The Lamplighter

By Ken Towery

Are we getting fewer but richer? We may as well visit this issue one more time. Hopefully, that will be it until the "official" 1990 census.

You may remember, gentle reader, the flap caused back in March, when the State Department of Commerce, relying on data supplied by a variety of sources and compiled by Texas A&M, estimated the population of Floydada at 3,431, a decline of 18.17 percent from the 4,193 who showed up on the census in 1980.

We took exception to those "estimates" here at the paper, pointing out that our own check of many of the same "indicators" did not match those published. We granted that there may have been some decline since 1980, but nothing like 18 percent.

Now the South Plains Association of Governments has issued its own estimate. They estimate our county's population dropped 9.6 percent between 1980 and 1986, that Floydada's population dropped 12.6 percent (530 people) and that Lockney's population dropped 0.3 percent (10 people).

While all that was happening everybody was getting richer, according to SPAG. The "per capita" income throughout the county jumped 33.4 percent. Income within the city limits of Floydada went up 37.7 percent, from $5,087 to $7,005. That would mean the "average" household income jumped from about $15,000 to $21,000. In Lockney the figures are even more startling. Per capita income jumped from $4,688 in 1979 to $7,217 in 1985, an increase of 53.9 percent.

SPAG did not estimate what happened in 1986 or 1987, as far as income is concerned, but we would note that the 1987 Floyd County cotton crop was worth approximately $42 million, according to figures furnished us by the Plains Cotton Growers Inc. That, since we are playing with figures, translates into some $4,719 "per capita" income for every man, woman and child in the county from the cotton crop alone.

We would point out that an "estimate" is little more than an educated guess, as long as it doesn't cost money. So it is relatively easy to estimate something if we know our estimate won't cost us. Our own estimate is that the estimates we have received up to now are a little off base. We estimate we'll just have to wait until 1990 to be "relatively" sure.

In the meantime there's one thing about which we are sure. A city doesn't have to be "big" to have spirit. It doesn't have to be "big" to have involved citizens. It doesn't have to be "big" to be a nice place to live. We've got all that here in Floyd County. And the welcome mat is out.

And just in case anyone out there starts to get lonely. The same mailing from SPAG that gave us some of the estimates above also estimates that Lamb County lost 2,200 people during that time, that Hale County lost 700, that Dickens lost 17 percent (600 people), Crosby County dropped 600 folks, Motley is supposed to have lost 200 and Lynn lost 1,000. Lubbock gained 13,000 countywide, as did a few, very few, other counties covered by the report.

Speaking of people, and numbers, and income. In another bit of statistics that crossed our desk this week, we learn that there are now 2.7 million federal employees in the United States, occupying 2.6 billion square feet of office space, the equivalent of all of the office space in our ten largest cities multiplied by four. And a proof reader in the Government Printing Office in Washington makes $32,000 per year. He, or she, can retire on 82 percent of final salary. That's about twice as much as a proof reader in a similar job in the private sector earns. And they retire on Social Security.

Sleep well.

Winds to contend for title

By Bill Gray

For many years, most pre-season forecasts on South Plains schoolboy football have included Littlefield, with headlines such as, "Wildcats to Defend Title." 1988 is no exception — a majority of sportswriters have once again tabbed the 'Cats as the team to beat in order to reach the 2AAA throne room and post-season play. Littlefield's record in the past forty years speaks for itself. The Wildcats have captured one State Championship (1949) and appeared in the playoffs no less than sixteen times, mostly in the last twenty years.

It has been said that predicting football outcomes in West Texas is about as precarious as foretelling cotton futures and local weather. Those writers who pick the "Odessa Permain" and "Oklahoma Sooners" year in and year out are very comfortable in projecting Littlefield as the class of the district this year. They know there is an assurance of their selection being at or near the top at season's end. It could be...and should be! The Wildcats have the history and tradition to dictate such an outcome.

A number of writers (including Sam Mayo of Top of Texas Football) once again project the Wildcats of Littlefield to dominate 2AAA. Mayo's publication picks Floydada to finish fifth in a six-team race. Dave Campbell's staff at Texas Football selects the 'Winds as the fourth best team in the league. This writer, who might be a little biased, disagrees with these "experts"! I certainly wouldn't want to call this shot on the 'Winds and then have to face Adam Cates or a Leonard King in a lighted alley! I do not feel these pundits have given the 'Winds a fair shake in their pre-season polls, and would surely like to see Floydada prove them wrong.

The Whirlwinds are hungry — they came within an eyelash of making the post-season tournament last year. With the nucleus of a stingy defense that was awesome at times in '87, and perhaps the best Sophomore runningback in all of West Texas, the 'Winds should be considered legitimate contenders for the crown. Barring injury to key people, Floydada just might grab that golden ring. In a district that had a combined record of 38 wins, 20 losses, and 2 ties (.633 winning percentage) last year, it is obvious that any team with championship aspirations has a long and rugged road to navigate.

Fryona will be a threat and should figure in the playoff picture when all the dust has settled. Muleshoe has the people coming back that could make things very interesting. Dimmitt enters the campaign with a new coach, Army Salinas, who comes to the basketball stronghold of the Plains with a past record of playoff berths in New Mexico. Salinas spent several years in the suc-

Former battleground site becomes golf course

By Sharon Thames
(Tech Journalism Student)

A century ago the best known battle or skirmish of Floydada was fought along a narrow section of the Blanco Canyon inside what is now Floydada Country Club golf course.

It was boom time in Floyd County in the 1890s. This was a period of Expansionism across the new America. Settlers were actively moving west to set up homesteads. But, boom time would not have been unless the Indians were to go to their peaceful designated reservations organized by the Federal government.

However, the Indians were not cooperating with the government. Bill Gray, Floydada member of the 4th Cavalry, said, "This was a Federal drive to get the Indians and buffalo out so that the people could homestead and bring in the cattle to settle down."

The Comanches, Kiowas, and Quada Indians hunted the buffalo and traded the meat in the Blanco Canyon area for whatever they needed that other Indians could supply them with.

By the 1870s, white men came across the plains to hunt the buffalo when they discovered the hides could be tanned. Soon the buffalo was gone and the Indians became restless.

