New mayor told landfill permit may be worthless

By Juanita Stepp

FLOYDADA — City Manager Gary Brown reported to the Floydada City Council and new Mayor Hulon Carthel that the newly obtained landfill permit may be worthless during the regular monthly session of the council on Tuesday, May 18. According to Brown, "The federal courts have sided with the environmentalists and ruled yesterday that the EPA does not have the right to grant exemptions from rules it passes. This means that the arid exemptions we received for our landfill will be disallowed. Preparing an acre of landfill site for use without the exemptions would mean about $1 million in costs and Floydada cannot afford that."

Brown went on to say that the ruling will be challenged in court and that he had asked about an injunction or a dispensation to be allowed to operate as if the exemption was valid until such time as the appeals process is complete and a final ruling is established. "This would allow Floydada to go ahead and use the landfill expansion area until the matter can be hashed out in the courts," said Brown.

In light of this situation, Brown urged the council to approve the signing of an agreement with the Lubbock Landfill. According to Brown, this would give Floydada an option if the need arises for a place to dispose of city garbage. It would cost the city nothing and place them under no obligation unless Floydada sends waste material to the Lubbock facility.

Council members authorized the signing of the agreement on a motion by Burns with a second by Tipton. The vote was all in favor.

A standing room only crowd of about fifty people watched as the new mayor, Hulon Carthel, new councilman Dale Lawson and returning councilman Leroy Burns took the oath of office administered by city secretary Sharon Quisenberry and assumed their seats at the council table.

Burns was unanimously elected to serve as Mayor Pro Tem for the coming year. He will be available to act in the place of the mayor should the mayor not be able to attend a function or event. Motion for the action was made by council member Amado Morales and

BY THE WAY!

BY
GILROY

I knew I would never be ready for my son to be on a football team, but I never figured I would have reservations about T-Ball.

It's bad enough to think about amazons in shoulder pads running over him in front of a cheering crowd, but I just knew I wouldn't worry about 1st & 2nd graders.

Now don't get me wrong—there aren't any kids running over him—it's just that they look so big compared to my kindergarten son. Well actually he is tall for his age—but they still look so big.

Maybe it's not so much their size as it is that they seem to know what they are doing out there on the field. Brandon would just as soon visit with the out-fielders, shortstops or any member of the other team, than he would try and catch the ball and tag anybody out.

Every parent wants their kid to be the best player. I just want mine to notice the ball rolling up to his feet. I appreciate the fact that he is proud of himself when he catches the ball—but instead of stopping and showing it off to his mom and dad, I would just as soon that he throw it somewhere.

I've tried to help. The only problem is when I shout instructions to him I am always politely corrected by someone. I never seem to know what's going on either. Do you think he has inherited this problem?

I know one thing that he inherited for sure. A ball was hit past him at 3rd base. It went way-way-out and Brandon took off running. He ran and ran and ran. Then he started to walk. The walk turned into a stroll. The batter was on his way home when Brandon picked up the ball and started to stroll back to 3rd base.

I've never believed in running unless it was life or death. I've passed that on. I was trying to holler encouragement and instructions at our first scrimmage and my husband said, "Oh no—you're not going to be one of those kind of moms are you?"

I have no idea what he is talking about.

In all seriousness—I love watching these kids. I love the concentration on their faces when they're up to bat and I especially love the patient and understanding coaches. The coaches are making sure the kids are having fun and ONLY FUN. I appreciate that.

It's a wonderful life.

Congratulations to the graduating seniors at Lockney and Floydada High School.

It's hard to know what to say to all these young adults that they might remember later on.

I just want to remind you that you will find out as you get older and wiser you will notice that your parents are also getting older and wiser. Remember that your parents have already seen you through T-Ball, stock shows, basketball, baseball, football, band, UIL and the list goes on.

They've been there for you and tried to guide you the best they could. They've always hoped they could keep you from making the same mistakes they did. When they tried to keep you from those mistakes then you have knocked heads. You'll continue to knock heads. But if you're really smart, you'll swallow your pride and listen. Just listen. Truly listen. Then make your decisions. If you fall your parents will once again be there to pick you up.

God will also always be there to pick you up, and He is also someone who you should truly listen to. REALLY LISTEN.

My favorite poem is Footprints. I urge all graduating seniors to read it. It means more to me now that I've fallen a few times. I know that God has picked me up and carried me when I had no idea how I was going to make it from one day to the next.

Seniors—if you keep your eye on Jesus your life will be a happy one. Make Him your best friend. He will never be busy and He will want to hear from you everyday. Talk over your problems and share your good fortune with Him. He wants to be a constant part of your life.

I wish you all the best of luck and God Bless You.

HOMOSEXUALITY

Many of these people say they are Christians, but God says they are God haters. Their final end, if they do not repent and truly turn away from this wickedness, will be an eternal Hell. They cannot go to Heaven.

Space won't permit giving each Biblical reference entirely, so I thought you might like to know some of the Scriptural references on this subject so that you can see God's perspective on this matter.

Consider:
Romans 1:24-32; I Corinthians 6:9-10; I Timothy 1:8-10; Leviticus 18:22.

Leviticus 20:13 shows God's righteous judgement against homosexuals. King Jehoshaphat (I Kings 22:45, 46) dealt with homosexuals just like his father King Asa did. Note I Kings 15:11, 12. That government knew that homosexuals were against God's law, and purged the land of them. That was a righteous government.

Genesis Chapter 19 shows the wrath of God on the wicked Sodomites. It is from these wicked people (homosexuals) that we get the word sodomy today.

Have no part of this wickedness, always speak against it. Why should you remain silent about or speak for that which God is against?

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,
Memorial Day is fast approaching. It is a day that will mean different things to different people.

I have thought often of this day and Veterans Day. Of what they mean to me. My father served in WWII. On Memorial Day, I am reminded how fortunate I am that I have my father this day — that he was not one of the many casualties in that war.

On Veterans Day, I am thankful that he and others like him, found courage enough to stop atrocities across the ocean.

In a conversation with him recently, I voiced my opinion concerning the views of the White Supremists and Neo-Nazi groups. In their claims, they denounce that millions of people were murdered during Hitler's Reich. I am appalled that anyone could dispute the agonies suffered by so many.

My father reflected back to that time, almost fifty years ago.

The pain that played across his face was testimony that although the war had ended, the memories had not.

He spoke to me of the hundreds upon hundreds of bodies thrown in heaps that the Allied troops had to bury. This was only one incident.

As he told his story, my heart went out to him. What his voice didn't tell me, his eyes and face did.

Through the years, Dad has told us some stories of the war. But for the most part, he has kept his memories to himself — the worst ones anyway.

I cannot imagine going through what my dad did. I've wondered if I would be strong enough to handle the pressure, the fear, the horrors. But, to him, and the others like him, I want to say "THANK YOU!"

To everyone else — Remember, the wars may end, but the memories do not!
Sincerely,
Ronda Aull

Editor,
When the past presidential campaign was going on, I looked at those running individually trying to decide who to vote for. There were pros and cons to each one. One thing came to mind when I was looking over the credentials of each. My parents taught me that reputations were hard to build but easy to destroy. They are even harder to restore. They also taught me that it was important that people could trust and respect you because times come when just your word can make or break a situation. When I heard that Madonna was backing Clinton that wiped his reputation out.

The same is about to happen with Krueger. I have spoken with his office and I don't like what they are saying. Another strike against him is that the president is not only endorsing him, the White House is sending their top men here to bring about a smear campaign against Kay Bailey Hutchison. Just from what the president hasn't done and what he has done is enough for me to be against anyone he endorses.

