A view from
The Lampighter

By Ken Towery

This primary race for Governor is not going to be an easy thing to call. Our view, for what it is worth, is that it won't turn out exactly the way the polls read at the moment. That will be due to what we might call the "geographic" factor. Luce will get many votes out of the Dallas-Fort Worth area simply because he is from there. Rains will get a substantial vote out of the Houston area simply because he is from there, while Williams and Hance will have to share the West Texas vote, and pick up as much as they can from elsewhere in the State. So while Luce and Rains are trailing badly in opinion polls now, we expect them to show better at the polls on election day.

At the moment it appears Williams is well ahead of his rivals, followed by Hance, then Rains and finally Luce. Unless Williams blunders between now and election day, we expect him to come close to winning it without a runoff, but not quite.

On the Democratic side we expect other factors to play a major role in determining the outcome. There the primary vote is likely to be determined by coalitions of voting blocs, and how they come down, no matter what part of the state they are in. Early indications are that most of the black vote is fairly well locked up for Ms. Richards. Most, but not all, of the Hispanic vote is lining up behind Jim Mattox. Most of the foggy vote, that strange collection of radical feminists, floating liberals and disaffected whatevers, are gravitating to Ms. Richards, while unionized labor and the currently unhappy plaintiffs lawyers seem to be lining up behind Mattox. Mark White, who got in the race late, ends up taking what is left of what is now the Democratic Party. We think it will be enough to get him in the runoff, probably with Ms. Richards.

We expect a runoff between Williams and Hance on the Republican side, and Richards and White on the Democratic side. If it works that way we will make known our own hopes in the matter.

We suspect however that some of the other races will generate about as much enthusiasm here on the South Plains as the race for Governor. The agricultural community all across Texas has evidently decided, with a few exceptions, to take on our esteemed Commissioner of Agriculture, Jim Hightower. For years they sort of overlooked his obvious ignorance concerning agricultural matters, figuring, we suppose, that he couldn't hurt them much, and he was, after all, good for a few laughs. But they found out he could hurt them, and wasn't bashful about doing so if it helped his own political agenda. So now, led by the Texas Farm Bureau, a determined effort is being made to retire Mr. Hightower a few years ahead of his personal retirement plans.

The problem, as we have noted before, is that in the Democratic Primary Hightower can get two votes out of Houston to offset every farm vote in Texas. Why else, gentle reader, did he latch onto Jesse Jackson in the recent Democratic Presidential primary, knowing full well that Jesse wasn't going anywhere? Jim may be ignorant of agricultural matters, but he understands politics better than most politicians. So our farmers and ranchers have their work cut out for them. They'll have to call in a lot of chips.

Bi-District playoff Friday night in Plainview

Bi-District playoff between Floydada and Canyon will be at 7 p.m. Friday, Feb. 23, in the Plainview High School Gymnasium. Admission will be $4.00 for adults and $2.00 for students.

IN THE TRENCHES -- The area was the scene of desperate battles early this week as winter laid its ice hand across the South Plains once more. As this photo depicts, local residents pitted their skills and strengths against the wily West Texas wind as they made the rugged journey from auto to workplace. More than one was seen struggling with an uncooperative umbrella or overcoat. Rainfall amounts Monday-Tuesday measured 1.31" in Floydada, 1.3" in Lockney, .7" in Dougherty and 1.125" in Aiken. City Council studies landfill options

A special called session of the Floydada City Council was the scene of the latest skirmish in a two year on going battle to secure a permit for expansion of the city landfill site.

Stated city engineer Bill McMorries of Amarillo, "I think the state is running scared and that is causing them to require additional testing prior to the release of new Environmental Protection Agency standards due out soon." McMorries pointed out that a lot of "horror stories" are being circulated about the possible standards on the forthcoming EPA list and that no one, "least of all the state" wants to accept responsibility for making a decision. The EPA list of standards has been delayed many times since the original release date of October 1989. The newest "guesstimate" for a release date is sometime in July.

A letter of communication from the Texas Department of Health, the agency in charge of landfills, dated January 17, informed Floydada that the geotechnical testing agency the city has used on the project, Dyess Testing Laboratory, Inc., "is not qualified" to do the work. The letter recommends the employment of "a firm that is well versed in subsurface investigations, testing, report preparation and ground water assessments related to solid waste management work."

The new tests requested by the state include a series of drilled holes at varying depths equipped with monitoring devices to track the downward movement of groundwater from the landfill through the lower strata of soil and possibly, into the water table of the area. The state also wants seismic testing to determine any fault formations which might affect the landfill operation.

The firm recommended by Nick Clasen and T. A. Outlaw Jr. of the health department was Baker-Shiflett and Associates of Ft. Worth. After contacting the firm, the estimated cost of the additional testing was placed at $29,000. This cost would be borne in addition to the nearly $100,000 already invested in the landfill project.

At the time the city began the project, cost of permitting a landfill after the land was acquired were placed at about $26,000. This estimate has now reached $75,000 despite the revocation in January of a $14,000 state fee. The chart below shows the break down.

EXPENSES TO PERMIT A LANDFILL
	PREVIOUS	NOW
State Fees	$14,000	0
Geotechnical	$5,000	$40,000
Engineering	$5,000	$25,000
Hearings	$1,000	$6,000
Printing	$1,000	$4,000
Total	$26,000	$75,000

Alternatives to a local landfill were discussed by the council at the Monday noon session. The only viable alternative to pursuing an expansion of the Floydada landfill is to join a regional facility according to city manager Gary Brown.

