The youth rally in Lockney was a success Saturday night--at least for the ones who showed up.

Approximately 125 people attended the concert/rally. Those who came-and stayed--received a blessing.

Unfortunately I think most of the people there were from out of town. Not that the out-of-town folks didn't deserve the rally--I just thought more of our own youth would see fit to come.

A few people got organized and the rally idea was born. The band that came from Lubbock (CREED) was not a rinky-dink affair. A lot of money was spent to get them here and even though I thought they were "too loud" the teenagers enjoyed them. Love, Dad THE FLOYD COUNTY

HESPERIAN-BEACON (USPS 202-680)

Published weekly each Thursday at 111 East Missouri Street, Floydada, Texas to determine "what the President knew and when he knew it." We saw nothing like that this time around. By and large, Democrats on the committee took the position that no wrong doing had been "proven," even as they tried to make sure no wrong doing could be proven.

A view from

The word now is that Congress will address the campaign finance reform issue again next Spring. What will come of the vote is anyone's guess. Quite frankly we can see no way that money will not find its way into political campaigns, and as long as everything is open and above board, we see no real reason it should not. If one citizen wishes to help another citizen become a Congressman, or a President, or a Mayor, we see no reason he should be legally prevented from doing so. There are laws on the books now that should prevent the most egregious wrongs brought to light by the Senate Committee. But as long as voters in this country elect to office those who continually flaunt our laws, or turn a blind eye to wrong doing by those same people, we see no real solution to the practice of dirty politics or dirty elections. Honest people will administer the laws honestly. Dishonest people will administer those same laws dishonestly. They will forever be looking for "controlling legal authority" and how to circumvent that authority.

Efforts by foreign governments to influence our political processes has gone on for years. It will continue to go on, one way or another, although it ought not. The influence of Israel on the foreign policy of this country is legendary among political operatives. Politicians of both parties fall all over themselves to please the government of Israel and its well-healed lobby in this country. A majority of U.S. politicians can always be counted on to send billions of our tax dollars to Israel in the form of "foreign aid." In return, they are assured of financial support when campaigns roll around

And Israel is not alone, among governments of the world, in its efforts to influence the policies of our government, they are merely the most effective, and the most successful. So successful have they become that in any showdown between the government of Israel and the government of the

M United States, Israel will win simply because of its influence in the Congress. Israeli influence is now built into "the system." Hollywood, the national media, certain religious personalities, can all be counted on to project a favorable image of Israeli policies, no matter what. Other governments see this, they drool and seek to follow suit. It does not help, obviously, when they gain the impression of a government of the United States that is for sale to the highest bidder. They see low rate hustlers, typical con men, invited to hob nob in the people's White House, with the only criteria being how much money they can give. Among political high rollers, that word cannot fail to go out, whether it is among foreign governments or sleazy individuals in our own country.

Given all that, there are certainly ways to lessen the impact of foreign influence on the decisions of our government. One very important way would be to stringently enforce our current laws involving that practice. There will probably never be a better time than now, with the spectacle of the current Administration's excesses being laid bare before us. Obviously, we cannot expect the Administration to cut its own throat by leading the charge on this front. Attorney General Janet Reno has made that clear. Now that the Senate committee has "recessed," we must look to the House for action. Fortunately, the House investigating committee will be chaired by a man who seems to have little interest in being "nice."

By Ken Towery

Metro-Plex hears beef message

By Lisa Williams

If someone among the approximately 4 million persons living in the Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex did not hear a message about beef from September 26-October 19, it's probably because he'd left the country.

The Texas Beef Council used the three-week run of the 1997 State Fair of Texas in Dallas to saturate Metroplex residents and visitors with positive information about beef. TBC, in cooperation with a variety of partners, provided a beef exhibit, participated in multiple promotions, conducted educational and special to present tastings of pot roast to more than 1,200 consumers.

For its part, Old San Francisco Steakhouse worked with TBC to distribute more than 20,000 recipe cards for its ribeye steak " State Fair Special." Restaurant representatives also demonstrated a recipe for "Cracked Pepper Ribeye Steaks with Roasted Onion Sauce" to State Fair attendees. More than 600 consumers sampled the recipe.

Beef information during the State Fair reached school children through a variety of means. Cowboy Dan, a WTAMU campus. country and western singer from events, and worked with area media and schools.

