CLAIMS LEAKS TO NEWS MEDIA DEFAME HIS HONOR, REPUTATION

Kissinger Threatens To Resign Job

SALZBURG, Austria (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today he would resign unless the controversy over his role in national security wiretapping was cleared up.

TEARS

His voice breaking with emotion, Kissinger said the controversy is hurting America's foreign policy.

"I do not believe it is possible to conduct the foreign policy of the United States under these circumstances," he told a news conference. "If it is not cleared up I will resign."

Kissinger, his eyes glistening with tears, claimed that leaks to the news media defamed his honor and reputation.

"It is not possible to conduct national policy under this sort of attack," he said in delivering his threat to quit.

The Nobel Prize-winning diplomat, again denying he ordered wiretaps on his subordinates, called upon the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to reopen its hearings to investigate the controversy.

Kissinger is here en route with President Nixon to the Middle East. It was there earlier this month that Kissinger, working as a mediator, helped bring about the Israeli-Syrian military disengagement pact that has cleared the way for a full scale Mideast peace conference in Geneva.

DENIAL

At his news conference, Kissinger was referring to allegations stemming from reports that he had ordered wiretaps on administration officials who had access to national security documents that were leaked to the press.

In his confirmation hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Sept. 15-17, Kissinger denied ordering the taps.

He said then he had provided the names of officials who had access to the documents, but had not suggested the taps nor did he ever order them used.

He also said he had received only infrequent reports of the taps and then only for 10 months. This all took place when he was President Nixon's national security adviser.

Tapes of conversations between Nixon and other officials recently heard in the House Judiciary Committee supposedly quoted the President as saying Kissinger had initiated some wiretaps.

CHANGED STORY

Kissinger told a news conference last week the President must have been under some "misapprehension" or the tape was unclear.

However, at that news conference he changed his version slightly by saying he had never "directly" ordered any wiretaps.

Kissinger disclosed he had sent a letter to Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, suggesting that the panel reopen its hearings on the wiretap controversy.

He said he would break off from Nixon's Middle East trip and return to Washington to testify if necessary.

CLEAN BILL

Asked if he would withdraw his threat to resign if Fulbright's committee gave him a "clean bill of health," Kissinger responded: "Yes."

He said there might be other ways to quiet the controversy, but did not specifically suggest any.

During a Foreign Relations Committee hearing on foreign aid last week, Kissinger repeated his earlier statements. Some committee members suggested it might be necessary to reopen the matter, if only to support the secretary's statements.

Ex-Rep. Knapp Freed From Pen

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Former state Rep. Walter Knapp was released from the state prison here early today on the basis of a federal court order for a new trial on his 1972 theft conviction.

Potter County Sheriff T. L. Baker said Knapp left the prison at 8 a.m. and headed for his home in Amarillo.

Knapp was being taken back to Amarillo by a Potter County deputy. He was expected to arrive at the end of his 500-mile destination about 7 p.m.

Authorities said Knapp would post a $5,000 bond with the sheriff's department upon his arrival.

U.S. District Court Judge Hal Woodward issued the order to free Knapp Monday after a conference with Knapp's lawyers and Asst. Atty. Gen Jack Boone.

Knapp served almost four months of a four-year term on a conviction for using state postage stamps to buy a pickup truck.

Woodward ruled May 23 Knapp must be given a new trial because of seemingly contradictory evidence used in the original trial.

SPOCK CHANGES MIND ABOUT BABY DOLLS

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Dr. Benjamin Spock says he once thought dolls were only for girls but now he believes a baby doll is a suitable toy for a young boy, if the child wants one.

"I used to think it was important to emphasize maleness in boys by giving them boys' toys and clothes," the pediatrician said. "But I no longer believe that is the way to do it."

Seven-Year-Old Is Killed In Wreck

A seven-year-old San Antonio youth was killed instantly in a wreck 18.9 miles west of Sterling City on Texas Highway 158 in Glasscock County around 4 p.m. Monday.

Jeffrey Tovar was thrown from the station wagon when it overturned after the left tire went flat and the brakes locked, according to the investigating report.

Driver of the vehicle was Mrs. Ester Tovar. They resided at 324 Hot Wells in San Antonio. Jeffrey was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace W. C. Underwood of Garden City.

Funeral services are pending at Ross Funeral Home in Sterling City.

Investigating the accident was Bill Preist, highway patrolman from Big Spring.

Slightly injured in the accident were Patricia Tovar, age 9, and Paul Tovar, 5, brothers of the victim. The family was headed back to San Antonio at the time.

Elderly Fem Is Battered

A couple of county road department employees operating motor graders started an elderly, nude and battered woman from grass growing by a county road about eight miles east of Big Spring about 9 a.m. Monday.

Martha Lee Harp, 60, who lives near the ditch where she was found, was taken to Cowper Hospital and released there Monday afternoon, Sheriff A. N. Standard said.

Saying some leads were developing, Standard said they "hoped to have it cleared up in short order."

"She was down in the ditch, Johnson grass, hiding," Fred Kenemer, a motor grader operator, said.

As the motor graders approached, Kenemer said "she got up and got out of the way."

Kenemer said he does not like to look at sights like that but reported she had a black eye and blood on her face.

While Kenemer drove his motor grader to a nearby farm house to contact law enforcement officials, Sydney Johnson parked his motor grader near the woman and waited.

The woman was discovered on what Kenemer calls the Dub Coates Road not far from the old R-Bar School building site.

The woman was beaten in a caliche pit by the Bobby Cathey farm, sources said. Blood and hair was found in the pit.

The Howard County Sheriff's Office made no note of the incident on its activity log.

Ehrlichman Trial, 'Plumbers' Split

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge today severed the conspiracy trial of John D. Ehrlichman from that of three other defendants in the Ellsberg break-in case.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said President Nixon's refusal to allow Ehrlichman and his lawyers access to the files he needs for his defense "makes it impossible for the court to do its duty" to conduct a fair trial.

James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, told Gesell on Monday that the President still reserved the final say over what materials from Ehrlichman's own files the former domestic aide could use.

UNACCEPTABLE

"The proposal is unacceptable," Gesell said. "It denies him the right of counsel."

Gesell has said that he, not Nixon, would be the final judge of what material could be admitted as evidence at Ehrlichman's trial.

Gesell had threatened to dismiss the case against Ehrlichman entirely unless Nixon agreed to release the material sought by Ehrlichman for his defense.

Instead he severed Ehrlichman's case and said Ehrlichman would be tried later.

The other three defendants go on trial Monday.

The three who will be tried Monday are G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio Martinez, who were convicted previously in connection with the Watergate break-in.

TOLD FIBS?

Ehrlichman, Liddy, Barker and Martinez are charged with conspiracy to violate the rights of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis Fielding, by sending White House agents into Fielding's office.

Ehrlichman is also charged with three counts of lying to a grand jury and one of lying to the FBI.

There was no indication when Ehrlichman will go to trial.

Also pending before Gesell was a motion to find in contempt "those persons in possession or control of the documents called for in the subpoena," filed by Ehrlichman's lawyer.

If granted, that motion could lead to another hearing ordering the President and others to show cause why they should not be held in contempt.

When White House lawyer James D. St. Clair told Gesell last week that the President would retain final say over what White House material could be used for trial, Gesell said angrily.

SCREENING

"It seems to me that it is dismissal which the President's action would seem to be pointing towards intentionally."

But he added: "It is a course I should not follow until I have exhausted all other possible opportunities."

In a letter Monday, St. Clair told the judge that Ehrlichman alone could see all his files, could discuss them in another room with his lawyer, "but initially his counsel may not examine the notes."

Then the notes selected would go through a screening process, ending with the President if there were any dispute—but still Nixon would have the final say.

City May Hire Man To Seek Industry

By MARJ CARPENTER
A resolution to back industrial development with funds to pay an employee who would actively seek industrial prospects was approved by the city council when they met this morning at City Hall.

The law allows them to use up to one per cent of the general fund to seek industrial growth. This would be around $23,000 according to City Manager Harry Nagel.

The council passed the resolution which will approve its cooperation with the chamber of commerce in this project, with the hired employee to have an office in the chamber building.

The council appointed its own members as an advisory committee of five so that they can keep tabs on the project.

TO SERVE BSSH

The city also agreed to take bids on 28 trash containers so that 15 new ones could be placed at the Big Spring State Hospital for pickup there and others used throughout the city.

They approved a city request which would make the municipality the prime contractor under the state of the Compensation Employment Training Act, which includes employees formerly working under the NYC program.

Final reading of the ordinance requiring building permits for fences was heard. Those not in compliance will be given time to comply according to the city administration.

They also approved an emergency reading of a resolution authorizing the mayor to enter into a contract with Texas Parks and Wildlife Department guaranteeing replacement of baseball facilities named for Roy Anderson. This was in order to expedite obtaining funds for the project.

