Commissioners approve new county depository

Meeting in regular session for the month of February, the Floyd County Commissioners Court voted unanimously to change the county depository institution from the First National Bank of Floydada to the Floydada Branch of the First National Bank in Lockney. The banking institution or institutions approved by the court are responsible for all banking transactions for the county during the period of the contract approved.

Two bids were received on the previously advertised request for bids for a county depository. The bidders were First National Bank of Floydada and the Floydada Branch of the First National Bank in Lockney. Both institutions provided the required information and were acceptable as county depositories.

Following a comparison of the bids submitted, the court found the two bids to be virtually the same. The differences were in the loan rate quoted by FNB Floydada, the minimum deposits required for checking accounts, and the interest rate formulas for certificates of FNB Floydada quoted a 6 percent rate for loans against tax warrants even though that was not part of the bid as advertised. The Lockney bank did not quote a loan rate. The minimum for an interest bearing checking account (NOW account) at Lockney was stated as $1000 while FNB Floydada set the minimum at $1500. Certificates of deposit interest rates were set at 97.5% of the T bill rate on the day of investment by the Lockney bank. FNB Floydada

Keltz joins Caprock as administrator

Caprock Hospital enthusiastically welcomed Terry Keltz as their new administrator this week. Keltz officially began his work as administrator, Monday, February 11.

Keltz is well known in the county as a past administrator of Lockney General Hospital. He lived in Lockney for six years, from 1984 to 1990, where he served as administrator of the hospital district and also for a time as vice president of the First National Bank in Lock-

In March, 1990, Keltz left Lockney to assume the position as vice president of administration at the First National Bank of Plainview. It is this position that Keltz resigned from to accept the challenge at Caprock Hospital.

While in Lockney, Keltz was president of the Lockney Chamber of Commerce and a director of the Lockney Keltz was born and raised in Matador. He earned a Bachelor of Science degree from Wayland Baptist University in 1974 and a Master of Science degree in management in 1984. Prior to receiving his graduate degree, Terry spent approximately 12 years in Plainview as a medical technologist.

A veteran of the Vietnam war, Keltz served with the 720th Military Police Battalion in Can Tho, South Vietnam. He received an honorable discharge from the U.S. Army in 1971.

active in the Floydada Rotary Club. After the resignation of former administrator, Leroy Schaffner, and with his management reputation preceding him, Keltz was actively recruited for his new position by Methodist Hospital, Caprock Hospital and many Floydada residents.

"Methodist recommended to the board of directors that I be named as administrator of the hospital, to serve at the will of the board of directors," said

Keltz feels that his first priorities at Caprock are in the areas of financial management and recruiting more doctors to Floydada.

"My goal," said Terry, "is to develop strategies aimed at restoring financial health to the institution while maintaining quality health care.

"Also, with the resignation of Dr. Lopez from the medical staff an immediate need that is facing us is the recruitment of another physician.

"It is hard to get young physicians to come to rural areas but it has been done in the past. There is a physician out there who wants to practice family medicine and experience the diversity of practice that rural areas offer.

"I'm excited about the challenges that are facing us at Caprock Hospital District, and I'm happy to be a part of Methodist Hospital's regional services system due in August Floydada city manager Gary Brown told those in attendance at the February session of the Floydada City Council that the 911 emergency phone system is scheduled for implementation around rgust 1. According to Brown, the stem will be ready for testing in July and will be on line and operating by the beginning of August. Testing may be sometime in June if work is completed ahead of schedule said Brown, "But that is unlikely."

Council members voted to schedule the spring municipal election for May 4. There will be four city posts on the ballot this year. Motion for the setting of the election was made by councilman Ruben Barrientoz and seconded by Councilman Eric Cornelius. The motion was approved unanimously.

Chamber asks for photos of personnel in the Middle East

The Women's Division of the Floydada Chamber of Commerce will be using patriotic decorations at this year's Chamber banquet, set for Feb. 23.

In carrying out the theme they would like to display a special table with pictures of all the men and women from Floydada, who are currently serving in the Middle East.

Everyone is asked to bring your photos to the chamber office, 105 W. California, before Feb. 22. You may pick up the photographs after the banquet or at the chamber office.

Mayor Wayne Russell, appointed to office following the death of Mayor Parnell Powell, must stand for election in order to retain the post. The office of mayor carries a two year term. Three council seats must be filled this spring. The at-large council position vacated by Russell's appointment as mayor will be open for a candidate. This post is for an unexpired one year term.

District Two and District Three council seats will be on the ballot. Each of these positions is for a two year term. Ruben Barrientoz is the current council member in District Two. Leroy Burns is the serving councilman in District

Anyone wishing to sign up to run for a position on the council may obtain further information from City Secretary Jimmie Lou Stewart at City Hall. The first day to file as a candidate will be Monday, February 18.

LANDFILL ISSUE DELAYED

A proposed discussion concerning the Floydada landfill and a contract between the city and Floyd County was delayed as no information had been received from the county on the matter. Mayor Russell told the council that he had spoken with County Judge Bill Hardin and three of the four county commissioners concerning the subject and had encountered no opposition to the proposal that Floydada be paid $4000 per year for landfill services to county residents. This would be the $2000 already being paid annually to Floydada and the $2000 paid annually to Lockney prior to the closing of their landfill last month.

At this time, the county has not prepared a new contract, therefore discussion was postponed.

The city manager reported that previously expected EPA regulations have again been delayed. According to Brown, the proposed EPA regulations were rejected by the Office of Management and Budget as being too rigid and too stringent. Brown said the OMB felt that the proposed regulations needed some leeway to fit each individual situation. The EPA has been instructed to reformulate their requirements for landfill operation and submit a workable plan by the summer of 1992. Russell told the council that each of the state officials for this district had been contacted and asked to intervene with the state health department in speeding up the issuing of a permit for the landfill expansion at the Floydada Landfill. The permit has been "in the works" for about two years and has yet to be approved.

OTHER MATTERS

Bids for repairs to the electric distribution system were to be opened during this evening session, but none were received. The council extended the time for bid submission for thirty days to allow firms to formulate bids.

