Floydada Whirlwind baseball comes back

By Bill Gray

Dwight D. Eisenhower was president of the United States, Buddy Holly was a senior at Lubbock High School, and an American was still years away from traveling in outer space. The year was 1955 — an era of ducktail haircuts, poodle skirts and penny loafers. It was also the final year of organized baseball at Floydada High School. That is, until 1992.

After almost a forty-year hiatus, Whirlwind baseball has been revived. The 'Winds are scheduled to open the 1992 season on March 2 with a road game against the Eagles of Lubbock Christian (a perennial playoff contender in the Texas Private Schools Conference).

Floydada's 20-game slate includes Ralls, Denver City, Morton, Wilson, Lubbock High JV, Lubbock Cooper, Abernathy and Lockney. All of Floydada's non-district opponents have fielded baseball teams in previous seasons (some for a number of years). Lockney restored baseball in 1991 and will host the fledgling 'Winds on April 21.

The Whirlwinds will compete in District 2-3A, along with Muleshoe, Dimmitt and Friona. Tulia is expected to initiate baseball in 1993. The remaining 2-3A member, Littlefield, has yet to join the baseball resumption among the smaller West Texas schools.

Seventeen Whirlwind hopefuls have been working out for two weeks, under the direction of first-year head baseball coach Jimmy Webster and his assistant Jimmy Burleson. Webster comes to Floydada with an impressive baseball background.

His playing experience started in the various youth leagues in Lubbock, high school ball at Lubbock Monterey, and finished with playing stints at Lubbock Christian and Texas Tech Universities. His coach at Monterey was Bobby Moegle, one of the country's foremost high school mentors.

Webster played at Lubbock Christian under Larry Hays and moved on to Texas Tech after Hays took over the Red Raider program.

Following his graduation from Texas Tech, Jimmy first learned of Floydada's baseball revival while coaching a Lubbock Pony League team. A call to Larry Hays confirmed that Floydada athletic director Dean Bates had discussed the opening for a baseball coach. Webster applied for the position, was accepted and came to Floydada last fall. He coached the 7th Grade Breezers, in the football season, and junior high basketball.

Questioned about the prospects of organizing a baseball program in a town so football-oriented as Floydada, Webster replied, "It scared me... it definitely did! I didn't know where to start. How much do they know, or do not know? What bad habits do they have, if they have any habits at all? Will they be receptive to my techniques and learning process?" There were many unanswered questions when it came to virtually starting a new sports program.

When asked, "Had Floydada had a sustaining and successful Pony League program through the years, don't you feel the youngsters coming up now would be more successful and better prepared for the high school level?", the coach replied, "Successful or not, they would have been out there throwing, swinging and fielding — at least being on a team and having the opportunity to fine-tune the basics they learned in Little League."

Lockney man sentenced to 22 years

Judge Randy Hollums, of the 110th Judicial District, handed down a sentence of 22 years to Pedro (Pete) Molina Jr., February 20, for the aggravated assault of Mary Hutton on August 14, 1991.

Floyd County jurors had given a guilty verdict to Molina after a two day trial January 28-29. Molina had requested sentencing to be done by the judge instead of the jury.

Molina's attorney, Marvin Williams, argued for leniency due to Molina not having a past history of violence. "Besides DWI and public intoxication charges Molina has no criminal history," said Williams.

Williams called two witnesses to testify on Molina's behalf, both of them testifying to Molina having a drinking problem but not prone to violence.

"I believe the testimony and his history points to an alcohol problem," said Williams. "I believe that was a mitigat-

Chamber hosts banquet

Richard Campbell will be the guest entertainer at the annual Floydada Chamber of Commerce appreciation banquet Saturday, February 29. He will entertain the crowd with a variety of gospel and contemporary music.

Campbell has been in full-time evangelism for over 14 years and has recorded four gospel albums: "The Sweet Sounds of Jesus", "In Remembrance", "I'm Changed" and "His Name Is Jesus."

A Matador native, Campbell also lived in Floydada for a period of time and served as the Music Director at Floydada's First Baptist Church.

He attended Texas Tech University on a football scholarship and graduated in 1972 with a degree in Physical Education. While a member of the Red Raider football team he was named to the All-Southwest Conference defensive team in both 1968 and 1969. In January of 1970 Campbell played in the Hula Bowl Classic.

In June of that same year he played in the Coaches All-American Game in Lubbock. Prior to that game Campbell sang the National Anthem, becoming the first athlete to sing before a game in which he would play.

Tickets to the annual banquet sell for $12.50 each and can be bought at the Chamber of Commerce office, from any director, or at the Floyd County Hesperian-Beacon. The banquet will begin at 7:00 p.m. at Duncan Elementary. Nielson's Restaurant will cater the steak dinner.

During the banquet several awards will be presented to outstanding Floydada citizens, including the Employer of the Year, Citizen of the Year and the Extra Mile Award.

Don't forget that February 29 is a big day!

Tune in your radio to KKAP and listen to Floydada Lions mess up (I mean sell) your ads on the radio! It is lots of fun.

Lion Johnny Summers said that he and Eric Cornelius and Nick Long were up until 1:00 a.m., Monday night, making up ads for all the sponsors. He said things were getting a little crazy by that time, and he sure hopes no one is offended. Just remember—it's all in fun. Keep a smile on your face, and above all remember that I had nothing to do with it!

After you get entertained by the Lions Club, remember to go to the Floydada Chamber Banquet Saturday night. I've heard ticket sales are a little slow and that is a shame.

The chamber's in both towns work very hard for their communities. We should show them we appreciate it. Besides—the fellow that is singing for the Floydada banquet is supposed to be great.

Everyone that has heard Richard Campbell says he gives a dynamic performance. I'm looking forward to it!

I visited with Mrs. C.L. Record, of Lockney, last week. Her husband passed away recently. The community loved him very much, just as they do Lucy Dean Record.

People remember the Records most for their Christian life and for their musical talents. Lucy Dean has taught music in Lockney for 46 years and she was accompanied many times by C.L.'s singing talents.

She is now asking anyone that may have a tape of C.L. singing, to please loan her the tape for a short while. She wants to make copies and give them to her children. It means a lot to her folks, so go dig in your special boxes and find that tape.

Tami Nielson's in-laws just got back from a trip to Holland. They brought back some wooden shoes. They are very pretty and we all had to try them on and walk around the office in them.

They are the MOST UNCOMFORTABLE SHOES EVER INVENTED!

You have to curl up your toes and walk like a flamingo to keep them on your feet.

They would make great clogging shoes if I knew how to clog.

Anyway—I was wondering. Does

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers

WASHINGTON --A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "hi-tech" food tablet would help erase world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.

Although other studies and scientists may not agree, researchers in Europe found that the ingredient, a natural plant colloid, actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to one study published in the prestigious British Journal of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calories.

While the development of the product called Food Source One, a project of National Dietary Research, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the formula which has since been improved with other natural colloids has been a windfall for some overweight people. A Daytona Beach, Florida woman fighting a weight battle for 12 years using the product on the recommendation of her physician and lost 30 pounds. She stated, "Not only have I lost 30 pounds but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two closets full of clothes which have not fit me in two years that I can now wear." In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in 3 weeks on the product and was never hungry.

Food Source One tablets are part of National Dietary Research's comprehensive plan to bring a rapid end to obesity in this country. A variety of nutritionally sound diet plans, specially prepared by NDR, accompany each bottle and provide a natural, drug free alternative for confronting the problem of obesity.

Teeter initiated into honor society

Wesley Teeter, the son of Eddie and Cheryl Teeter of Lockney was initiated into McMurry University's mathematics academic honor society, Kappa Mu Epsilon, Sunday, February 23, in the Presidential Dining Room of the United Methodist Campus Center. The members and initiates gathered for a dinner featuring Dr. Charles Robinson as guest speaker. Robinson, professor of mathematics at Hardin-Simmons University, gave a talk entitled, "Can You Say What You Mean?" The initiation took place during the dinner.

The Iota Chapter of Kappa Mu Epsilon on McMurry's campus was begun in 1987 for the purpose of binding together in a common fellowship those who are serious students of mathematics. The members recognize the service of mathematics in the development of civilization.

To be qualified as a member of the honor society, the students must be classified as a sophomore, must have completed calculus, must have a "B" average in math classes and be in the upper 35% of their graduating class. The honor society is sponsored by the McMurry mathematics department, chaired by Dr. Bill Dulin.

Lions are on the air Saturday

Floydada Lions Club will once again take to the airwaves Saturday, February 29, in an effort to raise money for charitable causes.

The annual event is remembered by listeners in the KKAP broadcast area, as a hilarious afternoon of Lions Club antics and spoofs on local advertisers.

Advertisers' contributions will go back into the community to support worthwhile charities.

"All the money raised by Lions Club Radio Days goes back into the community," said the organizer's Chairman Nick Long. "Any money that is used for the operation of the Lions Club comes solely from membership dues.