"Almost 3.5 million persons attend the State Fair of Texas every year," said rancher Jim Williams of Boling, TBC chairman. "Even those who don't attend get into the spirit of the State Fair. It's a great opportunity for beef to tell its story, and, once again, the beef checkoff program took advantage of it."

TBC's beef exhibit in the State Fair's Food and Fiber Pavilion greeted visitors with information about beef. TBC staff joined member of AgriFood Masters groups, Texas Cattle Women chapters and other industry groups in manning the exhibit.

Tom Thumb supermarkets in the Metroplex and TBC promoted the exhibit with advertising in the chain's circulars and with a one-week community radio spot. Tom Thumb and TBC also distributed 26,000 recipe cards that also contained information on the exhibit at checkout stands in the Dallas area.

Other support from Tom Thumb came with promotional information on the company's Internet web site and an appearance by John Roussell, Tom Thumb's senior meat merchandiser, in a interactive question-andanswer program with consumers.

"This program was very popular with consumers," Williams said. "Consumers lined up to ask him questions for two hours."

In all, 18,150 children and 37,100 adults toured TBC's exhibit.

Metroplex restaurants also joined in the beef effort. Good Eats Grill, a family style restaurant chain, featured chicken-fried steak as its "State Fair Special" in Dallas restaurants during the three weeks of the fair. It also distributed 20,000 recipe cards of its chicken-fried steak. Good Eats representatives also appeared with TBC staff at the Food and Fiber Pavilion schools on behalf of TBC. He sung the message that beef provides good nutrition according to the Food Guide Pyramid. He reached 600 students from kindergarten through third grade. Teachers also received free teaching materials from TBC on beef's nutritional values. In addition, the State Fair designated four days during its run as school days. More than 400 elementary school teachers received educational material about the beef industry during these days.

On another day, TBC combined beef's historical past with its modern products by bringing in a chuck wagon like those used on trail drives in the 1880's. While on display at the Food and Fiber Pavilion, more than 500 consumers saw the chuck wagon and sampled beef with sourdough biscuits.

Media coverage of beef's message was solid throughout. The Dallas Morning News ran a front page article about Cowboy Dan's method of presenting positive information about beef in its metropolitan section. In addition, KPLX, a popular Metroplex country and western station, publicized TBC's special events on the air. The radio station also organized live remote van appearances with restaurant partners to promote beef and ran beef commercials during the three weeks of the state fair.

Finally, even the visitors who came just for football games in the Cotton Bowl were impacted. The industry's new "Beef. It's What You Want" commercials ran 12 times a day for all 24 days of the fair on a large screen video wall in the "Big Tex" courtyard.

"We reached millions of persons throughout the Metroplex with this checkoff-funded program," Williams aid. "It was definitely a great program for our state's beef producers.'

"Andy reflects back on what he has done to many people in his life,' Schnitzer said.

As a law student, Andy must face school and studies as well as his recent breakup. Other people that are close to Andy are Bob, his faculty adviser and the director of the law school that he attends, and Jan, his psychiatrist to whom he tries to reveal everything.

According to director, Sara Zinck, a senior theatre major from Hereford, The Trial is a compelling story of four people struggling with who they were and who they have become.

"It is a tumultuous ride encompassing almost every emotion and exploring every basic human instinct," Zinck said.

The student-written, student-directed play will also be presented at the American College Theatre Festival on November 12-15 at Texas Tech University in Lubbock, where the play will have the opportunity to advance atre performance major serving as to the regional level.

Great American Smokeout includes smokeless tobacco

The Great American Smokeout was the first topic of discussion for the local board of the ACS on Monday, November 10. Brittany Defoor, staff representative, emphasized the importance of education and information in the fight against cancer-causing tobacco products.

"There has been a resurgence in the use of all forms of smokeless tobacco: plug, leaf, and snuff, but the greatest cause for concern centers on the increased use of "dipping snuff", Defoor said. "In this practice, tobacco that has been processed into a coarse, moist powder is placed between the cheek and gum, and a number of carcinogens are absorbed through the oral tissue. Dipping snuff is highly addictive, and exposes the body to levels of nicotine equal to those of cigarettes."

