Search on for non-related bone marrow to help Pat Frizzell

Lockney resident Pat Frizzell is in need of a non-related bone marrow transplant.

Anyone who would like to be testing to see if their bone marrow could be used to save Pat Frizzell should attend the bone marrow testing which has been scheduled for Tuesday, December 14, in the garden room of the First Baptist Church, from 3:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.

A small vial of blood will be drawn from you to see if it will be a match for Frizzell.

Mrs. Frizzell was diagnosed with leukemia in February 1999. She has undergone chemotherapy and also had her own bone marrow harvested, treated, and then replaced.

She was in remission for a time, but last week was told that the cancer is back.

"The only other thing they can do for her now is find a non-related bone marrow match," said daughter Cindi Cotham.

"The odds are very high that a match can be found so we are having several bone marrow drives, to see if we can find a match."

According to Cotham her mother has no brothers or sisters, which would be the likely place to find the matching bone marrow.

"Sons and daughters have only half the HLA's needed," said Cotham. "There is a better chance with strangers."

According to Cotham she met a woman recently who had received a match from a stranger. "She told me she had a 1 in 800,000 chance of finding a match. She was down to the wire and they found one.

"We know it can be done. We also believe in miracles and we are asking everyone to pray for my mom again."

County employee says lawsuit report was wrong

In a front page story December 2, this newspaper reported that Sylvia Bueno had filed a discrimination lawsuit against the county.

The report further stated that the Floyd County Commissioners had voted unanimously to attain Attorney Billy R. Wolfe of Lubbock as their representative in the discrimination charge brought against the Sheriff's office.

After the story was printed Bueno told The Hesperian-Beacon that she had not sued the county. She said she had filed a complaint with the EEOC and the EEOC was investigating her complaint.

She said the EEOC would see if there was merit to the case and was asking the county to respond at this time.

According to county officials they received a "notice of charge of discrimination under Title VII of Civil Rights Act 1964."

Officials say they are required to answer the charge of discrimination and the EEOC will then decide if Bueno should pursue the charge of discrimination with a lawsuit.

If she so desired, Bueno would have the option to pursue a lawsuit on her own without EEOC if the agency found no cause.

According to Bueno the charge of discrimination included two occasions: (1) "the sheriff refused to sign

Donations needed to help with annual community wide Christmas Day meal

Money, turkeys and drivers are the most urgent needs at this time for the organizers of the annual community wide Christmas meal in Floydada.

Volunteer cooks and delivery people will be busy on Christmas day taking care of elderly and shut-ins in and around the Floydada area.

The Dec. 25th dinner was first started by Sudy Cochran in 1990, to serve Floydada residents who were home alone on Christmas Day. The event has now expanded to serve all of Floyd County, and surrounding counties.

Meals are also delivered to the Ronald McDonald House in Lubbock and Amarillo.

Donations of turkeys are needed and the organizers would also be grateful for money to buy all the trimmings for the Christmas dinner.

Donations can be made at West Texas Bank in Floydada, in the Spirit of Christmas account.

The meal will be prepared and served at the First United Methodist Church in Floydada. Lunch will begin for those who would like to eat at the church at 12:00 noon.

Volunteers who would like to donate their time to deliver food should be at the church by 10:30 a.m., Christmas Day.

If you know of someone who might benefit from the free Christmas meal, or who would like to help, please call Sodie Cochran, at 983-3814; or Fred Thayer, 983-3121.

Teuton reflects on WWII

Paul Teuton, of Lockney, remembers exactly where he was the day Pearl Harbor was bombed. Like many of other Americans, Teuton remembers, "I wanted to go down there--and whoop em all."

Teuton enlisted in the Horse Cavalry at Ft. Bliss in El Paso, January 22, 1941.

"I had a good job in the oil field at Houma, Louisiana," said Teuton. "The war in Europe was spreading toward France and England.

"The U.S. Military offered a plan to give some young men some military training. If you enlisted in the military service for one year, you could go back to your old job.

"My boss man said if I wanted to enlist, my job would be waiting when I was discharged."

After enlisting, Teuton was sent to Ft. Brown in Brownsville.

"We were sitting in our barracks in Ft. Brown, getting ready to go to church that Sunday morning," said Teuton, "when the news came over the radio. The Japanese were bombing Pearl Harbor. We were mad. We wanted to go down there and 'whoop em all'."

