a view from The Lamplighter [By Ken Towery

I thought Mr. Dukakis made a good speech. Surprisingly good, in fact.

As political speeches go, it did what it was designed to do. Meaning it obscured more than it revealed. It followed, in this regard, the platform. In the past few elections the party platform has spelled out in detail just what the party believes, and what it intended to do once in office. The result was disas-

This time a new approach was called for. And to Mr. Dukakis's credit he and his lieutenants evidently prevailed. First thing on their agenda was to make Jesse happy and to keep him happy once the convention was over. From all indications that goal was achieved. Next thing was to keep Jesse's people happy during and after the convention. At least the first phase of that was achieved. Jim Hightower, who has worked exceedingly hard to arrive at the position of Jesse's Stepin Fetchit, was at least mollified, if not downright happy.

All this was designed to make possible the appearance of "unity." How long this unity can prevail in what promises to be a heated campaign remains to be seen. Mr. Dukakis insists he chose Lloyd Bentsen as his running mate because he wants a Vice President who will march into the Oval Office, slam his fist on the table and tell the President, "Mr. President, you are wrong on this." Why wait? Considering the ostensible differences between the two on such things as national defense, aid to the Contras, energy policy, gun control, furloughs for convicted murderers, capital punishment, minor things like that, why doesn't Mr. Bentsen do that now? Why wait until they get to the Oval Office? Could it be because then it won't matter?

Nevertheless, Mr. Dukakis did well in his speech. He hit all the right keys on the political piano. He evoked many shouts of "Where was George?"

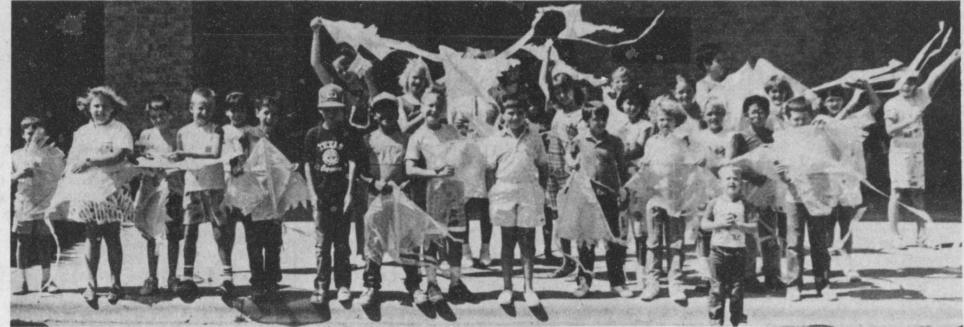

We really don't know where George was at that time. We do know where he wasn't, at least part of the time. He wasn't at Chappaquiddick (or however you spell that place) with Teddy, the Party's moralist. He wasn't in the town house with Gary Hart. Nor was he on the "Monkey Business" with Hart. We wasn't in the back rooms with Jim Wright when the Speaker cut his money-making deals. He wasn't on the trip up to Oshkosh, Wisconsin with some of the Speaker's Congressional allies when they "inspected" some trucks, picked up a couple of thousand dollars each and went back to Washiungton to vote right.

Good as the speech was, it is quite possible that it opened a can of worms. One suspects that when George's people stage their own convention, they will be able to point out a few places "where George was."

By the way. Since Teddy brought up the subject, perhaps it is only fitting and proper that we pursue the matter. After all, just where was Teddy. We know one thing for sure. He wasn't in the car when the authorities pulled it out of the pond. He saw to that. Still, they love him in Boston.

And in closing: I suppose you noticed, gentle reader, that the police up in Amarillo have arrested the man who broke the jaw of State Senator Bill Sarpoulis in a night club early one morning some months ago. The guy who hit the Senator was identified as A.B. Towery, Jr. age 28. He was probably a cousin, and accordingly we should probably try to defend him. But we can't. Towerys were always taught not to go on the dance floor. Beside's the lick caused Bill's jaw to be wired shut for the duration of his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Congress. Unable to talk, he won the nomination.

Tom Farris, president of The First National Bank, says the increase in deposits is probably "due to the improved agricultural economy."

According to Farris, "Even though the total dollar amount of deposits looks good with banks, that is not all that determines if a bank is doing well or not. What is important is the equity capital in a bank. We are a highly capitalized bank which makes us a very strong bank."

Gene Mitchell plays in PGA tour

For golfer "Butch," Gene Mitchell Jr., retirement is like putting on a new set of Mitchell, a golf professional at Floydada Country Club, is far from retirement at a time when most men reaching 50 wish they could retire. He became eligible this year on Feb. 20 for the Senior PGA Tour, for players 50 and over, and he discovered a different kind of competition.

"In most tournaments, you can go to the site and qualify," he explains.

About 28 or 30 of the tournaments on the Senior Tour may have 100 or more players qualifying for four places from each of the various regions in the United States to make a tournament, he said.

Mitchell has won more than $8,000 in the two he has played in this year. He placed eighth in the Sunwest Bank/ Charley Pride Classic at Four Hills Country Club in Albuquerque in late May. And he played at the Silver Pages brand name, also known as generic Classic in Oklahoma City in late June. clubs.

