hesperian the following day and explained that she, her mother-in-law and "our small white dog, Poochie" were "walking down the road" - a normal routine - when three "big old German shepherds charged through the gate like bulls.'

The shepherds "got Poochie down in a deep ditch." In an attempt to protect their pet, Mrs. Lovell said, she attempted to ward off the larger canines by kicking at them and the older woman "tried to hit them in the head with her (walking)

It was at this point that one of the shepherds "turned on her," inflicting "deep cuts in her right leg below the calf." Mrs. Clyde Lovell said the two women were left "in a state of

She related that "Dave and Chris" McGowen, who apparently were working in a garden, attempted to pen their dogs when they heard the commotion. They carried the 94-year-old woman to Caprock Hospital. Mrs. Lovell remained hospitalized Tuesday.

She added that "Poochie was torn up all over." She was taken to a veterinarian, who attended to her wounds. "I wish it had been me instead of her" who was injured,

IN APPRECIATION-A reception was held Friday, Sept. 4 to say good-bye and to honor Regi Gross. Mrs. Gross had served with the Department of Human Resources as a child protective service specialist from Nov. 1, 1978 until August 31, 1987. Friends gathered together at the community room of First National Bank to show their appreciation for her involvement in the community and the care she had always shown for the children she was working with. Mrs. Gross has moved to Lubbock with her husband, Keith.

Cedar Hill News

Tuesday, Sept. 8:

Crop comments: Rain has stopped the wheat drills, but the first wheat that was seeded is pushing its tender, yellow sprouts through the surface. There is some concern that the ground may crust over the last day or two's sowing, but the weather remains cloudy with occasional sprinkles. Another day or two like that and the problem will be past. Both Craig Gilly at Southwest Cedar and Junior Taylor from the Edna Dillard place in Northeast Cedar report nine tenths inches of rain. A low of six tenths at Lindsey Lackeys and eight tenths at the churches were reported. Cucumbers are being picked on five to seven day schedules, and growers are nearing the point of cost recovery. They could show a profit. Both cucumbers and pumpkins have had to be sprayed for mildew and it appears further spraying will be required. Much of the Cedar Hill corn has been combined. Most cotton has been sprayed more than once and badly needs hot, sunny days. Pinto beans are really booming with the ones that were planted over making rapid gains on the earlier planting. Stay away frost. An experiment for Cedar Hill to watch is a field on the Neff place that was seeded to wheat, then was overseeded to turnips by plane. Since the field cannot be harvested due to government regulations, cattle pasture is the sole objective. Edna Gilly, Ruthie Clark and Clara Redd enjoyed rest and relaxation in cool Ruidoso, NM the weekend of August 30. than 8,000 supermarkets nationwide celebrating the American Heart Association's national community nutrition awareness event - American Heart's Third Annual Food Festival.

Food Festival is scheduled for September 13-19, and is designed to raise the public's awareness of nutrition and heart health. AHA's nutritional information on "heart healthy" eating and recipes will be available at Pay-n-Save supermarket participating in the weeklong festival.

"The grocery store is an excellent place for us to reach people, since it's the primary place the public makes decisions on food selection," said Vicki Cates. "Some of the things we hope to educate people about during the Food Festival include the importance of reading and interpreting nutrition labels on packaged foods; how to choose lean cuts of meat; and which dairy products are preferable according to the Heart Association.

"The AHA recommends a diet low in saturated fat, cholesterol and salt and limiting cholesterol intake to no more than 300 milligrams per day," Cates

According to Cates, not all cholesterol in the blood comes from the foods we eat. The body produces about 1,000 milligrams of cholesterol each day, and this cholesterol is needed to produce certain hormones and to construct cells. The body filters out and eliminates some of the cholesterol in the blood.

Cholesterol is a soft, fat-like substance found among fats (lipids) in the bloodstream. "A high level of lipids in the blood is known as 'hyperlipidemia', and is a major risk factor for heart disease," said Cates.

According to the Heart Association, more than 50 percent of middle-aged Americans have cholesterol levels exceeding 200 milligrams per deciliter of blood. At this level, the risk of heart disease rises sharply.

Why is this so? Cates explains, "Cholesterol and other lipids build up on the walls of the blood vessels. Over time, those vessels can become completely blocked. This narrowing of the blood vessels or atherosclerosis, restricts the flow of oxygen-carrying blood to the heart. This can result in severe chest pain and Pay-n-save in Floydada will join more eventually heart attack. If this occurs in a blood vessel going to the brain, it can cause a stroke.

