Hesperian-Beacon closed Friday

Regular office hours will resume on Monday, April 4.

No April Fools's joke Landfill to open April 1 FLOYDADA--Beginning at 8 a.m. on Friday, April 1, 1994, the City of Floydada landfill will be open to the public. After six (6) long years of work, the dream of the Floydada City Council and Mayor, present and past, will become a reality.

According to city manager Gary Brown there were lots of opportunities to throw in the towel and just give up.

"Former Mayors Parnell Powell and Wayne Russell would tell me, 'Brown we are not going to give up, make arrangements to go to Austin and meet with the proper people and get them to tell you exactly what they want'," said Brown. "Today at the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission I am known by lots of the employees."

"I am proud for the citizens of Floyd County for having a landfill," says Brown.

Landfill hours will be from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday during Daylight Savings Time. When the time changes in October, the closing hour on weekdays will be 5 p.m. During rainy weather, the landfill will be closed.

Unloading at the landfill will be supervised and some requests made of users are stipulated in the permit and must be enforced. All users are asked to be patient and understanding."

Working together for disaster management

By Juanita Stepp

A diverse group of people from areas throughout Floyd county came together in the county courtroom on Tuesday, March 29 for the purpose of discussing emergency preparedness and management in the County.

"You never want to talk about gambling," said Floydada Police Chief James Hale, "but we are gambling. There has been no catastrophe or natural disaster in Floyd County in many, many years and we are on borrowed time. The odds are going to run out on us sooner or later and we need to plan for a way to handle the unknown before it happens."

The meeting was attended by law enforcement officials, medical personnel and volunteer firemen, city, county and state officials and interested business people from around the county. The topic of discussion was the plan for emergency disaster management in the county which was originally developed in 1988 and last updated in 1991.

Among those who were unable to attend was Sheriff Charles Overstreet. Hale relayed Overstreet's suggestion that whatever plan is developed, personnel should be at least three-deep in order to meet any emergency. Overstreet wants to see each step of the plan with co-ordinators in county positions, Floydada and Lockney positions. With proper training and information, the sheriff and/or either police chief could implement whatever part of the plan is delegated to law enforcement in whatever area of the county it might become necessary. Overstreet would like to see every aspect of the plan covered in this manner with more than one person familiar with each part of the plan. Other suggestions made included compiling lists of any items or information which might affect the plan. Things to be considered include the location of food storage, medical equipment, communication capabilities, transportation facilities, machinery and personnel who might be of assistance. Another consideration would be the location of any hazardous materials storage which could effect the plan.

According to police reports, at approximately 10:34 p.m., a 1986 Dodge Caravan traveling west on Crockett Street, turned into the nursing home parking lot and "at a speed unsafe for the driver to control, hit the curb stop, jumped the curb stop and hit the north wall of the building.

According to Police Chief James Hale, "The vehicle partially entered the building stopping in the resident's room. The resident was in the room at the time but was not injured."

The driver attempted to back up the ated smoke causing people inside the nursing home to believe a fire had been caused from the crash. "The fire department and an ambulance was also called," said Hale. "There were four fire units, two city cars, a Highway patrolman, two Sheriff's deputies and two Floydada Police cars out there. It was hard to tell at first what we had until the smoke cleared."

"The resident inside the room was very lucky," said Hale, "The day before the accident her bed had been moved from the wall where the vehicle entered."

We want to wish everyone a Happy Easter on Sunday. Enjoy your family time together and remember what it is all about.

Our preacher's wife, Mona Samples, came up with a really neat idea on Palm Sunday. She passed out small nails to all the men and told them to put them in their pockets and to carry them around with them all the time.

The idea is that when the men stick their hands in their pocket and feel that little nail they will be reminded what Jesus did for them.

Let's not forget.

AHA holds annual Telepledge

The Floyd County Division of the American Heart Association conducted its annual Telepledge Drive Thursday, March 24, at the First National Bank of Floydada. Floyd County Division President Kyle Smith stated that one of the goals for this year is "to help students learn the value of volunteerism". Hale suggested that everyone in the county could make a note of whatever they can contribute to handling an emergency situation which could be incorporated in the plan.

