Welcome to the new (and different) "Gay Nineties."

It is now obvious there is at least one campaign promise Mr. Clinton intends to keep. There is at least one group he intends to satisfy completely and fully. He is determined that when he and Hillary leave office four years from now there will be at least one group that will sing their praises.

It is also obvious that Mr. Clinton was honestly revealing his innermost feelings when he wrote of his "loathing" for the American military. (That feeling, you may remember, was revealed in his celebrated epistle from Oxford, or someplace, when he was doing everything he could to avoid donning the uniform of those men and women who must now look to him as their Commander-in-Chief.)

By the stroke of a pen he can accomplish two things: he can demonstrate his utter contempt for our men and women in the military, and he can claim the everlasting gratitude and support of homosexuals everywhere.

On another level he will gain, or rather keep, the support of those politicians who themselves enjoy support from that part of our society who hate the military and love the queers, or the "gays" as they like to be called.

It is difficult to comprehend the mentality of a Commander-in-Chief who would deliberately embark upon policies and practices that can only be destructive of morale among people called upon to defend the nation. Clinton's campaign promise to "lift" the 50-year ban against homosexuals in the military can perhaps be understood in terms of a candidate who pandered to practically every special interest group in the country. By making that promise during the campaign he assured himself of strong support from Hollywood, from many in the media who share his thoughts about the "gay lifestyle," from that part of the liberal body politic who have consistently ridiculed and attacked those "cultural values" most Americans hold dear.

But to settle on that one issue as the one promise he will most certainly keep? It evidently has required no great soul-searching on his part to begin backtracking on other campaign promises. Why is this one so important to him?

We suspect Mr. Clinton has not heard the end of this matter. It is true of course that the men and women of our Armed Forces have sworn an oath to protect and defend, and all that. They must look to the President as their Commander-in-Chief. They must obey orders or leave the military. They will, of course, obey orders as long as they are in the military. But there is the Congress. One-third of all Senators and all House members come up for a vote before Mr. Clinton runs again, if he does.

Letters, telegrams, phone calls are relatively cheap.

State holds landfill permit hearing

By Alice Gilroy

FLOYDADA—A small crowd gathered Tuesday, at 1:00 p.m., in the Floyd County Courthouse for a public meeting concerning the city's application for a municipal solid waste facility permit.

The public hearing was conducted by Ann Scudday and Charles Stavley, of the Texas Water Commission, for the purpose of hearing any citizens comments concerning the landfill application. As part of the small community liaison, Scudday and Stavley will pass citizens comments on to the Texas Water Commission staff.

Scudday opened the meeting by telling those present that the city's application for the landfill had been declared administratively complete and is currently under technical review by the staff of TWC. "Once the technical evaluation is complete," said Scudday, "the TWC will issue further notice of the applications and the terms of any proposed draft permits."

Scudday asked for any comments from the citizens present and City Manager Gary Brown then spoke on behalf of the city of Floydada. He said, "We began the process 4 1/2 years ago to continue our landfill and we feel that we are in a good position to carry on a solid waste landfill."

"We will be asking for area exemptions which I feel we will easily qualify for and which will enable us to economically carry out this operation."

"We have greatly improved our landfill operation and we are currently working on reaching the necessary 40% reduction in the amount of trash we put into our landfill. We are now separating tires, brush and tress and white goods (stoves, refrigerators, etc.). We have companies that pick up the tires and the white goods."

"I know that there is still trash that will blow because it is impossible to keep trash from blowing on the plains, but we have improved those conditions. We do not allow dumping of certain items when the wind is blowing hard."

Doug Jeffrey, representing Mrs. Helen Hammonds also spoke to the commission representatives. Mrs. Hammonds had filed a lawsuit against the City of Floydada several years ago protesting the location of the landfill, as it adjoined her land.

"Speaking on behalf of Mrs. Hammonds," said Jeffrey, "we want the commission to be aware of our concerns about the future." Jeffrey complimented the city on the condition of the landfill now and called it "squeaky clean." However he stated that Mrs. Hammonds wanted to make sure that past conditions did not occur again.

Jeffrey read a letter to the commission outlining several areas of past problems with the landfill, as perceived by Mrs. Hammonds. Problems mentioned concerned blowing trash, dogs that came to dig through trash and stayed in the area and rats that "overflowed from the landfill area."

Jeffrey and Hammonds were assured by Scudday and Stavley that the landfill would be inspected regularly and those problems would be taken care of.

As there were no more comments from the citizens attending, the meeting adjourned at 1:35 p.m.

BY THE WAY!

BY ALICE GILROY

We have gotten so many calls lately asking how to write our state representative, state senator etc., and we finally got a list together for everyone.

You can find it in this week's paper. It's called—On Your Payroll. Cut it out and put it by your phone. Included in the list is the number to call to the White House, to register your opinion about different issues. Have fun! Make the phone company happy!