In August of 1870, Colonel Ranald Sidel MacKenzie of New York was ordered by the government to have his 4th Cavalry move the Comanche tribe to their Oklahoma reservation.

Quannah Parker was the last chief of the Comanche tribe. James Word, of Floydada, who calls himself an "avocational archeologist," said, "Blanco Canyon is the first major opening of the breakdown in the canyon walls where you can move a large body of people and horses." This opening is also known as Camp Supply.

Of the Blanco Canyon, Word said, "This is where the Indians came out of Camp Supply, because there is not any easy access."

Gray said, "The first battle occurred in Blanco Canyon about five to six miles southeast of Cochran's Peak which is in the middle of the golf course."

On October 8, 1874, the troops set up camp near Mount Blanco in Blanco Canyon to prepare for the battle the following day with the Comanches. However Quannah Parker knew his 300 men would not survive a battle with 4,000 troops.

Late that night, Quannah Parker and his braves led the attack with the intention of stealing only the troops horses, thereby rendering the troops helpless. By happenstance, the battle broke out and one private of the 4th Cavalry died.

Some historians believe that some Comanches when they died were buried with their horse curled up in often a fetal position inside the canyon covered with rocks. This was to prevent the wolves from eating them.

Years later, the private of the 4th Cavalry body was found buried on the side of the canyon and his body was transferred to Arlington Cemetery.

In the late 50s and early 60s, Word said, "I found evidence of a skirmish that had taken place there — I found military buttons." Possibly, the buttons could be from the Battle of 1874.

Information on any battle is supplied by the Army's records.

The campaign to move the Indians onto the reservations covered a period of four years, from 1870-1874, for MacKenzie's troops.

The last battle was in September 1876 in Palo Duro.

By June 1884, Arthur B. Duncan and his family settled in Floyd County. Later, a country club was chartered in the mid 1920s. Golf and fishing were established at the Floydada Country

City assumes control of proposed landfill

The City of Floydada officially assumed possession of a proposed landfill site on August 11, 1988. The site, formerly the property of Helen Faye Hammonds, had been the subject of a trio of court contests during past months.

City manager Gary Brown stated, "We are pleased that the matter has finally been resolved and that all parties involved seem satisfied with the settlement."

Finalization of the transfer came on Thursday when Hammonds presented the city with a deed to the property. City officials executed payment to Hammonds of $24,499.95 for the landfill site plus $4,500 for a roadway easement to reach the site.

Final resolution of the transfer and the related legal proceedings now allows the city to move forward with state mandated testing prior to opening the site to use as a landfill.

Thirty counties voted in the special election. Carriker received 17,408 votes to Republican Bobby Albert's 10,594, said the AP story. (The Secretary of State's office was unable to furnish the Hesperian with any final results.) The two will next compete in a rematch in the November 8 general election.

Briscoe attorney begins write-in DA candidacy

Tom West, currently serving as county attorney in Briscoe County has announced he will be a candidate for district attorney of the 110th Judicial District in the November 8 general election.

West, who is involved in farming and ranching interests in Briscoe County, will run as a write-in candidate because there will be no names from either party on the ballot this fall.

The district is comprised of Floyd, Motley, Dickens and Briscoe counties.

"I'm running for this highly important position because I'm sick and tired of criminals running loose in our area who should be behind bars," West said.

"When a person is convicted of a crime I want them behind bars for the length of their sentence and not to be let loose on some technicality or fancy plea bargain deal.

"If elected district attorney, the saying 'law and order' won't be an empty slogan; because if they do the crime, and are convicted, I'll see they do the time in jail," West said.

He pledged to pinpoint the drug traffic saying, "as district attorney, the four counties I represent will be cleansed of drugs. Whether it be manufacturing, selling, or abusing any controlled illegal substance," he added.

West, who is a Democrat, pointed out the voters will have to take a few seconds longer to write-in his name, adding "but for a job this important I'm confident they will take that time to select the right person, someone like myself who will slam the jail door on the criminals."

A native of Lubbock, West is a 1967 graduate of Texas Tech University and received his law degree from Baylor University in 1969. He has been in private practice of law in Lubbock and Silverton since that time. He became Briscoe County Attorney in 1987.

He has two children, a son, Greg, 17, and a daughter, Catharin, 13.

West, has been admitted to practice law in U.S. District Court in the Northern District of Texas and is a member of the State Bar of Texas, the American College of Legal Medicine, the Texas Trial Lawyers Association as well as the Texas Criminal Lawyers Association, and the National Sheriff's Association.

West has served as a deacon in the First Presbyterian Church and is a member of the Texas District and County Attorneys Association's legislative committee.

He also is a member of the Texas Tech Red Raider Club and the Texas Tech Century Club and of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association as well as an exporter of hybrid grain sorghum.

The Hesperian places second in General Excellence at convention

The Floyd County Hesperian will once again be proudly displaying an award, from the recent West Texas Press Association's newspaper competition, held in Wichita Falls August 12 and 13.

