AMBULANCE FUND GETS NEEDED BOOST — Producer's Co-operative Elevator provided a much needed 'shot in the arm' to the Floydada drive for funds to purchase a new ambulance. Bob Vickers, right, manager of Producer's, presented a check for $2500 to Eric Cornelius as Leroy Schaffner, Caprock Hospital administrator looks on. The fund raising effort has topped the $20,000 mark on its way towards the $55,000 goal. Stated

Vickers, "It is time some of the businesses in Floydada got behind the drive and gave it a big boost. Many high risk businesses never know when they will need the ambulance. One sure way of knowing that reliable emergency medical services are available to us is to donate as much as possible to this drive as soon as possible so the new ambulance can be purchased."

FISD budget approaches $5 million

With expenditures estimated at $4,895,463.55 for the 1989-90 school year, Floydada Independent School District trustees are considering a tax increase of 10 cents per $100 valuation as a means to partially fund the year's operations. Federal programs as well as the $1800 state mandated increase in teacher salaries have pushed the local school district proposed budget very close to the $5 million mark this year while estimated revenues from state sources remain around the $3 million level.

Calculating a budget proposal on a tax rate of 70 cents per $100 valuation for maintenance and operation, an increase of 10 cents over the current 60 cent rate, Superintendent Jerry Cannon and administrative assistant Jimmie Collins have included federal funds and local tax revenues to arrive at available funds of about $4,781,869.00. The difference in the estimated expenditures and the estimated revenues, $113,500.00, will have to be made up out of surplus funds now held in reserve.

All budget figures presented in the review of the first draft of the proposed budget Monday evening are estimates as state law requires that the budget be approved within the next few weeks, although the level of state funding will not be set until after the average daily attendance count has been taken during October of 1989. The state will then fund the district at a rate of $1227 per student for the year.

ROOFING BIDS OPENED

Bids for a re-roofing project to repair hail damage at A.B. Duncan Elementary School and the south portion of R. C. Andrews Elementary School were opened during the July 10 session of the board. Three bids were received. AAA Roofing of Floydada submitted a bid of $56,845.00. As the low bidder, he was awarded the bid.

Other bids were J. Q. Long Roofing of Plainview at $58,500 and Miller Enterprises at $82,800. All three bids carried a guarantee of 15 years and specified the work would be completed prior to the opening of school this fall. The work will be paid for with insurance funds received on claims for hail damage to the two schools during recent storms in Floydada.

OTHER MATTERS

Board members approved the hiring of John Doerschuk as the Junior High math teacher and Lavelle Vinson as the special education resource teacher at R. C. Andrews.

Collins gave the tax report stating that of the $949,453.51 current tax roll less $17,683.69 in corrections and adjustments and collections totaling $900,388.14, a balance of $31,381.68 remains to be collected. The collection rate is now 96.69% compared to 95.98% at the same time last year.

Present at the session were Cannon, Collins and board members Charlene Brown, Michael Hinsley, Cyndiane Williams, John Campbell, Adolfo Garcia, Andy Hale and Don Hardy. Others attending were Melvin Dunavant and the Hesperian reporter.

Floyd County -- The Early Years

Part 10: "World War I and the Roaring Twenties"

by Bill Gray

Even though what is now the area encompassing Floyd County was the scene of some of the last encounters with the Plains Indians, the region managed to escape much of the somber drama associated with most Western settlement. The early days of the county were never as viciously and violently active as many other places.

There was no gold to entice the "get-rich-quick" lawless breed. The area did not suffer a vigilante age; there was little conflict between the farmer and the cattleman. It was essentially a civilized country long before other areas of the Panhandle-Plains.

The citizenry of Floyd County vastly differed from that of locales such as the "wild and woolly" cattle towns of Tascosa and its like. Of different character and make-up, they were neighborly home builders who came for a purpose and were interested in community development.

The immigrants were oriented to their new surroundings. In spite of droughts, grasshoppers, prairie fires and tornadoes, they accepted the hardships with optimism for a better day yet to come. This philosophy and individual fortitude was to be a driving factor in the success attained by future generations.

The turbulent second decade of the twentieth century tested the mettle of every last citizen of the county. A severe drought in 1914-1915 was followed by a nation-wide outbreak of influenza. Even such remote areas such as Floyd County were not spared from the deadly epidemic.

Floydada's first mayor, "Uncle Billy" Montgomery succumbed to the malady, as did countless others. Doctor Childers' hospital overflowed with patients. No meetings of a public nature were allowed during the height of the siege. The ailment struck the rich and poor alike.

John N. Farris was another prominent citizen of Floydada to become a casualty of the disease. The County Courthouse

JOHN N. FARRIS for many years was president of the First National Bank of Floydada and a leader in the county's development. He worked several years as a cowboy and later owned his own ranch in the vicinity of Quitaque. He died in Floydada during the flu epidemic in 1918.

was pressed into service as an emergency hospital. Lon Smith was county chairman for the Red Cross, whose workers helped nurse the sick.

At the same time, winds of war were billowing in Europe as well as south of the Texas border. An ever-increasing wave of Mexican Nationals flowed across the border into Texas and other Southwestern states. The migration of Mexicans into Texas grew out of civil wars that began in Mexico in 1910. An attempted overthrow of Mexican President Porfirio Diaz sparked a revolution.

One of the leaders of the revolt, Francisco "Pancho" Villa, sought to control Mexico after the fall of Diaz. Victoriano Huerta became president in 1913 following the murder of President Francisco Madero. Villa supported Madero briefly, but when Venustiano Carranza attempted to gain control of Mexico in 1914, Villa violently opposed him.

County commissioners approve $1.5 million 1989-1990 budget

Floyd County Commissioners, meeting in regular session for the month of July, approved a proposed budget for the period from October 1, 1989 to September 30, 1990, totaling more than $1.5 million dollars. Approval followed a public hearing unattended by local citizens or taxpayers. The unanimous vote followed a motion for adoption of the proposed budget by Precinct 3 Commissioner George Taylor and seconded by Precinct 1 Commissioner Connie Bearden.

