Congressman Thornberry will address constituents

Citizens invited to Town Hall meeting

By Lou Zickar

U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry will host a town hall meeting on retirement security in Floyd County on Tuesday, August 31st.

The forum, which continues a series being held in cities and towns throughout the 13th Congressional District, is intended to give area residents a say in the national debate over Social Security and how we go about strengthening the system.

"There are a lot of plans being talked about in Washington as to how we go about strengthening Social Security and ensuring the retirement security of each and every American," Thornberry stated. "I think it's important to hear what people in our area have to say as well, which is one of the reasons I'm hosting these meetings."

As he has done in each of his first two terms in office, Thornberry is holding the town meetings in each of the 38 counties he represents. During his first two terms, Thornberry held a total of 95 town meetings.

The August 31st meeting will begin at 5:00 p.m. and be held in the Floyd County Courthouse, located at 100 Main Street in Floydada.

"Listening is a very important part of my job," Thornberry stated, "The more I know about what people are thinking about retirement security and the other issues we face as a country, the better I'll be able to represent their views in Congress."

Thornberry added that area residents who would like more information about the retirement security town hall meeting are encouraged to call his office at (806) 371-8844.

Nelda Laney, wife of Texas House Speaker Pete Laney of Hale Center, maintains an active role in both family and state government.

"Nelda always offers strong support and encouragement of literacy and of libraries and their function in a community," said Martha Farris.

"Her words, interlaced with her genuine wit and wisdom, will focus on this in her speaking. We are fortunate to have her for our program."

Nelda has made public appearances and helped handle district business for her husband during his 26 years in the Texas House of Representatives and his last six years as Speaker of the House.

She served as co-chair of the Capitol Fund Drive, which raised private funds for furnishing the renovated Texas Capitol, and a vice chair of the Texas Capitol Restoration Committee.

Her creation of a series of collectible Texas Capitol ornaments generates funds for the preservation of the Capitol and educational programming. The ornament project has raised approximately $625,900. Nelda handles all phases of the project--design and advertising.

She has also been actively involved in the renovation and furnishing of the Speaker's offices and apartment in the Capitol building, as well as the public spaces of the House of Representatives. In addition, Nelda serves on the Inaugural Endowment Fund Committee and the Historical Art Enrichment Program to enhance the Capitol.

FISD TAAS scores improve

Junior High gets "Recognized" rating

"To be recognized the groups and subgroups which have more than 30 students must pass each subject by 80% or above."

According to Collins there are other factors involved with the accountability rating of a school. "It must also have a 3.5% or less drop out rate and their attendance has to be 94% or above," said Collins.

"One student made a score of 69," said Superintendent Jimmie Collins. "That one score kept the High School campus from receiving a rating of 'Recognized.'

A.B. Duncan, R.C. Andrews, Floydada High School and the Caprock Learning Cooperative all received a rating of "Acceptable".

"We have been in good shape with the drop out rate and the attendance rate in all schools."

A.B. DUNCAN SCORES

At A.B. Duncan, 78 3rd grade students took the TAAS reading and mathematics test compared to 82 in reading and 83 in mathematics last year.

Sixty four passed the reading portion compared to 56 last year, or a rating percent of 82.1% compared to 68.3% last year.

A breakdown by race showed 75% of Hispanics passed the reading portion compared to 65.5% last year.

Anglos also showed an improvement from 87% last year to 94.3% this year.

In the area of mathematics, all students showed an percentage improvement from 69.9% passing last year to 73.1% passing this year.

The rates dropped from last year for Hispanic students. In 1998, 65.5% of Hispanic passed. In 1999, 60% passed the mathematics testing.

Anglos also dropped from 91.7% to 88.6%.

STILL GOING STRONG--Despite concluding the eight-week program in December, the initial bereavement group sponsored by Lockney's Hospice Hands of West Texas continues to meet monthly for food and fellowship. Members of the group are (from left), Henry Ford Jr., Nina Teuton, Joyce Owens, Joyce Campbell, Kathleen Thornton, Donnie Meriwether Bowman, and John Bowman. Not pictured is Helen Guthrie.

First bereavement session ends with new friendships

By Laurie Hall

Grief and loneliness manifests itself in strange ways.

For some, like Henry Ford, Jr., the worst comes on lonely weekends. For others, like Kathleen Thornton, the hardest time is sitting down to a meal alone.

Struggling with the profound weakness that follows the death of a spouse, eight Floyd and Motley County residents have found strength through a bereavement group sponsored by Lockney's Hospice Hands of West Texas.

