Congress Unlikely To Override Veto

Bus-Train Crash Kills

DEL MAR, Calif. (AP) — A charter bus driver and two of his passengers died and 24 others were injured Wednesday night when their vehicle stalled on a railroad crossing and was rammed by a Santa Fe freight train, authorities said.

Officials also said a search for victims early today uncovered 35 illegal aliens hiding in box cars of the 60-car freight train. All were taken into custody by the Border Patrol. All apparently were unjured.

"The windshield of the bus was sticking to the front of the train engine and people were lying outside moaning and crying," said Peter Sokolow, a security officer at nearby Ocean Windows Hotel.

The dead were identified as the bus driver, Carl Joseph Bertram, 47, Inglewood, Calif.; Sky Jenkins, 6, Clatskanie, Ore., and Jennie Doescher, 58, Aplington, Iowa, who died in a hospital two hours after the late Wednesday night crash.

Mrs. Doescher's husband, Harvey, 60, was in critical condition.

Sky's mother, who was waiting at the depot, watched as the freight train struck the bus at about 35 miles per hour, firemen said. The train was not derailed.

Cab Company Orders Ten New Vehicles

The local taxi company told City Attorney James Gregg this week that they have ten new cabs on order which should arrive by mid-march.

City officials plan to discuss the situation at the next regular council meeting. They were granted a raise increase with the agreement that they would obtain new cabs by March 1.

Marijuana Prisoners

AUSTIN (AP) — Only 44 prison inmates who were convicted under the old marijuana law have had their sentences commuted, according to figures released Wednesday by the Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Fourteen are from Houston and nine are from Dallas, meaning more than half of those released are from the state's two largest cities.

Estimates on the number of marijuana prisoners in the Huntsville penitentiary have ranged up to 800 Gov. Dolph Briscoe promised the legislature a case by case review if his version of a drug reform law won approval.

The old law provided for prison terms from two years to life for possession of any amount of marijuana. The new law, which went into effect last Aug. 27, makes it a misdemeanor, with a maximum sentence of one year in jail, for possession of up to four ounces.

Computations began Dec. 21. Eight other prisoners have had their sentences commuted but have not been processed, and another dozen are awaiting decisions by the governor's office.

Britons Vote For Leaders

LONDON (AP) — Britons voted for a new government today as snow fell in several parts of the country and the sun shone in southeast England.

LONG LINES
Some cities reported long lines at the polling booths and there were indications of a massive turnout, usually a good sign for the Laborites. Polls still gave the Conservatives a slight edge, however.

In England, the election is being fought largely over bread-and-butter issues, and observers say that no matter who wins, Britons face another round of belt-tightening.

In Northern Ireland, the election for members to Parliament is being fought over the determination of the Protestant majority to stay apart from the neighboring Irish republic, while the minority Catholics seek union.

HIJACK TRUCKS
Rioters hijacked trucks and cars in Londonderry and set up barricades today in the streets. In Belfast, troops fired rubber bullets to disperse stone-throwing crowds.

Earlier, at least six persons were wounded in terrorist bombing and shooting in the province.

Last-minute opinion polls gave Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservatives a narrow lead over Harold Wilson's Laborites. The Liberals headed by Jeremy Thorpe were running three times better than they did before the last election, in 1970. But four out of five of the main polls predicted a Labor victory then, and the Conservatives won.

UNREST

Heath called the election three weeks ago after months of industrial unrest and inflation culminated in a national coal strike. Much of business and industry has been on a three-day work week since Christmas to conserve electric power. Industrial production is falling, promising to increase an already staggering trade deficit. Coal stocks at the power stations will reach the danger point in a few weeks. And 8 per cent or more of the nation's workers are temporarily or permanently unemployed.

With food prices up 53 per cent since Heath took office, the country is spending nearly $8.8 billion more abroad than it earns. And with the oil bill rising steadily, campaigners have warned that the toughest austerity since the years of World War II lies ahead.

FIRM AND FAIR
Heath has stressed "firm and fair government" with strict control of the unions and warned against Labor plans to nationalize many industries.

U. S. -Egypt Ties Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Egypt formally announced resumption of full diplomatic relations today.

In a joint statement read at the White House about the time it was being disclosed in Cairo, the two governments voiced hope that the step will "contribute substantially to better mutual understanding and cooperation."

BRIEF WAR

Egypt severed diplomatic relations with the United States during the six-day Arab-Israeli War in 1967, but the two governments announced last Nov. 7 an agreement in principle to restore formal ties at an early date.

The timing of today's announcement was worked out by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who is in Cairo to meet with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Deputy White House press secretary Gerald L. Warren, asked for President Nixon's reaction to the announcement, replied that the President views it as "a natural step... resulting from the progressive improvement of relations with Egypt over the past several months."

Wilson called for a soak-the-rich tax policy, food subsidies, price controls, a gentlemen's agreement with the unions to curb wage rises and negotiation of more favorable terms with the Common Market.

Thorpe and the Liberals painted both the other parties as extremists and called for a policy of moderation in everything from Common Market relations to industrial relations.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress appears unlikely to override President Nixon's promised veto of emergency energy legislation.

The House sent the bill to the White House Wednesday, but the 238-to-151 margin of final passage was short of the two-thirds majority needed to override a presidential veto.

House Republican leader predicted the expected veto would stand, although Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said he was confident the Senate would vote to override. A two-thirds majority in both houses is required to overturn a presidential veto.

The bill's most controversial provision is an oil price rollback.

Emmett McKenzie New Supe Here

Dr. Emmett H. McKenzie Jr., former Big Spring coach and more recently superintendent of schools in Nederland and Carthage, was named as the new superintendent of the Big Spring schools at a called session of the school board late Wednesday.

He has been in Carthage since 1972 and was in Nederland from 1962-72. Prior to that he was athletic director here two years. He had served three years earlier in Nederland as athletic director so this is the second school district to hire him as a superintendent after he had been a coach. He had started in 1949 as a teacher in Nederland and had also served as junior high coach and assistant coach.

He graduated from Hearne schools and attended Texas A&M, Lon Morris College and SMU where he received a BS degree. His master of education came from the University of Texas and his doctorate from the University of Houston.

He is married. He and his wife, Shirley, have four children, ages 13, 11, 8 and 6.

and Phi Delta Kappa. The board awarded him a three year contract to be reviewed each year at an annual salary of $25,000 plus use of a school car and traveling expenses.

All board members were present and the vote was unanimous.

McKenzie served here as head coach in 1960 and 1961, during which time his teams finished with 10-10 win-loss records. His second season here, the Steers were 7-3.

Carthage is located in East Texas about 36 miles southeast of Longview.

Military Pay Hikes Granted By Emperor

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Emperor Haile Selassie named a new prime minister and granted broad military pay raises today in a move to end an enlisted men's revolt that has swept Ethiopia.

The emperor, broadcasting to the nation, said he asked Endalkachew Makonnen to form a new government. Makonnen is a popular figure and was minister of telecommunications.

MUTINY
It appeared that Ethiopia's 40,000-man military forces got most of what they wanted following three days of nonviolent rebellion against the government of Aklilu Hailewoid which resigned Wednesday after four generals failed to negotiate an end to the mutiny. Instead, the rebels in Asmara, in northern Ethiopia, took three of the generals hostage and sent the fourth one back to Addis Ababa with new demands.

The emperor said the base pay for privates would be raised to $56 a month, from $50. The ceiling for privates would be raised to $75, and other ranks would receive proportionate increases. The dissidents had asked a base pay of $75 a month.

NO REPRISALS
The 82-year-old emperor said no reprisals would be taken against the rebels, and appealed for calm.

The government accused Somalia, Ethiopia's neighbor to the east and southeast, of massing troops along the border to inflammate the situation. Military units from near Addis Ababa headed south and east, and official sources reported skirmishes between Ethiopian soldiers and Somalis who crossed into Ethiopia's out-bearing Ogaden desert.

Somalia has long claimed more than a quarter of eastern Ethiopia, much of it desert inhabited by nomads of Somali tribes.

The army mutiny broke out on Tuesday in Asmara, the nation's second largest city, among the 10,000-man 2nd Division,

College Buildings Fund Compromise

AUSTIN (AP) — A compromise on a special fund for college buildings, which came within one vote of death Wednesday, was rolled out before the Texas Constitutional Convention today.

But a vote on the compromise was delayed by lengthy discussion and attempts to amend it.

"It is a meeting of the minds," declared Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, who had staunchly backed the original plan.

Rep. Neil Caldwell, D-Angleton, a liberal who jokingly tags himself "a fiscal conservative," said the compromise took the special fund "off a roller coaster that only went up."

An attempt to killed the State Higher Education Assistance Fund (SHEAF) failed Wednesday on a 76-76 tie vote that convention President Price Daniel Jr. refused to break.

That vote sent backers of the fund into compromise talks with Caldwell and others who feared the original SHEAF proposal would confront future legislatures with huge tax bills.

The compromise would limit the fund to this year's income from the Permanent University Fund, or $31 million annually, unless the legislature decides to increase that amount. Revenue from the permanent fund is called the Available University Fund and benefits only the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems.

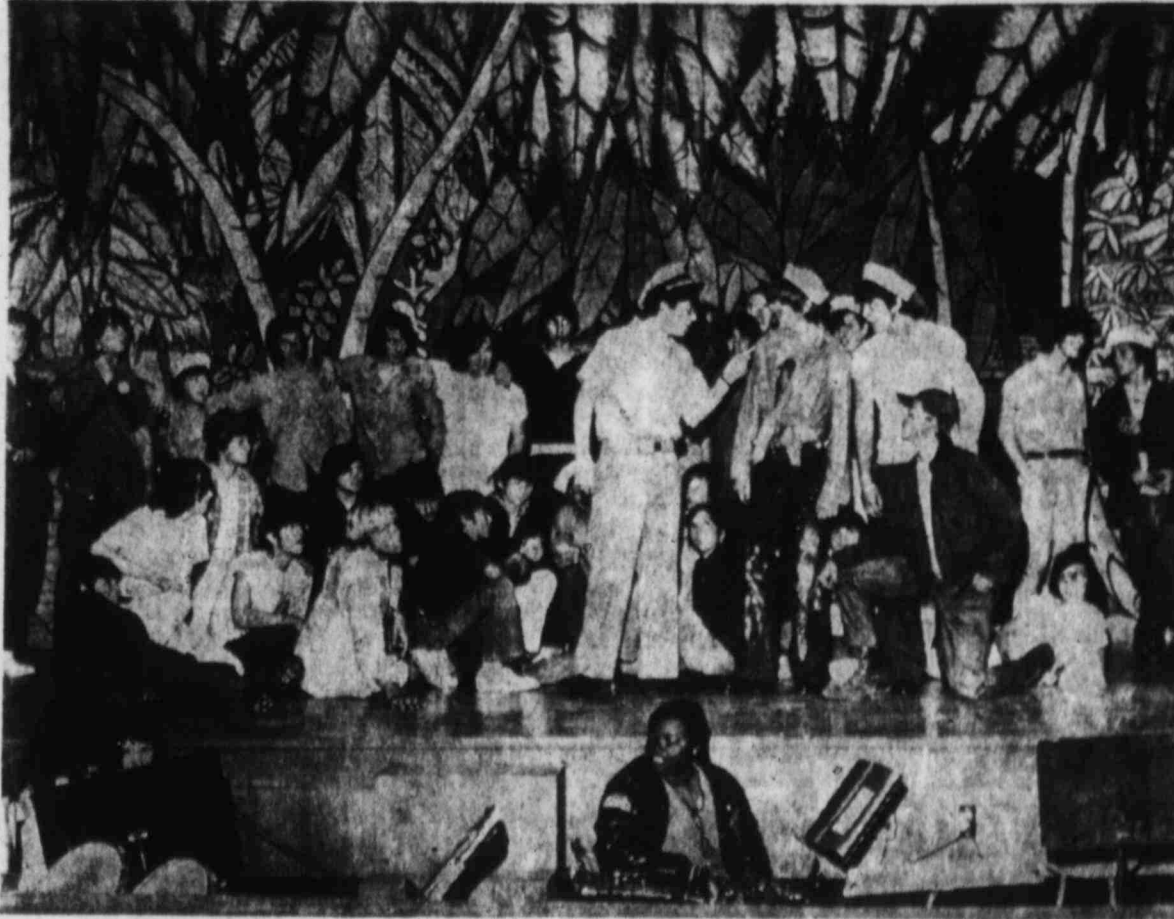

TAX MONEY
SHEAF would be divided among the 22 schools outside the UT and A&M systems to back construction bonds, buy library books, repair buildings, purchase equipment and—in a new provision written into the compromise—for any other purposes allowed by the legislature.

The original proposal would have required the legislature to match the available fund each year with state tax money.

Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Dallas, who calls SHEAF the offspring of a deal to keep the 22 schools from seeking a share of the available fund, offered Wednesday's amendment to kill SHEAF.

'MADNESS'
The chairman of the convention's Finance Committee, Rep. Neil Caldwell, D-Angleton, warned that requiring the legislature to match the ever-growing available fund with tax money for SHEAF was "madness."

Caldwell twice offered amendments Wednesday that would have financed SHEAF, instead, with the existing 10 per cent state property tax.

Agency Sought By Council

Revival of efforts to obtain an active drug abuse agency came out of a meeting of the Public Affairs Council of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce. An appeal also was made for a family counseling center.

The council met Wednesday at the Ramada Inn. Over a year ago the Chamber initiated a drug abuse program and helped develop the Howard County Council on Drug Abuse. However, late last spring "something happened", said Ron Mercer, Chamber manager. The council went into limbo.

The 26 council members attending Wednesday's session requested that efforts begin toward reinstating the program. As to a family counseling center, Rev. Carroll Koh reported on the need for such services. Such an agency could provide assistance to all family members having problems — parents, children, or even husband and wife. He said that over 25 Big Spring families now are traveling monthly to Midland for assistance.

Tom Locke, council president, urged those who might be interested in either the drug abuse program, or in the family counseling service, notify the Chamber office (3-7461). The council also received reports on the community Easter Sunrise Service, a public relations program, community brochure, cultural affairs, the energy crisis, housing, government and education.

Rob Newsman Of Car, $5

MEMPHIS (AP) — A veteran newsman was held for several hours by three men who took his car and $5 in cash.