The approved budget will necessitate a tax increase from the current 29 cents per $100 valuation to 43 cents per $100 valuation. The court will be making public announcements as the status of the tax increase is advanced.

This figure is nearly $20,000.00 less than the expected total expenditures for the current period from October 1, 1988 to September 30, 1989. The unexpectedly high operating estimate will leave the county general fund in the red approximately $70,000.00 for the current year. By transferring $60,000.00 from road and bridge remaining funds, the general fund will end the year with an approximate $10,000.00 deficit, having depleted excess funds from previous years as well as the current funds. Road and Bridge will end the year with a balance of approximately $7,000.00 remaining in its account.

The rise in costs was caused by higher than expected expenses in several areas. Among them was the sheriff's department which saw costs for prisoner care rise from $9,981.66 in 1988 to an estimated $40,200.00 for the 1988-89 budget year. Increased use of the jail also meant higher costs for supplies and utilities.

Increases were also experienced in the judicial and legal area as jury expenses virtually doubled and court appointed attorney fees increased fivefold. Increases in the amounts paid for workers compensation, group life insurance, county liability insurance and official's bonds contributed to the red ink in the budget, as did the 5% pay increase for all employees and the 7% increase for the chief dispatcher in the sheriff's office, the budget and finance clerk and the county judge's secretary (who doubles as the Veterans Service Officer).

The newly adopted budget does not include pay increases for any employee with the exception of the chief deputy who will receive 2% to bring him up to equal the chief dispatcher and allow him to be classed as an administrative employee who is on call at all times, as is the Sheriff.

LOCKNEY STREET MAINTENANCE

Commissioners authorized Judge Bill Hardin to sign the agreement with the City of Lockney for maintenance of unpaved streets inside the city limits of Lockney by county machinery. The agreement was forwarded to the court following its approval at the July 6 LISD board meeting. Ending a stand-off

Local police warn against possible scam

Members of the Floydada Police Department are asking the assistance of the public in combating a possible scam currently being tried in the Floydada area. Reports were received on Monday, July 10, of someone soliciting funds by telephone for the purpose of sending officers to law enforcement training. The Floydada PD has no information on this and urges anyone who is contacted to get as much information as possible from the caller and pass it on to the police. Names and addresses of the perpetrators and where they wish the of many months duration, both parties have adopted the agreement in order to get the Lockney streets back into shape and safe for traffic.

LAW LIBRARY ISSUE RESURFACES

District Judge David Cave and District Attorney Becky McPherson met with the court to ask that a complete set of the Southwestern Reporter, first and second, and a complete set of Texas Digest be purchased to stock the law library. At present, the county has a partial set of Southwestern Reporter and no Texas Digest. The estimated cost was placed at $5400 by Judge Cave.

In addition to the acquisition of more legal volumes, the judge asked that the law library be housed in a room of its own, where attorneys, the public and jailed prisoners could be allowed access to the reference volumes without having them in either judges' office or in the DA's office where they might see or hear information they should not have access to. At present there is no available room space or shelving to accommodate the proposed law library. Legal reference materials are currently in the county judge's secretary's office. The court will attempt to determine what the law requires that the county provide in this area before discussing the matter further.

OTHER MATTERS

Justices of the Peace Lowell Bilbrey and Mike Mooney came before the court to discuss the disparity in the amount of use each office gets. The vast majority of the tickets written in this county are filed in the Precinct 2 and 4 court of Judge Bilbrey. Mooney is unable to share the work load unless the tickets can be filed in his court in Precinct 1 and 3. Being officed in the courthouse, Bilbrey also processes most of the administrative hearings concerning DWI's and driver's license suspension as well as acting as the small claims court and handling other matters directed to his office. No solution to the problem was arrived at by the pair or by the court.

The court also approve the appointing of election judges as recommended by the county clerk. A list of those approved will be published after the individuals have accepted the posts.

The court also heard and approved monthly and quarterly reports by county treasurer Glenna Orman and approved farm work contracts for Richard Ward, Bill Beedy, Martin Warren, Sam Fortenberry, W. R. Ware, David Pyle and Don Bean. Contract #738 previously approved for Craig Gilly was voided by the court.

Attending the session on Monday, July 10 were County Judge Bill Hardin, Commissioners Connie Bearden, Floyd Jackson, George Taylor and Kay Crabtree, Judge David Cave, District Attorney Becky McPherson, Judge Lowell Bilbrey, Judge Mike Mooney, County Treasurer Glenna Orman, Tax Assessor/Collector Penny Golightly, Margaret Herrera, Budget Clerk Jane McAnally, Don Marble, and the Hesperian reporter.

Sheriff and DA offices solve thefts and recover property

The Floyd County Sheriff's Department, in a combined effort with the Floyd County District Attorney's Office, has recovered approximately $7,687.00 worth of merchandise which had been reported stolen from several Floyd County locations. Among those struck by the thefts were the Kim Hinsley farm, the Mark Whittle farm, the Stephen Newsome farm, Lawson Farm Supply, Russell Equipment and Welding and Floydada Implement Company. The thefts occurred between June 16 and June 29.

The total value of the original amount of the theft was listed at $9,557.58. Most of these items were new and used implement tires which have now been recovered from a business in Lubbock County by Ronnie Vandygriff, investigator for the district attorney's office, Sheriff Fred Cardinal and Deputy Raymond Hamilton.

One suspect has been charged with two counts of felony theft and one count of burglary of a building. A second suspect has been charged with one count of felony theft. The investigation is continuing at this time according to authorities.