"If you have gasoline storage, food storage, communications facilities, manpower, resources, equipment or anything which might be useful, let us know," said Floydada City Manager Gary Brown. "We also need to know where family storm shelters are located so that they can be rescued if necessary."

Local officials are also asking that anyone who is interested in working on developing an emergency management plan volunteer to serve on a county wide committee which will correlate the information gathered and formulate the county plan. Among the items to be developed are a chain of command, first response, search and rescue, and cleanup and recovery.

All information and any suggestions related to emergency management should be directed to the City of Floydada, the City of Lockney or Floyd County authorities. Future meetings will be announced and community participation is both requested and urged.

Said Hale, "If Lockney has a problem, Floydada is going to go there to help. We know that Lockney will be here to help us if Floydada has a problem. I don't think there is any question about that. What we need to do now is decide what we need in order to help throughout the county and how we want to get it done. The objective is to limit the loss of life during a disaster and to protect the survivors and their property as they cope with the event."

Attending the meeting were James Hale, Gary Brown, Bill Hardin, Tony Rando, Hulon Carthel, J. D. ity Lutheran since 1990. Kleypas also. served as pastor to Trinity Lutheran from 1982-1986 before leaving to attend college.

He returned to Providence from the Temple area where he had been teaching in the public schools

"I don't consider myself a photographer," explained Kleypas. "Photography is a challenge to me because it involves the skill of science and artistry all together."

As full time pastor of Trinity Lutheran, photography is a hobby to Kleypas, however he seems to find less and less time to enjoy that hobby. "I always forget to take my camera with me and I miss some great shots."

Kleypas says he likes to take the mechanics of a camera and put it to use by envisioning something artistic in what he sees and capturing that moment on a piece of paper.

He became interested in photography while in seminary in central northeast Iowa. "Growing up in south central Texas, I was overwhelmed by the natural beauty of the Iowa landscapes with its high rolling hills, creatively engineered terraced fields of soybeans and corn winding around the hills, taller trees than the hackberry trees back home, steep bluffs overlooking the Mississippi River and the river itself."

The vibrant colors of spring flowers, the fall landscape as the leaves turned a variety of colors and the beautiful winters fascinated Kleypas.

"The winter sunrises and sunsets glistening over snowy horizons still send shivers up my spine—not because it was hoped it would stir the memories of a lot cold but because it was such a quiet and serene beauty that I had never seen in that way before," said Kleypas. "At night the city took on a whole new beauty with the lights and its effects on the snow."

Since cam corders hadn't been invented yet and since Kleypas wanted to show his parents and others the beauty he as seeing, he turned to a camera. "The antique camera I brought from home didn't do justice to the beauty and that's when I invested in my first single lens reflex camera from Montgomery Ward, in Iowa. "I didn't even know what an SLR camera was, but I knew that it surely had to take better photos than what I had been taking."

As with anyone who snaps a lot of pictures, Kleypas has had his share of failures. "One of the most brilliant and dynamic roll of slides ever taken will never be seen because I didn't get the film edge caught on the winder. I took 36 of the most excellent photos imaginable and even had it developed only to get a blank set of film back.

"Photography is an art because I try to envision the image and how and what it will look like in the final photo. Beauty is truly in the eye of the beholder because some photos that I have seen look like blurred images but the person trying to sell the photo would call it 'liquid photography'. And there is an art to creating a shot that shows movement. I've got some movement shots simply because I goofed and shook the camera or had the wrong shutter speed or aperture.

"Judging photos is like judging figure skating. It has technical aspects was well as subjective judgement. Taking an aerial photo of my desk would make it look like a pile of trash that needs cleaning (which it does), but if you took an eye level shot it would appear that I have volumes of important papers that I am working on!"

How much fiber is enough?

As part of EAT RIGHT AMERICATM "Nutrition Fuels Fitness" campaign sponsored by the American Dietetic Association, Americans should eat a diet with enough fiber says Melissa Long, Floyd County Extension agent.

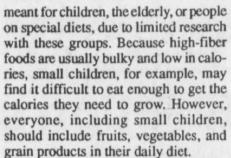

Although most health authorities agree that fiber is important in the diet, it is not yet known exactly how much and what types of fiber are needed each day. Some health organizations have suggested healthy adult Americans increase dietary fiber 20-30 grams per day, roughly twice what most Americans eat now. They also suggest an upper limit of 35 grams per day to avoid any adverse effect such as bloating, gas, or Fiber should come from a variety of food sources including vegetables, fruits, and whole-grain products.