Defoor told the group that the Surgeon General has concluded that the use of smokeless tobacco is not a safe substitute for smoking cigarettes. It can cause cancer and a number of noncancerous oral conditions and can lead to nicotine addiction and dependence.

The use of smokeless tobacco is increasing among male adolescents and young male adults. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's 1995 Youth Risk Behavior Survey reported that 20% of male high school students used smokeless tobacco. About 6% of men and 1% of women 18 years and older use smokeless tobacco (snuff or chewing tobacco) nationwide.

Educational materials have been distributed to the schools, according to Beth Faulkenberry, president of the Floyd County Board.

Recently I've learned that my ex-wife is saying things to our daughter that I feel are damaging to her spirit. She frequently blames her weight problem, smoking addiction and financial woes on our daughter ("I wouldn't be in this mess if it weren't for you"). She also has no respect for our daughter's boundaries, and routinely confiscates cash gifts that are received for birthday or Christmas presents.

Since I am no longer recognized as the primary care-provider, I am somewhat hesitant to raise objections. Still, she is my daughter, and it pains me to see her subjected to this kind of abuse. Should I step in and make things right?

Dr. Dobson: I'm sure what you are witnessing is extremely distressing and I wish there were legal remedies to help you protect your daughter. Within certain limits, however, your ex-wife is permitted by the court to be a bad mother and even do things that are harmful to the child. If you attack her or try to place her on the defensive, you could even make things tougher for your daughter. Apart from what you can accomplish with your wife through negotiation and personal influence, then, your hands are tied.

There is, however, so much that you can do directly with your daughter, even though you don't have custody over her. Work hard on that relationship. Be there for her when she needs you. Give her the best of your love and attention when she visits. At 12 years of age, she is at the most vulnerable time of her life and needs a father who thinks she is very special. You can have a profound influence on her if you demonstrate your love and concern consistently during this difficult period of her life.

Remember, too, that the present situation may be temporary. Teenagers are given greater latitude in deciding which parent they want to live with. By your daughter's choice, you might have custody of her in a year or two. Until then, all you can do is the best you can do. I pray that it will be enough.

Ouestion: My children are still young and they are doing fine now, but I worry a lot about the adolescent years that lie ahead. I've seen other parents go through some pretty terrible things when their teenagers began to rebel. How can

Dr. Dobson is brought to you courtesy of West College & 3rd Street Church of Christ, Lockney.

DR. DOBSON

I help my sons avoid that turmoil 10 years from now?

Dr. Dobson: The apprehension that you describe is well founded; many parents feel something similar today. The most important suggestion I can make is for you to redouble your efforts to build good relationships with your kids while they are young. That is the key to surviving the adolescent years.

If they emerge from childhood with doubts about whether you really love and care for them, anything is possible during the turbulent teens. Boundaries, restrictions and threats will be no match for adolescent anger, frustration and resentment.

As author Josh McDowell says, "Rules without relationship leads to rebellion." He is right. That's why parents can't afford to get preoccupied with business and other pursuits that interfere with the task of raising children. Kids are young for such a brief period. During that short window, they must be given priority.

Once you've done what you can to lay the proper foundation, I urge you to approach your parenting duties with confidence. Anxiety about the future is risky in itself. It can make parents tentative and insecure in dealing with their youngsters. They don't dare cross them or deny their wishes for fear of being hated in the teen years. Teenagers pick up those vibes intuitively, with often generates disrespect in return.

Don't make that mistake. You have been placed in a position of authority over your young children. Lead them with confidence and care.

By Micah Marble

FLOYDADA -- The Floydada High School FFA Junior and Senior Quiz Teams will be competing at the National Convention in El Dorado Springs, Missouri this week.

The teams left Floydada Tuesday, November 11 and were scheduled to compete Wednesday, November 12 at 2:30 p.m. The team qualified for the competition by earning a fourth place at the state contest. Fifth place and above goes on to Nationals.

We would like to take this opportunity to wish all the members of the two quiz teams good luck!

The FFA Meat is in and we do have some extras. Anyone interested in obtaining some may contact Mark Standlee or Doug Bawcom at the High School.

park, where they prepared hamburgers for Scouts of the Flaming Arrow patrol for the evening meal. The cycling Scouts were fulfilling requirements for the bicycling merit badge.