CUTTING CORN THE HARD WAY — Floydada spray pilot Mitch Probasco escaped serious injury last Friday when he snagged a highline wire and crash landed in a corn field southeast of Floydada near Dougherty Community. The accident occurred at about 8:20 a.m. near the intersection of highway 62-70 and FM 28. Several power poles were snapped off and areas east of Floydada were without power until repairs could be made. Probasco was taken by private car to Caprock Hospital where he was treated for minor injuries and released. The spray plane suffered damage to the landing gear and under carriage in the mishap in Wes Campbell's field. Photo by Wes Campbell

Letters to The Editor

Editor's Note: We appreciate letters from our readers, and we believe our readers appreciate the opportunity to air their thoughts on the pages of their (and our) hometown newspaper. We also believe our readers appreciate reading the thoughts expressed by their fellow citizens. However, for reasons having to do with such things as propriety and the law, we have established rules under which letters will be considered for publication. The first rule of course is that the letter be signed, and that the editor be able to verify the authenticity of the letter. (It is not unheard of in the newspaper business that one citizen may write a letter and use a fictitious name. We must guard against this.)

Our next rule is that one citizen may not use our pages to vilify another citizen by questioning his character, his or her honesty, things like that. The primary focus of letters to the editor should be issues, not personalities. For instance, it is one thing to write in and take issue with John Doe's position on the issues, and say that Mr. Doe is wrong in both his facts and his logic. It is quite another thing to say that Mr. Doe thinks the way he does because he is a bandit, that he is dishonest (although he may be) or that he is just generally a crook. We trust that everyone, almost, can tell the difference and make the distinction. But sometimes the line is rather finely drawn and it then becomes the editor's decision on whether the letter is suitable for publication. Courts have held that we have a great deal of freedom in commenting on the actions of elected officials, but even here discretion is in order.

We have allowed a little more latitude in what we might call "the current situation" than we normally would, simply because of the nature in which the matter erupted...some interperate (and in our view, ignorant) remarks by elected members of the City Council.

Another rule: Please keep the letters short and to the point. We sometimes bend this rule also, if the topic is important, reasonable and well presented. But we nevertheless have not abandoned our rules. Readers are encouraged to keep their letters focused.

Finally we would say again that we welcome letters from our readers, on a wide range of topics. Many things have happened of late that cry out for citizen response, from the abortion decision by the Supreme Court, limiting the Roe vs. Wade decision, to the flag burning decision (with its resulting proposal for an amendment to the Constitution prohibiting desecration of the flag) to the question of ethics in government. We would hope that the current situation, emotional as it is on both sides, would not consume all our citizens time and energy.

Editor,

I see that I must defend my letter, I admit I wrote it in anger. I couldn't stand by and let these Jonny come lately people destroy the things our town was founded on; law, respect for such, and in defense of the people who are cheated out of hard earned cash by those too lazy to better themselves, be they of any race.

To the person who thinks I have forgotten what century I am in. I couldn't even if I wanted to in this septic era of free loaders and criminals we live in.

Oh yes, I do like John Wayne movies but I prefer to study history, government, philosophy and listen to classical music. Your snide remark is as such as I expected. I know what I said was bitter but reality often is. The facts are if you want to be treated as an American learn to act like one and obey the rules set forth in our law. Also, learn to be productive citizens and not parasites clinging to our great land.

Cecil Pope

Editor,

First of all I would like to express my gratitude to the Editor for allowing us, the people to use her column to express our thoughts and ideas so that the citizens of the community can become aware of them.

Councilmen Morales and Barrientos have brought to the attention a problem of our two police forces in Floydada, by merely doing their jobs as being councilmen. Seems everyone knew about it but no one has tried to settle or correct this problem. And on the first attempt someone did try, it just brought another problem to surface. Prejudice.

Mexicans vs. Whites or Caucasians. Yes we are Mexicans not flies. And were a minority that's fast on its way to becoming a majority. Especially in Floydada.

In Texas alone there was an increase of Hispanic population of .694, that's in millions and in only five years from 1980 to 1985.

So no thank you Cecil Pope. If we don't like something, we'll fix it so where we can live with it. We won't be going to Mexico.

It seems that Cecil Pope has gotten his facts messed up somewhere along the way.

Us Mexicans are here to stay. We don't wish to be accepted by anyone, least by the likes of you. We're here and that's something that prejudice people will have to deal with.

Your way of thinking is still in the 1800's Cecil Pope. If you continue to entertain the thought of taking a rope to a human being, doesn't matter if it's Black, White or Brown you will find yourself up to your hillbilly hat in trouble.

Where have you gotten your information about buying the Mexico police off.

If you were to keep up with the news you would be aware of the much publicized murders which happened in Matamoros, Mexico, about drug and ritual killing.

These suspects are claiming to have been tortured and beaten until they confessed to these crimes.

Now eventually they must have some money somewhere from all the drugs they sold. Why can't they buy the Mexico police? Simple they can't. But that's in Mexico. Not in America. Maybe Cecil Pope gets his facts from T.V. movies. Where else?

Mexican-Americans have been in all the major wars that pertain to America, both World Wars, Vietnam and the Korean Wars, and even in the fight for Texas Independence.

Cecil Pope why didn't you follow your ancestors footsteps? I just have to ask, why such a brave man as yourself, or at least that's the picture I get from reading your letter, if you must "endure pain or death for Texas." Why a brave man as yourself is not in the Armed Forces (Service) making America a better place to live in. Instead of just talking about it, instead of volunteering to shoot down stray dogs. It's a shame to waste your manly talents on just stray dogs.

This is America Pope. Wake up. This is the place where there are many nationalities all mixed up together all with their different languages, customs, cultures and religions. This is our freedom of choice. That's something you can't never change. No matter what.

You know I always look forward to your letters to appear in the Hesperian, a person can only laugh at your lack of knowledge. You are trying too hard to be accepted by someone you are trying to impress.

You know, Pancho Villa, was a hero, not scum. But that's your choice. Did you know that this great man was never caught or chased by the U.S. Cavalry. They tried but always met the same outcome, defeat at the mercy of Pancho Villa and his men.

You'd like to know what he did afterward, before he executed the prisoners, he took their horses, money and boots. He stole and robbed but he gave it to the poor. He fought for Mexico's Revolution. He was an outlaw in Texas where he did his raiding.

