Although county officials have urged Floyd County residents to use extreme caution in erty without permission. Anyone celebrating the Fourth of July with fireworks, concern still exists due to be subject to receiving a citation and the recent drought conditions.

County Judge Bill Hardin said, "The rains have helped, but it would still be easy to start a grass fire which could devastate large areas of the county."

After brief discussion, the commissioners approved a motion to prohibit or restrict aerial fireworks in the county at this time. They urged all citizens to enjoy the holiday safely and to use caution with all fireworks to avoid fires or injuries.

The court has indicated that law purchase of a new base station, antenna system, duplexer, and repeater enforcement personnel will be instructed to diligently patrol county antenna for interlocal communica-

Extended calling coming to Lockney on October 8th

LOCKNEY-Lockney telephone customers will have to wait longer than expected for the new extended long distance service to go into effect. According to a recent letter sent to the City of Lockney, Southwestern Bell is requesting an implementation date of October 8.

According to Southwestern Bell this time is necessary to provide for the new equipment and additional facilities which will be necessary to bring extended calling to Lockney. Southwestern Bell said adjustments must also be made to the billing system and in the central office.

A motion by Gilroy, seconded by Bearden, awarded the bid to South Plains Communications, the low bidder at $12,989.00. The bid for Kenwood equipment carried a two year warranty on parts and labor and estimated installation within two weeks of the awarding of the bid.

Other bidders were: Two-Way Radio of Plainview ($16,136.90) for Motorola equipment; Parkinson Electric ($15,892.00) for Ericson GE equipment; and Lubbock Communications ($16,435.00 and $18,760.00) both for Motorola equipment.

Also approved during the meeting was an application to withdraw and replace securities insuring county funds on deposit with the bank. The routine action was unanimously approved on a motion by Bearden with a second by Jones.

Senator's wife to visit this Sunday

Sen. Phil Gramm's wife, Wendy, will be in Floydada, June 23, to meet with law enforcement officials and the public in an effort to help her husband push his "Sexual Offender Tracking and Identification Act" which he recently introduced in the senate. Mrs. Gramm will meet with those interested in the legislation at the Floyd County Courthouse from 2:15 p.m. - 2:55 p.m. The Sexual Offender Tracking and Identification Act is co-sponsored by Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr. The legislation builds on a series of law sponsored by Texas State Senator Florence Shapiro collectively known as Ashley's laws, which increased mandatory minimum sentences for sex predator crimes and established a statewide tracking system for these offenders after their release Sen. Gramm and Biden believe Shapiro's legislation would be enhanced by a national system to track sex offenders who come to Texas from other states.

Board President Tom Farris reported the receipt of $60,918.74 from the insurance settlement on attorney fees paid for services regarding lawsuits. He said the money arrived after the first of June and is not reflected on these reports.

The reports were unanimously accepted as presented on a motion by Eastham with a second by Heflin.

Board members rejected a bid to purchase two lots on South Leonard Street made by Johnny Summers. He bid $200.00 for the lots, adjacent to his house. Citing the cost of preparing the transfer deeds, Carmel Eastham made a motion to reject the bid. It was seconded by Payne and all voted in favor.

Minutes of the previous meeting were reviewed and approved on a motion by Heflin with a second by Eastham. All voted in favor.

Floydada school trustees discuss $6.5 million proposed budget

FLOYDADA - Administrative ects larger than that." Assistant Jimmie Collins presented Floydada Independent School District Board members with a preliminary budget for their review and consideration during the Thursday, June 13, meeting. The proposed budget figures are for the 1996-97 school year.

According to Collins, the preliminary budget figures show an estimated total budget for the coming year in the amount of $6,590,314.00. He termed it a balanced budget because expenses are offset by corresponding revenues but reminded the board there is no room for capital improvements of any major proportions.

"We might be able to fund a small project or two ranging from $10,000.00 to $20,000.00 in cost," said Collins. "There are no reserves which would allow us to do any proj-

LOCKNEY-Lockney school board members agreed to build a new press box at the football field during the monthly school board meeting held Thursday, June 13.

Coach Bobby Ventura had a discussion with Head Coach Malcolm Moerbe about building a new press box and quoted an estimated price of $5000.

The board agreed that the press box was in need of repair due to weather erosion and vandalism.

"We could do renovations needed to make the press box last one more year, but if we do, it would just last one more year," said Moerbe.

Ventura, who according to Moerbe, is willing to start working on it as soon as possible, said it should be ready by the start of football season this year.

