GRAB FOUR Smash Plot To Rob Exec In Dallas

DALLAS (AP) - Acting on a tip from Treasury Department agents, officers grabbed four men they accused of plotting to surprise the wife of an automobile dealer and loot the couple's fashionable home.

City detectives and federal agents captured the four Thursday at the North Dallas residence of William Bright, president of the Horn-Williams Ford agency. The officers said each carried a pistol but none put up resistance.

"They set it up beautifully," Bright said. "They went out of their way providing physical protection for my wife and me.'

Authorities gave this account: City detectives Forrest Babb and Herman Wilkerson went to the Bright home with the federal agents, taking along policewoman Michaela Davis to pose as the Bright's daughter-in-law if needed. Three men-later identified as Larry Anderson, 26, Floyd Griffin, 30, and Joe Holmes, 27-stopped a car in front of the house next door and Griffin walked to the Brights' door.

Mrs. Davis let him tell a story of being a silverware salesman and enter the house, where he was seized as he stepped inside. Anderson and Holmes came inside and were nabbed five

The four men, all from Dallas, were arraigned in municipal court and held for charges of criminal attempt of aggravated robbery.

The bidding:

West North East Pass 20 Pass Pass 3 🌲 Pass Pass Pass Opening lead: Jack of ♡ Declarer bypassed a virtually sure bird in hand in favor

The auction was straightforward. North's hand was worth just one move toward game, and since South could have held less and had a fit in partner's suit as additional incentive, he was fully justified in going on to game.

of bigger things, and came

West led the jack of hearts, and since there was no point to holding up, declarer won the ace. The lure of the spade finesse proved irresistible.

Declarer entered dummy with a club to the king, on which East dropped the queen. The ten of trumps was run to West's king, and in answer to his partner's signal, West returned a club. Too late declarer realized his predicament-he had already lost a trump trick, and now would have to lose a trick in each side suit for down one. A few moments thought after winning the first trick would have convinced declarer that he could not afford to weaken his club holding for the possibility of avoiding a trump loser. Providing he could develop the diamond suit in time to discard his club loser, South could afford to concede a trick in trumps and one in each red suit.

The correct way to tackle the hand after winning the ace of hearts was to play ace and another trump, and the contract would have been safe against almost any distribution of the adverse cards. Assume West wins and attacks clubs. Declarer takes the king, draws the outstanding trump and drives out the ace of diamonds. Even if West holds up to the third round, declarer can still get to dummy's established diamonds with the ace of clubs. In fact, the opponents must cash their heart trick to prevent declarer emerging with an overtrick.

a new wardrobe now, and a thoroughly. once-a-year serving of fertilizer this time of year will help them dress up in a healther way. The people of the American Association of Nurserymen suggest a technique that can make your work easier, more

Feed the shade tree when the ground is damp, they say. Use crowbar or similar tool to make a circle of holes in the ground about 18 inches apart, ideally 8 to 12 inches deep, undeneath the tree at about the point of the end of the longest limbs. Put two or three tablespoons of fertilizer in each hole, then top off with soil.

Feeding your trees this way provides two benefits. Fertilizer goes to the roots of the tree where it is most needed, and it is beneath the level of grass roots to avoid over-abundant growth where it is not desired.

The best time to battle weeds in your lawn is before they appear, and the adoption of some suggestions from the American Association of Nurserymen now can avoid an all-out war later this summer.

The best weed control, the nursery experts say, is a good turf cover. Few weeks can compete with a tight sod that is growing vigorously and kept mowed to the proper height.

If, in spite of this, weeds continue to be a problem and you plan to enter into chemical warfare, further advice from the nursery industry can make your effort more effective. Chemical weed correctives should be used only on established lawns. When only a few weeks are present, spot treat instead of covering th whole lawn. Fertilize immediately before or after applying weed control material to encourage the spread of grass to fill any

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a woman who talked on the phone from 3 p.m. until 9 p.m. without stopping? That's Molly.

When I got up this morning at 7:30, Molly was talking on the phone again. She didn't have time to speak to me or even get my breakfast. When I left for work at 8:30, she was still on the phone.

When I came home for supper the beds weren't made. She was on the phone again, and I had to beg her to get off and fix supper. She didn't say one word to me until after supper and then only five words: "Do you have any money?"

We've been married for 18 years and have two kids who, believe it or not, are good kids, good students and never gave us any trouble. Do you think my wife is going through her change? Or do I need one?

DEAR NEGLECTED: Your wife sounds like a compulsive talker - but only on the telephone. (This is know as "telephonitis.") She must have done something right or your kids wouldn't have turned out so well. Maybe she is going through a change. Have her call up her doctor and make an appointment. (On second thought, tell her to write him a letter.)

Florist Demonstrates Making Of Corsages

Q. T. Coates of Estahs Flowers demonstrated the making of corsages Tuesday for Fairview Home Demonstration Club which met in the home of Mrs. J. C. Pierce, 616 Bucknell. During the program, he created several corsages, using roses, carnations, spring flowers and an orchid. These were presented to club officers.