Brown told the council that the regional facility now being formed in the Plainview area has tentatively stated that Floydada could be a part of the operation. Cost would be determined by the facility and would include a pro rata share of ALL expenses from start to finish and beyond. The Plainview facility would only accept dumpsterable garbage. There would be no provision for yard trimmings, trees, old lumber, etc.

Floydada would have to pay a monthly fee plus a fee per load dumped as well as any other costs Plainview would request. The monthly fee Plainview offered the City of Lockney was $1800 per month with a load fee of $10.00. The regional landfill facility in Amarillo is estimating load costs at two to three times this figure, so Plainview could easily raise it's rate.

Calculated on this basis, the cost to city residents paying garbage collection fees would be about $16.00 plus tax per household per month in addition to the $8.00 plus tax already paid by each resident household. That course of action would result in garbage collection fees of over $25.00 per month for Floydada residents. The cost could rise if any type of major accident or toxic incident took place as each participant

Candidate forum a success

By Bill Gray

On February 17, a "Meet Your Candidate Forum" was held at Duncan Elementary School. The public meeting, sponsored by AVANCE/ADVANCE, was the first of several such events planned by the organization.

President Linda Ratliff opened the program by welcoming almost 70 interested citizens. The invocation was delivered by Judge William D. Hardin, followed by the flag presentation and the Pledge of Allegiance.

A brief summary of voter eligibility requirements was given by Becky McPherson, District Attorney, 110th Judicial District. She also explained the process by which lost voting rights can be restored.

McPherson also pointed out some important guidelines concerning residency requirements and emphasized, "You can only vote in the election precinct in which you reside. Now, if you move from one precinct to another within the county, then you vote in the former precinct if an election comes within 90 days of that move. Otherwise, you vote in the new precinct.

If voters have questions regarding residency or other requirements, they should contact Penny Golightly, Tax Assessor-Collector. "Any further questions regarding voting rights and procedures should be directed to the office of the Secretary of State," added McPherson.

Elections move to forefront this week

As the March 13 Democratic and Republican Primary elections loom nearer, absentee balloting opened on Wednesday, February 21. Voters may utilize the option for absentee voting any day between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. at the Office of the County Clerk, Margaret Collier, in the Floyd County Courthouse in Floydada. The period for absentee voting ends at 5:00 p.m. on Friday, March 9.

Voters might also consider that

March 11, 1990 is the last date to register if they intend to vote in any April run-off elections.

The local political arena has also opened up. Floydada ISD announced the date for trustee elections last week. The City of Floydada has followed suit. Caprock Hospital District has not yet set a date for a board election.

DPS will crack down on seat belt violations

Local troopers are advising Floyd County citizens to be sure and wear your seat belt as you travel. In an effort to decrease deaths the Lubbock District Highway Patrol has been instructed to step up the issuance of seat belt citations. The troopers will be issuing citations to anyone driving without a seat belt.

According to local troopers, there have been five fatalities in 1989. Two of the fatalities were farm incidences, one involved a pedestrian and vehicle and two of the deaths were a direct result of no seat belt being worn.

In the Lubbock district, which includes, Crosbyton, Floyd, Dickens, Kent, King, Garza and Stonewall counties, there has been an 800% increase in fatality accidents, directly related to not wearing seat belts.

According to Lowell Bilbrey, Justice of the Peace, "Troopers do not have to have any reason to stop you for not wearing a seat belt, other than see you driving without it on. They can stop you in town or out of town and the fine is $42.50."

Banquet tickets should be bought by tomorrow

Chamber members are working fast and furious to finalize all the plans for the annual banquet, to be held this Saturday, February 24, at 7:00 p.m. at A.B. Duncan Elementary School.

Tickets are selling fast. If you want to be sure and have a steak waiting for you at the banquet, you should have your tickets bought by Friday. If you plan on buying your tickets at the door on Saturday evening, don't be disappointed if you only get an empty plate.

The guest speaker for the evening will be Texas Tech head football coach, Spike Dykes, the Southwest Conference's consensus Coach of the Year, 1989.

Since beginning his head coaching tenure on December 6, 1986, he has delivered a very entertaining offense at Texas Tech. In three seasons, the Raiders have averaged 29 points and almost 400 total offensive yards a game.

He has elevated the program into the upper division of the conference each season while compiling a 19-14-1 record. He took a predicted sixth-place Raider team to the lip of the Cotton Bowl cup this year and won the most games at Tech since 1976 when Steve Sloan was head coach.

The Raiders are 14-4 overall and 8-3 in SWC action at home under Dykes. He has had two All-Americans and 22 All-Southwest Conference first-team selections in three years.

Spike is noted as an excellent after-dinner speaker with an exceptional wit, and should bring some lively and humorous entertainment to the banquet. Also on the banquet's agenda will be a program presented by the 'Punkin Days' committee, with the help of R Photography and Feature Attractions.

CITY OF FLOYDADA

The city election will be held on May 5, 1990. Positions on the ballot this year include two at-large council posts, a representative for District 1 and a representative for District 4.

The incumbents in the at-large seats on the council are Wayne Russell and Frank Breed. Amado Morales is the current office holder in District 1 which covers the east and southeast portions of the city. Wayne Tipton, the appointed replacement for Nancy Willson following her resignation, is the incumbent in District 4, covering the area west of Main Street on the south side. None has indicated whether or not they will seek a return to office.

Anyone interested in running for one of the city council positions may sign up for the election by making an appearance at City Hall and completing the necessary forms. City Hall is open from 8:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. weekdays and is located at 114 W. Virginia.

