Collier honored for 50 years of service

By Alice Gilroy

Margaret Collier has devoted 50 years of her life to Floyd County. To recognize her service the county is giving her back one day, proclaiming Friday, May 24, as Margaret Collier Day.

Starting to work as Deputy County Clerk of Floyd County on September 15, 1941, Margaret ran for the office of County Clerk in 1942, was elected and assumed the duties on January 1, 1943. She has held the position continuously since that date.

Besides the Commissioners Court proclamation of Margaret Collier Day, Collier is also proud of a letter she received recently from Congressman Bill Sarpalius.

Sarpalius sent Collier a copy of an article read on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives in her honor. "This article in the Congressional Record is just a small way to document your unselfish service to the people of Floyd County," said Sarpalius.

Sarpalius' letter begins, "Mr. Speaker, I rise to bring special attention to an outstanding citizen of the 13th Congressional District of Texas. Margaret Collier has been an integral part of the Floyd County Clerk's office for fifty years."

The article proceeds to tell a brief history of Collier and her service to the county and ends with Sarpalius asking Mr. Speaker and his colleagues to join him in congratulating Margaret Collier for a job well done. "Her commitment to serving others is an example for all of us to follow."

Collier, a native of Missouri, was born March 31, 1911 in Hardin, Ray County, Missouri, to Mr. and Mrs. W.K. Collier.

She moved, with her parents, to the Irick Community in Floyd County in 1915. The Collier's lived here, until the death of Margaret's father, at which time her mother moved the family of nine children to Lockney.

Margaret started her schooling in Lockney and graduated as Valedictorian of her class in 1929.

Though her ambition was to be a school teacher, because of financial difficulties she went to Lippert's Business College in Plainview. She completed a secretarial course and for two years worked for an auditor with the Whittenburg Oil Company.

An illness which required surgery forced Margaret to resign that job, at which time she returned to Lockney. When her health permitted Margaret went to work as a bookkeeper for Baker Mercantile Company in Lockney, and then for ten years as a bookkeeper in the First National Bank in Lockney.

She left Lockney's bank to accept employment as Deputy County Clerk of Floyd County at the request of Emma Louise Smith, the county clerk at that time.

A liberated lady long before there was such an expression, Margaret has never married and worked hard all her life to support herself and to help her family.

When Margaret was first elected in 1942, she purchased a small frame house for her mother and herself to live in for $2,500, and she still lives in the same house.

"When I bought the house I felt if I could get re-elected for a second term I would be able to pay for the home," said Margaret. "I liked working and I wanted to work to supply a home for my mother and I."

Collier was re-elected and has been

Ambulance in need of funding assistance to weather the storm

By Juanita Stepp

Members of the Floydada Emergency Medical Services met with the city council on Monday, May 20, to discuss the financial operation of the ambulance service during the time that Caprock Hospital is closed.

Present for the evening session were hospital board members Melba Vickers, Jerry Thompson, Jim Word, Joy Assiter, EMS director Rhonda Guthrie and hospital administrator Terry Keltz. Representing the City of Floydada were Mayor Wayne Russell, councilmen Leroy Burns, Amado Morales, Wayne

Tipton, Ruben Barrientoz, Eric Cornelius, and Clar Schacht.

Others in attendance at the session were city manager Gary Brown, city secretary Jimmie Lou Stewart, city employees Sharon Quisenberry, Karen Lawson and Connie Galloway, city attorney Karen Houchin, Joe Stepp, Bud Crump and the Hesperian-Beacon reporter.

Keltz took the floor to ask that the council consider additional financial assistance to the ambulance service to allow it to continue operation while the hospital is closed. The city and the county at present contribute $500 per month to the EMS operating fund.

Keltz passed out a projection for a twelve month period of operation which showed an estimated bottom line deficit of more than $28,000. This figure is offset by the $1000 per month that the city and county contribute, making the projected deficit about $14,000 for one son Timothy to a flag raising ceremony. Ballejo has recently returned from Saudi Arabia and came to the school to thank the students who had written him. Staff Photo

Ballejo welcomed home by students

By Alice Gilroy

Lockney Elementary School turned out Tuesday, May 21, to pay tribute to their local hero and pen pal Cpl. Abel Ballejo.

Returning to the U.S. after seven months in the desert, Ballejo, came to Lockney to visit his 10 year old son Timothy and his 12 year old daughter, Debrah. Ballejo also came to say thanks to the 2nd grades at Lockney elementary for their constant letters to him in Saudi Arabia.

And since Ballejo was coming to tell them thanks, it was a perfect opportunity for the Lockney school to show him how much they appreciated what he had done for them. They did it with an elaborate patriotic display of waving flags, song and numerous presentations.

A row of flag waving students were lined down the sidewalk leading from the front door of the school to the flag pole. Cpl. Ballejo walked through the flags with his proud son, Timothy, to take their place near the flag pole.

Timothy introduced his father and Ballejo saluted as boy scouts raised the flag and the school joined him in the Pledge of Allegiance. Tears were seen trickling down the faces of youngsters and teachers alike, as the children sang an heartwarming and emotional song, "I'm Proud To Be An American."

After a welcome home speech from Principal Evans, the second grades led Ballejo to the back of the school for an dedication ceremony. Planted at the rear of the school was a small pine tree with a red white and blue ribbon wrapped around it.

"We are dedicating this tree to you,"

By The Way

By Alice Gilroy

I feel sorry for everyone that didn't get to see the ceremony I got to see at Lockney Elementary School on Tuesday. The 2nd graders have been writing to a Cpl. Ballejo who has been in Saudi Arabia.

On Tuesday, the Cpl. came to tell them thank you. I wrote a story about it, so I wrote repeat everything, but it was great.

I've never seen a Hollywood production put on as well as this. It was genuine and heartwarming. There was hardly a dry eye in the place.

When all those kids sang "Proud To Be An American" I was wishing all the veterans could hear them. They didn't hold back. They were truly proud and they sang it out.

I don't know how Ballejo kept his composure.

I know that Ballejo's son, Timothy was a very proud little boy. He is also probably basking in the knowledge that all the other children know his daddy is a hero.

I hope we can do as much for our veterans during the Pioneer Reunion on Saturday.

I was talking to a television anchorman this week. I won't say who because I don't want to get him into trouble.

He told me that he had been thinking about getting into the print media instead of television.

He said he got sick and tired of everything having to be done in 30 or 60 seconds. He said, "You know, if Jesus Christ was to walk down the Main Street of Lubbock—we couldn't report on it unless we had a video."

I told my dad about it. He agreed. He said, "Yeah, if Television would have been around when Jesus was here, they would have reported on his crucifixion, but you wouldn't have gotten the Sermon On The Mount."

Good Point.

I know that there are some people out there who are friends of mine who read this column because its the only time they get to hear from me.

There are others who enjoy the stories about my kid, because they can relate to stories about their own.

Then there are people who could care less about what Brandon did. To those people I say—Here I go again—TOO BAD.

We are just now getting over the chicken pox in our house. I know there are a lot of people just getting over the chicken pox in Lockney, which means there are a lot of people with something to look forward to in about two weeks.

When Brandon woke up, last Monday, with his first little pox it was very exciting. He was very proud!

There was only one on his tummy and he kept pulling up his shirt and showing everyone. When his babysitter came (with her little boy who gave them to Brandon), he ran to her to show her that now he had the same thing Jonathan (her boy) had had.

Brandon didn't want Jonathan to have something he didn't.

By the time I came home from work he had some more. The next day he had some more.

I had read that the third day was the worse. On the third day, he had some more, but he still didn't look bad. I thought—this isn't so bad. He's not going to get that many. His face isn't going to have any at all.

WRONG.

Thursday they are everywhere. In his ears, nose, mouth, scalp, etc., etc.

He was trying so hard not to scratch, that it got almost ridiculous. Thursday night—ALL NIGHT—Brandon would run into the room, throw on the light, run to the bed pulling up his shirt and cry—"MOMMY PUT MEDICINE ON THIS ONE!" This continued until he was pink all over several times over.

Friday morning he was miserable and the sickest yet. But we have been told about a home remedy which I am passing on to all you folks with this to look forward to.

First of all do all the things that you've already heard about. Give them Tylenol, lukewarm baths in baking soda, put Calamine lotion on the sores (I read it's not supposed to have Phenol in it) and give them Benadryl to help with itching.

But here is a new one that really works. The pharmacist, Danny Clark, in Lockney, suggested it.

After the bath—pour Maalox in your hand and rub it gently all over the little (or big) body. Let it dry naturally or blow dry them on low. When it dries—they are caked and happy.

County drug policy adopted

By Juanita Stepp

Meeting in special called session on May 20, the Floyd County Commissioners Court read and approved a drug policy for all county employees. The policy, as presented and read by Judge Bill Hardin, details efforts and methods for making all county work places drug-free.

The policy also states penalties for those abusing drugs or alcohol in any manner while working on county property as an employee of the county. Included in the terms of the policy are provisions for testing employees when there is reasonable cause to warrant a suspicion of drug or alcohol abuse in the work place.

The policy will be distributed to employees in the near future and must be read and signed by each employee. One signed copy of the statement of reading and understanding will remain with the employee and one will be returned to the county to be filed. Anyone violating the policy will be subject to discipline up to and including termination for any offense.

Motion for adoption of the policy came from Precinct 2 Commissioner Floyd Jackson with a second by Precinct 4 Commissioner Howard Bishop. The vote on the matter was unanimous.

COURT PROCLAIMS MAY 24 MARGARET COLLIER DAY

The court approved the signing of a proclamation making Friday, May 24, 1991 Margaret Collier Day in Floyd County. Collier is being honored during the Pioneer Reunion celebration this weekend for the fifty years of service she has given the people of Floyd County in the County Clerk's Office.

Making the motion for the proclamation was Bishop with a second by Jackson and unanimous approval of the court.

Also approved at the Monday morning session were farm work contracts for Billie L. Jones and Mike Mallett. Motion for this came from Precinct 1 Commissioner Connie Bearden and was seconded by Precinct 3 Commissioner George Taylor. The court voted in favor of the motion.

Attending the session were Judge Hardin, Commissioners Bearden, Jackson, Taylor and Bishop and the Hesperian-Beacon reporter.

Citizens display support for Caprock Hospital District

By Juanita Stepp

In the space of a few hours, a citizens group formed and organized a meeting bringing together local business people and residents in a show of support for Caprock Hospital District as it weathers what is hoped to be a short temporary closure. Foremost in the minds of those present was determining ways in which the community could assist the district in the recruitment of new doctors and in trying to retain the services of the one physician remaining in the City of Floydada.