If anyone has ears to hear let him hear

We now know that no district will be closed and we will continue to serve all the people of Texas in providing a good transportation system. There are many qualified people in the Department and even though some will be accepting early retirement, the work will continue."

This Department has a great history of doing a good job and it will continue to be a good place to work. Don't become overly concerned about some new faces in the Department. Continue to do your usual good job of getting the work done in a safe manner."

and act upon it. James 2:17 says, Faith without works is dead.

Lockney City Council hires two

By Juanita Stepp
LOCKNEY — Meeting in a called session on Thursday, May 20, the City Council of Lockney approved the hiring of two employees, one full time and one for the summer months.

Hired to supervise the operation of the local swimming pool for the summer was Janet Pyle. Pyle is a certified life guard and has certifications in first aid, life saving and CPR. She will be replacing Violet Cooper who has managed the pool the past several years.

The council also authorized the employment of Arsenio Martinez Jr. to fill the newly created third slot in the water and street department. Martinez will be a full time employee working year around.

Both positions had been advertised and the city received four applications for the swimming pool post and thirteen for the water and street department position.

 Danny Lambert met with the council to discuss a proposed building at the little league baseball park. Lambert told the council that the baseball association wanted to build a cinder block facility to house two restrooms, a concession stand and a storage area. Lambert stated that the building was needed to make playing at the field more convenient and to attract tournaments to the field. He explained that about 90 games are scheduled for the field this summer and that 150 to 160 kids ages 5 to 12 would be using the field.

Lambert stated that the labor for most of the work was being done by volunteers and the expense would be for the materials and supplies needed to erect the building, estimated at $5,000.00. Lambert said the baseball association could provide about $2,000.00 of the funds, possibly a little more, and that Caprock Feeders had pledged to match whatever the city was willing to donate up to $1,500.00.

Council member Rodger Stapp expressed the feeling that a city the size of Lockney could not be expected to provide all the extras that Lubbock or Amarillo could for its citizens and should probably be concerned with providing the necessities, not placing itself at liability for other items.

"I am all in favor of the baseball program," said Stapp. "In fact, I handled it for a while. I just feel that this is something the parents of the kids playing should be doing, not the city."

Council member Bill Anderson asked that the city vote to contribute a little above the amount requested by Lambert so that the baseball program not use all of its available funds for the building. A motion was made by councilman

Terry Jones that the city approve $2,500.00 in funds for the project and furnish the sewer line for the project. The motion also specified that the association could purchase materials and supplies under the auspices of the city to save the expense of sales taxes following a suggestion by Mayor Kenneth Wofford.

The motion was seconded by councilman J. D. Copeland. It was passed with four voting in favor of the motion, Jones, Copeland, Anderson and councilman Gary Marr. Stapp abstained, saying, "I am not against the project, I just don't feel it should be the city's responsibility."

Other items considered at the session included:

...Darlee Foster met with the council to discuss a possible subdivision west of Lockney. She asked about obtaining city annexation and city services for the area. Council suggested she proceed with a feasibility study and return with the information for further consideration.

...Discontinuing the roll-off boxes was discussed again. No decision was made at this time.

...Council members approved having the deck around the city swimming pool sealed again. This is a part of annual maintenance on the facility.

...Junk places around the city were discussed. Council members opted to begin seriously enforcing the current city ordinances dealing with the problems of old cars, piles of tires and just general junk.

Jackson and Adrian exchange vows

Shea Allis Jackson and Clay Brandon Adrian exchanged wedding vows in a double ring ceremony Saturday, May 22, at the First United Methodist Church of Lockney. The bride and groom were given in marriage by their parents, Donnie and Judy Jackson and Larry and Sandy Rae Adrian. David Ray Jackson, Director of Mimmerton Baptist Youth Camp in Clayton, Okla., and uncle of the bride, performed the marriage ceremony. Bro. Jackson had performed a similar ceremony 28 years ago for the bride's parents.

The church was decorated with silk spring flowers and ribbons of purple, shades of pink and teal. Silk ivy garlands and votive candles accented the stained glass windows. A large grapevine wreath with silk spring flowers hung from the balcony. Four gold standing candelabra and two gold crescents of white candles surrounded a gold arch at the front of the church. Guest registered in a bride's book hand covered with satin, pearls and lace, made by the bride's grandmother, Hazel Johnson.

The bride selected an elegant white taffeta gown. The traditionally styled gown featured a sweetheart neckline with sheer yoke and a jeweled wedding band collar. The princess bodice was accented with alencon lace embellished with pearls and sequins. A fitted basque waistline allowed the full ballgown skirt to float gracefully to the floor and sweep into a cathedral length train. The skirt as well as the train was adorned with alencon lace motifs that were embellished with beadwork. A candy box bow accented the back of the gown. Scalloped alencon lace finished the hemline of both gown and train. She chose a tiara of pearls and sequins to compliment the ensemble.

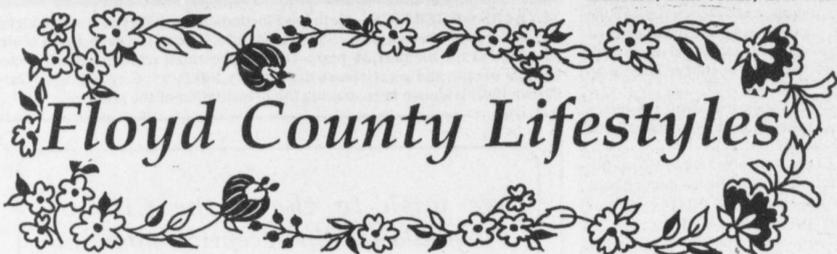

For her bouquet, the bride carried white flowers of gardenias, roses, casablanca lily, and stephanotis. Her something old was her great-grandmother's ruby ring, which had also been carried by her mother at her wedding. Something borrowed and blue was her maid of honor's sapphire ring. Her dress was something new and she had a lucky sixpence in her shoe.

The groom was attired in a black double-breasted tuxedo with white tie and cummerbund. His boutonniere was of stephanotis to compliment the bride's bouquet.

Debbie Mathis served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Lana Glasscock, Kasi Joiner, Erin Adrian, sister of the groom, and Adrian Lyde, cousin of the groom. Junior bridesmaid and candlelighter was Jill Wood, cousin of the groom.

Bridal attendants were dressed in floor length teal shantung suits accented with rows of matching buttons on the front and back of the jackets. They carried long stemmed spring flower bouquets of purple dutch iris, purple latrice, mauve astroemeria, lavender wax flower, pink gerbera daisies and a single pink veined caladium leaf bound together with wide multi-colored ribbon of mauve, lavender, and teal on a silver background.

Parker to receive T.E.A. award

Stephanie Parker, a teacher in the Canyon Independent School District, will receive an award from the Texas Educators Association (TEA) for the Early Learning Together Program that she has helped to develop.

The award will be presented to Parker and the Canyon ISD at the statewide Early Childhood Institute meeting which will be held in Houston in June. The teachers will also make a presentation of their educational model to fellow educators during a November meeting in Austin.

Parker is employed by the Canyon ISD as a kindergarten teacher and is an educational consultant for TEA. The program, "Early Learning Together", allows children between the ages of 3 and 6 to learn from and serve one another in a developmentally appropriate environment.

"ELT", launched a year ago in Canyon, has been awarded one of the 12 "Promising Practices in Texas Schools" by the Texas Education Agency. The program merges pre-schoolers with disabilities, four year old pre-kindergarten students and kindergarten students and has met "inclusion" goals currently being promoted by TEA. Canyon ISD and Sweetwater ISD are the first two districts in the state to offer the program.