But to Mexico and everyone of Mexican descent he will always be a hero. Not scum.

Hopefully, Floydada can put aside all this prejudice and get back to being the friendly town it once was. No matter who lives in it.

Thank you for hearing me out.

Floyd County -- The Early Years

Alvaro Obregon defeated Pancho Villa and assisted Carranza in becoming acting president. At first the United States encouraged Villa, but then President Woodrow Wilson threw the nation's support to Carranza because of reports of atrocities committed by Villa.

Villa and his malefactors had gained economic assistance from Imperial Germany. With the outbreak of World War I, following the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary in 1914, the German government felt it was only a matter of time before the Americans would align with the Allied cause.

Germany's theory was to assist the Mexican unrest (under the guise of "revolution"), which would keep the Americans busy "protecting their own borders" and out of the European conflict.

Pancho Villa's troops retaliated against Americans in Mexico — he stopped trains and shot those on board. In 1916 Villa's cavalry invaded Columbus, New Mexico, and killed a number of people. General John J. Pershing and a large army were dispatched by President Wilson to put down the uprising — an action bitterly opposed by the Mexican people for generations. Even though the occurrences were hundreds of miles away, citizens of Floyd County, as all Texans, prepared for another all-out war with Mexico.

It was not to be, for the Mexican "invasion" was short-lived. A German submarine sank the British passenger liner Lusitania in 1915, with the loss of 128 Americans, and attention was transferred to the war in Europe. Almost 200,000 Texans served in the armed forces during World War I, with over two hundred men from Floyd County involved as part of the American Expeditionary Forces by the end of 1917.

A year later the boys came home, but many returning servicemen were greeted with the news of deaths in their families due to the flu epidemic. The pestilence lasted well into the 1920s.

Following the boom of World War I there was much activity in Floyd County. The first fluorescent lights appeared in the Baird Bishop Drug Store in Floydada. Automobiles had been scarce in the county prior to the war, but they were now in abundance — along with trucks and mechanized farm machinery.

Floyd County had open saloons until 1918, when the whole state to Texas voted out liquor. Texas was one of the first states to ratify the Eighteenth Amendment in 1919, prohibiting all forms of alcohol.

In the 1920s Texas joined the rest of the country in a wild frenzy of "wonderful nonsense." It was time to move on and lick the wounds of war. Flappers and "sheiks" were the "in crowd" of the day, and Floyd County had its share. Many people resented prohibition, and the federal government found it almost impossible to enforce. It was the age of bootlegging and "speak-easies; of jazz bands, dances, and a national craze for sports. And, it was the dawning of the age of the "Whirlwinds."

Varsity cheerleaders earn array of awards at camp

Floydada Varsity cheerleaders attended the National Cheerleading Camp at Howard College in Big Spring June 19-23. Those attending were JoLee Ellis, Shayla Barbee, Amy Hinsley, Tonya Powell, Delinda Jackson, Lisa Delgado, Trish Pernell and Joann Cavazos.

Each day was filled with activities. They started at 8 a.m. with cheerobics and ended with final evaluations around 9 p.m. each evening.

Besides learning new beginner, intermediate and advanced cheers, new chants, jumps and stunts were added.

The girls had classes in tumbling, building pyramids, leadership and communication and girl talk.

JoLee Ellis, head cheerleader, was selected to participate in a style show where new cheerleading uniforms were modeled.

Pompon classes and private coaching were also offered.

Each evening after dinner, final workshop and evaluations were held. Each squad would show a cheer and a chant that they had learned that day. Ribbons were given each night and the Floydada squad received a blue superior ribbon every night. This was the highest honor given.

On day four, the final evaluation was held. Each squad was to be evaluated on a cheer brought to camp from their school, a creativity cheer and an NCA cheer.

Of the squads attending Floydada was nominated as one of four finalists for the award of excellence which is the top award given at the camp. In the final judging, Floydada brought home first runner-up for which they received a plaque.

Floydada also received one of 10 spirit sticks given at camp.

Council handles routine agenda during Tuesday night meeting

The city council of Floydada, meeting in the regular monthly session on July 11, faced a routine agenda. Among the items handled by the council members were bid openings for replacement of the road surface serving the drive-up payment window at City Hall. Only one bid was received. Isidro Sanchez submitted a bid of $2968.75 for removing the old asphalt surface and replacing it with a concrete driveway. The bid was awarded to Sanchez by unanimous vote on a motion by Amado Morales, seconded by Ruben Barrientoz.

Bids were also opened for the purchase and installation of new carpet at City Hall. Three bidders submitted sealed proposals for that project. Walter Davis Builders Mart of Floydada was awarded the job with a bid of $4,234.20 on a motion by Leroy Burns, seconded by Wayne Russell and passed by unanimous vote. Other bidders on the project were Kirk and Son of Floydada ($4,396.20) and Carpet Showroom of Lubbock ($5,123.00).

The council heard an audit report from Edd Henderson, CPA, detailing the final figures for the operation of the city during the 1988-89 fiscal year. The council accepted the report as presented.

A discussion of possible action concerning the city retirement plan was held. Council members opted to remain with the current plan and not increase city contributions to the retirement plan at this time. Employee contributions will continue to match with city funds on a one to one basis.

Demolition procedures for structures at 613 E. Grover Street and 608 E. Lee will be started. The buildings at these addresses are in violation of city ordinances concerning the condition of vacant buildings in residential areas. The action was approved on a motion by Morales, seconded by Barrientoz.

July 17 at 7:30 p.m. was set as the date for a called session to consider what if any project should be submitted in an attempt to secure a community development block grant during the coming year. Possibilities to be discussed include street paving, sewer improvement or water improvement. A workshop concerning the budget for the coming year is also scheduled at this session.

The council passed a resolution designating three people to countersign checks for drawing funds for the paving grant project recently approved for the city. As payout of funds is approved, checks will be signed by city manager Gary Brown, city secretary Jimmie Lou Stewart and city employee Sharon Quisenberry.