The Legends of Golf is one of the major tournaments on the Senior Tour, he said. "Hopefully, next year I'll get an

During the first phase of his career on the PGA Tour, Mitchell won the 1966 Texas Open in Dallas, in addition to winning six times at the West Texas PGA Championship. While he was the golf coach from 1966 to 1971 at Texas Tech University, his alma mater, his team won the 1971 Southwest Conference. Recently, Mitchell won the player of the year in 1985 and 1987 in the North Texas PGA.

The Preston Trails in Dallas is Mitchell's favorite course to play on. "It's a good traditional golf course," Mitchell said.

Now, between tournaments on the Senior Tour, Mitchell makes an exclusive golf club, the Ocean Club of Texas West. What makes these clubs exclusive are the designs of black, gold and silver on a lightweight steel shaft (the long portion of the club which is attached to the grip and the club head.)

"These are not clone clubs," he explained. Mitchell refers to clone golf clubs as being these without a special

Besides manufacturing these clubs, Mitchell repairs clubs for professional golfers in the West Texas area and clients within the Lubbock area.

Next month, Mitchell will be busy with the two tournaments at Floydada Country Club. The fifth Blanco Canyon Classic, a 36-hole tournament open for all amateur golfers, is scheduled Aug. 6 and Aug. 7. The mixed team championship, Jack and Jill scramble on Aug. 27 and Aug. 28, is open to all men and women pairings.

Mitchell, a native of Lubbock, has been the golf professional at Floydada Country Club for nearly five years. After living in Florida for 15 years as a golf consultant and golf professional general manager, he and his wife Patsy moved back to be near their families in the Lubbock area, and their daughter Stacy, 27, and a son, Paul, 22, who attends University of Texas at Arlington. Mitchell said, "I prefer the small clubs in comparison to the sizeable

For Mitchell, thanks to another career on the Senior PGA Tour he plans to continue in September and continue working on his master thesis on the 'Static Fundamentals of Golf' for the Professional Golf Association.

Burleson Roping to exhibit arts

Western art, in a wide variety of forms will vie for attention at the Art Show and Sale in the old barn art gallery at 10 a.m. on Saturday, July 30, during activities at the Burleson Memorial Roping.

Twelve area artists, eager to show and talk about their works, will utilize the rustic barn setting of grain bins, hay racks, and horse stalls at the old Burleson headquarters. Subjects will include cowboy and Indian portraits, country landscapes, old houses, horses, cattle, buggies, wildlife, and, of course, a few windmills.

An unusual artform on display will be a minature chuckwagon and buggy created by Levelland dentist, Dr. Bob Roberson, who specializes in restoring wagons and buggies.

Monte McCloy, a full time cowboy at the Pitchfork Ranch, has somehow found time in the last three and one-half years to do bronze castings he'll display, sculptures of cowboys and animals in action.

At least two exhibitors, Joe Belt, art teacher and professional artist from Lubbock, and Jo Goen, artist from Floydada and coordinator for the art show, will share their special interest in Indian art on the weathered boards of the old barn.

Familiar to many area collectors is the work of Bob Chennault, Lubbock artist who is particularly adept at capturing scenes of windmils, trees, and sunsets in the glorious changes of the seasons, wether icy northers or Indian summer.

Jill Bertram Warren, a young mother from Floydada, favors realistic rural scenes, which she often paints by commission for those who want a particular homestead, ranch, farm, or animal represented.

Youth study Texas Legislature

Kelli LaBaume and Tiffany Gentry were two Floydadians of about 500 Texas 4-H members who were in Austin July 19-22 getting firsthand experience with the Texas legislative process.

They filled House and Senate chambers in the Capitol to actually produce

This was part of the annual Texas 4-H Congress, with this year's theme being "Citizenship in Action."

Headquarters for the event was the Marriott Hotel at the Capitol.

4-H members actually assumed the roles of legislators and lobbyists, said Janet Yeates, 4-H specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and chair for the Congress program.

In their role-playing, the 4-H'ers introduced bills on the floor of the House and Senate. The bills were then assigned to committees and proceeded through committee action. They were then debated on the floor of each chamber, brought to a final vote, and then presented to the 4-H governor, Yeates said.

Bills that were introduced related to businesses and environment; education; government, finance and appropriations; highways and transportation; judiciary; and public health and welfare.

In addition to their legislative activities, the 4-H members toured the Capitol and the LBJ Library.

The four-day event was for 4-H members between the ages of 15 and 19 and was designed to be a leadership and citizenship development experience, Yeates said. Emphasis was on helping the youths become more knowledgeable of the legislative process and their citizenship rights and responsibilities.

Health Care Bulletin

A major cause of the financial problems win the rural hospitals in addition to poor Medicare reimbursement, is the inability to collect for services rendered.