The campers worked on earning their Tenderfoot rank patches. They showed Scoutmasters Martin Stoerner and Jim Huggins their tent-pitching, knot-tying and hiking safety skills.

Cold weather Sunday morning didn't deter the Lockney Scouts. Flaming Arrow patrol members cooked breakfast burritos for the troop, and following the Sunday morning flag ceremony, all the Scouts took part in chapel services at a beautiful site beside the Little Red River.

Eighth grade Shorthorns end district with 3-1-1 record

By Coach Hallmark

LOCKNEY-The kids finished the year with fireworks in a good game with the Olton Mustangs that ended in a 20-20 tie.

The kids game out and played sluggish in the first quarter, allowing the Mustangs to jump to a 14-0 lead before Mo Collins found the endzone. With 5 seconds left in the half, Collins found Frankie Gonzales on a 28-yard touchdown pass making the score 20-12 at the half. The defense played tough all night and did not give up easily.

In the second half, both teams played hard as both defenses stepped up their play. With tough running of Tyler Snow, Hector Morales and Chad Johnson and with blocking up front, Collins found the endzone again in the fourth quarter to tie the game.

The defense struggled early, but settled down in the second half and played well. Jared Lambert, Brandon Alvis, and Ulesis Martinez, along with the others, never gave up defensively. The defense allowed the offense to get back into the game.

I was proud of the way the kids fought back to get themselves back into the game and give themselves a chance to win. It would have been easy to quit the last game, but these kids wanted to win.

We started out the year slow, but finished the year strong and I am proud of every one of these kids. They are a great group of individuals and I hope the kids had as much fun as I did.

grade Shorthorns traveled to Olton ner. this past Thursday to finish out the Junior High football season. The Shorthorns came up short 35 to 0 but played hard the entire game.

As the season comes to a close our coaching staff would like to thank these young men for all their hard work and dedication. We realize things didn't go the way they had expected it to, but we think their improvement speaks louder than any victory we could have achieved.

Our coaching staff has always taken pride in over achievers and we definitely saw these lads accomplish a lot of great things this year. To these young men, keep your heads up and

Indians end Whirlwind season with 42-0 win

Courtesy of KFLP Radio Toby Shain scored four touchdowns and ran for 214 yards as the Seminole Indians ended Floydada's season with a 42-0 victory.

Shain, District 2-3A's second leading rusher with 1,803 yards on the season, helped the Indians improve to 9-1 on the season in what was a warmup to this week's bi-district game against Friona. The Whirlwinds on the other hand, end the season with a record of 3-7.

Seminole scored on six of their ten possessions during the game, while Floydada struggled to sustain drives of more than four plays. The Indians were able to pin the Winds inside their own 30 six different times, and the best starting field position during the game for the Whirlwinds was their own 39.

At halftime, Floydada had held the district's number two team to just 14 points, but two Seminole touchdowns in the third quarter over a span of less than five minutes proved fatal to the . 1-5-0 Whirlwinds.

Reducing pesticide risks protects wildlife

By: Ron Graves

Extension Agent-Entomology (\mathbf{PM})

Crosby/Floyd Counties

Most producers appreciate wildlife. They enjoy seeing wildlife on their farms and some benefit economically by leasing hunting and fishing rights to sportsmen. Fields provide food and cover for several species of wildlife. Quail and other birds, for example, nest along fence rows or in rangeland/ CRP surrounding fields and enter the fields to feed or pick up grit. Pesticides applied to these areas can potentially harm wildlife.

In recent years the public has become more concerned about pesticides and their effects on the environment. From 1987 to 1989, Texas farmers and ranchers treated an average of 15 million acres with insecticides and 20 million acres with herbicides. As stewards of the land and natural resources, farmers and ranchers should strive to use pesticides properly in order to minimize environmental risks.

The proper use of pesticides helps ensure that Americans have a safe, abundant and inexpensive supply of food and fiber. Pesticides improve crops yields and quality, and help to make farming profitable. However, improper use of pesticides can threaten wildlife and wildlife habitat.

Wildlife are directly exposed to pesticides when they eat plants or seeds with chemical residues or when they swallow the pesticide granules themselves. They are exposed indirectly when they eat insects or other animals killed by chemicals. Wildlife that are in fields when pesticides are applied, or that enter fields shortly afterward, may inhale vapors or get pesticides on their skin or in their eyes. Pesticides on an animal's skin or feathers may be swallowed when the animal grooms itself. Pesticides washed by heavy rains into streams, ponds or other wetlands can harm aquatic animals.