"I'm glad the government didn't let us go, or I would not be there today."

According to Teuton the horse cavalry was disbanded and "totally mechanized."

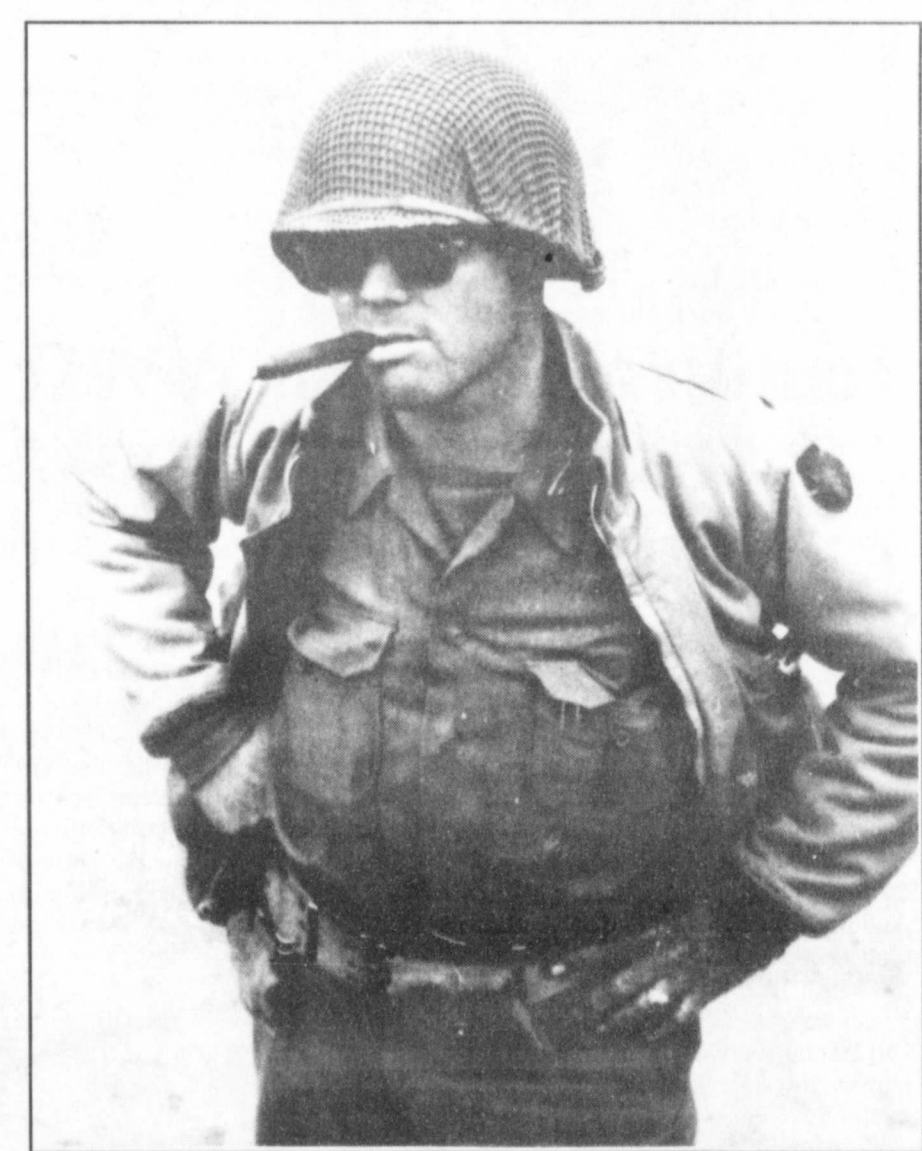

Teuton graduated from the Cavalry Officer Candidate School at Ft. Riley, Kansas as a 2nd Lt. Mechanized Cavalry.

"We were given tanks and armored cars instead of horses," said Teuton.

"I volunteered to go overseas as a replacement officer. We were sent to North Africa and I was later assigned to the 34th Cavalry Reconnaissance Troop, 34th Infantry Division in Italy.

"I remember sitting with about 18 'Yankee' soldiers eating our 'C' rations. They asked me what happened to all those horses that we used to ride. I told them--'you're eating them'. They seemed to lose their appetite after that."