Many people who come to our hospibear no responsibility for their health care. They make no provision such as setting aside money or carrying health insurance. When they become ill they simply present themselves to the emergency room and expect and usually receive the treatment they need. Many feel no responsibility to attempt to pay for this care rendered by the local physicians or hospital staff. As a result health care costs have skyrocketed for those who do pay their bills and carry insurance. Insurance premiums have zoomed upward, so the person who pays and protects themselves are the ones who keep on getting their pocketbooks flattened. This increase in rates has been an attempt to compensate and recover some losses, but it is no longer adequate. We could not possibly raise rates high enough to compensate for the losses of Health care differs from other areas of business in that the product we sell is care. There is no way of repossessing care rendered or an injection given. The tals seem to feel that they should have to hospital pays the physician for seeing every patient who comes to the emergency room whether we collect any money or not. All hospitals are struggling under the heavy burden of trying to deal with this very difficult dilemma.

Most insurance companies will pay for the emergency room if emergency treatment is needed. Some folks use the emergency room for their convenience, or for clinic type needs such as, mild fever, colds, and flu, which insurance companies will not pay for. Many come to emergency rooms because they don't have any money and know that payment will be required at other facilities. These folks incur a bill of $78.00 to $100.00 for something that could have been treated in the doctors clinic for $20.00.

Charges for a visit to the emergency room include: $38.00 for the emergency room and $40.00 for the physician, plus any medication, x-rays, lab work or

Our community as a whole stands to suffer the loss of local medical care unless measures are taken to collect the losses we suffer from unpaid accounts.

In the future, for the sake of preserving our hospital, we are going to insist on some payment when services are rendered. We will be increasing our efforts at collecting outstanding accounts. If you owe an outstanding bill to the Hospital District, we suggest that you make arrangements to pay this. We will work with anyone to arrange payment to fit into their budget.

HEALTH TIP

Your emotions. Comforting those who grieve. Grief is a normal response to the losses we experience in life. Experiencing grief is necessary in order for healing to take place.

With time and the proper care and attention, a broken bone will eventually heal. So it is with an emotional wound caused by losing someone we love. All that is needed is a period of protection and loving care. If someone you care about is grieving the loss of a loved one, you may feel uncertain about how to help. Experts suggest being supportive in these ways:

*Be in touch. Don't avoid a bereaved person because you feel uncomfortable. He/she may not remember everything that was said, but your heartfelt hug will be appreciated.

*Be a good listener. Don't be afraid to talk openly. A grieving person often benefits from talking about the loss.

*Be helpful. Offer your support in practical ways.

*Be patient. A grieving person's life may not go on again in a normal way for quite some time. Don't be critical of the way a person expresses grief - everyone handles grief in a different way.

*Be remembering. Remember special dates that will be difficult for your friend or loved one. These are ideal times for acts of kindness. Don't be afraid that you will be reminding the bereaved of a painful time. Remembering will show you care.

"History is bunk," said Henry Ford. An apt title for a book on post-World War II U.S. foreign policy, however, might be "History Is Irrelevant."

The Nicaraguan freedom fighters, or Contras, know this firsthand, as do so many others. Despite Congress' onagain-off-again policies on aiding them, the Contras still struggle to free Nicaragua from its Soviet-backed Marxist rules, the Sandinistas.

True, President Jimmy Carter said he did learn something from the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in 1979. Shortly after taking office in 1977, Carter said in a speech at Notre Dame University that the United States must overcome its "inordinate fear of communism." But the invasion, he said, moved him to revise his views of Moscow. Among other steps, he embargoed U.S. grain sales to the Soviets (President Reagan lifted the embargo in 1981) and canceled U.S. participation in the 1980 Olympics at Moscow.

But the impact of Carter's education was short-lived, and with rare exceptions—the chief being U.S. aid to the Afghan freedom fighters—reality hasn't made much of a dent in Congress' incurable fondness for appeasement and accommodation, and often for unilateral disarmament. As disgraceful as Congress' sellout of the Nicaraguan freedom fighters is, it fits an accommodationist pattern that became deeply engrained during the Vietnam war.

Not that it was unknown before. The fate of Eastern Euope was sealed in 1956, when the United States did nothing to help the heroic freedom fighters of Hungary, tens of thousands of whom died fighting Soviet tanks with their bare hands. U.S. attempts to prevent Fidel Castro's totalirianization of Cuba in the early '60s were cringing and amateurish.

August 21 is the 20th anniversary of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, which snuffed out that nation's brieflived love affair with freedom called the Prague Spring. By then, the Soviets knew the West wouldn't lift a hand to help Eastern Europe. Their 1981 crushing of Poland's Solidarity movement moved the West to little save token wrist slaps and tut-tutting.

When U.S. failure in Vietnam gave rise, in Jeane Kirkpatrick's phrase, to the "Blame America First" movement in Congress, the Soviets wasted little time in taking advantage of it. They bankrolled Third-World Marxist guerrilla groups all over the world, with the Sandinistas just one such group that seized power.

President Reagan has tried, with some success, to reverse this trend. The two most encouraging cases are Afghanistan, which the Soviets are leaving, and Angola, where Jonas Savimbi's pro-Western UNITA forces control most of the country, and the Marxist government remains in power only because of Soviet aid and 57,000 Cuban troups.