The driving forces behind the impromptu Friday afternoon meeting were local insurance agents Nick Long and Clar Schacht. The pair stressed the impact that the hospital closure and the lack of physicians is now having on the community as well as the effect coming in the future if the situation can not be remedied.

In the space of a few hours, more than a hundred locals rallied to the cause. Originally scheduled for the County Courtroom on the first floor of the courthouse, the meeting soon overflowed and was moved to the District Courtroom on the second floor. Among those attending were local business persons, city and county officials, hospital board members, local residents and interested citizens.

Long began the meeting stating, "We are here to find out what we can do to help. We want to create a positive atmosphere and work for positive results."

Queries concerning the possibility of keeping Dr. Jack Jordan in the community as a practicing physician were uppermost in the minds of many present for the meeting. Jordan has been offered a position in Hale Center but has not as yet decided to go.

According to Dr. Charles Craig, a friend of Dr. Jordan's, "Dr. Jordan has told me that he is not ready to retire and that he did not want to leave Floydada, but with the clinic closed, he has no place and no facilities with which to practice."

Emily Johnston offered to donate a check for $1,000 to begin a fund for assisting Dr. Jordan in creating a facility for his practice. The question was then raised as to why the clinic could not still be used by Dr. Jordan.

Hospital administrator Terry Keltz was called upon to explain.

"The hospital board is not opposed to having Dr. Jordan use the clinic," said Keltz. "The district simply cannot pay the bills at this time. There are a lot of hard feelings and even some perceptions that the hospital and clinic were closed just to get rid of the doctors. This is simply not true."

"The only legitimate criticism that can be leveled at this board of directors is that they allowed their emotions to drag the problem out until the district could not even pay the bills for the clinic. The closing of the hospital and the clinic was the only solution. The albatross the district has been dragging around for years was still there, the debt."

Keltz told the gathering that the clinic was offered to the doctors (Andy Hale, who has already made plans to practice outside of Floydada, and Jordan) but they were not willing to assume responsibility for the month by month cost of the operation of the clinic.

Louis Lloyd posed the question in the minds of some of those present by asking Keltz, "Are you a Methodist Hospital man or are you a Caprock Hospital man now that Methodist is paying your salary?"

Keltz replied that this was a fair question and that he had been called "Just about every kind of man in the past few weeks." Keltz indicated that he considered himself a part of Caprock and reminded the gathering that the hospital board still has the final decision over any of his actions.

Ron Reeves, a representative of Methodist Hospital Regional Services Department, briefly told the gathering that Methodist had agreed to assist the local hospital district by paying recruitment fees, moving expenses, setup costs, malpractice insurance and guaranteeing $150,000 the first year to doctors willing to make a commitment to work in Floydada.

The question was asked, "Are you doing the same for Dr. Jordan?"

Reeves answered saying, "I feel sure that a solution can be worked out with Dr. Jordan."

The question was raised as to why Dr. Jordan would not use the clinic and Clar Schacht responded, "I spoke with Dr. Jordan just before noon today and he told me that he would not use the clinic if they offered it to him for free."

Schacht asked for people to serve on an Ad Hoc committee to make contact with Dr. Jordan and urge him to "put aside his hurt and prejudice toward the hospital district and address the future of primary medical care in the area."

The committee which formed at the end of the hour long meeting included Louis Lloyd, Dr. Charles Craig, Laura Farris, Brother Bill Wright, Clar Schacht, Nick Long and Susan Green.

Several in attendance indicated that they would like to see some kind of fund raising project started to help the hospital reopen as soon as possible. It was pointed out that other communities have raised money for their hospitals and there is no reason why Floydada shouldn't be able to.

Sign up sheets were laid out for all attending to sign and additional sheets were made available for those wishing to donate money to the cause as well as for suggestions for plans the committee might consider.

Schacht and Long both expressed their gratitude to everyone for coming to the meeting and Schacht said, "I just counted the number of people here and there are 110. We did this with just a few phone calls in less than 24 hours. Just think what we could do if we had time to really organize and get the word out."

According to Schacht, pledges of approximately $15,000 were given following the meeting to try and assist in retaining Dr. Jordan in the community. This was apparently to no avail as Jordan indicated on Monday, May 20, that he intended to take up practice in Hale Center. The following is a report from the Ad Hoc Committee which met with Dr. Jordan:

The ad hoc committee appointed by the group of concerned citizens which met in the county court room on Friday, May 17, has met with Dr. Jordan to discuss possible options for health care for Floydada.

The ad hoc committee is composed of Bro. Bill Wright, Louis Lloyd, Laura Farris, Susan Green, Dr. Charles Craig, Nick Long and Clar Schacht.

It was the understanding of the committee that Dr. Hale had already entered into contractual agreements which committed him to go into practice in the city of Lubbock. It was not the intention of the committee or the community to ignore him or to fail to express appreciation to him for his work among us.

The purpose of this committee was three-fold: (1) to express appreciation to the doctors who have practiced quality medicine faithfully in our community, (2) to explore possibilities or options for their continuing practice here, and (3) to explore possible alternatives in the event that these two doctors could not continue practice here. I is specifically denied that this committee intended to find fault or to fix blame for the unfortunate set of circumstances which resulted in the closing, temporary or otherwise, of the Caprock Hospital.

The following report is submitted for evaluation by the concerned citizens of Floydada:

(1) Dr. Hale has, in fact, entered into contractual arrangements leading to his going into practice in Lubbock.

(2) Dr. Jordan has explored the possibilities of securing and equipping a building suitable for his practice in Floydada, but believes that it is not feasible at this time. Dr. Jordan has explored possibilities for practicing medicine in surrounding towns and/or hospitals. It is his judgment at this time that Hale Center provides the most practical opportunity for him. He plans not to move from the Floydada community, but to begin practice in Hale Center in the near future.

(3) The gratitude of the community for service to the people of Floydada was expressed to Dr. Jordan, and to Dr. Hale in absentia.

(4) In discussions among the committee members, it seemed to be a consensus that a line must be drawn between concern for the presence of a doctor in office practice in Floydada and the concern for opening Caprock Hospital. While it would be true that the two issues cannot be entirely separated, it should be the primary responsibility of the Hospital Board of Directors to look toward the medical staffing of that hospital. Recognizing that the decision of the Hospital Board of Directors was based on financial problems and legal problems beyond the possibility of immediate solution, this committee went on record in commending the members of that board for their agonizing labor before reaching the decision which was unavoidable to them at that time.

(5) The citizens of Floydada need to make themselves available to that Board and to each other in whatever supportive roles (time, money, talent) can be made available. Information relative to progress in recruiting and other factors weighing upon the decision to open the hospital should be made available to the community at large as fully and as expeditiously as possible in order to prevent the spread of unfounded rumors and emotional injury to people who are trying to do a good job. From this point on, this community needs to go forward as "one" in as positive a manner as possible.

CLUBS

1956 Study Club

By Judy Dunlap

A demonstration of pottery making from clay on a handmade potter's wheel highlighted the final club meeting for 1956 Study Club Tuesday evening, May 14.

Lisa Gregory Mosley, junior high and high school art teacher at Lockney, shared her classroom and her skills saying that her father-in-law had made the wheel for her and her students. The ladies' group enjoyed viewing drinking vessels and mask whistles Mrs. Mosley's students had recently completed.

Preceding the caravan to Lockney, club members met in the home of Rosemary Finley for summer salads. Assisting with hostess duties were LaTresa Miller, JenniSu Smith and Kay Brotherton.

Club president Judy Schacht presided over a business meeting which included reports by the Old Settlers Window Decoration and Pavilion Decorating Committees.

Leora Younger's name was drawn to be the recipient of the quilt with squares designed by current club membes.

A new award, Outstanding Clubwoman, was initiated at this meeting to honor a member who had given outstanding service to the club during the past year. By secret ballot, Sherry Hale, was declared the winner.

Handmade items auctioned within the club included Hummingbird Cake by Kay Brotherton, quilted tote bag by Rozanne Bishop, watermelon bowl by Dana Crossland, fanny pack by Janet Lloyd, peanut patties by Donna Henderson, and apricot bread by Judy Dunlap.

Shawnda Greer was special guest for the evening. Members present, in addition to those mentioned, included Lisa Becker Ruth Crump, Sharon Henderson, Sharon Rainwater, Melissa Long, Patti Miller, Susan Simpson, Trenea Simpson, Atha Sue, Louann Dagley, and Sherre Cannon.

1990 Study Club

By Shereese Covington

The ninth meeting of the 1990 Study Club was called to order May 13, in the home of Sandra Schwertner. Nineteen members were present and two absent. The minutes were read by Shereese Covington. A thank you letter from Christina Chesshir and a letter of resignation from Tammy Wilson were read.

Plans for the Old Settler's dance were discussed and the addition of our t-male booth was set.

Officers for the new year were elected: President, Gayla Marble; Vice President, Sandra Schwertner; Treasurer, Julie James; Secretary, Holly Lee and Sunshine Girl, Cindy Fortenberry. Congratulations, we look forward to an exciting year.

Members signed up for new committees and the summer social was set for June 15. We will have family night and have a cookout and play volleyball. Our club quilt will also be given away. After the meeting, members could purchase items displayed by Gayla Griffin and her 'Homespun' line of country crafts.

Hostesses for the evening were Christina Chesshir and Dana Pyle. They served enchiladas, salad, chips and con queso and chocolate and pistachio dessert, as well as giving each member a potpourri sachet.

Members in attendance were Dana Anthony, Lori Battey, Jan Beedy, Shawnda Brown, Christina Chesshir, Shereese Covington, Cindy Fortenberry, Brenda Heflin, Traci Helms, Julie James, Holly Lee, Deanna Logan, Gayla Marble, Sandra Schwertner, Mendy Shurbet, Sandy Trevino, Dara Ware, Tami Woffard and Dana Pyle.

Homebuilders Extension Club

By Jonelle Fawver

The country home of Barbara Willis was the meeting place for the Homebuilders Extension Club May 14. In the absence of our president, Ruth Trapp, Barbara, vice-president, called the meeting to order. Barbara read a poem, "Garden of Life" from the book "Ginger Snap."

Roll call was "A driving fear I have." A game of charades was played pertaining to driving, led by Jonelle. Reading and approval of minutes followed by cares and concerns of our club members, their families and our friends. Council report was given. Planning our county wide meeting for June 25 was our new business.