"The money will be used in areas such as eyeglasses for needy children, Lion's Crippled Children's Camp in Kerrville, the Lions Diabetes Camp, scouting programs, wheelchair ramps, and other local charities."

Last year, the Floydada Lions Club was responsible for donating at least 20 eyeglasses to local children in need. The Lions are also responsible for all the wheelchair ramps in downtown Floydada.

Floydada children have also been sent by the Lions, to the Lions Diabetes Camp, and the local chapter is also known as a 100% contributor to the Lions Crippled Children's Camp.

"We are also a big supporter of the Lions Eye Bank," said Long.

Since 1988 the Lions Club has donated $2,400 to the new ambulance and recently donated $1,100 to the Jimmie Jo West Love Fund. Over $500.00 is given every year to the local boy scouts by paying for their utility bills and other donations.

"We would appreciate any business that is contacted by a Lion to donate to Radio Days", said Long. "The whole purpose of Radio Days is to simply raise money for charities. We appreciate the businesses letting us 'kid' them on the air. We wouldn't do it if they weren't our friends."

The cost of advertising on Radio Days is $20.00 for three 30 second spots (or several minutes if it takes that long for the Lion to laugh his way through it).

KKAP is broadcast as far away as Amarillo, Brownfield, Muleshoe, Childress and Benjamin; and as close as Lockney and Plainview. It can be found on 900 AM and 95.3 FM.

Officers in the local Lions Club are: President Johnny Summers, 1st Vice President Randy Duke, 2nd Vice President Nick Long, Secretary-Treasurer Sammy Hale and Tail Twister Dena Reece.

Reconstruction slated for FM 378

By Juanita Stepp

Planned reconstruction of FM 378 from its intersection with U. S. Highway 70 at Lockney south to its intersection with FM 784 at Sandhill has been finalized. According to Donnell Gowens, Roadway Maintenance Supervisor for the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation, the 10.3 mile project is slated to begin in the next few days.

A preconstruction conference was held in Floydada on Monday, February 24. Merlin O. Bennett, Supervising Resident Engineer for the project, conducted the conference. The purpose of the conference was to make the proper area officials aware of the project and to plan for the safety of the people working on the reconstruction as well as the safety and convenience of the driving public who will be affected by the project.

J. H. Strain & Associates of Abilene was the successful bidder and will be the contractors undertaking the project.

Cummings attends Historic Inn convention

Roxanna Cummings from Floydada's Lamplighter Inn recently attended a convention of the Texas Historic Inns Association in San Marcos on Feb. 23 and 24.

As a representative of Floyd County, Cummings will have a chance to promote the county to such travel writers as Dallas Morning News, Houston Chronicle, Texas Highways and Texas Monthly.

Cummings will also visit with the head of the Texas Tourist Bureau in Austin. She carried with her many promotion items donated by The Lamplighter, Heptad Vegetables, Floydada Chamber of Commerce and the Floyd County Museum.

"We have a lot to offer in this area,"

SPS shareholders name new board member

The shareholders of Southwestern Public Service Company held their annual meeting and elected Albuquerque, New Mexico, businessman J. Howard Mock to the board of directors. Shareholders also elected all directors standing for re-election.

Mock, 50, is chairman of the board and CEO of the Jaynes Corporation, a general contractor in Albuquerque. He also serves on the board of United New Mexico Bank at Albuquerque.

Mock is a graduate of the University of New Mexico, where he received both his master's and bachelor's degrees. He is active in state and local business and civic activities, including membership on the Governor's Business Advisory Council and the New Mexico Amigos. Mock is past-president of the Greater Albuquerque Chamber of Commerce.

SPS directors Gene H. Bishop, Gary W. Wolf and Coyt Webb were re-elected to new terms by shareholders. Board member W.R. Esler retired and did not stand for re-election.

said Cummings, "and perhaps we can get some of the publicity long overdue and richly deserved."

To The Citizens Of Floyd County!

I ask that you vote for the candidate that has shown you his education, qualifications, work history and has seen many changes that have been and need to be made at the Sheriff's Office.

As your sheriff, I will make changes in the procedures of the inmate trustee program. Trustees will not have access to the control areas of the office or be at liberty to leave the confines of the jail.

Patrol work is a basic tool of law enforcement and should be used as such. Officers are able to obtain information while on patrol duty that allows us to better serve you, the citizens of Floyd County. It is also a proven fact that high visibility patrol is a deterrent to crime.

There are many services and supplies required by the Sheriff's Office and I believe that all businesses should be given the opportunity to provide these services.

I will make no changes in the current staff of the Sheriff's Office, but I will make changes which will affect future employment. Applications will be taken and the most qualified applicant for the position will be employed. This is only right to the taxpayers of Floyd County. Your tax dollars pay the salaries of this office and should be handled in the best way possible.

I ask that on Tuesday, March 10, 1992, you vote for and elect the most qualified and dedicated candidate for Sheriff of Floyd County.

"Living Wisely With Creation" theme of World Day of Prayer

World Day of Prayer Friday, March 6, will be held at the First Christian Church followed by a salad luncheon. Everyone is invited, and asked to bring a salad and join in for the program and luncheon. The program begins at 10 a.m. with several churches involved.

The World Day of Prayer is an annual worship event sponsored in the United States by Church Women United and observed in 170 countries and regions of the world on the first Friday of March. It was initiated in the United States in 1887.

"Living Wisely with Creation" is the theme for this 105th World Day of Prayer. The '92 service was written by women of Austria, Switzerland and the Federal Republic of Germany.

It expresses deep concern about the threats to the environment through the overuse and misuse of modern technologies. These women issue an urgent call to women and men in every corner of the globe to make the necessary changes in their lives to restore and heal the resources of this planet.

The women who write the World Day of Prayer materials consider this to be a sacred trust and a unique opportunity to focus the prayers of the whole world on the challenges and triumphs of each country and its people.

Translated into hundreds of languages and dialects each year, World Day of Prayer is one of the most widely distributed pieces of literature in the world, making it a significant instrument for information, education and inspiration. It would be wise for all to have reverence for the abundant beauty of God's handiwork in the creation of our planet.

Floydada Nursing Home Happenings

By Jo Bryant

Hi, hope this finds all well and happy. Irene Wexler, Edna Patton and Ivola Walters came on Monday to sing and play the piano. Morning juice and coffee were enjoyed by all. In the evening the residents did a quiz on the presidents. Edward Jameson named the most presidents, what state, year and how long each ran for office.

Tuesday was sing-a-long, name that tune and exercise. In the evening, residents watched game shows on the large TV screen.

Wednesday, Lennie Willis had the first Bingo. The snacks were cheese crackers, candy and bananas. Residents watched Nashville Now on TV. The ladies from the Church of Christ were the hostesses for our monthly birthday party. Four having birthdays were Edward Jameson, Henry Willis, Icy Snow Weathers and Iva Wells. Guests were Rena Turner, Lillian Sheck, Bessie Sauls, Betty Yearly. The ladies serving cake and punch were Betty Baker, Lorilla Bradley, Eleanor McCarty and Martha Botkin.

Evelyn Latta played the piano for us Friday and closed with a prayer. A poem was read on "Morning Thoughts", taking time to enjoy the early morning. On to Plainview for the bus ride. McDonald's treated the residents to some ice cream.

We want to thank Tom Emert for the flag pole and all who helped put it up. So come by and see the flag flying sometime. Keep bringing in your recipes for our cookbook.

Volunteer tea (appreciation tea) will be Thursday, Feb 27, at 2:30. Just remind all to be sure and attend.

A Poem for the Family Caregiver
There will come a day when you'll look back with feelings of great pride. For the choice you've made to care-

And God will bless your times of care with memories he'll impart.

Literacy efforts help achieve 4-H honors

When Ricky Perez of Houston saw his own reflection in the faces of young children struggling to read and write, he was even more determined to help them succeed.

For his work with the Outreach Literacy Education (OLE) Project, designed to help low-income Hispanic youth improve their literacy skills, and other 4-H projects, Perez has received the nation's highest 4-H honor — The Presidential Award.

Perez, a 17-year-old junior at C.E. King High School, is one of only three Texans ever to receive the award. Each year only 12 young people are selected for this honor from the nationwide 5.4 million 4-H membership. Perez and other recipients were presented with a $1,500 scholarship and a silver tray in the name of President George Bush during National 4-H Congress in Chicago Dec. 7-11.

The award is arranged by the National 4-H Council and sponsored by the Reader's Digest Association Inc. each year. Selection of winners is based on their overall achievement in 4-H and on personal interviews.

"Winning this award will make me work even harder," Perez said, "It means a lot. It shows me that if you work hard, it eventually pays off."

Part of Perez's hard work is visible in the Ole Project, which operates out of McGregor Elementary School and St. Paul's Methodist Church in Houston. He helped start the project and has played a key role in its success.

When Perez started teaching the children last year, he was reminded of a time when he had problems learning.