He was released unharmed Wednesday night after the three men were unable to cash his personal check.

Police said robbery apparently was the motive. Carl Marsh, 63, director of special reader projects for the Memphis Press-Scimitar, said he was taken at gunpoint from a shopping center parking lot. He said the men threatened a dozen times to kill him.

The men, about 20 years old, finally drove away with his car and $5 cash, but got nothing else before releasing him, Marsh said.

He said the men wanted him to write each of them a $100 check from the personal checkbook he had in the car. But two supermarkets and two liquor stores refused to cash any checks.

"They gave up the checks and wanted me to buy them some clothing," Marsh said. "I told them I'd buy them some clothes."

Inside a clothing store, however, "they had trouble making up their minds on what they wanted. They were slow shoppers," he said.

"One of them put a $3.97 pair of sneakers in a basket. "But he got so disgusted he said, 'Let's go.'"

They left without making any purchases and continued their drive, releasing Marsh soon afterward.

TESTIFIES FOR CALLEY — Anne Moore, who is Lt. William Calley's girl friend, gives newsmen little info about wedding rumors.

Lt. Calley Free To Choose From Civilian Job Offers

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — For the first time in nearly three years, Lt. William L. Calley Jr. is free to come and go as he pleases and to choose from thousands of civilian job offers.

"I feel I could be useful to society," the 30-year-old officer told U.S. District Court Judge before Elliott ordered Calley freed on $1,000 bond.

But the slight, sandy-haired lieutenant was not required to post bond. He was released on his own recognizance. The Army said it had not yet decided whether to appeal Elliott's order.

NO DANGER In admitting Calley to bond, Elliott said he would hear at a later date Calley's challenge of a court-martial verdict which found him guilty of murdering at least 22 civilians at My Lai in March 1968 during an Army sweep through the Vietnamese village.

Calley was sentenced to life in prison, but the term was subsequently reduced to 20 years. The judge said Calley should be freed from house arrest at his apartment at nearby Ft. Benning because he presented no danger to himself or to society.

Calley left immediately under military escort for the small brick apartment where he has been confined for 35 months.

A court source said Calley chose the military escort because he had received a threat. The source declined to elaborate, however.

Military guards were removed from Calley's apartment shortly after he arrived, but military police continued to circle the block in a jeep.

CHASES 'JOE' Calley's girlfriend, Anne Moore, met him at the apartment, where his first act of freedom was to chase his dog, "Joe," in the yard.

"Calley has had literally thousands of job offers, finding employment won't be any problem," said Capt. J. Houston Gordon, Calley's Army counsel, after the hearing.

"Immediately I've got to go back to school and I'm going to try to be self-employed," Calley told the court when his attorney asked him to describe his plans.

Calley told Elliott that if he were granted he would live in the Columbus area, although Kenneth Hanson, Calley's local civilian attorney, said the young officer could leave the city if he wanted even though he is still a military prisoner pending appeal.

Says Sect May Be Sinking In Storm Over Doctrine

DALLAS (AP) — A minister who bolted with five others from the Worldwide Church of God says the sect may be sinking in a storm over doctrine and the lifestyles of its founders.

"The next few days, weeks, are crucial. What happens out there (Pasadena, Calif.) may tell the tale," said Barry Chase who quit the 85,000-member church after "all of it got to be too much."

Garner Ted Armstrong and his father, 81-year-old Herbert W. Armstrong, met Wednesday with dissident leaders of a theological kingdom the pair has carved out over the past 40 years.

DIVORCE Chase said the rebels complain of doctrine dealing with divorce, lack of a forum in which to discuss their views, and the inconsistency with which the elder Armstrong has dealt with sexual misconduct and extramarital affairs involving his 44-year-old son.

Chase said he made his final decision to leave the church after the younger Armstrong ordered ministers in the field to preach a sermon Jan. 6 condemning gossip and spreaders of rumor.

"I just couldn't do it. It was just his (Armstrong's) attempt to put the lid on things, to cover up what he has been doing," Chase said.

SUSPENDING The church operates Ambassador College with campuses at Pasadena and at Big Sandy in Northeast Texas. Garner Ted Armstrong, in a white jet trimmed in purple and gold, whisked into Big Sandy Monday and announced he was suspending 15 church leaders and ministers. Five more suspensions were announced Tuesday at Pasadena.

Chase said the dismissals are an attempt to quell the rebellion which he says could split the church.

Chase says the Armstrongs rule with an iron hand, dictating doctrine which can't be questioned but which has been bent by them to suit their own aims.

"The church does not permit divorce but because of the pressure we've put on them, they have now announced that divorce matters are up to the individual minister to deal with," Chase said.

As for the allegations of misconduct on the part of the younger Armstrong, Chase said: "I'm convinced his father has known about it for years. But when other ministers have stepped out of line that way there's been no opportunity for them to repent. They were thrown out. This is inconsistent. Apparently, Ted has had this problem for years but his father has covered up for him," Chase said.

HANDSOME The younger Armstrong is perhaps the church's best known spokesman. Handsome, articulate, urbane, he is the familiar voice heard on "The World Tomorrow" broadcasts around the world.

He uses his private executive jet to take him around the globe meeting government leaders, on speaking engagements and to the mountains of Colorado where he is a frequent big game hunter.

"His father wears $2,000 cuff links and lives in fabulous style," said Chase.

FEEL GUILTY "We love the Armstrongs but there is no way to get across to them. If you accuse them of something they wind up making you feel guilty about it. They are masters at putting the shoe on the other foot. If they can't do that, then they say it's an attack by Satan and that you're trying to embarrass them."

"During a meeting in January in Pasadena, Ted said he didn't want anyone bringing on his father any news of an upsetting nature or he would deal with it quickly and violently. I don't know what he meant by that."

"Since then someone made an anonymous telephone call to Al Carozzo and told him he'd better 'cool it or face a shozun,'" Chase said. Carozzo, pastor of one of the churches at Pasadena and an Ambassador College faculty member, was one of those who quit with Chase.

The church is comprised of 18 corporations supported by a heavy burden of tithes and contributions exacted from the membership, says Chase.

Balloonist Illusion?

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP) — Spanish news agencies say a weather balloon or an optical illusion may have been responsible for a flurry of reports Wednesday that missing American balloonist Thomas Gatch Jr. had been sighted.

The Cifra and Europa Press agencies had reported that thousands of people saw Gatch's balloon about 8 a.m. over the Oratava valley, on the island of Tenerife.

The reports said the balloon, described as both blue and rose colored, was heading southwest at 3,000 to 9,000 feet.

But government authorities, police and communications stations in the Canaries denied receiving an official report of the sighting and no search was launched. The islands are about 150 miles off the northwest coast of Africa.

Gatch, a 47-year-old retired colonel from Alexandria, Va., lifted off from Harrisburg, Pa. on Feb. 18 in an attempt to be the first person to cross the Atlantic in a balloon. He had a 10-day food supply for the trip, which he expected to last two to five days.

Ehe bachelor balloonist's rig included 10 helium balloons but he lost one almost immediately after takeoff. On Feb. 22 sailors aboard the Liberian freighter Meridian reported they saw Gatch drifting toward the African coast and apparently headed for the border between Morocco and the Spanish Sahara.

But searches of that area as well as of the Atlantic off the Azores failed to turn up a trace of him.

Mexican Heritage To Be Discussed

LUBBOCK — Social scientists with a special interest in Americans whose cultural heritage is Mexican will meet at 9 a.m. at the Texas Tech University April 19, to deal with the subject of "Mexican Americans: Political Power, Influence or Resource."

The day-long symposium is expected to draw specialists exchange ideas. Speakers and panel members include: Carlos Munoz, University of California, Irvine; Arthur J. Rubel, University of Notre Dame; John A. Garcia, University of Arizona; and Seymour V. Connor, Texas Tech University.

More voices are needed for a choir for the Easter Sunrise Service this year, Dan McClinton, minister of music for Baptist Temple, reported to the public affairs council of the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday.

McClinton is heading up the efforts to have at least 100 voices in the choir for the special community-wide services.

He also said that there are some expenses involved in seeking to develop this institution under a somewhat different format. Those who can help with the expenses are urged to mail their checks to St. Paul Presbyterian Church, attention Rev. Jim Collier.

Goals for Progress for the Big Spring Area had a meeting for its steering committee at 3 p.m., Wednesday in the Dora Roberts Student Union building at Howard College.

Twenty-five of perhaps 40 committee members attended, organizing schedules and making decisions on the organization's next moves. Dr. Thomas Salter, chairman, said the committee was "running about a month behind schedule due to sieges of the flu."

"But in not later than six weeks, we should have made substantial progress, then the committee will get together again. The separate committees (making up the Steering Committee) will meet on their own time schedule. If committees find they need additional members in certain areas, they can add them," he added.

"When Big Spring tries to do something, it gets done. We're trying to get grass roots feedback and support into our program before we form our objectives. We literally have no goals now," said Tom Locke, a committee council member.

Big Spring's Goals for Progress which has been successful. Other Goals' organizations are scattered across Texas. Each program works on long-range goals for community improvement and development.

The eight committees will formulate an essay on the particular area they're dealing with. These are government, design, health and education, community relations, culture and entertainment, parks and recreation, housing and economy.

The essays will not be due in six weeks, Salter said. But the committee will then again meet for a progress report.

"We have a master plan that's workable — items that would represent and help a cross-section of our community over the next 5-10 years," said Dub Pearson, Herald publisher.

"We are going to build a project from which real benefits for Big Spring will emerge," added Salter.

UT's First Nude Streaker

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas student newspaper Wednesday published a photograph it said was taken of the campus first "nude streaker."

The picture shows a man running away from the camera across a campus mall crowded with students. The man is wearing something on and perhaps over his head, plus white shoes and socks.

The Daily Texan said the picture was one of those taken on Feb. 5 by a "curious onlooker who felt the run might have historical significance."

The streaking phenomenon—running naked across a public place—has hit several campuses around the country. Seven males recently streaked around the east wing of Jester Center, a UT dormitory, and one called the Daily Texan to lodge their claim as the first streakers on the Texas campus.

The newspaper rebutted that claim with the photograph and commented:

"The first naked runner also has been commended by viewers because he did a solitary 'streak' without the security of other exposed 'streakers.' In addition to this favorable quality, the original runner performed in bright daylight, unlike his imitators who took to the shadows of the night before exposing themselves."

EXOTIC PET A FRIGHTENING BEAUTY — Joey White, Detroit, lets a Mexican redeg tarantula run up his head after he bought it for $29.95 at a suburban Detroit exotic pet store. Fuel Allocation Procedures Will Be Clarified

DALLAS — Clarification of procedures for farmers and ranchers to use in filing forms for fuel allocations were issued today by Delbert M. Fowler, Dallas, regional administrator for the Southwest region of the Federal Energy Office (FEO).

"First of all I want to emphasize that the farmer should make every effort to solve his problem through his individual supplier," Fowler said.

"The farmer or rancher is entitled to 100 per cent of his current requirements, and his supplier should see to it that his fuel is delivered," Fowler continued.

"But I also want to emphasize this does not exempt the farmer or rancher from using conservation measures like everyone else," Fowler noted.

If a producer uses 20,000 gallons or more annually, and none of the suppliers can accept him as a new customer, he may fill out FEO Form 17 and appeal to the regional office for help. It is not necessary for the farmer or rancher who uses a lesser amount to submit an application form, but rather to write a letter explaining his situation to Federal Energy Office, P.O. Box 2263, Dallas 75221.

LIFE AFTER 65

You Are What You Eat

By JACK GOURLAY

Can life after 65 be healthy and happy? It can, if you plan your health today with as much care and concern as you plan your financial security. Planning and maintaining your health is largely a matter of good common sense.

Mental alertness, a good memory, maintaining a lively interest in the world around you, enjoyment of sex, these are all symptomatic, good yardsticks by which to measure good health. And good health is the dividend you earn as a result of good nutrition and good living from the cradle onward.

Dr. Pearl Swanson, of Iowa State University, expressed it well when she wrote: "Preparation for a healthy old age should begin in the office of the pediatrician."

Dr. Swanson, among others, maintains that what you will be in 20, 30, or 50 years depends in large measure on the food choices you make now. She says the characteristics of senility may not be the mark of old age, but rather, of nutritive failure.

Clinical studies indicate that improvement of diets has resulted in the return of more youthful attributes in people who were old in appearance and relatively young in years.

Poor health, lack of vigor, gray hair, skin conditions, sense of fatigue and loss of interest in life may represent years of poor dietary choices.

Many believe that aging is closely related to nutrition. Malnourished or starved persons may rapidly assume the appearance of advanced years; the hair may lose color and become thin, the skin wrinkled and inelastic. Sexual functions wane, and bone, muscle and vital glands and organs may develop chemical changes typical of so-called senile degeneration.

There is little question that the food we eat affects our general health. The right food keeps the body at peak efficiency. In the event of illness, the properly-nourished person will respond quickly to treatment. The body that is undernourished is more susceptible to disease.

Weight is a big factor in your health as well. People of normal weight outlive those who are overweight. Excessive weight contributes to fatigue and puts extra strain on the heart, the arteries, the elimination system and other vital organs. The degenerative diseases most often attack the overweight person, and the greater the excessive weight, the greater the chances of illness and accident.

The problem is caloric intake. A calorie is a unit of heat.

Briefing Slated On Gas Problems

The Federal Energy Office, in an effort to help alleviate the gasoline shortage in the Permian Basin, will conduct a special briefing in Odessa March 7 at 2 p.m.

W. J. "Jack" Alexander, Director of the Operations Division of the FEO in Dallas, will be moderator of the session dealing with fuel allocations in this area. All oilwell drilling contractors and servicing contractors, service station operators and jobbers, as well as wholesale purchasers are especially urged to attend the meeting on the 7th set for the ballroom of the Inn of the Golden West.

Alexander, a former Odessa resident, is acutely aware of the shortage in the Permian Basin and has been working during the past week to direct emergency supplies of gasoline to this area.

applied to measure the energy produced by various foods. As you grow older and become less active physically, your body doesn't require as many calories of energy as it did when you were younger and more active. Unfortunately, most of us are creatures of habit. We've acquired habits of eating certain foods to maintain the same diet throughout our lives, and we tend to add weight as the years go by. Naturally, your body uses fewer calories today than it needed yesterday to burn as energy. Therefore, it stores the calories as fat to be burned off some other time. But that time never comes, and the fat accumulates.