But in Nicaragua the worst has taken place. The "peace" talks between the Sandinistas and the freedom fighters have collapsed. But then the talks were never anything other than a ruse to get Congress to cut off aid to the freedom fighters while the Sandinistas continued to terrorize and oppress Nicaragua. The New York Times, never a supporter of Contra aid, has reported increased Sandinista oppression since the "peace" process was set in motion.

There is talk of again trying to get Congress to approve aid, and one prays there is still time to avoid abandoning more millions of lives to communism. Otherwise it will be cold comfort that those who have learned from history will be able to say, yet again, "I told you

Get the most from your home freezer

The money saved by freezing fresh produce or food bought on sale can easily be eaten up by energy costs if you don't make good use of your home

A frost-free freezer costs about $15 per month for electricity, depending upon its size and your local electric rates. You can keep your freezer from using more electricity than necessary by making sure it operates efficiently, according to Bonnie Piernot, a consumer economics specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"A freezer inside the home requires less energy than one kept in the garage because it doesn't have to work as hard to maintain its low temperature," she

"When the garage is the only space available, put the freezer against an inside wall, if possible, since it will be cooler there. If your garage has no ventilation, consider adding a roof vent for air circulation and lower temperatures," said Piernot.

The specialist said a full freezer runs of the freezer with a freezer thermome-more efficiently than one that's half empty. If you use your freezer very little, consider pulling the plug on it, buying only what you need for a short period and storing it in the refrigerator-freezer.

"Older freezers often use extra energy because they have leaky gaskets that let cold air escape," she said. "Test the rubber gasket by placing a piece of paper in the door and closing it. If you can pull the paper out without tearing it, the gasket needs to be replaced."

Depending upon the size of the freezer, Piernot said replacing a rubber gasket is about a $15-25 do-it-yourself

"Don't freeze foods you eventually have to throw away. If your family doesn't eat zucchini, for example, freezing quarts of it will simply be a waste of money. Freeze foods you need and use most often and in amounts you can use within the recommended storage time,"

For best quality in frozen foods, Piernot suggests checking the temperature

ter to make sure it is at 0 degrees Fahrenheit or less.

"Invest in moisture-vapor proof plastic bags and wraps, freezer wrap, freezer containers or heavy duty foil to prevent freezer burn," she said. "Don't try to cut corners by using old plastic bread bags or containers not meant for freezing since that will just reduce the quality of the food."

"Also label and date frozen food packages. Then keep a simple inventory of your freezer to tell you what's on hand and remind you to use packages of food within the recommended storage time," said the specialist.

The Department of Public Safety recorded no deathless days between May 28 and June 15, the first 10 days of the vacation season. "From our preliminary counts, it appears that our best day so far was June 13. We had three people killed that day," said Public Information Officer David Wells. "The worst day we saw was June 4, with 12 deaths. Again, all numbers are preliminary at this time." Fatality counts are compiled by DPS Statistical Services.

Law Enforcement officers, community groups, and private businesses in many parts of Texas have joined the effort to promote one day without a traffic death between May 28 and September 5. The last deathless day on Texas roadways was January 5, 1977.

"Our message goes out, not just to Texas residents, but also to our summer visitors," said George R. Gustafson, president of Texas Safety Association and a spokesperson for the safety belt coalition. Social Security News

By TERRY J. CLEMENTS.

People who are approaching 65 and who do not plan to retire should be aware that their Social Security check will be larger when they finally do apply for it.

The reason is because of "delayed retirement credit." This credit increases a person's retirement checks for each month he or she does not get a benefit after 65 and before 70.

The credit adds 1/4 percent for each month-3 percent for each full year-a person does not get a check because of work. It also applies to widows and widowers benefits.

The credit will gradually increase to 8 percent a year between 1990 and 2009. In addition to these credits, a person's earnings after 65 may also result in a larger check than would have been payable at 65.

Of course, a person who starts getting checks at 65 can still work and earn a significant amount before his or her benefits are affected. In 1988, people 65 through 69 can earn $8,400 and still get benefits for all of the year. There is no limit for people 70 and older.

If earnings go above $8,400, then $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings above this amount. This annual exempt amount will increase automatically to keep pace with increases in average wages. The exempt amount for people under 65 is $6,120 in 1988.

People who are working and estimated they would not earn more than the exempt amount should make sure the estimates are still accurate. Any change in a person's estimate should be reported to Social Security.

Weather Service records show serious drought in every decade

Records of the National Weather National Weather Service records show Service show that at least one serious drought has plagued parts of Texas in every decade thus far in the 20th cen-

State climatologist John F. Griffiths, who came to Texas A&M University in the 1960's as professor of meteorology, said the most costly and devastating drought to strike Texas in modern history was the extremely massive drought that damaged every region of the state in the decade of the 1950's.

That extreme drought, Griffiths said, was the worst from the standpoint of its intensity, vast coverage and persistence as well.

Dr. William Dugas of Temple, whose research with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station is in meteorology with emphasis on water use by crops and rangeland, also has helped track Texas droughts over a period of Weather records maintained by the U.S. DEpartment of Agriculture and the Experiment Station at the Temple--Blackland Research Center where Dugas is headquartered go back about 75 years.