The council approved funding the Pee Wee football association and tabled action on the radio controlled model airplane club which is requesting dual usage with the Signal Mountain Soaring Club of facilities near Moss Creek.

A committee is to be named from the Big Spring tennis association along with city administrators to set up permanent regulations for the Tennis Center. They also discussed construction of backboard at the time that new courts, which are to be donated by the Dora Roberts Foundation, will be built.

The council tabled an award of a bid for truck cab and chassis until further negotiations. It agreed to seek to obtain a ¾ ton pickup and a gooseneck trailer rather than a two-ton used truck. It awarded a bid for a refuse collection body to Packmore of San Antonio at a bid of $10,150.

McNEIL NAMED
All bids were rejected on city property in the Silver Heels addition as too low, with no more to be taken at this time.

Ron McNeil was named as a regular member of the traffic commission, James M. Bray, an alternate. The traffic commission minutes were also approved.

The steering committee for the Detoxification Center will include Mrs. A. O. Vanderford, Dick Milstead, The Rev. Steve Birdwell, Paul Soldan, Mrs. W. D. Broughton, Ed Bowman and Jack Powell.

The council approved Nagel and Bob Butler attending a conference in Houston revolving around regulations in connection with eventual unionization of city employees.

During the paying of the $139,543.14 in vouchers for the month, Butler pointed out the savings the city had made in purchasing rather than leasing city uniforms. The difference is between $8,000 and $10,000 for the year.

Charles Tompkins presented the auditor's report and the council noted that they were aware of all items mentioned in the audit.

Mayor Wade Choate reminded the group of the annual city picnic. He also presented a framed certificate presented to the city by the Council for the Aging.

Attending the session, which ended in a closed executive meeting to discuss a personnel matter, were Mayor Choate, Councilmen Tompkins and Harold Hall and Mrs. Polly Mays. Councilman Eddie Aciri was not present.

Counting On Salzburg To Be Good Luck Charm

SALZBURG, Austria (AP) — President Nixon met more than 1½ hours today with Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky to discuss the American chief executive's trips to the Middle East and Moscow.

Nixon leaves this medieval city Wednesday for Egypt on the first stop of a five-nation Middle East tour.

The talks also touched on European matters, presidential spokesman Ronald Ziegler said, particularly the European security conference that includes Russia and other eastern European nations.

SUMMIT MEETING?
Ziegler raised the possibility that Nixon will hold a summit meeting with Western European leaders before he gets to Moscow.

A final determination probably will depend on whether a new declaration of principles for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is initiated by NATO foreign ministers in Canada later this month.

Ziegler also defended Nixon against criticism by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who said that the President "is screwing it up" in reference to the Middle East achievements by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

STABILITY

"That view is not shared by the majority of the Senate," Ziegler said, and not "by the majority of the American people, in my view."

Jackson told a labor convention Monday in Atlantic City, N.J., that he thought Kissinger had brought some stability to the Middle East and he fears the President's trip might bungle the cease-fire agreements.

Nixon appeared to be counting on medieval Salzburg to be something of a good luck talisman for his trip to the Middle East.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Miss Janie Russell, and those attending made rice bags for the wedding.

Not Bigot?

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Judy, our 22-year-old daughter, is a graduate student, living out of state. She's pretty and popular and always has been a leader and an honor student.

Judy had written us about a very fine black girl she had become friendly with at college. We live in a small midwestern town and never had anything to do with the few black families who live on the highway.

Judy phoned a few days ago and asked if she could bring a young man home for a visit. I said: "Certainly."

Then she said: "He's black."

I asked: "How black?" She said: "About as black as black can get." Then she went on to tell me that he was the brother of her college friend, also a graduate student, and an outstanding person, etc.

I managed to control my emotions, and asked whether she was serious about him. She said: "Possibly, but I don't think I'm lucky enough to get him." (My stomach turned over!)

Abby, no one in her father's family or mine would ever understand it if Judy were to marry a black man. I can see nothing but heartaches and problems ahead for her if she married him. I'm not a bigot, but we just aren't ready for something like this. I told her not to bring him home until I could prepare her father for the shock, so she said: "Unless you will treat him properly, I'd rather not subject him to any humiliation." That's where we left it.

Now, what do we do Abby?

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS
DEAR SLEEPLESS: Unless you and your husband can treat your daughter's friend as though he were a Caucasian with a suntan, tell her not to bring him home. But don't be surprised if Judy doesn't come either. She's old enough to choose her own friends. And by the way, what is your definition of a bigot?

DEAR ABBY: My career is my home and family, and I am proud of it. But for some strange reason, when a housewife is asked what she does, she very apologetically says: "I'm ONLY a housewife." This irritates me no end.

When I am asked what I do, I proudly say: "I am an oikologist." The word comes from the Greek words "Oikos," which means house, and "ologist" which means "one who studies" or "is an expert in."

Please pass this on for other housewives. Perhaps they will feel more important if they use it, too.

OIKOLOGIST
DEAR OIK: I wouldn't recommend springing that on the average Joe without defining it. The "oikologist" might be mistaken for an expert on pigs.

Lucky Dad Will Win Roast Father's Day

Are you an expectant father? If so, you may be in for an extra treat.

The Texas Cowbelles will give a beef roast to the father of the first baby born on Father's Day; the roast to be the same weight as the baby.

Mrs. Harry Middleton is serving as chairman for the local event, which is being held in conjunction with Gov. Dolph Briscoe's state wide proclamation of "Beef for Father's Day" June 16.

"For 21 years, the American National Cowbelles and the Beef Industry Council of the Meat Board have been promoting beef for Father's Day," said Mrs. Middleton. "Beef tops the list of man-pleasing menu favorites throughout the year, so what better way to tell Dad he's number one than to serve beef on his special day?"

Mrs. Middleton said a recent study points out that cookouts are a favorite summertime activity in three out of four American households. By most, cookouts are considered a refreshing change of pace, producing good-tasting food. The food most preferred by America's barbecuers is beef, especially hamburgers and steak.

So, it is not surprising that the Father's Day beef promotion will be expanded to "Beef — America's Cookout Favorite." Retailers can obtain beef promotional material from the Beef Industry Council.

DAR Regent Speaks On National Defense

A patriotic program, "National Defense," coupled with the installation of officers, was held recently by the Capt. Elisha Mack Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The officers, who will serve two-year terms, were installed by Mrs. Bernie McCrea of Abilene, state vice-regent.

The slate includes Mrs. George Dawson, regent; Mrs. W. A. Riley, vice-regent; Mrs. Helen Early, chaplain; Mrs. Jack W. Lipscombe, recording secretary; Mrs. Jason Crutcher, corresponding secretary; Mrs. David Duke, treasurer; Mrs. John R. Dammron, registrar; Mrs. C. G. Barnett, historian; Mrs. O. D. O'Daniel Jr., librarian; Mrs. Archie Adkins, parliamentarian; and Mrs. Stanley Reid, National Defense chairman. Miss Marcia Ewing will be telephone chairman.

Mrs. Reid introduced Dr. Dorothy Wyvell, National Defense chairman of the Lt. William Brewer Chapter, DAR, Midland, who spoke on "What DAR Does." Noting that the DAR is based on the founding of this nation, Dr. Wyvell said the organization is interested in preserving the national heritage that evolved from the Revolutionary War as well as the individual members' heritage. In the educational field, the DAR emphasizes patriotism and citizenship, providing scholarships, medals and awards for essay contests in public schools.

Dr. Wyvell said the DAR sponsors work on Indian reservations, encourages aliens to become citizens of the United States, furthers genealogy research and stresses the importance of preserving personal records.

According to the speaker, the DAR has been trying to "alert" members to the need of a strong national defense system. She said the DAR is "not in favor" of wars, but believes a strong defense is necessary to prevent war.

Mrs. Dawson presided for a brief business session during which the membership planned to present a genealogy book to Howard County Library in memory of the late C. G. Barnett, husband of the chapter historian. A budget hearing will be held July 1 at Kentwood Center.

Miss Marcia Ewing, flutist, and Mrs.

Marguerite, pianist, presented a musical program.

Mrs. Duke headed the hostess committee which served refreshment. The table featured a floral centerpiece in red, white and blue, accented with miniature flags and flanked by matching candles in milk glass holders.

Mattress Firm Makes Half Of Products

Western Mattress Company of 1910 Gregg Street is part of a West Texas business concern that began operating in West Texas more than half a century ago. The establishment was founded in San Angelo in 1923 but didn't open its local shop until 1971. Business has been accelerating steadily since that time. Dennis Weaver, affiliated with Western Mattress for five years, is manager here. He moved to Big Spring in August, 1972. His family consists of his wife, Lana, and a four-year old son, Timmy. Since Weaver arrived on the scene, floor space of Western Mattress has tripled in size, which means the firm has stocked a far wider variety of mattresses, beds, pillows and linens. Employees of the firm, in addition to Weaver, include Del Davis and Randy McKinney. Davis has been with Western Mattress for three years while McKinney was employed last year. Among unique services Western Mattress offers is specializing in any type of custom-making, which means you can get any type, size or firmness of bed you desire. The establishment also sells cedar chests and rocker recliners as well as Lane bedroom furniture. It stocks a large assortment of decorative bedspreads, sheets, throw pillows, Wicker furniture, brass and wrought-iron pieces. Customer satisfaction is of the remaining merchandise. The customer saves money by dealing with firms like Western Mattress because it manufactures half of what it sells and is the distributor for the majority of the Chamber of Commerce.