The following table illustrates the approximate caloric requirements for normally active people at various ages:

Age	Men (154 lbs)	Women (128 lbs)
25	2,900 cal.	2,100 cal.
45	2,600 cal.	1,900 cal.
65	2,200 cal.	1,600 cal.

Unfortunately, too many of us are intrigued and taken by the dieting fads, which "guarantee" to take the weight off. We are not saying that all these fad diets are wrong, but we caution you to know what you are doing. Many proponents of such diets advocate cutting down on proteins, since you are no longer actively engaged in a job requiring much physical exertion. For the most part, that advice is pure bunk! One result of following these tidbits of "wisdom" is that half the troubles of older people may well be due to malnutrition, or starvation. Many overweight people are fat because they eat too much of the wrong thing. They consume too much high-calorie food: starches and sweets, butter, margarine, oils, etc., and are literally starving, not from a lack of food, but from not eating a balanced diet, supplemented, if necessary, by vitamins. You do need fewer calories, as you grow older, but your protein, vitamin, and mineral needs remain the same.

The best thing you can do is to get on the scales and have a talk with your doctor. He will have a pretty good idea as to what is right for you. Find out what you should weigh and then make it a priority to reach that weight and keep it there.

Next: Keeping in Shape.

Country Music Unlimited Show Features Douglas

Country Music Unlimited, a show sponsored by the Big Spring Police Association and featuring Tony Douglas and The Shrimpers, will get under way in the municipal auditorium at 8 o'clock this evening.

In addition to Douglas, the show will feature Clem Appleknocker, Judy Anne, Jim Chestnut and Jody Nix.

Advance tickets can be purchased at the First National Bank and The Record Shop at a cost of $2 adults and $1 children.

Ducats at the door will sell for $3 adults and $2 children.

Douglas is regarded as "Mr. Nice Guy" in country music, a title given Tony by disc jockeys.

Born near Martins Mill, Texas in central East Texas, Tony grew up on a farm.

During military service in 1952, Tony was stationed in Germany and was asked to sing at the Service Club. He became a favorite around the camp. On his voyage home, Tony was in Special Service, entertaining civilian dependents aboard the ship.

Tony sang where he could get the opportunity. After receiving five encores in his first appearance on the Cowtown Hoedown in Ft. Worth, he became a regular member.

Tony later received an invitation to appear on the Louisiana Hayride in Shreveport, La. He was made a regular on the show and was there for three years.

Tony travels with his band, "The Shrimpers". It is composed of a lead guitar, steel guitar, bass and drums.

Among the favorite Tony Douglas recordings are: "His 'N Hers"; "Shrimpin'"; "Did I say Something Wrong"; "Mention My Name"; "Heart"; "Love Is The Reason"; "Home Away From Home"; "That's What I Get"; "Thank You For Touching My Life"; "My Last Day"; and his latest hit "Sweetest Hurt".

TEEN TRIED, CONVICTED WITHOUT BEING IN COURT

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — David Gonzales, 17, was back in jail Wednesday, principal in a case so rare in Texas criminal law that it is virtually unknown.

Gonzales was routed from an attic Tuesday afternoon by use of tear gas and returned to jail. He was found by his bondsman who called police.

The youth was tried and convicted without being in court. He was assessed 40 years in prison for the hammer slaying of Orello Rosas, 65, last July.

He was freed on $10,000 bond and sat through the selection of 12 women as his jurors last week. He then disappeared.

District Court Judge Noah Kennedy invoked Article 33.03 of the Code of Criminal Procedure which reads, "When the defendant voluntarily absents himself after pleading to the indictment or information, the trial may proceed to its conclusion."

Gonzales' bond earlier had been forfeited. His bondsman, Victor Moreno Sr., has applied to the court for return of his money.

Arms For Oil Swapping Makes Mid-East Volatile

By OMAR BURLESON WASHINGTON, D.C. — In 1956 England, France and Israel invaded Egypt in order to protect what they considered their vital "natural interest". They occupied the Suez Canal and, in all likelihood, would have gained control of its operation and areas necessary for its protection.

That operation failed largely because of American intervention. Today the position of the United States would probably be far more equivocal and the stakes much greater.

It may be that the Arabs are right in calculating that the nations of Western Europe and Japan, which depend so heavily on oil from that region, have neither the unity nor the nerve to take military sanction against them at this point. There may, however, come a time, if the boycott continues, that these nations, finding themselves in desperate economic circumstances, would find justification under international law to take whatever means necessary to get oil.

Short of provoking a war, which is not exactly beyond the realm of imagination, excessive use of oil as a weapon could produce a dramatic backlash against the Arab States. On our government's initiative, 13 major oil importing nations conferred here in Washington a few days ago, but the group steered clear of American proposals for a common approach to get the oil embargo lifted.

Added to the menace of oil as a weapon in world economics, is the fact that a number of energy-hungry nations are tripping over themselves to make separate deals in the Middle East with offers of armaments and sophisticated technology in exchange for crude oil. If continued, every Arab State may become armed with the most modern weapons. Given responsibility built on all the enmities and jealousies present in that part of the world for centuries, a holocaust could result.

The eagerness to swap arms for whatever oil can be had, with no questions asked and no conditions attached, is an exceedingly high risk to all the world. Such mini-nations as Kuwait, Abu Dhabi, and Oman, which have never had military pretensions are now receiving seeds of arms, many of which they do not have the ability to operate but buy them because of the prestige of military power and because they have money they do not know how to otherwise spend.

Pot Counts Dismissed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. Clary granted a dismissal motion for charges against a former federal narcotics agent and his associate.

The U.S. attorney's office submitted the motion to Judge Clary on the charges against former Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs agent Rex Billings and Dale Hill.

They were accused of enlisting help of two other men to impersonate federal officers but a mistrial was declared last Friday in federal court here after a jury that deliberated for a week declared it was "hopelessly hung."

Federal Judge D. W. Suttle presided in the trial which lasted 11 days and heard testimony from 29 witnesses.

City Club Gets Tips On Cooking

Mrs. James Johnston became a member of the City Home Demonstration Club during Friday's meeting in the home of Mrs. Waymon Etchison, 802 Dallas, with Mrs. Frances Zant as cohostess.

Mrs. Merle Hodnett presided, appointing Mrs. W. N. Norred to serve as chairman of the by-laws committee.

Using slides as illustration, Miss Sherry Mullin, county home demonstration agent, presented a program on the use of herbs and spices in cooking.

"Learn to use spices, and you will give the gift of food artistry to yourself and to those near and dear to you as long as you cook," said Miss Mullin.

In describing how spices and herbs add sparkle to meals, she gave the following tips:

Use spices and herbs sparingly. Let them add a subtle flavor to your food; they should never overwhelm it. Keep all spice and herb jars well sealed to retain flavor. Store jars away from direct sunlight and heat.

Buy spices and herbs in small quantities, and after three or four months check for freshness by odor. Spices are so inexpensive, every cook can afford to use only the freshest.

The red spices, paprika, chili powder, red pepper and crushed red pepper, should be stored in a cool place or in the refrigerator during hot, humid weather.

When adding dry mustard to other ingredients, rub it first between finger and thumb to do away with the tiny lumps that form in the powder.

Add ground spices near the end of the cooking process.

Whole herbs may be added sooner in the cooking process, but powdered herbs are better near the end.

The attendance prize was won by Mrs. Granville Dawson.

On March 8, the meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Ross Callihan, Silver Heels, with Mrs. Dalton Johnston as cohostess.

The WWI Barracks and its Ladies Auxiliary will meet at noon Saturday for a covered dish luncheon in the IOOF Hall. A program featuring a guest speaker will follow the luncheon.

Massengale Views City Property Taxes

Robert Massengale, city finance director, spoke on property taxes and the determinates for assessment at a meeting of Spring City Chapter, American Business Women's Association, Tuesday evening in the Permian Snack Bar.

"All home owners are involved with property tax," said Mr. Massengale. "Since they are usually handled by finance companies, most of us do not become aware of property taxes until income tax time."

Massengale, who has been the city's finance director for almost two years, said there is a difference in the sales and tax values of property. As an example, he noted that property having a sales value of $20,000 today would only have a value of $12,000 for property tax assessment purposes, based on list values set up in 1958.

Each of the five jurisdictions within this area use these tax values when determining the percentage upon which property tax is assessed; however, each jurisdiction sets their own rates. Massengale illustrated by chart that the majority of revenue from property taxes with the City, County, Howard College and State following in that order. He indicated that 23 per cent of each tax dollar spent by the City of Big Spring is derived from revenue received through property taxes.

Other guests in attendance were Ms. Emma Wiggins and Ms. Patty Goodman.

Mrs. Jimmy Jennings presided.

The vocational talk was given by Mrs. Kenneth Connor, manager of Magic Mirror, Chapter prayers were led by Mrs. William Jackson and Mrs. O. A. Badwick.

Plans were finalized for the Enrollment Party to be held at the Pioneer Gas

Flame Room at 7 p.m. March 11. Plans for Bosses Night, April 19, were discussed. Members were reminded by Mrs. Jennings to submit their Boss of the Year letters to Ms. Ruth Harper no later than March 15. Mrs. Fred Butler reported that it was not too late to register for the American Business Women's Association, District III, Southwest Region meeting, to be held in Albuquerque, New Mexico, March 22-24.

The next meeting will be at 7 p.m. March 26, at the Permian Snack Bar.

Coahoma Club Lists Winners

The Coahoma Bridge Club weekly games were held Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Roger Hudgins, 406 N. 5th, with high being won by Mrs. Ray Echols. Low went to Mrs. Norman Roberts, and Mrs. Jody Sory won bingo. The next meeting will be at 7 p.m., Monday in the home of Mrs. Marion Hayes.

Watermelon First Found In Africa

You might never suspect it — but the watermelon originated in Africa. In fact, the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association tells us, David Livingstone, the noted missionary explorer, found watermelons growing wild in the desert and semi-desert regions of Africa and published accounts in 1858 of his discovery.

Now it's your turn to discover the fresh crop of ripe, red juicy watermelons at your market and enjoy them to the hilt. Mothers can please their youngsters by leaving thin wedges of watermelon ready cut in the refrigerator for kiddies to snack on.

Patsy Who?

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have some advice for Rosemary whose husband had "Helen" tattooed on his chest.

Don't worry. For the last three years I've been resting my head on my husband's chest every night, and I see "Patsy" staring me in the face. (My name is Marie.)

It was nothing serious — just a kid romance. He was 16, and she was 14 at the time. He says he wishes he could remove that tattoo now but it's too expensive and too painful, so I just keep reminding myself that I had three kids by a previous marriage when he married me so he must have loved me a lot.

He has been a wonderful husband to me, and a terrific father to my kids, so I'm not going to let a little thing like "Patsy" on his chest bother me. Sign me.

LUCKIER THAN PATSY DEAR LUCKIER: You're luckier than you thought. I'm informed that Dr. Gary Manchester of San Diego came up with a new technique for removing unwanted tattoos. It's called "salabrasion," and it's supposedly the cheapest and easiest method, and leaves no scars. Briefly, it's done by rubbing table salt into the tattoo. (Don't try to do it yourself — consult a doctor!) It's approved by the California Medical Association. Now if you husband wants to salt Patsy away permanently, he can rub salt in the wound.

DEAR ABBY: I am having a terrible time with my landlady. You see, I get this room for only $30 a month, and it is big and airy and near my work, and I can't afford to move.

The landlady likes me too much. I'm 28, and she is old enough to be my mother. The other morning I woke up and she was standing over me watching me sleep! (She has her own key.)

If I clean up the yard she hugs and kisses me so much I can hardly get away from her. (I think she drinks a little.) When I pay the rent she always asks me to stay and visit a while, then she gets kissy with me.

I don't want to insult her or she'll kick me out, so what do you suggest?

NERVOUS DEAR NERVOUS: Do your best to keep her at arm's length. And get a chain for your door to keep her out while you are in.

DEAR ABBY: For reasons too numerous to mention I never learned how to drive a car and I don't care to. I have always provided my own transportation and have never imposed upon my friends to drive me places.

My problem is having to defend myself against people who first ask me how come I never learned how to drive, and then give me a long lecture on how "foolish" I am for not learning.

I feel it's really none of their business as long as I don't ask them to chauffeur me around.

DOESN'T DRIVE DEAR DOESN'T: Tell them — exactly the way you told me.

HOW IMPORTANT ARE ACCESSORIES?

No one can stress the importance of accessories in interior design enough. Too often, the selection of accessories is treated lightly, perhaps because they are usually the last items chosen for a room.

Accessories should not be hasty after-thoughts; they should be in harmony with the total decorating plan. A poor selection of accessories can be the undoing of an otherwise beautifully decorated room.

In interior decorating, accessories fall in two categories: The decorative and the functional. A painting, for example, is decorative; a lamp is functional. The functional accessory, however, should also be well-designed and attractive.

Accessories give rooms visual pleasure. They may express your personal interest or be used for their color, pattern or artistic merit.

Among functional accessories that you should select with care to harmonize with your rooms are such things as screens, wastebaskets, mirrors, clocks, candlesticks, candy dishes, cigarette boxes, vases, planters, pillows, ashtrays, bowls and dozens of other useful items.

When the color scheme of a room is low-keyed, accessories can introduce an intense color or two to provide contrast.

A wonderful selection of accessories may be seen here. Come on in.

PICKING TO PIECES THE LIFE OF AN INNOCENT MAN

Victim Said She Was Sure He Was The Robber

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The judge had reviewed the case. Now he paused and looked down at the slight figure of the defendant, who had protested his innocence for 15 long, costly months.

WRONG GUY
"I hope," the judge said carefully, "rather than lose faith in the system that this somehow can renew the faith he has in the system, which after all is comprised of human beings, with all the fallibilities that human conduct is heir to..."

"And the court will place on the record that you are an innocent man who was wrongfully accused of a crime..."
Wrongfully accused of a crime, George Morales walked out of the New York State Supreme Court a free man, yet even more aware of the vulnerability of that freedom.