According to Parker, "One of the more exciting aspects of 'Early Learning Together' is the way the children accept and assist one another. For instance, it is not uncommon to see a five year old kindergarten student who enjoys good physical health lending a hand to a three year old who has trouble walking and it is not uncommon for children who have delayed speech and motor skills to be "tutored" by others in a learning group. It is a reflection of the way society dropped." "Administrative and parental support and participation has been extremely positive," noted Parker.

Mrs. Parker is a 1979 graduate of Lockney High School and the daughter of Billy Joe and Jinna Sue Turner.

Harley Sadler's big tent in ruins as sudden wind scatters show effects

(Editor's Note: The following article was taken from the July 20, 1933 edition of The Floyd County Hesperian.)

Harley Sadler's first week under canvass in West Texas was a disastrous one. Jumping 350 miles west from Waco to Floydada to begin a season under the big tent after a winter and spring in play houses, the show was greeted by a first-night audience that was a most auspicious beginning.

But showers and one thing and another began happening early in the week, culminating in a disaster Friday evening an hour before show time when a sudden wind bearing down before a rain from the north tore up the company's tent and scattered effects of the show over two or three blocks with a loss estimated by Mr. Sadler at $7,000. The tent had a capacity of 1,600 persons seated and standing room for many more. Scenery sets were smashed by falling poles and tangled canvass and can be replaced only as property men with the show have time to make repairs and replacements.

Friday night members of the show company with a lot of volunteer helpers spent two or three hours gathering up scenery, costumes and other effects and storing them in buildings around town. Saturday most of the men in the show company spent repairing wall canvass, while Sadler ordered another top to meet him Monday for his engagement in Plainview.

But the valiant work of Saturday was practically wasted. No matinee show could be given as was planned and threatening clouds of the early evening

SPS asks everyone to "Watch Up" during outdoor activities

Ball fields are filling up; yard work is in full force; the skies are full of severe weather. All are signs of spring.

With the increase of outdoor activities that comes with spring, Southwestern Public Service Company reminds its customers to "watch up for safety."

One of the places where many electrical accidents occur is the farm, according to Bill Mullins, SPS Southern Division Safety and Claims Specialist. "What happens quite often is that people forget to look up when they're lifting irrigation pipe or other metal pieces," he said. "It's important to always 'watch up' and know where the electric lines are."

Mullins said that same warning applies to others who are on the job, particularly those who are working above street level. "Roofers need to be extra careful as they move equipment," he said. "Those trimming trees also have to be careful; that extra height could be just enough to get them entangled in lines."

Customers also need to be careful during severe weather that often occurs in spring.

"If an outage occurs at your home during a storm," said Mullins, "call your local SPS 'repair' or 'service' number listed in the phone book." SPS area control centers have extra employees on hand to answer the calls and to quickly dispatch SPS crews to correct the problem and restore service.

If you see a fallen power line on the ground, call SPS and keep people away from the line. Do not touch the line or anything it is touching, such as a car or fence, Mullins said.

Many of the service problems that occur during a storm can be blamed on fallen tree limbs or on lightning. Besides causing outages, lightning can also be dangerous to people involved in outdoor activities. If you are outdoors as a lightning storm approaches, remember that trees do not protect you from lightning, and in fact, attract it. Your best bet is to seek a location that is flat and barren.

Parents should take the time to caution their children to avoid electrical facilities when playing outdoors. Fly kites and model airplanes in open areas, far from power lines. If a ball is hit over a neighborhood substation fence, don't try to retrieve the ball yourself; call the electric company, Mullins said.

For additional information on electrical safety, contact your local SPS office.

May birthdays observed by residents

By Lorilla Bradley
 Spring has "sprung" all over ...
 By this we know it's May.
 And as for celebrating
 Let's have a happy day.

We honor Mrs. Benson
 ... She's adding up the years ...
 It's "96" she's boasting
 So let us give her cheers!

We greet our Mrs. Garrett
 ... Her parents named her May ...
 It's "93" she's counting ...

To her a happy day!

Mr. Hobbs we welcome ...
 ... His years are 83 ...
 He likes his friends to visit ...
 Stop by and you will see!

To cheer these lovely people
 Let's do the 'Birthday Song'
 So join us as we sing it
 And come out good and strong.

Thursday, May 20, was birthday time at the rest home with members of the City Park Church of Christ hosting.

Everyone was ushered into the dining room with the honorees being seated at the honor table. It was covered with a pale pink cloth and centered with a floral arrangement in shades of pink. Their places were marked with special cards and each wore a fresh flower compliments of Williams Florist and Card Shop.

Jo Bryant read a brief history of each honoree which was followed by the reading of the poem. All joined in singing the Happy Birthday song.

Seated with Mrs. Garrett were her daughters, Edith Muncy and Frances Hardin. Mr. Hobbs' visitors were his wife and other relatives, Frances Hobbs, Heather Hobbs, Holly, Meagan and Corbin Lee. We were most happy to have these visitors with us.

Delicious birthday cakes included iced chocolate, iced white and angel food cakes, complimented by a tangy fruit punch.

The next birthday party will be Thursday, June 17, 2:30 p.m. You are invited to attend.

Floydada Nursing Home Happenings

By Jo Bryant

Hi! Well here we are at the last week of May. A lot of action going on in May.

Monday started the week as usual with the Rev. Williams coming and sharing the word. Irene Wexler played the piano for us and Edna Patton, Ivola Walters and Deecota Odum always come and visit with the residents. The residents who painted ceramics were Luis Arrendondo, Knox Jameson, Lennie Willis, Ruby Hobbs and Mona Dunn.

Tuesday morning Mona Dunn treated the residents to donuts, they sure were good. The ladies from Companions 'n' Caring came and did manicures. Dolores Cannon came and fixed the ladies' hair and cut the men's hair too.

Wednesday the residents did a word game and also reminisced. Lennie Willis won the first Bingo. Mary Alice Davis assisted the residents with Bingo.

Thursday our birthday party was a good turnout, had several visiting family members. We appreciate the ladies from the City Park Church of Christ, Ruby Hartsell, Beulah Baker, Clarence Holladay, Gladys Lawson, Lorilla Bradley.

Friday, the Rev. Ralph Jackson came and gave the devotional. Joyce Lipham played the piano for us. Then on to Plainview on the bus ride. McDonald's treated them to ice cream.

The Floydada Nursing Home will have a booth Old Settler's Day. We will be selling caramel apples and popcorn balls. Come and support us! Also a friendship quilt, made by the residents, will be on display at Hale's Department Store.

Happy Memorial Day weekend.

Thought:

"Some of us don't lose our get up and go. We simply find a lot more enjoyment in lying down and waiting until the mood goes away."

Producers Cooperative Elevator holds 50th Annual Stockholders Meeting

The Massie Activity Center in Floydada was filled to capacity as stockholders of the Producers Cooperative Elevator gathered Tuesday night, May 18 for their 50th annual meeting.

The meeting was called to order by Carmel Eastham, president of the board of directors, and he welcomed those present. The invocation was given and guests were recognized.

The minutes of the 1992 meeting were read by Joe Jones, board secretary, and the members voted their approval with no corrections or additions.

Rita Moseley, CPA, representing the accounting firm of McMillan, McMillan, Moseley and Riddle, presented the audit report to the members. She reported that the cooperative was in good financial condition.

Jim Finley, chairman of the nominating committee, gave the nominating report. Larry Jones was re-elected to the board after a written vote by the members was counted.

Present board members include Carmel Eastham, president; Larry Jones, vice-president; Joe Jones, secretary-treasurer; Melvin Lloyd and Tom Pierce, directors.

Bob Vickers, manager of the cooperative gave the managers report. He read a brief history of the first fifty years of the cooperative and then he stated, "Producers has had another successful year as shown by the audit report."