For the next two years Teuton and the Infantry fought their way up the Italian "boot". "We were at the border of Switzerland when the war ended," said Teuton.

"That one year enlistment turned out to be 5 1/2 years of service. I was discharged with the rank of Captain of the Mechanized Cavalry."

Teuton has kept an old "press release" from the headquarters of the 5th Army Public Relations Section which details the work of the 34th Cavalry Reconnaissance Troop.

Released Dec. 9, 1944, the news article stated:

"Climaxing its 375 days of outpost missions and contact patrols in this theater, the 34th Cavalry Reconnaissance Troop, 34th Infantry Division, recently turned in a gallant seventeen-day performance as infantry riflemen in Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army hot-box north of

"Recently the entrenched recon men firmly held their sector despite a series of vicious German counterattacks and a 400-round enemy concentration from rockets, self-propelled guns and mortars. Each counter-blow aimed across their sector was repulsed. When a patrol of Krauts sneaked too close one night, the cavalrymen hit them with everything available, including fists. Caught unawares, remnants of the Kraut patrol fled through the stormy night and didn't return for a long time..."

"Previously regarded by some as a 'fifth wheel' outfit, the 34th Reconnaissance received favorable attention for its efficient patrolling on the Anzio Beachhead. A few weeks later it won

My husband will never have to worry about being compared to Chevy Chase in the "Christmas Vacation".

Do you remember Chevy stringing lights for days all over his house and when he plugged them in they lit up the whole neighborhood before blowing a fuse and setting his house on fire?

It was a very funny scene. Chevy Chase completely lost his cool after all the work he put into the house.

My husband will never come close to that. He finally convinced me to get a fake tree because the real one was too much trouble.

He won't let me wrap garland around our porch posts because he "doesn't want to put nail holes" in the posts.

He won't let me hang red bows outside because he doesn't like the look. (He likes it on everyone else's house—he just conveniently doesn't like it on ours).

He did let me put wreaths on the wall beside the front door, but he griped about the nail holes the whole time.

Every year my son and I beg him to put up lights outside—but—you guessed it—he doesn't want to put nail holes along the eaves.

My son never misses an opportunity to say, "Our house is the darkest one on the street!"

This year I tried shaming my husband into hanging lights.

I went and bought a box of those icicle lights and pulled them out on the day I was decorating the inside of the house.

"Please, please, please," I begged. "Please—just put them around the porch roof. That's all. See—I bought these neat little hooks that says will hold the lights and you don't have to put in nails."

"Please, please, please," said my son.

My husband had to wait to glare until my son wasn't looking.

I was very proud of myself. Anyway, we all went outside "to help." My husband got the box of lights and pulled them out. They weren't what I thought they were. Not only were they the wrong color—there wasn't enough of them to even get half the porch roof done.

My husband was smirking. I didn't see him smirking, but I could sense him smirking.

"Oh well," said my husband. "I guess you'll just have to take them back."

That was that. There was no going back. The one day of getting in the mood to decorate was all over. I missed my chance. The "moment" was gone. I blew it. I took them back.

I did save the little hook thing-a-ma-jigs. I'm going to try again next year.

Where were you on Pearl Harbor Day?

That used to be an almost automatic question when December 7 rolled around. And it used to be that nearly everyone had an answer. They remembered vividly where they were, and what they were doing when they got word of the Japanese attack on U.S. military installations at Pearl Harbor, presaging World War II.

Another, later, generation would ask the same question about the assassination of John F. Kennedy: "Do you remember where you were and what you were doing when you heard that Kennedy was assassinated?"

Again, nearly everyone had a ready answer.

The Kennedy killing was certainly not on the order of the attack on Pearl Harbor, where thousands were killed and a world war was ushered in. But nevertheless it was a shock to Americans, and in those days the country was able to be affected by shock. Moments of shock seemed to be memorable.

In other words, things change. Generations change. Increasing numbers of Americans were not around when Pearl Harbor was hit, or when Jack Kennedy was killed.

At any rate, most people who were around at the time can still remember the answer to the question: "Where were you when the Japs hit Pearl Harbor?"

For some reason, however, the "Day of infamy" still resonates with many Americans. It changed so many lives. In fact, it cut short the lives of some 20 million people worldwide. The lives of just about everyone else was affected, one way or another. Some got richer. Some got poorer. Some ended up in wheel chairs. Some on crutches. Some without arms. Or legs. Or both. So it went.