"Driving Safety for Seniors," our program, was given by Gladys Widener. Gladys had taken a Defensive Driving Course recently and had some good points to remind us of, along with getting a percent off auto insurance. Some of these points being: 1. check all five tires frequently; 2. keep windows and headlights clean; 3. never let the gas tank get below a quarter empty; 4. never hesitate to ask all passengers to fasten seat belts; 5. never use only park lights while driving in fog - use low beam; 6. stop behind the white line at a stop sign or light; 7. always turn on lights when using wipers; 8. seniors never make a left turn - we had fun with this on how to get home from Barbara's house without a left turn.

Refreshments were served and visiting was a good time.

SUN FUN, NO BURN — FHS students Scott Crader, Christy Benjamin and Robin Galloway prepare for some fun in the sun. They are observing the American Cancer Society tips for preventing skin damaging burns by using sun screen, sunshades, loose covering clothes and watching the time they spend in the sun.

Have fun in the sun but don't get burned

This is the time of the year when we all will be seeking the sun and the swimming pool; and, that is to be understood! However, the American Cancer Society is warning that "some 600,000 new cases of skin cancer will be diagnosed in the United States this year, and a fair share of those will occur in Texas."

Kathy Becker, newly-elected president of the Floyd County Unit commented, "This is too bad, because the increasing incidence of cancer can be altered if people will follow a few guidelines for reducing skin cancer."

Becker and the members of the American Cancer Society local board are urging everyone to follow these guidelines:

(1) Use a sunscreen with a protection factor of at least 15 during all outdoor activities, and avoid sunburning altogether;

(2) avoid direct exposure to the sun between 11:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. by wearing a broad-brimmed hat, covering your arms and legs;

(3) avoid "quick-tans," or tanning salons because they provide intense exposure to harmful ultraviolet rays;

(4) take the sun in small doses;

(5) protect your eyes with sunshades;

(6) see a doctor if you have a sore or a mole that won't heal.

Floydada Nursing Home Happenings

By Jo Bryant

Well, here it is another week to come and share and let you know what is going on around here. Do hope all is well and fine with you.

Monday started the day or week as usual, morning coffee, juice and cookies. Bro. Bill Wright came and shared the devotion with us. Irene Wexler couldn't be with us, so Otis Johnson came and lead the singing for us. At 2 p.m. the residents had ceramics, they painted a piggy bank.

Tuesday, Virginia Taylor came and shared about the museum. She brought some antiques and asked the residents what they were. It was very interesting, and the residents really enjoyed it.

Old Settler's is this Saturday, a day of entertainment is planned, so you will have lots of fun things to enjoy, Parade, style show, music and square dancers, etc. Free bar-be-que for all settlers 50 years or more. Also, come and visit our museum, it is very interesting and I'm sure more has been added to it each year.

Wednesday was our Bingo day. We had three residents to Bingo at once. Peggy Young, Bernice Robinson, Thelma Hoffman, that has never happened before. We had a full house playing, Otis Johnson, Knox Jameson, Charles Breeding, Henry Willis, Sue Thompson, Weldon Hammons, Nettie Adams. The snacks were bananas, candy and cheese balls. Thanks Mary Alice and Ruth for assisting us.

Thursday, was the monthly birthday party, two residents had birthdays, Ruth Benson, 94 and May Garrett, 91. Edith Muncy and Penny were Mrs. Garrett's guests. Delicious cake and punch were served by the City Park Church of Christ ladies.

Friday, Evelyn Latta came and played the piano for us. We sang some songs. Jo Bryant gave a devotional on the First Pentecost as Sunday, May 19, was Pentecost Sunday. At 1:30 p.m. the residents went to Plainview on the bus ride.

McDonalds treated them to some ice cream. It was a good day for the bus ride.

We want to welcome a new resident Warren Denton, of Petersburg.

Our love, sympathy goes out to the family of Kathrine Edwards and John Jones, husband to Mrs. Hattie Jones. Also, our love and sympathy go out to the Mary Lou Bullock Family. We will miss them.

Residents celebrate May birthdays

By Lorilla Bradley
May is such a pretty month
With many lovely flowers
So birthdays we will celebrate
To fill some happy hours!

Our Mrs. Benson we salute
...Her years are 94...
May every year that passes by
Be better than those before.

Our Mrs. Garrett we now greet
...She's boasting 91...
She "did" her yard for many years
And that for her was fun!

Let's serenade these ladies
To celebrate their years
With the same old Happy Birthday song...

Somehow it always cheers!
*****

Thursday, May 16, was party time at the Rest Home with ladies of the City Park Church of Christ hosting. The Hesperian photographer came for the picture taking after which everyone was ushered into the dining room.

The honorees were seated at the "honor" table . . . their places being marked with special cards. The table was laid with an aqua cloth and centered with a silk arrangement of purple morning glories.

Each lady wore a red carnation corsage compliments of Williams Card and Flower Shop. Their thoughtfulness in doing this each month is deeply appreciated by all concerned.

Seated with Mrs. Garrett was her daughter, Edith Muncy and granddaughter, Penny Giesecke. Jo Bryant read a short history of the life of the honorees which was followed by the reading of the poem and all joining in the singing of the Happy Birthday Song.

Brandon Daniels earns Eagle Scout Award May 18

Brandon was representing by Kelvin Cummings who asked the witnesses why they felt Brandon should receive the top honor of Eagle Scout. They testified to the accomplishments of the young man who had devoted many hours to earn merit badges on his road to Eagle Scout.

The Eagle Scout, testified one witness, symbolizes the ultimate in contribution to community and his fellow scouts.

Mr. Keller, the youth minister at the First Baptist Church, testified that Brandon was hardworking, caring, trustworthy and active in many endeavors. "He is a leader in our groups."

Scout Leader Bobby Gilliland praised

Daniels for his outstanding leadership. "His community service project was putting up the fence behind the Floyd County Museum. This turned into a bigger project than we had expected, but Brandon never gave up and was always there pushing and making sure the project was completed."

Others who participated in the ceremony were: Rex Harrison, Michael Gilliland, Brandon Gilliland and Barbara Gilliland.

Visitors were invited to a cake and punch reception held afterwards in the jury room.

SCHEME OF REDEMPTION

"Salvation by Works Alone?" by Randall Morris

In Romans 3:23 we read, "all have sinned and fallen short of the glory of God." Once our souls have been contaminated by the guilt of our own transgression of God's law (sin - I John 3:4), there is no forgiveness without the shedding of blood (Hebrews 9:23).

Irregardless of how obedient we might be "all our righteous deeds are as filthy rags" (Isaiah 64:6) unless we have God's grace in sending Christ and His mercy in accepting the blood of Jesus as atonement for our sins (John 3:16-17); Ephesians 2:4-5).

In Romans 10:13 it is written, "whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." And the beloved apostle Paul logically concludes,

"How shall they call on Him in Whom they have not believed,
How shall they believe in Him whom they have not heard" (verses 14-17).

Thus God's grace and mercy make the blood of Christ available as a satisfactory guilt offering (Romans 3:24-26), and faith activates our response system to His terms of pardon.

In this manner grace, mercy, and faith are essential to our salvation. Any obedience on the part of man which excludes these other three elements would be futile. The Law of Moses was given to prove this very point.

Ambulance in need of funding

year of operation.

Among the items listed on the breakdown of costs was 8760 hours of on-call pay for two EMS personnel at $2.00 per hour for the year. This was recently increased from $1.00 per hour by a vote of the Caprock Hospital District Board of Directors in an effort to insure the services of personnel to keep the ambulance operating.

Councilman Wayne Tipton questioned the advisability of doubling the on-call pay at a time when both the district and the ambulance service were facing dire straits financially.

Board member Joy Assiter told those present, "We voted for that under stress. I think that the board ought to go back and rethink that."

Board member Jerry Thompson added, "I think when we did that, we were grasping at straws to keep something going when we were looking at a weekend with no coverage."

The service also pays a flat rate of $5.00 per person while on an ambulance run. Bud Crump, a local resident, asked if the on call rate could be reduced and the per run compensation increased in order to encourage EMS personnel to remain with the service and meet the needs of the community.

Keltz stated that Motley County did just that, paying 75 cents per hour on-call for the EMT and 50 cents per hour for the driver. When on a run, Motley County pays $4.00 per call.

Guthrie stated, "I feel sure my people would be satisfied with the $1.00 per hour we have gotten in the past for being on call and I think they will be okay with the $5.00 per call. We would not be doing this if we didn't care about the community."

Keltz indicated that by cutting the on-call fees back to $1.00, the ambulance service could save about $15,000 during the coming twelve months. This would mean that the service might operate at a break-even point rather than a deficit.

Bud Crump suggested that the ambulance be parked on the square and donations towards the continued operation of the service be taken. He stipulated that the public should be made aware that these funds would not be mixed with hospital funds and would be used only for the day to day operation of the ambulance.

Hospital board members, council personnel and the EMS director all agreed that this might be productive.

Councilman Barrientoz stated, "I am in favor of the community working together to keep the ambulance going and to get the hospital open again. The hospital is a blessing to the community and we all need to pull together to get through this crisis."

Crump also suggested that the operation of the ambulance be streamlined to make it more viable and use it as a focal point to rally the community around in working through the hospital crisis.

"I think everyone would be surprised at how much support there is for the hospital and how many are willing to pledge money, time and effort to getting it open and getting doctors back in the community," said Crump.

Councilman Tipton asked that the hospital board reconsider their commitment to the increase in the on call rate and that Guthrie consult with her people and that the service try to operate under the revised rates for 30 days then return to discuss how it is working.

Everyone indicated their willingness to do this and each entity expressed their gratitude for the increased communication and understanding that has developed in the past few days.

Mayor Russell suggested that everyone try to keep each other informed and that as a group, the hospital district, the county and the city, which all support the ambulance with funds, find a way to work together in making decisions concerning its operation and keep it a good community service.

OTHER CITY BUSINESS DURING MAY REGULAR SESSION

Recently elected city officials were sworn in at the meeting and the minutes of the previous month's meeting were approved. Leroy Burns was elected Mayor Pro Tem in the event that Mayor Russell is unable to serve as mayor. Burns will act in his stead if an official occasion arises and Russell is out of town or otherwise unable to be present.

The annual designation of an official newspaper to carry legal notices the city publishes was made. The Floyd County Hesperian-Beacon was the instrument chosen.

Mayor Russell introduced the name of Ricky Vasquez for the vacant seat on the Housing Authority Board created by the resignation of Lupe Rando. Amado Morales asked that the council consider appointing Jack Ochoa for the post. Voting on the matter, Vasquez was selected with Schacht, Burns, Tipton and Cornelius voting for him and Barrientoz and Morales voting for Ochoa.