"When I was in elementary school, I was a slow learner," he said. "No one sat down with me to help teach me. The impact hit me instantly when I saw these kids. They reminded me of myself."

"I didn't want anyone to grow up the way I had to," said Perez, whose father worked at night and was not available to help him with homework. "I figured I wasn't going to get anywhere without the basic fundamentals of learning."

Working with his brother and guardian Danny L. Hughes, Perez organized summer camps and field trips, served as adviser, recruited volunteers to assist at day camps and designed and built a puppet theater for the children in Project Ole.

"Our goal was to teach these children to read and speak English so they would have fewer problems in school," he said. "I can identify with them. I have worked hard to bring up my own grades. I feel I can give inspiration . . . I hope to be a good Hispanic role model for them to follow."

"Ricky epitomizes the spirit of concern for others and service to the community that we attempt to instill in all youth," said Dr. Nelson Jacob, 4-H and youth development specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "He is very deserving of this recognition, and we are extremely proud of him."

In a second major honor, Perez also won a $1,500 scholarship from Amoco Foundation Inc. for his work in the National 4-H Petroleum Power Program.

Perez, one of 446,000 4-H members in Texas, plans a future in agricultural economics. He said he will continue his 4-H activities in college.

"The most important thing that I want to accomplish in 4-H is to improve the image of young people," he said. "We are not all involved in drugs and crime. There are lots of teenagers, just like me, working in their community, working to become the leaders of tomorrow."

Butler leads Lady Horns in district competition

(Editor's Note: Research for this article, by Texas Tech journalism student Doug Fair, was made possible by a grant from the Reader's Digest Foundation.)

By Doug Fair

The Lockney High girls basketball team had won 18 games going into Monday's matchup with Olton, thanks mainly to pressure defense and the inside scoring of La Donna Butler.

Butler provided the early offensive spark the Lady Longhorns were looking for, but the Olton Fillies handled the usual aggressive Lockney defense with composure in route to a 47-42 victory in a crucial game to determine the second playoff spot in District 3-2A.

The Lady Horns were determined to pound the ball inside to Butler in the early stages of the game, and the Lockney senior did not disappoint. Butler scored all eight Lockney first-quarter points, and the Lady Longhorns trailed by only one point at the end of the quarter, 9-8.

Olton increased its one point lead into an eight-point halftime lead as they contained Butler and forced the Lady Horns to find other offensive weapons in their arsenal. The result was a number of Lockney turnovers.

It was not until the four-minute mark of the second quarter that a Lockney player other than Butler scored.

The Lady Horns' offense seemed impatient when their "go-to-gal," Butler, was double and triple teamed. The Lady Horns seemed frustrated, and hurt themselves with costly turnovers throughout the second half.

The Fillies' lead reached double digits in the fourth quarter as they crashed the offensive boards and gave themselves numerous opportunities to score.

The Lady Horns were frustrated, but they refused to quit. They maintained their pressure defense and cut the Olton lead to 43-39 towards the end of the game. However, Lockney's season was all but over after Olton's Kelly Burkhalter iced the game with free throws in the last minute.

La Donna Butler led Lockney with 15 points, while teammate Carolyn Turner added 13 for the Lady Horns, whose season ended with an 18-12 record. The Fillies improved their record to 20-11.

With the victory, the Fillies earned the right to play Ralls in the bi-district playoffs on Tuesday. Ralls was the winner of District 4-2A.

LJHS participates in TIP at Texas Tech University

Six seventh graders from Lockney Junior High recently participated in the Talent Identification Program (TIP) at Texas Tech, February 8.

Traveling to Tech were Allison Mangold, Kelli Clark, Kaci Mathis, Gerardo Luna, DeWayne Jones and Tim Mitchell. Johnny Mosley also qualified for the program but was unable to attend.

Eligibility for participation in TIP is determined by achievement scores. Any seventh grader who scores 97% on achievement test can then take the ACT test at Tech.

ACT's are not usually taken by students until their junior or senior year.

If the junior high student scores well on the ACT scores they will become eligible for different awards and recognitions. The students names are given to different programs for outstanding students and will participate in state and national recognition ceremonies. They will also participate in special programs at Duke University.

Warren and Charlotte Mitchell accompanied the seventh graders to Tech as sponsors.

Area young people win honors at Fort Worth livestock show

Area young people were chosen winners at the 1992 Southwestern Exposition and Livestock Show which concluded a successful 17-day run February 2. Cassidy Mallett of Lockney placed second with her Angus calf.

Of the over 17,000 head of livestock judged during the Stock Show, some 6,800 were involved in the Junior Division, open to Texas youth who are active in 4-H Clubs and FFA Chapters.

A banner year was charted by the show, posting an attendance record of 813,100 visitors, which included a peak crowd of 144,593 at the World's Original Indoor Rodeo and people from 62 foreign countries.

The grand champion steer brought a near record price of $50,000 on a top bid from Winn-Dixie Texas Inc., a supermarket chain called "The Beef People" which operates 81 stores in North Texas and Oklahoma. The champion was shown by Lea Bensen, a 4-H Club member from Robstown.

Reserve grand champion steer, owned by Mindy Ballard of Rochester 4-H Club, was purchased for a record price of $32,000 by the bid team of Comerica Bank Texas, Walker Financial Corp., National Health Insurance and Haynes and Boone Law Firm of Fort Worth and Arlington.

Commenting on the record-breaking show, Stock Show President and Manager W.R. Watt Jr. said, "The Stock Show is a tremendous undertaking, and could not have succeeded without the special talents provided to us by a great number of people who did a first-class job, which included extending a warm welcome to the thousands of visitors. We appreciate the continued financial support from hundreds of individuals, organizations and businesses within our community who contributed greatly to our success."

GLADIATOR WINNER--Chase Graves, 8 year old son of Glen and Tina Graves, won an essay contest, sponsored by KLLL, on "Why you wanted to be a Junior Gladiator." He received four tickets to the American Gladiator show which was held in Lubbock and competed with other winners in the "Cannon Shooting" Contest. Staff Photo

Floydada baseball returns

Webster stressed the importance of Pony, Senior, Babe Ruth and other programs for the 13-15-year-olds in developing potential high school players.

Webster has been amazed and gratified with the response he has received from the school as well as the community. He commented that the City of Floydada has "been just tremendous" in their joint efforts with the school district in refurbishing and construction of the baseball field.

In spite of delays caused by weather conditions these past weeks, the field is quickly taking form and will be one of the better facilities in the area when completed.

BILL'S NOTES

It's been a long time since the call to "Play Ball!" has been heard on a Floydada High field. A lot of effort has been put forth, from the City of Floydada as well as the school system, to ring high school baseball back to town.

It will be a young team, with little chance to compete at the level generally associated with Whirlwind athletics. However, the effort to produce a competitive team will be there. The young man chosen to achieve the task of building Floydada baseball just may be the right man at the right time.

Floydada's newest and youngest coach knows what it is to work hard in order to achieve a goal. As a Monterey sophomore, Jimmy Webster was cut from the squad, but decided to try again (only because the team was short catchers—a position he had never played dating back to even Little League days).

He dedicated himself to learning the new position, caught for the Plainsmen junior varsity, and was the varsity catcher during his senior year. That Monterey team reached the Class 5-A state tournament and finished with a 30-4 record.

During Webster's freshman year at Lubbock Christian, the Chaps were three runs away from advancing to the N.A.I.A. World Series.

Webster stated, "At one point we were 6-24 for the year (almost unheard of at Lubbock Christian). Coach Hayes didn't really get down on us... he just reminded us of what we were capable of doing. He's gotta' be one of the classiest individuals I've ever met in my life—he always let you know where you stood with him. Hays inspired us to put things together and we went on a 31-5 streak to finish the season at 35-29."

Hays moved to Texas Tech the next year. Beaten out at his position by a N.A.I.A. All-American, Webster was red-shirted and played in the Kansas Jayhawk League. The Kansas experience contributed to his successful year at Lubbock Christian, in which he hit .375 and was named to the All-District

LANGSTON WILLIAMS, Candidate for Floyd County Commissioner, Precinct 3, Opposes Tax Increases

Langston Williams, a candidate for Floyd County Commissioner, Precinct 3, is against any kind of tax hike. If elected, he promises to try to find other ways to generate revenue for the County to operate which will be in the best interest of all the people. Mr. Williams does not feel that the poor, elderly, small and large ranches and farmers can survive with a huge tax increase. With the state of the national economy, any tax increase would destroy the lives of a great number of people such as the farmers who already suffer from a large debt because they have been unable to harvest some of their crops from last Fall and get them to market.

Mr. Williams states his first priority will be whatever the people need.

CVAE Home Economic students explore varied job opportunities

By Sandra Ramirez

Officer Hernandez graduated from Floydada High School in 1983. She attended South Plains College as a fashion merchandising major. Then she decided to become a police officer because people said she couldn't do it because she was a Hispanic woman. She showed them, by graduating from South Plains College with an associate degree in law enforcement.