He told those gathered that the elevator had received a record amount of wheat, milo and soybeans. He reported that the corn receipts were up, that the fertilizer department was also profitable and that the fuel department was continuing to improve.

Vickers introduced the employees and expressed appreciation for a job well done.

He closed the managers report stating, "To continue to have success in our next fifty years we will need the continued support of the producers and the dedication of the board of directors."

Drawings for prizes were held throughout the evening and the grand prize was won by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Norrell of Floydada.

In recognition of retiring Mayor Wayne Russell, the council voted to rename the Floydada RV Park in his honor. Motion was made by Morales and seconded by Burns. Russell will have the option to select the form of his name the park will bear.

Mayor Hulon Carthel instituted a new feature he referred to as "a new approach" to be included each month during the council meeting, a public forum.

Carthel stated that he wanted the general public to have a place to come and express their opinions, make suggestions or voice a complaint concerning city business. The forum would allow any one who wants a chance to speak to the council for a specified length of time. Four people expressed an interest in speaking and were recognized.

The new approach immediately ran into trouble with the comments being made concerning personal grievances against an individual councilman. City attorney Karen Houchin advised the speakers that they should contact their own attorneys to handle the matter and told them that a council member is a private citizen when not in a council session. She informed the speakers that the matter raised was not within the scope of city council business since the council cannot address private and individual problems.

Carthel stated that this was not what he wanted from a public forum. He indicated that future meetings would continue to have a public forum with subjects restricted to city business.

Other matters before the council included: ...Minutes from the previous meetings were reviewed and approved.

...Council members heard a presentation from Kay Howard of HOWCO concerning her proposal to administer grant funds for the city.

...Council members hear a proposal from Gary Traylor of Gary Traylor & Associates concerning the administration of grant funds for the city.

The Best That We Can Be In '93

By Therese Sims

The first senior in this week's FHS spotlight is Sara Hart-Ritchie. It is hard not to know who Sara is if you go to Floydada High School. Sara has attended school in Floydada for nine and a half years.

In high school, Sara has been active in band, in which she played the flute; spirit club, spirit committee and the decoration committee. On Sunday's you can find Sara reading her favorite comic strip, Nancy. In her spare time she loves to listen to Bryan Adams, Michael Bolton, and Garth Brooks. You can also find her reading, watching movies, or going out with her new husband or her friends.

Sara said that the things she would change about Floydada High School are all the people who start all the untrue rumors. She also said that Floydada High School needs to have more classes for the students so the students would have more opportunities, for the future.

In the future Sara plans to go to college and major in data processing. Good luck in all you do, Sara.

The second senior in this week's spotlight is Victor Mendoza Jr. Victor has attended schools in Floydada for 14 years. He loves to get the most out of his education, so it's easy to understand that his favorite subject in school is pre-calculus.

In high school, Victor has been active in football for two years. When he was asked what he liked best about Floydada High School, he smiled and said, the football team. He said that once you start Floydada High School it's hard to let it end. When asked what he would love to be he said a millionaire and a biologist. When he was asked who he admires the most he said his brother, Jay. He said that he would love to go to Switzerland and take all of his friends.

His plans for the future include attending college at South Plains and majoring in math. However, there is one thing that will not ever change about Victor, that is his sense of humor. Victor will always have big dreams and maybe one day he will be able to meet Axl Rose or Slash.

The last senior in this week's and year's spotlight is Micheal Gilliland. If you attend Floydada High School you definitely know Micheal's charm and his sense of humor. Micheal has attended Floydada schools for 13 years. In his four years at Floydada High School he has been active in football (4 years), Band (4 years) - Drum Major; he has played bass clarinet, contra bass clarinet, bari saxophone, and tenor saxophone; he's been in Boy Scouts, his church's youth group, National Honor Society, UIL One Act Play, baseball, and the UIL Science Fair (4 years). In the summer he helps out at his parents' print store as a typesetter.

When asked who he admires the most he smiled and answered Tian Younger, who is a fellow senior.

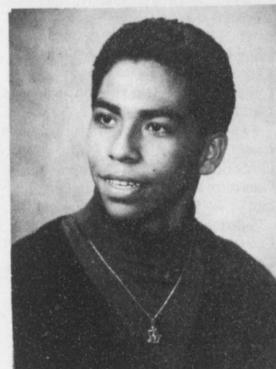

Micheal said that the one thing that he would like to change about Floydada High School would be the fact that athletics is the most important aspect when education and learning should come first. Micheal earlier this month, due to his first place at the South Plains Regional Science Fair, held earlier this year, competed at the International Science Fair held at Gulfport, Mississippi.

Micheal plans to attend college at McMurry next year where he will major in biology and art. He hopes to earn a specialized degree in medical illustration. After college he plans to get married and have children.

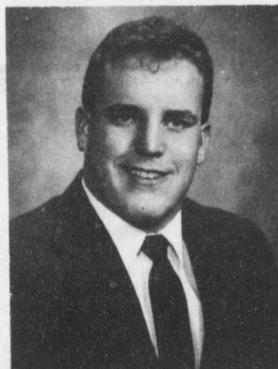

It is very easy to see that Micheal has done and made the best he can out of his four years in high school to further his education.

These three seniors have done and will continue to do what they have to, to be the best they can be in '93.

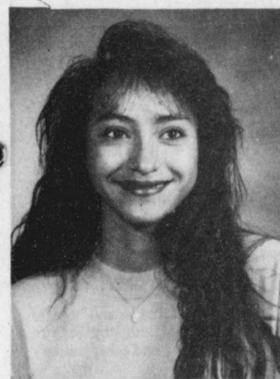

To all the seniors of '93 I would like to say it has been a very interesting year, and each of you have touched my life. I will miss you all next year. May God bless you all and keep you safe, always!

Elect Bob Krueger to the United States Senate

The absolute worst thing that can happen to Texas is to elect Kay Bailey Hutchison to the United States Senate.

The people of Texas have to have a United States Senator that can get the attention of the White House (President Clinton). The last twelve years we haven't had a democratic senator that could get into the White House. If Texas elects another Republican we won't have anyone for at least four more years.

Vote for a person who will work for the Farm Program; who will get the farmers and businessmen in Floyd County back on their feet - 40 cent cotton - $2.60 a bushel wheat - $3.00 per hundred milo won't get it done!

Most of the people in Floyd County don't have health coverage and those that do don't know how long they can pay the premiums.

PAID ADVERTISEMENT FOR KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON

I am enclosing the copy of a letter I sent to all the senators and representatives, at the suggestion of Alice Gilroy, the editor of our local newspaper, and also a copy of the "wishy washy" beat around the bush reply I received from Bob Krueger. I am voting for Kay Bailey Hutchison because I think she will be a good senator to represent we Texans instead of waiting for Clinton or Nunn to tell her what to do.

Dear Sir,
Will you PLEASE try your best to save our country from COMPLETE RUIN at the hands of our new, so called "president", I think I could use several words that would describe him better.

If he doesn't ruin us with taxes then he will get rid of all of us with AIDS, starting with our armed forces. BLESS THEM. I guess we are in for a draft, because why would anyone volunteer to be attacked by a GAY soldier? This is so far from God's way it is unreal.

My grandfather came to this country in 1890 to build a good foundation and set a pattern, taken from our forefathers, toward a proper future for his family. Now look a little over 100 years later. What's happening—the good folks are very much in the minority. I'm glad my dear old granddad can't see what's happening as I'm sure he would turn over in his grave.

Please do your best to put the country back like it should be. Stop catering to the undesirables who only try to get something for nothing. I was taught that you were supposed to work for a living, not stand in a welfare line with your hand out.

