WIDOW, TWO CHILDREN ESCAPE FROM CHAINS IN FOREST

Arrest Accused Triple Slayer

TRUCKEE, Calif. (AP) -Authorities were silent today about clues that led them to a brawny woodcutter sought in a triple slaying and the six-day kidnaping of three other per-

John Wayne Card, 26, of Woodland, was arrested in this Northern California mountain town late Thursday by FBI agents and sheriff's deputies. The FBI said he was armed with a .45-caliber automatic pistol but offered no resistance.

ESCAPE FROM CHAINS Card's arrest came 10 hours after a widow and her two children, kidnaped last Friday, escaped from chains in a forest and walked to a ranger station.

Card was booked for investigation of kidnaping early today after authorities returned him to Willows, Calif. in Glenn County, about 100 miles west of Truckee. He also was booked for investigation of murder in the slayings last Friday of a Willows veterinarian, his wife and daughter.

"All I'm concerned about is that he is in custody. That's a relief," Undersheriff Jim Kennon of Glenn County said. Neither Kennon nor other au-

Earlier Thursday, Kay Skillin, 34, her son, Wesley, 13, and her daughter, Debbie, 12, all of the Butte County farming community of Dayton, walked into a forest ranger station in Wilbur Springs, 55 miles northwest of Sacramento.

They told authorities they were chained to a tree Wednesday about a mile from the station. They said they worked their way free and walked to the station at daylight Thursday. Their captor had left plenty of food and water for them, they said, but they didn't know whether he planned to return.

Ambassador Recalled

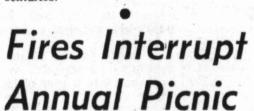

WASHINGTON (AP) - William B. Macomber Jr., the U.S. ambassador to Turkey, has been recalled for consultation, the State Department

The move was regarded by diplomatic observers as manifestation of Washington's anger over Turkey's decision to lift its ban on opium poppy

However, the State Department, through press officer Paul Hare, declined to go beyond confirming an Ankara news dispatch that Macomber was

On Tuesday John King, another press officer, had told newsmen the administration considered the Turkish decision a breach of a 1971 agreement between the two countries under which Turkey stopped the growing of opium poppy. The United States claimed at the time of the 1971 agreement that most heroin reaching U.S. addicts was of Turkish origin.

In lifting the ban, the government of Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit fulfilled pre-election promises. It claimed the ban was extremely unpopular among Turkish farmers who have been growing the poppy both for legal and illegal use for centuries.

There were no Army personnel at the Compton armory where, ironically, a silent alarm system is currently being installed - from Wednesday morning until Thursday night, when the theft was discovered, officials said.

Prosecution Rests In Plumbers Trial

Sheriff Joel McDermott of

WASHINGTON (AP) - The namely that he was not inprosecution rested its case today in the Plumbers trial in which John D. Ehrlichman and three others are accused of plotting the 1971 break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist

CIVIL RIGHTS Ehrlichman and the other defendants are accused of violating the civil rights of the psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis J. Fielding of Beverly Hills, Calif. Ehrlichman also is charged with lying to a grand jury and to the FBI. Ehrlichman was expected to take the stand in his own defense later. Earlier today, the White House asked that a defense subpoena for the testimony of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger be quashed.

To support the request for quashing the subpoena, Kissinger presented a statement to U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell saying he had no infor-mation about the guilt or innocence of the defendants.

PENTAGON PAPERS There has been testimony in the trial that Kissinger was among those who wanted derogatory information about Ellsberg made public after the former Pentagon analyst made public the Pentagon papers study of the Vietnam war. In court today, Gesell called a Monday hearing on the Kissinger subpoena issue where defense lawyers would be compelled to disclose what they expect Kissinger to tell the jury. Kissinger is on a European trip to inform North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies about President Nixon's trip to Moscow. In Rome today, Kissinger declined to reply to Charles W. Colson's claim that Kissinger had advised the former White House special counsel to disseminate derogatory information about Ellsberg. IMPOSSIBLE?

"I stand by what I said in Salzburg," Kissinger told newsmen. At a news conference in the Austrian city last month, he said his principal problem in responding to Watergate charges was that it is virtually impossible to prove a negative,, volved. Ehrlichman's attorneys also had initially planned to subpoena White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr. to appear as a witness.

However, defense attorneys indicated today that Haig's appearance would not be required. Nonetheless, the White House asked that a subpoena for Haig's appearance be quashed.