Mayor Russell entered the names of Kinder Farris and Mitch Probasco as candidates for appointment to the Airport Board. Morales entered the name of his brother, Frank Morales Jr. as a candidate for the post. Farris was elected to the board by a vote of five to one with Morales opposed. The second post went to Probasco with a vote of five to one with Barrientoz opposed. Frank Morales was not selected with Burns and Barrientoz voting for him, Schacht, Tipton, and Cornelius voting against. Amado Morales abstained to avoid a possible conflict of interest.

The council approved the sale of a tax title lot to in the 300 block of West Georgia to Joe Barrientos for an offer of $500. Also approved was the scheduling of public hearings on two sub-standard houses in the city. The hearings will determine if demolition procedures will be pursued on the structure at 615 W. Jackson and the structure at 621 W. Jackson. Hearings will be set for the next regular council session.

A request from Rick Meyers and Larry Noland, who are in charge of the summer baseball program, asked that the baseball field lights remain on after midnight during the Tri County Tournament slated for July 20-27. According to presentations to the Oldest Man and Woman (who have resided in the county the longest), and to the person who traveled the greatest distance to attend the reunion.

A style show of pioneer selections will start at 1:30 p.m. and the parade will begin at 2:30 p.m. Observers of the parade are asked to wave flags as the parade passes by to honor veterans.

The drawing for the quilt, the 20 gauge semi-automatic, the VCR and the trampoline will be held at 3:20 p.m.

The "Country Caravan" will provide lively musical entertainment beginning at 3:30 p.m. The popular group consists of music students from South Plains College in Levelland.

their request, games will have to be scheduled at 6 and 9 p.m. in order to play all 19 games of the tournament. Each should take about three hours, but could run a little over, forcing play after the scheduled lights out time of midnight. The council approved the request on a motion by Morales, seconded by Cornelius and passed by unanimous vote.

Plans by Mackenzie Municipal Water Authority to begin a fund for possible major repair or replacement costs were approved by the council. The interest from an already existing debt retirement fund will be used to fund the account. There will be no out of pocket expense to Tulia, Silverton, Lockney or Floydada, the four cities which participate in the water project.

Mayor Russell and City Manager Brown displayed proposed plans for the expansion of city hall to accommodate more record storage and needed office space. They asked for council permission to continue to work on the plans and consider the expansion project in the 1991-92 budget as it is planned in the next few months. Morales made a motion to allow them to proceed and it was seconded by Burns. The council passed the measure by unanimous vote.

The possible paving of 10th Street from Missouri Street to Lee Street was also approved as an item to be considered in forming the budget for the coming fiscal year. This was done at the request of Amado Morales. Motion for the action came from Burns with a second by Barrientoz.

Expense money in the form of travel, registration, fee and meals was approved for city attorney Karen Houchin to attend the Texas City Attorney's Association semi-annual meeting in Houston June 17-18.

Frank Breed was reapproved as the Municipal Court Judge for a period of two years. He has been the city judge since his appointment last summer.

City manager Brown made a brief report and the council approved the payment of monthly bills before adjourning for the evening.

Marquis grandson given national award for band

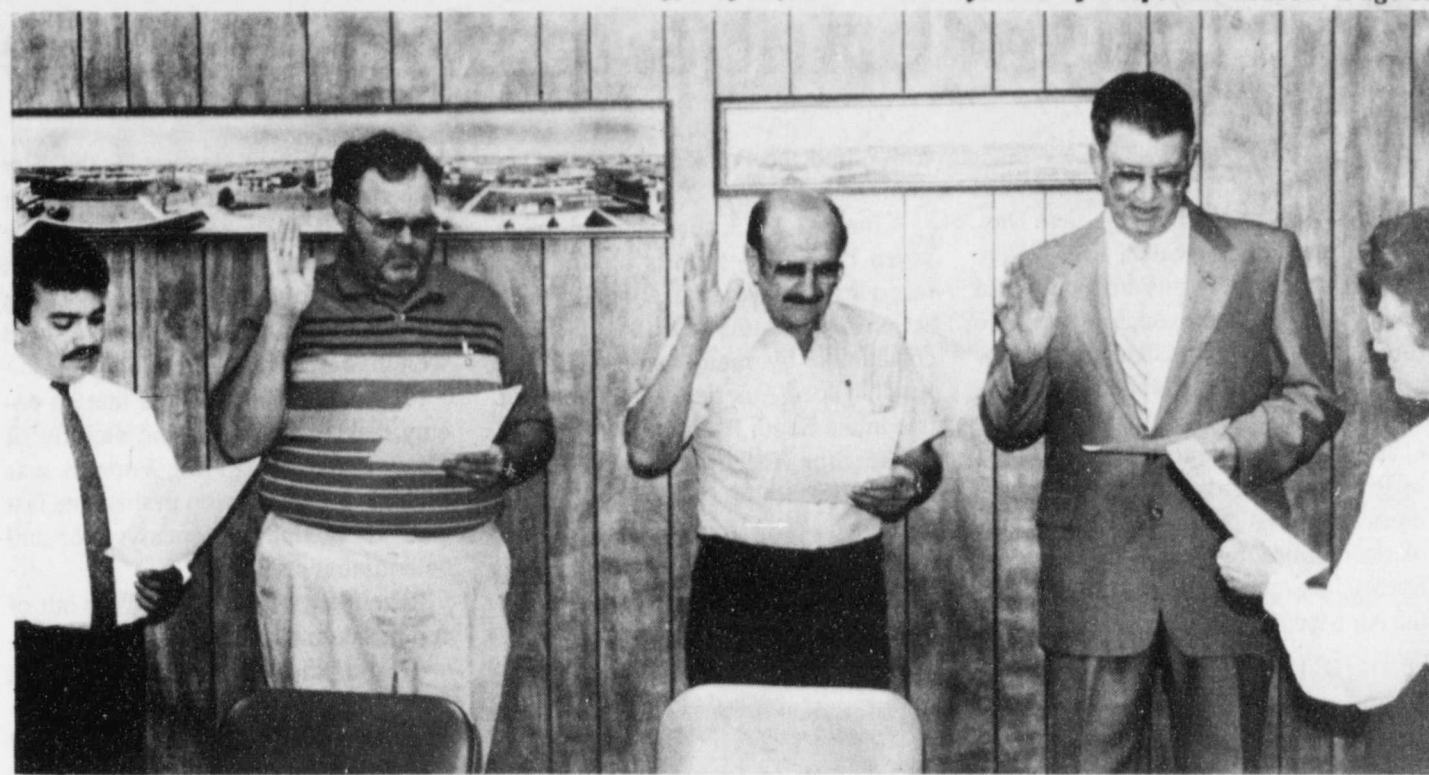

The United States Achievement Academy has named Christopher Scott Hulme as the recipient of a United States National Award in band.

This award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the Academy recognizes less than 10% of all American high school students.

Hulme, a freshman at Spur High School, was nominated for this National Award by Gary Vaden, band director at the school. He will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly United States Achievement Academy award winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, Executive Director of the United States Achievement Academy.

The Academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors or other school sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the Academy. The criteria for selection are a student's re-elected 16 times with no opponent. Over the years she has seen many changes within the courthouse, the most memorable one was witnessing the destruction of the courthouse by fire in 1949.

"They were remodeling the courthouse when it burned," said Collier. "They called me at 7:00 a.m. in the morning to tell me the courthouse was on fire and that I had better come down."

"The whole top floor was burning like an incinerator, but the bottom floor did not burn. My office was in the same place as it is now and it didn't get any fire damage, but there was water everywhere."

Miraculously no records were lost in this blaze. "None of the records burned," said Collier, "but they got real wet. I was just sick when I waded in here through hot water and saw the water pouring from the ceiling."

"We used electric fans and heaters to dry out the books and a bookbinding company came and put new covers on them. I learned at that time to always close my books up when I go home in the evening because that is what saved them from the water."

The county clerks office now has a reputation for neatness and order. "I have a place for everything," said Collier. "We have received a lot of compliments on our records and this office."

Over the years a lot of new books have been added to the volumes of books in the office. Margaret is responsible for the care and upkeep of county records that document almost every aspect of county life since it was organized in 1890. One hundred year old records guarded by Collier include: Marks and brands, deeds and trust records, judgment records, probate records, criminal records, civil records, bond records, marriage records, and commissioners courts records.

Added to her responsibilities over the years are birth and death records, army discharge, small estates records and juvenile records.

Though her responsibilities grow Margaret said that the work has gotten easier. "We used to have to do all the work manually," said Collier. "Now we have xerox machines which has saved an enormous amount of time and salary in proofing."

"We also have electric typewriters and electric calculators and the central air and heat feels better than no air conditioning and the steam heat we used to have."

"The old courthouse had drop latch ceilings with single bulbs hanging down and concrete floors all the way through. We had old cloth windowshades with drawstrings. We now have venetian blinds, drapes, and carpets.

"This has been a second home to me," said Collier. "The one change that I really like at the courthouse is the tradition of flying the flag every day. We didn't use to do that. I now admire the flag every morning when I come in to work."

Margaret has a lot of memories of her work at the courthouse and will continue to store many more in the days to come. She has also created and continues to save a lot of memories for others.

"The many expressions of kindness, friendship and support that has been shown to me over these almost 50 years will always be precious memories to me," said Margaret.

Patriotism brings back memories for Emily Johnston

By Alice Gilroy
For Emily Johnston, of Floydada, this will be a very special Old Settlers Day. With patriotism evident everywhere you look and as veterans are recognized during Saturday's parade, Emily will be thinking back to her husband, and decorated WWII airman, Ralph C. Johnston.

A 1936 Floydada graduate, 1st Lt. R. C. Johnston, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. M.B. Johnston, and one of Texas Tech's most illustrious graduates in the matter of decorations by the U.S. Army Air Force. Johnston holds the Silver Star, the Air Medal, the Distinguished Flying Cross, and the Presidential Unit Citation.

A June 20, 1943, newspaper clipping, saved by Emily, reports on Johnston receiving the Silver Star for gallantry in action in the South Pacific. Action that is considered by many experts as that which helped America regain the initiative in the South Pacific.

The Star Telegram report states, "Second Lt. Ralph C. Johnston, Flying Fortress co-pilot from Floydada, Texas, was one of the eight members of his crew awarded the Silver Star for gallantry...

"The crew was decorated, the War Department announced Saturday, for spotting the Japanese Fleet before the Battle of Santa Cruz last October, and for shooting down three Zeros (Johnston was later to write that there were five Zeros shot down)."

"It having been reported that an enemy task force was in the vicinity of Guadalcanal, the Flying Fortress was sent on its first mission in this area last Oct. 25 to find the enemy fleet and determine its strength..."

"The interphone system went out of commission, but the flight was continued. At a point northeast of the Stuart Islands, discovery was made of an enemy force of 14 ships. Its location was reported promptly."