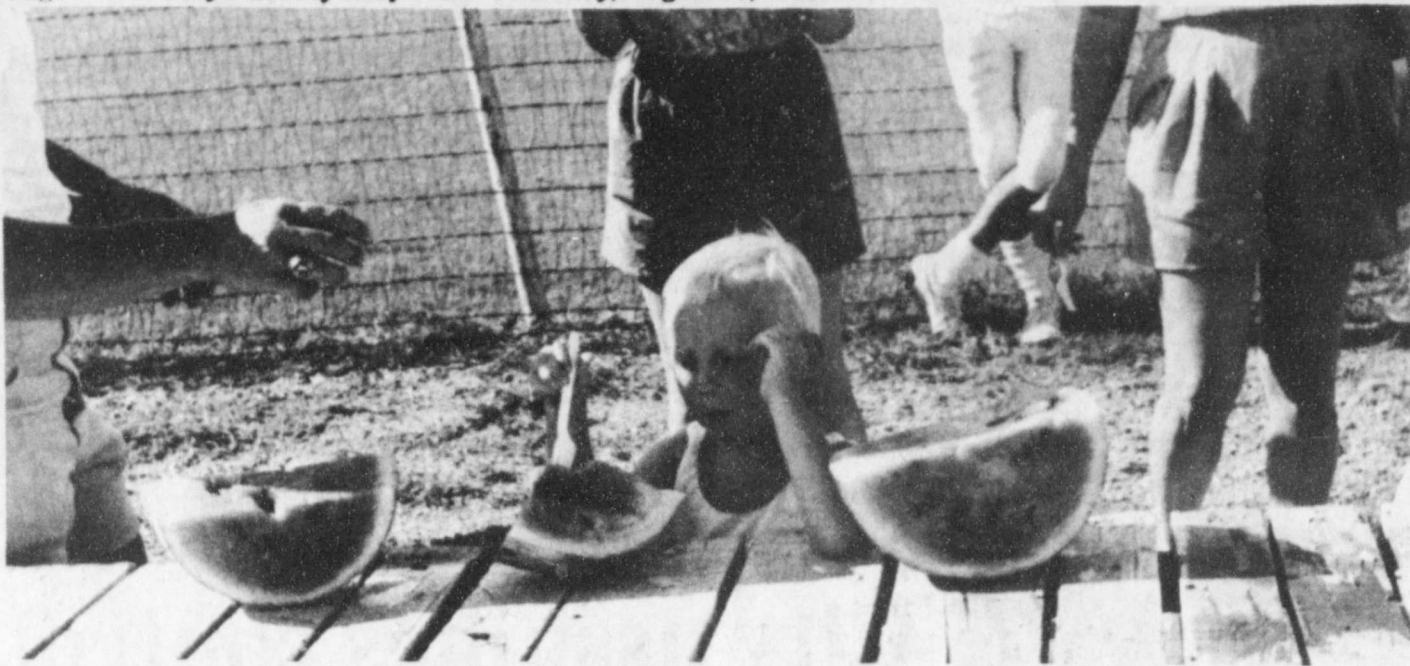

Competing in the category of 3,000 and under circulation, The Hesperian won second place in General Excellence. General Excellence category is judged on overall quality such as news, photos, advertising, and columns.

Judges commented, "There is good overall coverage. Good coverage of the Dougherty fire. The front page of the April 9 paper was simple, modular, balanced and effective."

Accepting the award for The Hesperian was former Editor Jim Reynolds. "The competition was really tough," said Reynolds. We were competing with weekly newspapers of 40 pages or more."

The West Texas Press Association is the largest regional press association in the world.

-Letters To The Editor-

To Floydada Merchants & Chamber of Commerce,
Many thanks for your lovely rest stop. We were getting desperate and very hot. We filled our motor home with gas and bought groceries.

Sincerely, Lauretta Worstell

Dear Editor,

As a native of Floyd County, I have more than a passing interest in the affairs of the community. I have spent the majority of my life in the area and still have many friends and relatives there, including my parents. For the past few years I have been living in Amarillo and although this has altered my perspectives somewhat, I still feel in tune with the average resident of the county. Consequently, I ask your assistance in sharing a few of my concerns with my former neighbors.

In the past, voters have been faced with very little difference between candidates. The few liberal Democrats that made their way to the primary very seldom survived to go on to the general election. In recent years, however, the Democratic Party has been increasingly dominated by the most extreme liberal factions imaginable. This shift has driven many conservatives straight into the waiting arms of the Republicans. The loss of their support has alarmed the liberal wing of the party because they realize that without the votes of traditional Democrats they cannot win elections against Republicans.

This party, now dominated overwhelmingly by liberals, cannot campaign in areas like Floyd County on a liberal agenda without alienating the bulk of the voters there. Their solution? To gloss over their offensive philosophies and attempt to exploit the traditional loyalty of the voters to the Democratic Party. You see, when you agree with a politician on the issues, he will make a big deal about those issues. When he knows that you don't agree, he will try to identify with you some other way. (That's why Eastern politicians wear cowboy hats in Texas.)

I find this exploitation of the voters to be most dishonest and cowardly. A candidate should make his positions clear before the election, and not try and hide behind a party banner in order to slip in unnoticed. Yet this is precisely the strategy of the Democratic Party in this election year. They realize that the majority of voters in Texas, the South, and America as a whole area steadfastly opposed to left-wing politics, so the effort is being made to sweep those offensive issues under the rug until after the election. Now if anyone favors a soft-headed stand toward Communism, a weak national defense, higher spending, higher taxes, abortion, homosexual "rights", gun control, opposition to the death penalty, interference with the free market and international isolationism, then they have a true home in the Democratic Party and they should by all means vote for Michael Dukakis or almost any other Democrat. These views so evenly divide the two parties that you can frequently determine what party a politician belongs to by finding where they stand on these very important issues. Conservative candidates should choose carefully the party they wish to be associated with.

The argument has been made that party affiliation means little at lower levels of government. I have also always heard that baby skunks do not stink. The problem with baby skunks is that they grow up to be big skunks, and little Democrats grow up to be big ones. Once a politician has been elected, the "experience" gained in that office can be used as a springboard to higher office. Richard Gephardt is a prime example of a "conservative" who mysteriously transformed into a liberal when his aspirations outgrew his previous office. Few politicians have the strength to fight both their own party and that of the opposition, so they either give up their convictions or join the party that agrees with them.

I urge the voters of Floyd County to look beyond their traditional voting habits and see whether they are being exploited or truly represented. I have personally examined the Democratic Party and found little hope in their sorry agenda. The left-wing influence has become so powerful within the party that I see neither hope nor reason to expect reform. As this election approaches, let the voters be informed and make intelligent choices. I do not mask my concern for the consequences of a Democratic victory this fall. The damage done to the national security would be immense, the taxpayers would without doubt be saddled with greater burdens and the strength of the American family would be further undermined. It is time for the decent, hard-working people of Texas to prove that we will not be deceived by cheap politicians seeking to enact their liberal policies at our expense.

Sincerely,
Shannon D. Norris

Police respond to few calls

Floydada police had a relatively quiet week in the city.

Only one burglary was reported this week to police. A business in the 200 block of West Houston was entered sometime between Aug. 10 and Aug. 11 by prying the front door open. Drawers were emptied and papers were thrown around the room. No money was stolen.

On August 14 at 12:30 a.m., police answered a call of an alleged assault in the 100 block of Ollie Street. No charges have been filed at this time.