I suppose I have sounded off enough, I'm sure you feel the same way I do, wish more people did.

Sincerely,
/s/ Beth Kropp

UNITED STATE SENATE
Bob Krueger, Texas

Dear Mrs. Kropp:
Thank you for your recent correspondence. I appreciate your writing to express your views on the question of homosexuals serving in the military.

I have weighed carefully the views of the people of Texas, and hope to continue receiving these views as this matter is considered further by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Senate Armed Services Committee, and other military leaders.

I agree with the Joint Chiefs of Staff that applicants to the military should not be questioned about their sexual status. I have indicated that I consider the Joint Chiefs of Staff and military authorities the group best equipped to evaluate any possible changes in military regulations. It is essential that we maintain high military and moral discipline. Our military strength must not be compromised.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff, Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, and the Executive Branch jointly recommended how to proceed. Between now and July 15, the Department of Defense will conduct a comprehensive review of existing regulations. I am confident that, as a part of this review, they will not allow sexual harassment of any kind. Such activity has no place either in military or civilian life. I joined a bipartisan majority in the U.S. Senate that voted 62-37 on February 4th to proceed in this manner.

I have not only listened to the people of our state, but have discussed this very important and very controversial matter with Senator Nunn, Senator Bob Kerrey of Nebraska (who holds the Congressional Medal of Honor), Secretary of Defense Aspin, and several experienced military leaders holding high positions in our forces. There seems to be broad agreement that this matter requires further study, and that the recommendations which will be reached by July can result in a broad consensus regarding how to maintain high military discipline, protection against discrimination, and the strong morale of our fighting forces.

I shall continue to monitor these proceedings carefully, and will continue to value your judgement.

Again, I appreciate your taking the time to contact me.

Yours Sincerely,
/s/ Bob Krueger

Not Yours To Give

Editors Note: This story is taken from The Life of Colonel David Crockett, compiled by Edward S. Ellis (Philadelphia: Porter & Coates, 1884).

One day in the House of Representatives, a bill was taken up appropriating money for the benefit of a widow of a distinguished naval officer. Several beautiful speeches had been made in its support. The Speaker was just about to put the question when Crockett arose:

"Mr. Speaker — I have as much respect for the memory of the deceased, and as much sympathy for the sufferings of the living, if suffering there be, as any man in this House, but we must not permit our respect for the dead or our sympathy for a part of the living to lead us into an act of injustice to the balance of the living. I will not go into an argument to prove that Congress has no power to appropriate this money as an act of charity. Every member upon this floor knows it. We have the right, as individuals, to give away as much of our own money as we please in charity; but as members of Congress we have no right so to appropriate a dollar of the public money. Some eloquent appeals have been made to us upon the ground that it is a debt due the deceased. Mr. Speaker, the deceased lived long after the close of the war; he was in office to the day of his death, and I have never heard that the government was in arrears to him.

"Every man in this House knows it is not a debt. We cannot, without the grossest corruption, appropriate this money as the payment of a debt. We have not the semblance of authority to appropriate it as a charity. Mr. Speaker, I have said we have the right to give as much money of our own as we please. I am the poorest man on this floor. I cannot vote for this bill, but I will give one week's pay to the object, and if every member of Congress will do the same, it will amount to more than the bill asks."

He took his seat. Nobody replied. The bill was put upon its passage, and, instead of passing unanimously, as was generally supposed, and as, no doubt, it would, but for that speech, it received but few votes, and, of course, was lost.

Later, when asked by a friend why he had opposed the appropriation, Crockett gave this explanation:

"Several years ago I was one evening standing on the steps of the Capitol with some other members of Congress, when our attention was attracted by a great light over in Georgetown. It was evidently a large fire. We jumped into a hack and drove over as fast as we could. In spite of all that could be done, many houses were burned and many families were houseless, and, besides some of them had lost all but the clothes they had on. The weather was very cold, and when I saw so many women and children suffering, I felt that something ought to be done for them. The next morning a bill was introduced appropriating $20,000 for their relief. We put aside all other business and rushed it through as soon as it could be done.

"The next summer, when it began to be time to think about the election, I concluded I would take a scout around the boys of my district. I had no opposition there, but, as the election was some time off, I did not know what might turn up. When riding one day in a part of my district in which I was more of a stranger than any other, I saw a man in a field plowing and coming toward the road. I gauged my gait so that we should meet as he came to the fence. As he came up, I spoke to the man. He replied politely, but, as I thought, rather coldly.

"I began: 'Well friend, I am one of those unfortunate beings called a candidate, and —'

"'Yes, I know you; you are Colonel Crockett. I have seen you once before, and voted for you the last time you were elected. I suppose you are out electioneering now, but you had better not waste your time or mine. I shall not vote for you again.'

"This was a sockdolager...I begged him to tell me what was the matter.

"'Well, Colonel, it is hardly worthwhile to waste time or words upon it. I do not see how it can be mended, but you gave a vote last winter which shows that either you have not capacity to understand the Constitution, or that you are wanting in the honesty and firmness to be guided by it. In either case you are not the man to represent me. But I beg your pardon for expressing it in that way. I did not intend to avail myself of the privilege of the constituent to speak plainly to a candidate for the purpose of insulting or wounding you. I intend by it only to say that your understanding of the Constitution is very different from mine; and I will say to you what, but for my rudeness, I should not have said, that I believe you to be honest.

"...But an understanding of the Constitution different from mine I cannot overlook, because the Constitution, to be worth anything, must be held sacred, and rigidly observed in all its provisions. The man who wields power and misinterprets it is the more dangerous the more honest he is."

"'I admit the truth of all you say, but there must be some mistake about it, for I do not remember that I gave any vote last winter upon any constitutional question.'

"'No, Colonel, there's no mistake. Though I live here in the backwoods and seldom go from home, I take the papers from Washington and read very carefully all the proceedings of Congress. My papers say that last winter you voted for a bill to appropriate $20,000 to some sufferers by a fire in Georgetown. Is that true?'

"'Well, my friend; I may as well own up. You have got me there. But certainly nobody will complain that a great and rich country like ours should give the insignificant sum of $20,000 to relieve its suffering women and children, particularly with a full and overflowing Treasury, and I am sure, if you had been there, you have done just as I did.'

"'It is not the amount, Colonel, that I complain of; it is the principle. In the first place, the government ought to have in the Treasury no more than enough for its legitimate purposes. But that has nothing to do with the question. The power of collecting and disbursing money at pleasure is the most dangerous power that can be intrusted to man, particularly under our system of collecting revenue by a tariff which reaches every man in the country, no matter how poor he may be, and the poorer he is the more he pays in proportion to his means. What is worse, it presses upon him without his knowledge where the weight centers, for there is not a man in the United States who can ever guess how much he pays to the government. So you see, that while you are contributing to relieve one, you are drawing it from thousands who are even worse off than he. If you had the right to give anything, the amount was simply a matter of discretion with you, and you had as much right to give $20,000,000 as $20,000. If you have the right to give to one, you have the right to give to all; and, as the Constitution neither defines charity nor stipulates the amount, you are at liberty to give to any and everything which you may believe, or profess to believe, is charity, and to any amount you may think is proper. You will very easily perceive what a wide door this would open for fraud and corruption and favoritism, on the one hand, and for robbing the people on the other. No, Colonel, Congress has no right to give charity. Individual members may give as much of their own money as they please, but they have no right to touch a dollar of the public money for that purpose. If twice as many houses had been burned in this county as in Georgetown, neither you nor any other member of Congress would have thought of appropriating a dollar for our relief. There are about two hundred and forty members of Congress. If they had shown their sympathy for the sufferers by contributing each one week's pay, it would have made over $13,000. There are plenty of wealthy men in and around Washington who could have given $20,000 without depriving themselves of even a luxury of life. The congressmen chose to keep their own money, which, if reports be true, some of them spend not very creditably; and the people about Washington, no doubt, applauded you for relieving them from the necessity of giving by giving what was not yours to give. The people have delegated to Congress, by the Constitution, the power to do certain things. To do these, it is authorized to collect and pay moneys, and for nothing else. Everything beyond this is usurpation, and a violation of that Constitution.