It all began on Oct. 4, 1972, when a young man accosted Marina Danzig, a woman in her 30s, in the stairwell of her apartment building in Greenwich Village. He threatened her with a knife, made sexual advances and stole her pocketbook.

SHE CALLED COPS
Six days later in the same neighborhood, she thought she saw him again. She called the police.

George Morales, then 18, had returned to the Maritime Trades High School to see a school doctor about an earache and to get permission to go home. As he was about to leave, he saw a woman and two men out of the corner of his eye.

"I see the lady and she is pointing at me. She is sort of hysterical whimpering... And this detective, he took out a gun and told me to stop."

Morales didn't realize what was happening. At first he thought the man with the gun meant someone else. He took a quick step back to get out of the line of fire.

PERSONAL NIGHTMARE
Thus began a very personal nightmare in his life. He began that day as simply George Morales, born of a Cuban mother and a Puerto Rican father, a welfare resident of a south Bronx slum, trying to pull himself out of the mire of poverty, an honors student with dreams of college.

He ended the day a prisoner. And it all happened because he looked like someone else.

BLOOD SAMPLES
"I asked where we were going, and they said Riker's Island a large prison on an island in the East River. And I was surprised. I told them that the arresting officer said I was going to the morning session of court and wouldn't be more convenient if I stayed here? And he says no, and he just didn't say anything else."

"So it was three in the morning when we arrived at Riker's Island." Records, blood samples, a call to his mother, a small card with his name and cell number. Morales entered the third cell of the day and went to sleep on his cot, exhausted. He barely had time to note that his cellmate had an arrest record and was in for robbery.

SICK, HURT
The next morning he expected to be taken back to the Tombs for day court. He skipped his first prison breakfast. He was too sick and hurt to eat. When the prison loudspeaker called off the names of prisoners to be sent to the Tombs, his name was not among them.

"I was wondering what happened. I was supposed to be called. I was almost sure I was going to be called. In the afternoon they called my name..."

MUG SHOTS
He was transferred to the Tombs, the city's main detention center. Mug shots. A public defender. Then he was taken before the judge. His mother and brother were in the courtroom.

The judge formally charged him and set bail at $1,000. It might as well have been a million. Morales protested that he had never been arrested before and, "considering where I live, that's saying something."

He was remanded to the jail authorities, frightened and confused.

He remembers the officer telling him not to worry, that he would arrange for him to return for the morning session of court, at which time his mother could post bond.

Morales was locked into one of a series of small holding cells, but 15 minutes later he was called out again and handcuffed.

NEW KID ON BLOCK
When he got up, he found himself confronting several of the regular inmates, including a deaf-mute up for murder. In prison parlance, Morales was the new kid on the block.

He tells the story with some difficulty, still trying to understand. "It was sort of like when you're new and they want to see what you're made of. So they come to you, and they start sort of shoving..."

"If you give in, you're in trouble. So what happened is I got into this fight. I didn't win... Then it was time to go to bed, so they stopped."

The guards didn't interfere. Morales says they seldom do. The deaf-mute got his licks in. Morales, bruised and black-eyed, shut away his pain with sleep.

BAILED OUT
"Now I was really worried. I was afraid I was forgotten. I was on the edge most of the day. Then at three o'clock in the afternoon I finally heard my name... I was to get ready. I was bailed out."

Monday, court again. Mrs. Danzig was there. Morales remembers the tallish brunette sitting on the opposite side of the courtroom, looking at him.

"She wanted to see me in the back, so I stood up. I asked her if she was still sure I was the one, that she was making a great mistake, that I was not the one who had robbed her."

SHE WAS SORRY
"But she insisted, and she says, yes I'm sure. She told me she was sorry. She thought I had been punished enough. But she still made her accusation which is kind of ironic."

With an attorney hired from a storefront office across from the courthouse, Morales stood before the court.

In the weeks that followed, the Morales case wallowed from procedure to procedure. Morales was beginning to have some doubts about his lawyer, who he felt didn't care. At about this time, a cousin, Jose Morales, at 24 a well-known painter who lives in Sweden, visited New York. They had grown up together.

Jose Morales talked to George's attorney and recommended he find another. Through friends, they found Jack Goldberg, a young lawyer whose clients were mostly Spanish-speaking and black.

Goldberg entered the Morales case a month after the arrest. It was at a standstill. "After one discussion... he looked to me to be totally innocent. He just sounded like it. I also spoke to his parents, who told me where he was the day of the crime. He was home. There were at least five affidavits from people who were with him at the time."

TRUTH TEST
For the first time, Morales felt some hope. Goldberg reassured him. He told him if he could pass a lie detector test, Goldberg would get him off. Goldberg knew the Bronx D.A. used lie detector tests routinely, to weed out "bad and faulty arrests."

Then, out of the melange of the New York courts, came a new development, the case of Lawrence Berson, a 17-year-old Baruch College freshman, arrested for a series of rapes. He was identified in lineups by three rape victims and held on $60,000 bail.

Two weeks after he was arrested, he was freed. Police found another man, nearly a twin to Berson, Richard Carbone, a 20-year-old taxi driver, pleaded guilty to the crimes.

SEXUAL OVERTONES
The pictures of Berson and Carbone were widely displayed in New York City newspapers. Both men strongly resembled George Morales.

"The pictures looked too much like my guy," Goldberg said. "And the fact that in George's case there were sexual overtones, and this guy was a rapist... There was a good possibility that this kid was being charged with a crime somebody else had committed."

Another thing bothered Goldberg. Mrs. Danzig had described her assailant as 6-foot-1, 185 pounds, red hair, Frail George Morales was 5-foot-10, 130 pounds, brown hair.

Meanwhile Morales dropped out of school and took a messenger's job to help pay for his defense.

NEW EVIDENCE
Goldberg took the new evidence to Eric Toppin, a black assistant D.A. prosecuting Morales. "He was relatively new... and he wasn't about to make this decision. I could understand his problem. He had a complainant who believed beyond any doubt that George was guilty... He wouldn't give George the lie detector test either."

Lie detector tests were not legally admissible evidence in New York State, and the Manhattan D.A.'s office already had trouble with them in another case then under way.

So Goldberg took steps to get a private test. On March 29, Morales was given a polygraph by a prestigious Manhattan firm. The man who gave the test, Richard Arthur, had trained police and prosecutors in its use. He told Morales, "It's negative. You didn't do it."

Now Goldberg added the lie detector test to his other evidence. He thought, "Certainly now I had enough ammunition to get the prosecutors to give their own lie detector exam."

FRUSTRATED
Again the prosecution refused. Frustrated, Goldberg went to Mrs. Danzig and asked her again if she was mistaken.

"I told her about the test and how we felt about George and his innocence. She displayed at that time a disposition that sort of got to me. It seemed she didn't want him punished. She didn't care whether or not he went to jail. But nevertheless she felt he was guilty... His image at that point was cemented in her mind. She couldn't help it."

Nothing he tried would break the case. Now he asked for a lineup. He wanted Carbone and Berson in it. Berson understandably refused.

Five times lineups were scheduled and canceled. Each time Morales showed up and went home again. The request was first made in May. The lineup was finally held on Sept. 6 — Carbone, Morales and three others who didn't resemble either. One looked at Carbone and Goldberg was shocked.

GAINED WEIGHT
His face had changed in prison. His hair was cut short. He did not wear glasses. "He had gained more weight. He was now up to about 220 pounds. He looked a lot healthier too. I couldn't conceive of her picking out a 220-pound guy with my guy standing there too. She came up to that one-way mirror, and I would say that a second didn't pass before she identified George Morales."

But something did happen that day that eventually broke the case. Goldberg talked to Detective Nat Laurendi, a trouble-shooter and lie detector expert in the D.A.'s office. Laurendi looked at the Berson-Carbone pictures and the polygraph test. He promised a closer investigation.

For Morales, behind the mirror, there were a few words with Carbone, pleading his innocence. Carbone said nothing.

Meanwhile Goldberg kept checking with Laurendi. The detective said he was doing something, asked Goldberg not to press him on it. Then Laurendi asked to see Morales alone, without Goldberg present. Goldberg agreed.

ITALIAN ACCENT
Laurendi grilled Morales for two days. He wanted to know everything from the day he was born, sizing up not just Morales the accused, but Morales the man.

He called in the Morales family, interviewed them separately. He ordered lie detector tests for both Morales and Carbone. Carbone was now admitting that he had attacked Mrs. Danzig. Was he telling the truth? Carbone, in fact, seemed to know things that only the attacker would know, for instance that Mrs. Danzig had an Italian accent.

There were a number of things to worry about. The resemblance between Carbone, Berson and Morales was not unique. Morales has a fraternal twin brother. Morales' home in the Bronx was only three blocks away from the Carbone home. Did the two families know each other? Was there collusion? Did anyone contact the Carbone to induce him to clear Morales? After all, Carbone was serving eight terms of 20 years each. What was one more charge? Or was Carbone just trying to make a good impression on the parole board by falsely admitting to the crime?

STILL SHY
All Detective Laurendi would tell Goldberg was that things looked better and better for Morales. Then in November 1973, Laurendi called Goldberg. The case would be dismissed. Just a matter of time.

On Nov. 28, the court released bail and set Jan. 10, 1974, for the dismissal of charges against Morales, 15 months to the day that Mrs. Danzig's accusing finger pointed the law at him.

Thinking back on it, still shy, aware of his injury, trying to be fair, Morales vacillates between understanding and blame: "You're supposed to have a speedy trial. That's what the law says."

Liquor Store Owner Isn't Delighted With Court Win

In affirming a lower court decision, the Supreme Court ruled the "seizure of material was based solely on the personal predilections of the liquor control agents."

THEY'RE AFTER ME
"Those guys should have known they weren't doing their jobs," Peto, 51, said. He said he now intends to sue the state if he can find a lawyer to take his case.

Peto says his license to sell alcoholic beverages was revoked and that he's now operating on a temporary license until an appeals hearing in May on a permanent revocation.

"They just want to get rid of me. This is why they're after me. Because I've spoken up and taken my rights," Peto said.

"Our system is wonderful, but who the hell can afford justice?" Peto asked. "If an individual was to fight his own rights, he would have to come up with $20,000."

NCAA Names Meet Choices

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Second-ranked Notre Dame, first team to conquer UCLA in three years, and five other teams were named today to the National Collegiate Athletic Association's championship basketball tournament.

Gervin Felt Like 'A Piece Of Meat'

George Gervin says he never wants any other American Basketball Association player to be treated the way he was when he was dealt from Virginia to San Antonio.

"I felt like a piece of meat that had been bought and left in the freezer until the purchaser came to pick it up," said Gervin Wednesday, reviewing his feelings on learning he had been traded from the Virginia Squires to the San Antonio Spurs nearly a month after the deal had reportedly been made.

Gervin said the ABA Players' Association is working to make sure there is never a repetition of the situation.

While the trade is unsettled and is still being contested in court, Gervin says he's happy to be with San Antonio. And the Spurs must have been happy to have him around when he sank two free throws with 52 seconds remaining to help the Spurs gain a 107-105 victory over the New York Nets.

In other ABA games, Kentucky trounced Virginia 104-83, San Diego edged Carolina 119-117, and Denver beat Indiana 118-114.

Buffalo defeated Boston 122-104, while in other National Basketball Association games Kansas City-Omaha beat Atlanta 85-76, Capital edged Seattle 104-100, Los Angeles nipped Milwaukee 110-108 and Chicago downed Phoenix 107-95.

Colonels 104, Squires 83
Kentucky took advantage of the Nets' loss to move within a game of the first place in the ABA East. The Colonels had six men in double figures led by Artis Gilmore who had 17 points and 15 rebounds.

Q's 119, Cougars 117
Dwight Lamar scored 26 points in 30 minutes for the Conquistadors, who gained their eighth victory in 10 outings.

Rockets 118, Pacers 114
Denver's Mike Green scored 18 of his 22 points in the last half, including two crucial free throws with four seconds to go in the game. His teammate Dave Robish also added 22 as the Rockets moved ahead at the end of the third period when Green hit two free throws.

Three Klondike girls, Nancy Pribylka, Gayle Singleton and Cheryl O'Bannon, also made the honor squad.

The all-tournament teams in four divisions were chosen by sportswriters attending the three-day meet here last weekend.

The other unanimous all-tournament selections were Carla Ratliff of Canyon in Class 3A; Linda Andrews and Cyndra Frick, both of Comanche, in 2A; Sara Williams and Becky Morgan, both of Grandview, in A; and Sandy Luna and Miss Canafax, both of Poolville, in B.

HIGH AND CENTER

The More Vital Issue

Was the Navy spying on top secret information in the White House in 1972, or wasn't it? If it was, it constitutes an outrage of the highest order. If not, the Navy's name needs to be cleared.

The Senate Armed Services Committee is conducting hearings on the question. Yeoman Charles Radford, an enlisted man on clerical-stenographic duty in the military liaison office at the White House, has acknowledged that for a year he secretly obtained highly classified diplomatic information from the office of Dr. Henry Kissinger and funneled it to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Admiral Thomas H. Moorer is chairman of the Joint Chiefs.

The question is who told Radford to do so. Thus far Dr. Kissinger, Admiral Moorer and Admiral Robert O. Welander, who was his immediate superior for part of the time involved, have testified behind closed doors before the Armed Services Committee.

So has Radford. In testimony released by the committee, he said that he acted at all times at the request of his military superiors, who cautioned him to keep secret the funneling of White House files to the Pentagon.

Radford said his first boss at the White House, Admiral Rembrandt C. Robinson (now dead) asked him to keep his eyes peeled for material in which the nation's military chiefs might be interested. He quoted Robinson as saying "this was an opportunity to do a job for the joint chiefs. . ."

He said Robinson and then his successor, Rear Adm. Robert O. Welander, gave him detailed instructions. Radford said his superiors praised him for his work.

Welander went before the committee and denied the charges against him as "the grossest and most irresponsible distortion of fact."

He says that his attempts to close off leaks of highly classified material to the press in 1971 were somehow twisted into accusations that he spied for the Joint Chiefs.

Moorer has denied he ever requested or authorized the spying operation. Yet he says he saw two batches of documents secreted to him but paid little attention because "they contained no new information." In an appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press" Feb. 17, he said he should have been more alert in 1971 when the alleged spying occurred.

