The UMC Burn Center covers a 250 mile radius. The closest burn center, other than UMC, is in Parkland, near Dallas.

Most of the children who are burned are seen and released with minimal medical intervention. However, some of these boys and girls must undergo multiple surgeries, skin grafts and aggressive rehabilitation with occupational, physical, and speech therapy.

The painful rehabilitation therapy may take as long as one and a half years or more to complete. Many of these children will need to wear special garments to control scarring. Sometimes scarring can cause disfigurement and difficulty performing everyday activities.

"Because these children have been through a lot of trauma in their lives the parents very often are extremely protective of them," said Segura.

This camp appeals to the parents because they know we offer a safe environment for the children. The kids Dillon received burns to his face, can also get away and do normal kid

I can't imagine the shock people must have felt when they ran for their lives out of the Capitol building.

While unarmed citizens ran away from the sound of gunshots, Capitol police ran toward it.

Terrified parents searched desperately for the children whom they had just seen a few moments before on the other side of the room looking at the beautiful statues in the "Statue Room".

Now the children were lost in a crowd of people running towards ex-

Since my family and I were just there a week ago, I could relate as to how easy it would have been to lose your child in the mad rush. I could also relate as to how hard it would be for people to know where the sounds were coming from.

Echoes are famous in the Statuary Hall. Guides will tell you to stand on one side of the Hall and then they will walk to the other side. If you listen carefully you can hear your guide whispering to you on the other side of the room. At least one of our founding fathers used that trick to see what his adversaries were talking about on the other side of the room.

Something else occurred to me while I listened to the news,-- "Could I have found my way out of that building by myself?"

We were fortunate enough to have a personal tour by a member of Congressman Thornberry's staff. Even with the personal tour we were stopped 3-4 times at different check points. We went through more metal detectors than I have ever seen in an airport. Not only did our bags pass through the x-ray machines--they were also opened and searched numerous times. I told one policeman while he was digging through my purse--"if you find a roll of film in there, would you take it out? I've been looking for it all day!"

He didn't laugh. The Capitol Hill police take their job very seriously. Thank God.

I have no idea how many tourists pass through the Capitol each day, but I personally witnessed police that never seemed to take their mind off the job at hand. It did not appear to be so repetitious that they quit paying attention to what was going on around them--even when they were surrounded by tour groups.

A lot of questions have been asked about how to make the Capitol safer, and I can't see how they could do more than they already have. The system did work. The metal detectors did go off and the police did react quickly. There is no telling how many lives were saved because of their heroism. I believe the decision to have both of the policemen buried at Arlington Cemetery was perfect. They deserve to be at rest with the hundreds of thousand of other patriots who have died defending our freedoms.

That's not saying he will give truthful testimony, it's just saying he has been called to do so. As of this writing, our President has not even admitted that he has been served with a subpoena. Perhaps the matter slipped his mind, just as many other items of current interest have slipped his mind. He is, after all, busily engaged in pursuing the national interest.

Still, if we are to believe news reports out of Washington, a subpoena was served on the President more than a week ago, and his legal aides are in negotiations with the Independent Counselor, Mr. Kenneth Starr, over the time and place such testimony is to be given, as well as the parameters of the interrogation.

As of this moment we are not even sure the President will honor the subpoena, or if he will fight it all the way

Muscle pain could mean broken bone

From Baylor College of Medicine A muscle strain or shinsplints that won't go away could actually be a stress fracture.

"Pain around the shin should respond to ice and a reduction in activity," said Dr. Jon Divine, assistant professor with Baylor Sports Medicine Institute at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "If the pain lingers for more than a couple of weeks, the problem could be a stress fracture, a

Assistant Governor of District 5730 visits Lockney Rotary Club

LOCKNEY-Larry Driskill, Assistant District Governor, visited the Lockney Rotary Club on Friday, July 21. He spoke on "Following Your Rotary Dream". Driskill was introduced by Lockney Rotarian Raymond Lusk.

Driskill told those present the visit to Lockney was his first as Assistant Governor for Area 5, District 5730. He spoke on the project set out by Rotary President Jim Lacy to feed the hungry, especially the children.

The Feed the Hungry program will be similar to the Polio Plus program. "We will be using excess food and getting it to places that are in dire need," he stated.

The Breedlove Dehydration plant at Lubbock will play a large role in this project as will J.B. Roberts, Past District Governor, from Plainview.

Driskill asked the club to support as many programs as possible. "Your organization should have its focal point on local and community needs. One of the best works you can do is to promote your community through Rotary." he continued.

Driskill concluded, "Service to others should be the primary goal of each

A young man took some special equipment to sell for a friend, but he failed to bring the money to him. Months later the young man called seeking forgiveness, promising to pay the money. Forgiveness was extended. The debt remains unpaid.

A Sunday school leader was very negligent in her church attendance on Sunday night, weeknights, and revival services. Facing surgery, she assured her pastor that if God would raise her up she would never miss a service. Fully recovered, her attendance pattern remains unchanged.