COMPANY STANDS BEHIND IT'S PRODUCTS — Dennis Weaver, manager of Western Mattress Company here, stands beside one of the storage cabinets stocked by the firm. The firm, founded in San Angelo over 50 years ago, guarantees its products because it manufactures at least half of them. Whether you're looking for king-sized or trundle beds, Western Mattress is the place to shop.

'H' Bomb Father Seeks End To Nuclear Secrecy

WASHINGTON — Soviet research and not spying has boosted Russia ahead of the United States in the nuclear arms race, the man commonly regarded as the father of the hydrogen bomb has told a Senate Committee.

DR. EDWARD TELLER

Dr. Edward Teller used this testimony Monday to argue for an end to most secrecy surrounding nuclear technology. He said secrecy impedes the work of American scientists and fails to halt Russian nuclear progress.

RUSSIA NO. 1

The Soviets, Teller told the Senate Government Operations Committee, "are moving ahead at a rapid rate while we are practically standing still. There is no doubt, Russia is No. 1," he said.

Teller said he believes word of any major scientific breakthrough in the United States will reach the Soviet Union in a year or less.

valent information about nuclear weapons is available is probably between 100,000 and one million," Teller said.

"Under these conditions one must accept the conclusion that nuclear secrets, as a general

Assign Negro Minister To All-White Church

San Antonio, Tex., (AP) — Dr. J. Garfield Owens has become the first black pastor of an all-white United Methodist Church in the Southwest.

Dr. Owens technically assumed the leadership of Jefferson United Methodist Church Monday night with the reading of all appointments for 1974 in the Southwest Texas Methodist Conference.

GIVE IT A TRY

He begins preaching at the prestigious middle-class suburban church here June 23. Controversy has erupted over the action since it first came to light last February. Meetings have been held and some members of Jefferson have left the congregation, according to Bishop Slater.

"I would hope everyone would at least give it a try," Bishop Slater said.

Questioned as to why he made the move at this particular time, Bishop Slater said that Dr. Owens' six-year tenure of office as a Methodist district superintendent was up.

"We needed to give him a proper appointment," Bishop Slater said. "Of course we would have sidestepped the issue with an administrative post."

APPOINTMENTS

"The cabinet and I felt that the time had come for this next step in merger," he declared. Bishop Slater was referring to deal with my coming," he Southwest Texas Conference with the black West Texas Conference.

Bishop Slater did say that he never asked for a vote on the issue from the pastor-parish committee at Jefferson.

Dr. Owens, 59, a former public school teacher, said he was looking forward to the appointment.

"I understand there has to be a softening of the position of some who were unable before to deal with my coming," he declared.

Dr. Owens commented that with a "young white associate and a Mexican-American choir director he will be in a very unique position to speak to all groups."

Attend State 4-H Roundup

Twelve Howard County 4-H members participated in the state 4-H contests at the State 4-H Roundup at College Station recently.

Placing second in the Dairy Demonstration were Kaye Hunt and Kayla Gaskins of Knott 4-H Club. Connie Hughes and Lynn Hopper also of Knott 4-H Club placed fifth in the Pasture and Forage contest.

Placing seventh in the Entomology contest were Marty Brooks and Guy James of Coahoma 4-H Club, Daryle Witt, Knott 4-H and Ronnie Wegner of Gayhill 4-H. Also participating in the State Horse Demonstration were Karen Cowart and Debbie Parker of Knott 4-H.

The State 4-H Food Show was held with Donna James of Coahoma 4-H and Patty Peugh of Knott 4-H placing in the white ribbon group. Attending Roundup with the 4-H'ers were adult leaders Mr. and Mrs. Ovis James, Mrs. Joe Mac Gaskins and Mrs. J. E. Peugh and County Extension Agents Sherry Mullin and Ronnie Wood.

High Blood Pressure

DALLAS (AP) — It's rather hard, says a doctor, to convince a patient that treating a condition of which he feels no symptoms will save his life.

Dr. Norman M. Kaplan also told a medical group here that possibly 20 million or more Americans are expected to require treatment for high blood pressure as the public becomes more aware of the danger.

Kaplan, professor of medicine at the University of Texas Health Science Center, Dallas, spoke at a symposium on "Current Concepts of Hypertension"—commonly called high blood pressure.

But a problem for those found to have the condition, said Kaplan, is that "human nature finds it difficult to accept the fact that treating a condition today that has no symptoms will prevent its complications perhaps 10 to 20 years from now."

The doctor said, "Many patients found to have high blood pressure will need to change their lifestyle." They will need to cut down on salt, stop smoking, keep in good physical condition through the right kind of exercise and decrease stress levels. And they'd better keep taking their medicine, he stressed.

"The disease is the major cause of heart failure in this country and complicates and predisposes to coronary artery disease," said another speaker, Dr. Edward D. Frolich of the University of Oklahoma.

Threats Imperil Brighter Outlook In Oil Industry?

HOUSTON (AP) — The top spokesman for Texas independent oil and gas operators says brighter trends within the industry are being threatened at the federal level.

George Mitchell of Houston says operations by independents should be during the next year at their highest level since the 1950s.

"ENERGY POLICY" Any changes in laws affecting the petroleum industry, other than removing government controls on natural gas, obviously would be counterproductive," the president of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association said Monday.

Mitchell made his remarks as the association approved an 18-point national energy policy resolution that renews a plea for removal of interstate natural gas sales from federal price controls and pledged active opposition to any reduction or elimination of the industry's 22 per cent depletion tax allowance.

John Sawhill, the new administrator of the Federal Energy Office, and Tex. Gov. Dolph Briscoe were to speak today at the concluding session of the association's annual two-day meeting.

"GAS PRICES" Both Mitchell and Duke Ligon, assistant FEO administrator, agreed Monday that reduction or elimination of percentage depletion would raise consumer gasoline prices.

Ligon estimated elimination could mean an increase of two to three cents a gallon at the gasoline pump.

Proposals now before Congress would phase out the 22 per cent allowance by 1979 or eliminate it completely, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Ligon said some members of Congress apparently do not understand that tax subsidies should not be removed while leaving the bulk of oil and gas production under price ceilings.

"We as a nation cannot afford to invite economic disaster by passing fragmented legislation that ignores tax and price policy relationships," he said. "We will only hurt ourselves."

"TAX POLICY" He added that hasty decisions to revise tax policy could leave the nation even more vulnerable to future oil emzargoes by exporting nations.

Mitchell said changes in the depletion allowance would be particularly discouraging to the independent explorationist who drills four out of every five domestic wells.

Planning Council Set To Meet

Only one item on the July board of directors' meeting of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Council affects Howard County when it meets Wednesday at Terrell.

The annual application of the Big Spring State Hospital entitled "Use of Chicano Counselor and Follow-up as an Aide to the Treatment of Alcoholism" will be heard.

Main requests Wednesday are the City of Midland's application for 701 Urban Planning, Odessa also seeking these funds.

Midland schools are seeking funds for head start and an early screening, diagnosis and treatment program.

The Manpower plan for the Permian Basin Region is also considered on the agenda. The proposed budget will be presented. Members on the board from here include Judge A. G. Mitchell, and Harold Hall.

Loss Of Effective Tool

West Texans in particular have a considerable stake in the outcome of efforts to ban use of 2, 4, 5-T, a herbicide used in this area principally in the war on mesquite.

Use of the chemical in spraying pastures has been proven to be the most practical means of killing or controlling mesquite brush, especially when economic factors are considered. In all the time that this compound has been used, we have never heard of a report that it had toxic or harmful effects on livestock, people, or that it adversely affected marine life by runoff into ponds and lakes.

Scientific studies have indicated no evidence of accumulation in tissue of living animals. At the proper rate of application (a quarter of a pound to a maximum of two pounds per acre) it is dissipated in the soil in three weeks to three months. When eaten on plants by animal, the element is rapidly excreted by higher animals. In short, it has proven beneficial and not in the least harmful.

But when this (or beefed up forms of it) was applied massively as a defoliant to unmask the movements of Vietcong and North Vietnamese, scare stories began to appear. Most of these were grossly exaggerated, but even so, it should be noted that the application was at the rate of 33 pounds per acre and that mixture was altogether different, sometime a 50-50 mixture with other matter.