Attending the Tuesday evening meeting were Mayor Parnell Powell, city secretary Jimmie Lou Stewart, city manager Gary Brown, city attorney Steve Hale, council members Wayne Russell, Leroy Burns, Ruben Barrientoz, and Amado Morales, CPA Edd Henderson, Sharon Quisenberry, Joyce Lipham, Rhonda Guthrie, Cheryl LeCroy, Mac McEllyea, Joe Stepp, six unidentified citizens and the Hesperian reporter.

Carl Lemons' News and Views from Cedar Hill

by Carl Lemons
WEATHER & COTTON

One hundred degree temperatures have cured many of ills of Cedar Hill cotton and put it solidly on the road to what could be another excellent yield. Extremely high temperatures for our part of Texas have been occurring almost daily here at the Listening Post; four days out of the past seven achieved 100 or higher, and Monday topped them all by briefly touching 103.

Cool, rainy weather plagued our farmers all through planting season, and crop's emerging brought no change. On June 15, Cedar Hill cotton stood drawn and puny in cold water-soaked soil, it's roots infected, and a percentage of the stand was being lost each day. Farmers looked hopefully to the first day of summer, less than a week away, praying that it would bring relief, a warming of the weather.

On the first two nights of summer, June 21 - 22, the temperature dropped to the low fifties, and few stations reported as low as 48 - 49 degrees, but that was the GRAND FINALE of the cold weather. Somebody finally prayed on the right wave-length, or perhaps it was the result of cumulative prayer, for it has been cotton weather, onion-weather, ideal weather for all growing things ever since.

Rain has been non-existent here, since July 1. There was thunder Sunday afternoon, and a few drops fell, but some of our morning dews had netted us more moisture. Although crops show no serious stress at the present, many eyes that were intent on holding a cultivator to it's place, ten days ago, have now turned skyward, hoping for the welcome sight of approaching rain-clouds.

Cotton's first bloom was still a few days away, but some farmers had their irrigation ditches ready and cotton watering began Monday morning, July 10. A short supply of water and long supply of acres dictated early. Some of Cedar's cotton has already been sprayed once using a tank-mix of insecticide and foliar feed.

OTHER CROP COMMENTS

CRP GRASSES: High temperatures, coupled with the West Texas winds, had depleted soil-moisture from the surface before much of our newly emerged seeded grasses were able to establish adequate root systems. Now many of those seedlings lie prone on the surface, sustained by a single thread-like root. Nature has made the grass family tough and most of those hard-case plants will survive, but, "Lord, let there be rain!"

With the chores temporarily finished on their for-market-crops, farmer activity has switched back to shaping up those CRP acres. Wide spread shredding has resumed and soon fields with a lawn-like appearance will be seen again. Well, not too lawn-like, there will be enough of those four foot tall mule-tail weeds straighten up behind the shredders to break the monotony.

MILO MAIZE for the production of foundation seed has been planted here in small amounts this year. It is up and doing very well. Clint Ware has planted commercial milo on hauled out cotton ground over at South Plains and, at last report, was very pleased with it.

THE ONION STAR has risen and shines with exceeding brightness. It hangs over a market-place fraught with the promise of the highest price seen in years. Equal in every way to the market prospect is the excellent condition of the crops growing out in the fields. Hushed, incredulous whispers, rumor astronomical numbers, they can't be true, like $15.00 per bag and 1500 bags per acre.

Who would have thought that, out of obscurity, would come charging the onion boys; riding their white, yellow, and purple mounts; who, through the income taxes they will pay, will retire the national debt and rescue the nation from financial fiasco.

The other side of this pretty coin is that this years farmer/processor contract calls for the processors to share substantially more of the production costs than in previous years. This means that the grower will get a smaller percentage of a much bigger pie. So, that new Cadillac in your onion grower neighbor's drive may wind up being a little Cimarron instead of a Eldorado.

Exaggerations aside, this looks like that one year out of eight that onion growers have come to count on to get their ledgers back solidly in the black again.

A last thought on this year's onion quality. Some local growers are being encouraged to continue watering, shoot for a greater tonnage, with their target being to produce that huge, seldom reached COLOSSAL GRADE of onions just larger than the JUMBOS.

WHEAT land, on the whole, got one of the earliest workings on record this year. A few farmers, unhappy to see the tall mule-tails, along with some of their lower-growing neighbors, spring back up behind their plows, have already gone over their ground the second time.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

APPLES are a mixed bag. Some community trees are barren while others will break and suffer permanent damage if their fruit is not thinned.

THE APRICOT tree by the Assembly of God Parsonage, the one the preacher's wife sprouted in a fiber-pot, came through again this year. At least three different families shared it's fruits. The mystery goes on! Why do some apricot trees bloom out and freeze every year while others bear consistently?

PEACHES, ripened in Floyd County, first pleased local palates two weeks ago, and the '89 crop is probably 1/3 harvested by now. Four peach branches bearing 64 peaches were marked here at the listening post about May first. Only four hail-pecked peaches remain on those four branches. That figures 94 out of each 100 were lost and six were saved. My peach tree has been discovered by some genius critter that is able to quickly locate the only peach on the tree that has a 1/4 segment ripe. He then proceeds to feast on that 1/4 segment in some impossible position. He has to be on the wing while eating, or else he has to hang upside down by his feet while eating. It can't be Japanese beetles, the peaches aren't that ripe. Could it be a fruit bat?

TRUCK patch products are table-ready and of top quality. Squash, snap beans, and roasting ears are producing at their peak. Okra and black-eyed peas are less than 10 days away from harvest. Tomatoes are at the point of blooming, but harvest there is still a few weeks away. Peppers, like cotton, has responded to the hot, dry weather and is doing fine.