"By making prudent choices in the food we eat, blood cholesterol levels can usually be controlled in otherwise healthy people."

AHA recommends limiting the intake of high-fat meats, whole dairy products, egg yolks and other foods high in saturated fats and cholesterol. Substitute poultry, fish, lean meat, fresh fruits and vegetables, grains and cereals and low-fat dairy products for a heart-heal-

"'Prudence' is the key word to keep in mind when incorporating AHA's recommendations into your daily eating plan," said Cates. "AHA guidelines call for inclusion of all of the four basic food groups - meat, fish and poultry; fruits and vegetables; grains and cereals; and dairy products. We do not suggest that any one food be entirely eliminated, or that any one food be used exclusively. In addition to eating a wide variety of foods, AHA recommends that ideal weight be maintained; fats be limited to not more than 30 percent of the total daily calories; include adequate starch and fiber foods in the diet; limit refined sugar and salt; and if alcohol is part of the diet, consume in moderation.'

During the Food Festival, AHA, in cooperation with Pay-n-Save, hopes to provide Floydada residents with the nutritional information to enhance their own heart health and that of their

Well, it's back to school, back into a routine of things, fall is in the air. Days are getting shorter and we ask ourselves, "where has the summer gone?" The warm days and cool mornings are enjoyable. We had our Monday morning break, then had the devotion. We shared from Luke 12:22-31. Trust in God. Not to worry about what we are to wear, eat or drink. Not a sparrow falls that our heavenly Father doesn't know about, aren't we worth more than the birds of the air of the flowers of the field? In the evening we listened to gospel songs by Tennessee Ernie Ford.

Tuesday: Coffee break as usual and Bro. Neeley came to give the devotional. He spoke on Luke: 46-56 on Mary's Canticle. She praised and gave thanks for all that the Lord had done for her and she said "yes" she would be the mother of God's son, Jesus. We sang "Footsteps of Jesus", "Rock of Ages," and "Kindred in Christ." The residents enjoyed the bananas he brought. thanks. At 2:30 the Companions 'n' Caring came and had a meeting, then helped serve ice cream. They always enjoy the treat, thanks ladies.

Wednesday as usual and Bro. Earl came from the First Methodist Church and shared from Matt. 25-31-46. The overall message was to serve with love, and to love one another as that is how we are going to be judged. At 2:00 p.m. we played Bingo. Angelina Reynolds came and called the numbers, thanks Angie. Those playing were: Oda Birchfield, Rosetta Underwood, Charles Breeding, Myra Hall, Brooks Callaway, Maude Galloway, Della Halencak, Opal Morrison, Thelma Hoffman, Iva Wells, Charlie Berry. Prizes were bananas and bugle corn snacks.

Thursday we had our usual coffee and juice break. At 10:30 Bro. Travis Curry, from Victory Baptist Church, came and gave the devotional taken from Ex: 3-14. Saying that God is the Great I AM. All through the Old and New Testament God is the great I AM. God is many things, mercy, love, forgiveness, etc.

but the greatest is that "God is." At 2:30 the residents played along with their instruments, to the Rhythm band, they always like singing along too.

Friday we had our coffee break and juice break, then at 10:30 the ladies from the First Baptist Church came and shared. Letha Mulder opened with a prayer. We sang a lot of songs, one residents remarked why don't we sing 25 songs? We sang, "Victory in Jesus," "He Keeps Me Singing," "Higher Ground," "Rock of Ages." Mrs. Lillian Ross shared Ps. 103. Evelyn Latta played the piano and closed the service with a prayer.

Bus ride to Plainview to get ice cream, Sonic Drive-In treated the residents. We went to Plainview. Those going were: Florence curry, Rosetta Underwood, Brooks Callaway, Maude Galloway, Della Halencak, Iva Wells, Opal Morrison, Bessie Wilson, Wilma Payne, Charles Breeding and Jo Bryant. # A new twist on credit card fraud

Recently, a number of Texans have been the victims of a new twist in the ever creative world of the telemarketing con artist.

The Pitch

You receive a telephone call from someone claiming to represent a travel agency. You're offered a vacation package—travel, accommodations, meals, entertainment—at a bargain price.

Sounds interesting, doesn't it?
But you've heard about travel package frauds so you start to refuse. Before you can finish, the salesperson says they will send the materials for your consideration. there will be no bills for 30 days.

What have you got to lose? You have 30 days to check out the package. If you don't like it, it hasn't cost you a cent.
You tell them to send you the material.