Reducing pesticide use is one of the best ways to protect wildlife. However, pesticide reduction must be coupled with good pest management practices so that crop yields and profits do not suffer. Integrated pest man-pest populations and uses biological, cultural and chemical controls to keep insect pests below economically damaging levels. In an IPM program, pesticides are used only after other tactics have failed to keep pest numbers or damage below levels with cause economic crop loss.

Crop rotation is another important cultural control which can be used to suppress certain disease and insect pest.

In an effort to protect fish and wildlife, keep the following in mind when using pesticides.

· Use IPM practices in your production practices.

· Choose the pesticide least toxic to fish and wildlife.

· Protect field borders and other noncrop habitats from pesticide.

· Completely cover pesticide granules with soil, especially spilled granules at the ends of rows.

 Minimize chemical spray drift by using low-pressure sprays and nozzles that produce large droplets, and properly calibrating and maintaining spray equipment.

· Don't spray over ponds and drainage ditches.

· Never wash equipment or containers where rinse water could enter ponds or streams.

· Properly dispose of chemical containers.

• Read and follow pesticide label directions.

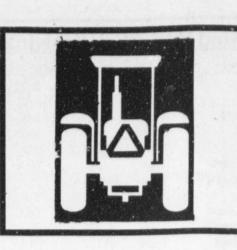

Every pesticide user has a legal duty to use the chemical according to label directions. Using pesticides contrary to label directions jeopardizes wildlife and exposes the user to criminal prosecution. It may ultimately result in further restrictions on pesticides. Please do your part to see that pesticides are used in a responsible fashion according to label directions.

News

Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers reports that efforts to restore funding for crop insurance are being addressed through National Cotton Council representatives at hearing of the House Ag Committee Management subcommittee, November 5. Efforts to restore the funding revolve around an estimated $200 million per year funding shortfall over the next five years. The funding shortfall was created by the 1994 reform bill which paid only a portion of crop insurance delivery expenses from mandatory funds and left the remainder to be paid with discretionary funds which have been sharply cut in recent years.

In addition to the remarks on funding levels, the NCC is also preparing a separate statement addressing deficiencies in cotton insurance provisions. Among the topics to be addressed in this statement will be lack of replant coverage, lack of equal prevented planting coverage for cotton relative to ther crops and the 25 percent deductible that must be met before a cotton farmer can qualify for quality adjustment insurance.

By: Shelley Abendschan Publications Specialist,

Texas Forest Service Seedlings for conservation windbreaks are now available for order through the Floyd County Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD). Landowners in Floyd County are encouraged to purchase the one-year-old seedlings before preferred stock is sold out, says a Texas Forest Service official.

Each year thousands of regionally adapted seedlings are grown from seed by the Texas Forest Service West Texas Nursery in Lubbock. The agency's primary objective is to produce and sell quality seedlings at a price landowners can afford, allowing them to plant large quantities of trees for windbreaks, says Robert Fewin, Texas Forest Service forester, Lubbock.

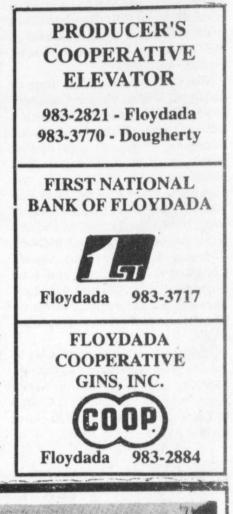

"Windbreaks are trees and shrubs systematically planted adjacent to fields, homesteads, or feedlots as a barrier to reduce or redirect the wind," Fewin explains. "They create permanent, natural protection and habitat for wildlife, reduce erosion, and increase land value and aesthetics.'

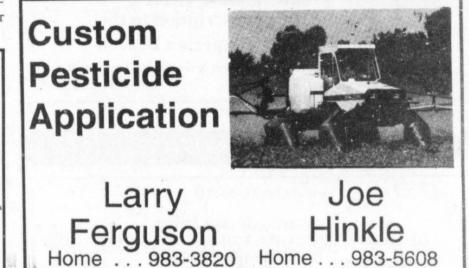

Wildlife packets for habitat establishment also are available. Each of the four wildlife packets contain 100 bare-root trees and shrubs which cater specifically to the habitat needs of quail and pheasant, deer, turkey or squirrel.