Moerbe also asked the board to consider hiring someone who was already on staff at LISD as an assistant to Head Girls Basketball Coach LaDale McCallister.

Elaine Barnes, who is currently the elementary physical education teacher, is interested in the position of assistant coach.

According to Moerbe, elementary principal Phil Cotham said Barnes may be able to schedule her conference period in the day to the same time the freshmen girls are in athletics at the high school.

"As a coach, Barnes could be there for most of the practice sessions everyday, since the plans are now that she will be coaching the freshman team she should not have to miss teaching in school because freshman teams play on Monday night and none of their games begin before 7:30 p.m.," said Moerbe.

The salary of the prospective coach was then discussed and the board came to agreement, and hired Barnes as elementary physical education teacher and LHS freshman girls team coach.

The board also hired Darren Whalen, as junior high social studies Continued On Page 6

Not too long ago I heard an interview on the radio with a Rev. Wright of Kansas.

Wright had caused an uproar with a prayer he had offered up at the opening of a session of the Kansas House of Representatives.

I never got to hear the prayer, I only heard about the reaction from some of the members in the House, and the atheists and special interest groups who I believe later picketed his church.

When I heard his interview I wished I had heard the prayer. Duard Reeves, of Lockney, has since brought me the prayer. I thought I might share it with you.

According to Reeves' information one Kansas Representative said, "I have never heard in 10 years, as divisive, sanctimonious, self-serving, overbearing prayer, as I have heard this morning".

One representative is said to have walked out and another is said to have living Savior, Jesus Christ-Amen." sat down in protest.

Here is the prayer-Would you have walked out?

"Heavenly Father: We come to you today to ask your forgiveness and seek your direction and guidance. We know your word says, 'Woe to those who call evil good,' but that's exactly what we've done. We have lost our spiritual equilibrium and inverted our values.

"We confess that we have ridiculed the absolute truth of your word and called it moral pluralism.

"We have worshipped other gods and called it multi-culturalism. "We have endorsed perversion and called it an alternative lifestyle. "We have exploited the poor and called it the lottery.

"We have neglected to discipline our children and called it building esteem. "We have abused power and called it political savvy.

"We have coveted our neighbors' possessions and called it ambition. "We have polluted the air with profanity and pornography and called it freedom of expression.

"We have ridiculed the time-honored values of our forefathers and called it enlightenment.

"Search us, O God, and know our hearts today; try us and see if there be some wicked way in us; cleanse us from every sin and set us free.

"Guide and bless these men and women who have been sent here by the people of Kansas, and who have been ordained by you, to govern this great state. Grant them your wisdom to rule, and may their decisions direct us to the center of your will.

"I ask it in the name of your son, the I think the problem here is not that Rev. Wright said these things, but that our spiritual and political leaders haven't said it enough. Maybe if we heard it more we wouldn't be so shocked when someone says it. ******

We learned a new word today at work.

Margarette Word brought in her Senior Citizen's News and asked us the correct spelling for more than one "campus". She thought ending the word with "es" looked funny-and we weren't sure.

Juanita Stepp jokingly said, "I wonder if it is like octopus. If there is more than one, it's octopi."

We thought that sounded pretty funny. Laney

We have nothing against Mr. Cane. He seems a personable, friendly adbasic quarrel with those views.

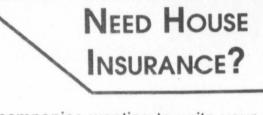

But we see no reason not to reelect Mr. Laney. He has a reputation of being fair in his dealing with voters in this district and with his fellow House members, who have elected him their Speaker, and who are evidently poised to elect him again to that important to the Legislature and to the Speakership, he has been supported by both Republicans and Democrats. In turn, he has, in our view, treated memcomes to committee assignments and consideration of legislation.

We do not always agree with every position taken by the Speaker. We are very much in favor of the idea of making it easier for the people to initiate legislation, for instance. We understand all the arguments for and against the idea, but in our view the arguments for outweigh the arguments against.

Nevertheless, we certainly would not fall out with a legislator whose service we think is beneficial to this comvocate for his views, and we have no munity just because we disagree with him on that one issue. If Laney were a wild eyed liberal, bent upon the socialization of America, we would oppose him, just as we consistently opposed our former State Senator Steve Carriker until the voters finally saw the light and bounced him from office. We would do that even if he position. In his previous races, both agreed with us on many individual issues. But Laney is not a Carriker. As a legislator he is generally supportive of those issues most important to us. He is not in the hip pocket of the trial bers of both parties fairly when it lawyers. He is supportive of those issues important to this region. And ... he is in position to do something about

> For those reasons we believe it would be in the best interests of the people of this legislative district to reelect Pete Laney in November.