"Fine," says the salesperson, "now if you'll just give us a credit card number for verification I'll have your information materials in today's mail."

The Scam
You look over the materials, decide the package is not for you, and return everything before the deadline.

But on your next credit card bill you are billed for the vacation you declined. Not only are billed for it, but you have never heard of the company listed on the statement.

How It Works

In order to use credit card services, companies must show a bank they are credit worthy. This allows them to become part of a bank card system and get a merchant identification number. Many of these "travel companies" cannot qualify, so they contract with a third party who can get a merchant identification number and can borrow money from a bank. These third party companies process the vendors' charge slips for a fee, which can be as much as ten per cent.

Violations of the Law

The sudden appearance of the processor's name on your bill creates a problem—obviously, it makes it very difficult for you to dispute the unauthorized charges since the name on the billing slip is different than that of the merchant who called you.

The use of a new name may violate the provisions about full disclosure of the Truth in Lending and/or Fair Credit Billing acts, as well as the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act and the national rules promulgated by the credit card industry.

Moreover, in all likelihood, charge slip processors are violating more than full disclosure provisions: several have been found to sell their slips to other processors in different parts of the country. This means that you can get double or triple billed for products or services you never ordered or used.

What to Do

Since processing charge slips is lucrative—one processor handled more than $500,000 in slips in less than two weeks, for a 10% cut—it is unlikely to go away any time soon. You must, therefore, be on your guard constantly. Check out all telemarketing sales pitches before you agree to anything.

To dispute any unauthorized charges, notify the credit card company in writing as soon as possible. You must describe the problem and indicate that you have tried to correct the situation with the merchant/vendor. Most banks do their best to investigate charge back

September 10: Charlie Wright returned home Thursday afternoon from Methodist Hospital in Lubbock. He had undergone triple by-pass open heart surgery. He must now go back three days a week for rehabilitation. Charlie had attended the Primitive Baptist Singing School at Cone, Texas around the first of August. When he went home after the first day's meeting, he began to realize he needed help and called Jim Jackson, who with Charlie's family, took him to the doctor. He had to recover from the heart attack before they could do the surgery work. His daughter, Mrs. Carroll Sims, has been looking after her father since he came home.

Mrs. Ona Ruth Neff stayed in Lubbock with her son, Donald Neff and wife Pat, while her brother, Charlie

Wright, was in Methodist Hospital.

Nellie and Jack Johnson of near San Antonio were present for the Primitive Baptist Singing School at Cone in August and visited her mother, Mrs. Buell P. Neff. The Johnson's daughter, Mrs. Jackie Holcomb and daughter, Jacquelyn, accompanied her parents.

Miss Sheryl Smith visited her grandmother, Mrs. Buell Neff on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Furrow of Sar

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Furrow of San Diego, Calif. visited her brother, Don Harrison and other relatives here from Aug. 12, staying three weeks. They left Tuesday for their return trip. The Harrisons and Furrows visited in Lubbock with the Jerry Bob Harrisons and sat with Ruth and Don's great-grandchild while Kay and Tony Shields of San Angelo went on vacation. The Shields brought their baby to Jerry Bob's in Lubbock.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Harrison, Debbi and Tracy came out to visit with Ruth and Don while the California visitors were here.

The Lubbock Christian University marker dedication and unveiling Monday morning was attended by Mrs. Q.D. Williams. Tribute was paid to the ladies of the L.C.C. associates who had raised money for the college in its early years through pecan sales, art and craft sales and their pie booth at the South Plains Fair. The original supporters of the college were photographed as stood in similar positions to the 1957 picture of the first shovel of dirt being turned in the cotton field west of Lubbock, the beginning of today's beautiful modern campus. Dr. F.W. Mattox, first president of the college, was present Monday with his wife and family from North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bertrand are settled into the house they bought in Floydada, and have already been on a trip to Colorado and New Mexico. The Bertrands and Orville Newberrys took their campers to Stonewall, Colo., and Eaglevest, New Mexico.

Jill and Martin Warren have moved to Fay and Williams former house, with their three children. Lezlie is in fifth grade and Will is in third grade in Floydada schools. All attended the Crosbyton-Floydada football game Friday evening.

Miss Misti Bertrand was second runner-up in the 10-12 year olds at the Miss Floyd County contest at the county fair

The Randy Bertrands, Misti and Salina Shorter, daughter of Lee and Connie Hurt, went to Plainview to play putt-putt golf Sunday afternoon.