"'So you see, Colonel, you have violated the Constitution in what I consider a vital point. It is a precedent fraught with danger to the country, for when Congress once begins to stretch its power beyond the limits of the Constitution, there is no limit to it, and no security for the people. I have no doubt you acted honestly, but that does not make it any better, except as far as you are personally concerned, and you see that I cannot vote for you.'

"I tell you I felt streaked. I saw if I should have opposition, and this man should go to talking, he would set others to talking, and in that district I was a gone fawn-skin. I could not answer him, and the fact is, I was so fully convinced that he was right, I did not want to. But I must satisfy him, and I said to him:

"'Well, my friend, you hit the nail upon the head when you said I had not sense enough to understand the Constitution. I intended to be guided by it, and thought I had studied it fully. I have heard many speeches in Congress about the powers of Congress, but what you have said here at your plow has got more hard, sound sense in it than all the fine speeches I ever heard. If I had ever taken the view of it that you have, I would have put my head into the fire before I would have given that vote; and if you will forgive me and vote for me again, if I ever vote for another unconstitutional law I wish I may be shot.'

"'He laughingly replied: 'Yes, Colonel, you have sworn to that once before, but I will trust you again upon one condition. You say that you are convinced that your vote was wrong. Your acknowledgment of it will do more good than beating you for it. If, as you go around the district, you will tell people about this vote, and that you are satisfied it was wrong, I will not only vote for you, but will do what I can to keep down opposition, and, perhaps, I may exert some little influence in that way.'

"'If I don't,' said I, 'I wish I may be shot; and to convince you that I am in earnest in what I say I will come back this way in a week or ten days, and if you will get up a gathering of the people, I will make a speech to them. Get up a barbecue, and I will pay for it.'

"'No, Colonel, we are not rich people in this section, but we have plenty of provisions to contribute for a barbecue, and some to spare for those who have none. The push of crops will be over in a few days, and we can then afford a day for a barbecue. This is Thursday; I will see to getting it up on Saturday week. Come to my house on Friday, and we will go together, and I promise you a very respectable crowd to see and hear you.'

"'Well, I will be here. But one thing more before I say good-by. I must know your name.'

"'My name is Bunce.'

"'Not Horatio Bunce?'

"'Yes.'

"'Well, Mr. Bunce, I never saw you before, though you say you have seen me, but I know you very well. I am glad

I have met you, and very proud that I may hope to have you for my friend.'

"It was one of the luckiest hits of my life that I met him. He mingled but little with the public, but was widely known for his remarkable intelligence and incorruptible integrity, and for a heart brimful and running over with kindness and benevolence, which showed themselves not only in words but in acts. He was the oracle of the whole country around him, and his fame had extended far beyond the circle of his immediate acquaintance. Though I had never met him before, I had heard much of him, and but for this meeting it is very likely I should have had opposition, and had been beaten. One thing is very certain, no man could now stand up in that district under such a vote.

"At the appointed time I was at his house, having told our conversation to every crowd I had met, and to every man I stayed all night with, and I found that it gave the people an interest and confidence in me stronger than I had ever seen manifested before.

"Though I was considerably fatigued when I reached his house, and, under ordinary circumstances, should have gone early to bed, I kept him up until midnight, talking about the principles and affairs of government, and got more real, true knowledge of them than I had got all my life before.

"I have known and seen much of him since, for I respect him—no, that is not the word—I reverence and love him more than any living man, and I go to see him two or three times every year; and I will tell you, sir, if every one who professes to be a Christian lived and acted and enjoyed it as he does, the religion of Christ would take the world by storm.

"But to return to my story. The next morning we went to the barbecue, and, to my surprise, found about a thousand men there. I met a good many whom I had not known before, and they and my friend introduced me around until I had got pretty well acquainted—at least, they all knew me.

"In due time notice was given that I would speak to them. They gathered up around a stand that had been erected. I opened my speech by saying:

"'Fellow-citizens—I present myself before you today feeling like a new man. My eyes have lately been opened to truths which ignorance or prejudice, or both, had heretofore hidden from my view. I feel that I can today offer you the ability to render you more valuable service than I have ever been able to render before. I am here today more for the purpose of acknowledging my error than to seek your votes. That I should make this acknowledgement is due to myself as well as to you. Whether you will vote for me is a matter for your consideration only.'

"'Well, my friend, you hit the nail upon the head when you said I had not sense enough to understand the Constitution. I intended to be guided by it, and thought I had studied it fully. I have heard many speeches in Congress about the powers of Congress, but what you have said here at your plow has got more hard, sound sense in it than all the fine speeches I ever heard. If I had ever taken the view of it that you have, I would have put my head into the fire before I would have given that vote; and if you will forgive me and vote for me again, if I ever vote for another unconstitutional law I wish I may be shot.'

"'He laughingly replied: 'Yes, Colonel, you have sworn to that once before, but I will trust you again upon one condition. You say that you are convinced that your vote was wrong. "I went on to tell them about the fire and my vote for the appropriation and then told them why I was satisfied it was wrong. I closed by saying:

"'And now, fellow-citizens, it remains only for me to tell you that the most of the speech you have listened to with so much interest was simply a repetition of the arguments by which your neighbor, Mr. Bunce, convinced me of my error.

"'It is the best speech I ever made in my life, but he is entitled to the credit for it. And now I hope he is satisfied with his convert and that he will get up here and tell you so.'

"'He came upon the stand and said: 'Fellow-citizens—It affords me great pleasure to comply with the request of Colonel Crockett. I have always considered him a thoroughly honest man, and I am satisfied that he will faithfully perform all that he has promised you today.'

"'He went down, and there went up from that crowd such a shout for Davy Crockett as his name never called forth before.

"'I am not much given to tears, but I was taken with a choking then and fell some big drops rolling down my cheeks. And I tell you now that the remembrance of those few words spoken by such a man, and the honest, hearty shout they produced, is worth more to me than all the honors I have received and all the reputation I have ever made, or ever shall make, as a member of Congress.

"'Now sir,' concluded Crockett, 'you know why I made that speech yesterday. There is one thing now to which I will call your attention. You remember that I proposed to give a week's pay. There are in that House many very wealthy men—men who think nothing of spending a week's pay, or a dozen of them, for a dinner or a wine party when they have something to accomplish by it. Some of those same men made beautiful speeches upon the great debt of gratitude which the country owed the deceased—a debt which could not be paid by money—and the insignificance and worthlessness of money, particularly so insignificant a sum as $10,000, when weighed against the honor of the nation. Yet not one of them responded to my proposition. Money with them is nothing but trash when it is to come out of the people. But is the one great thing for which most of them are striving, and many of them sacrifice honor, integrity, and justice to obtain it."

May sales tax rebates display local increases

By Juanita Stepp

May 1993 sales tax rebates made to Floyd County cities from the state comptroller's office have been received. Year to date totals displayed an increase from last year for both Floydada and Lockney. Lockney and Floydada figures each indicate increases in monthly rebates when compared to May of 1992.

Total rebates received in Floyd County this month totaled $20,998.82, an increase of 19.02 percent when compared to the $17,642.84 received at this time in 1992.