That is our thinking now, and will probably be our thinking in November. If not, we'll say so.

Monday, June 24: German Sausage, vegetable, salad and dessert. Tuesday, June 25: Spaghetti, vegetable, salad and dessert.

Renee' Bartoli and Joel Mitchell were united in marriage Saturday, June 15, 1996, in Austin at the Salt Lick Pavilion on Onion Creek.

The bride is the daughter of Ms. Susan Bartoli and Mr. and Mrs. Terry L. Bartoli of Austin and the groom is the son of Warren and Charlotte Mitchell of Lockney. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Tommy Beck, pastor of First United Methodist Church of Lockney.

The wedding was held outdoors under a canopy of pecan trees. In keeping with the surroundings of the outdoor site, a cedar archway was wrapped in a garland of ivy and roses and surrounded by Boston ferns. The ceremony was highlighted by a selection of classical and traditional wedding music by harpist, Diane Reimer.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an ivory Alencon lace gown designed by Sweetheart. It featured a halter top neckline and was sleeveless. The fitted bodice was heavily beaded with appliques of Alencon lace, seed pearls, and clear sequins. The sheath style gown was decorated with Alencon lace, pearls and sequins, with a slit in the back. The back was highlighted by a bow at the waistline and extended to a full detachable satin train, accented with appliques of Alencon lace, pearls, and sequins. She also wore elbow length gloves.

Serving as maid of honor was Heidi Krueger of Austin, a high school friend of the bride. Deana Seidel of Austin, a college friend of the bride served as bridesmaid. Both attendants were dressed in an elegant black evening gown and carried red roses with ivy.

Along with the other attendants, was Jeff Hernandez of Austin, a long time friend of the bride.

Acting as best man was Mark Zaleski, of Austin, close friend and co-worker of the bride and groom. Groomsmen were Matt Michell of Austin, and Tim Mitchell of Lockney, both brothers of the groom.

Ushers were Kevin Neie of College Station, college friend of the groom, and Pele Bartoli of Austin, brother of the bride.

Registering guests was Tandi Mitchell of Austin.

The reception was held at Salt Lick Pavilion, hosted by the bride and groom. A barbecue dinner was fold lowed by blackberry cobbler and traditional wedding cake.

After a wedding trip to Sonoma Valley, California, the couple will reside in Austin.

Jim Word and grandson Chase Carr, have just returned from a ten-day Archeology Field School held near Clarendon, Texas. There were over 212 people. They were from Mexico, El Paso, Houston, San Antonio, Amarillo, Lubbock, Oklahoma, Clarendon and San Angelo. It dates about 1000-1200 A.D. at the Woodland site and they found lots of arrow points, beads, pottery, knives that Indians made and used.

Some of the workers made daily trips from Clarendon to the Coronado's site here in Blanco Canyon.

Teacher Dedication

This is dedicated to all teachers everywhere, and those who have chosen that path. A special thanks to the teachers of Lockney I.S.D. I have three kids who attended Lockney. All three received a good education, and became responsible adults. This was possible because of the dedicated efforts of you the teacher. You not only taught them what they needed to know, you also provided a positive role model for them to follow. For this I say THANK YOU.

TEACHERS

Teachers carry the flame of truth that brightens the pathway of life. Knowledge and understanding fuel the torch and the flame is forever bright. Ignorance is man's greatest enemy and his soul is shackled by fear. So teachers must sing the song of truth for all of us to hear. This precious gift of teaching God has given to the soul of man Has unlocked the doors of opportunity and healed a savage land. Chosen by the hand of God few will know this gift of merit. For the greatest reward a mortal will know is to lift a broken spirit.

Junior high and high school teacher Kevin Meyer, submitted his letter of resignation to the board. Meyer, who will be teaching in Panhandle School District thanked the board for their support throughout his years at LISD.

In regular business the board approved minutes of the previous meeting as read, and approved payment of bills. Superintendant Raymond Lusk presented the board with 1995-96 TAAS results. Results reflected Lockney's scores as compared to state levels in the 1995-96 school year.

School board members were presented with blueprints for new science labs and new elementary classrooms. According to Raymond Lusk, LISD Superintendent, blueprints show where the buildings were going to be added on. Plans also include making the high school wheelchair accessable. The board approved taking bids on the project in order to determine the possible costs.