"These include rainfall records for the Research Center as well as information provided by the National Weather Service," Dugas said.

"For national perspectives on drought, the Palmer Long-Term Drought Index is the most comprehensive and best information that is available," Dugas said.

Droughts in Texas have created unparallel hardships for the Texas economy many times in the past, and are certain to recur, Dugas said. He has conducted research on water use by crops and rangeland for the past nine years, and several other scientists at the Temple Center are also working in the area of agricultural meteorology to advance knowledge in this field.

Griffiths said the so-called drought of the 1950's first began in the late spring of 1949 in the lower Rio Grande Valley, according to the National Weather Service records. It was evident in western portions of the state several months later, and had become a severe drought over most of Texas by 1951. Although some rain brought brief respites to small portions of the state, the drought progressed from severe to extreme over the remainder of Texas by 1956.

In the spring of 1957, the rains finally came to erase some of the damages of drought across the Texas landscape.

that good general, steady soaking rains began in February and continued through April that spring. But dead mesquite trees and other native trees stood for years as grim reminders of the state's most devastating drought.

National Weather Service records, Griffiths said, show that droughts of shorter duration and slightly less severity plagued Texas on several occasions in the 1970's and a massive searing heat wave in 1980 set in motion a severe drought that scorched most of Texas in the early 1980's. Again hardy mesquite trees died in many areas of the state.

This drought of the early 1980's brought much hardship to central and southern portions of Texas in 1984. Some cities ran out of water and officials of other areas rationed their precious water supplies to stretch them as far as possible.

PALMER INDEX INDICATES LONG-TERM ABNORMAL WEATHER By Mary Mahoney Extension Service Associate

Drought is defined in the dictionary as "dry weather, lack of rain."

Editor

But how dry does it have to be - and for how long - to be termed a drought?

Several measures are available for use in projecting how long abnormal conditions will continue to affect water-sensitive economics, said Michael S. Flynn, meteorologist-in-charge of the Southwest Agricultural Service Center of the National Weather Service here.

One measure, Flynn said, is the Drought Severity Index, also known as Long-Term Palmer Index.

"This is an index of meteorological drought, or moisture excess, and indicates long-term water prospects for the various regions for the U.S.," Flynn said. It is used by the U.S. Department of Agriculture in designating drought disaster areas, and Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng has said the nation's farms could become a complete disaster without substantial rain soon.

Flynn said input data for the Palmer Index consists of weekly temperature averages and precipitation totals from 350 climatic divisions of the U.S. and Puerto Rico.

Dr. John M. Sweeten, coordinator for the critical issue of water quality and conservation for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said the index usually ranges from about -6 to +6, with negative values denoting dry spells and positive values representing wet weather. It is based on a balance between moisture supply and demand. Normal values amy differ slightly between regions.

"In most states, when Palmer Index values drop below -2.0 and deteriorating conditions suggest a 'moderate' drought is beginning to develop, drought strategy groups and state governors may decide to swing into action," Sweeten said. "A Palmer Index value of -3 indicates a severe drought and below -4 an extreme drought," Sweeten said.

The index, developed in the mid-1960s by Meteorologist W.C. Palmer of the U.S. Department of Commerce, measures from the start of a wet or dry period to fully determine a weather pat-

Thus, a week of "normal" or better rainfall, although welcomed by everyone, might be only a brief respite and not the end of a drought, said Sweeten, and would cause little change in the Palmer

Four parameters, recharge of soil moisture, runoff, deep percolation and evapotranspiration, make up the demand part of the computation. Any of these factors may produce negative re-

"If only enough rain fell to satisfy the expected evapotranspiration but not enough to supply the recharge and runoff, a negative index would result. If the situation continued, agriculture would progress for a time at a normal pace but a worsening drought would be indicated," Sweetsen said.

"At this point, shallow wells and springs would dry up and levels of rivers, lakes and reservoirs would fall. Serious economic stress to the livestock trade, industries and cities would eventually result, and crops would suffer drastic decline as we are observing now in much of the nation," Sweeten said.

Flynn said another measure of drought or wetness is the Crop Moisture Index, showing crop water need contrasted with available water in a fivefoot soil profile. This is short term in nature and projects ahead for about four

"The Crop Moisture Index," Flynn said, is the Antecedent Precipitation Index of the National Weather Service, which provides greater detail and resolution for its 54 zones in Texas. It contains more details for projections than the other two, which provide "broad brush" ideas.

Long-term Palmer and Crop Moisture Reports are issued jointly by the U.S. Department of Commerce's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, National Weather Service, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Agricultural Statistics Service in Washington, D.C.

SEVERE TO EXTREME TEXAS DROUGHT SHOWN BY DIS-

The Palmer Drought Index, developed by Meteorologist W.C. Palmer of the National Weather Service, Washington, D.C., divides Texas into 10 meteorological regions.

For the 55 year period of 1930-1985, weather records show the following severe to extreme drought periods by the regions used by Palmer:

High Plains: 1934, 1935, 1953, 1954, 1955, 1956, and 1963. 1955, 1956, 1964, and 1974.