"While keeping the fleet under observation, the bomber was attacked by seven carrier-based Japanese Zero fighters. The lower turret of the plane was not working and only one gun in the upper turret and one gun in the tail could be fired."

"Although handicapped by this lack of fire-power, the bomber crew engaged the Zeros in a running flight and shot down three of them. The remainder were so badly damaged they discontinued the attack."

"The courage and aggressiveness displayed, in spite of the obstacles experienced, afforded early and exact information, which was an important factor in the ultimate damaging of two enemy aircraft carriers and several other combat vessels sunk in the decisive victory of Santa Cruz."

Perhaps the best account of this heroic mission comes from a letter Johnston wrote to his grandson Bill Durham. Durham had joined the air force and after hearing of the mission in his classroom training, wrote his grandfather and asked for his personal recognitions.

"May 21, 1942, I graduated the Air Force and received my commission as 2nd Lt. at Mather Field, California."

"I arrived in Hickman Field in the Hawaiian Islands on June 3, 1942, and starting training for a fighter squadron. In October, 1942, the crew left Hawaii for the South Pacific eventually stopping in Esparto Santo, part of the New Herbrides Islands (code name Buttons)."

"October 24, 1942 I was placed on Capt. Sasso crew since his co-pilot was down with Malaria. On Oct. 25, at 4:30 p.m. I meet the crew for the first time and we were briefed on our mission for the day. Our squadron was furnishing three planes (B-17 Flying Fortress) and each of the other two squadrons in our group were putting up the same number...making 9 Reco's on all."

"Our mission was to find the lost Japanese Fleet International. Intelligence knew it was in the area somewhere. We were told if the fleet could be located it would be the turning point for us in the South Pacific."

"We took off in a blinding rain storm, from Blondie strip (Dagwood was the other one), steel matting runway (as they all were down there)."

"We were to fly no lower than 100 feet and no higher than 500 feet. As soon as we were on course for our leg I had all runners test their 50 calibers. All were working."

"The weather continued foul. Continually in and out of rain. After about three hours we came out of a heavy rain into bright sunshine and just below us there they were, like mother hens with a bunch of babies."

"The navigator took a quick ID and count and passed the information and coordinates to the radio operator who was successful in getting the information back to Intelligence."

"While he was sending the message, we were jumped by a pack of Zeros and on their first pass we were literally shot all to hell. The Bombardier is dead, communications are out and about half of our guns are jammed."

"Anyway the message got through. We think the Zeros orders were to get us down on the first pass to prevent our message from going out. We got back into clouds of rain for protection, however they stayed with us and would continue to fire on us in the lighter area. I think our gunners shot down five."

"I will never understand how so much damage could be done to an airplane and have all four engines undamaged. We did lose an engine shortly before landing back at Blondie, but it was totally unrelated to the battle."

Lt. Ralph Clovis Johnston was born March 24, 1918, at Iredell, Texas, to M.B. Johnston and Minnie Hensley Johnston. He graduated Floydada High School 1936 and graduated from Texas Tech in 1941 with a Bachelor of Science Degree. He entered the Army Air Force, April 3, 1941.

After the war, Johnston farmed for many years with his first wife, Emma Louis Smith and his three sons on a farm near Dougherty.

He was called back to active duty during the Korean crisis and stationed at Reese Air Force Base for two years. While there he became squadron commander of the 350 1st Pilot Training Squadron.

In June of 1973, after 28 years of marriage, Emma Johnston passed away. Johnston married Emily in December 1974. Emily had lost her first husband, Jim Potts, in 1956, after almost 20 years of marriage.

Emily and Ralph were married for 11 years. He passed away May 3, 1986. He has two sons still living: Ron Johnston of Bristol, Virginia, and George of Farmington, N.M. Another son, Ralph, died shortly after his father.

Lt. Johnston won't be here for Old Settlers. He won't have the honor of standing when his name is called for service to his country. He won't be asked to take a place of honor on a patriotic float. But he will be remembered by his family and friends still living.

He, and others like him, will also be remembered, by those who are able to attend the days events simply because Lt. Johnston and soldiers like him, made it possible.

RALPH C. JOHNSTON

Ballejo welcomed home by students

said Evans during another emotional speech. "We are so grateful to God for bringing you back to us that we want to give something back to God too. This tree will always serve as a reminder of what you and other men and women did for us."

Ballejo then went into Mrs. Golden's class to "Show & Tell" for the 2nd grade classes that have faithfully written to Ballejo overseas.

Exclamations of wonder and excitement were plentiful among the youngsters when Ballejo showed color photographs of his experiences, his pack of equipment that was carried around his waist, an Iraqi gas mask, an American gas mask, Arab clothing, and an Iraqi soldiers beret.

Timothy Ballejo delighted the crowd as his father dressed him with a gas mask and then later in everyday Arab wear. "The turbin is worn on the head by the men," said Ballejo. "The band that is worn around the turbin is different depending on the wealth of the Arab. Some are leather and others are silver and gold."

Cpl. Ballejo described the holes that he and his fellow soldiers lived in for seven months. "We got a tent for one night, but for seven months we slept in holes two feet deep. The holes would get full of water when it rained and then we would have to get up and move."

Asked by the children how much he got to sleep, Ballejo said, "We walked 10-20 miles a night and then sleep two or three hours."

In answer to another youngsters concern, Ballejo said, "We saw plenty of snakes, scorpions, spiders and big lizards."

"We remember the picture of the lizard that you sent us," said Mrs. Golden.

The worst part of the experience Ballejo told the children was the weather. "The temperature would get up to 130 degrees in the day and then you would freeze at night. The sandstorms were also terrible. Sometimes the sand was blowing so bad you couldn't see yourself and it would get very dark."

Ballejo also showed the children a large syringe that was carried in his pack. "You can't see it now," said Ballejo, "but if you touch it right here a very large needle shoots out. If we had been hit with poisonous gas we had to shoot that needle into our leg right away. It really hurts."

When asked by a teacher what his scariest experience was, Ballejo replied, "We were coming up over a rise one time and thought we saw people taking pictures. We were used to that and didn't think about it until the dirt starting kicking up all around us and we realized they were shooting at us. We lost two men."

Ballejo ended his talk to the students with a heartfelt message. "Something else helped me survive in the desert," he said, pulling a stack of cards from his pack.

Expressing her surprise that Ballejo had saved all the letters, Mrs. Golden asked, "I had heard somewhere that ya'll had to burn letters from home. They can't burn what they can't find," said Ballejo smiling.

Ballejo arrived in Saudi Arabia Aug. 17 as part of the 118th Infantry from Ft. Benning in Georgia. They were attached to the 24th Infantry.

"When we first got there, we stayed in Tent City in Saudi Arabia for 3 or 4 weeks waiting for the ship to bring our vehicles. As soon as they arrived we set up camp in the desert."

"We waited in one spot for four months and then moved to the Iraqi border and waited for three months. We crossed over the border February 15. Our mission was to guard the Euphrates River and stop supplies from coming through the Iraqi expressway. We were successful."

"We would get shot at but our fire-power was so much better that they would surrender. We captured mostly Republican Guard. I'm sure at one time they had been good soldiers, but our bombing raids lowered their morale and they had no food."

To combat boredom in the desert the soldiers devised all kinds of way to make life more comfortable.

"We started to grow things," said Ballejo. "We planted watermelons and the plants grew but since there was no fertilizer we didn't get any watermelons."

"We made games and set up weight sets. We played volleyball with camouflaged nets and also football. We set up a tent as a recreation center and put a TV (sent to a soldier) with a VCR in there. People would send us videos and on Saturdays we were allowed to 'go to the movies.' We even had Near-Beer (a non alcoholic drink) that we would take to the movies."

"Hot meals were provided every four days and the rest of the time we ate MRE's (consisting of dehydrated meats, spaghetti, and later on M&M's)."

"We got a lot of stuff from home. Books and other stuff to read were circulated all around. You could tell when a soldier had not gotten a letter. They would look so depressed."

"So I would always take the letters that I got from my second graders and go share my letters. They were really appreciated."

"We were a big family over there," recalled Ballejo. "We would always talk to each other when someone got down. The Vietnam vets talked to us and kept us prepared on how to accept death. They warned us to keep fighting if a friend was killed. We couldn't afford to stop and think about it at the time. The time to think about it was later."

"The Vietnam vets said this war was really different than before. Not only was the support greater for them, but fighting the war was different. They said in Vietnam, Congress fought the war. In Saudi Arabia, the military fought it."

"I never saw a fight or argument between the soldiers I was with. We couldn't afford to make any enemies among ourselves. We needed each other."

Ballejo was born in Lubbock and grew up in Petersburg. He attended Lockney High School in 1978 and '79 and enlisted in the army in 1987. The first combat he saw was in Saudi Arabia.

Cpl. Ballejo has to be back at Ft. Benning June 3. He plans to re-enlist for another three years and hopes to work out something to be near his expectant wife, Mary Helen, who is a Navy nurse.

Grubs cause major concern

By Mike Mallet, CEA-Ag.
As Floyd County residents continue to work in their lawns and landscapes several pests are being observed. One which causes major concern is the white grub which is the larval form of the May or June beetle.

Almost 100 species live in Texas. Severely damaged grass can be lifted easily by hand or rolled off of the ground. The white grub can also attack certain agricultural crops. Damage occurs mostly during the summer and fall, and is most effectively controlled in our Floyd County area beginning in July through mid August. July 4, is a good target date.

Studies suggest that female beetles may aggregate at the time of egg laying, a condition which commonly results in localized or "clumped" lawn infestations. The egg laying period lasts about 30 days.

A female beetle is capable of laying 30-40 eggs which hatch in 3 to 4 weeks. Eggs are deposited at a depth of two (2) to five (5) inches. Egg laying females appear to avoid sod which has been heavily watered.

Lawns suspected of harboring grubs should be examined during the critical treatment period. Check the lawns, be taking several small plug samples or cores. The plugs should be at least 3-4 inches in diameter and 4 inches in depth. Examine a total area of at least 1 to 2 square feet. Take the plugs from all parts of the lawn. Tear the plugs apart and thoroughly examine them for grubs. Treatment is usually justified when more than four grubs per square foot are found.

Unnecessary insecticide applications often create more problems than they solve. Insecticide recommended for grub control are much less effective against eggs and large grubs than against small grubs. Insecticides applied too early may not be effective in the soil after the eggs hatch. Insecticide applied after the critical treatment period often prove ineffective because grubs have become large and difficult to kill.

Studies in West Texas have shown that Dursban, Diazinon, and Oftanol provide effective control when applied properly. A decline in the number of grubs should be observed about 30 days following treatment.