The board considered bids on tax property already accepted by the city and city council. The first tax property is for Lot 25, Block 2, Tuttle addition of $200.00 and Lots 1-5 and the North 30' of Lot 6, Block 2, Vineyard addition for $550.00. The board accepted these bids as well.

Texas Association of School Board policy manual updates were authorized by the board.

Superintendent Lusk discussed leave policy for district employees, but no action was taken at this time.

After looking over last years records the board approved a worker's compensation plan for the employees of LISD.

Lockney ISD board approved expenditure of jointly held Title IV funds for use at the Alternative School for math and science.

The board discussed attendance at an upcoming board training session and the Texas Association of School Boards convention to be held in Houston later this year. No action was Advertising

In This Newspaper, Benefits Your Business and Your Community! school year.

In the principal's report, high school principal James Poole, presented the board with updated changes to the graduation requirement for high school seniors. Additional credits were added and the plan will be implemented in the 1997-98

Present for the meeting were, Superintendant Raymond Lusk, Board Members Jim Bob Martin, Louie Bybee, Bernie Ford, Dan Smith, Jesse Garza, Mike Mathis, High school prinicpal James Poole, and the Hesperian-Beacon reporter.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED GAS RATE CHANGE

Thursday, June 20, 1996 - The Floyd County Hesperian-Beacon - Page 7

On May 31, 1996, Energas Company filed Statements of Intent to change its gas rates with each incorporated city listed below. The proposed changes will take effect no sooner than 35 days after filing. Each city may suspend the proposed effective date for an additional 90 days.

The company proposes to increase rates to General Service (residential and commercial), Small Industrial Service, Large Gas Air Conditioning and/ or Electric Generating Gas Service, and the Air Conditioning Rate Rider. Additionally, the company is proposing to offer a new service, General Service-State Institutions, to state agencies. The company may implement a different rate design than proposed provided the increased revenue does not exceed that specified herein.

The proposed changes are expected to increase the company's annual revenues by approximately 7.6 percent or $7.7 million. The proposed changes could affect approximately 200,000 gas consumers in the following communities:

Ogallala management plan

WHAT IF you woke up some morning and your town had run out of water ...? First, your spigot sputters and sucks air. Therefore, no pot of coffee, no boiled eggs, forget about a shower, and you can't even flush the toilet again. No watering the lawn, no washing cloths, and there's not enough water to wash the dog. This may be a bit far-fetched ...

But WHAT IF irrigated agriculture played out on the High Plains...how fast would land values drop, food and fiber prices climb, agri-business and related industries close down and area towns be boarded up?

Recognizing that the area can't afford to take its finite water resources in the Ogallala Aquifer for granted, water leaders throughout the 47county region are joining forces with agriculture, business, industry, municipalities, and concerned citizens who recognize that they are all stakeholders in this crucial issue. Together, they are working to ensure that these "What ifs" don't happen on the Texas High Plains. They are taking both a close-up and long-term look at the entire region to identify "policies and initiatives needed to support an improved water management future."

Their planning framework is the High Plains Ogallala Aquifer Regional Water Management Plan, (HPOAWMP), or the Ogallala Water Plan, for short. A regional plan at an unprecedented scale in Texas, the Ogallala Water Plan is taking shape under a $1.2 million dollar contract between the Texas Water Development Board in Austin and the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No.1 in Lubbock. Fifty percent of the total study costs will come from local dollars and in-kind services.

A. Wayne Wyatt, High Plains Water District manager, and Dr. Llovd Urban, Director of the Texas Tech University Water Resources Center, are co-chairing the study with a planning team of professionals representing all sectors of our waterbased economy. They have been volunteering their expertise since the plan's inception in 1994. The contract calls for the study to be complete and a final report by early 1999.

The planning team describes its mission as to "develop, promote and implement water conservation, aug-longevity of the region through these activities."

Wyatt envisions his goal of approaching an equilibrium of drawdown to recharge in the Aquifer over a 10-year period as a measure of their real success.

The study will examine historic trends, current and projected future water demands and supply availabilities for the whole region. It will map out "most likely" and "aggressive" management scenarios. A water assessment study will be prepared for each municipality and include present and future demand, needs, existing supplies and potential new sources. It will also detail recommendations for additional conservation measures, various management strategies, improved systems operations and for developing new projects.

