Area sees increase in cases of mononucleosis

Health care providers in the area strain has changed." have been swamped with patients suffering from what appears to be a new viral strain of mononucleosis.

What may seem to be a case of the flu is very often turning out to be what was once called "the kissing disease".

In the past "mono" was passed on through contact such as kissing. Now, according to studies being done by the Center for Disease Control (CDC) and health care providers, there appears to be a change in the viral strain.

"It is now believed to have become a droplet infection," said Floydada Internist Dr. Salman Ahmad. "It is being spread in the same way that the flu or a cold is spread. A sneeze droplet is spread to your hands from kleenex, from where the droplet lands, or from the infected persons hands.

"There are also approximately another 90 people who choose not to take the blood tests because of costs restrictions, who I diagnosed clinically as having 'mono'."

The test for mononucleosis is a simple blood test and results are ready before the patient leaves the office.

According to Ahmad, he has also heard of a large outbreak of this infection in Lubbock and Hale Center.

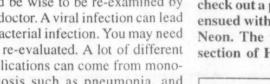

"We are not seeing as much spleenic enlargement as in the past," said Ahmad. "The symptoms vary and there is a wide spectrum. The patient could suffer from headache, weak-

LOCKNEY--The Lockney City voted for. Council heard the audit report for the 1997-98 fiscal year during the Friday, February 13 regular session.

Edd Henderson, Jr. and Darla Chappel, representing Edd Henderson and Company, P.C., gave the audit report for the 1997-98 fiscal year.

Henderson reported the city ended the fiscal year with a fund balance of Fire Department Chief, met with the $36,210. He stated the major revenues for the city were property taxes and the utilities. Those revenues are transferred into the general fund for operating expenses for the city.

Other revenue received comes from interest, franchise taxes, intergovernmental entities, city farm rent, fines, permits, ambulance service, Community Center rent, mowing and service

Henderson concluded the report by stating that he had done some research on city taxes and according to his findings, "The city of Lockney has one of the lowest tax rates in the state of Texas for cities of its size."

City Secretary Charlotte Hooten reported to the council the computer used by the city office is nearly full and will not hold much more data. After some discussion Rodger Stapp made the motion to purchase a new computer for the city. The computer currently in use will be moved to the police department.

Police Chief Jerry Edwards met with the council concerning traffic regulations on Main Street. Edwards stated he had been approached about parking problems on Main Street between Locust and College Streets, speeding, and pedestrians crossing around the hospital and care center.

He proposed a double stripe between Locust and College to stop vehicles from crossing from the opposite lane and parking. Also a single yellow line down the rest of Main Street. Bil Anderson made the motion to approve the striping and the second was made by Rodger Stapp. All

The speeding problem around the hospital will be monitored and possibly the speed limit lowered in that area. Edwards will look into painting pedestrian crosswalks which will give pedestrians the right of way when they cross in those areas.

Lonny Hooten, Lockney Volunteer council to consider ways of demolishing the Huggins' house on East Locust Street. He stated that the house was too close to another house to burn and it would be better to clean all trash and brush from around the house before bulldozing it. They could then push it away from the neighbor's property and have a controlled burn.

When asked why it could not be hauled to a landfill or the fairgrounds Mayor Gary Marr replied, "The cost to the city would be prohibitive to try and haul it all off after it was bulldozed, and we only have a permit from TRNCC to burn tree limbs at the fairgrounds.

According to City Attorney Paul Lyle, all the paperwork for demolishing the house has not been completed and nothing can be done until it is fin-

Raymond Lusk, Superintendent for LISD met with the Council and presented a proposal for the city to consider helping pay for the new lights at the baseball field.

The baseball field, used by the high school baseball team, was given to the city several years ago by the John Bickley family. The lights had been up for many years and were in nearly unusable condition. The new lights will be installed on the existing poles.

Paul Lyle stated that he would have to do some research on interlocal agreements and see if the city can help with the lights. The item was tabled.

Lusk reported that work is being done at the baseball field and most of it by volunteer labor. New dugouts are Continued On Page 3

Warren given Silver Valor Award

Floydada High School, and the daughter of Jill and Martin Warren of Floydada, was recently honored with a Silver Valor Award from the Air Force ROTC.

Warren is a senior pre-med major at Texas Tech and a cadet in the Texas Tech Air Force ROTC.

She was presented with the award during a ceremony, Thursday, February 4, at R.P. Fuller Track in Lubbock. The award recognized Warren's life saving efforts for a drowning victim in March 1998, while on Spring Break in Cancun, Mexico.