August 15, at 8:45 p.m., police responded to a call of a domestic quarrel in the 500 block of West Virginia. One man was arrested and charged with public intoxication.

The only accident reported to police last week was an accident in the 300 block of South Wall on August 13, at 10:16 a.m. A 1985 Ford F150 pickup was backing from an angle space as a 1983 Ford F150 pickup was pulling into the adjoining area. The bumper of the 1985 Ford hit the left rear quarter panel of the 1983 Ford.

Courtroom Activities

In county court on August 16, James Michael Criswell filed a speeding appeal. There was no disposition on this case.

Also on August 16, Feliciano Mondragon was charged with assault with bodily injury. There was no disposition on this case.

In J.P. court there were three administrative hearings on drivers license. The two week period of August 2-16, there were 56 misdemeanor cases filed.

successful program at Plainview with Greg Sherwood, and he knows how to motivate youngsters. Dimmitt will no longer be the patsy of 2AAA.

Last, but far from least, is Tulia. You can rest assured that the Hornets will be in the hunt. L.G. Wilson, one of the most respected names in coaching in our area, always has a "competitive team." His Hornets knocked Littlefield out of sole first place last year earning the number one seed in the playoffs. Few coaches are able to generate momentum like L.G., and when the battle lines are drawn, his troops will be there ready to play.

Before finalizing the predictions for district play, let's take a look at the five squads the Whirlwinds will face prior to district competition. One could not commence the season with a more able opponent than the Idalou Wildcats, who have been moved from AAA to AA — where they will be a real factor in post-season play. On September 2 the Wildcats come to our house with possibly the best all-around player in West Texas, QB Tracy Saul. Floydada's defense will certainly be tested by this versatile athlete who is major college potential (take heed, Texas Tech!).

The second week, the 'Winds travel to Lubbock Roosevelt, a program that has been turned around in recent years. Although the Eagles fell on hard times in '87 (with a 2-8 record), they return sixteen lettermen. They will be a whole lot better than their '87 showing would indicate. The third game is Floydada's Homecoming, and the Lockney Longhorns come to visit.

Move over Auburn-Alabama; Texas-Texas A&M; Lubbock High vs. Monterey! Relatively speaking, few rivalries match that of the two Floyd County high schools. This is schoolboy football at its best. All records are thrown out the window. For 364 days a year (except for a couple of basketball games and a track meet or two), these two towns and their teams cheer each other on to victory. But, ever since the two schools took up the game, their annual showdown for the County Championship has been ALL OUT WAR (and no prisoners taken). It matters not that the 'Winds and 'Horns are no longer in the same district or classification — this contest is still the "game of the year" in the eyes and hearts of many. What a Homecoming this should be!

The Whirlwinds then travel to Canyon, a 4A team moved back to 3A this year. The Eagles are coming off a quarter-finals appearance in 1987. Although hit hard by graduation and the transfer of several skilled people to Canyon Randall, the Eagles will be a formidable foe as the 'Winds prepare for district play. The last pre-season opponent is Abernathy, a club that Floydada used to dominate. In recent years the Antelopes have had little trouble handling the 'Winds. This year will spell change. The Whirlwinds will use their victory over the 'Lopes as the springboard into the rough waters of 2AAA. Without further comment, here are this writer's predictions for the District 2AAA outcome in 1988 (and, Alice cannot be held liable for these prognostications):

- (Listed by team, district record, season record)
1. Tulia, 4-1, 9-1
  2. Floydada, 4-1, 8-2
  3. Littlefield, 3-2, 7-3
  4. Friona, 3-2, 6-4
  5. Dimmitt, 1-4, 3-7
  6. Muleshoe, 1-4, 2-8
- (P.S...and I still haven't found that blasted crystal ball!)

Happenings at Caprock Hospital

Everyone seems to be taking a last fling at getting out of town before the summer eases to end and the routine of Fall and school converges upon us. Staffing at the hospital has been stretched and all staff utilized to the fullest to enable some to be off and vacation with their families.

Nell McClung has been on vacation this week. She has been visiting with relatives, enjoying time at home and has made a trip to San Angelo.

Dr. Hale and his family have been in New York attending a medical conference and sightseeing.

Joyce Smith, LVN, from the day shift is not vacationing but is convalescing following surgery at our hospital this week. Get Well Quick, Joyce!

Folks we have a very good surgeon at our hospital. Dr. Lopez does excellent work and his patients recover very well. It says something for a doctor's ability and skill when those who work with him entrust themselves and their family to his care. Many of our staff have chosen Dr. Lopez as their surgeon for themselves and their families, when the need for surgery arose.

We have 12 people signed up for our ECA Class which will be beginning in September. We urge anyone interested to call and sign up.

This week we want you to get to know our administrator Leroy Schaffner, a little better. Leroy came to Floydada from Springfield, Colorado, in 1984. Before coming here he was a lab manager at Southeast Colorado Hospital in Springfield. He received his training and some college while in the service. Leroy has continued his education as he was able to fit it in with his job.

While working full-time and taking weekend lab call he took classes at night and graduated from Wayland Baptist University in 1987 with a degree in business. This same year he was named administrator at Caprock Hospital. He is continuing his education while carrying a very heavy work load of administrator, working some in the lab and x-ray, taking call every other weekend and even driving the ambulance some. He hopes to complete the work for his master's degree sometime next spring.

Social Security in Floyd County

By Terry J. Clements

For many years, Social Security assumed that a beneficiary would receive benefits by check through the mail. From now on, if you are applying for benefits, Social Security will assume that you want to have your benefits paid directly into your bank account.

The step is a result of technological improvements which make the electronic transfer of funds a great deal more efficient than the paperwork involved in the old method. As a result, the Treasury Department no longer requires that beneficiaries complete an authorization form at their financial institution for direct deposit. Now, during the initial claims interview, the Social Security representative can input their request for direct deposit directly into the computer and start the direct deposit process along with the processing of their claim.

Direct deposit has been around since 1975. Today more than 48 percent of Social Security beneficiaries have the service. Most people chose it as a matter of convenience. It eliminates waiting at the mailbox for the check to come, waiting in line to cash a check, and the risk of loss or theft of the check. The convenience is especially important to disabled and elderly beneficiaries whose mobility may be limited. But it has also become the choice of people who appreciate the convenience of not worrying about their check when they are away from home.