Low Rolling Plains: 1934, 1935, 1939, 1951 through 1956, 1967 and North Central: 1934, 1951 through 1957, 1963, 1967, 1971, 1978, and 1984.

East Texas: 1951, 1952, 1954, 1956. 1964 and 1981.

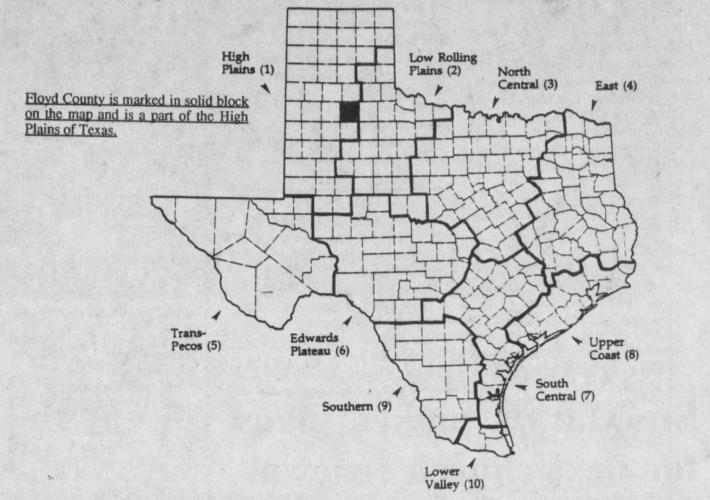

Trans-Pecos: 1934, 1935, 1949 and 1951 through 1957. Edwards Plateau: 1934, 1935, 1951. 1952, 1954, 1955, 1956, 1962, 1963, 1967, 1971 and 1984. South Central Texas: 1951, 1952, 1954, 1955, 1956, 1963, 1964, 1967, 1971 and 1984. Upper Coast: 1951, 1952, 1954,

Southern: 1937, 1951 through 1957. 1962, 1963, 1967, 1971 and 1984.

Lower Valley: 1949, 1950, 1951, 1952, 1953, 1954, 1956 and 1963.

Record number of cattle on feed

Texas consumers will see little price change although cattle feeders in seven major beef-producing states, including Texas, reported a record 7.81 million head on feed the first of June.

"This number reflects a 3 percent increase from last year and is the highest June total since 1978," said Dr. Ernest E. Davis, an economist in livestock marketing with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Davis said that Texas feedlots, however, had 2.13 million head of cattle and calves on feed this June 1, a decrease of 3 percent from 1987.

"Consumers will see little price change because there will be less beef produced the last half of this year," Davis said. "Beef supplies represent a national market, and total beef supplies are down. Even though numbers and placements in June were there due to early marketings as a result of the widespread drought, this will not likely reflect a decrease in costs at the meat counter," "We are looking at still smaller beef supplies in the future on cow and nonfed steer and heifer slaughter. Thus, consumers likely will see little difference in the retail price structure for beef," said Davis.

"Even though total numbers of cattle on feed nationally were the highest in 10 years, part of this activity was due to increased marketing of cattle from drought-stricken ranges over the U.S. Many of these cattle would not normally have been placed on the market until August or September," Davis said.

In addition, Davis said that large numbers of fed cattle were marketed in May, a 14 percent higher level than a year ago and the most for May since "These marketings kept feedlots current and minimized price discounting of unwanted over-finished cattle. But supplies of feeder cattle overall are dwindling rapidly and may send cattle feeders scrambling for feeder supplies this fall," Davis said.

It is possible, Davis said, that the highest price for feeder cattle will occur counter-seasonal this fall.

PCG adopts 1988-89 budget Directors of Lubbock-based Plains Chairman and Secretary-Treasurer

Cotton Growers, Inc. July 13 adopted a "lean, forward-looking" 1988-89 budget of $270,000, the exact figure recommended by the organization's Finance Committee. President and Finance Committee member Larry Nelson of Tulia who presented the committee's itemized proposal in the absence of Committee

Wayne Huffaker of Tahoka. The new budget represents a 5.2 percent increase from the previous fiscal year, Nelson said, but still leaves room for replenishing what had been steadily declining The description came from PCG Vice reserve funds. PCG budgets for the past several years have been geared to dues income from average annual crops of two million bales. That plan, Nelson noted, has resulted in net deficit spending in three of the past four years when production averaged only 1.7 million bales. For the years 1984, 1985, 1986 and 1987, expenditures exceeded income by a total of $193,000, "which makes it a real pleasure," Nelson said, " to report that the 2.7 million bale 1987 crop makes it possible to put back a little over $100,000 of that loss."

The 25-county service organization's financing comes from 25 cents per bale producer dues, supplemented by dues from oil mills, compresses, banks and other cotton-related businesses either directly or indirectly affected by the volume of High Plains production.