The Food and Drug Administration and environmentalists, contending that the chemical was suspect in causing birth defects, recurred in rigid controls and then suspensions. Scientific studies, however, have not borne out the claims. Dr. Donald D. Davis, alumni professor of botany at Auburn University, was on a distinguished panel named to investigate the claim of harmful effects and which found that there was no rational basis for it. Still the head of EPA slapped on a ban.

This is typical of several other instances where elements have been given test animals in massive and totally unreal amounts, wholly divorced from the reality of a field application, and then conclusions reached that the materials are potentially dangerous. A sizeable portion of our medicines, as well as herbicides and pesticides, would have to be retired if that philosophy applied generally.

People in agriculture and those dependent upon agriculture directly or indirectly, need to let their congressmen hear about this unreasonable step. We in West Texas need this tool to fight the insidious enemy of brush and weeds, just as rice growers and others need it to eliminate noxious plants.

Suggesting Tax Relief

The representative of an oil company — third largest taxpayer in the county — suggested here Monday that the Howard County Commissioners Court consider a tax rate cut in view of a 15 per cent increase in oil values.

The court demurred pending a review of the proposed 1975 budget, which is to be shaped in August. This is a reasonable response — but so is the suggestion from the oil companies (virtually all other company representatives were supporting this view).

In the past, increasing valuations have been used as a means of generating additional revenue to avoid or minimize tax rate increases. But, if there is not a soundly supportable or urgent demand for sharply increased revenues, then the reverse would be equally true. It is true that oil companies, as major taxpayers, would share in such relief, but so would everyone else proportionally. The possibility should not be ruled out.

My Answer

BILLY GRAHAM

When I say my prayers, I blame myself for my sins. I do not ask God to forgive me. Of course, I have not many sins. What do you think of me? N.B. An unusual letter like this should spark interest, but I'm afraid it is cause for concern.

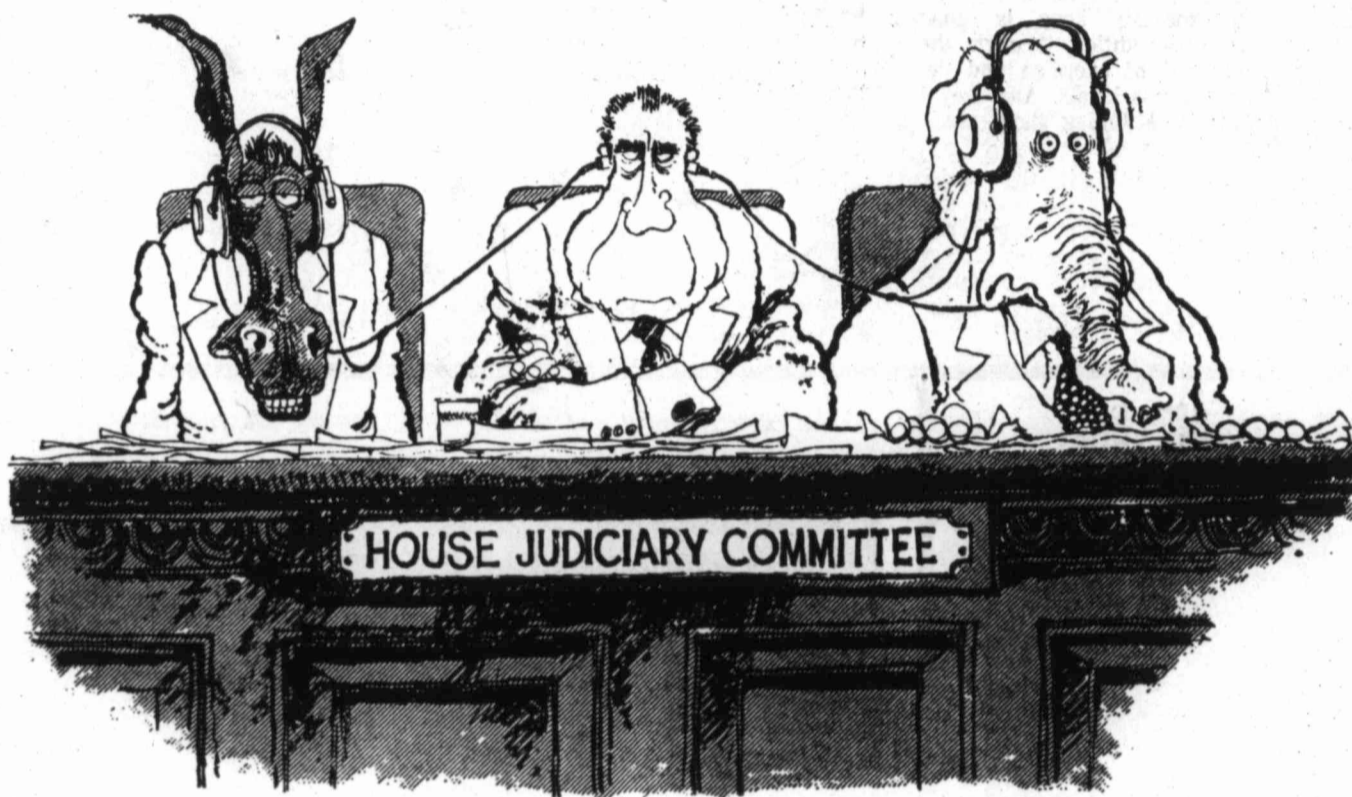

First of all, John reminds us that "If we claim to be without sin... the truth is not in us." (1 John 1:8.) The strange thing that Christian experience teaches us is that the closer we come to Christ in holy living, the more we sense our own shortcomings. Therefore, for someone to say that they "have not many sins" is to betray spiritual immaturity if not downright self-deception.

Secondly, not to ask God for forgiveness is an indirect denial of Christ's whole life and mission. Why not ask Him? John again suggests in that chapter: "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just and will forgive us." (Verse 9.)

You sound a little masochistic, that is, deriving some pleasure in putting yourself down. Unless such personal humiliation is linked to faith in Christ, it is simply self-abuse with no redeeming value.

Now here's what I think of you — a person who is on the verge of a great discovery.

Bugging Kissinger

William F. Buckley Jr.

The other day I turned on the television and was accosted by David Halberstam referring to Henry Kissinger as "that bugger." Mr. Halberstam lives in a glass house, one observes parenthetically. After all, what is obnoxious about bugging is the violation of privacy. And Mr. Halberstam's most famous book consists very substantially in violations of privacy. If A tells B something in confidence, and B tells it to Halberstam who publishes it, that is different from Halberstam bugging a conversation between A and B, but not so very much different, it seems to me, as to justify homilies by Halberstam at the expense of buggers.

THEY ARE really after Kissinger these days on the matter of did he or did he not initiate the bugging of some of his subordinates, or indeed of some members of the press, during the 1969-1971 period, and it is useful to consider the arguments and their progressive derailment at the hands of Mr. Kissinger's most vehement critics.

1) When the headlines report triumphantly that "No Security Information-Garnered By Wiretaps" really nothing very much is proved. It is not proved that the wiretaps should not have been installed. To say, "No Enemy Planes-Detected by DOD Radar", is not an argument for disestablishing the DEW Line network. All it means is that the 13 government officials and four newsmen who were wiretapped did not, over the wiretapped telephone, discuss the national security secrets the Executive was seeking to protect. It does not even mean, by the way, that the gentlemen in question were conclusively innocent. All it means is that they were not caught. We all know that one does not need to use one's private telephone for the purpose of communicating government secrets.

2) MR. KISSINGER was asked by Sen. Fulbright, during the hearings on Kissinger's appointment as Secretary of State, a question I remember at the time thinking of as highly indelicate. It was the question: Did Kissinger himself initiate a wiretap of any single individual? Mr. Kissinger replied in the negative, and, when pressed, said only that he had acquiesced in the general nature that surveillance of some sort was proper under the circumstances.

The reason I thought Sen. Fulbright's question indelicate, as also the questions of those who are now tormenting Mr. Kissinger on the point, is this. If the general principle is established that the Executive is entitled to guard the secrecy of its innermost deliberations — whether, for instance, to tilt towards India or towards Pakistan; what fallback position we are willing to take with the Russians at Helsinki, that kind of thing — then it follows that if the secrets are leaking, it is necessary to do something to stop the leak. (Who says A must say B.)

NOW THE cleanest way to proceed is by category, not by character reference. If you call in the FBI and give them the assignment, you ought not to say: "Please tap the telephones of all of the loose talkers who are privy to the minutes of the National Security Council." It is more proper to say: "Tap the telephones of everyone privy to the minutes of the National Security Council." That way you are not saying something invidious about a particular person, such as that Joe is known to run off a bit about intimate matters when he has too much to drink, or why are these elementary subtleties escaping the attention of the refined inquisitors of the Nixon administration? Is it because they are becoming primarily inquisitors, and only secondarily men of refinement

Credit Explosion

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — In the years from 1967 to 1973 there occurred what often is called an explosion of credit, amounting to $600 billion. And what are the projections for the next six years? Somewhere around $1.5 trillion.