She was hired from 300 applicants. She then went through 16 weeks of police training at the Lubbock Police Academy. She told us about the physical training and the psychological training they went through. She looked trim and sharp in her dark blue uniform as she described what beginners do to earn $22,000 a year with the LPD.

She told us about insurance, vacation and retirement benefits. She is furnished five uniforms. She said you do not have to go to college, but it gives you an advantage over other job applicants.

She told about the low educational backgrounds of the gang members in Lubbock. They were started by drug dealers from California, she said.

Officer Hernandez was introduced by her sister, Sarah Hernandez. All of Mrs. Joyce Williams classes and Mr. Dale Smith's classes heard Officer Hernandez speak in the CVAE-Home Ec room at Floydada High School. Officer Hernandez reminded us to keep a clean record in life.

We also had a guest speaker Monday, Feb. 24. Mr. Gail Ballou told us of the opportunities in insurance work. He said you do not have to go to college but must be willing to study at all the seminars and workshops to keep up with new laws.

He said any girl who is at least 18 years old can apply to an insurance company for training. After passing the state exam and paying $140, you will be teamed with an experienced agent for several weeks. He told us listening skills are as important as speaking skills in selling. Every two years you have to pass the test again to renew your license.

He asked how many in the class would like to earn $75,000 to $90,000 a year. Several held up their hands as he urged us to think about insurance sales as a career, limited only by our over ambition.

SPC announces spring PTK initiates

South Plains College's chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, a national honor society for students in community and junior colleges, recently held its spring induction ceremony, tapping 41 SPC students.

The bi-annual induction ceremony honored students who are among the most outstanding college students in the nation, according to Dr. Marvin L. Baker, SPC president.

"Since the first chapter of PTK was sponsored in 1959, we have seen the organization grow substantially with chapters throughout the United States and abroad," said Dr. Baker. "This honor society is uniquely ours because it originated in American community colleges."

PTK was first instituted at Stephens College in 1910 as the Ladies National Honor Society. It wasn't until 1924 that men were allowed to join.

The 1992 spring initiate for SPC's Kappa Mu chapter from Floydada was Grant Stovall.

Sharon Scott assistant professor of psychology and sponsor of the SPC chapter of PTK, says that the honor society opens many doors of opportunity for scholarships for the students who are inducted.

Kappa Mu is organized by co-sponsors Julie Johnson, instructor in speech and former PTK national president, and Randy Rowan, instructor in history.

According to Scott, community college graduates who are members of PTK are recruited heavily by four-year schools and receive outstanding incentives to attend those colleges and universities.

"PTK is an excellent vehicle to help these students gain academic scholarships on the university level," says Scott. "The experience and prestige they gain in this outstanding society will provide them many leadership opportunities in their educational careers."

To be eligible to become a PTK initiate, SPC students must be enrolled in at least 15 semester hours of study and maintain a minimum grade-point average of 3.25 (B+).

R. C. Andrews fifth graders go for the gold

By Stella Benjamin

R.C. Andrews fifth grade students participated in Academic Olympics Thursday, Feb. 13. They were divided into five teams which consisted of the Freedom Fighters, Iron Eagles, Rough Riders, Stars and Stripes, and the Fighting Patriots.

In Social Studies, students did research on great Americans. In Reading class, they were asked to use their dictionary skills to arrive at the correct answers, and they also did some fact and opinion work. Math students worked diligently on problem solving. Classification was the skill practiced in Science. Language class competed by categorizing nouns.

At the end of each period red, white and blue medals were bestowed on first, second, and third placer winners of each class. Every child in fifth grade was declared a winner at some point during the day. Results were posted in the hall on a decorative scoreboard keeping everyone's interest high.

At 3:15 an awards ceremony was held in the school cafeteria. It was a delight to have several parents in attendance.

Third place bronze medalists were the Stars and Stripes. Each team member was congratulated for his or her efforts and given a special packet of candy tied with a bronze ribbon. They were also honored with a free coke coupon from My-T-Burger.

Second place silver medalists were the Rough Riders. Each winning girl and boy received a special packet of candy fastened with silver ribbon. Also, Pay-n-Save donated a package of candy bars for each team member.

Recognized as first place gold medalists were the Fighting Patriots. They were awarded special packets of candy laced with gold ribbon. In addition, Dairy Queen provided tokens for ice cream sundaes.

Afterwards, ice cold fruit punch was served to parents, students and teachers. Specially designed and frosted U.S.A. cookies were enjoyed by everyone.

We commend all fifth graders for their enthusiasm, hard efforts put forth to achieve academically, and great sportsmanship.

We offer our sincere appreciation to the aforementioned businesses of Floydada who helped make our Academic Olympics a tremendous success.

A. B. Duncan Elementary holds third annual Heart Health Fair

The third annual Heart Health Fair took place this week at A.B. Duncan Elementary during physical education classes. The students enjoyed listening and participating in four centers which included: a demonstration on CPR by local paramedic, Mike Reeves, an exercise center, the "Home Alone" safety and first aid program from the Red Cross, and a heart healthy snack center.

The CPR center included a demonstration of current CPR techniques on the Resus-Annie dummy. Students watched as Mike Reeves performed the breathing and heart massage, and then the students were allowed to try the heart massage for themselves. Critical safety factors were stressed, as well as a firm warning not to do CPR on your friends or family and never without proper training. Jim Word then explained to students a situation he came upon when he drove up to the scene of a wreck and he and another friend performed CPR while waiting thirty minutes for an ambulance to arrive. They were able to save the woman's life.

At the "Home Alone" volunteers explained some simple first aid and safety procedures for children who might be left at home by themselves or left in charge of younger brothers and sisters. Some of the first aid techniques included putting pressure on cuts to reduce bleeding, "stop, drop, and roll" to put out fire on burning clothing, and the Heimlich procedure for choking. The 911 number was discussed and students were told what information would be asked so they could receive the help they needed.

The snack center was presented by Melissa Long and Helen Teeple. Healthy food choices were discussed and snack suggestions were given. The students were then given two snacks to taste. The snacks presented were something the children could make themselves at home.

At the exercise center, students took their pulse, then exercised to a tape. After completing several minutes of aerobic exercise, a second pulse was taken and students listened to their heart beat with a stethoscope. While they were cooling down, Billie Jordan showed the students a heart model which dismantled to display the four chambers of the heart.

The Heart Health Fair is coordinated by the school nurse, Penny Womack, and the physical education department at Duncan which includes Anne Carthel and Nora Collins. Margarette Word and Penny Womack were instrumental in securing volunteers.

With the generous help of volunteers, the Heart Health Fair once again enabled students to have a more clear understanding of the heart and its relationship to the body.

Volunteers for this year's event included: Charlene Alldredge, Sandra Bradley, Edith Muncy, Melissa Long, Mike Reeves, Stacy Reeves, Jim Word, Alice Baker, Billie Jordan, Debbie Wiles, Elaine Clemmons, Karen Miller, Susan Green, Billie Campbell, Helen Teeple, Hope Warren, Julianne Cornelius, Jill Warren, Deedie Covington, Kelly Reddy and Judy Dunlap.

Understanding the importance of storing cold food properly

Take a peek in your refrigerator. Is last week's casserole still hanging around? Take a deep breath. Has the milk turned sour?

Don't play the guessing game when it comes to food freshness. Even a spoonful of spoiled food can make you the loser.

"Your refrigerator and freezer are home for your perishable foods, so it should always be kept clean," said Mary Barnes, M.S., R.D., dietitian at Methodist Hospital. "Regularly wipe shelves, doors and seals with a mild soap solution and rinse with baking soda and water. Throw out spoiled food, using your senses of sight and smell to test questionable food. Never taste it."

Earnes advises you to throw out:

* Milk and other dairy products that have reached their expiration date,

* Meat or fish that is slimy or has a strong odor,

* Cottage cheese if it has a glistening film, and

* Leftovers that have been in the refrigerator for two to three days. Freeze leftovers if you don't plan to use them within that time.

"When storing foods, don't overcrowd compartments because air must circulate to keep foods fresh," Barnes said.

For safe food storage, set the temperature of your refrigerator between 32 and 40 degrees Fahrenheit and your freezer at zero degrees Fahrenheit or lower.

How lucky we are, despite drawbacks

By Will Martin

I think it is natural for people to complain about what we don't have or maybe we think we don't look as pretty as Jane Doe or Jack Sprott is richer than we are and many other things we wish for.

What I wish to do in this writing is to tell many things we now have that we did not have materially during much of my lifetime, which is 83 years last November. Of course, I did not begin remembering things or happenings until I was 3 or 4 years old.

One reason I remember as well as I do has been pure luck. One other thing was that I wanted to see something that I had never seen before. I wanted to try and see how it was made, if I could, and what made it tick or operate. This was if I could jerk loose from Mama's coat tail. She did not want me to damage other people's property.