Direct deposit is a more cost-effective method for the Government. It eliminates the cost of storage, handling, or postage for checks. The Treasury Department spends only 4 cents to issue a direct deposit benefit, and about 29 cents to issue a check.

People who are already receiving their benefits by check can arrange for direct deposit simply by calling the nearest Social Security office with their checking account or savings account number. Social Security can arrange to have their checks routed directly to their accounts.

For more information, or to file a claim, call 293-9623.

Leroy and his wife, Louann are parents of three sons. They are faithful members of the Bible Baptist Church.

It takes a very unique leader today to keep our small hospital going. There is the constant hassle of trying to make finances stretch and decisions made of what comes first, getting payroll together every two weeks and what bills can be paid. It would astound most folks to know the short rope and the pressure that our administrator works under.

We are very fortunate to have the Schaffner family as a part of our community, they are a real asset to us. Surely a man who has given as much to our community as Leroy deserves our appreciation and thanks. If you do not know Leroy, make it a point to. He is a fine young man who is working very hard for all of us.

HEALTH TIP

Staying in Control!

Once you have started to work toward your blood pressure goal, you may be surprised to find it easier and less complicated than you thought it would be. A good way to see progress toward your goal is to keep your own record of your blood pressure measurements. After each doctor's visit, write down your measurement on a chart and see how close you are getting toward your goal.

Remember, because high blood pressure cannot be cured, you must control it for the rest of your life. Once you have reached your goal and your blood pressure is controlled, you must continue to follow your prescribed treatment. If you stop treatment, your blood pressure may rise again, increasing your chances of stroke, heart disease and kidney damage. See your doctor for regular check-ups, and continue to follow his or her advice. Meet the challenge of high blood pressure control!

News and Views from Cedar Hill

By Carl Lemons

Weather continues hot and dry. Almost every day we can see a cloud trailing its long curved streamers of falling rain, but it amounts to no more than enough to barely lay the dust. Just enough to wash dust from the leaves and keep the right amount of moisture for the bollworm eggs to get a good hatch. Heaviest rainfall appears to be along a two mile wide strip from the Essly Yearly place to the P.M. Smitherman place on the Silverton highway then on north past the head of the canyon to the east of South Plains. Accumulations up to three inches have been reported from that area. Over there we stand and look across to a land flowing with milk and honey (rain, that is.)

CROP COMMENTS

Corn is doing fine and still looks like our best irrigated crop, but harvest, in spite of excellent dry-down weather, will do well to be started in the next 30 days.

Cotton continues to be the focus of most activity. Driving along the roads many blossoms can be seen high up on the stalks, a sure sign that growth has slowed, and that it will be difficult to keep adequate moisture in the soil to prevent the plants from filling the water furrows and middles with thrown-off squares and small bolls. The sound of lake pump motors can be heard both day and night. It appears that our lakes will have sufficient water to finish the cotton's needs. In a few instances the deep wells will be called on to furnish water for the last few acres. Spray planes are still being heard everyday, but hoeing is virtually over. Almost every day a brown man from the valley, with a young interpreter in tow, will come knocking at the door, "You gotta cot for hoe?"

Cucumber harvesting continues on a regular basis. Growers are having some difficulty trying to squeeze in waterings between picking days. Cucumbers may not be of much net profit to the grower, but action at the cash registers sure is good for the local merchants.

Hay crops that have a thick stand are rapidly depleting their moisture supplies. Other fields were so dry at sowing time that many seeds failed to germinate and must have more rain before there will be a good stand.

Milo seed plots and parent plots both continue to be shaped-up by roguing crews. Some commercial milo that has been watered looks like a possible 10,000 lb. yield. The berries are fully developed but still have their green color. Actually, being filled with a moist, doughy substance that will dry out as the crop matures, the grains are probably larger, but not as heavy, as they will be at harvest time. Flocks of blackbirds or starlings already have the milo patches under surveillance in anticipation of their annual fall fiesta.

Vegetable grower J.D. Busby brought the first two gallons of his '88 tomato crop from the field to the stand Monday, Aug. 15. They were Romas and they were excellent. A little too green for the table, but by the time you read this limited picking will be practical. Romas are a pasta variety used mostly for processing, but by August 25, harvesting of the larger sandwich tomatoes will be underway. Harvesting of blackeye peas continues with an occasional interruption due to the vines having to be irrigated again.

In early June of this year a walk through the store of a local consignment merchant revealed a stock of unbelievable proportions. Clothing hung on racks, was stacked on shelves, and piled on window ledges. Nooks and crannies held used washing machines, bicycles, cook stoves, radios, small kitchen appliances, you name it, it was there. It was so completely filled that one would have to turn sideways to negotiate some aisles. The back room of the building was as crowded as the front. As a joke one prospective customer selected a particularly hemmed-in refrigerator and asked how they would ever get it out for him. He was told they would open the back door and carry enough merchandise outside to make a path to get his refrigerator out. Less than 60 days later a visit to the same store found the front of the store sparsely stocked, a short rack of clothing here, another item over there, and the back room was practically empty.

How could this be: had management changed? Had policy changed and consignors been asked to take their belongings back home? Had consignors become disenchanted and donated their items to goodwill? How do you explain a business that was stocked to the point of bursting at the seams, suddenly gone short on merchandise?

None of these, the merchandise had all gone out past the cash register, and had been sold at the prices listed. You probably already know the answer, but some of us live so far out in the country it has to be spelled out for us. Cotton prospects looked good, but the crop was very weedy. Overnight the small towns, Plainview included, sold out of chopping hoes. Vegetable packing sheds opened for business, harvest crews moved to the onion fields, and cucumber and cabbage trucks began rolling. Every John and Mary, every Juan and Maria, that wanted to work had a paycheck coming in. They had been doing without, now they had money, and things they needed were close by and cheap.

Stanley and Doug drove down from Amarillo where they had flown on Wednesday, August 10. In Amarillo they visited with Stanley's brothers, Robert and Fred. They returned to Amarillo Friday for another short visit then back to Houston on Saturday.