Prospective candidates must have been city residents for at least the past six months, must be 18 years old or older and must be registered voters.

Hurray! Rain Rain Rain! I was afraid that on Monday we were only going to be able to take a mistfall count. I wasn't sure if there were any gauges in Floyd County that measured mist.

During the steady and beautiful rain Tuesday morning, Hulon Carthel (who as most people know, is a farmer) dropped in to visit for a few minutes. When he walked in the door, I asked him what he was doing. A big smile went across his face and he said, "NOTHING." Other farmers across the county were also happily doing NOTHING!

OK - you have put it off long enough. This is the last few days before the banquet. If you haven't bought your tickets you better get on the ball. Don't be one of those who will be sitting around listening to everybody talk about how much fun they had at the banquet.

The political forum sponsored by AVANCE/ADVANCE was a big success. There was a good crowd there, something the ADVANCE committee can be proud of, especially since it was the first political forum they have had.

The program was well organized and those in attendance were very orderly and presented the candidates with good and thoughtful questions. The committee hopes for larger crowds for their future forums which will be scheduled during this election year.

Twenty-nine Floyd County 4-H and FFA members participated in the San Antonio Livestock Exposition last weekend.

Cody Hayes of Lockney exhibited the fourth place light-heavy weight crossbred barrow. Ryan Smith of South Plains exhibited a twenty-first place medium wool lamb and a Southdown lamb. The reason I mentioned these two in particular, is because of something Cody's mom told me. She said that when it came time for the sale, a man by the name of Dr. Jack Henry, of San Antonio, bought Cody's pig and Ryan's lamb.

It turns out Dr. Henry is from Floyd County. He was raised here. Mrs. Hayes thought it was pretty special, that even though this man no longer lives here, he is still supporting Floyd County youth. I think it is pretty special too.

My husband took Judy Macha and I on a ride through the countryside this last weekend. Judy went along hoping we would find Hotel Turkey. She had heard a new bed and breakfast had opened up and she wanted to see the inside of the hotel.

For those of you who haven't made it to the hotel, you need to take a Sunday drive too, and check it out. The proprietor's enjoy people stopping in to look around and they make you feel right at home. Sit down and visit with them, you will enjoy it and so will they.

Judy went so she could see the antiques. She spent her time going from room to room, "feeling the antiques."

She is an antique connoisseur and she was not disappointed.

Stepping inside the hotel is like stepping back into time. Every room is furnished in antiques. There is no TV anywhere, so you spend your time visiting and getting to know one another again.

I'm not real familiar on all the prices, but I do remember one price quote of $40.00 a night, included breakfast in the morning. They also offer a deal for hunters. There are 8000 acres available (free) to those who stay in the hotel. If you get any quail, they will be fixed for you the next morning for breakfast. While we were there visiting, they told us that some hunters were already out. The hunters had flown themselves (and their bird dogs) in from Maryland.

It was kind of hard to leave there and step back into the 20th century.

Hearing about Turkey always reminds me of one particularly embarrassing moment in my life. (Just one mind you—I've had several of them.) It happened very shortly after I moved here.

I was working one night (at the newspaper of course). At about 6:30 p.m. the phone rang. A friendly man on the other end of the phone, asked for an employee that had already gone home.

I told him that she wasn't there and asked if I could take a message. He said he was returning her call, and that he was calling from Turkey.

"TURKEY!" I said. "WOW! What time is it in Turkey?"

"Oh, about 6:30," was his cautious reply.

"6:30!" I said. "That's what time it is here! Is that 6:30 today, yesterday or tomorrow?"

Well, needless to say the poor man did not know what to think. He started to laugh, and so was everybody else in the office. Of course no one bothered to tell me why they were losing complete control of themselves, so I continued with my questioning.

"Would you like to call her at home? No wait—I could call her for you, since it is probably really expensive calling from Turkey," I offered. (My co-workers are now on the floor.)

"Uh - No, that's O.K. I have her number. I'll call. It really doesn't cost that much. Bye."

Well, I hung up the phone and was met by a united shout of—"TURKEY, TEXAS, ALICE! NOT THE COUNTRY TURKEY!"

I prayed that I would never come face to face with that man, but it was not to be. Months later I was introduced to him and he burst out laughing. He thought that I was really funny and he said he would never forget that phone conversation.

The problem here is that he thought I was just kidding. Being the honest soul that I am and not afraid to face up to my mistakes—I never told him that I had been serious.

'90 Telepledge gets underway

Lynn Marler is the 1990 "Telepledge" Chairman of the American Heart Association of the Floydada Chapter.

Marler will direct the Floydada volunteers' efforts in soliciting Floydada and Floyd County residents about the importance in contributing donations to the American Heart Association by telephone in support of the American Heart Association's research, education, and community service programs.

"Without research that was supported by the American Heart Association, we might not have available modern miracles such as pacemakers, bypass surgery and other techniques to help those with heart defects. New research will help us to continue to benefit from medical discoveries and reduce the rate of death from cardiovascular disease such as heart attack and stroke which is Texas' and America's number one killer," said Marler.

Your contribution provides funds for further research that will increase your knowledge and techniques that in the future may save your life or give you a longer health free life from cardiovascular disease. Please respond by sending your donation to Tom Farris at the First

News and Views from Cedar Hill

WEATHER:

Typically Texas: On the morning of Thursday, Feb. 15, Ruthie Bell Clark, Edna Gilly's mother, turned thumbs down on the vagaries of West Texas weather and headed back to her latest home, the comparative "semi-tropic city" of Austin. It was not the best of mornings that she chose to leave: the low reading had been 20 degrees, fog had reduced visibility to 1/8 mile, and the roadway was sheathed in a half-inch thick blanket of ice.