Coates said corsages can be worn with pantsuits and casual attire as well as formal attire but most corsages need to be kept small. The flowers are pointed up. Ordinarily, they are worn on the left shoulder, but it is permissable to place them on the right shoulder for particular occasions.

"Use your imagination when making corsages," said Coates."The more vivid the imagination, the more interesting the corsage." He told the women that flowers to be used for corsages should be cut a few days before, placed in water to which sugar has been added and stored in the refrigerator. If a corsage is sprinkled with water and placed in a plastic bag, it will stay usable for some time under refrigeration.

Mrs. Frank Wilson presided, introducing a guest, Mrs. Dorothy Hull. Mrs. P. P. Van Pelt won the attendance

"Now that some time has elapsed, it ought to be possible to examine rationally the question of whether or not amnesty should be granted to those who refused to serve," Chairman Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., said. He noted the ceasefire accord was signed more than a year ago, never the less it is doubtful the issue of amnesty could be examined rationally. Four basic legislative proposals are before the committee ranging in scope from a case-by-case review to total and automatic amnesty for all who refused to serve or deserted.

There are also two resolutions which would urge the President to refuse amnesty. In previous statements, President Nixon has expressed strong opposition to granting amnesty.

The depth of the feelings already has been shown in testimony prepared for the subcommittee. The American Civil Liberty Union, long a strong proponent of amnesty and defender of draft dodgers, came out opposed to the idea of coupling military or civilian service to amnesty.

"Alternative service is punishment — punishment for human and self-sacrificing service to the highest ideals of the nation," said Henry Schwarzschild, director of the TCLU's Project on Amnesty.

Another favorite argument of groups and individuals seeking blanket and complete amnesty for the deserters and draft dodgers is that of branding the Vietnam War as illegal, undeclareded and unjustified. Others claim that it was an immortal war, and this gave them the right to refuse to serve. A few claim that President Abraham Lincoln declared a full pardon "to all persons who have, directly or by implication, participated in the existing rebellion." They fail to explain, however, that this pardon, or amnesty, granted by Lincoln applied to soldiers of the Confederate Army, and

We suspect that his assessment is correct. It is highly unlikely that the convention can button up its business within the alloted original 90 days, and to do so might call for imprudent haste in some deliberations. But we can appreciate did not include deserters and draft dodgers who

There are those who argue that amnesty would undercut tha ability, in some future time, to conscript a military force if the avenue of personal excape already had been established. Perhaps, but a more solid reason is that justice is just as much a part of it as forgiveness, because hundreds of thousands of young men, regardless of personal likes or dislikes, responded to the call for service. Those who did not, did this knowingly that there was a price attached. Thus those who accept this condition should be restored without vindicitiveness as they make payment for the course they chose.

Recess In Order

refused service in the U.S. Army.

Daneil's reticience in announcing a recess since the convention (legislature) has a history of pulling together many of its loose ends under pressure of deadline.

Nevertheless, with the primaries only a month removed from the conjectured April recess, it seems wise to shut down the process at the end of this month and let the delegates (legislators) get about their campaigning.

My Answer

BILLY GRAHAM

Is it wrong to donate your vital organs at death to someone in need? Some of my friends say that God wants you to leave the world the way you entered it. That means nothing should be donated. What do you think? I'm 15 and I want to do right.

In the great chapter on faith, Hebrews 11, there is one phrase appropriate for your question. It's statement 37. As people of faith are described here in various circumstances, it says, "Some died by stoning and some by being sawed in two." Certainly the latter left this life in a way they did not enter.

What I'm saying is that there is no rule of thumb about the handling of the body at death where the Christian is concerned. I think that even as the body is to be treated with honor and respect when alive, so at death, it should not be violated or abused.

It seems to me though that making prior arrangements to donate an organ is not dishonoring to God. It may be a compliment to the original purpose in creation. Donating an the ultimate in Christian service.

ALMOST EVERY poll shows that about 25 per cent of those questioned approve of the President. This may be no more than the hard core of the Republican party which, as the polls also show, has been reduced in terms of popular preference to a lower standing than at any time since polling began.

But I believe its more than mere party loyalty. In a recent exposure to the conservative and the rich, it was revealing how far the passion of the zealots goes. And they are zealots, no mistaking that.

MAIL THAT has come to me in recent weeks shows this same zeal. Partly it appears to be inspired by an organization proclaiming the cause of fairness to the President. This same organization calls for a boycott of "sponsors who defame the presiden-

A reader in Ohio takes a somewhat less passionate view: "To seek an impeachment hearing in an atmosphere of hysteria and one which would be conducted by his political enemies is unjust and amounts to advocacy of a political coup d'etat."

A READER IN Louisville writes, "You don't kno the meaning of fairness. Do you think the Johnson and Kennedy administrations were spotless? The rotten, unfair media and press - yes, rotten, slanted and biased! We are sick of it and you."