LIVESTOCK AND HAY

CATTLE with ample pasture, some shade, and plenty of water could hardly do better. Even a marked drop in the mosquito population has been noted this last week. The small mosquito-breeding puddles have all dried up, but it is more likely that age has claimed the older generation and this is the lull before a more numerous, more vicious hatch emerges.

HAY planting moisture no longer exists, and dry-planting this early in the season involves unnecessary risks, so the hay sowers have joined the cloud-watchers.

HONEYBEES are diverse form of livestock, but they sell a question here at the Listening Post this past Monday. When radios in Amarillo and Lubbock were reporting their airport temperatures to be in the high eighties the thermometer here was reading 103. This cast serious doubt on the dependability of the Post thermometer, so few checking calls were made to neighbors who were all away from home. A hour later it was noted that a quart to 1/2 gallon of bees had moved out of their hive and were clustered on the cool, shady side of their hive. They had not done this on either Saturday or Sunday although the temperature hit 100 on both of those days. So, when the thermometer and few thousand bees agree that it reached 103, I have to believe them.

PEOPLE

From Edna Gilley comes good news, mixed with a tad of bad news. The people at her therapy center think her continued recovery can be accomplished as well at home as at the center, however she will need someone with certified qualifications to stay with her and assist with the home therapy. Without the certified nurse the insurance company will get contrary and cause problems. So, it is good news with a fluttering of red tape attached, and the row (not road) to recovery is still long and weedy.

Lindsey and Billie Ruth Lackey were privileged to visit with their aunt, Edna Lackey, who was back in Lockney for a short time in early June. Edna gets around where she wants to go using her walker, she looked good, and her memory was sharper than that of some who were 20 years her junior. After a short visit here she returned to the Brownwood Care Center near Dora Faye's home in Brownwood.

There is a special article about Clara Mize's 91st birthday elsewhere in the Hesperian. Betty carried it down Tuesday morning. If you missed it go back and look for it.

Food facts:
* Eating deep-fried chicken or fish with batter or breading offers no reduced-calorie or reduced-fat advantage over red meat. In fact, a plain roast beef sandwich has half the fat of a fried breast of chicken or fried fish sandwich.
* Extra crispy fried chicken has more calories and fat than regular fried chicken.
* Mashed potatoes (even with a small amount of gravy) are much lower in fat and calories than are french fries. And onion rings have even more fat and calories than do french fries.
* The baked potato starts out as a low-fat food. However, when you add cheese, bacon, and the works, the calories double, and the fat value skyrockets. A better bet is to add a small amount of margarine and then add vegetables from the salad bar, such as chopped green onion, and perhaps a tablespoon of shredded cheese.

Floydada Nursing Home Happenings

By Jo Bryant

Hi, well another week has come and gone, it seems as if this summer is going by pretty fast. Do hope each one had a good 4th of July celebration.

Monday, Irene Wexler came and played the piano and Bro. Wright from the First United Methodist Church came and shared the gospel of Mark, on planting the seed, the word of God in our hearts. At 2 p.m. the ladies from the Companions 'n' Caring came and had their monthly meeting and at 2:30 p.m. they served the residents some ice cream. Those serving were Shirley Varner, Ola Smith, Sue Hoogstra, Leona Neff, Frances Badgett. We appreciate all our volunteers that take their time to come serve, without you, we couldn't do it.

Tuesday was 4th of July, so I enjoyed a day at home with my family, Nila and Jack Ball from Plainview, along with their four children.

Wednesday, Bro. Sammy Rodriguez, from the Spanish Assembly of God Church came and gave the devotional on the word taken from Joshua 1:1-9, "I will always be with you, I will never abandon you, be determined and confident. On Approved CRP

Haying and grazing to be allowed

Effective immediately, haying and grazing will be allowed on approved Conservation Reserve Program acreage planted or replanted to vegetative cover prior to Dec. 1, 1987. Keith Bjerke, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Under provisions announced June 2 for haying and grazing of CRP acreage in counties where a livestock emergency was determined to exist due to drought conditions, haying and grazing was restricted to acres planted before July 1, 1987 must be inspected by USDA's Soil Conservation Service personnel to ensure that there is an adequate stand of vegetation established before haying and grazing will be approved.

"This extension of the cutoff date will open a significant number of additional CRP acres to help relieve the drought emergency," Bjerke said. "In addition, every county ASCS office will begin keeping a list for county producers of eligible land that is available for haying or grazing."

Reports due on seasonal workers

The July 17 deadline is nearing for federal filing of work-day reports by employers of "reportable" aliens doing seasonal field work in fruits, vegetables or other perishable commodities at any time from April through June, said Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Jack C. Parnell.

In calling attention to the deadline set under the Immigration and Nationality Act, Parnell emphasized that it is illegal to employ unauthorized aliens. The forms must be submitted to the Committee for Employment Information on Special Agricultural Workers at 1201 E. 10th St., Jeffersonville, IN 47132.

Federal officials need data from the forms to determine how many "replenishment agricultural workers" if any, are to be admitted to the United States during each of fiscal years 1990-1993. The Immigration and Naturalization Service then will admit that number of aliens. INS soon will issue regulations on how aliens may apply for replenishment worker status.

Reports are due, Parnell said, from employers of field working-alien doing "seasonal agricultural services" with fruits and vegetables of every kind or "other perishable commodities" as defined in regulations issued by the secretary of agriculture.

The term, "other perishable commodities," is limited to Christmas trees, cut flowers, herbs, hops, horticultural specialties such as greenhouse nursery crops, lettuce seed, spanish reeds, (arundo donax), spices, sugar beets and tobacco.

Employers whose alien employees do field work in sod or sugarcane also are required to submit the reports, Parnell said. Fruits and vegetables under the law include berries, melons, tree fruits and nuts, table vegetables, corn and small grains, cotton and soybeans.

Employers whose alien employees do not do field work in fruits or vegetables or in the other listed commodities are not required to submit the reports, he said. Employers excluded from the reporting requirements include those whose employees are handling exclusively animal agricultural products, birds, dairy products, earthworms, fish, including oysters and shellfish, flax, forest products, furbearing animals and rabbits, hay, honey, horses and other equines, other livestock of all kinds including animal specialties, forage, silage, poultry and poultry products, wildlife and/or wool.