At any rate, most people who were around at the time can still remember the answer to the question: "Where were you when the Japs hit Pearl Harbor?"

In my own case I was in a hospital on Corregidor, having been put there as a result of trying to lift a too-heavy case of anti-aircraft ammunition while preparing our guns for the war we were told was imminent. It was something like 4 o'clock in the morning of December 8 (in the Philippines it is December 8 when it is December 7 in America.)

We were awakened by an orderly with news of the attack, and also with news that all hospitalized patients were being transferred to an underground hospital in Malinta tunnel. I told the orderly that if I had a choice in the matter, I would rather rejoin my fellows on the guns. So I did. The Japanese hit the Philippines as soon as light came, and our own little phase of the great war began.

Those of us on the guns were not told, at the time, of the devastation at Pearl Harbor. We were told only that we "suffered damages." Nor were we told, at the time, of the devastation at Clark Field, only a hundred miles or so to our north, and other installations in the Philippines. (Corregidor, the most heavily fortified part of our defensive forces in the Philippines, was not hit until a few days later. In those few days the Japanese laid waste to Clark Field and our bomber fleet, to the Cavite naval base, and made landings of troops on Luzon.)

As a small side bar to the story, would have to say I could never understand how or why we were hit so hard so "unexpectedly" when we were also told war was imminent. Then, when doing research on a book, I ran across a cable from Washington to Generals Short in Hawaii and MacArthur in the Philippines. It said negotiations with the Japanese in Washington were going nowhere, that we should expect war with Japan, but that if hostilities broke out, it would be better if Japan struck first.

They did. And the rest is history.

So, on a personal basis, we remember Pearl Harbor and pay tribute to those who died there. And we remember the Philippines and Corregidor, and those who, in ever decreasing numbers, sought to keep the flag flying a little longer. And all those who came later and raised the flag again.

Born in Wayne Oklahoma Teuton moved to Lockney from Merkel, Texas with his family in 1923.

He married Lorraine Pellegrin in 1947. The couple has three children: a son, James Teuton, of Borger; a daughter Pamela K. Smith, of Lubbock; and Paula Lorraine Funnell, of Amarillo.

"After the war I went back to Louisiana to work for a year," said Teuton. "I married Lorraine there and brought her back to Lockney. I have been farming west of Lockney since that time."

Although he is now 81 years old, like other veterans the war is still a very vivid memory to Teuton.

December 7th brings back those feelings of shock and anger that led thousands of young volunteers into the U.S. armed forces. "We should remember," said Teuton. "We should keep telling the story so people will never forget."

Americans remember 58th anniversary of Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor

Fifty eight years ago, Dec. 7, 1941, 2,403 Americans were killed when Japanese carrier based planes attacked, without warning, the bulk of the U.S. Pacific fleet, moored in Pearl Harbor. Another 1,178 Americans were wounded.

The Japanese attack force under the command of Admiral Nagumo, consisted of six carriers with 423 planes.

At 6 a.m., the first attack wave of 183 Japanese planes took off from the carriers, located 230 miles north of Oahu and headed for the U.S. Pacific Fleet at Pearl Harbor.

At 7:02 a.m., two Army operators at Oahu's northern shore radar station detect the Japanese air attack approaching and contact a junior officer who disregards their reports, thinking they are American B-17 planes which are expected in from the U.S. west coast.

At 7:15 a.m., a second attack wave of 167 planes takes off from the Japanese carriers and heads for Pearl Harbor.

Pearl Harbor is not on a state of high alert. Aircraft are therefore left parked wingtip to wingtip on airfields, anti-aircraft guns are unmanned with many ammunition boxes kept locked. There are also no torpedo nets protecting the fleet anchorage, and since it is Sunday morning, many officers and crewmen are leisurely ashore.

At 7:53 a.m., the first Japanese assault wave, with 51 Val dive bombers, 40 kate torpedo bombers, 50 high level bombers, and 43 Zero fighters, commenced the attack with flight commander, Mitsuo Fuchida, sounding the battle cry "Tora! Tora! Tora!" (Tiger! Tiger! Tiger!).