The reluctance to impeach has been shown in fairly sizable majorities in poll after poll. This is partly due to the cult of the presidency which has grown up with the ever increasing concentration of power in the office of the chief executive.

BUT IT can also be ascribed to the identity of the citizen with the President. He is "our President," our leader and to slander him is like slandering the flag. President Nixon understands this very well and much of his rhetoric is directed at this vein of loyalty and respect for the

New Strategy

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON - Contrary to contentions by President Nixon and his senior aides that the House Judiciary Committee has gone far beyond the special prosecutor's office in requesting evidence, both are seeking - and have been denied - the same presidential conversations directly related to the Watergate cover-up.

ONE SUCH conversation is Mrs. Nixon's talk last April 16 with his then top aides, H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman. The White House refusal to give that tape to John Doar, counsel for the Judiciary Committee's impeachment proceedings, follows a similar denial to special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

This, then, is the latest White House strategy, enunciated by newsmen by senior aides last week and reiterated by the President in Chicago last Friday: accuse Doar and his staff making reckless demands for evidence far beyond Jaworski's in their passion against the President. That shifts the question of whether Mr. Nixon was involved in the Watergate cover-up to a confused and endless procedural debate over raiding the White House files.

BUT THE strategy is so far removed from truth that is threatens to backfire. Republicans on the Judiciary Committee who had been steadfast Nixon supporters are infuriated over what they consider attempted sabotage of the impeachment proceedings.

The core of the present White House strategy is its contention that Jaworski has in hand, as Mr. Nixon told the Chicago Executives Club, the "full story of Watergate" and needs no more information. Senior aides had been spreading the identical word for 10 days previously. Thus, Mr. Nixon was repeating a well-orchestrated

THE THEME stem from Jaworski's strange luncheon with members of the New York Times Washington bureau Feb. 26. The Times men claimed it was on the record and published a story; Jaworski, claiming it was off the record, was furious. Asked at lunch whether the Watergate conspiracy would ever be solved, Jaworski replied his prosecutors had pretty well solved it. In the Times, that came out as Jaworski saying his office "knew the full story" of Watergate.

THE WHITE House has gleefully seized on that Times story as proof that the House Judiciary Comittee needed only the very same documents given Jaworski. In fact, however, as of Feb. 14, Jaworski had been denied 27 additional tape recordings, and the number is still larger today. Confrontation in the courts between Jaworski and the President was avoided only because the prosecution did not want to delay the Watergate indictments.

To show that Congress and the special prosecutor are being denied the same information, Jaworski sent Doar a letter last Wednesday containing information withheld: a list of evidence denied the prosecutors by the White House. That list is strikingly familiar to Doar, containing many of the 42 tapes the White House also has denied him.

NOR DOES DOAR'S rejected list of evidence fit the President's charge in Chicago that the House committee is seeking evidence "without regard to relevance." Like Jaworski's, Doar's denied requests go to the heart of whether Mr. Nixon was involved in the Watergate cover-up.

The Oval Office tapes of April 16 could be particularly important. On April 15, Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen urged the President not to fire John W. Dean III as White House counsel because he was cooperating with the prosecutors, on April 16. the President asked for Dean's resignation. As Dean waited to see the President, Haldeman, Erlichmann emerged laughing, but quickly sobered when they saw Dean. What had they been talking about?

Letters To Editor

Recent publicity concerning the need for a state-licensed child social worker has again brought this club's attention to the situation in Howard County. Some claim that the established system of taking care of neglected and abused children in Howard County is sufficient. However, it is not clear as to the efficiency or existence of facilities in regards to immediate care for abandoned, abused, or neglected children; established licensed foster homes; appropriate adoption procedures; and professionally trained personnel qualified to deal with the delicate situations encountered child abuse and neglect cases.

If there are in fact foster homes in Howard County - where are they and who are they? Are these homes licensed? Are they state approved? Where are the facilities for immediate detention of abandoned, abused, or neglected children? What are the established procedures for adoption in Howard County? Who in the established Howard County welfare system is professionally trained as a child soworker? Through professional counseling could additional problems be averted in some instances? The goal is not and should not be the removal of a child from the home but the rehabilitation of parents and child into a functioning unit through the assistance of a licensed counselor.

Citizens in surrounding towns such as Midland, Odessa, and others have seen the need for this service and provided a helping hand. Industrialists and businessmen will tell you that preventive maintenance pays. In dealing with the current and future ills of our society, it is apparent that the solution is to adopt preventive measures and begin with unfortunate children who are abandoned, abused, or neglected. The services of a professionally trained and licensed child social worker will pay high dividends, not to speak of the prevention of hardships, agonies, and inhumane treatment of many unfortunate

This Child Study Club feels that our children deserve the very best. Our club has worked for the establishment of this needed service in Howard County in past years and still believes in and lends its support to this effort. Won't you the citizens of Howard County join us? Our purpose in submitting this letter as representatives of the Child Study Club of Big Spring is to convey the feelings and opinions of our club. Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. Curtis Strong, President Mrs. Lonnie Bartley, Project Chairman