Floydada's May check from the state comptroller's office was in the amount of $14,604.41 and showed an increase of 21.47 percent from the $12,022.73 payment received in May of 1992.

Lockney displayed an increase of 13.78 percent from the same period in 1992 in over all receipts. The May check received by Lockney was in the amount of $6,394.41 compared to $5,620.11 received in May 1992.

Area cities, their May 1993 rebates and percentage of change are listed below.

Quitaque; $3,281.73, +5.40%
Silverton; $2,774.77, +26.56%
Crosbyton; $6,834.68, +2.69%
Lorenzo; $2,573.26, -8.33%
Ralls; $9,122.51, +9.87%
Plainview; $224,988.39, -3.43%
Lubbock; $1,855,734.67, +12.62%
Matador; $2,656.54, +0.39%
Roaring Springs; $2,481.01, +107.42%
Tulia; $22,135.03, -10.32%

Payments totaling $99 million in local sales tax rebates went back to 1,071 Texas cities and 108 counties this month, according to the state comptroller's office. This month's sales tax payments include taxes collected on March sales and on sales by quarterly reporters for January, February and March. These sales must be reported to the Comptroller in April by businesses filing monthly or quarterly tax returns.

Sales taxes are collected by merchants and forwarded to the state which retains a 6.25 percent share and returns the city sales tax portion to each city, county, hospital district or transit system. Neither Floyd County nor Lockney General Hospital District and Caprock Hospital District levies a sales tax at this time. No qualifying transit system, which could also levy a sales tax, operates within the county.

All local sales taxes have been approved by local voters and may be used for any legal city expense.

COURTESY OF: Concerned Woman of America, Floydada Chapter

By Jimmy McGaugh
Cub Master
Cub Scout Pack 357 assembled recently in the fellowship hall of the First United Methodist Church. Webelos Dustin Jones and Shane Lloyd presented the colors as everyone repeated the Pledge of Allegiance.

Cub Master, Jimmy McGaugh reported on the candy sales and congratulated Renee Mendoza on winning an autographed Nolan Ryan baseball. Renee won one of six given from all scouts who sold candy in a six district area.

Larry Jones, Webelos leader, presented achievement awards to his scouts. Dustin Jones, Shane Lloyd, Jimmy Parks and Josh Tipton received the highest award a Cub Scout can obtain, the Arrow of Light. Larry explained that the arrow is about maturity, courage and reaching one's own goals. The Cubs' parents had the honor of pinning the award on their sons.

Bobby Gilliland, Scout Master of Troop 357, assistant scout leaders: Terry Turner, Curtis Emert and scouts, Chad Turner and Anthony Emert were introduced.

The Webelos leader called for all Webelos to assemble at the bridge. The scout master called on Akela and asked what he desired. Akela stated for his Cubs to cross over to the greater world of scouting. Dustin Jones, Renee Mendoza, Alex Hadderton, Shane Lloyd, Jimmy Parks and Josh Tipton crossed over the bridge and were welcomed into Boy Scouts by the troop representatives. Bobby described some of the achievements, camping and fellowship the new scouts have to look forward to.

The Cub Master and Tiger Cub coordinator, Kenny Griggs called for all Tiger Cubs and their parents to assemble at the bridge. As Kenny called on Derrick Griggs, Jay McGaugh, Mason Becker, Adam Ethridge and their parents to cross over the bridge, the Cub Master welcomed them to the pack as Cub Scouts. Those Tigers not present were Skyler Cornelius, Jacob Lucio, Ben Vandiver and D.J. Summers.

All scouts then adjourned for cookies, punch, fellowship and congratulations. I would like to thank everyone, especially Bobby and Barbara Gilliland, for making this a very good year.

Cards Of Thanks

Sincere thanks to each of you for your many kindnesses during both my hospital stays and continued recuperation at home. Your prayers, calls, cards, visits, flowers and food were all greatly appreciated.

In Memory of Jason Barker
Heaven's Very Special Child
A meeting was held quite far from Earth, "It's time again for another birth." Said the angels to the Lord above, "This special child will need much love."

To the Wonderful People of Floydada:
We would like to thank all of you for your wonderful support, your many prayers, your visits and your concern for us over the last six months.
Although at the time of our accident we had not quite lived here a year, you all did everything possible and then some to help us out.

To all the great people here that allow me to paint the town!
It's been lots of fun and I hope you all enjoy it as much as I do painting it. See You Punkin' Days!
Thanks So Much!
LaDelle Gowens

His progress may seem very slow, Accomplishments he may not show, And he'll require extra care From the folks he meets way down there.

I know this letter is overdue - It has been difficult to put our feelings into words. In Matthew's short time here you made him feel at home and helped him every way you could.

I would like say thank you to Polly Campbell, Rhonda Stovall, Dendy Williams and Terry and Zahn Turner for working in the Parent Volunteer Concession Stand Thursday evening. Thank you to Pam Tipton and Pam Bennett for working Friday evening. Thank you to Randy and Julie Duke, Tommy and Sallye Lyles and Larry and Nancy Kirk for working Saturday evening. Thank you to Judy Dunlap, Brenda Hefflin, Kelli Reddy, Betty Ann Fortenberry and Bart Greer for working Monday evening. Thank you to Irene Morales for helping in a special way Monday evening.
Kenny Griggs
Concession Stand Coordinator
5-27p

He may not run or laugh or play, His thoughts may seem quite far away, In many ways he won't adapt, And he'll be known as handicapped.

You all have continued to pray for us through the death of our son, and through Allen's recovery, and through my pregnancy. Now we can rejoice in the birth of a healthy baby girl.
Once again, thank you for "taking us in" and pulling us through a very difficult time.
Gratefully,
Allen, Michelle, and Melissa Ruddell
5-27p

They will not realize right away, The leading role they're asked to play, But with this child sent from above Comes stronger faith and richer love.

We would like to thank the Floydada Chapter of the American Red Cross for their assistance in our recently completed Emergency Medical Technician course. Our Thanks also goes out to the fire departments in Lockney and Floydada for their help. This class was terrific and we congratulate each student for their efforts to complete the class. Floydada is lucky to have people like these to work and improve EMS in our area.

And soon they'll know the privilege given In caring for this gift from Heaven, Their precious charge so meek and mild Is Heaven's very special child.

Thank you for caring -

Floyd County Farm Report

By David Kostroun
Extension Agent-Entomology (PM)
Crosby/Floyd Counties

Cotton pest management in our part of the world begins with cotton emergence. Thrips will be moving from drying wheat fields to attack cotton as it comes to a stand. Fields that are not protected by an at-planting insecticide need to be scouted closely every 2 to 3 days, beginning at 50% emergence. Why so early? Those plants that emerge first will be the most vigorous, and will account for a major portion of yield potential.

Thrips are slender, straw-colored insects, only about 1/5-inch long when mature. Adult thrips are winged. Eggs are laid into plant tissue. Newly-hatched immatures are whitish in color, and barely visible to the unaided eye. As immatures grow in size, they resemble adults, but lack wings. Thrips move in a snake-like or zig-zag pattern. They can be found on the underneath sides of leaves and in the terminal area, especially in the folds of newly emerging leaves. When these insects feed in the terminal area, they can damage tissue that eventually forms the first squares. Thrips rasp the plant tissue with their mouth parts, then suck the plant sap that exudes from the wound. Healthy tissue outgrows damaged tissue, thus causing leaf puckering and crinkling.