This is the amount that government, business and households are expected to need if other projections are to be fulfilled, mainly those that call for a continued expansion of the economy and an upgrading of the quality of life.

Tremendous plans are on the agenda.

Corporations hope to enlarge and make their plants more productive in order to reduce the shortages of goods. And they are being compelled by law to make their plants more ecologically acceptable and more wholesome for workers.

The federal government seems bent on providing more and more services and may be unable or unwilling to cut its increasing demands for financing. That means all other borrowers will have stiff competition for funds.

Individuals and households have learned to rely on credit to finance the life styles they have been led to believe are rightfully theirs, even if they haven't the cold cash in hand.

All these plans would seem reason for great excitement among financiers, but the truth is they are producing apprehension instead. Nobody really knows how all the money is going to be raised.

Speaking at a Conference Board meeting a few days ago, Dimitri N. Balasos, economist and vice president of Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., listed some of the problem areas that worry some financial men.

—Corporate profits could continue under pressure for the entire period, lessening the appeal of stock investments. High interest rates and labor costs, and demands for greater social responsibility, might cut into earnings.

—The alternative to equity financing through the stock market is to borrow. But during this period some $25 billion of maturing bonds must be refinanced. That is, old bills must be paid before taking on new ones.

—Savings might fail to keep pace with economic activity. The demographic makeup of the population is changing, with the 25-45 year age group showing the biggest increase. These are spenders; they have a low propensity to save.

Based on current understanding of the situation, severe bottlenecks seem inevitable. Balasos retains some optimism, although it seems to arise more from faith than from any evidence now available.

Treating 'Lung Shock'

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 21 and three months ago was rushed into emergency surgery for a ruptured spleen. The doctors say they don't know what caused it.

After the operation they thought I was developing pneumonia. My temperature went to 104, I had fluid in my lungs, and one collapsed.

I didn't respond, so was rushed to a university hospital and my condition was diagnosed as "shock lung." They inserted three chest tubes to re-inflate my lung and also performed a tracheotomy and put me in a respirator.

I was told they don't know what caused the shock lung. Do you? And in the future, if need arises, is it possible for them to perform a tracheotomy on me again? — E.W.J.

Technically, I would say the preferred term would be "adult respiratory distress syndrome," but the term shock lung is commonly used also the terms "wet lung" and "white lung."

I can't say explicitly how shock lung is caused, but can tell you what it is. It is something that may occur with severe injury, infection, overuse of drugs, pneumonia, clots in the lung, critical operations, and the like.

The alveolar capillary membranes are damaged — these membranes are the fine, delicate ones that line the little chambers in the lungs, and it is through these membranes that oxygen is transferred to the blood stream and carbon dioxide is given off in exchange.

When this mechanism is not operating efficiently and (and it is made worse, of course, by any fluid in the lungs) the patient becomes short of breath and has all the symptoms of suffocation for lack of oxygen. He is not getting enough oxygen in his blood.

Tracheotomy (putting a tube into the windpipe) and use of a respirator are methods of getting more oxygen into the lungs, and to the area where the patient is having difficulty absorbing enough.

Yes, these procedures can be repeated in case of need, but let's hope that you won't need them again.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you write about what we usually call fits, when anybody falls and their neck and head stiffens and draw backward, and then they get over it quickly, but have another one especially when there's excitement. What is the cause and what is the remedy? What kind of medicine will keep it off, if anything? — G.M.

You've written a pretty vivid description of a convulsive seizure, or convulsion, such occurs with epilepsy. The cause is a fault in the part of the brain that governs muscle control — the muscles suddenly become extremely tense.

There are several types of epilepsy, and several anti-convulsive drugs of various types, so very often combinations of them are used to fit individual cases. Rather than suffering repeated attacks, this person involved should see a physician about getting the proper medication to prevent — or at least minimize — the seizures.

To learn of the many factors involved in the treatment of hiatal hernia (which concerns the esophagus), write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Big Spring Herald for a copy of his booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Bettern' Kissin'

Around The Rim

Jo Bright

The coffee table in my living room is low and long. Its location, approximately six feet from the front door, makes it a target I can hit almost every time.

WHATEVER THE mail box belches up is tossed on the table — to be looked at with leisure on Sunday mornings. The circulars, magazines, advertisements marked "IMPORTANT" and, occasionally, a little party invitation that gets hidden in between.

Most of the mail merits only a quick perusal, but some of the magazines are laid aside, hopefully for further inspection.

The American Legion Magazine is one that usually joins the stack, but I got involved with it this time, simply because of a joke that caught my eye:

FOUR LITTLE boys were trying to decide which movie to attend one Saturday afternoon. Jim was holding out for a certain Western, but his three buddies would have none of it. "It's got a lot of kissing scenes," they complained.

"That's okay," said Jim. "When the kissing starts, we can just close our eyes and pretend he's choking her."

THUS, REFRESHED with the saneness of a silly joke, I flipped over a few pages and found these helpful items about life in the outdoors: Take a rubber or plastic kitchen glove with you on your next outdoor trip. You might need an ice bag for a bruise, cut, insect bite or sprain. Then just fill the glove with cracked ice, or cold stream water, and close it at the wrist with a rubber band or piece of fishing line.

ALSO, YOU won't regret it if you tuck an asbestos glove into the pocket of your camping jacket. It will protect your hand while putting wood on your camp fire, moving hot rocks around the cooking spot or holding hot panhandles, etc.

On a tenting trip, an unexpected rain during the night will wet the woods and make it difficult for you to start your campfire the next morning. As a precaution, before climbing into your sleeping bag, gather some dry tinder such as twigs and small branches and bring them into the tent with you.

INSTEAD OF burdening yourself with drinking cups on a backpacking or hiking trip, carry some folded aluminum foil. Then when you need a cup, take a double thickness of the foil and shape it around your fist into the form of a drinking container. It's re-usable.

If your dog gets into a burr patch, you can pluck the burrs out of his hair easily and quickly with an old kitchen fork.

'It Is A Minefield'

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Behind all the public plaudits now embroiling President Nixon's trip to the Middle East next week, his peremptory decision to go with such unseemly speed has alarmed some of his most intimate advisers.

INDEED, MR. NIXON'S insistence on going before the ink has even dried on Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's delicate agreement disengaging Syrian and Israeli forces is the first conclusive sign of the President's willingness to risk Kissinger's miracles of mediation abroad in the interest of impeachment politics at home.

The issue is not Mr. Nixon's natural instinct to cash in on Kissinger's triumph. No President would do less, and no Secretary of State would expect him to do less. The problems of a quickie presidential tour before the dust has begun to settle on the radical reformation of Arab-Israeli relations are far more fundamental.

NO MATTER HOW it is glossed, the Nixon visit looks like rubbing the nose of the Russian bear in the ashes of their immense political defeat in the Arab world.

Once the Nixon-Kissinger team cut the Gordian knot of two decades of pro-Israel U.S. policy, it was predictable that Moscow could never compete on equal terms with Washington in the Arab world. But the Russians have desperately tried to reduce their losses, even to the point of sending Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on a humiliating but face-saving visit to Damascus at the critical moment of Kissinger's triumph. When he arrived, his dinner with President Hafez Assad was cancelled and his plane was towed to a distant point on the airfield at Kissinger's request so no photograph could be taken of the two super-power aircraft side by side on the tarmac.

BUT CUTTING losses and keeping a hand in play is still the Soviet game. Accordingly, Moscow has now sent to Syria a handful of operational, Soviet-piloted MIG-23 fighter-bombers, the first time ever that this No. 1 Soviet aircraft has been allowed out of the Soviet bloc. Almost nothing Assad has asked in the way of military equipment has been denied him. Moreover, Assad's own desire to compromise with Israel on the new buffer zone was resisted every step of the way by pro-Soviet elements in his Baathist government.

That new buffer zone may or may not be stabilized, but the sudden appearance of the American President at this point could look provocative, particularly if he brings nothing new with him.

BUT WHAT IS there new to bring? U.S.-Syrian diplomatic relations would have been restored without any presidential visit. The new $100 million American aid package has been on the books for several months. The really tough issue — what to do about the Palestinians and a new Palestinian state — bristles with insoluble problems, and a single verbal stumble by the President on his trip could set off a political explosion.

"IT IS A minefield," one top-rank diplomat here told us, "to be entered only after most careful preparation."

Thoughtful U.S. politicians agree. Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, a foreign policy hard-liner, thinks the visit is "a rush job fraught with great risks!"

Letters To Editor

Dear Sirs: In the wake of the second publicized controversy tending to discredit the Texas Scottish Rite Hospital For Crippled Children in as many years (see front page Associated Press story in Sunday's Herald), we feel compelled to submit this note in the defense thereof.

Though neither Masons nor in a position to be knowledgeable of the administrative practices of this hospital, we are the parents of a three-year old daughter who has spent substantial time in Scottish Rite and who, while there, had major surgery on both hip sockets. We are thus in a position to voice a personal opinion as to the medical functioning of this institution and can state without reservation that the medical and surgical services provided are excellent and that the nursing and therapeutic care is unexcelled.