Most children in my young days were taught to not bother other people's property as they are allowed by their elders these days. This is my observation, and opinion. Everyone else has the right to see things as they care to.

I shall first try to tell of things now in use in the kitchen that are a great improvement over things for the same use in the olden times. Now we have the electric stove, or natural gas cookstove. We also have the latest thing, the microwave oven that has more improved things that I can't name. Of these three things when you get things ready to cook, all you have to do is turn a knob, switch or what not and you are cooking and will soon have a meal ready.

In my younger days we had to kindle a fire in the cookstove and keep it stoked with either cowchips, wood or coal.

There are many things such as toasters, food choppers of various uses and sizes that are run by electricity. When in my day we had a sausage mill, coffee mill and some folks had a sausage stuffer, all that had to be powered by hand power.

The thing that takes my eye is the automatic washing machine and clothes dryer, both of course are electricity powered. In the old days, wash day was certainly workday. Build a fire with scrapwood under an old iron pot about 2/3 full of water. Fill the pot with clothes and lye soap. When the clothes boiled pretty good take them out, put them in a tub partly filled with water. Take rub board and go to work. When we thought the garment was clean, we would run it through a hand turned wringer into a tub almost full of clean water, slosh the clothes up and down until the soap was out, pick each garment and run it through the wringer again. After the clothes were rinsed clean we take them outside, hang them on a wire clothes line and secure them with clothes pins.

I could name other labor saving things this day in time, but I am sure most of you ladies could name many more ways to save labor and time than I can. I am sure most of you people can see that I am just trying to show how much easier and quicker everything is done now than in the earlier days of other people of those days of the past.

Let us go to other parts of the home. I forgot to mention that people of means had linoleum on the kitchen floor while we other poorer people had a bare floor, that we washed it off with lye soap water and then rinsed it off with clean water. The other parts of the house were done the same way. We sometimes had braided rugs that we put beside the bed to keep our feet warm. In the front room we usually had a large rug that we sometimes took outside and threw across the clothes line and beat the dirt out with a wooden paddle.

People of good means usually had nice carpets that almost reached the four walls. Some of their floor covering was imported from expensive places overseas. The chairs and other furniture were nice, but I don't remember seeing any stuffed chairs or recliners. The so called better fixed people had pianos and sometimes mighty well decorated organs. While some of the common people had more cheaper organs that made as good music as any. The well to do had high posted beautiful bedsteads of wood while the common people had iron beds generally. All classes had stand tables and some people had tables that were for book cases and some were designed to be used for a desk.

I have to correct a mistake. The imported carpets were hung on the clothes line by a maid or some other worker. They were paddled until clean by a store bought paddle shaped somewhat like a tennis racket.

Now let us go to the farm.

I suppose the first grass was broke out with a walking plow usually pulled by three horses or mules. This was very slow, it took all day for a good stepping team and a tough man or stout boy to walk over three or four acres in a day.

Later they had two disk sod plows and in some parts of the plains after the steam engine came in they had four or five disk breaking plows. I think we will find that most everyone has wanted to do things more faster and easier.

Many times some things are slowed down and are discarded completely for the reason they have found a better way to do the job.

I have often said the two main reasons that things went forward so well on the farm and in most everything else was for love of money and laziness. Just look how we quit the walking plow and went to the riding cultivator and go-devil. The hoe gave way to the commercial weed killer.

Tractors soon took the place of horses and mules both in wheat farming and row crop farming. About the first row crop tractors were two row tractors. Then larger tractors were made and we had the four and six row machines. I don't know how large they are now.

In my day we did not have any protection from the weather. Only some farmer might rig himself up a shade to keep the hot sun off in the summer time. My understanding is that the tractors now have closed in cabs, air conditioned and with radios, just like the modern pickups. No matter how cold or hot they can plow if the ground is not too wet.

The men I last worked for would let me off if it was freezing weather. I think that was because we didn't have anti-freeze in that day and they didn't want a busted radiator. For my part they figured I could have an overcoat, overshoes, gloves and a knit cap.

In those days wheat oats, rye and such like were the main grain crops that had to be harvested with broad cast binders. The bundles were put in shocks to cure until the steam powered thresher came through the country with horse powered bundle wagons to haul the shocks to the thresher.

Later people quit the steam engine and began using gasoline power.

The header or push binder came next still using the same thresher. Next came the combine that was improved over the years but still using the same threshing principal. They invented the corn gathering attachment to work on the combine. The modern tractors and other things are much larger than those in my time. A man can cover about four or five times as much as we could cover in the early days. One man can work five or more sections with the help of more tractors and men. Farms are larger, in the early days 1/2 section of land was a big farm with two or more hired hands.

The cotton stripper is the best labor savor that I know of. People in early days had a long canvas sack, pulled the bolls off the stalk by hand and filled the sack and weighed until they got about 2000 pounds for a bale, it depended how good a person was as to how long it took him or her to pull a bale. Oh many aching backs and sore knees.

I could tell many more of the changes in my lifetime, some that seem to be good and others not so good.

The history of the Roman Empire looked so good at first but look at the great fall in the end. Other Empires in history only lasted so long. We think we are wiser and know how to not make the mistakes the ones of old did. We of today should have the knowledge of all time. But do we have the wisdom to go with the know how.

In everything you do put God first and He will direct you and crown you with success.

New I-9 form affects hiring practices of all employers

By Sandra Avant

Whether hiring one person or 1,000, all employers will be affected by changes in the new I-9 form released recently by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The previous I-9 form, a part of the Immigration Reform and Control Act (IRCA) of 1986, mandated that all employers verify employees' legal right to work in this country.

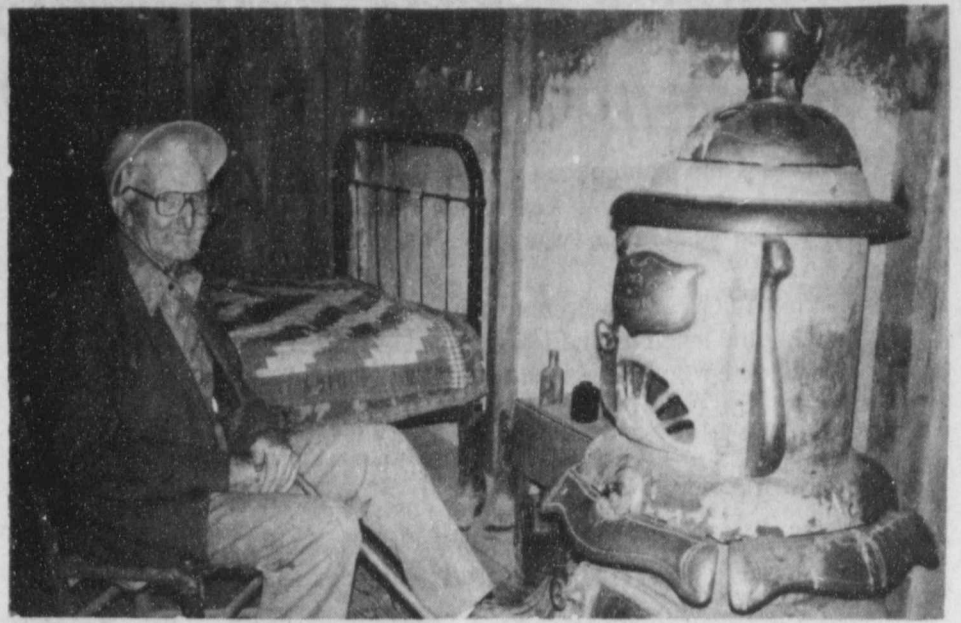

"Probably the most pertinent change in the revised form is the increased emphasis on informing employers about the anti-discrimination provision of the law," said Dr. Dick Edwards, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The new document carries this anti-discrimination notice: "It is illegal to discriminate against work eligible individuals. Employers CANNOT specify which document(s) they will accept from an employee. The refusal to hire an individual because of a future expiration date may also constitute illegal discrimination."

"When the law was being debated in 1986, many in Congress expressed great concerns that the citizenship requirement would discriminate against Hispanics and others," Edwards said. "Unfortunately, these fears turned out to be well-founded."

According to Edwards, a survey showed that indeed 18 percent of the employers who described their hiring practices were being discriminatory. In Texas, this percentage was 28 percent — the highest of any state surveyed under this particular law.

However, changes in the new form should help prevent discriminatory practices, which were found to be mostly unintentional, Edwards said.

WILL MARTIN

Suggestions offered for preparing lawn, garden

February is now upon us and spring is just around the corner. A few minutes of well planned time now will yield wonderful results later this spring and summer.

1. Now is the time to prune your rose bushes. Prune all BUSH roses back to 24" to 28" above ground. Remove all weak canes to encourage vigorous growth of the healthy canes resulting in more beautiful blooms! Wait to prune climbing roses until after they have bloomed. Climbers bloom on second year wood, which means that if you prune them now, they will not bloom this year!