At issue is the security of highly secret security information. But more vital is whether the American tradition of civilian dominance over military authority has been breached, or whether it is only an incident of one man acting improperly in a sensitive job. This is a high-priority responsibility that needs airing.

Pulling Out The Rug

One of the dangers of the Senate bill which would roll back the price of domestic crude oil is that it creates an air of uncertainty for those who plan to try and increase the supply of crude oil.

Already, in our area, we have seen numerous examples of operators rehabilitating ore resurrounding oil wells which heretofore have economically infeasible. Now with prospect of higher returns, these marginal wells have become worth the effort and the gamble.

But what producer is going to do the bank for financing on oil whose prices easily might be cut by 50 per cent or more? In fact, what about the great number who already have taken this plunge because of higher crude prices? Will the financial rug be pulled out from under them? And if so, what will become of the new, net barrels they have brought to market?

It is true that if the price structure is left alone, an eventual increase in output together with restoration of diminishing imports, may be forced back by the marketplace. But that is not, apt to happen until operators have had time to recover on their investment, and anyhow, it is the hazard they incur in playing the game the free way.

That Time Of Year

Around The Rim

Marj Carpenter

It's getting to be political season again. County, city and school elections are at hand.

I now find that I have more or less watched the political scenes for 30 years, having graduated from high school back in 1943. That ought to properly date me.

I'VE SEEN a lot of funny things happen and some of them in races that were seemingly unimportant. I remember a school board member sending letters out to the voter's list with two cards inserted and the words, "I am sending you two of my cards. Keep one and give one to a friend with a good word for me."

One recipient sent his two cards back with these words, "Here are your cards. I don't intend to vote for you and have you no friends that will either."

One time, an ASCS election to select which farmers would serve as committee members became particularly violent in one West Texas town. You would think that would be a position that nobody would want but these two farmers got into a fist fight outside the ASCS office and rolled around in the mud before they were separated.

I can remember when John Connally made a swing through Texas and spoke from the rear platform of the train and then stood on the train steps and shook hands, the first time he was running for governor.

He met one woman who had married into a Floresville family and looked down and patted her small son on the head and said "You look just like your grandfather in my home town." Whereupon the youth piped up with "I hope not."

I ALSO remember when one school board member in an area town made the promise that he would close down a school to save expenses, give the teachers a raise, and make the cafeteria balance their budget.

Another candidate countered with "If he does all that, I will personally make every child milk a cow and walk three miles to school through the snow to build character." The second candidate won.

When Lyndon was young back in 1946 he spoke at a teacher gathering at Kingsville and his speech was plugging for more federal aid to the schools. This was in the pre Gilmer-Aiken days and teachers worked for $120 per month. Said a voice in the back of the room, "Never mind all that aid to the schools, how about some aid for the teachers?"

I recall when Barry Goldwater was running for President, there was a closed wedding anniversary reception for him in Odessa after the public reception. The press traveling with him across the country presented the Goldwaters with a beautiful Indian urn.

SAID GOLDWATER, "This is particularly touching when I consider the fact that the most of you disagree with me to the point where you could throw up."

Back when J. T. Rutherford (Demo) and Ed Foreman (GOP) were running against each other for Congress, Earl Mazo, a very prize-winning reporter with the New York Herald Tribune, called and asked me "Marj do you know any Republicans that might win out in Texas?" I told him that Foreman might win.

Three days later, Rutherford spoke in the Pecos park and said that he had flown back to tour his district because the New York Herald Tribune had shown that a poll of West Texas showed that he was running behind. I've had very little regard for polls since then because I figured it was the poll. However, Foreman did win.

ALWAYS IN POLITICS, there is one more surprise. The first political race that I have a memory of was when W. Lee O'Daniel came to Mercedes and the LightCrust Doughboys stood out on the back of a wagon playing "I Like Mountain Music."

I didn't know what my very last political memory will be, but I enjoy watching politics and as long as there is politics, I intend to go where they are and see what it's all about.

I've been all the way from a coffee for a JP to a bill-signing at the White House and from a press party on the Johnson Ranch to candidates passing out packages of needles at the county fair. And it might have failed to be interesting.

Spy Thriller

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Fletch Knebel never gives up. Last week he was back in Hollywood trying to sell Magna Cum Laude Productions another movie idea.

"ALL RIGHT, Fletch, what is it this time?"

"I've got a craby idea. It's a spy story."

"We can always use a spy story. What's it about, the Russians or the Chinese?"

"It's more complicated than that. It's about the Pentagon spying on the White House."

"Good grief, Fletch . . ."

"HEAR ME OUT. There's this head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, an admiral, and he's worried that the White House might do something without him knowing about it."

"Like what?"

"Make a deal with Ghana or Panama, or something. I haven't worked that out yet. So, anyway, he expresses his nervousness to two admirals who set up their own spy ring right in the White House."

"IS THIS a remake of 'Seven Days in May'?"

"No, this is all new stuff. The spy turns out to be a yeoman first class who has access to all the papers in the White House. Every night before he goes home he borrows documents from the office of Henry Kay, the President's adviser on foreign affairs. The material is delivered to the Joint Chiefs of Staff in the morning, and they know exactly what the White House is up to."

"Where's the love story?"

"HENRY KAY is a secret swinger, and on one of his dates in Egypt while he's sitting in front of the Pyramids with a Wave lieutenant who works for the admiral, she reveals that she knows what Henry said to Mao Tse-tung on his recent trip to Peking."

"Henry is aware that the only people who know what he said to Mao Tse-tung were Mrs. Mao Tse-tung, President Nixon and Jack Anderson. In a fury he flies back to Washington after stopping off in Israel, Jordan, Liberia, Moscow, New Delhi and South Korea. He reports to the President that the Pentagon has planted a spy in the White House."

MY ANSWER

Billy Graham

The Bible says God will some day establish His righteous reign, and do away then with calamities and sufferings. Isn't it a great injustice that people living after such a kingdom is established will enjoy a trouble free world, while previous generations suffered through it?

Two things come to mind. The first is a statement of Paul in Romans' 9th chapter where he is discussing another kind of so-called "discrimination." It relates to God's use of the people Israel, and Paul asked: "Who are you to criticize God? Should the thing made say to the One who made it, 'Why have you made me like this?'"

You see, what Paul was developing here was the doctrine of God's sovereignty. After all, this is His world. His plan of redemption is perfect, and His timing appropriate. Keep in mind, however, that while God is sovereign, He uses that sovereignty, not with arbitrary power, but with mercy.

If we're tempted to charge God with putting us in some disadvantageous position, we need to remember how much endurance and forbearance He has already demonstrated. The cross is the superb example of that.

The other reference is in John 21 where Peter was suggesting to Christ that another person was being favored over him. Jesus simply said, "What is that to you — you follow me!" Ultimately, that's the best answer!

A Devotion For Today

They cried unto the Lord in their trouble, and he delivered them out of their distresses. (Psalm 107:6)

PRAYER: Almighty God, we thank Thee that in both shadow and sunshine we are surrounded by Thy care and love. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

Dearth Of Choice

William F. Buckley Jr.

The election in England is today, and one senses, in the words and inflections of some Englishmen, something like that strangled cry about which John Strachey wrote: the feeling that is all going wrong, and all you can do about it is record your hope, before it is overwhelmed by history's juggernaut. It isn't that the forces in England, like those say in Weimar, or more lately in Budapest, and Prague, are those of evil pitted against good. They are, though, forces — in the Labor Party they predominate — so hostile to common sense and any hope of strategic freedom for the individual, that they test the very presumptions of self-government.

A LEARNED observer of Indo-Chinese culture, trying (vainly) to instruct his peers on the foolishness of expecting western democratic punctilio in South Vietnam, wrote a few years ago that, for the Indo-Chinese, the notion that the way to make policy was to step into a tent and put a black bead, or a white bead, into a little counting urn, was simply dismissed as white man's superstitions. It is a white man's superstition in many parts of England that by pulling the one lever, instead of the other, wealth and security will flow, without the need for any significant supplementary human exertion.

MR. COLIN Welch of the "Daily Telegraph," a hugely gifted critic and journalist, fights the White King. "There is nothing like eating hay when you're faint," he told Alice, who demurred. "I didn't say there was nothing better," the King replied. "I said there was nothing like it."

Welch explained that, in England, people are given to saying that the whole business about nationalizing industries is irrelevant — hay for faintness. "What harm if Labor swept power on a platform of soda water for goldfish or beaver hats trimmed with clocksprings for midwives? But alas," he says, "they won't. Sweeping nationalization, vast increases in taxation, wicked defense cuts and quarrels with our allies, an inevitable run on the pound, all calculated to insure that a Labor Britain is penniless, friendless, and defenseless — these disastrous prospects are no more irrelevant than josing both legs in a car smash."

"LABOR IS going to take over ship-building and repairing, marine engineering, ports, air frames and engines, development and mineral rights. In order to control prices, stimulate investment, create employment and protect workers and consumers, it will take over profitable industries and bits of industries, as well as all those greedy loss-makers whose feet are already in the state trough. The dread fingers point also at pharmaceuticals, road haulage, machine tools, construction, perhaps at banking, insurance, the building societies, and, last but not least, North and Celtic Sea oil and gas."

Odd Turn In West

Robert Novak

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Political fallout from Watergate is pushing the California Republican party leftward from Gov. Ronald Reagan's conservatism back toward a reincarnation of Earl Warren progressivism, a wholly unexpected event with potentially profound national consequences.

THE CENTRAL development of Republican politics here amounts to a stunning reversal of the party's long rightward trend. The Republican establishment, including Reagan's inner circle, has agreed upon a candidate for governor: state controller Houston I. Flournoy, a 44-year-old former college professor and longtime liberal critic of Reaganism. Thanks to that consensus, Flournoy is the favorite in the June 4 primary and could lead California's most liberal Republican ticket since the early 1950s.

What's more, some shrewd Democratic operatives long have seen Flournoy — independent, progressive and scandal-free — as the one Republican who could buck the 1974 Democratic tide. If Flournoy could score an upset, he would instantly become an important new factor in national politics.

THE IMMEDIATE cause of these remarkable developments is not ideological conversion but, oddly, preoccupation by Reagan's financial backers with his last-ditch attempt for President. It was clear long ago that Reagan's ambitions conflicted with front-running Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke's becoming the nominee for governor.

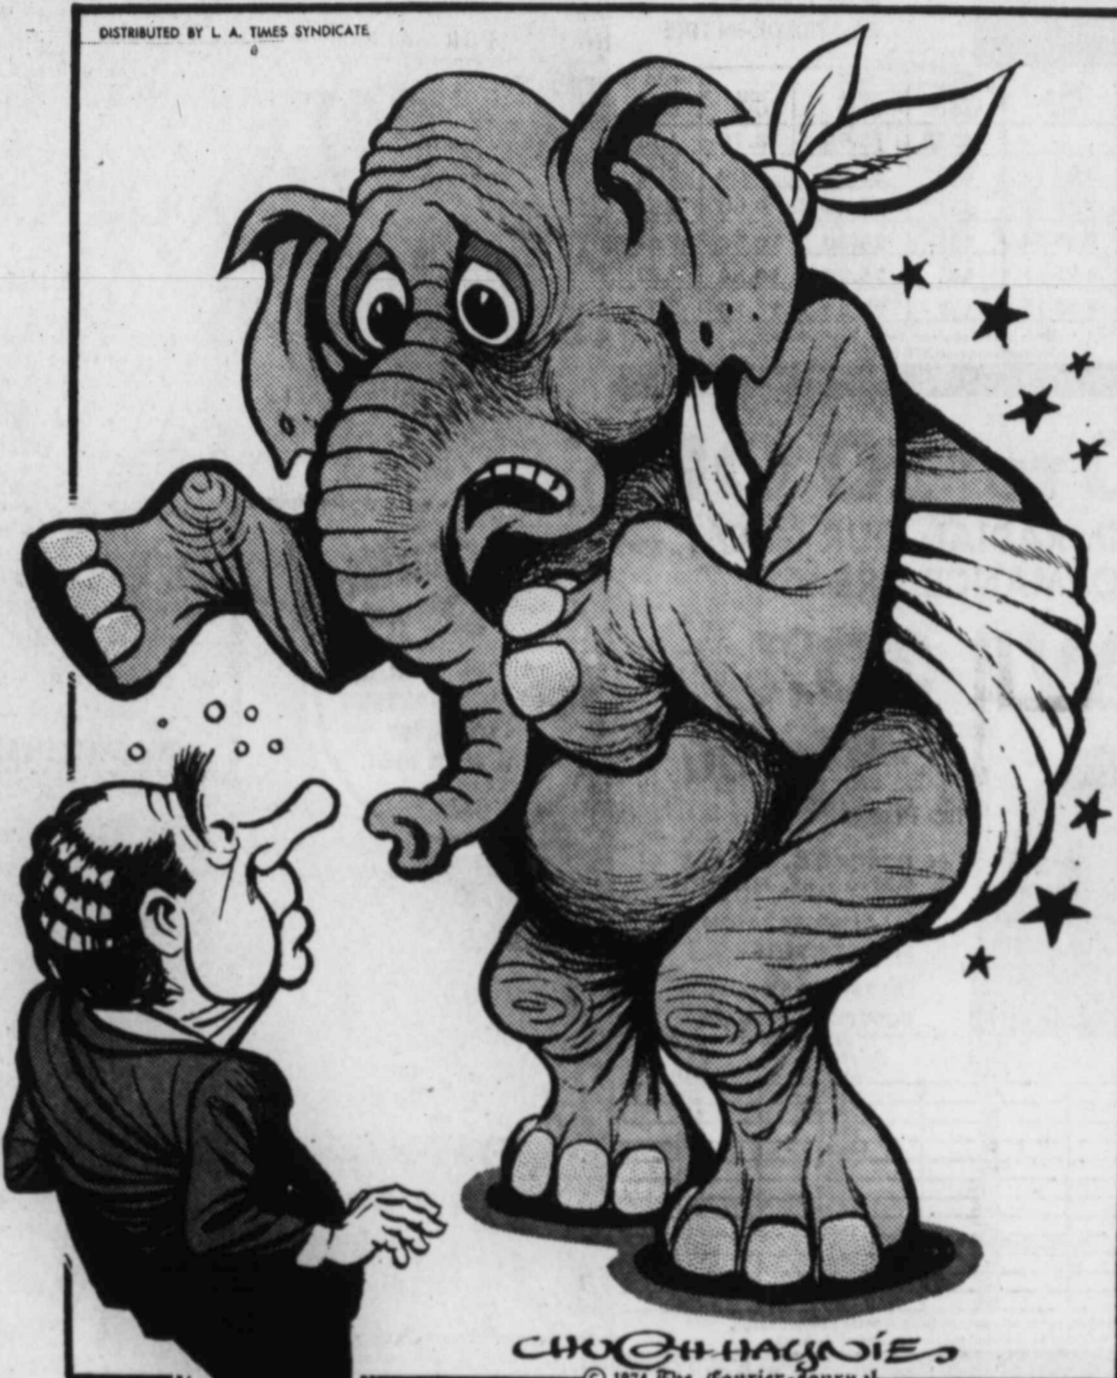

Reinecke, Reagan's hand-picked lieutenant governor, is idolized by right-wing Reaganite precinct workers. But Reagan fatcats, headed by millionaire auto dealer Holmes Tuttle of Los Angeles, became convinced Reinecke could not win in November when he became tangentially involved in the FIT affair. What makes electing a Republican governor so important to the Tuttle group is their fear that a Democratic successor in Sacramento — particularly Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown, Jr. — might hurt Reagan nationally by slashing away at his record as governor.