Clint Ware was Lubbock bound that morning so Ruthie Bell and her grandson, Craig Gilly, quickly decided to hitch a ride with him. Little dreaming what was in store for him, Clint drove cautiously, groping his way through the dense fog, ever mindful of his pickup's doubtful footing on the icy surface. Imagine there surprise, while still a distance from Lubbock, when they passed out of the wind driven fog into bright sunshine. The wind was as strong as ever and almost immediately they began to see skitters of dust drifting across the black-top. Soon visibility was once more down to 1/8 mile but this time blowing dust was the culprit. For the second time that day, Clint was forced to turn his headlights, on and begin to cautiously "feel his way" down the road.

Not much later Ruthie Bell was seated aboard her plane at Lubbock's International Airport ready for the take-off. Departure time came and went, still her plane remained on the runway. Time and again the PA system announced that takeoff was being delayed until the control tower was able to detect a "clear spot" in the blowing dust. Of course clearance was finally granted and almost immediately they were airborne.

Before the sun set that day Ruthie Bell called back from Austin; she had made it OK, it had been clear with bright sunshine when she landed, no wind, and earlier that day the temperature had been up in the 80s.

Now guess what! When Craig and Clint got back to Cedar Hill late that afternoon they found the sun had broken through the clouds at noon, a wind with "Santa Ana-like" warmth had swept in from the southwest, and every vestige of the ice that had been so threatening early that morning had melted. You could truly say it had "gone with the wind!"

A writer's aside: Now where do minor things like the above come from? Without warning some tiny bit of nothing will fall into a crack in a writer's mental infrastructure, it will sprout in that crack, and flourish there. Suddenly it attains such a bulk that it interferes with normal operations, and it's removal becomes imperative. It has been discovered that one can take his writing pen and, when properly applied, the troubling thing can be reduced so that it is no longer a problem, literally it has been "written out!"

Now that the above interloper, Typically Texas, has been explained and commented upon, the following is the part that at one time was fitted just below "WEATHER".

Prepare for a deluge! Unusually warm weather combined with a drastic swing from too dry to too wet, how does that grab you? It could happen! That highly touted "West Texas" weather forecasting ground hog, Marmota Monax, alias Pretexstawnay Phil, was working under ideal conditions when he predicted spring-like weather for the balance of this winter. If you are ever to believe him it ought to be now!

As to the deluge, well the law of averages says the weatherman has worked himself into a corner. The law of averages is a strong law, it demands obedience by all, even the powerful rainman will have to deliver; and you know what happens once West Texas weather takes the bits in it's teeth and begins to run. Concerning the difficult position the weatherman has maneuvered himself into in relation to the law of averages consider this quote from the February 23, 1989 News and Views, "Friday, Feb. 17th: It was pitch dark, 28 degrees, and rain was drumming steadily on the roof at 6:00 a.m. when radio stations across West Texas began to announce the cancellation of the the farm sale for Edna Gilly and Others; new date Feb. 28", and rain it did that day; 'twas a day not fit for man nor beast!

Based on the quote above, you can see that the weatherman has already allowed his averages to go awry in '90, but the News and Views had more. Four days later, On Feb. 21, '89, it was written, "A late, late report! Another 1-1/2 inches of rain reported at the Craig Gilly's!"

The N&V has been reluctant to spell out in detail the apparent short change in moisture that this winter's weather has doled to our area because the weatherman can be overly responsive. Should he happen to read this article, become repentant, and decide to make instant restitution, shook down, then heaped up, and running over as he has been known to do, it could work a great hardship on those who are not fully prepared. Imagine 60 degree temperatures, fields soggy wet from three weeks of rain, and you with your herbicide still sitting on the turlow; while, out in the fields, weed seeds sprout and flourish

Let the field work be pressed with all haste! N&V doesn't want to have to emblazon on the written page, "I told you so!"

Fog, wind, and freezing rain with temperatures as low as 11 degrees were with us on Wednesday thru mid-Thursday of last week, then the sun broke through Thursday afternoon, and, POOF!, in an hour's time the ice was gone. Most agreed they had received three tenths of inch of moisture, some less, but the soil surface was still damp so it was a very effective 3/10. More than one said, skeptically, "Maybe it will be dry enough for field work Monday!"

Something is wrong! Three tenths of an inch of rain falling on ground that is dry enough to plow don't stop field work three to four days! That icy rain and snow is not getting into our rain gauges the way it should! More moisture is falling than the gauges are registering!

UPDATE: 1:30 p.m. Tuesday! Rain water rose past the 1.5 mark in some Cedar Hill gauges within the past hour and a steady drizzle continues!

THE LEANING CEDARS
Feb. 17: Cephus and Imogene Fortenberry visited his sister, Evelyn Winn, in St. Mary's Hospital in Lubbock, Saturday. She was recently moved to Lubbock where doctors are attempting to pinpoint her trouble, believed to be a form of the elusive lupus disorder.

Feb. 16: Edna Easley Love, who taught the "little" room at Cedar Hill School in the mid-30s, and who is also Imogene Fortenberry's sister-in-law, suffered a stroke Friday and was admitted to the hospital in Bridgeport, Texas. Edna experienced a similar stroke some 10 years ago with near 100% recovery.