2. If you have had trouble growing plants such as tomatoes and petunias in the past, you should consider treating your planting area with a fumigant this year. Verticillium and Fusarium wilt, also known as "leaf curl" or "wilt", have been a major problem in the past. These diseases over-winter in the soil from year to year. This makes it almost impossible to grow certain varieties of vegetables and blooming annuals in your favorite growing spots. A soil fumigant will help eliminate infectious organisms, weed seeds and insect eggs. It is important to plan ahead...you will need to wait four to six weeks before planting after applying a soil fumigant. This procedure is safe, easy and inexpensive.

3. February is the perfect time to start thinking about pre-emergent weed control. Preventing weed seeds from germinating now will eliminate digging and spraying mature weeds later. Use crabgrass preventer and a lawn food containing TEAM on cool season grasses such as fescue, bluegrass, etc. On Bermuda grass lawns, use a special weed and feed preparation. If you wish to apply the fertilizer separately, there are a number of products containing only pre-emergent herbicides. Some of these herbicides include Dacthal, Betasan and Balan. Expect a bumper crop of weeds this year due to the abundance of moisture during the fall and winter months. Treat now or pay later!

4. How are those houseplants doing?

Are you aware that nearly 90 percent of all leaf drop on houseplants is due to overwatering or inadequate lighting? If you have yellow leaves on your plants, chances are, a lack of light or too much water is your problem. Also...now is a good time to check your plants for spider mites. These insects are tiny and hard to see with the naked eye. Use the following method to determine whether or not you have these uninvited guests: Shake your plants gently over a white piece of paper. Circle any specks of dirt or dust with a pencil. If the specks move, you have company! Ask for a red spider mite spray or Kelthane to control these tough little critters.

5. As a reminder from January: A. Finish up pruning those trees and shrubs this month. Always use a pruning sealer to reduce the risk of disease or insect infestation in your trees and shrubs.

B. Spray fruit trees with a sealer or dormant spray to kill overwintering diseases and insect eggs.

The form also was revised to clear up any question as to which documents would satisfy the identity and authorization requirements.

"What many employers would do is ask to see one of the several documents listed on the old form as being acceptable," he said. "If an applicant did not have it, the employer would not hire the person, when in fact, there were many other acceptable documents not listed."

The new form does not give a specific list, but a separate, expanded list that employers can use to match up the documents they are given by applicants.

Another change on the I-9 is the addition of a third section, which deals with reverification of temporary documents. The old form requested an expiration date, but there was no place on the form to show that employers had reverified these documents. Now, if a person lists a document with a temporary expiration date, there's a place to update it. Also, if an employee leaves but is rehired, the employer only has to fill in the rehiring date if the original I-9 form is still on file.

* Complete the I-9 form after an offer of employment has been made. In the past, many companies would ask only certain applicants to fill out I-9 forms prior to being hired because they felt others would not have the proper documentation. Not having all applicants fill out the I-9 form at the point of application could be deemed discriminatory.

* Allow the employee to decide which documents he or she wishes to provide for work authorization and identification. Do not ask to see a specific document (driver's license, Social Security card, green card, etc.). Refusal

Lockney's Grace Fellowship Church hosts Spring Revival

Grace Fellowship Church, of Lockney, will host their Spring Revival March 8-11, led by the Rev. Alan DeBoer.

DeBoer is planning a three day revival but is leaving the length of the revival open. "I will keep on going with the revival if the Spirit wills it," said DeBoer.

Nighttime services will begin at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Though the messages may be subject to change, topics could include: Spirit Filled Living, Real Disciples, How to Handle Adversity and Being Ready For the Lord's Return.

Bro. DeBoer is currently a pastor of Community Bible Church in Pagosa Springs, Colorado. He has also served as pastor to Gospel of Grace Church in Hooker, OK; Calvary Bible Church in Henderson, NE; and Crestview Bible Church in Hutchinson, KS.

A farm boy, DeBoer was raised in South Dakota, and sensed the call of God to be involved in ministry as a boy of 11-12 years old. Raised by godly parents, he trusted Christ as Savior at 6-7 years old.

DeBoer attended Sioux Falls College for two years and Grace College of the Bible for three years. Five years of seminary training was completed at Grace Theological Seminary, a sister school theologically to Dallas Seminary.

He has been married to his wife, Sharon, since 1969. They have three children, ages, 19, 11 and 2.

DeBoer said, "I was called and am committed to teaching the Word of God in helping people to come to a practical understanding of their identity in Christ and the difference that can make in their walk with the Lord. So many people do not understand the value they have before God in the Lord.

"Recently I have come to understand the significance of personal worship and how that is the motivating factor in understanding who God is and what God desires. I desire to motivate people to prayer, not by words but through discovery of a meaningful relationship with our Father."

Grace Fellowship Church is located at 211 N. Main (across the street from Lockney General Hospital). The public is invited and urged to attend this exciting revival.

Rev. David Hartman receives St. Mary's Service Award

Rev. David Hartman, son of Mr. and Mrs. M.W. Hartman of Lockney and a graduate of Lockney High School, recently received a Service Award from St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock. Hartman is a Chaplain at the hospital.

The Values in Action Awards were established by the St. Joseph Health System Board of Trustees to recognize and honor individuals for outstanding contributions to the health care ministry. The awards are given to persons whose professional efforts and personal examples stand out.

The following was printed in the St. Joseph Health System Grapevine: "A commitment to service that permeates not only his career, but his personal life and ministry as well, characterizes the Rev. David Hartman. Since joining St. Mary Hospital's Pastoral Care staff in 1988 Chaplain Hartman clearly has exhibited a willingness to serve behind the scenes - at the hospital, in his church and in his community.

David made a commitment to the ministry at the age of 16 and ordered his entire life around that decision. He received a Bachelor of Science in Religious Education from Hardin-Simmons University in 1960 and a Master of Religious Education from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1969. After serving more than 25 years as a minister in various churches throughout Texas David entered the Clinical Pastoral Education program at Methodist Hospital.

"I had done some volunteer work as a hospital chaplain at University Medical Center and I knew I was ready for a ministerial change," David said. "I relied on his Divine guidance and the door opened for an educational opportunity in chaplaincy."

David's quiet, unassuming nature speaks volumes about his ministry, drawing as little attention to himself as possible while accepting whatever tasks and challenges come his way. Assigned to St. Mary's Critical Care and Medical/Surgical Units, David is challenged with the task of ministering to the hospital's most critically ill patients and their families.

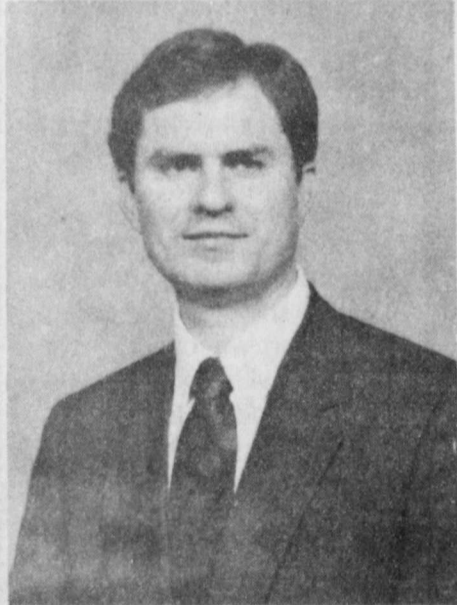

David enjoys working with families in critical situations. "It is very fulfilling to know that I have made a difference. When someone is lost or isn't quite sure about the next step in a tragic situation, the least amount of encouragement is very powerful," he said.

"People don't remember all the words, but they remember that you were there," he added. "It's a good feeling to know that you have helped."

David's outreach efforts within the hospital include an assortment of educational programs. He has made presentations to Lubbock ministers and numerous hospital departments about the role of pastoral care in the healing process. David also taught a course about dealing with death and dying and the psychosocial aspects of critical care.

Few know the ministering David conducts on his own time to help those in need of a caring touch. One of his special ministries is the Hospice of Lubbock, through which David recently completed the bereavement training required to participate on a hospice team caring for the terminally ill.

"My biggest reward is knowing that my life makes a difference," smiles David. "It's important to remember that you are not going to change the world, but you can make a difference."