I guess everyone has noticed that we have a new state representative and a new state senator. Since they have begun representing Floyd County I have yet to go to any public forum or town hall meeting for the citizens of this county to meet their new public servants. I'm anxious for them to give us the opportunity to come meet them. I've read that Montford has been going to bat for the county on the paving project in northeast portion of the county. I hope it works out.

I got a note from Karla Leslie last week. She has changed jobs from Channel 11, KCBD, to Channel 28, KAMC. I have thoroughly enjoyed Karla's "South Plains Profiles" that she has done for so long.

She says that she is going to continue doing features on people and events in the South Plains and wants everyone to keep her in mind when they have an unusual or special "happening" on the South Plains.

She has always been very helpful with anything I have ever asked her to cover and she has been especially helpful in promoting Floydada and Punkin Days.

But just remember—before you call her call me first! We want to know about those unusual events and people too!

I have a piece of information to pass on to all you folks that believe we do not cover the sports in the two towns enough. I know there is probably only one or two of you out there that feel that way!

Anyway—we received this month's TPA Messenger (which is the newspaper published by the Texas Press Association).

And speaking of the "Gay Nineties." Mr. Clinton is evidently not the only politician who listens to the homosexual community. When Ms. Richards, our Governor, was searching for someone to appoint to the Senate seat vacated by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, press reports had her favoring Congressman Chapman, over in East Texas. As Congressmen go he wouldn't have been a bad choice. A sort of "moderate." But the state's tiny homosexual community objected. He had cast a few votes wrong, from their vantage point. So. Back to the drawing board. She chose Bob Krueger, the Railroad Commissioner. No objections, so it went through without a hitch. How Krueger feels about the current flap will be most interesting. My memory is that he too spent some time over at Oxford during one of our wars, but we know of no record of his having said he "loathed" the military. He said he had asthma. Foggy London seems a strange place for someone with asthma, and the condition did not prevent him from later running some very strenuous political campaigns. For the record, we are perfectly satisfied with his explanation, and also for the record, we think he has made a good Railroad Commissioner. Whether he will make a good Senator may soon be determined.

There is a story in the paper about a new computer program on the market that promises to do the work of a sports-writer. It's called Zybrainics Sports-writer and it analyzes sports statistics and other information. It writes a story based on the numbers. (See how easy we could be replaced!)

The program was described in a recent issue of a Nebraska newspaper. Evidently they have problems covering sports stories in Nebraska too.

The program generates forms designed to be filled out by coaches. A typesetter enters the information from the forms into the program. The program sorts the information.

"It can tailor the story to fit your needs, rewrite the story if you aren't satisfied with the first version and allows you to edit if you wish..." said Brian Kuhn in the Nebraska paper.

The programs—one for football and one for basketball—are geared toward weekly newspapers and small dailies that have limited staff to cover a large number of schools or teams. (Those aren't my words—they come from the TPA Messenger—this is a common problem).

Another plus of the program: It saves and compiles information, including box scores, win-loss tallies and conference standings. It even keeps track of important plays throughout the year.

"For example," Kuhn said, "if a fumble-rooskie was used twice in the season, it will write, 'For the second time this year, the Bulldogs used the fumble rooskie...'" (what's a fumble-rooskie?)

Anyway—we are going to look into it. The coaches will be thrilled if we give them more forms to fill out, but if it makes a mom and dad happy—then we are VERY HAPPY!

Speak when you are angry and you will make the best speech you will ever regret.

Bertrand named Field Editor of magazine

Taste of Home, "the magazine edited by a thousand country cooks", has named Cindy Bertrand of Floydada as one of the field editors of this new food magazine.

Selected from throughout the U.S. and Canada, the magazine's unique "field staff" of 1,000 editors—each a home-based, practical cook—will help procure each issue by contributing their favorite recipes, food ideas, tips and regional food related news. They will also critique each bimonthly issue and make suggestions for new features and improvements.

Taste of Home will have no ads. It will be supported solely by subscriptions. The magazine will feature practical recipes and food tips cover to cover provided by practical cooks from coast to coast. The 1,000 field editors were selected from every state in the U.S. and from every province of Canada. On the average there are about 18 field editors from each state and each province.

Bertrand will be listed on Taste of Home's masthead in each issue and likely will be personally featured in a future issue.

Field editors, such as Bertrand, were selected because they had demonstrated their capabilities as a cook by having a recipe or food feature published previously in another Reiman Publication magazine, or were personally recommended by a county home economist or one of the other field staff members.

Bertrand has lived in Floyd County all of her life. As the daughter of Fred and Carolyn Marble, she was raised in the South Plains community. She has been married to Jeff Bertrand for 8 years. They have two children, Elizabeth, 2 1/2 years old and Hallie who is 9 months.

"I was chosen as a field editor after I sent in a Chalupa Grande recipe for a contest in the Country magazine," said Bertrand. "They published the recipe with a picture of the dish. The picture was beautiful. Mine never looked like that."