Feb. 18: An attempt was made to interview Edna Gilly regarding her health Sunday evening, but she was overflowing with other emotions. She had just experienced her "umptieth" birthday on Saturday, the 17th, and she felt folks had been too good to her! A procession of visitors had been there, birthday cards came in abundance, and food also had arrived.

"My cup runneth over!" That was one phrase she used.

A dogged reporter hates defeat, but what was wanted kinda got washed away in her exuberance. She seems better, Mary Williams is coming to help in the house for a few days, but "umptieth" never was clearly defined. When Edna volunteers that, we'll let you know!

PLAIN CEDARS

Feb. 14: A number of Cedar Hillians planned to attend a wedding in Hereford Wednesday evening, but icy roads kept them homebound. Brian Fortenberry was getting married to a cute strawberry blond named Juanita. Age wise, Brian's Jeremiah fits right in between Juanita's two boys. Looks good! The seers say it will work! Home will be in Hereford.

Feb. 15: From Roswell, N.M., comes news that Lupe Arredondo got one of her pretty red fenders bent a little. The car still works and Lupe still works at a babysitting job. Looks like N.M. has got her.

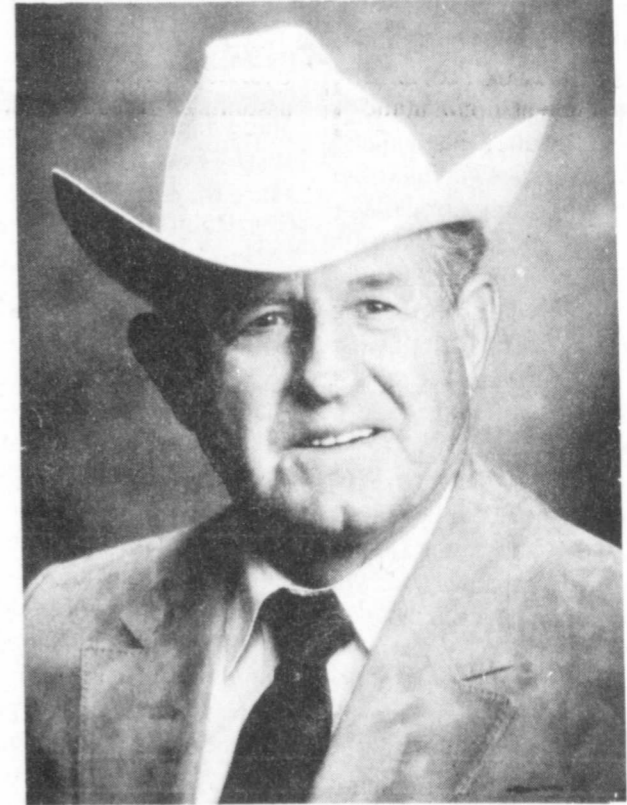

Feb. 16: Rev. Willis Dewey's brother, Wayne and Marie Dewey of Big Springs, Nebraska, have flown south to bask in the February weather at sunny Cedar Hill. Nebraska's minus 50 to 52 degree temperatures makes our winter look mild

THE POST YARD

Terry Harris, the Cephus Fortenberry's grandson, and his mother, Phyllis have recently returned from the big stock show in San Antonio. Terry lost his rabbit's foot a year ago, this year's entries went at floor bid prices.

The January 1, 1990 Cedar Hill census didn't look bad at all, but since then the Jesse Solis family that lived in the Johnny Lackey house, and the Frank DeLeon family who worked for Craig Gilly have moved away. The result made a shambles of community statistics. A high wind may wipe the slate clean at Cedar.

World Day of Prayer is March 2

The annual World Day of Prayer will be observed in Floydada Friday, March 2, 10 a.m. at First Christian Church, 301 W. Missouri Street.

"A Better Tomorrow: Justice For All" is the theme for the observation which joins Christians from 170 countries and regions of the world to pray as one body for each other and for peace in the world. The material was written this year by a group of ecumenical Christian women of Czechoslovakia.

This year for the first time, slides have been prepared to use with the order of worship. They are presented with the hope that when you see a few faces and places in Czechoslovakia, important words about history and events, about faith and life can be reconnected to actual people and what has happened to them.

The United Methodist Women are planning the service with the cooperation of representatives from several other churches in their local ecumenical service.

Following the program, a luncheon will be served in the fellowship hall. Those attending the service are asked to bring a covered dish. There will be child care available for small children.

Jesse Sanchez and Ruth Anne Vasquez were crowned Valentine King and Queen during an evening ceremony Friday, Feb. 16, at the Massie Activity Center.

The children competing for the honors are all students of the CCD program at St. Mary Magdalen Catholic Church. Selection was made by penny votes, with proceeds from the contest going to the church. A total of $1101.63 was collected by all the contestants.

The ceremony opened with a Mass celebration officiated by Father Adolfo Valenzuela, followed by the crowning of the winners.

Sanchez is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Sanchez of Floydada. He collected over 22,000 votes to give him the honor of being crowned King.

Ruth, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Vasquez, claimed her crown with approximately 13,800 votes.