The Americans were taken completely by surprise. The first attack wave targets airfields and battleships. The second wave targets other ships and shipyard facilities. The air raid lasts until 9:45 a.m. Eight battleships are damaged, with five sunk. Three light cruisers, three destroyers and three smaller vessels are lost along with 188 aircraft. The Japanese lost 27 planes and five midget submarines which attempted to penetrate the inner harbor and launch torpedoes.

Escaping damage from the attack are the prime targets, the three U.S. Pacific Fleet aircraft carriers, Lexington, Enterprise and Saratoga which were not in the port.

The first torpedo in the assault on Pearl Harbor hit the USS Raleigh at about 7:55 a.m., Sunday morning. Battleship Row was then hit at 7:57 a.m. by a torpedo.

At 8:10 a.m., a Japanese Type 97 Attack Bomber dropped a bomb that struck the Arizona between the No. 1 and No. 2 turret. This bomb was an armor piercing artillery shell that ignited the Arizona's forward magazine. The battleship exploded violently, sinking to the bottom of the harbor.

One thousand, one hundred and seventy-seven men rest at the bottom of the harbor, entombed in the Arizona's rusty hull.

In the Navy's known history, there has never been a ship that has taken so many of its crew down with her.

The next day, December 8th, the United States and Britain declared war on Japan. December 11, Germany and Italy declared war on the United States. The European and Southeast Asian wars have now become a global conflict with the Axis powers, Japan, Germany, and Italy, united against America, Britain, France, and their Allies.

Attorney General highlights new child support laws

By John Cornyn, Attorney General of Texas

Q. It seems that we get a wave of laws every September. Did anything change with the child support?

A: Several new laws and an important appropriation designed to improve the performance of the Child Support Division were passed during the 76th session of the Texas Legislature and took effect September 1, 1999.

Answering the phone is the most crucial aspect of customer service, particularly for the children and parents in need of help. To address the large number of unanswered phone calls to child support offices, I requested and received resources from the Legislature to establish regional call centers in Houston Dallas-Fort Worth, Austin and San Antonio.

The new funding enables the Office of the Attorney General to hire 114 customer service representatives to work in the call centers to help answer the 1.3 million telephone calls received by child support offices every month.

I also plan to downsize the Child Support Division headquarters and move positions to those field offices that are not served by the regional call centers. This will increase the number of staff available to answer phones in smaller cities and rural areas.

The Legislature also enacted a law that eliminated the statute of limitations for a court judgment for unpaid child support. The removal of the statute of limitations will enable the Office of the Attorney General to pursue a judgement for unpaid child support regardless of the age of the child. Delinquent parents will no longer be able to run out the clock on their obligations to their children.

Just over 105,000 children are born out of wedlock in Texas each year.

Before the Court can order child support or visitation, legal paternity must be established for an out of wedlock child. A new Texas law streamlines the voluntary paternity establishment process.

Formerly, parents wanting to voluntarily establish paternity needed a court order. The new law allows the parents to sign an Acknowledgment of Paternity (AOP) furnished by the hospital. When the AOP is filed with the Bureau of Vital Statistics, the AOP becomes a legal finding of paternity.