Unknown to Warren, Michelle D. DeMaggio, C/1Lt, a friend who was had been underwater for over ten minwith Warren at the time of the inci- utes." dent, submitted a letter to the ROTC detailing Warren's efforts.

According to DeMaggio; she, Warren, and Nathan Spillman, were sitting at the Melia Hotel pool in Cancun, Mexico looking out over the ocean. They heard a yell for help from a man they could see in the ocean.

There was no lifeguard on duty, but after looking for help and the assurance there was someone on the way, the three went to the water's edge and noticed the man was far from shore.

"It was a windy day and the waves were pounding him," wrote DeMaggio. "We decided we could not go in the water because we would get stuck there too. All we could do was

"Lezlie said we should be ready to give CPR if they could get the body to the shore because she knew the lifeguard would be too tired to do it. She wanted to give mouth to mouth and I was going to do the chest compressions. While we were waiting at the shore watching the water for any sign of the body, Lezlie was going over the procedures for CPR. Finally, the lifeguard found the body. He brought him back as fast as possible, but the body

The man was pulled onto the shore and, according to DeMaggio, at this time an older American man approached and told the group he knew CPR. DeMaggio backed off and turned the CPR over to Warren and the older man.

"Lezlie did everything she could trying to breathe into the body, but his lungs were filled with water. She kept trying. After several minutes an ambulance arrived....Lezlie and Nathan helped strap the body down and carry the stretcher to the ambulance. Lezlie offered to go to the hospital to fill out paperwork and see how he was, but they would not let her...

"Lezlie did the most to try to save the boy's life. She knew that he had been underwater more than ten minutes and that it was very unlikely he could have lived, but she still wanted to do everything possible. She remained positive and always held on to the possibility that he could live.

"I did not know it then, but the man did not know what he was doing. Lezlie had to show and tell him what to do. She remained calm the entire time and had to make sure the man helping her was calm also. That was difficult because he was yelling at her, but she took control of the situation and showed him what he needed to be doing."

A girlfriend of mine was telling me they thought he was part of the conthis week that she was enjoying her new internet and e-mail.

One of her first e-mail letters was going to be to her U.S. Senator. She was going to give him a piece of her mind about the impeachment vote. She was really enjoying getting everything off her chest but then she chickened out about sending the letter. She said she didn't want them to think she was nuts because she ranted and raved too much.

I told her she didn't have to worry about anyone in a Senator's office thinking she was nuts. I was sure her letter was mild compared to some they get.

I used to work in the mail room of Senator Tower's office. We were on the 4th floor. The Senator's office was on the ground floor. We were put on the 4th floor for the safety of the really important people on the ground floor. If you're going to send a bomb to your Senator you can rest assured that he will never see it. The mail room people will blow up first.

I never had to open up packages and look for bombs but I did get to read some very interesting letters.

One lady was convinced her husband had a "computer chip" implant in his brain. She told the Senator that her husband was a pilot for American Airlines and she felt like he had been "abducted" on one of his flights by "aliens". The aliens had implanted him with this mind control thing-a-ma-gig and she was afraid for the safety of the passengers on his plane.

She wanted the Senator to see to it that her husband was taken off his job so he couldn't fly anymore.

I always figured he just wasn't getting his "honey-do" jobs done and she probably just made up that story about the computer chip.

I filed her under "overworked

Then there was the lady who knew there was a conspiracy going on against her by all the dogs in the neighborhood.

She wrote the Senator that everytime she went to the bathroom and flushed the toilet, all the dogs in the neighborhood barked. She wanted the Senator to make them stop. (There is a conspiracy in my house similar to. that--everytime I'm in the shower someone flushes the toilet.)

I don't know what the point of all this is except to say--don't worry about giving your Senator a piece of your mind. It's his job to listen.

Byrd, you may remember, was the distinguished senator who, after sending early signals that he was going to be an independent voice of reason in the impeachment trial of William Jefferson Clinton, then switched his thinking (one hopes it was his thinking) and offered the motion to dismiss all impeachment charges against the President. In that motion he was joined by every other Democratic Senator, save one who was quickly informed of the errors of his ways. It was that vote that so encouraged Mr. Clinton (and all those people to whom he had lied and had lied for him), for it indicated that there would never be enough votes to replace Mr. Clinton with Mr. Gore.

True, true, courage in the United States Senate is not a marketable commodity. It is not something most members of that group will readily buy into. The few who do possess courage and backbone are looked upon by their peers, and what passes for the national "media" of this day and age, as somewhat strange, even eccentric. (Phil Gramm comes to mind).

Still, this nation, this state, this county, is blessed by those few who, seeing their duty, will stand and deliver. No matter what their station in life may be. No matter the slings and arrows they may suffer. We are in their debt. May their tribe increase.