Miss Lacy Golightly won second runner-up in the 7-9 year old class of the Miss Floyd County contest at the county fair. Lacy, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dayne Golightly and Rance, went with friends to Dallas over the Labor Day holiday to Six Flags Over Texas. Penny Golightly's niece, Amy Guess, daughter of Cheryl Guess, enrolled this fall at the University of Texas in Austin.

The 1987 annual meeting of Plains Ginners Association is set for Saturday, September 12 at the Holiday Inn-Civic Center, Lubbock, beginning at 9:30 a.m., according to the organization's president, Jerry Harris of Lamesa.

This year's meeting offers what PGA Secretary Roy Philpott of Lubbock calls a two-part program, with five industry-related speakers in the morning followed in the afternoon by a tour of Lubbock's new cotton classing office. Some 200 High Plains ginners and allied industry people are expected to attend, Philpott says.

Confirmed speakers for the morning session include Charles Cunningham, Deputy Director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Analysis Division; Jesse Moore, Director, Cotton Division of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service; Charles Bragg, National Cotton Council Producer Steering Committee staff representative, Memphis, Tennessee; Tony Price, Executive Vice President, Texas Cotton Ginners Association, Austin.

Cunningham has been asked to give a preliminary assessment of what impact a new HVI-based loan structure, if adopted, might have on future schedules of loan premiums and discounts. He will also discuss the implications of the newly-triggered import quota and cessation of loan extensions, plus give an indication of current USDA thinking on 1988 program decisions to be announced by November 1.

PCG is joining AMS in sponsoring the classing office open house, which is from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

CRIMINAL INJUSTICE

By Edwin Feulner

If I were a criminologist, I might be bubbling over with even more profound ideas, but here are three words that could change the world: build more

In truth, over the last generation the increase in criminologists has gone hand in hand with a staggering increase in crime. What we need are fewer criminologists and sociological theorists, and more cops and jails.

I say this in the wake of a recent FBI report showing that the 1986 national crime index was the highest since 1981. Violent crime, in particular, shot up 45 percent from 1977 to 1986. A recent NBC special on juvenile crime reported that murder by juveniles is up 20 percent in the last two years. Most juvenile criminals will keep it up until they're locked away. The statistics show that 70 percent of 15-17-year-olds arrested are re-arrested within a year.

Americans are fed up, and are demanding that government turn some of its much-advertised compassion away from criminals and toward their victims. The outrage could be seen in the public support of Bernard Goetz, who used a gun to defend himself when accosted in a New York subway.

Aside from setting the terms and tone of the debate, however, the federal government can't do much about crime, especially violent street crime, which terrorizes people in their own neighborhoods and often makes them prisoners in their own homes. Dealing with this is chiefly the business of state and local governments.

Even the FBI statistics are somewhat misleading. Many crimes go unreported. Most of those reported don't lead to arrests. Most arrests don't lead to convictions. And most convictions don't keep criminals off the street long enough. You don't need a degree in criminology to know that there aren't enough police to catch the thugs, or enough jails for those already caught.

We do know plenty about what causes crime. The view that poverty is the chief cause, long an article of liberal faith, flies in the face of a blizzard of facts. There is no evidence that the crime rate rises or falls with the pover-

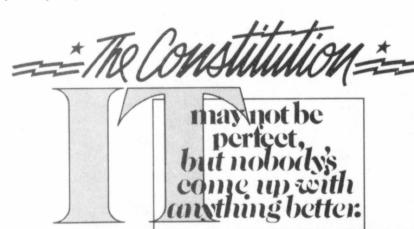

Police and others with hands-on experience dealing with the flotsam of society have pointed out repeatedly that the root of the mess is that the notion of responsibility to society has given way to "victimology," or the notion that criminals are victims of society's injustices. Believers in victimology insist that society has to change before crime can be reduced, and that criminals, because they're victims, deserve therapy instead of punishment.

But even a few bleeding hearts have started to see the folly of this, and to face the ugly fact that thugs are rarely transformed by moral lectures, consciousness raising, or psychotherapy. Studies and the sky-high rates of repeat crime have exposed "rehabilitation" as a farce. The muggers and stick-up artists just laugh at our foolishness. Only one thing can deter criminals: fear of getting caught and put away for a long, long time.

Unfortunately we're now saddled with court decisions that, on technicalities, have hamstrung police departments and emboldened criminals. And we're stuck with a criminal-justice establishment that has a stake in perpetuating rehabilitation delusions.

The American people know in their guts that there is too much crime because criminals know there is too little punishment. What to do about it? Build more jails. And keep convicted felons behind bars for the full terms of their sentences.