The latter may actually be described as almost unique, for Scottish Rite is a hospital the total functioning of which revolves around the happiness and entertainment of the patients. While other institutions may provide comparable medical care, large general hospitals are simply not designed to cater exclusively to the very special needs of young children confined to bed and often to traction for extended periods of time, and this, precisely, is Scottish Rite's forte; for this is a hospital of parties, magic shows, and games in seemingly endless succession.

Furthermore, while Sen. Blakley's allegation concerning empty beds is sometimes true, it is our impression that virtually no one seeking admission is refused regardless of race, creed, color, or financial standing. Thus, it would appear that the fault herein lies with an inadequate referral system rather than with the hospital per se, and based on our acquaintances with personnel at the hospital, we are unable to accept the premise that additional facilities would not be added if the patient load so necessitated.

Though it may do little to satisfy Sen. Blakley as to the financial wisdom of his endorsement, we, as one of many sets of grateful parents, would like to express our unbounded appreciation to him and to the other generous benefactors of Scottish Rite Hospital for having made possible the existence of this fine institution.

For What It's Worth

Jack Cowan

It'll be interesting to see how Dick Butkus' suit, filed against the Chicago Bears a couple of weeks ago, comes out. Butkus asked $1.6 million in damages against the Bears, saying they "willfully and wantonly employed high-powered pain killers, so that the natural processes of the human body were interfered with and athletes could carry on when they should have not been playing."

Breaking that down into laymen's terms, I think it means he's ticked off. Butkus says he suffered permanent knee damage that ended his career because the Bears had him playing every week, healthy or not. Specifically, he claimed the Bears used injections of "cortisone and other high-powered drugs" and he says their continued use ruined his knee joint. "Irreparable damage" were the words he used, I think.

I don't know how the Bears are taking this, but I do know I wouldn't want the world's meanest middle linebacker hot at me. But then I'm the kind of guy who'd give my milk money to a bully so he wouldn't beat me up. Papa George Halas, the Bears' legendary owner who's so tough I doubt that he's ever needed any drugs, probably isn't going to be that easy.

The case is likely to have a huge impact on the game either way. In a game where the players aren't even supposed to admit to pain, and certainly not miss a game because of it, the whole scenario of the sport could change. If Butkus wins, players will no longer have to "wrap a gut around it" or "rub some dirt on it." They will simply sit out until they are healed or follow Butkus' path into the courtroom.

A Butkus victory in the courts could conceivably mean a rush of litigation that would stun Judge Sirica. Surely there are hundreds of players out there who still limp because they didn't know their leg was broken when they made the big tackle or whose heads ring occasionally because they didn't have the presence of mind to quit.

Every team has players who get themselves shot so full of stuff they're numb, and it's not confined to the pros, either. Colleges are almost as bad, and it even happens sometimes at the high school level. That, sports fans, takes in a lot of folks.

The fact that the suit was filed isn't really strange, but you'd think it would be introduced by someone like Chip Oliver or Dave McGee, or some other player who has publicly downgraded the game. To me, Dick Butkus attacking pro football is like Billy Graham lashing out at the church or Elvis Presley knocking rock music. It just doesn't fit.

I mean, Butkus always seemed to be so gung ho, like he WANTED to play when he was hurt. After all, isn't that what football is all about — being so tough and mean that you play better than the other guy when he's well? Character and all that, you know.

But Dick Butkus either became bitter about the game, or about the Bears management, or both. Or he decided that $1.6 million would really look cool in his bank account. Butkus may or may not win his lawsuit, but one thing is certain — the whole drug scene in pro football will get a stiff look before it's all over, and it could get nasty. Pete Rozelle and his friends had better start preparing some kind of defense.

Jack Won't 'Dominate,' Says Miller

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — The Jack Nicklaus era is over, says Johnny Miller.

That doesn't mean that the slender young blond is ready to claim pro golf's throne for his own—even though his credentials are all in order. Not at all.

"I just think that the time is past when any one man will dominate the game," Miller said. "There are too many good players for that to happen now. I'm not knocking Jack," Miller emphasized. "Not at all. He's still my idol—sort of. He's probably the best player in the world. But I don't think you're going to see Jack winning 50 per cent of his starts any more."

"There are just too many good young players now," he said, and ticked off the list of the men who have become known as the game's Young Lions: "Hubert Green, Jerry Heard, John Mahaffey—he's a great player, Mahaffey is, and I guess Hubie (Green) has been the outstanding player on the tour in the last two months—Ben Crenshaw, Tom Watson, Forrest Fezler, Lanny Wadkins, even though Lanny has had his troubles this year, he's a really good player. He's a real competitor. He wants to beat your brains out for 10 cents."

Miller added: "And there's (Tom) Weiskopf, too. In just the last year he's become a great player. I disagree with Tom, though. He said he thinks the golf courses are being set up too easy and that's why we're getting all these real low scores."

"I think we're getting all these real low scores because there are just so many good players out here now. Boy, you make one mistake and a whole bunch of guys just go flying right by you, just whoosh. It happens all the time."

Miller and Green, of course, have been the dominant figures on the tour this year. Miller has won five tournaments and $203,000. Green has won three events and $156,000. They rank one-two in both categories going into the U.S. Open championship, the most prestigious of all the world's titles.

Kodes Eliminated From French Open

PARIS (AP) — The men's singles of the French Open Tennis tournament settle down today to the usual European flavor, with some Latin American spice. With four quarter-final spots filled, the lineup reads: One Frenchman, one Spaniard, one West German and one Chilean. The last four quarter-finalists will be decided today.

Wildcats Triumph

The Wildcats thumped the Lions 9-7 Friday in a Coahoma Girls Softball tilt. Terry Hulme was the winning pitcher and scored three runs as the team evened its record at 1-1.

For the Lions, now 0-2, Shanna Cobb was the leader at the plate.

USC Claims No. 1; Texas, OU Tangle

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Who's really No. 1 in college baseball? Southern California Coach Rod Dedeaux is one person who would like to know, and he has a good candidate for the top spot—his own Trojans.

"We've beat one team that was rated No. 1. Now we have a chance to see if Miami is the best," said Dedeaux after his team scored a 5-3 victory over Southern Illinois in the 28th College World Series Monday night.

That earned Southern California a Wednesday night game against Miami, 50-9, the only unbeaten team still remaining in the double-elimination showdown for the national crown.

Southern California came to the series with a 45-19 record—poorest by a Dedeaux-coached team in 22 years—and rated no better than fifth in the poll conducted by Collegiate Baseball newspaper.

Texas, which shares the No. 1 poll spot with Miami, was Southern California's first-round victim, and No. 4 Southern Illinois could do no better in stalling the Trojans' bid for a fifth straight title.

Miami used a superb clutch pitching performance to topple Oklahoma 5-1, Southern Illinois downed Seton Hall 5-1, and Texas eliminated Seton Hall 12-2 in other games on Monday's four-game card.

Texas, 53-7, faces Oklahoma, 43-7, and Northern Colorado, 32-12, in losers' bracket elimination games tonight. Southern Illinois took a 3-0 lead in the second inning against Southern California without hitting the ball out of the infield.

The unusual play saw Southern Cal catcher Ed Putnam tag the plate and the umpire call the runner out, although there was no force out.

Freshman designated hitter Mickey Reischenbach clubbed a first inning grand slam home run and Texas went on to batter four Seton Hall pitchers for 10 more hits in the Longhorns' romp.

Pecos Eyes AAA Baseball Honors

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Two 1973 semifinalists, Pecos and South Grand Prairie, were matched today in the opening game of the state schoolboy baseball tournament.

Their semifinal game was to be followed by another 3A game, Mercedes against West Orange, two teams advancing to the state tournament for the first time.

Houston Spring Woods, which overcame an opening game loss to eliminate Dallas Spruce in regional, was paired against Eagle Pass, a 1970 semifinalist, in the first 4A contest.

Pre-tournament favorite Lubbock Monterey drew Pasadena in other 4A game.

Monterey won the 4A championship in 1972, and coach Bobby Moegle says this year's team is better. It was won 28 straight games in a 34-4 season, and 15 players on the 18-man roster are hitting .308 or better.

The batting leader is catcher Jim Shankle, who was selected last week by Boston in the pro draft. He has hit in 29 consecutive games and has a .464 average, including 11 home runs.

Although Pasadena's season record is not too impressive, 23-10, the Eagles' pitchers have only allowed more than one run once in their last 14 games.

Passadena gained the finals in 1968 but was beaten by San Antonio Highlands for the title.

Mann Gets Win In Texas Tennis

SAN ANTONIO — Big Springer Tony Mann secured a high ranking for himself in Texas Boys 14 Doubles last week when he teamed with Jeff Bramlett of Midland and gained the quarterfinals of the Texas Sectional Tennis Tournament.