Edna Gilly made a trip to Floydada's Caprock Hospital to visit Clara Redd. Clara had recently undergone surgery.

Two of our prominent cotton farmers Craig Gilly and Jerry Lackey, both eligible for heavy bollworm spraying expenses, elected to treat their families to the traditional "just before school starts junket" by settling on a budget trip to Carlsbad Caverns. Although it was pleasantly cool in the caverns, by Monday both had returned to duty with their regular worm-watcher units, and were counting on completing their tours of duty in the heat and desiccation of the cotton patch.

Shelia Joiner and son, Nick from Irving, Texas, arrived last mid-week to spend a few days with her parents, Junior and Martha Taylor. Like most classroom teachers and their pupils Shelia and Nick will be back in the educational swing the last week of August.

Jenese Lisenbee and daughter, Tonya from Seagraves visited over the weekend in the Phil Lemons and Carl Lemons homes. Jenese and Phil's family accompanied W.T. and Laverne Cooper to see the musical "God's Country" in White River canyon last Saturday night.

Attendance at the Fortenberry reunion could easily have been as many as 200 persons. Ninety-eight sat in the business meeting with an estimate of 40 who did not come inside for the meeting. Many, many came Friday night who had Saturday jobs and could not return. Then somehow meetings of that nature, tend to gain greatly in numbers when the lunch line begins to form. Certainly participation in activities was the best ever. Excellent programs and good leadership were provided. New and outstanding was the musical presentation titled "Ceph and Ann Fortenberry's Dream", presented by the Joe Fortenberry branch of the family. Much could, and should, be written about the inception, the originality, and the effort that went into the production of this work. In fact it's magnitude seems to justify a feature article.

Among a number of special "out of the family" guests who attended were Clarence and Opal Guffee who were at the helm of Cedar Hill School during the darkest days of the depression. Clarence kept tight control over a bunch of us young renegades during the years 1929-1933 and possibly the year 1928-29. Next to their parents some Cedar Hillians reflect more the influence of Clarence Guffee than any other individual they ever met.

Williams honored by colleagues

Mrs. Joyce Williams of Floydada will be presented an award by the Vocational Home Economics Teachers Association of Texas at the organization's Twenty-Fifth Annual Awards Banquet to be held at the Hyatt Regency DFW on Wednesday, August 17. The award is in recognition of service to the teaching profession.

Mrs. Joyce Williams, a teacher at Floydada I.S.D. school, will also participate in a three and one-half day conference for the professional development of vocational home economics teachers.

The conference, coordinated by the Vocational Home Economics Division of the Texas Education Agency, will focus on new content in the vocational home economics program as set forth in the Master Plan for Vocational Education. The Master Plan was approved by the State Board of Education earlier in the year. Twenty-three concurrent sessions have been designed to provide teachers with the foundation to effectively include the new concepts in all areas of instruction in home economics education. Content, approaches, background, research and strategies for teaching will be included. In addition, sixteen new curriculum guides will be introduced. Topics to be addressed include discussions of Nanny care, a new concept in child care training; computer revolutionizing the textile and apparel industry; help for school age parents; life management skills; the impact of technology on the housing industry; key developments in the science of food and nutrition; and positive outcomes with the at-risk student.

Nationally known speakers will highlight the three general conference sessions. Maureen Burns, author and educator, will keynote the conference with an address on motivation, self-growth, positive mental attitude and communication. Early childhood education specialist Carol Hoffman, will discuss the underlying causes of human behavior. The conference will close with an address by Judith Moyers, a home economist who serves on the board of Paine Webber Investment Funds, the Ogdan Group, Capital Research Group of California, and spends two days a week working as vice chairman of the board of trustees of the State University of New York system.

Mary Harrison, of Canyon, president of the Vocational Home Economics Teachers Association, said, "The outstanding inservice for vocational home economics teachers provides them with the tools to teach today's youth skills for a lifetime. The comprehensive inservice will be both educational and futuristic."

Harrison said approximately 2600 teachers are expected to attend the conference.

Texas highways still await a 'deathless day'

In the first half of the summer driving season, Texas didn't see a single day without a traffic death.

The Texas Coalition for Safety Belts had not achieved its goal of "One Deathless Day" as of July 15, coalition spokesperson George R. Gustafson announced. Gustafson is president of Texas Safety Association, one of the 49 member groups which make up the statewide coalition.

"Since our last progress report on June 15, we've had four days when only three people were killed. All the other days have had higher fatality counts," said Gustafson. "The summer's deadliest day so far was Saturday, June 25, with 20 traffic deaths."

Days with three fatalities apiece were June 21, July 4, July 5, and July 13, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety. "All counts are preliminary at this time, and subject to change," said Gustafson. "Still, it's worth noting that July 4 and 5, coming at the end of a holiday weekend, have been two of our best days. Last year we lost 21 lives in July 4 accidents, and seven on July 5."

The coalition hopes to achieve one deathless day during the 101 Driving Days of Summer, May 28-September 5. Despite the early reports, Gustafson says the group is not discouraged.

"In a state the size of Texas, with 300,000 miles of roadways and more than 11 million licensed drivers, a day without a single traffic death is a tall order. We knew that from the beginning," he said. The last deathless day on Texas roads was January 5, 1977.

Gustafson commended law enforcement agencies, community groups, and the media for the way they are responding to the campaign to increase safety belt use and other safe driving habits.

"With so many committed Texans working together, we believe that we can still achieve one day without a traffic death between now and the end of Labor Day weekend," he added. "We're asking everyone to continue buckling up and keep trying."

Have a Good Week!

VA questions

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are representative questions answered daily by VA counselors. Full information is available at any VA office.

Q—How much will the participant be reimbursed for training by correspondence under the Montgomery GI Bill?

A—Reimbursement will be for 55 percent of the approved established charges for the course.

Q—My application for a VA pension was turned down several years ago because my income was too high. There have been some changes in my health and income over the last few years. Should I apply again?

A—Entitlement to pension is based on your countable income which can be reduced by medical and certain other expenses. Also the income limitation is raised each year and your income may not have increased at the same rate. You should check with your local VA office to determine if you are now eligible to receive a pension.

Q—May a veteran be covered under National Service Life Insurance and Veterans Group Life Insurance at the same time?