Proper application is important. The key to control is getting the chemical to the grubs in the root zone at the proper time. Granular formulations are easier to apply and can be accurately and quickly applied with a lawn fertilizer spreader. Proper distribution of the granules is important. Make sure the swaths overlap. Immediately follow granular applications with a thorough lawn sprinkling or watering (1/2 to 1 inch of water).

DO NOT use fertilizer-insecticide combinations any time other than the critical treatment period. Applications at other items may contribute to additional insecticide resistance in populations.

The pesticide USER is always responsible for the effects of pesticides on his own plants or household goods as well as problems caused by drift from his property to other properties or plants. Always read and follow carefully the instructions on the container label.

Pesticides and chemicals

Label is source for information

By C. Mark Brown
Extension Agent-Entomology (PM)
Crosby/Floyd Counties

During the spring and summer months, pesticides are used more frequently by agricultural producers and homeowners alike. Pesticides include chemicals such as insecticides, herbicides, and fungicides.

Although cultural control, use of resistant varieties, and other methods are used to help control pests, chemical control is still our best line of defense in the event of a pest outbreak. Misuse of pesticides causes problems not only for the applicator, but for others as well. The elements of pesticide safety include purchase of the proper chemical, proper handling, use, storage, disposal, and recognition of environmental situations.

The primary source of information for use of a pesticide is the product label. The label is the end product of research development, and the federal and state registration process. The label provides such information as directions for use, specific uses, the specific pests controlled by the product, environmental hazards, hazards to humans and domestic animals, precautionary statements, and storage and disposal instructions.

Pesticide users should always read the label carefully and completely before using a product. One should not rely on memory when using a familiar product. The extra five minutes or so required to read the label may save the applicator money, prevent unnecessary chemical applications, and protect against environmental or health hazards.

For safety recommendations cover all situations, but the following information provides some general information concerning pesticide safety.

Pesticides may enter the body through the skin, lungs, or mouth.

Dermal exposure (through the skin) is the most likely route of exposure. Skin exposure is minimized by use of protective equipment. Minimum requirements include wearing a long sleeved shirt and full length trousers, or a cover-all type garment.

A wide-brimmed hat offers some protection of the face and neck. Always wear trouser legs over boot tops to reduce the possibility of spilling liquid or dust formulations down into the boots.

Unless the label states differently, unlined, natural rubber gloves will protect applicators from a good deal of dermal exposure, since pesticides are often spilled onto the hands and then transferred to the face or neck by wiping one's face or neck with his hand. If a spray tank is elevated, do not allow others in the immediate vicinity at ground level during mixing or loading.

Avoid pesticide inhalation by insuring adequate ventilation and working upwind of the pesticide. If the label calls for a respirator, a good-fitting one with the correct filter type should be used. A mechanical filter, such as a dust mask, will not take the place of a cartridge type respirator. Change filters twice a day and whenever breathing becomes difficult. Change cartridges after 8 hours of actual use and whenever any pesticide odor is detected.

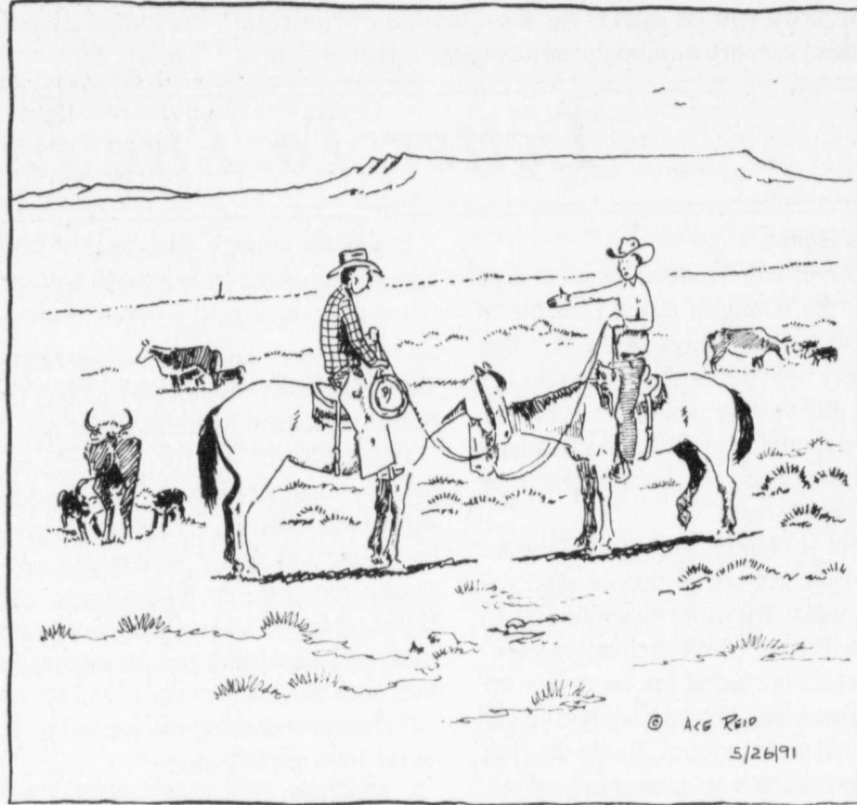

Pesticides may enter the mouth through wiping one's face on an exposed sleeve, cuff, or hand, or by accidental splashing, or trying to clear clogged nozzle tips by blowing on them. Risk from splashing can be reduced by wearing a face shield to protect the eyes, nose, and mouth. Also, one should be mindful not to use tobacco products until he has thoroughly washed any pesticide residues from the hands and face.

Do not mix chemicals unless specified by label directions. Always store pesticides in the original container with a legible label. Store pesticides in an area meeting the storage requirements on the label, and dispose of empty containers according to label directions.

Remember, practice good judgement, use common sense, and read the label when using pesticides.

"Wul it's great that yore cows all had twin calves but how come the coyotes got all yore neighbors?"

Agriculture is mystery to many people

By Rick Perry

Texas Agriculture Commissioner
Agriculture is the cornerstone of our economy. From this most basic of industries grew one of the most powerful states in America. Agriculture today still plays a vital role in the Texas economy. As I have previously noted in this space, agriculture employs one of every five Texans and generates $32 billion a year. Yet, despite its countless contributions, production agriculture is a mystery to many people.

It reminds me of the story about a little boy in New York City who was walking down the street with his mother. They passed an alley lined with several trash cans. Under one of those trash cans were nine or 10 empty milk cartons, and the little boy says, 'Look Mom, a cow's nest.'

We can laugh about that. But that same little boy could be living in Houston or Dallas or even Austin. The reality is as our farmers and ranchers have become more efficient, and as the industrial revolution has drawn more of the population into the cities, fewer people have active experience with farming and ranching. No longer do children take trips to visit grandma at the farm — they go see her at a condominium on the beach.

The masses know little about production agriculture, and television and movies have done little to expand that knowledge. I do not propose that everyone have 40 acres, a mule and grow everything they eat. What I am saying is that the farming and ranching community has a pressing challenge to inform the rest of our citizens of how safe, sensitive and innovative our industry is, as well as the economic importance it still has. I call it "Ag Literacy."

An average farmer produces the food and fiber for 128 people. Ten years ago, it was 109. Our farmer's productivity has increased faster than in any other industry — an hour of farm labor today produces nearly eight times as much as 40 years ago.

The fact is, ag research has ventured into new areas of technology aimed at producing more for less. Through biotechnology, we've developed state-of-the-art seeds that are more resistant to pests, and as a result, require fewer pesticides. The average American spends less on food than any other nation in the world. Our food supply is abundant and wholesome. The entire ag sector needs to let our neighbors know about our industry's wholesomeness. We need to let everyone know agriculture is not a by-gone industry. By introducing our youth to agriculture through such forums as livestock shows and youth fairs, we can raise an "ag literate" group. To this end, we need to expand our attempts to acquaint our youth with agriculture — become our own public relations specialists, if you will. This is a major reason why I will remain involved in livestock shows in our major Texas cities. That trip to a livestock show may be the only chance an inner-city youth has to get a first hand look at the best Brahman bull in the world.

Although we must actively educate our youth about agriculture, we must continue our public relations campaign to include adults. An excellent time is now as our nation stands poised to enter free trade negotiations with Mexico. We face disbelievers who are not aware of what Texas has at stake. A positive free-trade agreement and freer trade with Mexico would pave new avenues of opportunity for Texas agriculture. A new vertical trade axis is in the making, a western hemispheric trade zone taking shape — and Texas is at the center. Truly, we are poised to benefit, quite unlike any other state in the nation.

In addition, we have untapped opportunities in our own backyards. We process less than 10 percent of the goods produced in this state. That's almost three times less than the national average. Therefore, by forging ahead to develop these agricultural opportunities, it will become more readily apparent just what benefits agriculture offers. I feel sure that most Texans had no idea or interest in what a supercollider was until it was apparent just what an economic impact getting one would have.

I believe that mainstream agriculture is the key to a brighter economic future. Agriculture is our most renewable resource — not only has it spanned generations, it's sustained them. And as we seize the opportunities that it continues to produce, agriculture will carry on that tradition. Through these successes, I also believe we can educate our non-agricultural citizens about our industry and just how important it is in our lives.

Pesticide Do's and Don't's

continued or initiated. This effort should be done, if for no other reason, for "self-protection". As new regulations occur record keeping will become more vital.

With the use of pesticides homeowners, as well as, ag producers need to be concerned about proper use. Significant home, landscape and agricultural damages due to pests occur yearly and dictate the need for highly efficient chemical controls. In agriculture alone, more than 10,000 species and mites decrease crop production. About 600 of these pests require control every year.

Use of pesticides at rates other than those recommended, at vulnerable sites or during hazardous climatic conditions can lead to ineffective applications.

Do
Learn about the pests and controls.
Read labeling.
Use pesticides only when needed.
Use alternative pesticides.
Reduce excessive treatment.
Use low pesticide rates, if possible.

Don't
Don't assume a set application rate is universal.
Don't just spray. Save yourself time and money by using a pest management system in which applications are made only after scouting.
Don't use the same chemical year after year.
More chemical will not provide better control.
Don't just apply the maximum rate.

Misuse of pesticides can damage subsequent crops and non-targeted plants as well as build-up resistance of the targeted insects.

AGRICULTURAL MILESTONES

Water is the chief limiting factor in Texas' agricultural production. Water has been a problem in the state throughout history, interfering first with exploration and settlement, then later sometimes impeding the growth of agriculture, cities and industry.

With average annual rainfall ranging from more than 54 inches in the east to less than 8 inches in the west, Texas is subject to periodic drought, torrential rainfall and floods.