Mann and Bramlett bowed to top-seeded Puttnerman and Wallace of Houston 6-4, 6-1 in the fourth round of the meet, which drew some 4,000 netters from across the state. (One default and a pair of Victories propelled the team into the quarterfinals.)

In singles, Mann lost in the third round to Wright of San Antonio 6-1, 7-5. He defeated McGovern of San Antonio 6-0, 6-1 in the second round and topped Dallas' Rick Anagan 6-1, 6-1 in his opener.

Rangers Rally; Dodgers, T Birds, Pirates Triumph

The Rangers, locked in a National League slump in recent weeks, pulled out of it in the last two innings Monday night and claimed a tense 8-7 victory over the Lions.

Russell Bledsoe smacked a double and a single and Victor Mellinger added a double as the Rangers rallied behind winning pitcher Raymond Dominguez and upped their record to 8-7.

The Rangers, down 4-0 after four innings, pushed across six runs in the fifth and added two in the seventh before holding off the Lions' comeback in the bottom of the sixth.

Ronnie Burleson was the losing pitcher as the Lions fell to 6-3.

In other Little League play Monday, the Pirates clubbed the Stars 13-5 in the American loop, the Dodgers earned a 5-1 Texas league decision over the Cardinals and the T-Birds rolled past the Talons in the International League 7-2.

Eugene Boadle smacked a double and two singles and John Wilson and Jimmy Marquez added three hits each in the Pirates' triumph, their 10th against six losses. Boadle stopped the Stars on seven hits in picking up the decision.

TEENAGE BASEBALL Kiwanis Still Unbeaten In Local Hi-Junior Play

Dick Battles tossed a two-hitter and struck out 13 batters Monday as the unbeaten Kiwanis rolled to a 10-2 victory over the Morning Optimists in Hi-Junior baseball play.

Battle, now 3-0, also had a pair of singles for the Kiwanis while Pat Carroll led the way with a double and two singles as the team raised its standing to 6-0.

For the Optimists, now 0-6, Noel Hull was the losing pitcher. Steve Hughs slapped a double in the setback.

In a Sophomore League doubleheader Monday, the Lions clubbed the Orioles 13-1 and the Yankees trimmed the Giants 12-6.

David Montanez shined on the mound for the Lions, allowing two hits and striking out 16 in a game halted after six innings because of the 10-run rule. The Lions, 5-1, were led at the plate by Mike Ritchey's three doubles, while Montanez contributed a triple. Johnny Mize and J. Wray Warren also had doubles.

Don Roberson took the defeat as the Orioles slumped to 1-5. James Pinkard and Oscar James smacked two hits apiece and Billy Ray Johnson struck out eight on the way to a four-hitter as the Yankees pulled even with the Giants at 4-2 in the Soph loop.

Walter Beauchamp managed a triple in the Giants' defeat, while Mitch Harris suffered his first mound loss after two victories. The Giants are also 4-2.

INDUSTRY'S GARBAGEMEN — I

Going To Make Texas Dumping Ground Of Nation?

By LEE JONES Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Nobody wants to keep their own garbage. And nobody wants poisonous waste dumped in their backyard or in their drinking water.

From those facts grows the dilemma that fills most of Hugh Yantis' waking hours. Yantis, executive director of the Texas Water Quality Board, is caught between a pair of controversies over plans by two corporations to bury toxic industrial wastes for a profit.

It's fair to say neither Yantis nor the corporations would win a popularity contest in Corpus Christi, Limestone County or the legislature right now. Charges of profiteering, cronyism, callousness and favoritism to polluters have colored the discussion. Some critics claim to see the hand of ex-Gov. John Connally in plans by Midway Services Inc. of Austin to bury an average of 19,000 gallons of industrial waste per day in a 271-acre site south of Groesbeck in Limestone County.

WATER SUPPLY

The other sites would be operated by South Texas Industrial Services on a 508-acre lease near Three Rivers. About 47,000 gallons a day of acids, caustics, oily materials, treated cyanides and other residues from industrial processes would be buried each day in 50-foot pits lined with 10 feet of clay. Corpus Christi officials contend the toxic materials might leak into a nearby creek and flow into Lake Corpus Christi, the city's water supply.

After voting in April to endorse Yantis' decision and allow the Three Rivers landfill operation, the Water Quality Board suspended the permit a month later and called for another hearing June 21 in Corpus Christi.

A June 11 hearing on the Limestone County proposal was scheduled but Midway Services requested a postponement after the board announced a series of statewide hearings on the problem.

MAKE A FORTUNE

"I am afraid they are going to make Texas the dumping ground of the nation... Man, this thing will make a fortune. This will make some millionaires... I condemn it if they are looking at it solely from the standpoint of making money," said Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, a critic of the Limestone County application.

Yantis and John Mobley, president of Midway Services, discount Kubiak's fear that Texas will become a dumping ground.

Texas' regulation of industrial waste disposal "is among the tightest in the nation," Yantis said, and this should discourage dumping from outside Texas. "Some Texas wastes are being hauled to Oklahoma and Louisiana, but you don't hear of any being hauled from there to here. The economics of solid waste disposal simply doesn't let you do that—it's too expensive," he said.

Mobley said his firm's market research has been confined to Texas, and "I think there are enough plants in the state to keep us busy."

Both companies expect a large annual gross but it is not clear how much will be profit.

Midway Services would charge from $6.50 to $10 for each 55-gallon drum it buries, Mobley said. Gross annual receipts could range from $560,000 to $860,000 if the 119,000 gallons per day target is met, but Mobley said a realistic figure would be $400,000 to $600,000 a year.

GET-RICH-QUICK

The landowners' take would be 20 cents a drum with a minimum of $3,388 a year.

"It's not a get-rich-quick thing. Hell no!" Mobley said. "The cost of operating the site is not insignificant. We will need technicians to operate our laboratory. It's bigger than digging a hole and burying it."

He said if profit is 11 or 12 per cent on investment which he said was $200,000 or $300,000, "we would be very happy."

Critics of the Limestone County landfill have found it natural to connect the project with Connally, since both Mobley and one of the company's initial directors, Howard Rose, were Connally aides during the 1960s.

RICHEST MAN?

"If John Connally owned everything they say he does, he'd be the richest man in the world," laughed Rose.

Rose, chairman of the Water Quality Board when it promoted Yantis to executive director, said he has no interest in Midway Services but merely drew up the incorporation papers for Mobley. There must be three incorporators and initial directors, so Rose listed himself and two of his law partners, Thomas Ausley and Robert L. Davis, as incorporators and himself, Mobley and Ausley as initial directors.

"Incorporators are just corporate eunuchs—three warm bodies who were around to sign... That's us, me, Ausley and Davis," Rose said.

Rose said he and Ausley would resign as directors. He said he told Mobley, "Elect your own directors and we'll go our own way."

INVESTOR

Mobley also denied any Connally interest in Midway Services, although his son, Houston lawyer John Connally III, is a stockholder. "He's not active in it, merely an investor," Mobley said of young Connally.

Midway is a spin-off from Disposal Systems Inc., an Austin firm of which Mobley also is Inc. that planned to bury industrial wastes near Elgin, 25 miles east of Austin. Yantis and the board found the site incompatible with land uses desired by the residents.

PROFIT

"Yantis hasn't given us any special consideration. None has been as stringent as this permit, because he knows I know what has to be done to make it right," Harris said.

Harris looks for a good profit if the South Texas Industrial Services site is approved. He figures on handling 400 drums of waste plus 25,000 gallons of undrained materials a day.

Using these figures, operating days, South Texas Industrial Services probably would gross $1 million yearly.

Harris calculates the firm's profit at 18 to 20 per cent of sales, but says this might be overly optimistic.

He said South Texas' initial investment is about $500,000, provided mostly through loans guaranteed by former Rep. Jerry Butler, a Karnes County rancher. Lease expenses are $2 per acre per year, plus $500 per acre as the land is damaged.

Controversy over Mobley's and Harris' proposals has been so great that the Water Quality Board has ordered 12 public hearings on the problem.

In addition, the board has authorized a year-long $25,000 study by the University of Texas Department of Engineering to learn exactly what happens when acids and other chemicals are buried. How will they react with the supposedly water-tight clays in which the board requires the disposal trenches to be dug? Will they break down the clays and move through them until they reach fresh water either underground or on the surface?

POLLUTERS

Reacting to a request from 45 House members who claim Yantis and the board have shown a "distinct bias in favor of polluters," Speaker Price Daniel Jr. has directed a subcommittee to study the agency and its policies. A Senate committee will look into the laws governing the board.

Yantis said he does not anticipate any moratorium, however, on industrial waste disposal permits.

"It is very tempting. But it is the judgment of all the people I talk to that industry necessarily creates these wastes... If they start retaining them, it is a problem of safety and security. It seriously hampers industry if they don't have a place to take them," Yantis said.

But the people in Limestone County and Corpus Christi don't want the wastes in their backyard.