A—Yes. The programs are totally separate.

Floydada's fire fighters 'fill the boot' for MDA

The Floydada Fire Fighters will be conducting a street corner collection on Saturday, August 27. They will be collecting donations for the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) with fire fighter boots in a nationwide "Fill the Boot" drive.

For over 20 years, they have been supporting MDA in West Texas through volunteer work at telethon time and through many fund-raising events.

The Fire Fighters are a national cooperating organization of MDA which has raised over 60 million dollars in the fight against 40 muscle diseases. They have been part of the MDA family since the founding of MDA over 35 years ago.

All Floydada citizens are encouraged to give generously during the "Fill the Boot" drive when approached by a fire fighter at a traffic-lighted intersection in the city. Other contributions can be made to MDA on behalf of the fire fighters by mailing a donation to the Floydada Fire Department.

SCS practical approach praised

The Soil Conservation Service was praised for the practical approach it is using to implement conservation provisions of the 1985 farm law.

Frank Jones, Lamesa, Texas, cotton producer, told a House Agriculture subcommittee that SCS's use of alternative conservation compliance systems rather than strict use of "T" values significantly reduces erosion without imposing unreasonable economic costs on producers or taxpayers.

"No compromise is made in technical standards because the alternative systems consist of high quality practices that incorporate the seasoned judgment of SCS conservations and their experienced field people," he stated.

Testifying for the National Cotton Council, Jones said that making SCS adhere strictly to the more stringent "T" values, as some advocate, would force many farmers out of the conservation program and even force some of them out of business.

As an example, Jones said more than 33 million acres of cropland in his home state of Texas are classified as highly erodible — including that on his own farm. An estimated 60 to 75 percent of the cotton produced in Texas, the nation's largest cotton-producing state, is on highly erodible land.

Under the SCS alternative system, producers are allowed to grow crops on highly erodible land while conserving the soil through such accepted cultural practices as shredding stalks, delaying spring tillage, rotating crops in various sequences, using terraces, and practicing contour farming.

"Many of these options are expensive," Jones said, "but they allow me and my fellow producers to farm."

The Council producer leader warned that unreasonable conservation standards would mean that a large acreage could not be farmed, and farmers would have only limited alternatives. More than 1 million acres of farmland in the Cotton Belt have already been entered into the conservation reserve program, including 916,000 acres of cotton base in Texas.

"The problem is that many Texas counties have reached the maximum acreage allowed to enter the reserve," he said, "and many farmers have also reached their maximum payment limit, making it uneconomical to enter more acreage if allowed."

Jones also pointed out that the law requires farmers producing crops on highly erodible land to have acceptable conservation plans in place by 1990 and fully implemented by 1995. With an estimated 1 million plans due to be filed with the SCS by 1990, he said any change in requirements for compliance at this time would further complicate the situation.

New rules are out by which USDA will play the high-stakes "game" of determining who's eligible for farm program payments in 1989 and who isn't. The new rules were published in a 28-page final notice in the August 5 Federal Register.

But the game can't start until Washington officials explain the complex rules to state and district officials, district officials explain them to county officials, and county officials notify producers that it's time to play. The latter, says Norvell Breedlove, Compliance Chief for USDA's Texas Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), won't happen before at least mid-October.

Already in the works is the first draft of the handbook ASCS will use in rule interpretations. Next in the process is an informational meeting set August 17, 18 and 19 in San Francisco for state ASCS committees, executive directors, other key state-level personnel and district directors.

Training sessions will reach the county level in Texas August 29. In the interim, Washington and state officials will collaborate on any perceived need for handbook revisions. Texas county meetings are scheduled first in San Antonio on August 29 and will start in Lubbock the week of September 12.

Also in the planning stage are informational meetings for producers, to be conducted by USDA, industry leaders and National Cotton Council (NCC) staff. Some 14 meeting sites, including Lubbock, are under consideration. They are expected to begin in late August or early September, contingent on availability of USDA personnel.

The new regulations are designed to tighten application of the $50,000 per-person payment limit as mandated in a section of the Budget Reconciliation Act passed by Congress late last year. USDA's original rules, published in early April, drew a wide range of comment from all manner of interested parties, including the NCC and Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

The final version reflects USDA's favorable response to much of the criticism, notes PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson. Most PCG objections, Johnson points out, revolved around the proposed criteria for judging an individual or other entity's contribution to an operation as proof of the "actively engaged in farming" status required for payment eligibility. In that regard, he says, the rules as now written are a decided improvement over the first proposal.

Specifically, Johnson calls attention to the new rules' provision for more equitable treatment of entities who contribute labor and/or management, sharecroppers and providers of equipment.

Other changes industry leaders like include a new requirement that USDA give prior notice before any reduction or denial of producer payments, and a 60-day time limit on ASCS payment eligibility determinations.

Labor seminar scheduled for August 18th

The Texas Farm Bureau has scheduled a farm labor seminar for Thursday, August 18, from 2:00 to 7:30 p.m., at the Lubbock Holiday Inn.

The meeting is the second of five scheduled for the state through November.

The TFB Public Affairs staff will brief farmers and ranchers on matters concerning them as agricultural employers. Included will be topics such as the following:

- Farm Labor Standards Act (Wage and Hour) and employment of minors.
- Immigration Reform and Control Act, including Special Ag Workers Program (SAW), Replacement Ag Workers Program (RAW), and Special Temporary Worker Program (H-2A).
- Social Security and unemployment compensation.
- Workers' compensation.
- An update on the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA), including the Texas Hazard Communication Act and the Federal Agricultural Hazard Communication Act.

The meeting is open to the public. A "dutch treat" dinner will be available.

Loan program extended

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation has offered producers with wheat, feed grains, or soybean loans that matured July 31 an optional extension to Aug. 31.

All terms and conditions of the individual contracts will remain the same according to Earle Bedenbaugh, acting executive vice president of CCC. Producers with reserve contracts, special producer storage loan contracts and 1985 and 1986 extended loan contracts will continue to earn storage payments through Aug. 31. The payments for the additional month's storage will be made when the loan is settled.