And one more thing. Not that it matters to very many, any more. But there was a time when the one thing that would raise the ire of any good reporter was to find out he, or she, had been "used" to spread a lie. Usually, when that was found out, the consequences were not all that pleasant. The honest reporter had ways to repay those who had lied to him, or her, and in turn caused them to mislead their readers. Some still do.

Coach McCallister's Comments Overall, the New Deal playoff game was one of the most complete games we played all year. I was so proud of our intensity and defensive effort. I really feel like our team stepped up and rose to the occasion. I am so proud of what the girls achieved this year. We had an outstanding season and were in the mix of the playoff picture in one of the toughest 2A districts in the state. I thought our seniors did a good job of leading us to a 17-10 record this sea-

SHUT THE DAMPER-In Chattanooga, Tennessee, back in the '60s, just about everyone heated their to what to do, the red hot pipe began homes and businesses with coal in the to sink down and wrinkle into folds. winter

Coal was king. Everyone made a living off the coal mines, the shipping and the selling of it.

So, naturally, our little church was heated by a 'potbellied' coal stove.

'The stove' dominated the aisle. It was located dead center. Everyone had to go around it to find their pew. Of course, everyone sat near the stove.

Now picture about 50 worshippers in the center of the church, huddled around the stove in on a cold Sunday.

This one particular morning, I had filled the stove full of big chunks of coal and opened wide the damper following our Sunday School hour.

By the time we sang, took up the ments, around twenty minutes had passed.

was red hot and glowing.

Before I could make a decision as It literally melted before our eyes.

Brother Hickman, seated on 'his' back pew, yelled as loud as he could, "Shut the damper!"

Bro. Hargis reached up toward the red hot pipe and 'shut the damper.' Now, the stove began to snap and pop as it started to cool down. The noise went on for several minutes. I could see everyone looking at me and they seemed to be asking, "Who was the dummy that opened wide the damper?"

Being raised in West Texas (Ropesville), I knew absolutely nothing about potbellied coal stoves. A kerosene stove, yes, but coal, no!

By the time everything settled offering and made the announce- down, I had forgotten my message, the congregation had forgotten why they came and the Devil had won the battle I started preaching and was pretty that Sunday at the Battlecreek church.

'A Child's View Of God"

(While searching through my files, I came across this humorous article from a third grade boy from Chula Vista, California). One of God's main jobs is making people. He makes these to put in place of the ones that die, so there will be enough people to take care of things on earth. He doesn't make grownups. Just babies. I think because they are smaller and easier to make. That way He doesn't take up his time teaching them to walk. He can just leave that up to mothers and fathers. It think it works out pretty good. God's second most important job is listening to prayers. An awful lot of this goes on, as some people, like preachers and things, pray other times beside bedtime. God doesn't have time to listen to the radio or TV on account of this. As He hears everything, not only prayers, there must be a terrible lot of noise going into His ears, unless He has a way to turn it off.

God sees everything and hears everything and is everywhere. Which keeps him pretty busy. So, you shouldn't go wasting His time by going over your parents head and ask for something they said you couldn't have.

Atheist are people who don't believe in God. I don't think there are any in Chula Vista. At least there aren't any who come to our church.

Jesus is God's son. He used to do all the hard work like walking on water and doing miracles and trying to teach people about God who didn't want to learn. They finally got tired of Him preaching to them and they crucified Him. But He was good and kind like His Father, and said that they didn't know what they were doing and to forgive them and God said OK. His Dad (God) appreciated everything He had done and all His hard work on earth, so He told Him He didn't have to go on the road anymore. He could stay in Heaven. So He did. And now He helps His Dad out by listening to prayers and seeing what things are important for God to take care of and which ones He can take care of himself without having to bother God with. Like a secretary, only more important, of course. You can pray anytime you want and they are sure to hear you because they've got it all worked out so one of them is on

You always go to Sunday School because it makes God happy, and if there's anybody you want to make happy, it's God. Don't skip Sunday School to do something you think will be more fun like going to the beach. This is wrong! And besides, the sun doesn't come out at the beach until noon anyway.

If you don't believe in God, besides being an atheist, you will be very lonely, because your parents can't go everywhere with you like to camp, but God can. It's good to know He's around when you're scared of the dark or when you can't swim very good and get thrown in real deep water by big kids. But you shouldn't just think what God can do for you. I figure God put me here and He can take me back anytime He pleases.

And that's why I believe in God.