The annual contract authorizing the Floyd County Central Tax Appraisal District to assess and collect taxes for the City of Floydada was approved. Also passed were two resolutions establishing an affirmative action plan and a records retention policy for the 1989 Texas Community Development Program grant.

The council approved the sale of two tax title lots. The sale of the two lots will not be final until the other taxing entities involved have approved the action. A rental/purchase plan for a tax property now under the supervision of the taxing entities was also approved. The purchasing party will continue to rent the structure until payment of the total delinquent tax bill against the property has

Bids will be advertised for on the seal coating project for the Floydada Municipal Airport runway. The bids will be sought by Texas Aeronautics Board in conjunction with a seal coating project on the airport runway at Childress.

The council set Monday, February 18 at 7:30 p. m. for a work shop session to consider the SPS proposal to purchase the Floydada Electric utility. Also slated for discussion during the workshop is a proposed updated employee handbook for city employees.

Brown reported to the council that an additional emergency siren had been ordered and should be delivered by March 1. It will be installed in the southeast part of town.

Other action at the session included approval of the minutes from the previous meeting, accepting the audit report for the 1989-90 fiscal year, and payment of the monthly bills.

Attending the session were Mayor-

Wayne Russell, council members Leroy Burns, Amado Morales, Ruben Barrientoz and Eric Cornelius, city manager Gary Brown, city secretary Jimmie Lou Stewart and city attorney Karen Houchin. Also present were Sharon Quisenberry, Karen Lawson, Connie Galloway, Jason Owens, Ruben Barrientoz Jr., Randy Duke, Joe Stepp, Cub Scout leaders Pam Holmes and Polly Campbell, Webelos Jason Campbell, Coy Holmes, Jacob Thrasher, Michael Palacios, Warren Bishop and John Doerschuk Jr. and the Hesperian re-

By The Way

The Floydada Fire Hall was the setting for a couple of birthday gatherings this weekend. Police Chief James Hale celebrated his big 50th birthday and Dorothy Turner celebrated 56 years. Actually, I believe Dorothy was honored for putting up with the rest of the Turner clan for as long as she has.

A perfect example of what she has to put up with can be seen in what Shorty Turner told me about her birthday party. Since Larry Guthrie was on call and he wanted to be at the party, Shorty said they had the party at the fire hall so Larry wouldn't have to take the fire truck out so far to put out the candles!

Every once in awhile I get on my soap box. OK—so maybe it's more than every once in awhile.

I got on it in a big way last week and will have a big phone bill to pay because of it

My husband, Lennie, was watching the Today Show Wednesday morning. I don't know why he watches that show. I get mad everytime I sit down to it, so I've quit watching it. I'll only stop for a minute if I happen to see Willard Scott giving the weather. (I like Willard Scott).

Anyway—Lennie made the mistake of coming and telling me what he had just seen on the Today Show. Debra Norville was interviewing a preacher (that's what he called himself) about a book he had just written.

This preacher said his book was about Apostle Paul and how Paul's writings prove that he was a homosexual. Therefore, since Paul was a homosexual then it followed that the Bible tells us that it is OK to be a homosexual.

I don't know what Bible he was reading, but it isn't the same one that I read. I'm sure he was overlooking the Book of Romans, as unfortunately many preachers and churches do.

I have never understood how some people justify sin. Everyone is guilty of it of course. We all screw up of course. But instead of asking for forgiveness and trying hard to do what we know is right, some people pervert the Word to justify themselves.

SOAP BOX!!!

Back to the point. What made me really mad (besides the preacher), was what I see as another example of irresponsible reporting. I was going to call it journalism, but it isn't journalism.

If the Today Show had to choose to put this author on the air, (out of the millions of authors it could have chosen) why did they not have someone else on there who knew something about the Bible to refute this guy.

Instead—millions of misguided people who may be searching for guidance and the right answers, saw a "preacher" on a national TV show (which in many people's mind means he must be telling the truth) tell them that it is OK to be homosexual because God and the Apostle Paul said it was.

Well I was so angry that I got the number for the production manager of the Today Show and I started calling. They disconnected me one time and all the other times, the phone was busy. Maybe other people were calling to complain. I hope so!

If I had gotten through, (which I didn't) maybe I wouldn't still be on my soap box. I might be over my mad, which I'm not.

The more people see this stuff saturated on TV the more they think "everybody is doing it!"

For instance—young minds watch the Phil Donahue show (and others like it). The transexuals, homosexuals, mom and daughter prostitution teams, etc. etc., parade onto the show. They tell their stories—people laugh and applaud

(the audience has obviously been stacked in the guests favor).

The conclusion reached by the person watching the show is that "everybody else thinks its funny." "It must be OK--I guess I'm behind the times. I have to learn to be more open minded!"

Well I heard a saying the other day from a girlfriend of mine. It is a perfect description for all these talk show hosts, liberal churches, and "open minded individuals."

She said, "That guy is so open minded—his brains have fallen out!"

Don't forget to get your chamber banquet tickets. Floydada's banquet is on the 23rd and Lockney's is March 8.

Lockney's banquet will feature local entertainment. It should be lots of fun!

Floydada is hosting Floydada graduate, General Robert Dempsey. There is a short biography in this week's paper on him(we'll have more next week). It is very impressive. I think he is going to be very interesting, and I believe you will not be disappointed if you come.

Remember—come out and support your towns and your chambers!

******

It never ceases to amaze me how smart little kids are. They can grasp the most complicated concepts and make them seem so simple—thereby making you feel very silly.

But the one concept they don't seem to understand is PATIENCE. I know everyone who has kids, or deals with kids can relate to this. They are quick to tell you to wait, or "just a minute," but will not stand it coming from their parents. They seem actually shocked that you would even suggest such a thing.

Charlotte Hooten, who works at Lockney City Hall, told me a story that proves this beyond a reasonable doubt.
She said that Davis, her three year old little boy, was going visiting with her.
She had to take a detour to get some gas and he started asking all kinds of questions. "Where are you going?" "Why are you going there?" "When are we going to get there?"