SAN FRANCISCO industrialist David Packard (former Deputy Secretary of Defense) sold Flournoy to the Tuttle group. In return, Flournoy gave this watery concession: as governor, he would retain Reagan's "good" programs.

Flournoy did not promise to support Reagan for President. On the contrary, he had to promise anti-Reagan money men, headed by industrialist Leonard Firestone, that he had not made any presidential commitment to Reagan.

THEY ARE additional costs for Flournoy in his rise from 4 per cent obscurity. He was intellectually opposed to Reagan's proposed state taxing limit but endorsed it anyway. Although Flournoy has been privately, often scathingly, critical of Reagan's governorship, he told a recent Lincoln Day dinner in San Jose: "He's been a darn good governor. He also capitulated on his choice for lieutenant-governor all of which have tarnished in aura of independence,

"... Then they pulled Jerry Ford's old seat out from under me and . . ."

John To Leave Family

John Cuniff

By JERRY BUCK (Substituting for John Cuniff)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — This is the week John Rich packs it in and leaves "All in the Family."

Unless you watch the credits, you may not be familiar with the name. But John, with his 18-hour days, is as responsible for the success of this top-rated CBS-comedy series as anyone.

He's produced or directed every show since its debut in January 1970, most often doing both. In the beginning he directed 37 consecutive shows. He's also the host at the tapings, doing the audience warm-up.

Rich, 48, built like a retired pro football player — "This job turned my hair gray and put 20 pounds on me" — leaves Tandem Productions at the end of the week to set up his own production company.

One of his many functions on "All in the Family" was to keep its comedy topical — despite the fact that the shows are taped six weeks before airing.

"Topicality comes to you by reading the newspapers," he said. "It's not by any magic or manipulation. We're just careful of what's in the newspapers. We have our people talking about what America's talking about."

In a show taped last fall Archie Bunker got locked in the cellar when he went down to check his empty oil tank. Rich said, "The original concept was that Edith failed to call the oil people. His line was to be, 'Thank you, Edith.' In rehearsal I thought that was too much responsibility to put on Edith and changed it to 'Thank you, Arabs.'"

The next day the Yom Kippur War broke out in the Middle East and by the time the show was on the air six weeks later we had a full-fledged energy crisis.

Last summer, when the Watergate hearings were under way, some people thought "All in the Family" was reshooting the reruns to include Watergate jokes. "Things were being said the winter before and we had included them," Rich said. "By summer everything was up to date."

Testing Of Reflexes

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was recently advised during a physical checkup that I have no reflexes in my legs or arms. Is that bad? If so, can anything be done? — V. J. G.

Not necessarily bad — and unless the doctor investigated or discussed problems that might be related to it, I think you can dismiss it from your mind.

The knee reflex (when the doctor taps you just below the kneecap) may be sluggish or absent if the individual is tense. Nervous tension can mean muscular tension, too.

One trick that is employed, if the question of the reflex have the patient clasp his hands together, and on signal have him try to pull his hands apart. At the same moment the knee is tapped. This will often produce a response.

These reflexes may become sluggish or absent in an older person — you didn't mention your age. Or in patients with low thyroid function, which is not uncommon. Diabetes also can cause absence of the reflex.

If, in some cases, the absence is due to a nerve disorder, there usually are other symptoms, but since you mentioned none, I wouldn't expect that to be a cause of concern for you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: There have been articles that grease for frying french fries, etc., should not be used more than three times at the most. How about reusing butter or oleo? Is it all right to reheat it over and over? — C. U.

Reheating can change polyunsaturated fats into produces aldehydes and ketones that alter the taste. I'd recommend that the no-more-than-three rule be followed with ANY type of fat you use for such frying. Including oleo and butter.

Letter Tips Source Of Funds For Nixon

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) —

A milk co-operative lawyer says a $100,000 Nixon campaign contribution in 1969 illegally came from corporate funds. The money previously had been described as an intended payoff for "sympathetic understanding of the dairy industry problems."

E. C. Heintger, the chief antitrust lawyer for Associated Milk Producers, Inc., says AMPI made an illegal $100,000 contribution to the Committee to Re-elect the President.

A Jan. 21, 1974, letter from Heintger to lawyer Kenneth Parkinson of Washington, D.C., discloses an intricate series of transactions about the contribution, which predated President Nixon's controversial decision in 1971 to increase milk price supports.

The four-page, single-spaced letter was introduced into evidence Wednesday in a deposition of Dr. George Mehren, general manager of the 40,000-member co-op.

Mehren is testifying in depositions for the Justice Department and AMPI competitors who filed antitrust suits against AMPI in 1971 and 1972. AMPI is the nation's largest milk co-op.

In recent testimony in a civil suit brought by consumer advocate Ralph Nader against Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, lawyer Jake Jacobson of Austin, Tex., said the $100,000 went to Nixon fundraiser Herbert Kalmbach via Jacobson's partner, Milton Semer.

Howard College Students Come In Varied Groups

Ages of college students are important in determining curricula and planning programs at Howard College at Big Spring.

Most persons think that the average college age is in the 18-21 year bracket, says Theron Lee, director of continuing education at the local campus. "In many of our programs, this is far from true," he says.

Lee explains that nearly half of the college-going population of the U. S. is between 23 and 55 years of age, according to a national survey. "This fact is important at Howard College, especially in the extended day classes (after 6 p.m.). More than 75 per cent of the students on campus after six are in this 23-55 age group," he says.

Each of the past four semesters has shown an increase in this group, Lee adds. Realizing this, he says Howard College has expanded its offerings to the older, after-working-hours student. Spring Semester offerings in the Business Department and Marketing Departments include courses in short hand, typing, and accounting.

Also courses in human relations in business, supervision of employees, business law, and salesmanship are being offered.

Specialized courses in real estate, insurance, labor-relations, and banking are offered for individuals interested in improving their understanding in those areas.

Most of all, the courses offered are of interest to people who wish to pursue a degree as well as those having a special interest in a particular course.

The extended day program is one of the services offered by Howard College for the citizens of the community. The college tries to have something for everyone and the extended day program provides a means for service to a large segment of the community, Lee says.

Likes 'Being Warm, Dry And Having A Full Belly'

IN THE BROOKS RANGE, Alaska (AP) — Spencer Linderman likes "being warm, dry and having a full belly." But the life he has chosen does not always provide these amenities. Linderman, who grew up in Kansas, has abandoned the hubbub of the "Lower 48" for the wilds of Alaska.

He lives in a cabin near Fairbanks with his wife, a former teacher from Georgia. They have electricity but no running water or indoor plumbing.

Linderman holds a degree in wildlife biology from Kansas State University and says he would like to move even farther back into the wilderness of northern Alaska, away from the few modern conveniences he has in his life.

In a recent letter he wrote: "To be close to nature is sometimes to be ecstatic at scenes of overpowering grandeur. But more often, to me, it's to be quietly reflective on the scheme of daily life and death which seems to form the warp and woof of real life and fills out its flesh too."

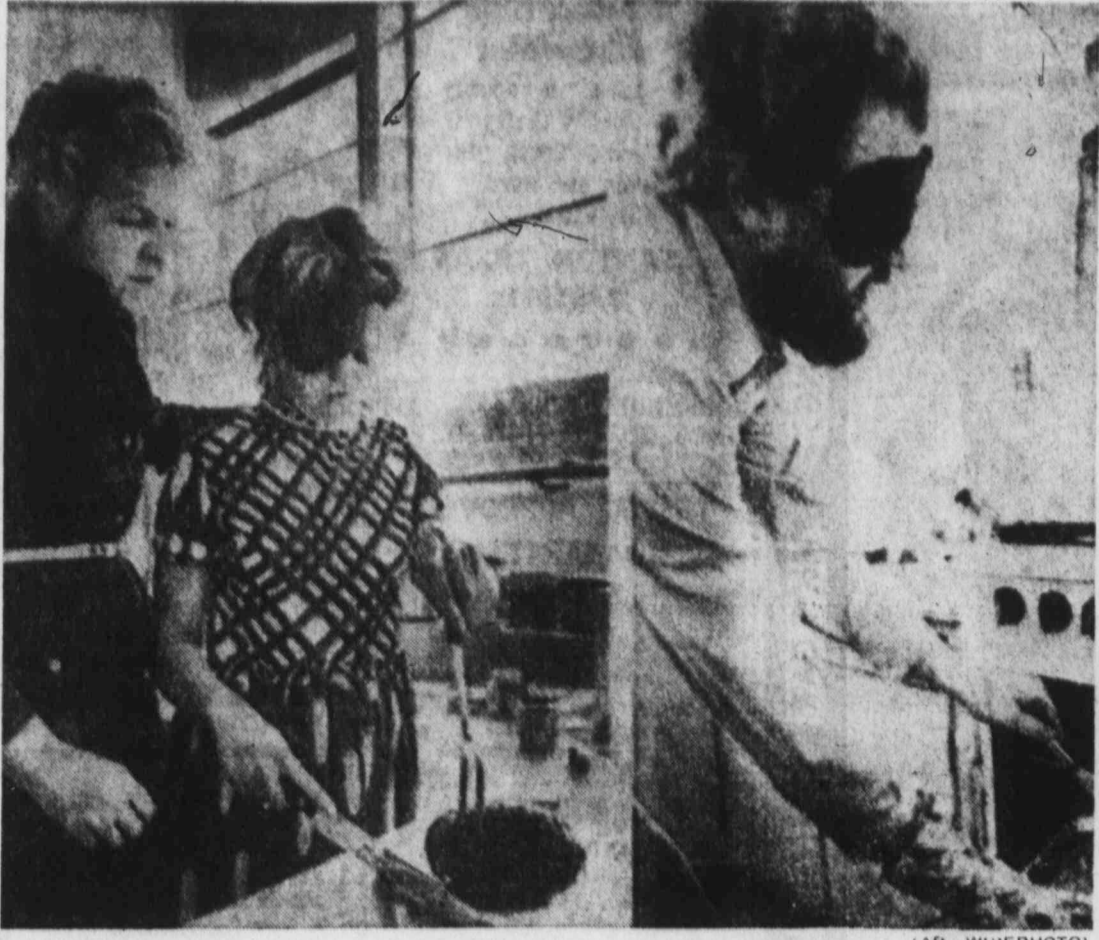

"Sometimes the closeness to nature is being half-frozen, hungry, wet, with the agony of time that stretches endurance," he wrote, adding:

"To know the great delicious joy of being dry, warm, and having a full belly: The joy of these last three things has been continually impressed on me, 'til my appreciation of them has become a simple code of life."

Public Records

118 DISTRICT COURT ORDERS
 Emeline Pittcock and Walter Pittcock divorce granted.
 Cheryl Dover, Odessa, vs. James Royce Coyte, decree ordering payment of child support.
 Roy Jones Echols and Ruth Echols divorce granted.

Linderman moved to Alaska seven years ago and recently has worked for the Alaska Fish and Game Department and is involved in real estate dealings.

The bidding:

Opening lead: King of ♠ Simple addition led West to the winning defense on this deal. But he could have saved himself a lot of time had he chosen a different opening lead.

Though South had the point count for an opening bid of one no trump, his weak doubleton and surfeit of points in the major suits suggested that a suit contract might be more viable. When North raised his suit, South showed his extra values with a game try of three hearts. Even tho he had five trumps, North might have been wiser to bid a mere three spades, for three queens generally are not the material that partner looks for in a game contract.

West got off to a reasonably good start with the king of diamonds. When that held, it seemed obvious to continue the suit, but West looked rather deeper into the matter. He could see 17 points, and South's bidding marked him with 16-18 points. The play to the first trick put the ace of diamonds with East, and that left at best a couple of points unaccounted for. Since West controlled the trump suit, there was time to score a diamond ruff later. But if declarer held only two diamonds, the setting trick would have to be found elsewhere.

If East's missing points were the king of hearts, there was little hope, for declarer would pick it up with a finesse. The only chance was to presume East held the queen of clubs. Thus, at trick two East shifted to a low club, and declarer was a dead duck. Try as he might, he had to lose a trump, two diamonds and a club.

Note that, had East continued with a diamond at trick two, declarer would make his contract. He would ruff the third diamond with the ten of trumps. West could over-ruff or not as he pleased. Declarer would draw trumps and discard dummy's club loser on the fourth round of hearts. The defenders would be held to two diamond tricks and the king of spades.

And to think this all could have been avoided had West held a club at trick one!

Blind Cooks Do It All By Feeling

PLEASANT HILL, Calif. (AP) — Inviting guests to a candlelight dinner isn't necessarily a big deal. Unless you're blind and have to do it all by feel.

"Just knowing where the food is on the plate and what size bite you have is difficult," says Evelyn Barber, a sighted home economist who is helping the blind acquire cooking skills.

"I can understand why some of the blind single men end up eating peanut butter sandwiches or something else which can be eaten out of hand rather than from a plate," she adds.

But Miss Barber, who works for the Thomas J. Lipton Co., says blind cooking could change that.