The team will evaluate our water requirements by county, by individual municipality, and by rural county areas for seven water user classes who include not only the cities (residential, commercial, and institutional water users), but also agriculture, manufacturing, steam-electric cooling, mining, livestock, wildlife, and recreation. Recommendations will also evaluate the supply sources for water quality, quantity, and economic feasibility to meet the existing and projected demands for each group.

A final task will be to inventory and analyze the various water management institutions, their structure, policy, authority, and financial ability to effectively and efficiently make it happen. This will include any state or federal policy initiatives needed to better manage High Plains water resources.

In the final analysis, the planning team knows only you, the water user, can make the water management plan a success. The task force is committed to informed public participation. They realize the ability to implement the plan is vested in public support. The team continues to solicit aware and informed citizens who will comment and critique. They are planning town meetings, press conferences, and opportunities to provide open communication with anyone interested in making smart water management the key to a bright future for the Texas High Plains.

There's no getting around the fact that Medicare's in trouble and will run out of money in five years if steps are not taken to prevent it. There's also no getting around the fact that the only thing standing in the way of saving Medicare from bankruptcy is partisan politics.

Last fall, I voted for and Congress passed a plan that would have achieved this goal. Called the Medicare Preservation Act of 1995, the plan would have saved Medicare from bankruptcy - not just through the next election, but through the next generation, as well. Specifically, this plan would have:

Slowed down Medicare's rate of growth to just about seven percent a year, which is more in line with the private sector and less than the system's current rate of growth of 11 percent.

Increased annual Medicare spending from $4,800 per beneficiary in 1996 to $7,100 per beneficiary in 2002 ---- an increase of $2,300.

Beware of archeological looting

Landowners in the area are being cautioned that individuals claiming to dentials of any archeologist seeking be professional archeologists and offering to do an archeological assessment of the landowner's property may in fact be relic hunters and not archeologists at all. This caution comes from Brett Cruse, formerly of Turkey and now an archeologist with the Texas Historical Commission, and from Anna Jean Taylor who grew up in Quitaque and is now an archeologist with the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon. "It has come to our attention that several landowners in the area have recently been approached by individuals who claim they are archeologists and want access to the landowner's property. In exchange for gaining access to the property, these individuals say they will provide the landowner with a report that details the locations of archeological sites on the property," says Cruse who works in the Texas Historical Commission's Office of the State Archeologist in Austin.

According to Cruse, "These individuals are not archeologists. We have reason to believe that they are intentionally misrepresenting themselves to landowners in order to gain access to archeological sites where they will collect and dig in search of artifacts. Often, relic collectors will sell the artifacts they find on the antiquities market."

"When we allow uncontrolled digging at archeological sites, we are allowing ourselves to be robbed of the very cultural legacy that Texans are so proud of and hold so dear," says Taylor, Curator of Archeology at the Canyon museum.

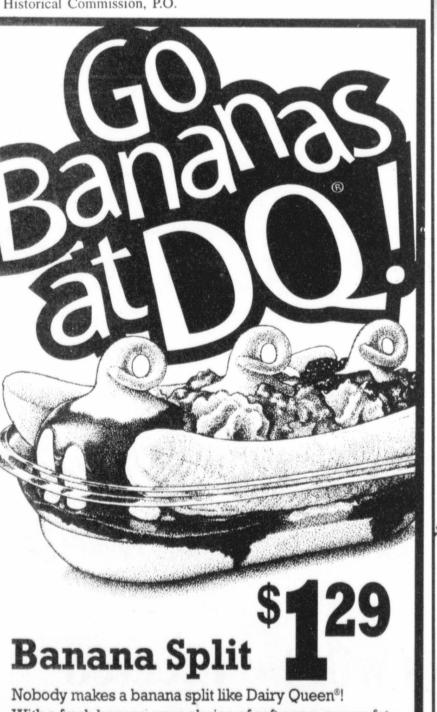

According to Cruse and Taylor, all we will ever know about thousands of years of the Texas past lies on and beneath the ground, in archeological sites. The history of the sites will reveal what has not yet been written in any book, or is not yet known to any living person. Once an archeological site is damaged, looted, or destroyed. the historical and scientific information that site contained is lost forever.

Landowners should verify the creentry to their land. Professional archeologists support this policy of verification to prevent looting of sites by collectors misrepresenting themselves as archeologists. Contact the Office of the State Archeologist at the Texas Historical Commission, P.O.