Of course not only were there lots of why questions, but as most three year olds do, the questions were repeated over and over. This may be done so they can be sure in their little minds what is going on, but personally I think it is done to see if they can trip you up!

Anyway, an exasperated Charlotte finally said, "OK—we are going to get there, just be PATIENT!"

Davis then looked at her with hurt in his eyes and woefully said, "Gee mom, you don't have to call me names."

Motion was made by Precinct 1
Commissioner Connie Bearden to accept the bid of the Floydada Branch of the First National Bank in Lockney for the coming two year period as county depository. The motion was seconded by Precinct 3 Commissioner George-Taylor and approved by unanimous vote of the court.

OTHER MATTERS

A resolution to tax personal property was passed by the court during the February session on Monday, February 11. This has been an annual item requiring approval to allow ad valorem taxation of vehicles, travel trailers, airplanes and boats. The resolution passed this year is a permanent approval and will not be addressed annually unless the court opts to change the method or basis of taxation.

A request from 110th District Judge Randy Hollums was approved by the court for the appointment of a designated person to hear excuses and excuse potential jurors being called to jury duty. The commissioners appointed the district clerk to act in the this capacity.

The First National Bank of Floydada submitted a request that they be allowed to withdraw $315,000.00 in securities previously pledged to cover county deposits in their facility. They also submitted a list of $500,000.00 in securities to be pledged replacing those withdrawn. The court approved the change as submitted.

Ruby Lee Higginbotham, Louis Pyle, Charlene Langley and L. N. Johnson were appointed to the county grievance committee. The appointments were routinely made following the selection of names at the January court session. Each was contacted and agreed to serve on the committee before being approved by the court.

County treasurer Glenna Orman presented her report on the county financial accounts for the month of January. According to Orman, the county began the month with fund balances totaling $246,020.77 and took in receipts of $244,169.62. Disbursements for the month totaled $330,010.52, leaving a total fund balance of $160,179.87 at the end of January.

Orman told the court that 90.12% of the current tax role has now been collected and the county has $379,000.00 in certificates of deposit as of January 31. These funds will be applied to county operating costs in the remaining months of the 1990-91 budget year. Interest earned on certificates of deposit to date now stands at $3,385.65. County indebtedness at this time is $50,534.68 in contractual debt.

The commissioners amended the minutes of the January 14 meeting to change the compensation rate for the courthouse janitor who had requested pay in lieu of vacation. He must be paid at his regular salary rate, not a reduced rate as previously approved.

Budget amendments were passed transfering excess funds from account to account within the framework of the annual budget..

DRESS CODE DISCUSSED

Joe Christian, principal of the high school, discussed the progress towards a dress code for students in the district. The proposed code will include all schools and is being formulated with input from students, parents, faculty, administrators and board members according to Christian. Among the items under discussion for possible regulation are hair length, hair styles, makeup, earrings, necklines, tank tops, shorts, ripped pants, sweat suits, dress length, hats, caps, headbands, bicycle pants, suggestive printing on clothing, general grooming and hygiene.

"We are not trying to stamp out little robot students that look alike, talk alike and act alike," said Christian. "We are

Christian and the other principals urge anyone with an idea or opinion on the proposed dress code to make their feelings known to board members or someone on the committee of students and faculty working on the code.

More definite proposals will be discussed at the March 11 board session and a final draft will be submitted to the board in April.

OTHER MATTERS

Board members approved a permanent resolution to tax vehicles, travel trailers, airplanes and boats. The resolution will stand until such time as the board decides to change the method of taxation or the items taxed.

Also approved was a contract authorizing the Floyd County Appraisal District to assess and collect taxes for FISD. This contract is an annual item which must be voted on by the board.

The board accepted resignations effective at the end of the current school year from Tracey Rice, high school PE instructor and assistant girls coach, and Janet Thornton, high school English teacher. The resignation of Angela Hollowell was also accepted. Her resignation was effective last week according to superintendent Jerry Cannon. She is moving because her husband has been transfered to Bovina. The board also approved a replacement for Hollowell. Margaret Jordan will be teaching special education at R. C. Cannon briefly touched on the current negotiations for funding school operations in the future. He is a member of a special committee which meets biweekly in Austin to address the issue. No definite proposals have been settled on, but Cannon indicated that whatever plan is adopted should be beneficial to the local district.

A Texas Association of School Board policy update was approved for inclusion in local policy manuals. The update brings changes mandated by the state to local schools each year. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and the monthly bills ordered paid by the board.

A letter from three physicians, two from state health offices in Austin and one from the center for disease control in Atlanta, was shown to the board. The physicians were unable to determine the cause of the outbreak of mumps in Floydada last fall. According to Cannon, the group interviewed many people in town and could not find any conclusive connecting facts to account for the epidemic cases of the childhood disease.

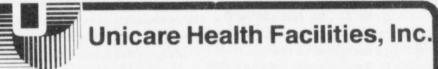

Board member Dr. Andy Hale indicated that he had no knowledge of the visit by the physicians and that he was not aware of any contact between the investigating physicians and the local doctors who treated the cases.

WEATHER

Be not deceived! Winter is not over! Let not this erroneous mid-winter excursion into days of glorious spring like weather cause you to drop your guard. Keep the antifreeze solution strong in your radiators, insure those irrigation motors with adequate cold protection, and remember, allowing a gentle flow of water through that faucet at the end of the line can prevent a lot of grief with the household plumbing!

Februarys are not always thus! A glance backward calls to mind the booger of February 17, 1989, the day when Clint Ware and Craig Gilley took Craig's grandmother, Ruthie Bell Clark, to catch a plane for Austin at Lubbock's International Airport. They left Cedar Hill in the early dawn, driving at a snail's pace; Farm to Market Hwy. 97, indeed the whole countryside, was a one-inch thick sheet of ice. A heavy fog mixed with mist kept the ice wet and dangerous; greased glass could have been no slicker. The fog was so dense that visibility was limited to little more than a hundred feet. Ordinary folk would have stayed at home; waited!