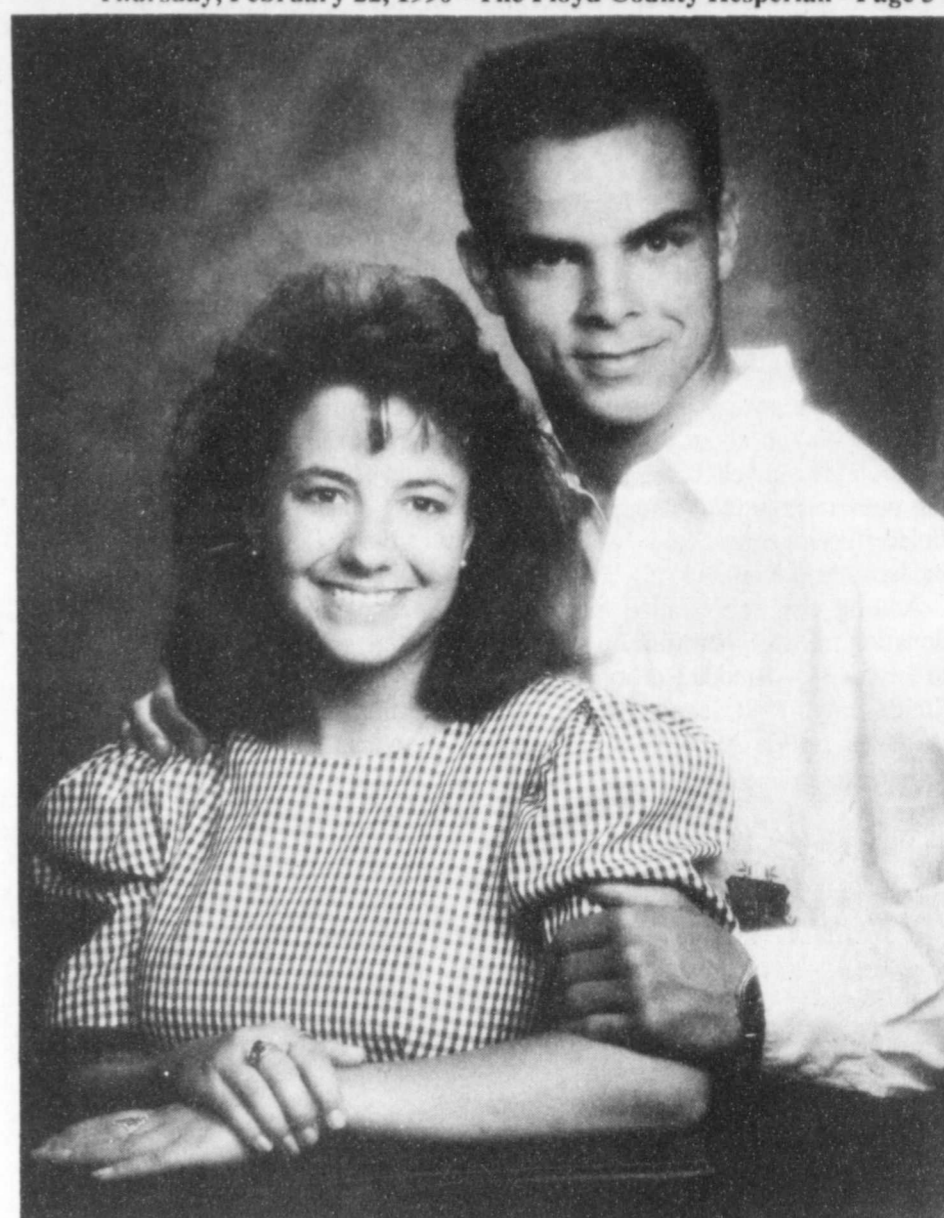

The King and Queen were presented with a crown, robe, flowers, for the queen, and a box of Valentine candy.

Chosen as first runners-up in the competition were Christopher Enriquez, son of Ms. Olga Enriquez, and Royanne Mercado, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roel Mercado.

Jennifer Rodriguez and Angel Aleman were named second runners-up. Jennifer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Rodriguez, and Aleman is the son of Ms. Minnie Soliz.

First and second runners-up were also presented with a box of candy, along with flowers and crowns for the girls.

Others students recognized for competing in the contest were Veronica Morales, Monica Morales, Jody Bueno, Erika Delgado, Mary Jane Gonzales, Maribel Cervera, Analisa Enriquez, Eriberta Barrientos, Noe Romero, Paul Valledo, Orlando Perez and Jesse Delgado Jr.

JUNE WEDDING PLANNED—Robert and Paula Moore of Plainview announce the engagement of their daughter, Robie Marie, to Joseph Cory Mulder, son of Nathan and Kathy Mulder of Floydada. Miss Moore will graduate from Plainview High School in May and plans to attend McMurry College. Mulder is a 1989 graduate of Floydada High School and is a hydraulic technician at Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene. The couple will be married June 2 at Parkview Baptist Church in Plainview. —Photo by R Photography

Residents celebrate February birthdays

By Lorilla Bradley

When February comes along
Much happiness it brings...
With Valentines and birthdays, too
And other lovely things!

Mrs. Marr we're greeting...
At this her special time...
We have the best of wishes
For everything that's fine.

Mrs. Wells we honor
...Her years are 83...
She is a lovely lady
Just visit and you'll see!

Our Mrs. Iva Benson
Who counts from '99...
Can give you heaps of history
About an early time!

Our Mrs. Icy Weathers
Whose years are 85...
Made a very pretty Valentine
The day she did "arrive"!

Mrs. Poage we welcome...
A lovely lady, she...
And may her days be happy
Like "going to a tea"!

We greet our Mr. Willis...
A welcome for him, too...
He joins this little "family"
And he'll find things to do.

Mr. Edward Jameson
Is on the welcome "roll"...
May every day be happy...
That's everybody's "goal"!

Let's serenade these people
With the Happy Birthday song...
So everybody join us
And sing out good and strong!