Even in those areas where average annual rainfall is "about right," it may not be right for agriculture from one year to the next. Some high rainfall areas of the state have extensive wetlands, drainage problems, high temperatures and high humidity. Other parts of the state have low rainfall, low humidity and hot drying winds.

Erosion of the soil from wind and water are persistent problems, carrying off vital topsoil from farms and ranches, depositing a lot of it in waterways and silting up water impoundments.

Water research, a major concern of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station since 1888, continues as a high priority effort. In the first year of Station operation, water management was identified and adopted as one of seven areas most in need of research. Today, despite major efforts that have greatly improved efficiency of water usage, water remains the state's single most important constraint for agricultural production.

Presently, Texas does not have adequate water to supply its municipal, industrial and agricultural needs; much of its supply shortfall is provided from overdrafting groundwater supplies. Agricultural water supplies are expected to decline as groundwater reserves are depleted and competition among water users becomes more acute.

The state's surface water resources have been developed to about 70 percent of their potential. However, continued growth of the industrial and residential sectors will eventually put pressure on water supplies for agriculture because the value-in-use of water for agriculture is lower than for municipal and industrial projects.

The Experiment Station, as the state's designated agency for agricultural research, has made a strong commitment to develop and conduct water research programs in conservation, supply, quality, policy and institutional issues.

Scientists at TAES research centers across the state and on the Texas A&M University campus work as interdisciplinary research teams on comprehensive, coordinated research projects. The state has no problem of greater importance to all its citizens, now and in the future, rural and urban alike.

If the state is to continue to grow and realize its full potential, it must develop technology that will fully use limited water supplies.

Floydada pool to open Saturday

The Floydada Municipal Swimming Pool will open for the summer season on Saturday, May 25, at 1:00 p.m. The pool will close at 5:30 that evening and reopen at 6:30 p.m. for their Saturday dollar night. Saturday nights will be a weekly feature at the pool, with admission being $1.00 per person.

John Ballew and his wife, Dedria, of Lockney, who are both lifeguards, will be operating the pool this summer. He is a Red Cross lifeguard with WSI certification.

"There will be a lifeguard on duty at all times," said Ballew.

The Floydada pool has been upgraded this year with the addition of a diving board. That has not been a feature at the pool for about three years. The board was approved by the city council and donated by the City of Floydada.

"We would like to thank Gary Brown and the city crew for putting up the new diving board," said Ballew. "They have also added steps down into the pool, instead of the ladders that used to be there." The steps will be covered with indoor/outdoor carpeting for added safety.

Among the activities going on at the pool this summer will be swimming lessons that will begin on Tuesday, June 4. These will be taught in two-week sessions.

The pool is also available for private parties and the Ballews advise that "you sign up now" to reserve when you want the pool.

Hours of operation for the pool will be

Tuesday through Sunday, 1:00 to 5:30 p.m., and Saturday's, 1:00 to 5:30 p.m., along with the Saturday dollar night feature which opens at 6:30 p.m.

The pool is closed on Monday's, however, it will be open on Monday, May 27, from 1:00 to 5:30 p.m. in observance of Memorial Day.

Admission to the pool will be $2.00 per person and $1.00 for children under age 6. Children under 6 must be accompanied by an adult.

Season tickets for the summer are also available for $50.00. "This averages out to less than $1.00 a day," said the Ballews. "It's about 75 cents a day."

For information concerning the pool, residents may call City Hall at 983-2834 or the Ballews at 652-2191.

READY TO SWIM—The children of Mr. and Mrs. John Ballew, who will be operating the Floydada Municipal Pool this year, are anxiously awaiting the opening date of the pool Saturday, May 25. Ready to use the newly installed diving board are (left) Jarrett, age 4, and Jonathan, 5. —Staff photo

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

As one of your readers, I want to urge you in the strongest terms possible to increase your coverage of the fact that for every new dollar that Congress has raised this year in new taxes it has increased spending by $1.78. As Reader's Digest reported, the budget and new taxes are a "sham."

To put it bluntly, last year Congress conned the American people and the news media. They told us we should go along with their "deficit reduction package" which included tax increases for every American because we had to get the deficit under control. But in the end, they just wanted to take more of our income in taxes.

In the name of deficit reduction, they enacted the second largest tax increase ever and then turned right around and increased spending by $111 billion — pushing the deficit to a new record.

It was the clearest case ever of false advertising. And, as they demonstrated when they destroyed Gramm-Rudman and the other controls on spending, Congress never intended to reduce the deficit or control wasteful spending.

Tragically, the American people and the news media bought the "this budget agreement will reduce the deficit" story hook, line and sinker. And now we are paying the price in higher taxes and higher deficits. I urge you to expand your coverage and report important facts such as:

1. Congress enacted the second largest tax increase in history;
2. Congress increased spending by $111 billion;
3. Congress enlarged the deficit by $100 billion to an all-time record of $320 billion for FY 1991 alone;
4. Congress pushed the national debt to a new record and increased the annual interest payment on the debt to a staggering $254 BILLION; and,

5. Congress destroyed the Gramm-Rudman Deficit Reduction Act and all other effective controls on future congressional wasteful spending.

As Citizens Against Government Waste has pointed out repeatedly, we have this skyrocketing deficit today not because of the recession but because Congress refuses to stop its reckless spending. Unless we get Congress' runaway taxes and wasteful deficit spending under control we will all be in very, very serious trouble very soon. I urge you to give more coverage to this all-important story. Thank you. Sincerely,

Albert Scheele

P.S. If you need more information on how Congress is squandering America's future, I encourage you to contact Citizens Against Government Waste, 1301 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Suite 400, Washington, D.C. 20036. They are leading the fight against government waste, higher taxes and the deficit.

Tanner Smith receives U.S. National award in agriculture

The United States Achievement Academy has named Tanner Smith as the recipient of a United States National Award in agriculture.

This award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the Academy recognizes less than 10% of all American high school students. Smith, who attends Monterey High School in Lubbock, was nominated for this National Award by Roger W. Green, an Agri-Science teacher at the school.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly United States Achievement Academy award winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, Executive Director of the United States Achievement Academy.

The Academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors or other school sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the Academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a teacher or director.

Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Smith. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. L.D. Smith of Floydada and Mr. and Mrs. Lyndell Roberts of Lubbock.

CARD OF THANKS

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble and now abideth faith, hope and charity and the greatest of these three is love."

When the family received the telephone call from Haiti at 10:30 p.m. May 3, that our Sonya Renee West was killed in a tragic accident, none of us could believe it was true. But upon verification, we had to face the reality that we would never see her alive again. Then, is when we called on our Master to give us strength to face the future without her.

We were told that it would be weeks before her body would be home, but helpful people rushed things along so she got home on Friday.

The school in Pampa and McMurry College asked that the funeral be delayed until the students could attend the last rites. Also, so that her adopted mother, Cecile, could fly to be here and have a part in the eulogy.

Although the death was tough, the greatest outpouring of love, compassion and friendliness we have ever seen raised upon us. One cannot imagine what the response was, so many people in so many places. The telephone calls, the visits, the food, the flowers, the friendly hugs and memorials were beyond our appreciation.

The people of Pampa, combined with several businesses and institutions, paid all expenses of bringing Sonya back, all incidents and her gravesite.

Sonya was so versatile, kind and lovable that she could not enter where others were that her presence would not make a difference. Especially did she love little children and those who were less fortunate. Her dedication to her friends, family and God made her loved by everyone who knew her.

So with Sonnie looking down on earth, the love that caused her to leave friends, family, a great future, and working for the underprivileged with a total dedication to the Lord, her family wants to extend the same love to everyone that helped in any way to make our burden lighter.

WEATHER

It rained Tuesday, May 7! We said it would! And with the rain came wind, hail, fire, but no brimstone! Rain at the Listening Post totalled 9/10 which doubled our previous total. That 9/10 was the least amount measured in the community; everybody beat the Listening Post! The rain gauge at Jude Strickland's place, three miles SE from Cedar, read a full three inches, and water in Lake Buford was deep enough to cover the lake-bottom wheat-pasture Durrell Fortenberry had sown for his cattle.

Most reports across the community fell within the 1" to 1.25 range. That is just barely 1/3 of the amount needed to plant the dryland crops.

A little hail damage was reported on the Starkey home-place which lies on the Fairview side of the community boundary, 4.5 miles SE of Cedar. A patch of wheat belonging to Dwight Teeple, joining east of the Starkey place, had virtually no damage.

Do you remember our leading comment under last week's "The Hopeful Cedars" where we gave you firm and total assurance that Tuesday would deliver us rain? Well, we choose to be modest and will try not to brag about that; excessively, that is; we won't even mention it, except in a mild and unobtrusive manner.

Cecilia Spivey was the name of Bobbie Kinnibrugh's sister-in-law who always brings a rain-present when she comes visiting. She wasn't among us long this time; went back home Friday. Mrs. Spivey Hales from Navasota, up north a ways from Houston, a little closer to College Station. Navasota is not one of Texas' flood places just now, and really didn't have that much rain to spare. However Austin is sopping wet, sends enough water down the Colorado every 24 hours to set all of Floyd County up in fine shape. We'd like Mrs. Spivey to drive thru Austin on her next trip, tap into their oversupply, and hurry back to Floyd County, Cecilia! Please hurry!

We finally figured out the rain-sign that had "Quicksilver Sam" so dead certain that rain would come on Tuesday of last week. We figure it must have been the mud martins! I remember watching them on Monday, and thinking how dumb they must be, as they industriously checked everything in sight for a place to stick their mud nests. Yes, dumb, because here in the midst of the driest spring in memory they were shopping for a home-site when the nearest nest building material they could find would be mud from around some stock-watering tank maybe five miles away. So maybe Sam figured they had foreknowledge that nature would have their plaster ready by the time they picked the right nest-site.

So you noticed the "Quicksilver Toby" reference in last week's column! Well that was a mistake! Times kept getting harder and harder until Toby finally drifted to some place else. Quicksilver Sam fits all the hats Toby used to wear, he may be a little more flamboyant than Toby, but we'll sprinkle him with keyboard dust if he threatens to get too far out of line.

CROP COMMENTS

WHEAT pasture management has adopted some curious maneuvers this spring, like unto some strange exotic dance as cattle are shifted from pasture to market, or from pasture to pasture. It happened here at Cedar that a field hosting a herd of cattle at sunrise, saw those cattle moved out during the day, and a different herd of cattle, with a different owner, were grazing that same field when the sun set that evening.