If you're not used to eating foods that are high in fiber, increase fiber gradually. Since fiber draws water into the large intestine, be sure to drink plenty of liquids-8 or more cups a day-including water, juice, milk, and other beverages, soups and so forth, to avoid cramping.

The suggested levels of fiber are not

*Three servings a day of whole-grain products such as whole-wheat bread, hot oatmeal, or other whole-grain cereal.

Activity benefits children

An active lifestyle benefits children as well as adults, according to a nutrition specialist.

"Physical activity is the key to fitness, which starts with children," said Carol B. Suter, professor with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University. "Since March is National Nutrition Month, it's an excellent time for Texans of all ages to start incorporating some type of activity into their lives.

According to the American Dietetic Association (ADA), children who are active beginning in their early years are less likely to develop childhood obesity, a growing problem among school-age children. Also, women and girls in their teens especially benefit from the bone protection offered with weight-bearing exercise such as walking.

"Adults who exchange hours of watching television for exercise lower their risk for chronic diseases such as high blood pressure, obesity, and heart disease," Suter said.

It's never too late for older adults to become more active, according to ADA. Even seniors can build muscle. Regardless of age, exercise helps control body fat, aids sleep, enhances appearance, helps regulate appetite, and promotes emotional well-being. "Many have the misconception that you have to huff and puff or do vigorous exercises to reap the benefits of physical activity," she said. "All you need to do is make it a goal to get a total of at least 30 minutes of some sort of activity every day."

To help you get started, Suter recommends these tips:

*Gradually build up by adding just a few minutes of extra activity daily.

*Do activities in intervals. Exercise does not have to be all at once. For example, 10 minutes each of walking from your car to the mall, raking leaves, and walking up stairs adds up to the recommended 30 minutes.

*Choose activities that you enjoy doing alone or with family and friends. *Be consistent. Make an effort to include activity in your daily lifestyle.

Lockney young people take part in Role and Goal Project

LOCKNEY--Professional workers in to the group about the value of and the Plainview with ties to Lockney conducted a one-day program for Lockney youth on Friday, March 18.

The project -- named Role and Goal Day by initiators Soila Reyes, SWA HIV/AIDS educator, and Connie Duenas, Youth at Risk counselor for Catholic Family Services -- involved the matching up of several young persons with a mentor for a day of active participation in the mentor's profession and work role.

They assisted in assigned tasks, visited different social service agencies and learned about the educational requirements for the different job positions.

Role modeling was an important aspect of the event with mentors also relating to their charges, their experiences and their backgrounds as they worked side by side.

At a luncheon at Leal's mentors spoke need for education, about pride in being bi-cultural and bilingual, belief in one's self, putting behind past mistakes, making good decisions and setting priorities.

They also spoke about the importance of being spiritually and environmentally aware and maintaining good family relationships.

Participants included Veronica Reyes, Patricia Reyes, Chris Sepulveda, Sarah Duenas, Ermie Duenas, Kellie Pena, Robert Reyes and Maggie Duenas.

Mentors included John Castro, director of the Texas Department of Health; Sara Silva, youth counselor, Catholic Family Services; Eddie Garza, Plainview Police Department; Pammie Salas, information specialist, FHLCCADA; Rosie Rendon, administrator, Heritage Home; Dimas Garcia, social service specialist, Texas Migrant Council; Johnny Silva, and Plainview Adult Probation.

School for the Deaf in Lubbock.

Cannon said that the class was originally begun to accommodate the parents and teachers of the hearing impaired students in Floydada. The project has involved more participants each week as friends, relatives and aides have joined the free lessons.

"It takes a certain amount of dedication to get up an hour or more early on Friday mornings and make the effort to go and learn to use your hands to communicate with others who cannot vocalize," stated Cannon. "The volunteers are a terrific group of people who want to help others and who want to learn just for the sake of learning."