Thursday, February 15, was party time at the Rest Home with ladies of the City Park Church of Christ hosting. The Hesperian photographer came for the "picture taking" after which everyone was ushered into the dining room with the honorees being seated at the "honor" table. Each one wore a red carnation compliments of Williams Flower and Card Shop.

The table was covered with a rose colored cloth and centered with a silk floral arrangement in shades of rose and blue. Each place was marked with a special birthday card. Jo Bryant read a brief history of the life of each honoree after which the poem was read and all joined in singing the Happy Birthday song.

Mrs. Poage had as her guest her sister, Pauline Robertson and Mr. Willis welcomed his son and daughter-in-law, Kenneth and Barbara Willis.

A delicious refreshment plate of birthday cake and a tangy fruit punch was served to the honorees, other Home residents, guests and employees.

The next party will be March 15, 2:30 p.m. You are invited to be with your friends and loved ones at this their special time.

Duncan Elementary observes Heart Month with health fair

Students at A. B. Duncan Elementary School noted the observance of National Heart Month with a two-day Heart Healthy Fair. Four learning centers helped acquaint students with various aspects of heart health.

As classes and as individuals, the students learned about the importance of blood pressure checking and recording, pulse rates and exercising, the beneficial effects of heart-healthy eating, and the hazards of smoking.

Among the community members donating a day of their time and efforts to the fair were Brenda Heflin, Dawnell Smith, Judy Lloyd, Jeannie Gaunt, Luisa Avila, Sylvia Avila, Gladys Jones, R.N., Sharon Hinton, R.N., Jan Smith, Jill Warren, Julianne Cornelius and Kelly Reddy.

Those working both days of the event were Ann Jones, Mary True, Elaine Clemmons, DeAnn Evans and Sylvia Rendon.

The Texas Department of Health Region II sent people to assist. Those lending a hand were Registered nurses Alice Gomez, Sheila Rhodes and Amy Moore and clerk Mary Gonzales.

Special visitors during the project included school superintendent Jerry Cannon and Twila Albertson, Health Education Specialist from the Region 17 Service Center in Lubbock.

DO YOU HEAR WHAT I HEAR? -- Students at A. B. Duncan Elementary School had their blood pressure taken and recorded during the Heart Healthy Fair last week at school. They also had the experience of listening to their own heart beating through the use of stethoscopes. Staff Photo

Floydada Senior Citizens sell tickets for chance at quilt

Members of Floydada Senior Citizens are selling tickets for a chance on an eight point Star, Floyd County Centennial quilt. The quilt, cut and pieced, by Thelma Jones, was given to the center for a money making project. Other members of the center are presently doing the quilting.

Done in red, white and blue, the quilt has the official centennial stamp at the top, embroidered in the three colors and the year 1890-1990.

Drawing for the quilt will be on Old Settlers Day. Tickets are $1.00 each and may be secured from any Senior Citizen member or by coming to the center, Mon - Fri from 8:00 until 2:00 p.m. Your participation in this project will be appreciated.

Firemen hold annual appreciation meal

The Floydada Fire Department, station 1 and 2, will hold it's annual Employer appreciation meal on Friday night, March 2, at Duncan Elementary School, at 7:00 p.m. This meal is the way that the fire department shows employers of the firemen their appreciation for their continued support.

Each fireman's employer and spouse is invited to attend this meal. The Floydada Volunteer Firemen will provide everything for the meal. There will be an informative program covering the activities of the department for 1989.

Quilting Guild Club meets

The Keeping you in Stitches Quilting Guild met Tuesday, February 13, in the home of Shawnda Foster. The ladies quilted on a double wedding ring quilt pieced by Shawnda. The ladies also started a block exchange. The pieces were cut and distributed by Kay Brock. Each member received pieces for one block. The members will bring the assembled blocks to the next meeting and they will draw to see who receives the pieced blocks. Members present were: Shawnda Foster, Sidney Jackson, DarLee Foster, Brenda Heflin, Ann Jones, Kay Brock, Cindy Belt, Debbie Kirk and Shelly Brock.

The ladies enjoyed a Mexican Stack luncheon and after a short business meeting they continued quilting until 5 p.m. The next meeting will be March 13 in the home of DarLee Foster.

New wild game along the Caprock

According to the Quitaque First National Bank newsletter there is a new wild game along the Caprock.

A lot of people would probably be surprised to hear that there are several herds of wild hogs that roam the breaks and the low country along the rim of the Caprock. They are rapidly growing in number and expanding their territory, and they're causing damage and destruction for ranchers when they decide to inhabit their places. The hogs normally feed on roots, grubs and acorns, but if there is maize or feed grains in nearby fields they'll root, tear and consume considerable quantities during their nighttime forages. We began to hear scattered reports of these hogs about eighteen months ago, but it was just in recent months that we began to realize that the wild hog population along the Caprock is probably MUCH GREATER than anyone ever suspected.

Lyn Payne has done more research on this than anyone we know, and for a year and a half now he's been tramping the hills and setting out traps and studying the habits of the wild hogs. In all this time Lyn was able to trap only one large boar, and because of the hog's keen sense of smell and hearing, he saw very few of the wild creatures even at a distance. A few months ago, however, this all changed, for Lyn got some hunting dogs that are trained specifically for stalking wild hogs. Overnight it opened up the thrill of the hunt, and during the past few weeks Lyn and some of his friends have been able to track and kill several hogs in this vicinity. Some who have participated in the hunts include Lyn and his son Jason, Matt Barrett, Bryan Schott, Jimmy Burson, Dee Whittington, Walter Arnold, Greg Ramsey and Ken Wood.