She holds classes throughout the nation, teaching the teachers of the blind how to teach cooking by feel. If her students aren't blind themselves, she blindfolds them.

At a recent class in this Contra Costa County community 20 miles east of San Francisco, Miss Barber explained that a blind person should never leave anything on the stove. It avoids groping among hot burners.

Fire-protective mitts are a must. Knives must be sheathed. The sound of boiling is important to know, as well as the sound of a fork scraped over a hamburger — before it's too well done.

One student, bachelor Tom Dana, who is partially blind, is already a teacher of blind cooking.

"One thing I learned was to crack an egg and then separate the yolk from the white," said Dana. "You do that by cracking it into the palm of your hand, over a bowl, then spreading your fingers just slightly, letting the white drip through."

"You can't be afraid to get your fingers in the food. That's one thing about blind people cooking. They need to touch what they're doing. As long as your hands are clean, you just dig in."

Ban English Language Signs

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexico City mayor has banned any future English language commercial signs in an area visited largely by U.S. tourists.

"It was getting so that one couldn't tell whether one was in Mexico or in Manhattan," a spokesman for Mayor Octavio Senties Gomez said.

The ban affects the famous "pink zone" in downtown Mexico City where are some of the leading hotels, discotheques, restaurants and boutiques and shopping centers that cater to foreign tourists, mainly from the United States.

However, a spokesman said the order will not be retroactive although he said that establishments already using English-language signs will be "courteously" asked to convert them into Spanish.

$300,000 Dallas Fire

DALLAS (AP) — A fire at a manufacturing company in East Dallas Wednesday caused an estimated $300,000 damages. There were no injuries. Four persons fled the two-story building.

Approximately 100 firemen and 25 pieces of equipment were used to fight the blaze, which enveloped the J and J Manufacturing Co. Employees said the blaze started in a storage house.

Pension Plans Legislation Debate Opens

WASHINGTON (AP)—Spurred by stories of employees facing old age without the retirement benefits they expected, pension reform legislation is beginning a long new step toward enactment.

The House opened debate Tuesday on a massive bill whose major provisions are aimed at threats to participants in private pension plans.

One of these dangers is that the requirements for participation or the age and service standards for qualifying for a pension may be so restrictive that few actually would receive one. The bill attacks these by setting eligibility standards and requiring vesting within a reasonable time.

An employee's retirement rights are vested when they become permanent, so that he can draw benefits at retirement age even if meanwhile he has quit his job or changed employers.

Another danger is that a retirement plan or a company itself may have economic reverses and not be able to pay the promised pension. The legislation would require that annual contributions to pension funds be enough to cover the liabilities building up. It also would establish as a backup a government insurance system somewhat similar to the one that protects bank deposits.

The bill would not require any company to establish a pension plan. It would, however, impose standards on those already voluntarily established or in the future, especially when the employer takes his contributions to the plan as a tax deduction.

Moreover, the legislation would allow employees not covered by a company plan to set up their own retirement accounts, contributing 20 per cent of their earnings up to $1,500, or $3,000 for a couple, with the right to deduct this amount from taxable income.

Flavorful, Nutritious Seafood Lightens The Lenten Season

By SUSAN DELIGHT
Copley News Service

Budget watchers should not overlook seafood when planning family meals. Seafood is available everywhere in frozen, fresh or canned form at prices which do not unduly strain the budget. And seafood can be served in so many different ways that it can be included in menus often without monotony.

Baked whole stuffed fish is an impressive entree. The same stuffing used for poultry can be accented with a Pepper-Butter Sauce. Hearty Fish Chowder, made with diced potatoes, fish fillets and milk, is a meal in itself.

Canned tuna can be turned into many unusual dishes including Tuna Knishes, a homey Jewish treat featuring plump potato pastries enveloping a scrumptious stuffing of tuna, onion and peas.

BAKED WHOLE FISH

Purchase a 3- to 5-pound dressed whole fish (sea bass, bluefish, cod, haddock, mackerel). Have backbone removed, if desired. Sprinkle cut surface with salt and pepper. Stuff fish (do not skewer or lace). Bake in 350 degree F. oven 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 400 degree F. and bake 20 to 40 minutes longer, allowing 10 minutes per pound, or until fish is easily flaked with a fork, but still moist. Serve with Pepper Butter Sauce. Yield: Four to six servings.

PEPPER-BUTTER SAUCE

4 tbsps. butter or margarine
1/2 tsp. pepper sauce
4 1/2 tps. lime juice
1 tbsps. minced parsley
Melt butter in saucepan; stir in pepper sauce and lime juice. Add parsley, or lobster. Yield: Approximately one-third cup.

SAUTEED SCALLOPS TABASCO

1/4 tsp. salt
1 1/2 lbs. scallops
3/4 cup fine dry bread crumbs
One-third cup butter or margarine
1/2 tsp. pepper sauce
Sprinkle scallops with salt; roll in bread crumbs.

FROM THE SEA comes flavor, variety and economy. Plentiful seafood can lend a touch of class to family meals or guest dinners, along with offering many economical entrees.

Melt butter in skillet; add Tabasco. Add scallops and cook over high heat, turning until scallops are browned on all sides. Serve with Tabasco Tartar Sauce. Yield: Four servings.

TUNA KNISHES

3 cups soft, unseasoned mashed potatoes (Note)
2 1/2 cups biscuit mix
2 eggs
2 tbsps. salad oil
1 1/2 tps. salt

1 tbsps. instant minced onion

Combine mashed potatoes with remaining ingredients to form a soft dough. Make 12 small mounds of dough on a well-floured surface using a scant 1/4 cup dough for each. Make a small depression in center of each mound; fill with Tuna Filling (Note). Cover filling in each mound with small amount of remaining dough. Dust hands with flour; seal dough around filling and form into small oval knishes. Place on greased baking sheet. Bake in 350 degree F. oven 15 minutes; remove from oven and turn. Return to oven and continue baking 15 minutes or until knishes are golden brown. (Knishes may also be fried. Heat 2 tablespoons salad oil in large skillet and cook 6 knishes at a time, turning once, until crisp and well browned, about 8 to 10 minutes.) Make sure knishes have browned before turning. Yield: 12 knishes, 6 servings.

TUNA FILLING

3 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ozs. each) tuna in vegetable oil
1 pkg. (10 ozs.) frozen peas, thawed
1 can (3 or 4 ozs.) chopped mushrooms, drained
1 egg, lightly beaten
1 tbsps. dried parsley flakes
Flake tuna and combine with remaining ingredients. Yield: About 3 1/2 cups filling. (Note) Instant mashed potatoes may be used, omitting butter and salt.

HEARTY FISH CHOWDER

5 tbsps. butter or bacon drippings
2 large onions, sliced
5 med. potatoes, peeled and diced
3 tps. salt
3 cups boiling water
1/2 tsp. pepper sauce
1 1/2 lbs. fresh or frozen fish fillets, thawed
5 cups milk

Bacon-Potatoes Combination

Have you tried creamed potatoes with cooked, crumbled bacon? It's a delicious combination! It can be as much of a favorite as leftover fried potatoes in which you've pointed up the flavor by using bacon and chopped onion.

Potatoes, prepared either creamed or fried (top-of-the-range cookery), are excellent with broiled dinners since the broiler will cook the meat, letting the homemaker use surface units for vegetables as well as potatoes.

"Hurry Up" Fish Stew Is Hearty

Hungry for fish and just can't wait? Help is on the way. Here's a recipe for "Hurry Up Fish Stew" that solves the problem.

This savory concoction includes two whole pounds of fish fillets cut into bite-sized pieces.

HEARTY HURRY-UP FISH STEW

2 lbs. fish fillets, fresh or frozen
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
2 cups thinly sliced carrots
1 cup thinly sliced celery
1 cup thinly sliced onion
1 cup water
1 can (10-1/2 ounce) condensed cream of celery soup
1 cup milk
1 pkg. frozen peas, thawed
1/2 tsp. marjoram
1/2 tsp. leaf thyme
1/2 pkg. (18 oz.) corn muffin mix (1-3/4 cups)
1 tbsps. chopped parsley, optional

Thaw frozen fish. Cut fish into 1-inch pieces. Combine butter or margarine, carrots, celery, onion, and water in 6-quart Dutch oven or 12-inch covered fryer. Bring to boil. Cover tightly and simmer 10 minutes. Stir in soup, milk, peas, salt, and herbs; stir and heat until bubbly. Add fish pieces. Prepare muffin mix as directed on package label, reducing milk by half and adding parsley. If desired, spoon 6 to 8 mounds onto hot fish mixture. Cover tightly and simmer 10 minutes or until dumplings are done and fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

If desired, you may substitute 1 can (1 lb.) white potatoes, drained and diced, for 1 cup each of sliced carrots and peas.

BIG SPRING HERALD

SEC. B BIG SPRING, TEXAS, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1974 SEC. B

French Quarter Star: Mardi Gras Catfish

About 100 square blocks in New Orleans is known as the French Quarter. This area still reflects the mixed blood of its French and Spanish ancestors who produced a group of people with the most aristocratic characteristics of both nationalities, the Creoles. Their tastes are still shown in the ironwork balconies, beautiful buildings and narrow streets.

The word, Mardi Gras, is French for "fat Tuesday", the day before Ash Wednesday or the beginning of Lent. It is a carnival in the true sense of the word for carnival means a "farewell to meat" and the Catholic religion at one time forbade the eating of meat during Lent.

The annual Mardi Gras carnival, which ended Tuesday, describes the magnificent New Orleans hullabaloo that precedes the restrictions of Lent. Although the Roman Catholic hierarchy has eased up on the rigors of this fasting period before Easter, Mardi Gras is celebrated as lavishly as ever and the feasting and merrymaking go on day and night.

The highlight is the splendid parade with vividly colored floats and costumes. Exuberance and good will abound during the world's most elaborate procession of glittering allegorical floats, masked revelers and sequined marchers.

And as Lent begins, one of the foods the hard-working fisherman of New Orleans enjoy is French Quarter Catfish with Bearnaise Sauce. The catfish are marinated in French dressing, then baked in a flavory mixture of buttered bread crumbs, herbs, paprika, salt, onion and celery salt. Delicious! Try this, or other of these seafood recipes during Lent.

FRENCH-QUARTER CATFISH WITH BEARNAISE SAUCE

6 12-ounce skinned, pan-dressed catfish
3/4 cup French dressing
2 cups fine dry bread crumbs
1 tbsps. melted butter or margarine
1 1/2 teas. fines herbes blend
1 1/2 tps. paprika
1 tsp. instant minced onion
3/4 tsp. salt
1/2 teasp. celery salt
Bearnaise Sauce (recipe follows)
Lemon slices (optional)
Thaw frozen fish. Clean, wash, and dry fish with paper toweling. Brush inside and outside of fish with French dressing; arrange in shallow dish. Cover and refrigerate one to two hours brushing French dressing over fish several times.

Combine crumbs, butter or margarine, fines herbes, paprika, instant onion, salt, and celery salt; mix. Roll fish in crumbs; arrange on well-oiled shallow baking pan. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees 30 to 35 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve with Bearnaise Sauce; garnish with lemon slices, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

BEARNAISE SAUCE

3 tbsps. cider or wine vinegar
2 tbsps. finely chopped green onion
1/4 tsp. salt
Dash pepper
3 tps. dry white wine or water
2 tps. minced parsley
3 egg yolks
1-3 cup melted butter or margarine
2 1/2 cup salad dressing
Combine first 4 ingredients in saucepan. Simmer gently until almost all of liquid is evaporated. Stir in wine and parsley; set aside. Beat egg yolks until very thick. Add butter or margarine in a fine stream, a small amount at a time, to egg yolks and beat constantly until mixture thickens. Remove from heat; stir in wine mixture and fold in salad dressing. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

Pantry Pickups

Keep two recipe files, one for recipes you have clipped, tried and found good; one for recipes you plan to try. A cluttered recipe file is discouraging to any cook!

Melt semi-sweet chocolate and stir well; mix in peanuts and drop spoonfuls of the mixture on wax paper to cool. Quick dessert!

A swivel-blade vegetable peeler is a "must" in a well-outfitted kitchen. It's sharp and speedy, removing paper-thin parings from vegetables and fruit so there is no waste.

Wash cast-iron cooking utensils with soap suds instead of with a synthetic detergent. Soap protects the surface and helps to keep it from rusting better than detergent does.

Grind 8 to 10 oz. shortbread cookies to fine crumbs in blender. Melt 1/4 lb. butter. Stir in 1/2 cup chocolate chips. When melted, mix in 1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk and the cookie crumbs. Chill, then shape into small, flat bonbons and top each with a roasted whole blanched almond.

Don't cook eggs in the shell in an aluminum pan because the metal will darken badly. Use a stainless steel, enamel or glass pan when you are preparing soft or hard-cooked eggs.

Cut bacon slices in half and wrap each half around a canned water chestnut, secure with toothpicks. Broil, turning once, until bacon is crisp. Serve with chutney sauce as a dip.

Sandwich small baking-powder biscuits with deviled ham and serve with tomato juice as a first course.

Stir butter and crumbled mimento-cheese spread into hot cooked macaroni for a good and quick pasta dish.

Keep the sensing device on your range-top unit clean; a mild abrasive may be used.

Almonds are high in iron, other minerals.

When you are heating a can of condensed cheddar cheese soup you may want to add a little chili powder.

Local Delegates To Attend Meet

FORT WORTH — Texas teachers are facing a dilemma called "unification" as they prepare for the 95th annual convention of the Texas State Teachers Association March 14-16 in the Tarrant County Convention Center, Fort Worth.

Official delegates from Big Spring will be J. B. Cushing, Washington Elementary who serves as president of the local unit; Ted Hicks, visiting teacher; Rodney Allison, high school; and Ruth Ann Box, Cedar Crest. Other teachers may also attend.

Unification of TSTA with the National Education Association — for purposes of reciprocal membership and dues — will be voted on by the 1,450-member House of Delegates, which includes representatives from 484 TSTA local associations throughout Texas.

Convention delegates will vote on a proposed amendment to the TSTA constitution which would require that all members of local TSTA associations shall belong to NEA as well as the state association.

'Dirty Sally' Masters Role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The premise of CBS' "Dirty Sally" does not sound like your average television Western. Or your average anything else.