"FOCUS ON THE FAMILY" with Dr. James Dobson

QUESTION: Can you be more specific regarding the differences in sexual desire and preferences between males and females? I'm getting married next July. I would like to know how my future husband's sexual needs will differ from my own. Could you summarize the major distinctions that will occur between us?

DR. DOBSON: You are wise to ask this question because the failure to understand male and female preferences often produces a continual source of marital frustration and guilt. First, men are primarily aroused by sual stimulation. They are turned on by feminine nudity or peek-a-boo glimpses of semi-nudity. Women, on the other hand, are much less visually oriented than men. Sure, they are interested in attractive masculine bodies, but the physiological mechanism of sex is not triggered, typically, by what they see. Women are stimulated primarily by the sense of touch.

Thus, we encounter the first source of disagreement in the bedroom; he wants her to appear unclothed in lighted room, and she wants him to caress her in the dark.

Second and much more importantly, men are not very discriminating in regard to the person living within an interesting body. A man can walk down the street and be stimulated by a scantily clad female who shimmies past him, even though he knows nothing about her personality, values or mental capabilities. He is attracted by her body itself. Likewise, he can become almost as excited over a photograph or an unknown nude model as he can a face-to-face encounter with someone he loves.

In essence, the sheer biological power of sexual desire in a male is largely focused on the physical body of an attractive female. Hence, there is some validity to the complaint by women that they have been used as "sex objects" by men.

This explains why female prostitutes outnumber males by a wide margin and why few women try to "rape" men. It explains why a room-

DR. DOBSON ful of toothless, old men can get a large charge from watching a burlesque dancer "take it all off." It reflects the fact that masculine selfesteem is more motivated by a desire to "conquer" a woman than by becoming the object of her romantic

These are not very flattering characteristics of male sexuality, but they are well documented in the professional literature.

Women, on the other hand, are much more discriminating in their sexual interests. They less commonly become excited by observing a goodlooking charmer, or by the photograph of a hairy model. Rather, their desire is usually focused on a particular individual whom they respect or admire.

A woman is stimulated by the romantic aura that surrounds her man, and by his character and personality. A woman yields to the man who appeals to her emotionally as well as physically.

Obviously, there are exceptions to these characteristic desires, but the fact remains: sex for men is a more physical phenomenon; sex for women is a deeply emotional experience.

These questions and answers are excerpted from the book Dr. Dobson Answers Your Questions. Dr. James Dobson is a psychologist, author and president of Focus on the Family, a nonprofit organization dedicated to the preservation of the home. Correspondence to Dr. Dobson should be addressed to: Focus on the Family, P.O. Box 444, Colorado Springs, CO 80903.

ALTON B. CHAPMAN

Alton B. Chapman, 91, of Gatesville, died Thursday, June 13, 1996, at his home. Funeral services were held at 11 a.m. Friday, June 14, 1996 at the First Baptist Church in Gatesville. Dr. Jay Riley and Dr. Winfred Moore officiated the service. Burial followed at 3:30 p.m. under the direction of Scott's Funeral Home of Gatesville, Texas in the Texas State Cemetery in Austin. Pallbearers were four grandsons, Ed Williams, Craig Chapman, Brett Chapman and Mitch Heidenheimer and two close friends, Mr. Bob Salter and Mr. Don Williams.

Chapman was born on July 22, 1904 in Rochester, Texas. He was reared and attended school in Rochester, and had also attended school at Spur and Haskell, graduating from Haskell High School. He continued his education at Hardin-Simmons University and the University of Texas School of Law.

In his early years, he served as County Attorney in Dickens County and later as District Attorney for the 110th Judicial District. At the age of 32, he was appointed as District Judge of this district, and moved to Floydada, making him the youngest District Judge in the state of Texas. Chapman served as District Judge for 20 years before being elected in 1956 to the Amarillo Court of Appeals and moving to Amarillo in 1957. Chapman served two terms on the Appeals Court before retiring in 1968.

He and his wife moved to Gatesville in 1969. Chapman was a member and deacon of the First Baptist Church in Gatesville, past District Governor of Rotary International, a member of the Masonic Lodge and was active with the Gideons.

Survivors include his wife of 63

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND PARTIES:

You are hereby notified that LOCKNEY CO-OP GIN has applied for Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC) Air Quality Permit No. 32612. This permit, if approved, will authorize operation of a Cotton Gin in Lockney, Floyd County, Texas. The location of the existing facility is 1000 West Locust Street in Lockney. This facility will emit the following air contaminants: particulate matter, nitrogen oxides, sulfur dioxide, carbon monoxide, and unburned hydrocarbons.