Some of the hunting tales are hair-raising, to say the least. Wild hogs are similar to snakes—they won't bother you unless they're cornered or disturbed. But when they're chased by barking dogs and skilled hunters, they turn into dangerous animals and their razor-sharp tusks will slash a gash in anything they touch. Lyn has been treed more than once by an enraged hog that turned on him, and several dogs have been severely injured by the hogs after they were cornered. Lyn says the hogs are highly intelligent, and the hardest game he's ever hunted. He said most of the hogs in this country are not Javelinas like those found in East Texas, but are crosses between Russian boars and domesticated hogs. Hogs with this cross often grow to 500 to 600 pounds and they raise three litters a year. All are tremendously strong and agile, with large snouts and long razor-sharp tusks, which they use for fighting rather than rooting for food. The herds continue to roam along the Caprock rim, traveling by night, constantly searching for new watering holes and a better food supply.

While the hogs are hunted now primarily to get rid of a problem, soon they may become a source of revenue for area ranchers, for they can get good money for hunting permits. Ken Wood of Silverton already has had groups come from South Texas to hunt on his place and Rancho Grundy recently began offering hunting leases for wild hogs on his place at White Flat.

COWPOKES

By Ace Reid

"Jake ain't this a great rain, I can already hear the loco weed growin'!"

Communities can obtain help to design strategies for industrial and economic development, according to Brent Crossland, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Crossland said a community should do as much work as possible in areas it can control.

Industries generally examine two general categories of community characteristics before deciding to locate in a specific area, Crossland said.

In the first category are such things as distance from a metropolitan area, availability of water or a skilled labor force. These are categories a community has little control over.

Community action can improve characteristics in the second category. An economic development plan or a program to stimulate retail trade can be a key to bringing industry into a community, Crossland said.

Crossland said assistance offered by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service can help community leaders evaluate local economic conditions and focus on their community's special needs.

Additional information can be obtained from the local county Extension agent.

COTTON TALKS

Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter, February 6, released a 147-page document setting forth the Bush Administration's 1990 farm bill proposals. Included was a recommendation that the current federal crop insurance program administered through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Ironically, the proposal to eliminate federal crop insurance came on the same day a Senate subcommittee opened hearings on crop insurance and not long after Representative Glenn English (D-OK) vowed that the House subcommittee he chairs would overhaul the insurance program and "make sure it works."

Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., noting that unavoidable crop loss is probably the number one threat to survival in agriculture on the High Plains, said "We'll be taking a hard look at the Administration proposal as well as any others with the potential to provide the protection we need, including those involving federal crop insurance."

From information supplied by the office of Lubbock Congressman Larry Combest, major features of the Administration plan are:

All crops currently covered by federal crop insurance, plus forage and hay, would be eligible;

Disaster payments would be available to producers of crops in counties where actual county average harvested yields fall below 65 percent of normal county average yields;

Individual farmers in eligible counties would receive payments for any shortfall in their harvested yield below 60 percent of the county average yield;

Payments for reduced yield and failed acreage would be based on 65 percent of the three-year average market price for each eligible commodity;

Payments for prevented planting would be based on 33 percent of the three-year average market price, and

All payments would be subject to a $100,000 payment limitation. Johnson, recalling that PCG was the prime mover behind popular disaster provisions in farm law from 1974 through 1980, applauds the "idea" of standing disaster program. But on first reading he finds fault with the Administration proposal, primarily on two counts.

First, he says, the requirement that an entire county must experience more than a 35 percent loss before any producer becomes eligible for disaster payments provides no protection for individuals who may suffer irreparable losses in a county where most producers have normal production.

Second, he continues, basing all payments on individual losses above 40 percent of county average yields means a producer with a 900-pound actual average yield, in a county with a 450-pound average (60 percent of 450) to be eligible for payments, and even if he had a total loss he'd be compensated for only 30 percent of his normal production.

Lack of moisture can cause tree and shrub winter kill

One of the problems observed in our area each year is winter-kill of trees and shrubs due primarily to stress caused by lack of moisture. Trees that are in a stressed condition are also much more susceptible to attack by various diseases and insect pests.

Trees and shrubs that do not bud out in the spring are usually thought to have died from extreme cold during the winter, but most often the cause is neglect in the form of failure to water adequately.

CARD OF THANKS

Thank you to everyone who put so much time and effort into making the county Livestock Show a success. A special thanks to the ones who bought our lambs, pay -n- Save, Floydada Business Men and Farmers and L. N. Johnson.

Kevin and Amber Womack
2-22p

Dear Friends,
Thank you for your concern for my husband, Ian Moore, in his last illness, and for me, as it has been expressed through your love, through your visits, the memorials, the flowers, the food, and your prayers. I hereby express my appreciation to each one.
May God continue to bless and use you.
Hester West Moore
2-22p

I want to thank each of you for your prayers, phone calls, cards, and visits during my recent illness. They were greatly appreciated.

Thank you for the contributions to our Dougherty Fire Department barbecue. Everyone's support is greatly appreciated.

Thank you,
Dougherty Fire Department
2-22c

I would like to thank the Floydada Businessmen and Farmers and Mr. Cleo Whittle for buying my lambs at the county stock show. Also, thanks to Hulon Carthel for the use of his barn in getting my lambs ready and thanks to Brent Crossland for all his time and help with my lambs. I would also like to thank James Hinton for donating the plaque I received for Jr. Showmanship. I really appreciate all your support to the youth in the Floyd County Stock Show.