You Don't Have To Get Mad When Someone Doesn't Speak

By Ron Trusler

By Ron Trusler

It's easy to get your feelings hurt if someone you know does not speak to you, specially in a store. In fact, there may be times when you are POSI-TIVE they saw you first but yet they did not speak! It is common to think things like--Are they mad? They must not like me. Have I irritated them? This person is a snob. They must think they are better than me. They only they are use to seeing you. speak when they need something,

Quite honestly, all of the above things could be true about the person who does not speak to you. However. there are times when any of us does not feel real sociable and may try to avoid people. When you think someone has deliberately avoided you, try to not take it personal. They may just not feel like visiting with anyone at speak quickly. It's best to not stay and visit, but just keep moving along. If they want to visit, they can continue the conversation.

There are other things that could be going on with a person when they do not speak to you. Some could be: * Their mind was on something else and just did not see you. * You were out of place from where

* We have all "looked-rightthrough" another person and really not recognized them.

* They are not comfortable in social settings.

* They are insecure in carrying on a conversation. This subject may not seem to be very important at first glance but it is amazing how many people wrestle with hurt feelings from another not speaking to them. As I mentioned ear-You have a choice when you believe lier, we each have a choice. We can you are in such a situation. You can think all the bad things and get mad either keep thinking all the negative or we can think of the other things things and get hurt or, if it is appro- (that are more likely to be true) and

State Legislature considers monies for eradication of boll weevils

By Shawn Wade

Boll weevils are definitely on the minds of many folks in Austin as the Texas Legislature gets to work during its 76th Legislative Session.

An emergency proclamation by Governor George W. Bush and reported plans by other legislators to introduce legislation that would appropriate additional monies for the 2000- and 2001 biennium are all positive signs for Texas cotton producers.

Governor Bush issued his emergency proclamation February. It included a call to add $25 million in the Texas Department of Agriculture budget appropriation for the purpose of paying a portion of producer assessment costs in active boll weevil eradication during the current budget cycle.

Proposed legislation affecting the 2000-2001 biennium is expected to total between $50-70 million. Under the current law state appropriated monies cannot be used to pay already existing debt. That means without a change in the current law debt already incurred in the 7 counties removed from the South Texas/Winter Garden eradication zone and the Lower Rio Grande Valley would remain unresolved.

Texas Farmers Union meets for annual convention

By Wes Sims

Delegates to Texas Farmers Union's (TFU) annual convention, held here February 5-6, reaffirmed their commitment to family farm agriculture as the nation's best and most stable system of food production. Policy adopted during the convention calls for a federal farm program that provides commodity price stability and marketing flexibility for producers.

"As producers, we are walking a tight wire, where the smallest probiem can trip us up and send us tumbling," said TFU President Wes Sims, a dairy producer from Sweetwater.

Sims points to the $6 billion farm assistance package passed by Congress in October 1998 as evidence that federal farm policy is inadequate. "We are grateful that Congress recognized the crisis in rural America and passed this bill, but ad hoc disaster assistance is little more than a net under the tight wire we are walking. Federal farm policy is broken, and we need to fix it by correcting problems in our trade laws and adopting policies that enable family producers to make a living from their operations," he said.

Producer prices in 1998 were low for most all commodities. In some parts of the country, wheat prices sank to $2.06 per bushel, the exact price of wheat in real dollars in 1866. Today's cotton prices are lower than they were 50 years ago. In December 1998, pork at 13.2 million acres, a 1.2 percent prices hit pre-Depression era levels. At the same time, retail food prices have remained unchanged.

Another problem facing producers, and one which was addressed by convention delegates, is that of agricultural market concentration. In many agricultural sectors, four or five corcompetition in this area. Delegates 10 percent in the Far West. adopted policy which calls for greater

National Cotton Council projects the 1999 agement than furrow or center pivot irrigation." upland cotton crop at 17 million bales

By Fred Middleton

U.S. cotton producers are projected to produce 17 million bales of upland and ELS cotton in 1999, National Cotton Council economists said at the Council's 60th anniversary meeting, February 6th.

In their annual economic outlook, the Council's Economic Services staff said the crop will be produced on 13.5 million acres, an increase of about one percent from last year's actual acreage. Upland cotton area is projected increase from last year. ELS cotton area is projected to be 279,000 acres. The acreage projections were obtained from the Council's annual early season Planting Intentions Survey. Respondents to the survey indicated their intent to increase upland cotton acreage in the Southeast and Southwest porations buy, process and market as by 1.1 percent and 4.3 percent, respecmuch as 80 percent of all U.S. pro-tively, but to decrease upland acreage duction. TFU would like to see more by one percent in the Mid-South and

"With grower prices for cotton below 60 cents, corn below $2 and soybeans below $5, producers see virtually no profit potential in any crop. With a lack of economically viable options, many producers are taking a 'wait-and-see' attitude. As a result, weather, financing and small changes in price could play a larger than normal role in determining 1999 U.S. cotton acreage," he said.