After some fifty miles of creeping, the clouds cleared and they resumed speed, joyously now, driving in bright sunlight against a stiff southwest breeze. Soon they saw skitters of blowing dust dancing across the road ahead and, 'ere long, they had driven into the teeth of a fullblown West Texas sandstorm. They crept into Lubbock International with their headlights ablaze but still somewhat dimmed by dust particles in the burdened air. For nearly an hour Ruthie Bell sat in her plane on the run-way, waiting in the eerie rust colored half light for the control tower to give clearance for her plane to take off.

Craig and Clint, back at Cedar before dark, found that their sand storm had dropped its sand, swept on across Floyd County in the manner of a hot California Santa Anna wind, and not a sliver of the morning's ice remained.

Now there is a PRESENT DAY BOOGER for Floyd County farmers to deal with! Do you remember the "Hail Suppression Organization" that became so unpopular a number of years back? A but it can't stay down when the weather IT! group of area farmers and business men finally obtained an injunction against the suppression people and their activity quietly faded away. It was in the February 15, 1990 edition of the Hesperian, exactly a year ago this week, that News and Views warned that the suppression serpent was not dead but had returned and was seeking financial support so that it might go on the march and crawl or fly again. At that time your writer donned his proverbial high-topped boots, to avoid snake-bite, and gave the reviving little wriggler a bit of a verbal stomping.

After that it became deathly quiet for a time and it was evident that the grass root, or popular subscription, approach to finance mankind's meddling with atmospheric moisture had gained little or no support. In fact the prospect was so dismal that those who favor such activity have chosen to fall back, regroup, and attack from above using the vantage of various governmental entities rather than depending on grass root subscrip-

Thursday morning, February 14, 1991, at 8:30 A. #### CROP COMMENTS

COTTON: Feb. 11: USDA released the figures on farmer's planting intentions Monday. Cotton showed by far to be the biggest gainer with an estimated increase of approximately 13% over acres planted in 1990. That is enough to give people a bad scare, but the size of this increase within itself is pessimistic enough to cause a few growers to make immediate cut-backs in their plans.

Storms in the Spring and early summer reduce planted acres by as much as 25% some years, so, considering the fact that the planting date for our area's cotton is near the latest in the nation, the final decision can be delayed longer here than in most areas. Chances are that we are seeing the picture at its very worst right now. It will likely keep looking better and better right up to planting Soil preparation is moving ahead at a rapid pace. All personnel are expected to be on the firing line, and AWOLs have no reason to expect gentle handling!

Martha Taylor, one Cedar Hill grandmother who dedicated herself to bigger and better things a year or so back, turned herself out to pasture so to speak, returned last week to once again get the feel of the wheel on a larger, more modern tractor than she had handled previously. She had some positive comments about the tractor and hinted she might stake out a permanent claim to the cab. Well, you're not old 'til you

THE VALENTINE CEDAR

We may have to give up on these exotic titles like "The Resolution Cedars," and such that we have been giving to our everyday folks. It is not that romance has died at Cedar, but people have become so very, very practical. The middle east, the IRS, the USDA, and the CRP have a way of moving in and taking over the conversation when the question is asked, "What's cooking for Valentine?

But we have inspirations here at the Listening Post! We have resources! We decided to let our bucket down directly into the "well!" We would tap the artesian flow of all things lovely, tender, and everlasting that swirl forever around that fireside industry, "The Liberty Bake Shop" of Charlene Langley.

You know, it was kind of tender and easy the way Charlene let us down. The way Charlene put it, "It's really no big thing with people any more. Valentine is one of our slow times. Oh we bake some valentine cookies, more or less for promotional purposes, but on most Valentines not much goes on."

The Leaning Cedars got omitted again this week. There is still sneezing and croupy talk going around, now and then somebody stays in bed for a couple of days, but the doctors would starve to death if people everywhere are doing like those at Cedar Hill. Let's not call that bragging, the pendulum does swing, and our time will come.

Imogene Fortenberry touched base back at home from her stint in Lubbock helping Lottie Easly Love care for Eldon, her arthritic son.

We are very glad to welcome our administrator, Terry Keltz. Monday was his first day with us.

We had an employee luncheon on Tuesday of this week. We recognized our employee of the month, Lydia Garza, celebrated birthdays and welcomed our new administrator Terry Keltz.

Dr. Jordan is on his annual trip to Central America. Dr. Hale is very busy trying to keep all the health needs of our community met.

Patient census today is 10. We have two longterm care patients and one Medicare Swing-bed patient.

Always willing to make an effort to make our community better, that's William Bertrand, the President of our Board of Directors. William spends countless hours working, talking and doing things to try and made our hospital better. At present in addition to serving the Board he is taking the EMT Surse that is in progress. Our community owes a debt of gratitude to this fine gentleman who has devoted himself to our hospital the past several years.

Carol Scribner, Sharon Hinton and Michelle Bearden, all R.N.'s at Caprock Hospital recently attended a Red Cross disaster meeting in Dallas. We had 12 people to sign up for mammograms this past week when the mobile unit was here. We will be offering these again in April. We want to continue to offer this service to the ladies of our community at the lowest possible cost.

Diabetes class will meet on February 28 at 7:00 p.m. at the hospital. We will have a guest speaker.

Duncan Elementary has Heart Healthy Fair

Month and Valentine's Day, the students at A.B. Duncan Elementary participated in the Second Annual Heart Health Fair during physical education classes the week of Feb. 11.

The Heart Health Fair began last year when the school nurse, Billie Jordan and physical education teacher, Anne Carthel, joined forces to find some new ways of teaching the children how fitness, diet, exercise and healthy habits work together for lifetime heart health. The innovative active learning centers involve the children by using all the modalities of learning: visual, auditory, kinesthetic, sensory.

There will be four learning centers. The first center is a LUB DUB exercise center. Students used stethoscopes to listen to their own heartbeats and a partner's prior to exercise. Then the students jumproped for approximately seven minutes. Their own heartbeats and their partners were then listened to. The heartbeats were compared after the exercise.