Price Risk Management workshop is scheduled

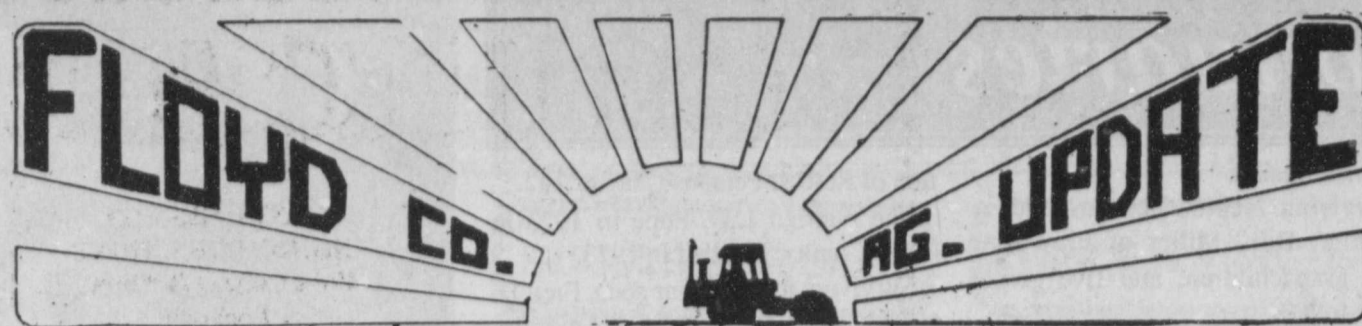

By Mike Mallett, CEA-Ag.
A farmer may not be able to control price, but he can control how and when he prices. Market information and price reduction tools can provide valuable assistance in timing pricing decisions, in marketing, and production planning.

To help producers make the most of their products at the market place, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will hold a two-day workshop on March 26-27. Training will begin at 9:00 a.m. and conclude at 4:00 p.m. each day.

Cost for the two day workshop will be $50.00. The registration fees cover workshop materials and catered meals for each day of the program. Spouses are encouraged to attend at no additional charge.

This workshop will be conducted at the Lockney Community Center in Lockney. The training will feature cotton as the commodity of study. REGISTRATION IS DUE BY MARCH 16.

For additional information call the Floyd County Extension Office at 983-2806.

Plant Stress and Water Conservation

Program completion close at hand

The next step toward completion of the Plant Stress and Water Conservation (PSWC) Laboratory and Research Program is close at hand. Unfortunately many people don't know exactly what the program is all about even though it has been in the works for well over twenty years.

The PSWC program embodies two of the biggest factors limiting crop production on the High Plains, temperature and water stress. According to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers once construction of the laboratory has been completed area producers will have another modern research facility they can look to for answers.

The work of unlocking the mysterious effects of temperature and water stress on plants has already begun, even though the facilities have not yet been completed.

In January of this year four research projects were approved for funding by the Institute for Plant Stress Research.

"The projects that have been approved for funding by the Institute for Plant Stress Research are the first to receive funding directly from the Institute," explains Robert C. Albin, Director of the Institute for Plant Stress Research. "The addition of these projects brings the total number of ongoing projects to eight, four of which are being funded directly through the USDA."

Newly funded research projects that will receive funding are:

- * "Optimizing Plant Density for Maximum Water Use Efficiency", Dr. Dan R. Krieg;
- * "Molecular and Biochemical Analysis of Mechanisms by which Cotton Fibers Adapt to Cool Temperature", Dr. Candace H. Haigler;
- * "Persistence and Regrowth of Sainfoin as Influenced by Root Metabolism-Temperature Change Relationships", Dr. A.G. Matches; and
- * "Effect of Low Temperature on Cotton Photosynthesis", Dr. A. Scott Holaday.

Current activity within the program is being focused on three areas of research. They are genetics, breeding and molecular biology; biochemistry and physiology; and climatology, soil science and cropping systems. The research is the culmination of many years of preliminary work to get the project started.

Initial work on the program began more than 20 years ago with feasibility studies and planning by the Federal Government. The decision to locate the laboratory in Lubbock was made in 1979.

Twelve years later a comprehensive program has been put in place that involves the integration of scientists from the USDA's Agricultural Research Service, Texas Tech University and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Actual funding for the first phase of construction of the laboratory facilities was approved only two years ago.

In 1990 $500,000 was appropriated by Congress to begin building Phase I of the laboratory, actual construction of the initial facility is expected to begin in April of this year.

Congress approved another $600,000 in 1992 to complete architectural plans for Phase II, the main laboratory facilities.

As design work continues according to plan the Institute for Plant Stress Research is now ready to request the funds to complete the research facilities. This year Congress will be asked to appropriate $12 million for the construction of the main laboratory facilities. The appropriations request for this phase of construction has been lowered through the closer integration of existing Texas Tech facilities and a modification of the program's priorities.

Government appropriations for the PSWC program to date have totaled over $8.5 million.

"The PSWC program should prove to be a useful tool for High Plains cotton producers in the future," notes Donald Johnson, PCG Executive Vice President and member of the Institute for Plant Stress Research Advisory Board. "With the year to year occurrence of plant stress in our area due to either temperature, lack of water, or a combination of the two findings of researchers at this facility will be of great benefit to High Plains farmers."

Meeting set to discuss options in weed control

C. Mark Brown
Extension Agent-Entomology
(PM)

Crosby/Floyd Counties

A meeting, sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, will be held for Floyd and Crosby County ag producers to discuss options in weed control for field crops.

The meeting is scheduled for Thursday, March 5, 1992 at 9:00 a.m. until noon at Lighthouse Electric Cooperative in Floydada. Private applicators may obtain 2 CEU's at this meeting.

Speakers will include: Dr. Paul Baumann, weed scientist with a joint appointment to Texas Tech and Texas A&M Universities, and Dr. Brent Bean, Extension agronomist at Amarillo. Topics of discussion will include weed control in cotton, corn, sorghum, wheat, and CPR, weed control via chemigation, post-directed herbicide applications.

For further information, contact your local County Extension office.

Issues are major challenges for industry

National Cotton Council President Jack McDonald told Annual Meeting delegates that cotton's marketing loan has allowed the industry to build a production and marketing base several million bales larger than pre-marketing loan bases. He called on the industry to build the broadest possible coalition to maintain this progress and deal with trade, environmental, water and other challenges to future profitability.

In reviewing 1991, the Council president praised the industry on a near record crop that was harvested despite a drought in the West, flooding in the Mid-South and less than ideal weather in other regions.

U.S. production, McDonald noted, contributed to record world production and consumption levels of 91.8 million bales and $6.1 billion, respectively.

The Council president pointed out that 1991 marked the third consecutive year for near record U.S. offtake and yields, with cotton's share of U.S. mill fiber consumption rising to its highest level in 16 years.

He praised the obvious benefits of an aggressive market-oriented cotton program: larger crops supported by effective target price and loan deficiency payments, adequate supply of U.S. cotton for manufacturers, and increased supply of cotton moving through the processing and handling system.

McDonald singled out other accomplishments in 1991 such as passage of the important uniform assessment to support Cotton Incorporated's research and promotion program, disaster relief, and the technical corrections amendments to the 1990 farm law.

On the issue of trade, McDonald expressed extreme caution over the progress of the GATT negotiations and the potential impact on U.S. cotton. In particular, he said it is questionable if any tariff equivalent could be implemented and give the industry adequate border protection similar to Section 22 quotas. "If quotas are, in fact, converted to tariffs in a final agreement," said

McDonald, "we're hopeful that we'll get something for cotton that gives us at least an initial level of protection close to what we now have in quotas."

McDonald pointed to other parts of a potential GATT agreement as being counter-productive for U.S. cotton. He said the industry is concerned that any agreement would cause a substantial part of the U.S. cotton crop to be ineligible for future program benefits... unless the base level of domestic support is properly calculated.

In addition, he expressed continuing concern over the effectiveness of any GATT agreement and its fair treatment of U.S. cotton since other foreign competitors — Russia and China — aren't even signatories to GATT.

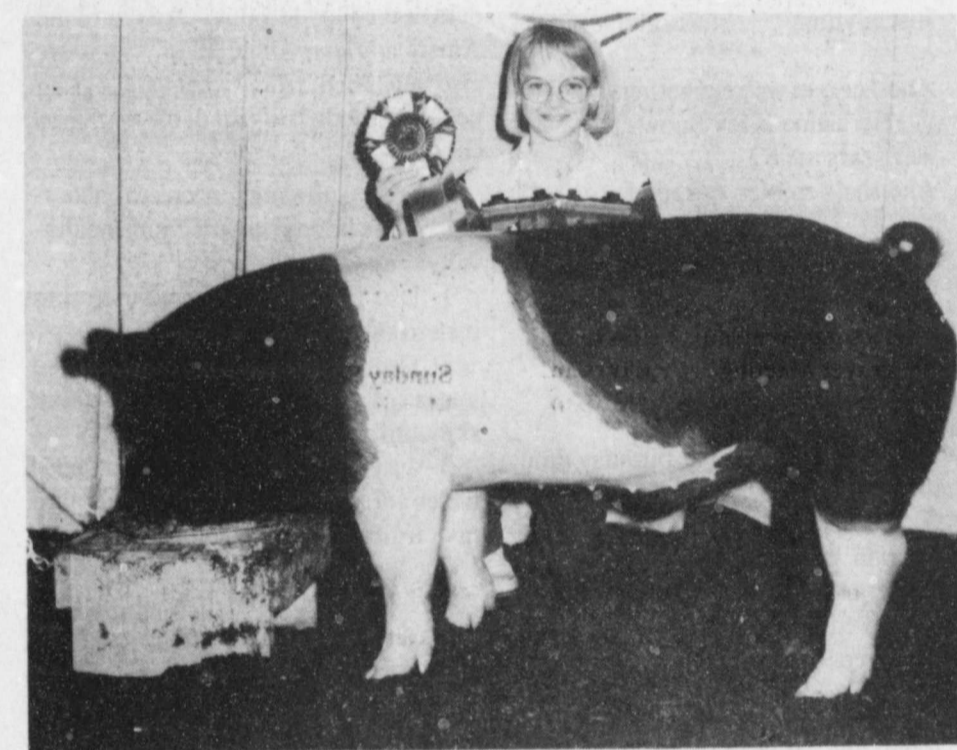

With a North American Free Trade Agreement a virtual certainty, McDonald said the Council will push hard to guarantee that every component of a textile product, including the fiber from which it is made, should originate in a NAFTA signatory country in order to qualify for trading under NAFTA rules.