The bereavement group, facilitated by Laurie Hall, met each Thursday for eight consecutive weeks. The experience resulted in new friendships, new sources of strength and encouragement, and, for two members, a new spouse.

Joyce Owens, the group's youngest member and daughter-in-law of fellow member Helen Guthrie, was instrumental in starting the group.

"I was so lost after my husband died so suddenly," said Mrs. Owens. "I heard a support group might help and I knew nothing about them. I was hoping this group would help me get through the pain and help me find a way to get on with my life. I thought being with others who were going through the same thing would help."

"Not even your family can help," echoed Nina Teuton. "You don't need someone to feel sorry for you...you need someone to understand."

With ages ranging from 79 to 44, and all having lost spouses in the past year, the group embarked on an eight-week journey, which officially concluded in December, but has continued on a regular basis since.

"The goal of a bereavement group is not to get them over their grief, but to help them work through it," explained Mrs. Hall, who will start a new group in September. "The members almost have to find a new identity, because they are not entirely the same person as before."

"When people who have experienced such a loss can come together and learn that what they are feeling is normal, and interact with others having similar feelings, it is very beneficial."

The weekly meetings, which included a meal and were rotated among the homes of group members, addressed a particular stage or issue of grief.

"We focused on developing relationships and support," said Mrs. Hall. "For instance, each member was required to call or visit at least one other group member each week. After a few weeks, they were making these contacts because they wanted to, not because they were made to."

For some participants, finding the courage to attend the initial meeting was...

...didn't make the first meeting, and several members of the group encouraged me to attend," recalled Donnie Meriwether Bowman.

"I really wasn't too excited about it, but I thought, oh, well, I'll just go ahead and go. I had had feedback (from persons participating in other bereavement groups) that it would be sad, and that everyone would be crying, and there was some of that. But overall it has been a wonderful experience."

Wonderful enough, in fact, that she met her future husband, fellow group member John Bowman. "Getting married was the absolute farthest thing from my mind when I began attending the bereavement group, but John and I made a lifelong commitment on May 29," said Mrs. Bowman.

Other members, like Mrs. Thornton, were less hesitant to participate. "I expected to have a good counselor, which I had, and someone who really cared about my hurting," she explained. "Being married 60 years and suddenly you are alone... I would come home excited about something and have nobody to share it with."

I have found communication with other people, who would never have been together otherwise and are in the same situation, as well as fellowship, love, and someone who cares about me."

The group remains as close today as when they ended the program and not only shares meals, games, and sentiments on a monthly basis, but also travels to special events across West Texas. In October, they will attend the Ray Price concert in Turkey.

Their advice to those considering attending a bereavement group is as strong as the bonds they have formed in the past year.

"Join a group like ours," said Mrs. Owens. "We all started out crying and sad, but now we can laugh again. Grief is tough, but with the help of friends you can make it. It helps to talk with someone who has been there or is there. They understand what you are going through."

"I would encourage persons who have lost their loved one to participate," said Mr. Bowman. "Getting together is the key. All these people now seem part of my family."

Mr. Ford put it most succinctly. "Participate. It can't do anything except be good for you."

Melissa Long with the County Extension Office stated during a planning session, "In my recent four year planning group for the Texas Community Future Forum the number one issue was eldercare. This is a timely subject."

The next celebration will be Thurs-day, September 16th at 3:00 p.m. Your are invited to be with us at that time.

Well, hello, here we are again and will into August and another school year. We are indeed lucky people...just think of the devastation from the awful earthquake in Turkey, the hurricane in South Texas, and the flooding in some parts of the country and we can be assured that we live in one of the best parts of the United States.

Almeda Phillips was in the hospital last week, but was dismissed on Monday and seems to be doing much better. We wish her well.

Lynn Ray Smith's sister-in-law, Mrs. Joe Smith died in Arkansas and her funeral was Monday. Our condolences go to all of them.

Social Security manager gives helpful information for teens

By Mary Jane Shanes, Social Security Manager

Many teens are working at their first jobs this summer. Even if you're not a newly employed teen, it's very important to make sure your employer has your correct name and Social Security number.

The best way to do this is to make sure the employer sees your Social Security card. This should ensure that your name and number are reported correctly. If the employer's information is wrong, it could cause problems later. For example, if your W-2 form has an incorrect Social Security number, it could cause a delay in the Internal Revenue Service processing your tax return and sending any refund due you. Also, your earnings might not be credited to your Social Security record, which could affect the amount of your future benefits or whether you qualify for benefits at all.