Dr. Mark Lange, director of the Council's Economic Services Department, estimated domestic mill use will increase slightly in 1999 to 10.8 million bales. However, he said if the Step 2 component of the 3 step cotton competitiveness program is not funded again, mill use would remain near the 1998 level of 10.4 million bales. He she projected, will be below trend noted that domestic mill use is being suppressed somewhat by the influx of cheaper textile and apparel imports from Asia, which "now must find homes for much of the (textile) inventory they have or are now producing."

Council economist Kevin Brinkley noted that in addition to exchange rate differentials between the U.S. and Asia, domestic mill use is being pressured by a growing capacity of manmade fiber, mainly polyester, in the world market. "Many cotton producing countries are now producing textile products for global and local consumption with a higher man-made content," Brinkley said. "These products are being sold domestically to consumers who historically purchased exclusively cotton-rich products. India, Pakistan and China are all significant cotton growing countries with a tradition of consuming high cotton content products."

Council economist Debbie Vivien reported that 1998 textile imports are expected to reach 12.3 bale equivalents, up from 10.5 million bales equivalents the previous year, with most of that due to growth in Mexico, the U.S.' largest trading partner. She said the Council believes textile imports should slow slightly in 1999 reaching 12.5 million bale equivalents because of the expected depreciation of the U.S. dollar over the course of the year. She estimated raw cotton imports for 1999 to reach 200,000

Regarding exports, Vivien estimated U.S. cotton textile products should surpass the 1998 record level of 4.1 million bale equivalents, reaching 4.4 million bale equivalents in 1999. U.S. raw cotton exports in 1999, unless an effective competitiveness program is enacted. If a program is put in place, U.S. raw cotton exports could approximate 6 million bales.

Concerning the world situation, the economists project 1999 production at 87.6 million bales, with the U.S. accounting for the increase over the 1998 level of 85 million bales. Mill use should be 85 million bales with the weakened demand situation producing an increase in world stocks to 43.8 million bales the first world ending stocks to use ratio in excess of 50 percent since 1985.

The world raw cotton situation remains a troubled and very uncertain market," Lange said. "The many possible actions by China, the uncertain nature of Latin American economic performance, the World's increasing dependence on the U.S. consumer to buy more and more cotton each year and the amazing path of the U.S. economy all hold the world's cotton market participants in an ever heightening degree of anxiety."

As to the price situation, Lange said there is extraordinary potential volatility for U.S. cotton new crop prices. Failure of industry agreement and Congressional action on a modification of cotton's current 3 step competitiveness program, he said, could place downward pressure on new crop prices on the New York Cotton Exchange. On the other hand, industry agreement and Congressional approval of the competitiveness situation would most likely support new crop prices.

"Whereas, coronary heart disease is the No. 1 killer of American females, and

"Whereas, since 1984 the number of cardiovascular disease deaths for females has exceeded those for males, and

"Whereas, more that 505,000 females die each year from all heart and blood vessels diseases combined, and

"Whereas, women have lower chances than men of surviving heart attacks and greater chances of having a second attack within six years,

"Whereas, coronary heart disease is not commonly recognized as epidemic in women because it takes almost a decade longer to show in women and by that time a women is often concerned with other health problems that draw attention away from the serious threat of heart

"Whereas, the American Heart Association is committed to public education about heart disease and stroke and this year urges women to "Each One, Reach One!" by becoming knowledgeable about the threat of heart attack and stroke and passing on vital information about cardiovascular health to other women, and

"Whereas, the American Heart Association is committed to the support of ongoing medical research to advance knowledge in the areas of prevention and treatment of heart disease and stroke, and

Great Ladies

By Edward Marks

The ingredients for a moral society, are found here in this song. Learn them well and do these things, and your life can do no wrong.

These values are found in a godly woman the world so desperately needs. More precious are these principles, than all of the worldly creeds.

She speaks to us of honor, a value that seems misplaced, And shows us our lack of character, and it leaves a bitter taste.

She's a portrait of common decency, for all the world to see, And sets the goal for goodness for the rest of us to meet.

She's committed to her family, to this she has sacrificed her life. She's worked hard at motherhood, and always sought to be a good wife.

Good manners, and kindness to others are by-products of her unfailing love. She is truly a gift from a loving God, a rare treasure from heaven

She's our country's greatest resource, her presence is more precious than gold.

To have known a great lady like you is treasure to my soul. So our hats off to you dear lady, and all that you hold dear.

Your approval we'll always seek, and your scorn we'll always