"This is just one of the many ways in which Caprock Special Education Cooperative meets the needs of people in the area who have special and unique problems," says Cannon. "Anyone who has a child with special needs or who knows of a child with special problems should contact us so that we can help them in getting whatever assistance is available so they can face the future as independent and productive members of society."

Duncan Kids Can!

Dear Duncan Parents,

How hard it is to believe that we are now into the 5th six weeks of school. It won't be long before our school year is complete.

As always this six weeks is proving to be as busy as all the rest. We are still preparing our kids for our standardized test. We will continue to work on this until we test in April and May.

For those of you who made our PTA Open House so successful by being here we extend a great big THANK YOU. If you see any of our PTA officers thank them for the great job that they do! They really work hard! Please, know that you have a standing invitation to visit your child at school. We would love for you to come.

Thank You, Mrs. Weir

Floydada Baseball Report

By Bill Gray

FLOYDADA 20, RALLS 14

In a game in which the final score more resembled one played with a football, the Whirlwinds outlasted Ralls 20-14 at Jackrabbit Field on March 22. Floydada senior Gabriel DeLaFuente hit a home run and two singles, had three RBIs, and scored three times to lead the Whirlwind offensive outburst. With the victory Floydada improved its season record to 5-6.

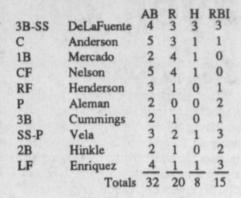

Freshman Michael Aleman picked up his first victory of the year against two losses as he fanned six and walked five of the 19 batters he faced. Rod Vela pitched three innings in relief and received credit for the "save."

Errors continued to be a defensive Hinkle (1) problem for the 'Winds as they committed 7 miscues which led to four unearned runs for the 'Rabbits. Ralls outhit the Whirlwinds 13-8 and scored 12 of 14 runs in only two innings of the 3-hour, 15-minute marathon. It was the first game in their three-year history for the Winds to score in every inning of a 7inning game.

Coach Jimmy Webster commented, "I thought this would be a high scoring game with the high south winds and Ralls having such a small park, I didn't think we'd have to score 20 to win, though." The coach praised the offense, noting that the 'Winds put the ball in play with men on base - especially with two

"Gabby (DeLaFuente) competed very well at the plate today and raised his average .71 points," stated Webster. "Chris Enriquez got a big 2-RBI hit with two outs. We had two starters out for One-Act Play, and Hinkle, Enriquez and Anderson did an excellent job of filling in and picking up the slack," added the coach. The score was closer than it should have been and it wasn't a pretty win, but Webster noted, "I'd rather win ugly than lose pretty."

LUBBOCK COOPER 14, FLOYDADA 2

Erick Snook allowed only one Floydada base hit, a double by freshman Tomas Barrientos, as the Lubbock Cooper Pirates pounded 13 hits enroute to a 14-2 victory over the Whirlwinds at Watson Field on March 25. Floydada dropped to 5-7 while the Pirates improved to 4-5 on the season. Snook aided his own winning effort by going 3-for-4 at the plate and driving in four Cooper runs. The game was called after five innings due to the 10-run rule.

Coach Jimmy Webster called it "a horrible game" and stated, "We faced a kid (Snook) who threw a straight overhand fastball with average speed and made him out to be 'Roger Clemens.' We just laid the bats down and didn't give him a fight at all. I don't want to take anything away from him because he just flat out wanted to beat us more than we wanted to beat him." The coach noted, "That is generally what competition is about: who wants to win the most."

The coach said, "We've got a couple of kids that will fight until the fight is over, and we've got some others that simply accept whatever happens to them no matter how bad things get . . . kind of makes me question our desire to win and our competitiveness at times. We still haven't accepted that we have a solid chance to be a very good team." Webster added, "We've still got guys too spread out and we're trying to fill people into some positions that they normally don't play. Nevertheless, whatever position we put guys into, I expect them to

In spite of their 5-7 season record to date, the Whirlwinds continue to improve in most aspects of their game. This is, basically, a very young team . . . it is the first time out in high school ball for a number of these young men, where every time out is a learning experience. To say that the team has come a long way is a gross understatement. However, I do agree with Coach Webster when he says, "We just don't have many kids with that 'killer instinct' that will finish off a team."