A copy of all materials in the public file is available for inspection and reproduction at the TNRCC Lubbock Regional Office, Air Program, at 4630 50th Street, Suite 600, Lubbock, Texas 79414-3509, telephone (806)796-3494, and at the TNRCC Central Office, 12100 Park 35 Circle, Austin, Texas 78753, telephone (512) 239-1000. The facility's compliance file, if any exists, is available for public review in the Regional Office of the TNRCC. Inquiries about the permit application and any information concerning any technical aspect of this application can be obtained by writing Mr. Michael Wilson, TNRCC Office of Air Quality, New Source Review Division (MC-162), P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711-3087 or the TNRCC Lubbock Regional Office.

You may submit written comments concerning the permit application to the TNRCC Office of Air Quality, New Source Review Division in Austin. All written comments received within 30 days after the second publication of this notice shall be considered by the TNRCC Executive Director in determining whether to issue the permit. All written comments will be made available for public inspection at the TNRCC Central Office in Austin. This notice is to be published on June 20, 1996 and June 27, 1966.

Any person who may be affected by emissions of air contaminants from the proposed facility may request the Commission to hold an informal public meeting and/or contested case hearing on the permit application pursuant to Section 382.056 (d) of the Texas Health and Safety Code. The Commission is not required to hold a contested case hearing if the basis of a request is determined to be unreasonable. All requests for a contested case hearing must be received in writing within the 30-day comment period regardless of whether an informal public meeting has been held or scheduled on this matter. If you wish to request a public hearing, you must submit you request in writing. You must state (1) your name, mailing address, and daytime phone number; (2) the permit number or other recognizable reference to this application; (3) the statement "I/we request a public hearing"; (4) a brief description of how you, or the persons you represent, would be adversely affected by the granting of the application; (5) a description of the location of your property relative to the applicant's operations; and (6) your proposed adjustment to the application/permit which would satisfy your concerns and cause you tow withdraw your request for hearing. Requests for a public hearing on this application should be submitted in writing to Office of the Chief Clerk (MC-105), Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711-3087, telephone (512) 239 3300.

Before a permit can be issued for this facility, the applicant must demonstrate that all emission sources are in compliance with all TNRCC air quality rules and regulations and all applicable Federal regulations. This includes the application of "best available control technology"" to each new or modified emission source and compliance with all ambient air quality standards.

Boll weevil trapping shows clear picture

By Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. Early season boll weevil trapping projects are providing a very clear picture of overwintering survival going into the 1996 growing season.

One of the primary goals of the different trapping projects is to locate and assess the potential for population build-ups in advance of control operations that are set to begin in midto-late-September.

Localized pockets with heavier than average weevil activity are being found in parts of Dawson, Gaines, Terry and Yoakum counties.

One area of concern, however, are the overwintered weevils caught in Hale and Hockley counties. The map usually less than two weeks if squares rapid decline following the peak. shows the locations where emerging weevils have been caught during the month of May.

The information on this map only indicates trap locations that have positively caught boll weevils. Locations that have not caught weevils should NOT be considered uninfested.

Managing Cotton For Earliness Planting Dates.

Overwintered boll weevils which emerge from winter habitat prior to the onset of squaring in cotton have a relatively short life span. Studies conducted in west Texas have shown that the average life span of newly emerged overwintered boll weevils is

Boll weevil basics

By Jim Bob Reynolds

So far this year the boll weevil emergence has not been as great as it was this time last year. Trap counts are down, however we are seeing increased activity just in the past week. The boll weevil goes through four stages 1) egg - white elliptical, 1/30 inch in length, 2) grub - white, legless, 1/4 inch long full grown, 3) pupa - white, resembles adult weevil, 1/4 inch long, 4) adult - grayish brown, prolonged snout, front leg has two spurs inside of leg, about 1/4 inch long. Boll weevil damage results from feeding and egg punctures. Feeding punctures are made by females on the lower half of the square; egg punctures usually sealed leaving a wartlike place on the surface of the square. After a square is punctured, the square turns yellow and usually drops to the ground within two - three for immature weevils in squares on days. Small punctured bolls may also ground.