Seedlings ordered this fall will be shipped or delivered in the spring of 1998.

To order windbreak trees contact the Floyd County SWCD USDA building on Hiway 70 East, 983-2352, or Dora Ross at 983-3107, or Texas Forest Service West Texas Nursery at (806) 746-5801.

vote is official

According to a letter received from Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry, the Sheep and Goat Referendum sponsored by the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association failed to receive the sixty-six and two-thirds voting percentage it needed to pass. Of the 925 people voting on the proposition, 64.3 percent, or 595, voted in favor.

Of the 1,087 ballots cast, 51 were invalid, and 111 voted only for directors and not on the proposition.

TSGRA president Dr. Tim R. Turner of San Angelo stated the Association will focus on increasing membership, thus increasing "numbers clout".

"TSGRA officers will soon name a Membership Task Force to come up with new ideas on improving our performance on specific issues while increasing our membership base," said Turner. "We will soon be left with no organized way of promoting our products. This is a membership-driven organization, and we would like to have producers' thoughts on the direction we should take from here." He urged producers to write or call the TSGRA office, P.O. Date of the first of three weekly publications of this Notice: -November 13, 1997

Notice is hereby given that High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, a political subdivision of the State, 2930 Avenue Q, Lubbock, Texas 79405, has filed an application with the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission for a State permit to conduct weather modification operations to change or attempt to change the natural development of clouds for the purpose, objective, period, and by the method summarized hereinbelow unless a written hearing request is filed within 30 days after first newspaper publication of this notice.

High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 submitted an application for a Texas weather modification license on November 6, 1997.

The purpose of the weather modification operation is to increase rainfall. The period of the permit is for January 1 through December 31 in each of the years of 1998, 1999, 2000, and 2001.

The proposed weather modification operation is to be conducted for and on behalf of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, a political subdivision of the State, 2930 Avenue Q, Lubbock, Texas 79405.

The proposed weather modification operation is to be carried out in both an "operational area" and a "target area" to cause the intended effects to occur only in the target area. The operational area is that area including Armstrong, Bailey, Castro, Cochran, Crosby, Deaf Smith, Floyd, Garza, Hale, Hockley, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Oldham, Parmer, Potter, Randall, Terry, and Yoakum Counties, which is the target area and those portions of the following counties within 30 mile of ~the outer boundary of the target area: Gaines, Dawson, Borden, Garza, Dickens, Motley, Moore, Briscoe, Swishier, Hartley, Carson, and Kent Counties and Quay, Roosevelt, Curry, and Lea Counties in New Mexico.

The area to be affected by the proposed weather modification operation is the target area. The target area is that area described as the southwestern part of Armstrong County and all of Bailey, Castro, Cochran, Crosby, Deaf Smith, Floyd, Garza, Hale, Hockley, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn Oldham, Parmer, Potter, Randall, Terry, and Yoakum Counties.

The methods and material to be used in conducting this operation are summarized here: A licensed meteorologist will select cumuloform clouds or other appropriate clouds for cloud-seeding using a weather radar display, standard meteorological analyses, forecasting techniques, surface weather observations, and pilot reports to initiate the release of the seeding particles, such silver iodide crystals, from airplanes equipped with flare racks and/or generators.

Persons interested in knowing more about the technical aspect of the proposed operation should contact the applicant or George Bomar, MC 158, TNRCC, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711-3087, (512) 239-0770.

A public hearing on this application may be called on receipt by TNRCC of petitions bearing at least 25 signatures. Petitions requesting a hearing should be mailed to the Executive Director, Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711-3087. The petition must contain (1) the signature, full name, address, and phone number of each person requesting; (2) a statement that each person is at least 18 years of age and resides or owns property in the operational area; and (3) a description of each person's interest and how that interest would be adversely affected. Requests for a hearing must be received by the Commission within 30 days of the date of the first publication of this notice. More information on calling a hearing can be obtained through the Legal Services Division of the Commission (512-239-0660) or through the Office of Hearings Examiners (512-239-4100).