The second center was a snack center where students learned how to spot heart healthy snacks, how to eliminate some of the fat and high cholesterol from their diets and how to make two new heart healthy snacks. The best part of the center was that the students got to eat the new snack foods when the discussion and demonstration is over.

The third center was a "Measure Up" center where students had their height, weight and body fat percentage measured by the use of skinfold calipers.

Following the Heart Health Fair, charts and their personal "Measure Up" information were sent home with children, so parents can see what type of health and eating needs their child may have.

The final center this year was a walkthrough "Heart House" where children moved through a giant heart-shape and chambers of the heart. They moved through this pattern with an explanation of what happens to the blood inside the heart and lungs, heartbeat sound effects and then had an opportunity to act out how the various heart diseases react inside the heart itself.

At the conclusion of the Heart Health Fair, each student received a booklet reinforcing many of the concepts taught during the fair. The booklets included recipes, color or puzzle pages, songs, food group information and other good-

The cafeteria served a special Heart Healthy menu on Tuesday and Wednesday to reinforce the need for healthy eating habits. The music teacher taught the children some Heart Healthy songs and the classroom teachers took the opportunity to correlate their heart health essential elements as well. Valentine's party snack ideas were sent out to parents on Monday to encourage a little thought about healthier goodies and the school was decorated with hearts everywhere!

Many community members and parents donated their time and energy in helping make this event as successful as

HEART HEALTHY SNACKS

In celebration of February being National Heart Month, Duncan kids were supplied this week with heart healthy snacks by their P.E. teacher Anne Carthel, and school nurse, Billie Jordan. Here are a few examples.

Mini-Pizza Snacks - melba toast crackers spread with spaghetti sauce, topped with one pepperoni and 1/4 of a slice of cheese; pop in the microwave for

Cracker Snackers - 1 (1 oz.) envelope ranch-style dressing mix; 1/4 teaspoon dried whole dillweed; 1/4 teaspoon lemon-pepper; 2 (11 oz.) boxes

In observance of National Heart taped on the floor complete with valves oyster crackers; 1/2 cup vegetable oil. Combine 1st 4 ingredients in bowl; add crackers and toss well. Drizzle oil over cracker mixture; stir well. Place mixture in large paper bag and fold top; let stand for 2 hours shaking occasionally. Store in airtight container.

Granola Snack Mix - 1 (16 oz.) pkg. granola cereal with raisins and dates; 1 (15 oz.) pkg. hearty granola cereal; 1 (8 oz.) pkg. chopped dates; 1 cup cashew nuts; 1 cup carob coated raisins; 1 cup chocolate-covered peanut butter chips. Combine all ingredients and store in airtight container.

Lightning Cheese Biscuits - 2 cups biscuit mix; 2/3 cup finely shredded Cheddar cheese; 1/2 cup water. Combine ingredients stirring just until moistened. Turn dough out onto well-floured surface, and knead 15 to 20 times. Pat dough to 1/2 inch thickness, then cut with biscuit or heart shaped cutter Bake at 450 degrees for 8-10 minutes.

Quick Fruit Dip - 1-1/2 cups plain low-fat yogurt; 1/4 cup low-sugar orange marmalade; 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon; 6 cups assorted fresh fruit. Combine first 3 ingredients; cover and chill. Serve with fruit.

Toasted Peanut Butter and Jelly Sandwiches - Use a mixture of milk and red food coloring to lightly paint on the bread with a water color paintbrush (not enough to make bread soggy). Then place bread in toaster and toast. (This will make the bread red on one side). Then use heart shaped cookie cutter to cut out hearts from the toast. Spread peanut butter and jelly one heart shape and top with another.

Banana Scoops - Cut out a strip of banana peel down the length of the banana. Scoop out the fruit inside. Mix the banana with low-calorie whipped topping and restuff the banana. Top with maraschino cherries.

Apple Boats - Slice apple wedges; insert a toothpick lengthwise into the apple wedge into the cheese, like the sail

Peanut Sticks - Use 3 day old bread, trim crust and save. Cut each slice into 5 strips. Put strips and left over crust on cookie sheet in 250 degree oven for 1 hour. Break crust into crumbs. Then mix together 1/2 cup peanut butter and 1/2 cup salad oil. Roll each bread stick into the oil and peanut butter mixture, then into the crumbs. Drain on paper towels.

PARTY PUNCHES

Orange Blossom Special - Mix equal amount of pineapple orange juice (chilled) and vanilla ice cream and a dash of nutmeg. Blend together well and serve immediately.

Early Bird - Mix equal amounts of pineapple orange juice (chilled) and cranberry juice; blend with ice and

There are many other recipes that are truly good and healthy for kids! There are just a few to get you started thinking. Also consider adding some juice to the sugar-free Kool-aid or punch for the parties. This is a simple way to add some healthy benefits.

Remember, it's a great time to try some of those heart healthy snacks at home. The best possible example of healthy eating and exercising is you! One out of every four adults has some type of heart disease or health problem which will lead to heart trouble. Is it not as important to teach your child how to maintain his health as it is to teach your child math or reading?

Have a Happy Heart Healthy Valentine's!

TMJ gives 25 million jaws something to discuss

An estimated 25 million Americans who suffer from TMJ disorders now have proof that their pain isn't "all in their heads." A recent discovery has identified a specific chemical source for the pain.

What is TMJ?

The temporomandibular joint (TMJ), the small joint located below the ear where the jawbone meets the skull, allows the lower jaw to function. When a problem occurs with the joint, individuals can suffer from headaches, earaches, facial pain and clicking jaw joints. Unfortunately TMJ disorders are often overlooked or misdiagnosed because symptoms range from mild pain to debilitating conditions and people see a variety of health care professionals in search of relief.