A young couple pleaded for healing of their broken marriage. They publicly testified of their determination to change their life-style and make Christ Lord of their marriage. Reconciled to each other, their life-style hasn't changed. Requesting prayer for deliverance from a harmful habit, a businessman promised God he would be faithful in his stewardship, God delivered him but he forgot his promise. In his quest for knowledge, Solomon found that in periods of distress and great need, people often make rash promises to God in return for His delivering them. But once their crises are past, many people tend to forget their vows to God. Speaking to this issue, Solomon issues a grave warning:

"When thou vowest a vow unto God, defer not to pay it; for He hath no pleasure in fools: pay that which thou hast vowed." (Solomon 5:4)

KEEPING A JOB LONGER

By Ron Trusler

A person can change careers several times in a life time. However, some people change jobs frequently within one career. There are several factors that contribute to changing jobs often. Generally, it is more desirable to have longevity on a job and not be hopping around. I've listed a few things that can help you keep a job longer (that is if you want to).

1. Do what you say you will do. When you say you will be at work by a certain time - be there at that time or notify someone why. If you say you will call another person back - call them back.

sooner than you said. This is not always possible, but when you can it can be impressive, especially if you deliver quality work at the same time.

3. Do nothing you have to hide. Don't cheat, lie or exaggerate things. Keep your time sheet, expense report something else. If you do not sleep at night, make sure it's not because you've done something you are hid-everything. Some people seem to look for something to get upset about. Some of it will not matter the next day much less a week from now. Some things we get upset over has nothing to do with us. I guess we just have a good case of mad every now and then. It sure takes a lot of energy for nothing sometimes. Being stable in this regard helps you get along better with your co-workers.

5. Be flexible. The employee that says things like. "That's not in my job description" or "They didn't hire me to do that" will be extinct as the dinosaur is today. Today, the person who 2. Do what you say you will do will be more likely to succeed in the work place is like a juggler, who can be flexible and adapt quickly. 6. Learn to get along with others. Not everyone can do this well. Some people just seem to make others mad. Getting along with others is not all there is to keeping a job but it does go or whatever, honest. If you make a a long way. I'll deal with this issue mistake, admit it. Don't blame it on more next week - maybe I'll title it, "How to keep from "ticking" people off." Happy job keeping.

A Bi-county 4-H Day Camp was held on Saturday, July 11th at Caprock Canyons State Park in Quitaque. A total of 49 4-H'ers and family members from Briscoe and Floyd Counties participated. Participants were involved in archery, canoeing, paddle boating and fishing. Groups sessions were also held in crafts where 4-H'ers made and painted birdhouses and participated in educational recreation.

The Day Camp concluded with a hot dog supper and awards program. Awards were as follows: Top fisher-

COTTON Bollworms have made their first big push for the 98' season. Trap captures averaged 140 moths per trap per day over the past seven days. From fields inspected on Friday and Saturday it was very apparent that significant egg lay had occurred. Fields inspected on Monday had bollworm eggs ranging from 3,000 to 65,000 eggs per acre with one and two day old larvae ranging from 2,000 to 25,000 per acre. The trouble with this population is that most of these small worms were found in lower portions of the plant around large 1st and 2nd position bolls and squares. Detection of these worms can be difficult and treatment decisions must be made before worms get into a boll. Once inside a boll, control is impossible and the damage is done. Keep in mind that some fields may

If you are concerned with beneficial preservation there are many "Soft" insecticides on the market. These include Tracer, Larvin and any number of Bt products (see Table 1). Keep in mind that these products may not be effective against large worm populations.

If you are also concerned about boll weevils feeding in your field, then a boll weevil insecticide combined with a soft insecticide would work fine. However, pyrethroids are effective at controlling both bollworms and boll weevils and would probably be the best choice with higher worm popu-

Reporting Changes: If your children get free or reduced-priced meals because of your income, you must tell the school if your household size decreases or your income increases by more than $50 per month or $600 per year. If your children get meals because you get food stamps or TANF, you must tell the school when you are not getting TANF or food stamps for them. You may then fill out another application giving income information.

Confidentiality: School officials use the information on the application only to decide if your children should get free or reduced-priced meals. Free and reduced-priced eligibility information may be subject to release to other federal, state and local education, health, or other means-tested programs. Some programs already identified are the National Assessment of Educational Progress and officials collecting data for Title I allocation and evaluation purposes.

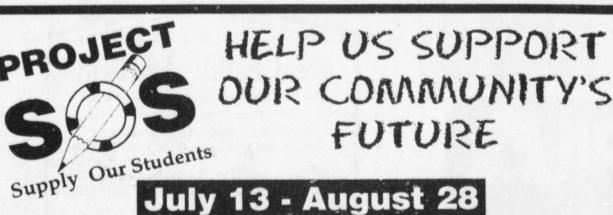

Reapplication: You may apply for meals anytime during the school year. If you are not eligible now but have a change in status, like a decrease in household income, an increase in household size, become unemployed or get food stamps or TANF for your children, you may then complete an application.

Handicapped: Meal substitutions at no additional cost for children who meet the definition of "handicapped" will be served, provided a physician has submitted a statement attesting to this fact and prescribing a substitute.

IN THE OPERATION OF THE CHILD FEEDING PROGRAMS, NO CHILD WILL BE DISCRIMINATED AGAINST BECAUSE OF RACE, SEX, COLOR, NATIONAL ORIGIN, AGE OR HANDICAP. IF YOU BE-LIEVE YOU HAVE BEEN DISCRIMINATED AGAINST, WRITE IMMEDIATELY TO THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE, WASHINGTON, D.C., 20250.

We will let you know when your application is approved or denied.

Sincerely, Dick Van Hoose