Whirlwind Sams

By Darlynn Hambricht
 The Chapter Christmas party for the Whirlwind Sams was Saturday, December 4th at Plains Baptist Assembly.
 Wayne Russell led the invocation. Harold Norrell, vice president recognized Charlene Norrell, Don Chesshir, Harold Norrell and Hollis Payne as those celebrating a birthday this month.
 Those recognized for an anniversary were Don and Gayle Daniel, Claude and France Weathersbee, John and Christene Lyles, Harold and Carol Reese, Robert and Betty McPherson. Henry Russell led the appropriate songs in honor of these members.
 A delicious buffet was served consisting of brisket, chicken, salad, vegetables and dessert. The dining hall was beautifully decorated.
 Jerry Livingston expressed his appreciation to the chapter for a rewarding year of cooperation from everyone. He asked vice-president, Harold Norrell to take charge of the remainder of the business meeting so he could assume his responsibilities at Lighthouse Electric Company. Due to the inclement weather, Jerry was on call.
 Betty Miller, secretary read the November minutes.
 Glenda Livingston gave a treasurer report.
 Our program was beautifully presented by Glenda as she related a Christmas story.
 George Miller installed the following officers for 2000: Don Chesshir, president; Harold Norrell, 1st vice president; Don Daniel, 2nd vice president, Sue Chesshir, secretary; Carol Bell, treasurer; Boone Adams, wagonmaster.
 The Livingstons gave each couple a handcrafted paper towel holder.
 Marge McElyea and Teresa Hollum on behalf of Whirlwind Sams gave the Livingstons a beautiful hand quilted friendship quilt.
 President, Don Chesshir challenged the group to have another successful campout season. He asked Sue to distribute yearbooks.
 Don then recognized J.W. and Betty Gilbreath, Fred and Yvonne Thaxton for dedicated years of service for Whirlwind Sam. The yearbook was dedicated to these deserving couples. "Happy Trails" was led by J.W. Gilbreath.
 Rigs present were: Don and Sue Chesshir, Don and Gayle Daniel, Bill and Norma Feuerbacker, J.W. and Betty Gilbreath, Gordon and Darlynn Hambricht, Randy and Teresa Hollums, Jerry and Glenda Livingston and Alan, Mac and Marge McElyea, George and Betty Miller, Harold and Charlene Norrell, Dr. Keith and June Patzer, Hollis and Jo Payne, Harold and Carol Reese, Henry and Dahlia Russell, Wayne and Roberta Russell, Fred and Yvonne Thaxton and Herb and Esther Wallace.

Mother nature defies father time

Dietary recommendations have changed over the years, but the basics are more important than ever. Eat your fruits and vegetables.
 Evidence shows that antioxidants found in produce and other foods may actually slow the inroads made by Father Time. Vitamins C and E and carotenoids, one of which is a precursor to vitamin A, protect the body against "free radicals," which are created when cells convert oxygen into energy. In normal amounts, free radicals help rid the body of toxins, but they can also harm cell membranes and DNA, which results in cell deaths.
 Antioxidants are credited with reducing the risk of some cancers, heart disease, strokes, cataracts, as well as slowing and, in some cases, reversing the aging process. Scientists also believe the antioxidants improve cell membranes so that important nutrients and chemicals can flow through more easily.
 Blueberries are a case in point. Recent research found that elderly rats fed the human equivalent of at least half a cup of blueberries a day improved their balance, coordination and short-term memory. Like other fruits and vegetables, blueberries contain chemicals that act as antioxidants.
 Normally, the body can subdue free radicals. But if antioxidants are in short supply due to poor diet, or if the free-radical production is excessive, damage can occur.
 Now, before you go out and stock up on the popular supplement of the month, be forewarned. Physicians may prescribe additional antioxidant nutrients to address specific conditions created by illness or poor diet. But randomly picking and choosing antioxidants may mean missing out on some very important nutrients.

PATIENCE IS A VIRTUE

"You probably heard about the man who was praying for patience and he asked God to do it right away. God does answer prayer, however. He does them may not be at his usual pace. When we go to God in prayer and want His answer, we must have the patience. Usually the longer of waiting patiently makes us more appreciative of the gift, and we are more grateful to the giver. As we wait upon the Lord in prayer, we are not alone. He is with us through our prayers and trust. Perhaps the only way we can be sure of His presence is to wait patiently for Him in Heaven who sees all things and never forgets us."

For us here on earth, that, after we have done the will of God, we might receive the promise. KJV Hebrews 10:36

Animal habitat is taught by Collins

Game Warden gives program on wildlife habitat to Lockney 4th. grade

Area Game Warden, Mark Collins, visited the Lockney 4th. grade class December 2 to teach local children about animal habitat. Mark did a skit using the 4th. graders as wildlife animals.

An area was set up for habitat and kids were assigned roles as deer, turkey, squirrels etc. As more animals were introduced into the habitat it became clear to the kids that the habitat was becoming crowded to support all the animals.

At this time Collins introduced predators into the habitat to reduce the wildlife population. This portion of the program revealed the importance of predators, including, man, to reduce animal populations so habitat can support wildlife populations.

CLARENDON 0

The championship game was scheduled to be played Saturday night but due to inclement weather Clarendon forfeited the game.

Our season record now stands at 6-1.

Coach Stovall adds, "We had a successful tournament. We were disappointed we didn't get to play in the final game. We played very solid defense in the tournament. Hopefully we will get even better. Offensively we are not shooting the ball very well. The good news is that because of our defense and rebounding, we are still able to have fairly easy victories. I think if our shooting comes around and we continue to play solid defense and rebound well, we will be where we want to be by district play."