Recently, two researchers at Louisiana State University (LSU) discovered a specific chemical source for TMJ pain. James Quinn, DDS, professor of oral and maxillofacial surgery, and Nicolas Bazan, PhD, MD, professor of biochem-

This discovery marks the first identification of a specific chemical source for TMJ pain, a condition some health care providers and insurance companies have labeled "imaginary" because of its many causes and symp-

Causes

There are a number of causes for TMJ disorders including a misaligned bite, a blow to the chin or jaw as well as arthritis or dislocated cartilage in the jaw joint. Stress can be a contributing factor provoking individuals to grind or clench their teeth and place pressure on the jaw joint. Because the source for TMJ pain varies, individuals can experience a range of symptoms from earaches, headaches, and clicking and popping sounds in the jaw joint to muscle spasms and an inability to open the mouth properly. The greatest percentage of people who suffer from TMJ disorders are women, ages 20-40 years, who work at white collar jobs.

Treatment Depending on the severity of the condition, oral and maxillofacial surgeons, specialists in the areas of the mouth, jaws and teeth, provide various treatments for TMJ disorders. They may prescribe conservative measures such as heat therapy, stress reduction therapy, physical therapy, mild medications or muscle relaxants. In some cases, surgery may be recommended to repair or replace a damaged jaw joint. Advances in arthroscopic techniques istry and molecular biology, found two have enabled oral and maxillofacial surgeons to make tremendous strides in the diagnosis and treatment of TMJ disorders. An arthroscope is a thin instrument about the size of a pencil which can be inserted into the jaw joint through a small puncture near the ear. A tiny camera in the arthroscope transmits pictures of the jaw joint onto a television screen. Oral and maxillofacial surgeons use the arthroscope to view the joint, diagnose problems and cleanse the joint, if necessary.

> With advances like the use of arthroscopy, oral and maxillofacial surgeons have been able to identify TMJ problems more readily and treat them more effectively. The first step for the millions of individuals suffering from TMJ disorders is to seek a professional consultation from an oral and maxillofacial

Surplus funds supplement dollars

Texas beef promotion efforts have received an economic boost from unexpected sources the last couple of years, Texas Beef Industry Council officials said recently.

"TBIC is supplementing present checkoff dollars with surplus funds," Clark Willingham, TBIC president from Dallas, said. "The additional funds include dollars held since the first days of the checkoff program and savings from tight management of budgeted operating costs. These additional funds requested their refunds, a balance rehave helped TBIC extend national beef promotion efforts into Texas to give Over the past three years, portions of each current checkoff dollar a little extra power."

Willingham said the law that created the beef checkoff program required organizations and other projects that state beef councils to set aside 10 percent of total checkoff dollars. Beef producers could request refunds of their checkoff remittances from the start of the program on Oct. 1, 1986, until they voted to make the program permanent on May 27, 1988. Congress made no provision for refunds when the program came permanent.

Willingham advised cattle producers that surplus funds are separate from current checkoff dollars. For this reason, TBIC's financial reports, which reflect expenditures based on annual checkoff income, may show deficits when these surplus funds are used. These deficits mean TBIC has spent 100 percent of the year's checkoff income in addition to investing some of the surplus

Cotton producers report intentions

U.S. cotton producers reported intentions to plant about 13.9 million acres of Upland and extra long staple (ELS) cotton this spring, according to the National Cotton Council's ninth annual Planting Intentions Survey completed in early January.

Council economist Jess Barr said that the survey reveals intentions to increase Upland plantings 11.9 percent to 13.6 million acres, while ELS acreage is seen increasing 22.2 percent to 283,000 acres. All areas of the Belt except the West are expected to increase acreage.

To put these changes in plantings into perspective, said Barr, the change in the Upland ARP requirement from 1990 to 1991 would allow an 8.6 percent increase in program-eligible acreage.

Barr said the increase in ELS acreage was due mainly to producers' intentions to switch some acreage from to ELS in California and Texas. The switch to ELS in these two states is expected to outweigh the switch away from ELS to Upland in Arizona.

Based on these early January responses, the Council survey showed the biggest Upland cotton planting increases are planned in the Cotton Belt's Mid-South region. Producers in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri and Tennessee plan to increase their acreage 14.4 percent to 4.09 million acres. Growers in the Southwestern states of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas said they would increase plantings 14.3 percent to 6.8 million acres. Growers in the Southeastern states of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia said they would increase plantings by 12 percent to 1.2 million acres.

Producers in the Western states of Arizona, California and New Mexico said they would decrease plantings by 3.8 percent to 1.4 million acres. The decline in California's plantings of 8.4 percent outweighed the increases for Arizona and New Mexico.

Barr said that since no survey was conducted in 1986, this is the first survey taken after a major change in program provisions. The survey was conducted right after program provisions were announced on December 31 and had a return deadline of Jan. 11. Therefore, the survey reflects initial planting intentions, and factors such as water restrictions in California and a special 50/92 program currently under consideration may affect actual plantings.

The survey also indicated that 87 percent of Upland acreage will participate in the government program, while virtually no ELS producers indicated they would participate.

Barr said the per-acre yield for 1991 is projected to be close to the five-year average of 624 pounds due to the increase in acreage. The Council economist said with average abandonment, harvested acreage should be about 12.9 million acres. Cotton production for 1991 is projected at 16.1-17.4 million bales, with a mid-point of 16.7 million.

Species-specific hormones have no effect on humans

Background

All humans and animals produce hormones, which are usually proteinbased chemicals. Hormones travel from one organ to another within the body, usually via the blood stream. Hormones stimulate a particular activity or function, such as menstruation, lactation (milk production), or growth.

Living organisms constantly produce hormones. The levels at which these natural hormones are produced, however, may vary through the animal's life or production cycle.

Livestock producers are particularly interested in hormones that stimulate wth and weight gain. For centuries, man attempted to control growth hormone production in livestock. Then, 30 years ago, the FDA approved a variety of natural and synthetic growth hormone compounds developed through agricultural science.

The beef industry is the primary user of growth hormones; hormones are also being tested by dairy and pork producers. All growth hormones are speciesspecific and have no effect on humans who may eat meat or drink milk from treated animals.

The most widely discussed dairy hormone is bovine somatotropin, or BST. Although this dairy growth hormone has been tested extensively nationwide in dairy herds, it has yet to receive FDA approval.