They've played well at times this year, and at times they haven't. The Cooper game certainly wasn't one of their better efforts. Hopefully, they will profit even from such a bad outing. They are a much better team than what they displayed against the Pirates, and there is still ample time before district play to prove it - especially to themselves.

Plainview JV will be in town before the 'Winds travel to Lubbock to face the Coronado JV, and they will close the nondistrict portion of their schedule with a critical double-header at Lockney. The 'Winds have played the Longhorns tough the last couple of years, and if they can manage to put it all together, could gain a lot of confidence and momentum with at least a split in

Floydada track teams vie at San Angelo and Hereford

FLOYDADA--Floydada's track squads traveled in different directions last weekend as the Whirlwinds competed in the prestigious San Angelo Relays and the Lady 'Winds ventured to Hereford's Deaf Smith Invitational. Boys teams in four divisions were on hand at San Angelo, which annually features a number of regional and state contenders in the several classifications. Many of the area's's top girls teams competed at Hereford.

Whirlwind Adam Gonzales solidified his position as a top contender for berths in the State Track Meet by winning the shot put and finishing a strong second in discus at the 36th Annual San Angelo Relays. The massive senior, a State Qualifier in 1993, currently holds the top area mark, regardless of classification, in shot put at 57'-3". Through last week he held the number two area position in discus at 158'-1", second only to Perryton's Brandon Pshigoda (182'-2").

Gonzales was the only Whirlwind to qualify for the finals at San Angelo, al-though Fioydada was very competitive in several events. Adam's winning effort in shot put measured 54'-11 1/2". Midland Greenwood's Rusty Purser placed second at 49'-0 1/4". Purser is the son of former Lockney coach Bob Purser. Cuero's Cedric Strait placed third in shot put at 48'-11".

Brad Schley of Cuero set a San Angelo 3A meet record in discus with a toss of 174'-2". Gonzales' second place distance of 170'-1" was not only Adam's best-ever competitive mark, but would have won the event at last year's Region I meet. Cuero's Don Arroyo placed third in discus with a measurement of 158'-

District 2-3A track favorite Tulia scored 97 points to take second place in team standings behind Cuero's 114 team points. Floydada scored 18 team points to tie for 11th place with San Angelo Central JV.

According to Coach David Carr, "We were at a real disadvantage team-wise down there as we only took nine men. Tulia and others were able to put three kids in every event - that's where you get team scoring. We competed very well, and gave good efforts, but we just didn't have the numbers."

The coach added, "We didn't do very well overall, but had several solid individual performances.

Carr stated, "Omar (Eguia) ran very well and missed the finals in the 3200 by only one man. Nevertheless, he did very well for a freshman and ran his personal-best in the 3200 at 11.56. We look for better results in the coming weeks before the district meet at Muleshoe."

The Lady 'Winds ran into similar problems at the Hereford meet. Coach Robin Bowden commented, "We took seven kids and managed only 6.75 points. We not only faced stiff competition from some big names, but had to contend with cold and high winds. We had to go against teams such as Pampa, with 49 on the squad. But, our girls competed well, and I'm very proud of their efforts and determination."

Several Lady 'Winds managed to get into the finals, including Jessica Garcia who placed 6th in the 3200 with a time of 14:38. Pepper Hinkle high-jumped 4'-8" for 4th place, and Dana McCandless ran 6th in the 400 meters with a time of :71.0. The Lady Winds mile relay team of Shayla Turner, LuAnn Martinez, Margaret Medrano and Dana McCandless ran 5th in the 1600 with a time of 4:51.

Coach Bowden added, "We may not have quantity, but we certainly have quality. I couldn't ask any more out of my youngsters. They are very dedicated and I am very proud of them." The competition for both track teams should be my book!

a little easier this weekend as the Whirlwinds and Lady 'Winds compete in the Shallowater Relays.

BILL'S NOTES

Both track teams are suffering from the same problems that face all Floydada athletic teams - lack of numbers and lack of depth. One young man on the track team competed in U.I.L., One-Act Play, baseball and track . . . all in a two day period!