Sally Fergus is a toothless crone, who takes an occasional nip and travels the West in a junk wagon like a vinegary good fairy. Her hair looks like she stuck her finger in an electric socket. She's accompanied on her travels by a mule named Worthless and a reformed gunfighter named Pike.

REPAIR JOB Jeanette Nolan mugs her way to hammy perfection in the role. If only the stories were as good. "Dirty Sally," a spinoff from "Gunsmoke," shut down production a few weeks ago for a repair job on its scripts.

Miss Nolan is a master at this kind of role, having done many in her long stage, film and television career.

The fact is, it was a character she did on the Richard Boone anthology show about 10 years ago that was the inspiration for Sally.

FROWSY OLD BAG She said, "Jack Miller saw the role I did, an alcoholic, frowsy old bag. He thought she could be worked into a great Western show."

Miller, a writer, tried for years to interest "Gunsmoke" in the idea but was unsuccessful until he pitched the idea to executive producer John Mantley. Mantley told him to write a one-hour script.

In production, Mantley looked at the first dailies and told Miller to expand it to two hours. The two-part show, "Pike," which ran in early 1971 drew the most mail in the history of "Gunsmoke" and won the Cowboy Hall of Fame Award. Miller is now executive story consultant for both "Gunsmoke" and "Dirty Sally."

End Controls, Solons Told

WACO — The Texas Farm Bureau has told Texas congressmen and senators that wage and price controls have failed and should not be extended beyond April 30.

In a letter to all members of the Texas delegation, TFB President J. T. (Red) Woodson said controls "have failed completely" and to extend them would be a "serious mistake." He said that inflation was caused by federal deficits and urged the Texas lawmakers to work for economy in government.

The price freeze caused a number of distortions in our national economy," said the head of the 152,000-member farm organization. "The dollar has been devalued in world markets. Shortages of manufacturing supplies and consumer goods have developed. The energy crisis has been made worse by price controls."

Woodson said agriculture has suffered in many ways.

"Fertilizer is in short supply," he said, "and baling and fencing wire is almost non-existent. Other farm production items — essential to feeding the Nation — are difficult to obtain. The brief attempt to control beef prices in 1973 brought chaos to the industry — and shortages to the meat counter."

In citing failure of controls, Woodson said that the Consumer Price Index has risen 13 percent since the freeze was begun in August, 1971.

Woman Draws 2,500-Year Prison Term For Robbery

HOUSTON (AP) — A state district court judge says he hopes a 2,500-year sentence he assessed a woman convicted of robbery by assault will influence a parole board when it considers a parole for her.

Judge Garth Bates sentenced Alberta Ann Wilson, also known as Linda Ann Tyler, 22, to 2,500 years in prison.

Harris County officials said they believe it is the longest sentence ever handed down in the county.

Miss Wilson was charged in the Nov. 20, 1972 robbery and shooting of three Mexican nationals who were vacationing in Houston. Two of the victims have not regained use of their arms after they were blasted by a shotgun.

"I want to register my disgust of the wanton shootings of these gentlemen," Bates said. "They were shot down without provocation—it was a senseless act."

Bates said he hoped the sentence would relay his feelings when the woman could be considered for parole.

Harris County Dist. Atty. Carol Vance said the sentence was the "biggest in my 16 years here."

Prosecutor Ned Morris said there is a five-year minimum sentence for robbery by assault but no maximum sentence in the law.

Prosecutors said Miss Wilson,

Police Revolt In Cordoba

CORDOBA, Argentina (AP) — Argentina's second largest city was all but paralyzed today as some 800 rebel police officials held the leftist provincial governor and vice governor captive in a police communications center.

Right-wing groups apparently supporting the police rebellion were seen carrying out armed searches of leftists' homes. Two powerful bombs exploded, partially destroying a newspaper printing press and a judge's home, police sources said.

Scattered gunfire was heard in various parts of Cordoba as leaders of a moderate Peronist group threatened a citywide strike in support of the police.

Some 250 federal police were sent from Buenos Aires, 450 miles to the southeast. Army troops were put on the alert at nearby barracks.

Two deaths were reported in a riot in the city prison that broke out after the two officials were seized in Government House Wednesday afternoon.

Almost a third of Cordoba's 2,500-man police force rebelled after Gov. Ricardo Obregon Cano fired Police Chief Antonio Navarro. The governor accused him of "seditious conduct."

The rebellious 800 police invaded Government House after occupying the police station and sealing off four blocks around the central Plaza San Martin. They fired automatic weapons into the air to clear the streets, and a passerby was reported wounded, though not seriously.

Sporadic shooting was heard later in the evening around the plaza.

Cold Front Approaching

By The Associated Press
Skies were clear and the temperatures a bit chilly over the Texas Panhandle today as a new cold front approached through Northeast New Mexico. Warm, damp air enveloped the rest of the state as clouds spread from coastal areas and East Texas into the central part of the state.

Official observers attributed the state's split weather personality to a weak low pressure center over the Panhandle and a ridge of high pressure stretching across other sections.

Forecasts promised clear to partly cloudy skies and a little warming throughout the state except for somewhat lower temperatures in the Panhandle tonight.

Readings near dawn today held above freezing at all reporting stations although the mercury was down to a cool 37 degrees at Dalhart and 39 at Amarillo. At the same hour Brownsville recorded a 66.

Top marks Wednesday afternoon went as high as 82 at Childress. The coldest spot was Texarkana with a maximum of 62.

'Like Arsenic' Fumes Spark Evacuation of a stretch of U.S. 283 and some tense moments in other southwestern Oklahoma communities Wednesday.

Further evacuations in the towns of Blair and Warren were considered after the midday fire, which set off a series of explosions.

Civil defense and state Health Department officials said in late afternoon, however, that strong south winds dissipated the fumes so that any imminent danger no longer existed.

The fumes, described initially as smelling "like arsenic" by Ed Hardy, news secretary for Gov. David Hall, settled over the communities of Blair, Warren, Lone Wolf and Lugert.

Civil defense workers and environmental, Health Department and chemical warfare experts of Altus Air Force Base hurried to the scene to keep watch.

Officials described the chemicals inside the plant as "toxic to a degree."

Four persons working there at the time of the explosions escaped, authorities said.

Officers evacuated about 30 persons from nearby homes as the toxic fumes spread.

Bob Wade, Helena branch manager, said most of the chemicals included herbicides, insecticides which he said were "toxic to a degree" and emulsifiers.

He said he was unable to give a firm damage estimate but the building was worth about $50,000 and the chemicals $100,000.

THOUGHT ABOUT SUICIDE Wheel Chair Psychologist

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Stanley Bivens thought about suicide after a diving accident left him paralyzed at age 16. Now 19 years later, he's a clinical psychologist counseling others to cope with life in a wheel chair.

A quadriplegic, paralyzed from the neck down, he is the specialist in charge of the 42-bed spinal cord injury ward at Veterans Hospital in Tampa.

GOOD EXAMPLE
 The lanky 6-foot-3 counselor earned his doctorate at the University of Texas, where he completed an internship in counseling in 1972. He joined the VA staff last April.

"Not only do I bring experience and training to wheel chair victims, but I serve as an example to them — a stimulus," said Bivens, 35.

Hospital administrator George R. Hiskey agreed and credited Bivens' "well adjusted outlook on life."

That adjustment, Bivens said, was a struggle. It took him 10 years and a hard look at death to know he wanted to live.

"I needed to know I was worth something in a wheel chair," he said. "I knew what I could do would be very limited. I would have to use my head."

Bivens said motivation is the hardest accomplishment for a cripple.

THAT'S WHY
 "That's why he is of so much value here," said Hiskey. "He has the rapport with patients that others don't have. There is less tendency for them to call on their problems as an excuse."

Bivens lives with the handicapped in his care eight hours a day, sharing some of their deepest fears and anxieties. But he's found even this sometimes isn't enough to inspire them. "I often have to poke and push and seek them out," he said.

During high school days in suburban Chicago, Bivens dove into shallow water in Lake Michigan and broke his neck.

"I seriously considered suicide when I found out I would be a cripple the rest of my life," Bivens said. "I think any patient that adapts in a constructive way must get close to that point to make the decision."

"I knew I would have to work it through and it took a lot of years of determined concentration."

He finds rehabilitation is a progression through four psychological phases, each with its own emotional stresses.

The first is crisis: the feeling of total helplessness and a crumbling of defenses. Then retreat or withdrawal: a projection of anger or indifference. Acceptance follows, accompanied by depression and bitterness and, finally, adaption and change.

"All of a sudden a healthy man is faced with a complete reappraisal," Bivens said. "He has to learn to see himself as others do. It's no longer a choice of what he would like. He has to determine whether he can work, how he can work and how good he can."

Tragedy Mars Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mardi Gras, which started two weeks ago with one of the most easygoing carnival seasons in recent years, was marred by tragedy on its final day.

There was a fire Tuesday in the French Quarter—something that strikes the greatest fear in this city at such a time. There also were the death of a pedestrian at a parade, the fatal shooting of a policeman and the wounding of another.

Police said the two officers investigating a shooting report at an apartment on the fringe of the French Quarter when a man approached, as if to talk to them, and opened fire.

Policeman Dennis J. McInerney was killed. His companion, John P. Tobin, was wounded seriously in the head and leg.

Other officers called to the scene arrested a man.

Authorities said Carolyn McGinness, 16, of suburban Metairie, was killed during the Crescent City parade. They said she apparently fell under a float—or decorated truck—while running beside it.

In the midst of the revelry, thick smoke spread through the packed, narrow streets of the Quarter when fire broke out at a small restaurant.

Officials often have expressed fear over the potentially disastrous results from a fire in the Quarter while streets are virtually given over to pedestrians.

Fire trucks nevertheless moved down the crowded streets with little difficulty and quickly reached the fire, which was contained in a two-story building.

While the fire was raging at Johnny White's Restaurant and Bar, the prestigious Rex parade was rolling down Canal Street about nine blocks away. Rex, king of the carnival, was banker Eads Poltevent Jr.

Except for the diehard souls who frolicked until sunup, it all came to an end at midnight—the close of the carnival season. More than one million people took part in the parades, parties, and the rest of the Mardi Gras madness that ended with the stroke of midnight.

Two Churches May Be Merged Here

A merger proposal of two local units of the United Methodist Church will hold called charge conferences on March 10 at both N. Birdwell Methodist and Kentwood Methodist.

The conference at N. Birdwell will be at 10:30 a.m. and at Kentwood at 11:30 a.m.

The merger of the two small congregations will be for the purpose of making a larger, more functional group according to the Rev. O. A. McBrayer, district superintendent. They will designate the property at N. Birdwell as the home church with a name to be selected.

The property at Kentwood may then be utilized through the United Methodist Church as a center for work with older adults.

'Case Of Nerves' Causes Problems

The wife of a man seen running and screaming on a local city street at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday told law officials that "my husband has a bad case of nerves."

He was also reported by neighbors to be chasing cars on foot.

LAST CALL — Patricia Cash is served a cup of chicory coffee by George Petroita at the picturesque Morning Call Coffee Shop in the New Orleans French Quarter. The shop, which has operated in the quarter for 103 years, is moving to suburban Metairie due to a loss in business blamed on a loss of parking and a renovation project.

Personnel For Advisory Committees Nominated

Personnel of 18 vocational advisory committees has been nominated and is ready for board approval at Howard College, Dr. Larry Key, occupational dean, has announced.

With the aid of instructors and department heads, all committees were reorganized and prospective appointees contacted for their willingness to serve. In turn, the lists have been approved by Dr. Thomas Salter, college president, for submission to the trustees.

Under the new plan, which meets specification of the Texas Education Agency, no person will serve on more than one advisory committee. The committees will meet a minimum of twice a year to review programs and receive reports from college officials, said Dr. Key. Some panels will meet more often if necessary.

The Texas state plan for advisory committees says that no program shall operate without one comprised of representatives of employees and employers from the industries or occupations related to the program.

Duty of the committees is to ascertain the need for occupational programs, advise on courses of study and curricula, length of training needed to improve skills or to be adequate for preparation for employment in the field.

The 167 individuals who have agreed to serve are on advisory panels for accounting, agriculture technology, automotive technology, bank management, drafting and design, electrical-electronic technology, electronic data, data processing, general business, office occupations, law enforcement technology, machine tools, medical assistant, medical secretary, mid-management seminar, real estate-brokerage, secretarial science, vocational nursing and welding technology. Dr. Key said meetings would begin soon to orient members in their duties.

'It's A Hard Thing To Pack Up And Pull Out'

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — William Faulkner and Sherwood Anderson used to sit on their adjoining French Quarter balconies back in the '20s, dropping BBs on unsuspecting passers-by in the alley below.

As the story is told, a direct hit on a woman carrying laundry was worth one point, a priest brought two and a tourist, three. The loser bought coffee and doughnuts for both at the nearby Morning Call Coffee Stand.

HOT CHICORY

There the faces of the two famous writers mingled with the weathered visages of fishermen and farmers and the bright cheeks of society's debutantes.

For 103 years the great sat among the not-so-great at Morning Call, burning their tongues on hot chicory coffee and splattering powdered sugar all over themselves. It was the usual way to end a night on the town or a day selling produce in the open air French Market.

First opened for the farmers who peddled their vegetables at the market, it later attracted tourists from all over the world with its main fare — cafe au lait, a rich brew of coffee and boiled milk; and beignets, square doughnuts liberally sprinkled with sugar.

This week Al Jurisch will pack up the marble counters, mirrors and coffee urns and carry to the suburbs the business begun by his grandfather in 1871.

FACES FAMILIAR

"So many faces in here are familiar to me," he said on one of the last days. "I've seen all kinds of people in here, Gary Cooper, Edward G. Robinson, Phil Harris was here last night raising hell with my brother for leaving."

A French Market renovation project took away the parking places that attracted local residents, who make up the bulk of its business. And Jurisch said he was socked with a $70,000 assessment as his share of the project, intended to increase tourist appeal.

"It's a hard thing to pack up and pull out. My people have been here all my life. I ran around this market when I was a kid. But conditions have changed. I can't pay my waiters with tradition."

Morning Call will relocate in suburban Metairie among a conglomeration of modern night clubs and apartment buildings known as "Fat City" — far removed from the quaint, historic French Quarter.

Job Interviews Being Arranged