Pork

Porcine somatotropin, or PST, is under consideration by the FDA for approval for use by the swine industry. Tests show that this growth hormone stimulates growth while producing a leaner, less fatty animal.

Consumers usually focus their attention on the hormones this industry uses. Examples of the most prevalent FDA-approved hormones used by the beef industry include Ralgro, Synovex H, and Synovex S. These hormones are approved for use only in animals going to slaughter; dairy producers aren't permitted to use them on milk cows.

Giving hormones to cattle is a simple process. During the "finishing" period, the time just prior to slaughter, cattle receive an ear implant that contains a hormone dose. This implant delivers a small steady dose to the animal's bloodstream over roughly an 80- to 100-day period.

Using hormones during the finishing period increases an animal's rate of gain by 10 percent to 20 percent, while decreasing its feed consumption by 10 percent to 15 percent, according to Iowa State University research. Treated animals yield more muscled, leaner meat than do untreated cattle.

An implant typically costs less than $2, but it yields an economic gain worth 15 to 20 times that much.

In short, using hormones allows a producer to lower his cost of production while providing consumers with safe, less expensive, and sometimes leaner

Food Safety Concerns

The United States' on-going dispute with the European Economic Community over exports of hormone-treated meat products raised many concerns. among consumers. Some questioned why American producers need to use hormones at all. Others worried that hormone residues in meat and milk might be harmful to consumers.

Summary

(1) Hormones help producers raise leaner animals for us. Cutting down on the amount of fat in our diets is just what the American Cancer Society, among others, has urged us to do.

(2) Producers use hormones responsibly and follow the guidelines set by the FDA for their use.

(3) All hormones are approved by the FDA before they're allowed to be used. The FDA also specifies withdrawal periods producers must observe before they send animals to slaughter. These guidelines are designed to safeguard consumers' health.

Early wildlife in Martin's lifetime

By Will Martin

The first wild wolf that I remember seeing was one that was going north across our pasture. It seemed in a big hurry to get somewhere. Either to find shelter, a den or catch a cottontail or jackrabbit.

It was a little over a quarter of a mile from our house. At that distance it appeared brown in color and mama said it was what they called a loafer wolf.

I was about 4 years old at that time. After that viewing I might have seen two or three wolves on my trips with papa around and about across the prairies.

As the country became more settled and trappers caught more wolves and coyotes for their hides, both wolves and coyotes began to back deeper down in the breaks under the cap. Also, the tall grass where the animals could seek hiding and shelter were gone.

In the early days on the South Plains or "Llano Estacado" when the grass was maybe two or three feet tall there were several wild animals roaming about. The larger ones were wolves, coyotes, raccoons, oppossums, foxes, antelopes, wildcats and maybe bobcats. Nature in order to balance nature caused these animals to prey on one another, especially the smaller ones that I shall name next. Most of these animals lived in dens for protection from weather and one another and as settlers came to the plains broke out a lot of the grass most of the wildlife thinned out as I have said before some stayed of course.

For instance within the present time, our son-in-law who works for a farmer near Providence, tells of seeing coyotes trot along beside his tractor and plow. While the tractor was running the coyote would stay along beside, but as soon as the tractor stopped the coyote would take off in a fast run.

I suppose the coyotes were intelligent enough to know that the tractor was not going to harm them unless they got in front of it and it would run over them. But as soon as the tractor stopped and a man stepped out, "their natural enemy" they would run for safety.

I would suppose the coyotes were after rabbits, rats, mice and anything they could catch to eat. I think the rabbits are very prolific is one of the reasons the coyotes and some of the other animals have stayed on the broke out plains.

George Yandell, one of my brothersin-law with my sister Mary and two children at the time, moved to a sandy land farm south of Roaring Springs in the year of 1917. George was a very

Rep. Chisum appointed to Appropriations Committee

State Rep. Warren Chisum, Pampa Democrat who serves the 84th District in the Texas House of Representatives, was appointed this week as the acting chairman of Budget and Oversight for the House corrections Committee by Texas House Speaker Gib Lewis. The post was held by Rep. Barry Telford, D-DeKalb, who was hospitalized with an apparent heart attack.

Telford, 44, was reported to be in good condition and is expected to remain hospitalized for one week, according to his legislative aides.

Rep. Charles Finnell, D-Holliday, a 13 year veteran of the Texas House, called Chisum's situation a "battlefield promotion."

Chisum's advancement automatically assigns him to the powerful House Appropriations Committee, which oversees the purse-strings of the state. "We face a long and difficult task to approve a budget that will serve the needs of the people of Texas," Chisum said. "The Legislative Budget Board has not included in the current budget a recommendation for funding the staffing of the Pampa or the Childress prison unit. Naturally, that is a great concern to me. I hope my position on the committee will help us address that problem."

As acting chairman of Budget and Oversight for the Corrections Committee, Rep. Chisum will oversee budget matters pertaining to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, Texas Juvenile Probation Commission, Texas Youth Commission, Council on Offenders with Mental Impairments, Interagency Council on Sex Offender Treat- his head out of the den and twist his neck ment, and the Criminal Justice Policy watching until you passed completely Council.

"I am very pleased with my new dutics," Chisum said. "I know I will be even busier with the added responsibility, but I still like to hear from my district on the legislative concerns they may have," he added.

Rep. Chisum is beginning his second term in office. Earlier in the current session he was appointed to serve on the County Affairs Committee and the Corrections Committee.

successful trapper as well as a farmer. He came from Arkansas where they trapped a lot for a living.

He told me a lot about trapping near Roaring Springs. He told me of catching skunks, wolves, coyotes, coons, badgers, wildcats, bobcats and taking their skins for sale. If I remember right an average hide or skin would sell for around $2.50 apiece. These animals probably came off the high plains after most of the grass gave way to crops as, wheat, oats, feterita, kaffir corn and

The antelopes that I mentioned among the first of this writing were probably the first to get away from man. They were almost like deers and according to my memory were very meek animals, I heard that they could be scared to death under the right conditions, where they went to from the high plains I never knew. They were swift footed.