McDonald said that the industry must continue to wage a strong battle in Congress to prevent any further reduction in farm program benefits. He noted that President Bush's latest budget proposal calls for an income test for farm program eligibility.

Another challenge, he said, is finding profitable markets for the increased production of cottonseed and cottonseed products. Seed crushing and storage capacity was severely strained in some areas during 1991 and whole seed feeding markets were saturated in growing areas.

McDonald called on a short-term action plan that intensifies efforts to make better use of the Cottonseed Oil Assistance Program, PL-480 and other government assistance programs. A longer term action plan calls for increased emphasis on research and market development.

Physician pesticide guide available

By Edith Chenault
A booklet aimed at helping physicians and others recognize the symptoms of pesticide poisonings is being distributed statewide this month by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The 40-page handbook, entitled "The Physician's Guide to Pesticide Health Hazards," is being furnished free to emergency room physicians, hospitals, clinics, and other medical providers located in regions with high numbers of agricultural laborers.

The guide also is being sent to Extension Service agents in every county, said Robert DeAnda of Uvalde, and Extension Service agent for pesticide safety.

It's easy to misdiagnose pesticide poisonings because the symptoms often can mimic other diseases such as common colds, flu, respiratory and skin allergies, alcohol toxicity, and neurosis, said Dr. Hector Gonzalez of San Antonio, who wrote the booklet.

Gonzalez, epidemiology administrator for the San Antonio Metropolitan Health District, said he became concerned with the problem while working with rural health centers in South Texas.

"The exposure (to pesticides) is there," he explained. "My intent was to put together a quick, easy and accessible reference for physicians and more importantly, to have them begin to realize it may be a cause of health problems in their community."

The 40-page booklet outlines pesticides classifications, types of pesticides and crops in each region of the state, sections on patient exposure and patient management, toxicological effects of pesticides, telephone numbers for resource agencies, and a bibliography of resource publications. Judy Henry, a senior staff epidemiologist at the Texas Department of Health, said the booklet should help increase the reporting of acute occupational pesticide poisonings. Acute poisonings have immediate symptoms and require prompt medical attention. The symptoms of chronic poisoning are expressed after many years of exposure.

Since the passage of the 1987 Texas Agricultural Hazard Communication Act, or the Right-to-Know Law, the Extension service has been providing educational programs that reach agricultural laborers, those who reside near agricultural communities, and members of emergency response teams.

The Health Education Training Centers Alliance of Texas (HETCAT) is working with the Extension Service to make the guide book available. They may be ordered through local county Extension agents.

Individuals who have been exposed to pesticides may obtain help by calling the National Pesticide Telecommunications Network, (800) 858-7378. The Texas State Poison Control Center also handles pesticide exposure calls at (800) 392-8548.

I-9 affects hiring practices

or request of specific documents is discriminatory because the applicant may not have these, but others that are valid. The employer should ask for documentation that shows work status and verification. Then, the person chooses what to show.

* Do not refuse any valid document because of a future expiration date. Another practice that could be discriminatory is failing to hire someone who has a temporary document that can be updated or made permanent.

* Do not ask for additional documents after a person has provided documents sufficient for verification. What the documents should show are identity and legal status in terms of the right to work. Some documents such as the "green card" does both. If one document does not show this, another must be presented. Rather than asking for specific documents, let applicants show what they have. If the documents are not appropriate, require that others be furnished. Do not ask for additional papers if the documents presented show identity and legal work status.

* Do not have a U.S. citizen-only hiring policy unless required by law or specified by government contract. For most jobs, a person does not have to be a citizen. If an employer implements a "citizen only" hiring policy this may be discriminatory unless it is specified by government contract.

* Keep I-9's in a file separate from an employee's personnel file. The I-9 form contains certain information not available on the application, so the form should be filed separately. If kept with the personnel file, some could imply that reference was made to the I-9 form and that information was used in a discriminatory manner.

"Employers who do not abide by the documentation provisions of the IRCA risk sanctions that range from $250 to $5,000 to imprisonment," Edwards said. "Penalties for violating the anti-discriminatory aspect of the law also can include hiring those discriminated against, plus back pay and perhaps even attorney fees.

Residents celebrate birthdays

By Lorilla Bradley

February is a special time
It brings us hearts and flowers ...
Birthdays also come along
To make some happy hours.

Mrs. Wells we honor
On this her special day
May everyone be better
In every sort of way!

Salutes to Mr. Willis
... He dates from 1905 ...
His life has been quite happy
As for the best he'd strive.

We greet our Mr. Jameson
... His friends all call him "Ed" ...
He always loves a visit
Just anytime ... 'nuff said!

Another one we're greeting
... Her name is Icy Snow ...
Her years are 87 ...
And she's so nice to know!

Let's serenade these people
To cheer them on their way ...
So join us in the singing
For a happy, happy day!

Thursday, Feb. 20, was birthday time at the Rest Home with ladies of the City Park Church of Christ hosting. The Hesperian photographer came for the "picture taking" after which everyone was ushered into the dining room with the honorees being seated at the "honor" table.

Each one wore a fresh carnation compliments of Williams Flower and Card Shop. Their places were marked with a special card. We are sorry Mrs. Weathers was unable to attend the party. Jo Bryant read a brief history of the life of the honorees after which the poem was read and all joined in singing the Happy Birthday song.

The "honor" table was laid with a white cloth and centered with a floral arrangement in colors of orange and golden yellow.

A delicious refreshment plate contained chocolate cake and angel food cake and complimented with a delightful fruit punch. Seated with Mr. Willis was Rene Turner and other guests included Lillian Sheek, Bessie Sauls and Betty Yeary visiting Mr. William Sauls. The next party will be Thursday, March 19, 2:45 p.m. You are encouraged to be with your friends and loved ones at their special time.

Teach your children "healthful eating habits"

Fast foods and snack foods can be healthful if you use them to teach your children good eating habits.

The American Heart Association suggests that healthy children age two or older eat various foods, but should not consume more than 30 percent of their total calories from fat.

"Children eat high-sweet, high-fat foods because they see them a lot at social events," says Lynn Marler, president of the Floyd County Chapter of the American Heart Association. "They are also rewarded with sweets for eating healthful foods. This sends a message to children."

Here are some suggestions to encourage your children to eat more healthfully:

1. Use ground turkey without skin instead of hamburger meat;
2. Use low fat varieties of cheese instead of regular cheese, and low-fat or skim milk instead of whole milk;
3. Vary how you use fruits and vegetables for your children, who may like raw fruits and vegetables more than cooked;
4. Help your children to read labels so they can find the baked goods that have unsaturated oils;
5. Limit high-fat foods with little nutritional value, so-called "empty calories" in your child's daily diet. This is better than forcing them onto a restricted diet that adults with weight or cholesterol problems might follow. In general, children need more daily calories than adults because they are growing. Limit the amount of fats, which come from animal products and tropical oils.

Local mammogram service accredited by Radiology College

The Mobile Breast Cancer Detection Unit of Odessa, Texas, which services Floydada has received the certification of the American College of Radiology Mammography Accreditation Program.

Mammography is an x-ray examination of the breast, which the American Cancer Society and other medical experts see as the best means for the early detection of breast cancer.

The program is voluntary and is designed to insure that women receive optimum quality mammographic examinations. The process is done through a peer review evaluation of the facility's staff qualifications, equipment, quality control and quality assurance programs, image quality, and breast dose. The accreditation must be renewed every three years.

The accreditation program was instituted because of the concerns of radiologists, other national medical organizations, and the public that qualified personnel perform and interpret mammograms and that dedicated mammographic equipment be used. The American College of Radiology received an American Cancer Society Control Grant which was used to pilot test the Accreditation Program.

Breast cancer will strike one in 10 American women. The American Cancer Society predicts that about 41,000 women will die of breast cancer this year. As there is no way to prevent the disease, early detection and treatment offer the greatest hope for survival.

The American Cancer Society recommends that women do monthly breast self-exams and have regular physical breast exams by a doctor.