"Everybody wants us to pick this stuff up, but nobody wants to let us put it down anywhere," says Mobley.

Howard College Grants Approved

Congressman Omar Burleson today announced approval of $3,722 supplemental educational opportunity grant to Howard College.

This will be for an estimated five student awards. The grants will range from $200 to $1,500 for each academic year of undergraduate study awarded by the college to qualified students of exceptional financial need.

Each grant required provision of an equal amount funded to the student from some other source, either federal, state or institutional, including employment in the college work study program.

She adds: "You can hardly hit the premier with women's lib when he comes home from a hard day at office."

But few if any women in Portugal today have better qualifications to speak out on women's rights than the 70-year-old writer-lawyer. For years she has been fighting for those rights, a tiny ripple in a sea of supermasculinity.

Vacation 'Break' For Air Force Unit

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — About 110,000 military and civilian personnel working for the Air Force Logistics Command in six states will be given a maximum of 12 days vacation with pay around Christmas to conserve energy, the command said today.

Col. Arthur Lynn, an information officer with the command, said workers at facilities in Texas, Georgia, California, Utah, Oklahoma and Ohio will be affected. The vacation, which will run from Dec. 21 to Jan. 1, would use six days of paid leave time permitted each employe and six days given by the command.

Utility Hike In Alamo City

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — San Antonio's municipally owned utility began immediately charging customers an average of 19 per cent more for services after being granted a rate hike by the city council.

By a vote of 6 to 3, the council ordered the increase to finance bonds which the City Public Service will sell for new power plant construction.

At first, the controversial vote was 5 to 4 in favor of the increase but Councilman Leo Mendoza switched his "no" vote to "yes" a City Public Service spokesman said the 5-4 vote would mean the hike would not take effect for 10 days, costing the utility $1 million.

Under a council rule, a vote of 6-3 or better allows ordinances to take effect immediately.

The council then authorized the sale of $85 million in bonds which will go toward planning and construction of coal and nuclear power plants as alternative manufacturers of electricity to natural gas now in short supply.

San Antonio has experienced numerous curtailments in natural gas supplies due to shortages in the Lo-Vaca Gas Gathering Co. system. Lo-Vaca, a subsidiary of Coastal States Gas Corp., is the city's sole supplier of natural gas.

Opening lead: Jack of ♡ If I had a penny for every hand lost thru careless play at the first trick, I would not have to support myself by writing a bridge column—I could retire a very wealthy man indeed.

Also he held four spades, North elected to make the more descriptive response of one no trump over South's one diamond opening bid, rather than introduce such a scary suit. When South showed his strength by jump-shifting and then bidding his heart fragment over his partner's preference, North realized that the spade suit was wide open. Therefore, he eschewed a no trump contract and indicated that he had a good minimum by jumping to five diamonds, which ended the auction.

The opening lead of the jack of hearts was won by the ace. The ace and king of diamonds were cashed, and declarer exhibited good technique when he left the remaining trump outstanding to test the club suit. He cashed the ace of clubs, crossed to dummy's king of clubs and led a low club towards his queen. East ruffed and South followed with his low club.

The queen of hearts forced the king, and declarer suddenly realized that he had no entry to his hand to cash the queen of clubs on which he would discard dummy's heart loser. He tried a spade, but the defenders were on their toes. They won the spade and cashed a heart for down one.

It did not require any high-level technical play to bring home the contract, just a bit of care at the first trick. Observe the difference if declarer wins the opening lead in dummy, and plays the hand in exactly the same fashion. Now, when East ruffs the third club and returns a heart, declarer wins in his hand with the ace and can play the queen of clubs, sluffing a heart from dummy. A heart ruff is the eleventh trick.

It does not help East to refuse to ruff the third club. South would win the queen and ruff his remaining club with the queen of trumps, thus losing only a trick in each major suit.

NEGRO DELEGATE ACHIEVES MAJOR POLITICAL GOAL

Health Care Provision In Proposed Constitution

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Rep. Mickey Leland, a black, liberal, Houston Democrat, has finally achieved his major political goal: a guarantee in a proposed constitution of health care for all Texans.

The convention continues debate today on amendments to the general provisions article, and on a motion by Rep. Ray Hutcheson, R-Dallas, to reconsider his controversial section on protecting the environment.

Leland, a pharmacist, concentrated on drug prices and other health issues in the 1973 legislature.

amendment with Leland that changed the language to say that health care is a right and not a privilege in the state of Texas," he said.

MAIN REASON

This issue was the main reason he ran for the legislature, he said.

The convention approved the amendment 86-66.

Leland delightedly gave Sen. Bob Gammage, D-Houston, a soul-slap on his hands in front of the podium.

The convention also approved on a non-record vote an amendment requiring the same kind of redistricting for congressional districts after the 1980 census as the legislative districts now have.

It would stop the practice of adding several rural counties to part of an urban county to make a district.

If an urban county has enough population to make one or more full districts, it would have to be given those districts within its own boundaries.

Delegates rejected attempts to limit state spending, forbid lobbyists from serving on state boards and give voters the power to pass laws.

Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, tried to prohibit the appointment of anybody to a state board who has been a lobbyist within a year of his appointment. It also would prohibit a member of such a board from becoming a lobbyist within two years after leaving that post. The amendment was tabled 82-44.

Rep. Richard Geiger, D-Dallas, offered the amendment to allow voters to pass laws. It was severely curtailed by such amendments as one that would require petitions to be signed by 20 per cent of those who voted in the last general election. In the 1972 general election, almost 3.5 million Texans voted in the presidential race. That means a petition to put a proposed law on a ballot would have to be signed by nearly 700,000 qualified voters. The amendment was tabled 85-71.

PRESIDENT COOPER SAYS: Baptists Need To Make Better Use Of Talents

DALLAS (AP) — The president of the Southern Baptist Convention has laid out a program of self-improvement, saying the Baptists have to better use the talent in the denomination.

Owen Cooper, a retired Yazoo City, Miss., industrialist, told the 15,000 messengers Monday that Southern Baptist were suffering a substantial talent drain with pastors leaving the pulpit, denomination administrators taking secular employment, missionaries resigning, and lay people becoming involved in a host of newly organized groups unrelated to the convention.

"We spend thousands of dollars educating ministers; we are short of pastors and in need of 800 more foreign missionaries and hundreds of home missionaries; hence we can ill afford losses in these categories," he said.

Cooper did say the convention was good, but not good enough. As a note of progress, he pointed out the denomination's size—34,000 churches with 12.3 million members; 27,000 pastors, 2,550 foreign missionaries in 77 countries and 2,200 home missionaries.

He called for training of more preachers, saying a recent survey revealed that less than 37 per cent have completed seminary training.

"The 50 cents per capita the Southern Baptist put into training their ministers is insufficient," he said, "and the present programs are inadequate to reach many who desire to further their ministerial training."

Cooper also asked the messengers to focus their interest on the Northeast in the immediate future because 100 million people live there, 45 million without church affiliation.

"If we are to maintain our baptisms in the face of the declining birth rate, we must go where the prospects are and intensify our efforts there."

Coeds Justified In Killing Ex-Con Who Raped Them

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A coroner's jury says two college coeds were justified in killing a man who raped them and then tried to murder them because he was not sexually satisfied.

The six-member jury returned the verdict Monday in the death of Lee Arthur Godwin, a five-foot-6, 120-pound, ex-convict from Vero Beach, Fla., after listening to testimony from the two Indiana University coeds and police.

Florida law forbids publishing the name of rape victims.

The coeds gave the following account of their ordeal:

WE WERE SCARED

They were hitchhiking north on U.S. Highway 1 Saturday evening, after returning from the Bahamas, when Godwin picked them up and offered to drive them to Dayton Beach.

They said Godwin, whom they described as "real quiet," drove only several miles before pulling off Interstate 95 at New Smyrna Beach. They said he followed several dirt roads before stopping and brandishing an ice pick.

The two girls, one a 20-year-old blonde who stands 5-foot-2 and weighs 120 pounds and the other 19, 5-foot-6 and 140 pounds, said Godwin ordered them into the woods. "We went with him because we were afraid he was going to stab us any time," one girl said. "We were scared but didn't know what to do."

NOT SATISFIED

After forcing the girls to perform various sex acts, Godwin ordered the pair to lay side-by-side on the ground and raped both while holding the ice pick to their throats, they said.

But the girls said he was not satisfied sexually and became enraged.

"He was furious," said the younger girl, who had a large bruised area on her neck. "He acted like it was our fault he wasn't satisfied. He shouted, 'I'm going to kill you bitches.' He started stabbing at my neck."

One of the coeds then kicked Godwin in the groin while the other twisted a bandana scarf around his neck, the girls said. After he collapsed, they said, they combined their strength in twisting the scarf "until he was quiet."

Not realizing Godwin was dead, they said they fled the scene, afraid he was going to chase them. They said they finally came upon a farmhouse where they called police, who found Godwin's body.