We will tell of some of the smaller animals that were native to the plains. I don't know if the smaller animals were here while the buffalo were here and were killed off for their skins.

Smaller Natural Animals of The Plains

I am sure many of you have seen prairie dogs. If I remen ber correctly the grown ones are close to the size of a cottontail rabbit. Prairie dogs dig dens in a fairly large circle, heaping dirt up maybe six inches high to keep water out of the den. I am told that about 3 feet deep these dens are connected with most of the other dens with a tunnel. With more tunnels leading away from the main tunnel a small distance to make storage space for food and a place for dog owls and snakes to live with them. We always called these places prairie dog towns.

If a person happens to pass by one of these towns you may see one prairie dog standing on the edge of his den barking or making sort of a whistling sound with all his might. All other dens will appear empty except a dog owl or two sticking by. The dog that was barking was warning the others until possible danger was passed, or as I was told he was their security guard.

As far as I know prairie dogs lived on anything green. If they eat any meat I never knew it. They are still here and if they start a town next to a wheat field or any other green crop the farmer sure does buck and pitch until he gets them were in this country in the early days. They are still here as destructive to green growing crops as they ever were when I was younger. They used to have rabbit drives, a bunch of men with mostly greyhound dogs would get together and go about seeing how many they could kill off. I don't remember if the county paid for it or who. But someone would pay a nickel for each pair of ears.

Rabbits, both jack and cottontail,

Some people kept tame rabbits to eat and sell. A good healthy cottontail is real good eating, and to me they taste much like chicken. I don't know the real worth of a jackrabbit they mostly have sores on them and are not fit for eating only for hogs and dogs.

Two of the wild things that have interested me as far back as I can remember were bullfrogs and toad frogs. By nature the bullfrogs must live in or near water. When the playa lakes were dry and no puddle holes with water in them not a bullfrog could be found.

If a 2 or 3 inch rain came and partially filled the lake and any one happened to be near the next morning or night you couldn't hear your self think for the croaking of the frogs. When it was dry weather the frogs were buried deep in the lake bed, and came out when the lake was filled. Let me explain this phe-

Here it is. On years that heavy showers or good rains were spotted there might be a lake that would only get a few showers and what rain it did get it would soak up in the lake bed quickly. And as the frogs were cold blooded beings and were capable of living in moist dirt in a state of hibernation for quite a long spell of time, possibly through the winter or more, they would wait for a lake filler before coming to the surface of the

I am told this croaking we hear is their mating call. For the life of me I can't figure out how the male can tell his female or vice versa in all that noise. They are getting ready to fertilize some eggs to hatch out tadpoles. The tadpoles sprout legs, shed their tails and become

As far as I know both kinds of frogs are a friend to mankind. They eat bugs, worms and so forth, and do not bother crops or eat anything useful to humans, or any being that is useful to humanity. I understand that in places where bullfrogs grow much larger than they do here on the high plains that their legs are considered a very tasty thing for human consumption.

Now toad frogs have always been one of nature's pets to me. They are very much like bull frogs in some ways. Yet in other ways they are different. A toad

Horn toads are another of my natural probably die. pets. They are a little longer bodied than a toad frog and are warty on their back and have horns. They will try to get away from a person, but if you can catch them they will sull and play dead as long as you keep your hand on them. But when you take your hand off them they will take off like a streak. A horned frog lays eggs in damp places. When they hatch I think they are the cutest little things I ever saw. When I catch one it will sull just like papa and mama. These toads live on bugs and flies like the bull and toad frog as I have said before they are very useful to humanity.

I don't have as loving, members in the snake family that were here in the early days and some are still here. The diamond back rattler is very poisonous, a person should be very careful around tall weeds, grass and rocky places where around. They are harmless and live on rattlesnakes are apt to be.

Some people say that a rattlesnake will always warn a person by rattling his tail before it bites a person, but I think that is not always true. Because if you step on one without warning he won't take time to rattle, just bite for self pro-

If you encounter one on clean ground and don't get too close to him. He will take off in a rush in the opposite direction from the person that finds it. They don't like humans any better than most of us care for them. If a person gets bit by a rattlesnake have someone to cut a slit in the place and suck the blood out, and of course spit it out very quickly. Destroy the snake and get the victim to a doctor as soon as possible.

A full grown bullsnake is about the size of a full grown rattlesnake. A person might mistake one for a rattler. They are pretty near the color of a rattlesnake

He said each frog was They swallow something with their wide jaws and wrap themselves around As many people know they hop not as near as they can find a round object.

They then have plenty of leverage as can catch one of them and it will remain they need to crush their prey that it can docile and harmless. We used to be told be digested. I caught one with a large just to make us let all wild things alone whipped the snake till he turned the frog that we might pick up something harm- free. The snake took off in a rush. I just left the poor frog there. I knew he would

I don't know if nest eggs for hen houses are still made and used anywhere now. In the early days 2 or 3 were put in ahen's nest believing that it would make the hen think the nest was already started for use to lay an egg in. I think the people were more fooled than the hen was.

The story goes that someone put artificial eggs in a nest and a bull snake found his way in the hen house. He swallowed all the real eggs he could find and when he came to the nest eggs he swallowed them too. Don't you know that was one more constipated bullsnake.

The next snake I have in mind was the prairie, or called by some, the garden snake. They were about 12 or 14 inches long when grown, or the ones I saw were about that length and not very large insects, bugs, flies and such like.

When I was young I would chase one down, catch him and use it for a play thing. Anyone would have to hold one pretty light to keep it from slipping out of your hand. They would run that forked tongue out like he was going to eat any one up.

The last snake I shall mention in early days was called by some folks the "hog nose" and by others the "spreading adder." It had a flat nose giving it the impression of a hog's nose. The spreading adder was so named because when you came near one it would spread its jaws in anger. The grown people would tell us they were poison but I never heard of one biting a person or anything else. Their color made anyone think of a rattlesnake. They lived on just about the same thing as the prairie snake lived on.

We need more wildlife in the wide open and less in the big cities.