If you get a W-2 form with an incorrect Social Security number, you should ask your employer for a corrected W-2 form. Of course, the best way to avoid this problem is to make sure the employer's records are correct now.

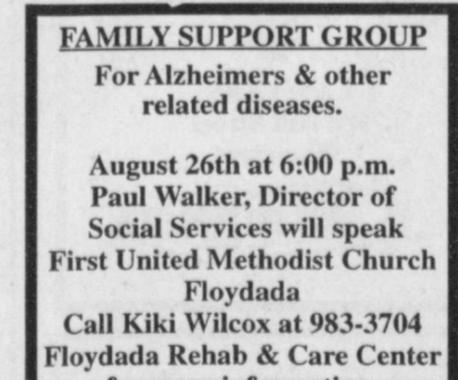

For more information call our toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, or call or visit your local Social Security office and ask for the pamphlet, Your Number and Card (SSA Pub. No. 05-10002). You may also get information from our website, www.ssa.gov.

August trail boss, Louis and Virginia Pyle hosted a fun and relaxing campout at Ruidoso, New Mexico. Boone and Ruth Adams and John and Christine Lyles accompanied Louis and Virginia.

About midway they stopped for coffee and doughnuts.

Already at the Circle B RV Park in Ruidoso were Bill and Norma Feuerbacher, Gordon and Darlynn Hambright, Harold and Charlene Norrell and Dr. Keith and June Patzer.

Louis and Virginia served a delicious meal of homemade stew and crackers. Others brought dessert.

Friday we drove to Cloudcroft for dinner at The Lodge which was originally constructed in 1899 by the Alamogordo and Sacramento Mountain Railway. We took various scenic drives, shopped and enjoyed the cool pines.

That evening some played Joker in the recreation room.

Saturday was spent shopping, eating out, going to the races, or staying at the camp to play Joker. That evening some ate catfish at the RV Park. Later a devotional was brought by Darlynn Hambright entitled "Love Is The Greatest Thing In All The World." Scripture verses were read from I Corinthians 13. Boone Adam led the singing.

After the devotional Boone led us in singing "Happy Trails."

Matter of Fact

Susan Combs

Texas Agriculture Commissioner

When it comes to food, it seems everyone's an expert. Everybody's got an opinion on the best way to prepare it, the best way to serve it and the best way to eat it. Have a food question? There will be no shortage of folks ready to offer an answer. With so many food experts around, why do some folks still have trouble answering the basic question, "Where does our food come from?"

There are those whose knowledge of the food production chain only goes as far as the supermarket. Food comes from the grocery store and it somehow appears on aisle after aisle each time they shop. For them, the link between the food we eat and the hardworking men and women of agriculture is missing – and that's more than just a shame.

As Agriculture Commissioner, I work to promote the industry. I also try to educate all Texans about the contributions of our state's agricultural producers, starting with the tireless efforts in providing a safe and abundant food supply.

Our state leads the nation in cattle, calves, sheep and goats. We're one of the largest producers of poultry and dairy products, nuts and citrus, plus a literal grocery list of dozens of other items. All these efforts and accomplishments in agriculture contribute more than $40 billion a year to the state economy.

Where does our food come from? The answer to that question is summed up in one word: agriculture.

A brief glimpse of the Lockney Longhorns in '99

By Bill Gray

A lot of questions are being asked about the 1999 version of the Lockney Longhorns. As Lockney adjusts to its third head coach in the last four years, the 'Horns have a lot of positives pointing their way. For one thing, their 5-5 record of 1998 is somewhat misleading. The Longhorns suffered four losses by a combined total of just 9 points. Those setbacks included one-point setbacks in District 7-2A action and a non-district loss in double overtime.

Many of the defenders who were around for those close games return with another year of experience. Jordan Lambert, "an ace of all trades," returns in the secondary and will have able linebacking assistance from Josh Quebe. Lambert is an experienced quarterback and defensive back. He was named to the Class 2A All-State Team as a punter last year. Other returning defensive standouts include Joining Lambert in the backfield at tailback will be Josh Quebe. Others expected to see considerable playing time on offense include linemen Tyler Bybee, Marcus Fierros, Jessie Ledesma, Adam Pachiano and Chris Ascencio. The receiver corps is made up of Shane Summers, Julian Guerrero, Chase Graves, Juan Gonzales and Jonathan Martinez. Junior, Brandon Hennigan will anchor the offensive line at center.