AT&T ANNOUNCES UPCOMING PRICE CHANGES FOR SOME TEXAS INTRASTATE SERVICES

AT&T announces the following price changes for some of its Texas intrastate services. These changes, which more closely reflect the actual costs incurred by AT&T in providing these services, will become effective on October 1, 1987.

• SDN (Software Defined Network) Schedule B prices will be reduced an overall 7.1%. Schedule C prices will be reduced 4.4% for the initial 30-second rate period of each call.

· WATS 80 service prices for both the initial period 80-hour usage and additional period usage will increase 5%.

. The monthly prices for AT&T's Private Line Service will increase up to $25 per channel termination for Analog services and 10% for Digital Data Services.

 A $25 monthly surcharge will also apply to any private lines which may be used to access the local exchange network, unless certified as exempt by the customer. The $25 surcharge, which was previously authorized by the Public Utility Commission of Texas, is a flow through of charges assessed by the Local Exchange Companies to AT&T for those Private Line ser-

The combined effect of these price changes is expected to produce approximately $4.99 million annual revenue, which is approximately .5% of AT&T's annual revenues for all Texas intrastate services.

If you have questions regarding the changes for Private Line service, please call AT&T toll-free at 1-800-345-5092. If you have questions regarding the WATS or SDN price changes, please call our business consultants toll-free at 1-800-222-0400. AT&T's tariffs reflecting these changes will be filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas on August 31, 1987, with an effective date of October 1, 1987.

Persons who have questions regarding this tariff filing may also contact the Public Utility Commission of Texas in writing. at 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or by calling the Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223, or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 for teletypewriter for the deaf.

Winds blow past scrappy Chiefs in opener

If Friday night's thriller was any indication, the 1987 football season will be a dandy.

After visiting Crosbyton broke the scoring ice with a 79 yard touchdown midway through the first quarter, the Whirlwinds forged into the lead 7-6 with only 25 ticks remaining on the clock before intermission.

Halfback Daniel Medrano went into the end zone from one yard out for Floydada's first TD of the campaign. Corey Bates kicked true to send the Green and White in front for keeps.

Defensive end Roel Cisneros was credited with the game's final marker as he gobbled up a Chieftain fumble in the end zone with 2:13 remaining in quarter number three. Bates' kick again was true.

Cisneros' fumble recovery came only two snaps after a tenacious goalline stand by the Chieftains had held the Whirlwind offensive at bay for four plays inside the two. First quarterback Bates and then fullback Johnny Taylor were literally stopped on the lip of the double stripe.

FIRST OVERTON WIN

The 14-6 victory hands Earl Overton a 1-0 record as head Whirlwind grid mentor and athletic director.

Floydada fans seemed to sense throughout the encounter that their troops would break open the contest, but the gritty Chieftains kept rebound-

Typical of an opening game, the two squads committed nine turnovers. However, the contest was particularly hard-hitting, which caused many of the turnovers.

The Mean Green owned the ball two possessions and the Chieftains once before speedy tailback Greg Williams raced around right end, found the door open and utilized his blazing speed to cover 79 steps and send the visitors in front 6-0 midway through the initial period.

Julio Lopez' PAT attempt was blocked.

The home team pushed for first downs by Ralph Casillas and Taylor before an interception cut short the bid. The teams then swapped fumbles.

49 YARD DRIVE

Whirlwinds began to crank up their offensive machine late in the second quarter after Chad Pernell returned a punt to one yard inside Crosbyton territory. Casillas gained 14, Taylor went for 5 and 5, Casillas made 7 and Taylor got 1 before Bates advanced 8 steps on a quarterback keeper to the before intermission, Casillas made 4 and Daniel Medrano also advanced 4 steps. With 0:25 remaining, Medrano plowed his way across to tie the score, Bates' kick made it "7" on the "home" side of the scoreboard and "6" for the visitors.

Chad Quisenberry swiped a pass at the Crosbyton 37, but time expired before the Winds could capitalize.