It is a curious thing, and lamentable, what is happening during these rough times. Some of the younger operators, with years of potential to operate ahead of them, have become financially strapped, and, unable to see light at the end of the maze, are throwing in the towel, and sending their cattle to market.

Into the niche the younger ones have vacated steps the experienced veteran, a survivor who will still be there after the economic storm has wreaked its havoc then drifted beyond the horizon. That old quote, "The survival of the fittest is the first law of nature" is not just a group of words presenting some fanciful philosophy, but a hard-hitting truism which, in this instance, is working with marvelous efficiency.

Tradition dictates that the result of the above picture should not be meddled with; tradition assumes that the verdict has been rendered, sentence has been pronounced, so let the individuals/principals adjust to the new order.

All too often the result of the above scenario ends with the losers losing, and the survivor also becoming a loser. If the young operator walks away to work in a new field, then the expertise he gained in his old occupation has been lost, and too often he winds up being low man on some distant totem pole. Now our veteran has fought many battles and taken more than his share of lumps, but each time he succeeds and grows bigger and more powerful he has also moved one step nearer the time when his age limitation becomes a major factor.

It is inevitable that there will be a time when his holdings will continue to make their demands on his mind and body, his mind will still be strong and capable, but his body will yield to age and become unable to function as the bridge, or liaison between the physical things that must be done, and the active mind that knows how to get the job done.

Unless an aging person is a superb general, a master maneuverer of men, who can generate a loyalty and spontaneous dedication rare among farm workers, he would do well to convert his possessions into assets which can be controlled by powers of the mind, and not so much by physical capabilities.

COTTON seeding on Tuesday, 5/21, has been going in a terrific rate; it should all be planted by the time you read this column. Virtually all not already planted on Tuesday is dryland. Some plantings have been a little slow in emerging, but the spring has been cooler than usual. Overall most are reporting excellent stands.

CORN & MILO plots by hybrid seed production companies are back with us again in '91. Some of these plots have been planted this past week.

ONION producers are just standing back and watching 'em grow. Some spraying was done late last week. A week earlier Mark Gilly's onions got an astringent spray following some slight hail damage on Tuesday, May 7.

THE LEANING CEDARS

Sunday, 5/19: After one full week, Robin Fortenberry was still in the Hereford hospital Sunday. He was moved from ICU into a private room on Wednesday, May 15. His condition was considered improved, however his doctors became much more concerned late in the week when Robin developed a kidney infection along with symptoms of pneumonia. His temperature also climbed to 101.

Robin's doctors have reviewed his symptoms and are now of the opinion that he actually suffered a major stroke, not just a lapse due to his emphysemic lung's inability to deliver sufficient oxygen to his bloodstream. Mild therapeutic treatments have been initiated to help return his left side to functioning normally. Family members or friends have been with him around the clock.

Monday, 5/20: The J.D. Busby's, unable to be reached at print time a week ago, were in Petersburg visiting their daughter and her family. This week finds J.D. still in continued remission, both of them attended church in Lockney Sunday. Richard Sanders reports that J.D. is still a worthy opponent at the "42" table, gave Richard a trimming twice lately. Warm weather and a calm day, when one of those rarities comes along, gives J.D. a terrific urge to break out his tackle-box and head for some local fishin' hole. Izaak Walton once wrote, "The days that a man spends fishing are not charged against his allotted time!" When that urge becomes irrepresible, J.D., remember the "buddy system"! Don't go it alone!

THE REJOICING CEDARS

Conditions are not the best out in the country, but never-mind, Floyd County farmers are still as busy as Listening Post honeybees when clover is blooming at its peak! At start-up each morning cotton planting motors are still warm from shut-down the night before!

Friday, 5/10: Penny (Davey) Taylor was a member of a small, select group of young college women attending Wayland Baptist University, who pooled their intellectual acumen at times of mutual crisis like the writing of term papers, the anticipation of questions, and other preparations for important exams. Their batting average was excellent; their poor professors were helpless against their combined effort; a grade as low as "B" left the clique in a state of disbelieving shock! Now graduation day was imminent and they must part, each to go her respective way.

At that juncture, Wanda Davey, Penny's mother, stepped into the picture and invited the group, their spouses, and/or friends for a "parting party" on Friday night at the Davey home in Plainview. From containers of basic foods each guest built her own distinctive combination plate; a gala occasion; joyful, their objective had been accomplished; sorrowful, their togetherness was no longer needed.

Thursday, 5/16: Kim Mixon has finished her semester of studies in ultrasound diagnostic therapy, and a week ago arrived at the home of her parents, Lindsey and Billie Ruth Lackey, for a few day's visit. Before her marriage Kim used to make a top hand in the repair and operation of harvesting equipment. Perhaps she will be around when Lindsey harvests this year's first load of wheat.

Thursday-Friday, 5/16-17: There was a garage sale in Floydada at the home of Phyllis Harris last Thursday and Friday. Three ladies from Cedar Hill decided to participate in the sale; hauled their "junk" up there and got the surprise of their lives. Imogene Fortenberry, who freely admits to being a party to the sale, and two other ladies, a timid pair who would rather maintain a sheltered identity, henceforth to be referred to as the Quicksilver sisters, L&B, are all agast. The proceeds from the sale were so vast that they fear complications with the IRS come tax-time next April! (Note: question marks enclosing a non-question. That makes the statement questionable!) One item, deemed to have no value by a previous owner, was left abandoned in an old out-building. Last week, a number of years later, the item was dragged out, dusted off, and put on display; it sold for $35.00. A garage sale! Everybody ought to have one, unless, of course, you dread a higher income tax bracket!

Friday-Saturday, 5/17-18: It had been a hectic ten days at Edna Gilly's. While a trailer load of her mother cows were being hauled to new pasture, as the storm of Tuesday, May 7, closed in, the trailer hitch-ball snapped loose from her pickup; the careening stock-trailer overturned, and her load of cows scattered across the community during the pelting rain which followed. Three days had passed before the last of her cows had been located and put back in their proper place. The calves, which were being held back for the final load, could not be reunited with their mothers for many hours, some for as many as two and three days. A few calves became ill; one finally died.

Early the following week an insurance adjuster classed Edna's wrecked trailer as being "totaled", and she had to locate and purchase a used replacement; that cost two medium-sized cows. Good business dictated that a number of her aged cows should be sold. That was done Wednesday, May 16, and first-calf heifers were purchased to replace them. Yes it had been a hectic, nerve-wrecking, ten days!

So, Edna Gilly and Marissa Fortenberry spent a cool, restful Friday and Saturday at the Gilly cabin on the shore of Lake Mackenzie, enjoying the breezes and watching carefree ripples chasing merrily across the surface of the water.

Saturday, 5/18: Penny Taylor thoroughly understands the meaning of the term "on call". Ever since she completed some micro-course work during the holidays of '90, Penny has been "on call", a fully qualified teacher, lacking only going through formal graduation exercises and being handed her teacher's certificate. She quickly had her name listed with both the Lockney and Floydada ISDs as being available to serve in substitute teaching. That "on call" status has had her telephone ringing many mornings over the last few months.

On Thursday, May 16, Penny's "on call" status took an unexpected twist. Her father, Rex Davey, issued an urgent call for help. He is a professional in the field of custom harvesting, and a customer's wheat near Knox City was on the verge of being "right"/ripe. A harvest convoy had to be moved at once and there was a dearth of drivers. Penny and one of her sisters were drafted! Friday found them among a number of large trucks and huge machines, driving eastward. Friday night was nearly half gone by the time everything was properly stashed in Knox County and Penny was free to hit the road back home to Cedar Hill, hit the road to her graduation exercise at Wayland Baptist University in Plainview, now only hours away.

The graduation exercise was one of Wayland's largest, the auditorium was packed, many spectators stood in the aisles, the heat was oppressive, and family members said it was well that Junior Taylor refused to go, stayed at home; the heat inside the building would have killed him, so they say.

But Junior's camcorder went along to the graduation, and Bud kept it busy. Later that evening, sitting in his easy chair in front of the TV, with a glass of iced-tea in his hand, Junior watched it all, and heard it all. It will still be there so Penny's parents, too, can watch their daughter graduate when harvest slows a bit.

Sunday, 5/19: This could have been a banner week at the rendering plant; a vast majority of Floyd County farmers had "ox-in-the-ditch" troubles last Sunday, surely some of those oxen must have died. If the number of cotton acres planted last Sunday was not the peak for '91, then it had to have been a close second to Monday, May 20.

Sunday, 5/19: It was a big day at the Cephus Fortenberry's Sunday. Their serviceman grandson, Todd Hodges, a sailor just returned stateside from the Persian Gulf, and his wife, Melissa, who are stationed in San Diego, California, had come to visit. It was an excuse for a gathering of the clan! Todd's mother, sister, and brother, Phyllis, Mychelle, and Terry Harris, were there. From Dumas came Todd's aunt and uncle, Melba Jean and Troy Smith, and his cousin, Wes Durham; cousin Rodney Durham had to stay in Dumas putting gas in people's cars. Cephus drove to Lubbock and brought Imogene's sister-in-law, Lottie (Easley, Love) Oswalt to visit for a time.

Monday, 5/20: Festivities related to Todd and Melissa Hodges homecoming continued into the next day. Cephus and Imogene, replete with a chocolate cake and a freezer of home-made ice cream, joined the group at the home of Phyllis and Terry Harris in Floydada

LIFE IS TRULY A BOOMERANG; WHAT YOU GIVE, YOU GET.

Blocking option available statewide for 900/976 calls

Throughout the state, local telephone companies are offering their customers the option of blocking calls to 900 pay-per-call information services.

Protests from consumers about 900 pay-per-call services have made this issue one of the most pressing matters at both the state and national levels. On the state level, local telephone companies are responding positively to recent rules adopted by the Public Utility Commission, which require local telephone companies to provide free blocking to all 900 and 976 numbers upon request.

"The Texas Telephone Association and its member companies support the 900 pay-per-call service blocking. We believe the call blocking option will alleviate some of the consumers' and the Texas Legislature's concerns about abuses connected with 900 service," commented TTA president Tim Raven.

Raven said telephone subscribers throughout the state will receive ballots in their telephone bills notifying them of the 900 and 976 call blocking option. To order the call blocking option, customers can return the ballot or contact their local telephone company.

A customer who chooses not to order the call blocking option will have access to all 900 services, while those who request blocking will not have such access. The first request for call blocking will be at no charge, but a nonrecurring charge may be applied to subsequent blocking requests.

In areas where individual call blocking is not technically possible, access to 900 pay-per-call services will be blocked to all customers until the local telephone company's equipment is able to provide the selective blocking.

The Texas Telephone Association is a non-profit trade association representing the interests of the local exchange telephone companies of Texas.