In other action, four new members were elected to the PCG Executive Committee, including Miles Caudle of Hereford, R.H. Reaves of Levelland, Don Langston of Lubbock and Bruce Key of Tarzan. They replace Bert Williams of Farwell, Bennie Claunch of Bula, Randy Arnold of Spur and Jarrell Edwards of O'Donnell. Re-elected to

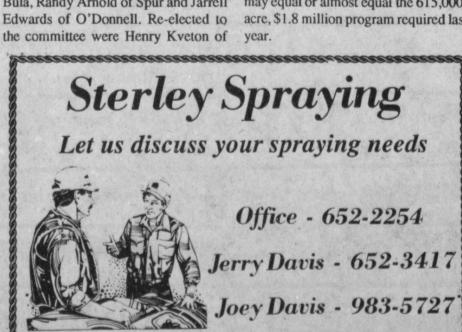

Petersburg and D.C. Newsom, Jr. of

Under PCG By-Laws the six elected members will serve with officers Verett, Nelson and Huffaker and the two most recent past presidents, Myrl D. Mitchell of Lenorah and Tommy Fondren of

Two of the four elected members of the Nominating Committee will be new this year. They are Edwards and Rex McKinney of Lubbock, filling vacancies created by Huffaker's election to Secretary-Treasurer and Arnold's resignation from the board last year. Retained on the committee from last year are Kveton and Frank Jones of Lamesa. These are automatically joined on the committee by the three most recent past presidents, Mitchell, Fondren and Gerald Caswell of Brownfield.

Edwards, Chairman of the Boll Weevil Steering Committee, told the board that increasing trap catches of weevils both inside and outside the control zone in the past 10 days had decidedly altered prospects for the 1988 control effort. As of the end of June, trappings this year were down over 70 percent from 1987, giving hope the 1988 spray program would be significantly smaller and less expensive. But a surge in the numbers since July 1, Edwards said, now raises the possibility that this year's spraying may equal or almost equal the 615,000acre, $1.8 million program required last

Veterans Administration reviews radiation claims

The Veterans Administration has begun reviewing disability compensation claims of veterans exposed to radiation while on active duty, and their survivors, under new authority recently conferred by Congress.

Legislation signed by President Reagan May 20 authorized payments to veterans suffering from any of 13 types of cancer, and their survivors.

To qualify for the disability compensation the disease must be rated 10 percent or more disabling and the veteran must have been exposed in one of three active duty situations: participating in a test atmospheric detonation of a nuclear device; serving occupation duty in Hiroshima or Nagasaki, Japan, between August 6, 1945, and July 1, 1946; or exposure while a prisoner of war in Japan.

Claims involving the 13 cancers already on file with the VA are being reviewed for eligibility. Other claims may be filed from among some 300,000 veterans who were in areas of possible

The diseases automatically assumed by the law to qualify for compensation are the following cancers: leukemia other than chronic lymphocytic leukemia, thyroid, breast, pharynx, esophagus, stomack, small intestine, pancreas, multiple myeloma, lymphomas except Hodgkin's disease, bile duct, gall bladder, and liver except when cirrhosis or hepatitis B is indicated.

The law restricts compensation to those veterans whose disease became evident within 40 years of exposure, beginning on the last date on which the veteran participated in a radiation-risk activity, except for leukemia, which has a 30-year limit.

Monthly compensation payments to veterans range from $71 to $1,411. Additional payments may be awarded for certain severe disabilities. For survivors, benefits range from $518 to $1,327 a month, depending upon the pay grade of the veteran while on active duty.

Veterans or survivors with claims already on file are being considered for disability compensation. Other veterans exposed to radiation should file a claim immediately at the nearest 58 VA regional offices across the country.

News and Views from Cedar Hill

Weather July 18 through 25 has kept our farm equipment parked on the turnrows most of the time. Plows muddied along in some fields both Sunday and Monday, however, a few farms close to the canyons got another light shower Sunday night. Then Monday evening and night there was a general downpour with two to two and one fourth inches reported from every source. This rain fell on saturated ground and quickly ran into the lakes. The soil, already packed and smoothed by previous rains, began to dry quickly and by Saturday some tractors were working again. Some of our weediest land is having to be shredded ahead of the plows. Highway 97 still has a water free strip a good four lanes wide as it crosses Lake Cedar Hill.

Cotton continues its rapid growth. Some fields already have cotton so tall that it will lap in the middles as soon as the weight of a few large boles is added to the stalks. It is becoming common in fields requiring the application of insecticides to also include a growth retardant in the spray mix. One grower, who has delayed spraying retardant, hoping to try. also eliminate a crop of insects in a single application, says he can wait no longer. He will fly "PIX" on alone. I have heard no report of leaf worm infestation, but nature has provided conditions that are ideal for their development. Leaf worm millers are dependable enough that you can count on them getting here, eating their way into the farmer's budget. The complaint most often heard, in addition to the cotton's rapid growth, is that the plants are not. Tech this fall, said she had been given producing as many squares as the growers would like to see.

Hay that was windrowed any time in the last sixty days has experienced difficult times, particularly the alfalfa. Much of it has been lost, however the early planted sorghums, like the cotton, are making rapid growth and look very good. Already there is sufficient moisture in the ground to carry the early hay. Although the best seeding time for late hay is now, or is rapidly approaching, some growers must first battle with the disposal of a rank growth of weeds before seeding can begin.