The squad members and their coaches are all to be complimented and praised for their efforts. It takes a lot of time and hard work to do what they all do. All make a lot of sacrifices on behalf of their school and community. They may not have the glory and a bunch of medals around their necks, but from this standpoint . . . they are ALL winners in

"There is always room for improvement," he replied regarding what he saw ahead for himself and Lockney, in basketball, "I look for my play to get better, next year. With the underclassmen getting a lot of experience last year and an

Planning optimizes pivot system benefits

-- From High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1

As many producers rush to get new center pivot sprinkler systems operating in time for the 1994 growing season, Jerry Funck, agricultural engineer for the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No.1, points out sev-

the improved pump efficiency, based on the tests I've conducted, will pay for the cost of the repairs in about two to three years," says Funck. In order to minimize fuel consumption and pumping costs, pumping equipment must be carefully selected, properly maintained, and replaced when necessary to maintain high The producers should examine the water distribution system which supplies water from the wells to the pivot.

Leaks in underground pipelines can be costly--not only in terms of pumping cost and wasted water, but also in the potential yield reductions because of the reduced quantity of water supplied to the crop. Funck says these leaks may not show up on the land surface, and he recommends that all old, concrete tile lines be checked to make sure they are not leaking.

If an operator plans to replace the old pipeline, Funck says it is important to install the right pipe size to avoid costly friction losses.

"For example, a six-inch pipeline was installed from a well to a towable center pivot system on one farm. The long run from the well to the center pivot pad created a 72-pound friction loss, and the pressure at the pivot was only nine pounds, instead of the needed 20 pounds. This doubled the lift on the pump and increased the cost to pump the water by 58 percent," says Funck.

of water per minute (gpm) produced by the well or wells. Also, the nozzles should be placed as close to the crop as possible to minimize evaporation and "Producers should make sure that their

the nozzle package matches the gallons nozzle packages match the printout supplied to them by their irrigation equipment dealers. Special care should be taken to make sure they do not overnozzle their pivot," says Funck.

Even with the right nozzle package at the beginning of the irrigation season, by July and August, the quantity of water produced by the wells may drop, causing a reduction in pressure, and adversely affecting the center pivot's performance.

Once the system is installed and operating correctly, managing the irrigation is the next most important consid-

Funck says knowing when to start watering and how much water to apply is the key to achieving the maximum benefits from the center pivot system.

"Management with center pivots allows a lot more flexibility since fertilizers, labeled herbicides and pesticides can be applied with the system," he said.

Center pivots also allow more crop residue to be left in the field, which will reduce wind erosion and improve the crop conditions.

"There are several ways to schedule irrigations. One way is to use the Potential Evapotranspiration (PET) Network data supplied by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to determine irrigation scheduling," he says.

Another method is to use an auger or soil probe to obtain a soil sample and estimate soil moisture by the "feel and appearance" method.

"The Water District has soil moisture guides for each of the 15 counties in its service area. These are pocket-sized plastic cards which provide producers with the average available water holding capacities for soils in the county and a guide to the feel and appearance method of judging soil moisture. These cards are free to residents of the Water District service area," says Funck.

He adds that some new center pivot owners have expressed concern about watering the corners of the field not covered by the pivot.

"In some cases, the producer has just enough water to do a good job of irrigating the acreage under the pivot. In-

Shrinking checkoff dollar examined by Texas Beef Council

How the Texas Beef Council (TBC) adjusted to the shrinking buying power of Texas beef checkoff dollars while maximizing promotion results is the message producer/investors will receive by reading the TBC 1992-93 Annual Report. TBC collected $11,885,022 from Texas beef producers and importers in the last fiscal year. (Fifty cents of each dollar collected goes to the Beef Promotion and Research Board to help fund national programs. Since 1988-89, total collection dollars in Texas have remained relatively constant. Because of inflation, it took $1.30 in 1992-93 to gain the same media buys and the same consumer reach that the industry achieved with $1 in 1987. The declined buying power has meant development of fewer projects. It also has placed a more urgent emphasis on gaining a measurable return from each proj-

"This year's annual report shows that beef checkoff dollars didn't go to physicians' seminars unless we could measure the number of patients that doctors reached after attending those seminars," says Anne I. Anderson, TBC executive vice preident. "Instead, we focused on projects that would, for instance, increase the number of beef items on menus or increase the frequency with which those items are served."