When scouting a field, you should count the number of thrips on at least 10 randomly selected plants per 23-30 acres of the field. Be sure to look inside the folds of emerging leaves by prying the folds open with a toothpick or a pencil point. Keep track of the number of thrips and calculate the average number per plant. Treatment should be considered at the following levels: 50% emergence to 1st true leaf - 1 thrips per plant; 1st to 4th leaf - 2 thrips per plant; 4th to 5th leaf - 5 or ore thrips per plant. Note that these are general treatment levels to be used only as a guideline. Other considerations include weather conditions, and health and vigor of the plants.

Once a decision has been made to make a foliar insecticide application for thrips control, do not delay. A banded application with a ground rig is relatively inexpensive. However, a ground application may not always be made in a timely enough fashion to prevent significant damage. In this case, the cost of an aerial application may be justified to give comparable thrips control. A foliar application for thrips control, using a local systemic insecticide, will normally provide about 7 days control.

Preventative treatments used at planting are an effective means of controlling thrips in fields near maturing wheat. Seed treatments normally provide about 3 weeks control from planting, whereas granular in-furrow insecticide, normally provide 4 to 6 weeks control.

NEW PRIVATE APPLICATOR PESTICIDE RECORDKEEPING REQUIREMENTS

The USDA-AMS recordkeeping rule requires all private applicators to keep the following records when restricted use pesticides are used: (1) brand or product name, and the EPA registration number; (2) the total amount of the restricted use pesticide applied; (3) the location of the application, the size of the area treated, and the crop, commodity, stored product, or site to which a restricted use pesticide was applied; (4) the month, day and year when the restricted use pesticide application occurred; (5) the name and certification number (if applicable) of the certified applicator who applied or who supervised the application of the restricted use pesticide; (6) application(s) of restricted use pesticide in a total area of less than one-tenth of an acre occurring on the same day, shall require brand or product name, EPA registration number, total amount applied, designation of "spot application" for location, and date of application. Item number six (6) does not apply to nursery and greenhouse applications.

Commercial applicators (such as aerial applicators) are required to provide the above information within 30 days of a restricted use pesticide application to the person for whom the restricted use pesticide was applied.

All records must be kept for two years from the date of application. They are to be released only to an agent of the USDA or EPA or to a licensed health care professional if the licensed health care professional determines access is necessary to provide medical treatment or first aid to a person who may have been exposed to a pesticide for which records are required to be maintained.

Insurance best management tool

According to the American Association of Crop Insurers crop insurance has become the best risk management tool for both farmers and lenders.

Crop insurance allows farmers to protect themselves against their greatest risk—crop failure. Only farmers who have built up huge savings can survive a crop disaster if they are without crop insurance.

Most bankers and other farm production lenders now require that a farmer buy crop insurance to cover an operating loan. Without crop insurance, a lender is at significant risk. If the crop is lost, farm income is sharply reduced, the loan cannot be repaid, and the debt must be rolled over into the next crop cycle. However, with crop insurance indemnity payment, the loan can be repaid, and the farmer can qualify for another operating loan the following year.

Farmers always are at risk—from weather, crop disease, insects, and numerous other perils. Without multiple peril crop insurance (MPCI), these risks must be borne by the farmers, their lenders and their communities. Crop insurance provides loan and debt protection as well as an income when there's little or no crop to be marketed.

But crop insurance also serves another purpose—a crop insurance policy can help a farmer lock in higher prices through a variety of advanced marketing opportunities than otherwise might be available if the crop was sold at harvest time. The assurance of an insurance indemnity helps the farmer manage price risk as well.

Insuring farm income is of vital importance to the thousands of rural communities throughout America whose economies are agriculturally dependent.

*Economists estimate that every $1.00 in farm income has at least a $5.00 impact on local economies.

*If there is a crop loss, the crop insurance indemnity becomes the farm income. Therefore, crop insurance provides not only the farmer, but also their community, with the economic security equal to several times the liability protection of the policy.

Thus, crop insurance protection and indemnities are felt throughout the community are indispensable to the financial underpinning of rural economies.

Fields need to be monitored

By David Kostroun
Extension Agent-Entomology (PM)
Crosby/Floyd Counties

Southwestern corn borer (SWCB) emerge from corn stubble in the spring to lay eggs on whorl-stage corn. Corn adjacent to or near unplowed or late-plowed stubble typically experiences higher densities of SWCB larval feeding in the whorl. Floyd-Crosby corn producers need to monitor fields for this situation.

Those corn stubble fields not plowed before February 1 in combination with the relatively mild winter temperatures will allow for increased winter survival of SWCB. Therefore, economic levels of 1st generation SWCB may be possible this year.

Eggs are laid by adult moths of overwintering SWCB. Eggs are laid on the upper and lower surfaces of expanded leaves in the whorl. Freshly laid eggs are creamy white, and after about 24 hours, three red bands appear on each egg. Small larvae hatch from the eggs in about five days and begin feeding in the whorl. A leaf symptom commonly associated with SWCB feeding in the whorl includes longitudinal, transparent areas on the leaf where young larvae feed only partially through the leaf tissue. After the larva has fed in the whorl, for a few days it crawls down the plant and bores into the stalk. Corn borer larvae reach a length of 1 to 1.5 inches. They have a regular pattern of raised black dots on a creamy white body.

The economic threshold for 1st generation SWCB is when 10 to 15% of the plants are infested with newly hatched larvae. Insecticide applications should be made before borers leave the whorl and enter the stalk. Fields need to be monitored closely during the first two weeks in June to keep a handle on SWCB numbers.

Households in the US produce twice as much solid waste (nearly a ton per capita per year) as any other nation. This solid waste stream contains an assortment of materials including papers, plastics, metals, household chemicals, pesticides, lubricants and landscape wastes. Changes in minimum standards for landfills have caused reexamination of local waste management practices and resultant economic problems.

On Thursday, June 3, in the Light-house Electric Coop at 7:00 p.m., Floyd County residents will have an opportunity to learn about making informed choices on waste reduction in home and office, yard waste management, farm waste management and other current information.

This informative opportunity is sponsored by the Floyd County Office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. For more information, call 983-2806.

Water conservation field day scheduled for June 2 in Silverton

Water conservation and efficient use of irrigation water has always been an issue in production agriculture. Briscoe County is not immune to this issue. Especially as our ground water continues to be depleted faster than it is restored and the profit margin remains tight for most crops.

There will be a program Wednesday morning on June 2 to address questions related to irrigated production in Briscoe County. It will be held at the county showbarn in Silverton and will begin at 9:00 a.m. and will conclude with the noon meal being sponsored by Zimmatic and Rhoderick Irrigation. All area producers are invited to attend.

The following topics will be covered during this meeting: Factors in Irrigation Efficiency - Leon New, Extension Engineer; Surge Flow Irrigation - Rose Mary Seymour, Extension Engineer; How to Pay for Center Pivots - Steve Amosson, Extension Economist; Pesticides and Effect on Water Quality - Scott Strawn, Briscoe County Extension Agent; and Zimmatic and Rhoderick Irrigation - Center Pivot Systems.

One hour of CEU credit will be offered to those with private applicator

Scout training workshop set for June 1

The 1993 High Plains Scout Training Workshop will be held June 1 at the Ollie Linder Center in Plainview.

The workshop has been accredited by the Texas Department of Agriculture for up to 5 continuing education credits (CEU's) for commercial, non-commercial and private pesticide applicators. There is no charge for the workshop.

CROP INSURANCE SHORTAGE!!!

It sounds a little fishy but the crop insurance companies have a capacity problem this year. They were so hard hit in this area in 1992 that they put restrictions on what they would write and where they would write it in 1993.

It probably won't ever get to the point where you can't buy Crop Hail Insurance but it will get harder for me to get you the best rate and/or the best company.

If you know what insurance you are going to take out you should go ahead and do it. We can also sign you up for July 1st coverage now and let you pay later.