"I got the recipe from my mom. My aunt and my mom would make Chalupa Grandes and take them out to the fields when the men were stripping cotton."

"After Country magazine published the recipe they contacted me and asked if I would be interested in being a field editor for a new magazine."

Each full-color 68-page issue of Taste of Home includes 32 recipes in a convenient "Clip & Keep" recipe-card section that allows readers to cut out the cards and slip them into their kitchen files.

The new magazine is the eighth publication launched by Reiman Publications, which already publishes Country, Reminisce and Country Woman.

Lots of ice and snow.
And so we need a party
To keep us warm, ye know!

Is a very lovely lady ...

A person we adore!

... Who counts from 1910 ...
We wish a happy birthday
With joys that never end.

... He dates from 1902 ...
He's ready for a party
With special things to do.

She plays a "winning" game of bridge
And that has brought some fame!

*****

Can tell a lot of stories
Of things he's seen and done!

The "82" she's counting
Are years that filled her "plan".

Site-based decision making implemented in Floydada

Site-based decision making is a new management function of school districts statewide. Implementation was mandated by the Texas Legislature through Senate Bill 1 (1990) and House Bill 2885 (1991). The intent of site-based decision making (SBDM) is to solicit suggestions, recommendations, and decisions from all elements of each district's educational community.

The educational community includes students, parents, teachers, administrators, and business/community members. The topic areas for input include: goal setting, school organization, curriculum, budgeting, and staffing patterns. Each topic area has the potential to impact student achievement and the Floydada ISD SBDM Committee focuses its efforts toward this purpose.

Floydada ISD submitted a plan for site-based decision making on September 1, 1992. Approval by the Texas Education Agency soon followed. Since September, District SBDM Committee meetings have been conducted on the first Monday night of each month in the Administration Building Board Room. Meetings begin at 7:00 p.m. and anyone is invited to attend.

The Floydada District SBDM Committee is composed of teachers, administrators, counselors, parents, and community/business members.

Teacher representatives and their respective campuses are: Glenda Livingston, Susan Kirk, and Beth Faulkenberry — A.B. Duncan Elementary; Bobby Rainer, Bettye Poole, and Linda Harbin — R.C. Andrews Elementary; Rozanne Bishop, Sherry Colston, and John Doerschuk — Junior High School; and, Robert Lockwood, Kelly McCormick, and Rex Holcombe — High School.

Two at-large teachers, Sheila Joiner and Mac Willson, respectively, represent the elementary and secondary campuses. Special education is represented by Dale Newton, and the vocational education representative is Kathy Becker. Elementary Counselor Kathy Jahay and Secondary Counselor Sheree Cannon are also members of the committee.

Principals Joe Christian and Ellen Enriquez plus Curriculum Director Grant Hambricht and Assistant Superintendent Jimmie Collins compose the administrative representation.

Adolfo Garcia is the designated business representative, and the District PTA representative is Gerald Wiles. The committee elected Grant Hambricht to serve as chairman of the committee and Glenda Livingston as vice-chairman.

Union to defend Homestead Law

The Texas Homestead Law, which has protected farms, ranches, and homes from seizure for over 150 years, has been essential to protecting property owners in both good times and bad. Delegates to the 89th annual convention of the Texas Farmers Union declared they would fight any new efforts by lenders and financial institutions to change the existing law which has worked for ever since the days of the Republic of Texas.

"This is one time when the old saying 'if it ain't broke, don't fix it' really applies," stated TFU President Joe Rankin. "The real estate bust of the 80's proved that even though thousands of people lost money and property, they were able to save their homesteads thanks to this law."

The TFU convention expressed concern about new attempts on behalf of lenders in the current session of the Texas Legislature to collateralize consumer and business loans against their customers' homestead equity. Under current Texas homestead law, equity loans are limited to first mortgages, home improvements and tax payments.

In addition, other attempts may be made to pressure elderly and retired homeowners to borrow money against their equity. "Given the problems we have seen in other states, we don't believe it makes any sense for lenders to have this option of obtaining collateral against Texas homesteads," Rankin said.

"At a time when banks are showing record profits, we believe the banking industry should concentrate on supporting economic recovery in Texas by providing financing for family farms and ranchers, businesses and commerce. There is certainly no evidence that we have seen that shows that raiding the home and farm equity loans will stimulate any type of economic activity," Rankin said.

Cotton Inc. marks decade in Far East

Cotton Incorporated recently marked the 10th anniversary of its Far Eastern marketing base in Osaka, Japan.

Dean Turner, Cotton Incorporated's vice president of international marketing, says, "The Japanese, Korean and Taiwanese mills were major importers of U.S. cotton in the 1970s and 1980s, so we set up an infrastructure to provide technical, economic and fashion services to the mills in this area which process U.S. Upland cotton."

U.S. cotton growers currently ship 70 percent of their exports to the Far East, with between 1 million and 1.5 million bales to Japan alone.