drop to the ground, but the larger bolls may remain on the plant. Severely damaged bolls may fail to open or may open partially, with one or more locks ruined by the weevil. The average boll weevil life cycle requires about 21 days. Females lay about 100 eggs during thier life period of about 30 days. The egg - laid inside the square and hatch in 3 - 5 days, 2) grub(larva) - feeds for 7 - 11 days inside the square, 3) pupa - 3-5 days inside the square, 4) adult - feeds for 2 - 4 days before laying eggs. Conditions which are favorable for the buildup of economic levels of weevils: 1) mild winter that allows high survival rate, 2) nearness of field to favorable overwintering habitat, 3) excessive moisture from irrigation or rainfall, 4) frequent rainfall and high humidity - allows high survival rate are not available for food. Even However, following winters of high though boll weevils feed on the leaves of seedling cotton, this insect is primarily a pollen feeder and is dependent upon pollen for extended longevity, reproduction and maximum pheromone production. The adult boll weevil uses its snout to drill into the square and feeds upon the pollen of the anthers which fill the inside of this fruiting structure. Female boll weevils do not lay eggs until cotton squares approximately 1/3 grown in size are present. Therefore, the majority of overwintered boll weevils which emerge two or more weeks in advance of squaring are suicidal.

Delayed uniform cotton planting to take advantage of suicidal emergence has proven to be an effective cultural control practice in the Texas Rolling Plains where late May plantings produce acceptable yields.

Producers should realize that cotton planted in late April or early May is more susceptible to infestation by overwintered boll weevils than are uniform plantings after mid-May. Uniformity in planting within boll weevil infested areas is an important aspect of the weevil management system. If planting extends over a long period, late planted cotton which has young fruit in the late season will serve as a trap crop when boll weevils begin to migrate from early planted fields.

In the west Texas area, overwintered boll weevil emergence peaks during late May or early June during most years. During years of very high overwintered boll weevil survival, significant emergence may continue into July. We have experienced this type of extended boll weevil emergence during the past five seasons. Therefore, producers should make overwintered boll weevil treatments potential overwintering habitat such when indicated by pheromone traps or by field inspections.

Chemical Control

Overwintered Boll Weevil control.

Overwintered boll weevil emergence begins during early spring and continues into the summer. During most years, peak emergence occurs span of newly emerged weevils is during late May to early June with a relatively short (less than 2 weeks) survival, significant overwintered boll weevil emergence may continue into July. Temperature and rainfall influence the emergence pattern of overwintered boll weevils. Emergence is accelerated by higher temperatures and depressed by low temperature and sharp increases in overwintered boll weevil emergence often follow rainfall during the spring and early summer. Boll weevils which seek winter shelter in leaf litter in cool shaded areas such as heavy tree groves tend to remain in hibernation longer than weevils overwintering in more open habitats. Overwintered boll weevils tend to emerge earlier from grasses, mesquite pastures and low growing brush where direct sunlight reaches the ground. Overwintered boll weevils usually move relatively short distances from hibernation sites to the nearest cotton. Overwintered boll weevil colonization in cotton is closely related to the fruiting of the plant, with the greatest numbers of weevils entering the field after squares are present. Egg laying begins as soon as squares approximately 1/3 grown appear.

Overwintered boll weevil control is designed to destroy adult boll weevils before eggs are deposited in squares. Effective suppression of the overwintered boll weevil generation will keep the F1 (first field generation) below the treatment level, thereby avoiding treatments at a time when bollworm outbreaks are likely to occur.

Boll weevil pheromone traps should be placed along field margins approximately three weeks before squaring begins. For fields up to 100 acres in size at least four to five traps should be used. Field margins near as CRP grasses should be given special consideration when placing traps. Pheromone traps must be inspected regularly and kept operational to furnish reliable information.

Inspect traps weekly and determine the average number of weevils captured per trap for each field. The life when squaring cotton is not available for food. Therefore, weevils captured shortly before and during early squaring provide the best measure of potential infestation.

The number of weevils captured prior to and during early squaring provides a measure of the size of the overwintered population and indicates the need for one or more insecticide applications.

The efficiency of pheromone traps decreases greatly when overwintered boll weevils begin to feed in fruiting cotton and produce pheromone. Therefore, pheromone trap data may not reliably predict the need for control after 1/3 grown squares are present in the subject field or in neighboring cotton fields.

The selection of an insecticide and rate for use in overwintered boll weevil control can be important in minimizing the reduction of developing populations of beneficial insects and spiders and the development of secondary pest problems such as cotton aphids and beet armyworms. The higher labeled rates of even the "softer" insecticides may not be selective in preserving natural enemies. Insecticides that have been less harmful to natural enemies and have created fewer secondary pest problems have been Vydate and Phaser/ Thiodan.