There are about 813,400 employers of roughly 2.81 million farm workers in the United States. How many are covered by the law is unknown, Parnell said.

Covered employers who fail to submit the work-day reports by July 17, violate the law and could be cited and fined by the Labor Department, whose Wage and Hour Division is responsible for enforcement of the reporting requirements. Employers who did not file reports for the last quarter of 1988 or the first quarter of 1989, as required, should do so now to avoid being fined for failing to report, Parnell said.

Part of the required form has space for alien names and their registration numbers, which, to be reportable, must be in the A90000000 series. Aliens with registration numbers less than 90,000,000 are not reportable.

Under the law, he said any employer who knowingly and willfully falsifies, conceals or covers up any required information shall be subject to a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than 5-years or both.

Reports forms (ESA-92) are available from local agricultural Extension agents or at state and local offices of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, USDL's Wage and Hour Division or the INS.

Classes set for record keeping

An opportunity for area farmers and ranchers to learn a computerized cash record keeping system is fast approaching. On Aug. 8-9, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, in cooperation with South Plains College, will offer a short course on Quicken, a checkbook register-based record keeping program. This short course will be held in Levelland at the South Plains College campus.

Quicken is a commercially available package that is gaining popularity in the South Plains area, said Dr. Jackie Smith, agricultural economist and management specialist with the Extension Service. "Though Quicken does not have the capability of a full-blown accounting package, it is an inexpensive, user-friendly program that many farmers are finding useful to help improve their current record keeping system," he said.

Farmers can use Quicken to keep cash records, print checks, as well as generate various income and expense reports, print check, as well as generate various income and expense reports for the whole farm or by enterprise.

Discussion on the first day of the course will include introductory comments about the benefits of record keeping for making profitable production and marketing decisions. Participants will lay the groundwork for setting up a record keeping system with Quicken by setting up enterprise categories and entering checks and deposits into the computer.

The second day will include tips to speed entry of repetitive transactions, a look at the reports that Quicken can produce, information on whole farm planning, and a look at other types of cash record keeping software. Enrollment will be limited to 20 to ensure hands-on participation by each enrollee. The fee for the two-day course will be $125, which will include a copy of the Quicken disks and manual, a course notebook and two meals. The fee will be $100 for those who already own Quicken. The workshop will be held from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. each day.

For more information contact your local county extension agent or telephone Dr. Jackie Smith at the Texas A & M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center in Lubbock, (806) 746-6101.

4-H program teaches youth how to battle insects

Hungry insects can destroy much of the hard work young people put into planning and planting a garden, unless the youths learn how to squelch these pests.

The 4-H entomology program supported by Mobay Chemical Corp., teaches youths many pest control tips and techniques, said Brent Crossland, county 4-H program coordinator with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Through the entomology program, 4-H'ers learn how to:

*Check the garden crop by crop for pests each week.

*Control pests right away by using a recommended pesticide.

*Follow directions and precautions listed on pesticide labels, and observe the waiting period specified from time of application to time of harvest.

*Give the garden and its surroundings a thorough cleaning at the end of the growing season. They also learn that fall plowing can kill many destructive insects.

Boys and girls who enroll in 4-H entomology projects and activities have a variety of opportunities to learn-by-doing about the insect world, Crossland said. Harmful insects like cabbage worms and helpful ones like honeybees can be found in the garden and backyard. The 4-H'ers also learn there are more different kinds of insects than all other living things—plants and animals—combined.

Through the leadership and guidance of the Extension Service, 4-H members can learn to collect and identify insects as well as how to rear live insects in captivity. They study how insects interact with the environment, plant life, other insects and humans. In addition, they examine career opportunities in entomology, Crossland said.

4-H'ers also can work for awards donated by Mobay and arranged by the National 4-H Council. They can obtain more information from their county Extension office.

Act requires safety program

By Brent Crossland

The recently passed Texas Agricultural Hazard Communication Act (Right-to-Know), requires that employers in compliance with the law must offer ag chemical safety programs for their employees.

Should one wish to have a training session or is interested in further information, they should contact their local County Agricultural Extension Agent's office.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service conducts these training programs and makes an Extension Agent available for the training sessions.

Agricultural employers who store or use 55 gallons or 500 pounds of one active chemical and have a seasonal/migrant payroll of $15,000 or permanent annual payroll of $50,000 are covered by the law. This would require employers to provide a training session for their employees.

The training program includes discussion of crop sheets, material safety data sheets and product labels. Information is provided on chemical hazards, potential exposure to chemicals and ways that individuals can protect themselves through good work practices and use of protective clothing and equipment. In addition, the program may be presented in either English or Spanish, with bilingual assistance from the Extension Agent Pesticide Safety.

If one is not covered by the law and would like to conduct an ag chemical safety program for their employees, community members, school, organization or any requesting individual, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is also available to conduct these programs.

August 10-12 is scheduled date for cattlemen's annual meeting

by Brent Crossland

When Texas ranchers assemble in Austin Aug. 10 through 12 for the annual meeting of the Independent Cattlemen's Association (ICA), their focus will be on marketing.

Theme for the ICA session will be "Modern Marketing for Cattlemen." The conference will be at the Stouffer Austin Hotel, said Brent Crossland, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Marketing discussions will highlight the educational program Aug. 11. Dr. Gary Smith, head of Texas A&M's Animal Science Department, will be program moderator.

A host of speakers will address various concerns of cattlemen, Crossland said.

Among subjects to be discussed will be legislative and marketing concerns of the progressive cattleman, ways to improve prices for calves at local markets, selection for genetic improvement and marketing with ultrasound technology and value based marketing.

Other agenda subjects will be retained ownership and its impact on cattle producers for increased returns and ranch direct consumer marketing.