This weekend December 9-11, we will be playing in the Smyer Tournament. We open against Trinity Christian JV at 5:00 p.m. on Thursday, December 9th. We hope to be successful in this tournament and hope we have a good group of supporters.

Cottonseed help program approved

By Shawn Wade
Producers got another bit of good news with the recent announcement of the implementation of a cottonseed assistance program for the 1999 crop year. Unfortunately since the announcement many producer questions have gone unanswered regarding the specific process that will be used to distribute the funds.

The cottonseed assistance program will be paid for with some $100 million made available by savings that accrued from recently completed USDA programs.

It also appears that the preferred delivery system will be through the first handlers of the cottonseed, presumably the cotton gin, although payments could still be made directly to producers. Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. (PCG) and other cotton industry leaders are supporting a delivery system utilizing the first handler of the cottonseed.

Final determinations should be issued soon so that producers and any other involved parties can begin the process of determining what will be required to document production and make application for the program. At this time it appears that the amount of the payment will be in the neighborhood of $10-15 per ton.

The main impetus for the program is that cottonseed prices are at the lowest levels in recent memory and producers, who normally depend on seed sales to offset the cost of ginning their product, are typically incurring an additional $5-15 dollars per bale in ginning charges on top of their other production expenses.

Weevil eradication program halted

By Shawn Wade
The Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundations has halted the Fall diapause spraying operations in the three active High Plains boll weevil eradication zones as of November 31.

"[Spraying] activities wrapped up this week and we were pleased with the progress of the program through the summer," said Osama El-Lissy, Program Director for the TBWEF. "We believe it will set us up for a good season next year with weevil populations drastically reduced. We have already started planning for next season and are looking forward to working with producers in all active zones."

Floyd County Extension News

By J.D. Ragland, Agent-Ag

Howdy folks, straight from downtown Pumpkin Capital, U.S.A., Floyd County America. You might ask what's up in the world of County Agent business. Well, like everyone else it's been extremely busy this month. Not only does December bring us Christmas in our line of work it also brings us a lot of year end reports, December 1 and January 1 deadlines.

4-H program wise we've just recently completed both swine validation and major stock show entries, which are all due December 1. Boy, what a relief it makes me a nervous wreck! In addition, we recently attended the District 4-H Gold Star Banquet in Lubbock where our own Cienna Carthel and Bonnie Dunlap were recognized as Floyd County's 1999 4-H Gold Star recipients. 4-H meetings, Method Demonstrations and 4-H Record Book training have been held also.

Happenings in Agriculture around the county include harvest of all crops winding down. Up until most recently, we've really had excellent weather in terms of ideal harvest, the only problem is that we never did get that early killing frost, which would have prevented a lot of the second and third cotton defoliant applications. Average county crop yields for 1999 look something like this. For irrigated cotton about 700 pounds and dryland 250 pounds.

Grain sorghum varied quite a bit but on the average was around 4,500 pounds. Wheat as some of you may recall was pretty good due to the fact that we had some pretty good rains early on. Averaging about 60 bushels for irrigated and around 30 for dryland. Even though we lost a lot of corn due to hail, some how we surprisingly made some exceptional corn yields. County average this year was about 185 bushels which figures a little over 10,000 pounds per acre.

Pumpkins on the other hand were down, only averaging around 1,700 pounds per acre. Sunflowers were right at 800 pounds. Soybeans seemed to be about 30 bushels on irrigated and 15 for dryland. Peanuts as a whole were down also around 2,300 pounds. As far as the Guar it looks like somewhere around 800 pounds for an average.

Of course the biggest downfall this year to all crops is low prices. Prices have virtually stayed low all year long. Our current conditions are Dry. We need moisture not only for the wheat but for all situations. Hopefully we'll get some soon! We need it!

Well better let ya go. Things will be steady with me from now until mid March with stock shows coming up. O'I almost forgot, don't forget the Caprock Cotton Conference, January 18th. Watch the paper in upcoming weeks for more details.

My positive thinking quote for this month, "Having confidence that if you have done a little thing well, you can do a bigger thing GREAT!" Ya 'll come to see us. Til next time, Howdy! Cause I just hate to say Good-bye.