The Longhorns open the season against Class 3A Friona (the Chieftains escaped Lockney with a narrow 18-14 decision last year), and meet two other playoff teams in non-district action (Post and Petersburg). If they can manage to avoid injuries to key people in non-district play, the Longhorns could play the role of spoiler or even contend for a post-season ticket in District 7-2A.

Chris Ascencio, Tyler Bybee, Shane Summers, Marcos Fierros, A.J. Thornton, Julian Guerrero and Adam Pachiano. New head coach Chad Terry was the Longhorn's defensive coordinator a year ago and took over the Lockney program upon the departure of Kurt Ashmore. Terry's "50" defensive scheme will replace the "Split-6" used last season.

Lambert will direct the new "Pro" offense, which will replace last year's "Wing-T." Unlike most newly-appointed head coaches, Coach Terry is familiar with the team and individual players. "The transition over to my system should be very smooth since the kids know what to expect from me and are familiar with my work habits," stated the coach. "Besides, the kids kind of have something to prove since we've been picked fifth in a pre-season poll of district coaches."

The Country Preacher

By Pastor Darwin Robinson

A CAT IN THE CHURCH-Our rented church building in Tennessee was over 100 years old back in the early 60's. It was constructed by local people from local timber and by local pride.

Church member, Brother Hargis, and I built a new front porch on the church. We also underpinned, or skirted, the building to keep the cold wind from freezing our feet in the winter months.

The loose fitting windows let a lot of cold wind come in and there were holes in the floor. Here was our problem.

Being a hardwood floor, it was almost impossible to just patch a hole or two. So we just kept putting it off.

Sure enough, one Sunday morning during one of my most eloquent messages, you could almost hear a pin drop. But not so.

What we did hear was a loud tom cat scream "meoooooh!" His appearance was just two pews from the front. My sermon stopped dead in its tracks.

How that cat got under the church building is still a mystery to me. Maybe we boxed him in when we skirted the building in the winter. But for some reason, he did not like my preaching and he came up from beneath to let everyone know. Coming from that direction, I believe he was from 'you know where.'

By this time everyone was aware that we had an uninvited visitor in our midst. All eyes were searching the front area to get a glimpse of this creature below.

Mr. Tom entered the aisle, paused a moment with a puzzled look at me, then ran full speed out the rear door. It was open, providing us with air-conditioning during the summer months.

Now all eyes turned back around to me, saying like 'What do we do now? Dismiss?'

My look and silent response was, "No way, Jose!" I still had an unfinished sermon to complete and I had just been given a 'live illustration.'

I began my sermon again by saying, "Mr. Tom reminds me of a lot of people trying to run from God, His Word and His House."

The next week I did patch that hole with a piece of plywood.

MORAL OF THE STORY: "You can't keep a good cat down and every fat cat has his day."

SUPPORT YOUR SCHOOL CHILD

By Ron Trusler

There is a lot of energy involved in starting the school year. You can read the paper and see how much is written about our local schools and it doesn't take much imagination to know that is just a reflection of what goes on in some of the households each school day.

Some children really struggle with various things about going to school. I've listed some things that could help your child.

1. Keep your anxiety to yourself. You may be concerned with all the bad things that have happened in other schools but it is important that you not pass this fear along to your child. You may want to check things out with school officials on your own.

2. Avoid letting your concern over what other people think, dictate your child's decisions. Some parents are concerned about the type of activities their child is in. They believe it reflects on their parenting ability. You as a parent may like a certain area for example and may have been great at it when you were in school. However, that does not mean your child will be interested in it. Your child has enough of his/her own pressure at school. It is best for the child to be involved in areas that match their capabilities and not try to perform in a certain area just because "you" think it would "look" the best.

3. Allow children to express their anxiety to you. They may have concerns about their ability to make good grades, being accepted by other classmates, or just knowing what or how to do something. Do not make fun of them for having those fears.

4. All peer pressure is not bad. It depends on what peers your child has and what they are being pressured to do. If they are being pressured to grow and expand their knowledge - that is good. If they are being pressured to take risks, drugs, be something they are not - that is bad.

The biggest help for a child that is facing bad peer pressure is a good feeling about who they are themselves. Some call it good self-esteem. In other words, they feel comfortable with who they are, what they want and what they want to accomplish. Work on building your child's self-esteem.

See you at Old Fashioned Saturday in Lockney!!!