Milo/corn continue to be the standout prospects for 1988. They too have had nearly perfect growing conditions with watering expenses being the lowest they have been in years. However one field man from a hybrid seed company has recommended that irrigation be started on their seed blocks by August first unless it rains again.

Onions have been a fiasco this year. A low price and the bad weather probably share equal blame for the situation. Not one load of Cedar Hill onions has moved to market, and plows have already claimed some of the rain-damaged patches. Others, with tons and tons of quality onions in their fields, reluctant to administer the death blow to their dreams, will do their plowing later. A very bitter pill to swallow, but simply a casualty of the economy.

Cucumber harvest has begun but it is still too early to predict it's economic impact. Recently average sized slicers have been seen marked at two for a dollar in nearby grocery stores. If that can be used as a yardstick cucumbers may do quite well.

Squash, pumpkin and cantaloupe were in the earlier plans of some of our farmers but were marked off one by one as time and price changes took their toll.

side except to go see her doctor. Later, Tuesday, Cephus and Imogene went on over to Clara Mize's home. Now Clara's daughter-in-law, Betty, was tending to business elsewhere for a minute and, when Cephus and Imogene first arrived, the incorrigible Clara, with no one to keep an eye on her, had sneaked out in the yard and was picking bagworms off the shrubs. Heat stress warnings Listening to the "heat stress" or "heat according to Dr.Clift Price, associate give in their summer weathercasts could help prevent situations leading to dehydration and sun stroke.

In recent years, meteorologists have begun using the terms, "heat stress" or "heat index" to describe the relationship between temperatures and humidity,

Dr. Price explained that the heat stress index is a numerical table by which the National Weather Service rates the degree of discomfort a person may feel at a given temperature and humidity.

Although the table does not allow for the variables of wind and shade, which Dr. Price said, can greatly influence an individual's tolerance of heat and hu-

This kind of familiarity with pestitial problems," said Dr. Phil Hamman, entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"There are so many different products on the market today, all aimed at taking care of specific problems, such as home pests, lawn and garden pests, and plant diseases. Use of pesticides has become quite complicated over the years, and that's where the danger lies," Hamman

"With specific products for specific pest problems, safety with pesticides is all the more important today," said the entomologist. "There are hosts of potential risks associated with the use of all of these products as well as specific risks with certain ones.

"That's why it's so important to read the label of a particular product before buying it to make sure it's what you need to handle your specific situation. Then, before using that product, read the label again to make sure you are applying the pesticide properly and using the necessary precautions."

A label on a pesticide container is a legal document, so make sure it's in place at all times, Hamman said. That means storing the pesticide in an area protected from the weather so that neither the product nor the label will deterioriate. Never store leftover pesticides in

WATE FOR POWER

Out on the job, power lines bring needed electricity to the site. But they can be dangerous . . . if you don't watch up! You need to be especially careful when you are handling re-bar, pipes, scaffolding, or tools that are long enough to contact overhead lines. Contact with power lines is also a potential danger to operators of front-end loaders, dump trucks and any other equipment of unusual height.

Keep an eye up for power lines. Watch up, for safety's sake.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX INCREASE

Floyd County will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 1987 by 7.41 percent. Your individual taxes may increase or decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in the taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on August 1, 1988 at 10:00 a.m. in the County Courtroom of Floyd County.

FOR: William D. Hardin, Sam Spence, Floyd Jackson, Thomas Warren and Kay Crabtree AGAINST: None

PRESENT AND NOT VOTING: None

ABSENT: None

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the effective tax rate that the unit published on June 23, 1988. The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual tax may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	LAST YEAR	THIS YEAR
Average home value	$ 16,750.00	$ 16,840.00
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)		-0-
Average taxable value	$ 16,750.00	$ 16,840.00
Tax- rate	.272	.29
Tax	$ 45.56	$ 48.84

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would increase by $3.28 or 7.2 percent compared with last year's taxes.

Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would increase by 1.8 cents per $100 of taxable value or 6.62 percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

To all of our Floydada and Floyd County

OF THANKS

We have always felt that Floyd

County was the best place in Texas to live. After going through the loss of two of our dear ones, we know that is true.

For everything we are so grateful. The prayers, kind sweet words of comfort, for the memorial gifts to the Paula

Porter scholarship fund, the gravestone fund for her, the beautiful flowers, all as a memorial to my dear Tom. To all who brought food and did such a great service for our families. We want everyone to know we love and apprecimake this still a better world.

Let us all keep loving each other and Words cannot express how much we appreciate the many acts of love shown to us after the loss of our loved one,

your thoughtfulness and prayers have helped us through this sad time in our lives. He loved as much as he was loved

Dickie and Linda Hudgens & family

We the family would like to express our sincere thanks to all the wonderful friends and neighbors who came to the memorial service for Nicolas C. Montes at the Baptist Church in South Plains.

We would like to give special thanks to Don, Fred, Keith and their families and also to the fine job done by Bro. Tom

Fisher. We have enjoyed all the visits,

Valentina & Herminio Hernandez

Your expressions of concern, the prayers, visits, flowers, food and many expressions of sympathy at the illness and passing of our loved one are deeply appreciated. May God richly bless you