First United Methodist Church to present "Seeking the Savior"

The play, Seeking the Savior, will be presented by the First United Methodist Church, Floydada, December 19 at 6:00PM. Following the play, the traditional Candlelight Service will be held. Everyone is invited to celebrate the Christmas season by attending the play and service at no charge.

The cast members are: Kendra Covington, Taryn Rainwater, Rebecca Warren, Courtney Clemens, Christy Castillo, Erick Arellano, Bryce Bowley, Tom Jordan, and John Meador. The play is about seven youngsters, who have heard that Jesus appears on Earth on Christmas Eve. They sneak into the church near midnight hoping to see Him, but become frightened when a strange man appears. In ragged clothes, hungry and tired, the stranger eats the food the youngsters brought as they question him.

Is he some kind of homeless man or is he really Jesus, the Savior they have been seeking? An extraordinary play which, like the legend of the shoemaker, reminds us that our Savior is not just found in church but is everywhere.

TOP 10 WAYS TO IMPRESS YOUR BOSS

By Ron Trusler

Most of us have a boss (some married people think it is their spouse). I believe most people want to succeed at their job. Part of being successful is getting along with the person who is your boss. It certainly is obvious that every boss is different. What one likes another may not. I've listed some things that may be of general help to you. Take them for what they are worth for your situation (by the way, these are not original with me-author is unknown).

10. Smile and speak when you pass him/her in the hall.

9. Be courteous of their time.

8. If you can reasonably take care of a situation, DO IT.

7. Don't wait until the last minute to ask off.

6. Ask permission-don't just say this is what I'm going to do.

5. Be respectful.

4. Don't act as though your job is a death sentence.

3. Don't spend 8 hours a day telling everyone how busy you are.

2. Don't talk about him/her behind his/her back.

1. Don't be afraid of hard work, it can be very rewarding.

Now, the following is original. It is from one of our co-workers at the center. Her name is Ann Green. She has written the following in response to the above.

TOP 10 WAYS TO IMPRESS YOU STAFF

10. Don't smile or speak to us in the hall. We find it troubling and alarming. We fear that you are planning a large project and that our name is written all over it.

9. If we have much spare time, we'll just get into trouble. You know that, so load us down.

8. If we can reasonably take care of a situation, why can't you do it yourself? We might be napping/talking and we need our sleep and socialization.

7. We wouldn't always be wanting to take time off if you would just give us the two-day work week we keep asking for!

6. But if we ask permission, you might say, "No!"

5. Being respectful of us is fine if you can keep a straight face. If you can't, it's better not to say anything at all.

4. You should be happy, even honored, to be working with us. We're not that bad. Well, most of...some...well, a couple of us aren't that bad.

3. Hey! Talking about how busy you are is hard work! We know that; we do it all the time and we don't mind if you do it too.

2. We have no grounds for complaint here. You make no secret of talking about us and you thoughtfully close the door before you do so that the laughter doesn't wake us up.

1. Hard work is rewarding if someone else is doing it and the more work you do yourself will mean the less for us!

New Fully Digital Hearing Aid

Now Available in Floydada

Digital hearing aid prescriptions are precisely matched to your hearing loss. Once inside your ear, it is hardly noticeable.

"The new Direct Digital Hearing Aid has been released. It samples sound one million times per second with more processing power than many desktop computers," said Patrick McCarty, hearing aid specialist with Livingston Hearing Aid Center.

"Sound is pre-processed and fed 32,000 times per second through the digital sound processor for statistical analysis and over 100 parameters are adjusted automatically."

The Fully Digital hearing aid automatically and continuously analyzes the sound in the wearer's environment. This new technology is capable of fitting mild to severe hearing losses and because of the ability to program this hearing aid, it can be modified to meet the needs of the user for many years. Livingston Hearing Aid Center offers a 60-day money back satisfaction guarantee.

Call for a free demonstration: 1-800-828-0722. Livingston Hearing Aid Center is located at the Rural Nurse Resource Center in Floydada.

ONE DAY ONLY
Mon., Dec. 13th

Come meet Hearing Aid Specialist, Patrick McCarty of Livingston Hearing Aid Center. He will be demonstrating the new Direct Digital Hearing Aid one day only, Monday, December 13th at the Rural Nurse Resource Center in Floydada.