An Open Letter to Floyd County

Do you approve of the fine Supreme Court Justice ruling it was legal to burn, spit, desecrate our flag? Also Speaker of the House Tom Foley, and Kennedy and Metzenbaum saying "indeed this is freedom of speech?"

Did you know that the HUD people in Washington are buying 1/2 million dollar mansions in the big cities such as Dallas, Houston, Los Angeles - etc., to house the welfare people?

Are you aware that the U.S. Census Bureau people are going to count all the illegal aliens in 1990? This will result in more representations for them, and less for you, the taxpayer.

Did you know that the police on Border Control are limited on their gasoline expenses, some as little as $5.00 daily and consequently thousands of illegal aliens continue to come over, terrorists, drug dealers from Panama, Cuba, Iran, etc. for us to immediately add to welfare rolls, while they pollute our nation with their satanic cults and influence our young people.

Do you believe that women that have more than two babies should be cut back on welfare so they will be discouraged from having more innocent children as a career. Planned parenthood certainly isn't encouraging them to stop - so maybe "cutting their salary" would. There needs to be an incentive not to have more illegitimate children, not a reward if you do have more.

Did you notice that China protesters were all unarmed. All communists keep their people unarmed so they can't rise up against them (the government). This is what a few congressmen and lots of media would have America to be.

Did you read where Oliver North was denied a mistrial because of a jury lady lying and yet, on the same page, a murderer was granted a new trial because of an error at a new cost of $500,000.00

We have begun an organization named "Concerned Citizens of Government" (CCOG) We write letters to congressmen, and the president and voice our opinions on such subjects as were previously mentioned.

Come and voice your thoughts about things going on in America that are taking our freedom away. All people are invited. Everyone that loves America and what the flag symbolizes - bring a pen, paper and etc. to the Bank Community Room Friday, July 14 at 4:30 p.m.

Veterans are especially invited to come and write letters. Lets also commend President Bush for taking a stand for the flag. He, like all of the veterans, fought for the flag, America and everything it stands for.

Teenagers too, are welcome - you have the most to lose, as young people. Lets get concerned and get active!

State Capitol Highlights

By Lyndell Williams
Texas Press Association

On a voice vote, the Senate last Friday rejected the House version of a workers' compensation reform bill that narrowed, but didn't completely resolve differences between the two chambers.

The Senate action immediately prompted speculation that the House will adjourn sometime this week without resolving the issue. The special session officially ends July 19.

Conflicts on the bill, which now contains a major House concession providing jury trials in certain kinds of disputed cases, will have to be resolved by a House-Senate conference committee.

The measure, which earlier passed the House by voice votes on both the second and third readings, would have raised maximum weekly benefits from $238 to $416, provide discounts on insurance premiums to companies with good safety records, and keep the system voluntary. The Senate voted to make coverage mandatory.

As the workers' compensation struggle continues, Gov. Bill Clements predicted another special session this year focusing on other topics, probably including abortion restrictions.

'90 Election Electrified

Like a lightning bolt from the blue, the Supreme Court's decision allowing states to draw their own abortion laws has electrified the 1990 election as few Texans could predict.

The Texas Legislature in the early '70s, after a long, divisive floor fight, adopted a rather liberal set of abortion laws. The memories of that battle over the volatile issue, which subsequently destroyed several political careers, still linger in the Capitol halls.

Since then, the Legislature has, for the most part, ignored the issue, except for a few bills to narrow the scope, hoping it would go away.

Last week, in the space of two days, the issue rose to life like a cadaver sitting up in the morgue and today it promises to affect statehouse elections from top to bottom.

Women's Vote Pivotal

With pro-choice leaders warning of a return of the days of back alley abortions and pro-lifers calling abortion nothing less than murder, fears and emotions are running high among the focal interest groups.

After the High Court convenes next fall, it may make a subsequent decision which will defuse the issue for state legislatures.

But, if it doesn't, count on the women's vote to be pivotal in 1990, and the groups shouldn't presume victory one way or the other.

Ann Richards to Gain?

One candidate who stands to gain, at least in the Democratic primary, is Ann Richards, who is running for governor.

She is already considered the great feminist hope in Texas to beat the good-old' boy system.

Now she stands to enlarge that base with those who fear that abortions will be made illegal under any other governor.

Her core campaign organization for many years has drawn from Austin feminist professionals; her core supporters statewide are professional women.

Although she hasn't released her campaign platform yet, it's hard to imagine Ann Richards campaigning to make abortions illegal.

As governor, she could veto any anti-abortion measure short of a proposed constitutional amendment. In short, there would be no narrower scope, unless she allowed it.

Such leverage could boost her in the general election, or work against her, depending upon popular opinion, whatever it is.

Pollsters At Work

You can bet the political pollsters have been at work all week, trying to take the pulse of the Texas voter, and the results should be released shortly.

If '90 elections here follow the national trend, Democrats will generally take pro-choice stands, and Republicans will be pro-life.

Exceptions are expected in both parties, and no one will know until they reveal their positions on the campaign trail.

Mattox Staff Criticized

Meanwhile, Gov. Clements unleashed a sharp attack on the state attorney general's staff, saying it only "half-heartedly" defended the state's school finance system before the Texas Supreme Court last week.

"We're fighting the case, for any practical purpose, with no representation," the governor said. Attorney General Jim Mattox retorted that Clements was speaking "without having all the facts."

The governor made his remarks one day after the court heard oral arguments in the Edgewood vs. Kirby school finance lawsuit.

Other Highlights

*Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, ended his 12-hour filibuster against a resolution calling for a constitutional amendment to ban the desecration of the American flag.

*The House gave preliminary approval to a bill expanding Central Texas College in Killeen to a four-year institution.

Things they never told you about a heat pump.

Fact # 7

Installing a heat pump is much more costly and complicated than putting in a high-efficiency air conditioner.

And a heat pump doesn't cool as well or operate as economically, either.

If you need a new air conditioner this summer, replace it with a modern high-efficiency air conditioner. Not a gadget.