After containing the Chieftains to open the third period, the Winds picked up twin first downs on a 13 yard scamper by Medrano and a 10 yard run by Taylor. The fumble Nemesis re-

PROPOSITION NO. 11 ON THE BALLOT

Section 1, Subsections (f) and (g) of Senate Joint Resolution 12 propose a constitutional amendment to exempt from ad valorem taxation goods, wares, merchandise, and ores other than oil, gas and petroleum products. These items would be exempt from taxation only if they originated outside the state and were located in the state for a period of 175 days or less for purposes of assembly, storage, manufacture, processing, or fabrication. Such property could be taxed by a county, school district, or municipality if the governing body of the political acquisition, construction, repair, subdivision took official action to provide for the taxation of the items while they were located in the political subdivision. If the governing body of a political subdivision took official action to tax the items before January 1, 1988, the tax would be effective for the 1988 tax year. If the action were taken after January 1, 1988, and before April 1, and Senate. Each uses television advertisements, direct mail, polling and all the modern methods to court voter turnout. Yet supporters of the bill claim this will be different. Candidates will discuss issues, have real debates and propose new ideas - all only if they don't have to have a fund-raising dinner to finance their campaigns.

The bill in question is the Boren-Byrd Campaign Reform Bill, sponsored by Sens. David L. Boren, D-Okla., and Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va. According to the authors, the bill is needed because the large amounts of money which need to be raised distract Senators from their work, the present system of campaign financing favors incumbents and campaigns needs to be made fairer, too much money is being spent on campaigns and candidates have gotten away from the "grass roots" and instead rely

They say each of these programs can be solved simply by restricting contributions from political action committees and opening the federal treasury to candidates. The present system of taxpayer financing of presidential elections is often held up as a model. But is this the kind of "reform" the American people want?

It would be helpful to hear, just once, a rational explanation of why taxpayers do not support taxpayer campaign financing if it is such a fine idea. There appears to be no way to make it easier to indicate support. Consider taxpayer financing for presidential campaigns. There is a check-off on every form 1040 tax return and a promise from the government of no cost to the taxpayer if the "yes" box is checked.

Taxpayers to finance candidates?

By Mick Staton

The United States Senate is considering a bill that would require every tax-paying American to contribute to the campaign treasury of every senator. Not only will the taxpayer be forced to pay, he will not even be able to designate which party he wishes to support, let alone which senator. If that is not enough of an insult, he also will have to support candidates opposing the one for whom he intends to vote.

Furthermore, this bill would radically inhibit challengers by equalizing the amount of campaign spending allowed without considering the advantages of an incumbent. If passed, it would reduce seriously the effectiveness and involvement of the one organization which has increased participation and interest in elections - the companysponsored political action committee.

too heavily on "special interests."

Even as simple as this procedure is, only an anemic 23 percent check the box

It strains the credulity of the public to believe that senators are driven to give their opponents an opportunity to run a closer, more competitive race and thereby increase the incumbents' chances of being defeated. Suffice it to say that any senator who thinks an opponent is disadvantaged can eschew voluntarily such perquisites as franked mass mailings and staff assistance without raiding the federal treasury.

As for grass-roots support, if Boren-Byrd becomes law, some 5 million contributors to political action committees will become effectively disenfranchised. Some critics of the bill have pointed out accurately that most PAC contributions are from small contributors who generally do not write checks directly to candidates.

Senators uniformly deny that they are marked "yes." Any senator worth his salt would recognize immediately that if he had only a 23 percent approval rating, his days in office would be numbered. Yet, incredibly, backers of this proposal continue to insist that the public wants taxpayer financing of Taxpayer financing is supposed to free candidates from fund raising duties and allow them more fully to inform the public about positions and ideas. Any observer of recent presidential campaigns must conclude that there is little difference in those campaigns and the campaigns of candidates for the House swayed by a PAC check — it is always someone else who, in an apocryphal story, is compromised. But nevertheless, they claim the public needs to be "protected" from special interests. Again, no senator yet has demonstrated that individuals in a particular industry who support candidates friendly to that industry pose any real threat to the

It should not come as any great surprise that Boren himself receives substantial support from individuals in the oil industry. But he accepts no PAC funds. What is the difference between those persons contributing directly to Boren or those using a payroll deduction plan to make a contribution to a PAC that in turn contributes? Obviously, there is no real difference.

An essential part of campaigning for election is the garnering of support, including the money by which the campaign is financed. In order to secure support, a candidate usually must offer his views on issues of importance to the voters. If his positions are acceptable it is not uncommon for him to receive the support he seeks. Otherwise he will not.

The proposal short circuits this crucial connection by mandating that all taxpayers support all candidates, irrespective of views. Thus, it becomes the government in the role of chief campaign financial agent with the I.R.S. as the bag man. Does the Senate seriously believe Americans want this type of "reform?"

Our system of financing congressional elections is more open, informative and accessible to private citizens than ever before in our country's history. Most important, it is also voluntary. It clearly is not "broken" and should not