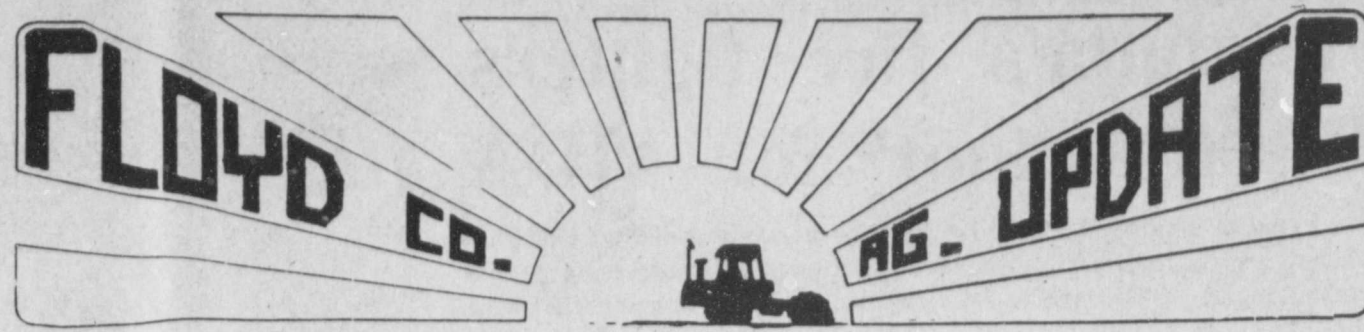

This action was taken as a result of a preliminary injunction issued July 21 by U.S. District Court Judge Harry H. McLaughlin in St. Paul, Minn.

That injunction prohibited the Secretary of Agriculture from implementing Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service notices LP-1206 and LP-1207. Those intraagency notices to ASCS county offices gave guidance as to whether or not certain CCC price support loans would be extended and

August interest rate is 7 5/8 %

Commodity loans disbursed in August by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation will carry a 7 5/8 percent interest rate, according to Milton Hertz, CCC executive vice president.

The new rate, up from July's 7 1/2 percent, reflects the interest rate charged CCC by the U.S. Treasury in August.

CRP signup period extended

Texas producers will have more time to consider effects of the drought because of extension of the current signup period for the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) through Aug. 31.

This move by the U.S. Department of Agriculture should be a "plus" for producers who need more time to analyze the drought's impact, said Dr. B.L. Harris, soils specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The present signup period originally was to have ended Aug. 5.

Harris said cropland which has been hayed in counties approved for drought relief is eligible during this signup for entry into CRP for the 1988 crop year, provided the land meets other program requirements," Harris said.

He said acreage designated as Acreage Conservation Reserve (ACR) and Conservation Use (CU) for the 1988 program year is not eligible for entry into the CRP for 1988.

Under this conservation program, producers receive annual payments to keep highly erodible land out of production and planted with a protective cover which can include trees. Besides the annual rental payments, CRP participants also receive up to 50 percent of the cost of establishing vegetative cover, Harris said.

He said filter strips, or cropland areas 66 to 99 feet wide with a permanent cover and located next to streams, lakes and estuaries, will be eligible for CRP in this extended signup even if the cropland does not meet the soil erosion criteria.

"This provision was introduced in the sixth signup period last February to permit farmers to use CRP enrollment as a cost-effective option to control nonpoint source pollution," he said.

If trees are to be planted, the land needs only one-third of its total area designated as "predominantly highly erodible" to be eligible for CRP, Harris said. He encouraged producers to plant additional cover to protect wildlife and serve as windbreaks.

Producers should contact their local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) and Soil Conservation Service (SCS) county offices for specific CRP program details.

Pork referendum set

Pork producers in Floyd County will have an opportunity to vote in a special referendum September 7-8 as authorized by the Pork Promotion, Research and Consumer Information Act of 1985.

Purpose of the referendum is to determine the continuance of the 100 percent checkoff program which provides funds for pork research and promotion to enhance the pork industry, said Richie Crow, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The checkoff is at the rate 25 cents per $100 on all hogs and pigs as well as on all imported hogs and pork products.

Referendum voting will be conducted in the county Extension office during normal business hours September 7-8.

Producers and importers unable to vote in person may request an absentee ballot from Dr. Bill Thomas, Extension Swine Specialist, Kleberg Center Room 212, Texas A&M University, College Station, TX 77843. Absentee ballots will be available from August 1 until close of business on August 26. Absentee ballot return envelopes, containing the ballot and registration/certification statements, must be signed by the voter and mailed so as to be received in the county Extension office serving the county of voter residents by close of business on September 1.

All pork producers who produced and owned porcine animals in the U.S. for sale in commerce and who are subject to assessment during the representative time period of November 1, 1986, through September 6, 1988, are eligible to vote. Importers who imported porcine animals, pork or pork products during the representative time period also are eligible to vote. Also, eligible are 4-H, FFA and other youth who owned porcine animals and are subject to assessment during the representative time period.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will count ballots, determine the eligibility of challenged voters and ballots, and report referendum results, said Crow.

Educational program conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serves people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Extension service offers computer course

Although financial planning has always been an important tool for farmers and ranchers, as conditions in agriculture have declined, financial planning has become increasingly emphasized by lenders, said Dr. Jackie G. Smith, agricultural economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Lubbock.

The Extension service has developed the TAMWFARM (Texas A&M Whole Farm Analysis and Record Management) spreadsheet program which makes it possible for individuals to financially plan for their farm or ranch operation.

On Aug. 23-25, the Extension service will hold a short course for producers, training them to do whole farm/ranch planning and financial management using the computer.

The course will begin at 1 p.m. Aug. 23 and end at 3 p.m. Aug. 25. It will be taught by Extension economists and be held on the Texas State Technical Institute campus west of Sweetwater.

There will be a $125 charge for each participant. This will cover four meals, refreshments and educational materials. In order to insure hands-on computer use and a high staff/participant ratio, there is a limit on the number of participants.

Financial statements which can be used in annual production planning, loan applications and other management decisions can be compiled for a farm or ranch using systems such as TAMWFARM. "The spreadsheet makes it possible to run several different plans for comparison," said Smith.

More information can be obtained by contacting your county Extension agent, or from Smith at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center at Lubbock, telephone (806) 746-6101.