Two other defendants, Miamians Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio R. Martinez, also are to testify in their own behalf. WILL NOT TALK

Sept. 3, 1971.

The fourth defendant, G. Gordon Liddy, has refused to testify before grand juries and a congressional committee, and is expected to remain silent in the break-in trial.

The raid against Fielding's office was devised by the White House plumbers, a special investigative unit created to close news leaks. Their first mission was to investigate publication of the Pentagon Papers study of the Vietnam war, leaked to the press by Ellsberg. Now that President Nixon has returned from Moscow, he is to be asked a series of questions in Ehrlichman's defense. The written questions and answers are to be admitted into evidence.

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon's doctor says Nixon was warned that a blood clot in his left leg might kill him during his Middle East trip if it broke loose and hit his heart or lung, but the President insisted on going ahead with travel plans. "The danger is now past," Dr. Walter R. Tkach said late Thursday. He explained that the clot has attached itself to the wall of a vein in the President's leg and no longer is likely to break loose. Tkach also disclosed that Nixon was given medication for a week during his overseas journey-something the White House had repeatedly denied. He would not name the

This particular instance, which some call the biggest swindle in history, has been labeled the Ponzi scheme in which the swindlers pay off early investors with money from more recent investors.

It seems that many people with money have invested into various oil producing ventures for tax purposes. This generally is done at the end of the year and tax breaks can be realized by

But according to the Journal, of the $130 million invested for oil drilling purposes, all but about $30 million went astray with the investors - and the U.S. taxpayer — being the losers.

Internal Revenue officials indicate that the U.S.

My Answer

I am 13 years old, and I'm having a disagreement with my father. For the last few years, I've wanted to have my ears pierced. My father insists that somewhere in the Bible it says you shouldn't have it done. He says you'd know - and I agreed to abide by whatever you say.

BILLY GRAHAM

The only Bible reference to the piercing of an ear I can think of is in Exodus 21. It discussed there the matter of any servant who elected to remain with the family of his master, rather than become free in the seventh year. The provision was that in such cases, the ear lobe was to be publicly bored or pierced with an awl in token of perpetual ser-

As you may know, the Bible is more concerned with the "inner ear," that is, the place of spiritual perception. Jesus said, "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear." (Mark 4:9.) But now, I would think it wise not to have your ears pierced. I know it's not that important, but since you girls can wear earrings without piercing the ear lobe, why bother? You might also want to check two other references - Isaiah 3:16-21 and 1 Peter 3:3-5. The first mentions the

Polarization

WASHINGTON - The essentiality to President Nixon's defense of the present partisan split within the House Judiciary Committee can be measured by the hard fact that presidential defense lawyer James St. Clair did not really make his case last week. ST. CLAIR, engaging and quickwitted, is a superb trial lawyer. But his two-day presentation of evidence was generally unconvincing. "I'd call it just so-so," one fence-sitting Republican member told us. He and others who really have not made up their minds on impeachment agreed that St. Clair failed to adequately refute accusations that President Nixon authorized hush - money payments to E. Howard Hunt.

But while St. Clair's substantive presentation fell flat, he and the President's staunchest allies on the committee did succeed last week in polarizing the committee along partisan lines as never before. The polarization will continue for the time IMPEACHMENT, then may boil down to this: will the genuine anger of Republicans against chairman Peter Rodino and his Democratic majority obscure their serious consideration of Mr. Nixon's guilt or innocence?

Just a small fraction of the 38 committee members are affected. Six or possibly seven of the committee's 17 Republicans are genuinely undecided, with the possibility that they might end up voting for impeachment. Whether they do or not might well determine the outcome on the House

CONSEQUENTLY, White House strategy for months has been to foment a partisan split within the committee. Mr. Nixon's aides were bitterly disappointed that Republicans backed Rodino's subpoenas for presidential tapes, and since then have pushed hard to mobilize those Republicans behind St. Clair's procedural demands.

The President's unwitting allies in this polarization have been House Democrats, including majority leader Thomas P. O'Neill, who have pressed the committee to vote impeachment by mid-July as scheduled. When it seemed two weeks ago that the committee might slip a month on that schedule, many Democrats - including some on the committee less deliberation and more speed. Under such pressure, Rodino has been abrupt in rejecting St. Claire's time-consuming requests.

BUT BEYOND haste, there is Democratic exasperation with St. Clair's double standard. Some senior Democratic Congressmen not on the committee have privately asked Rodino whether, in the interest of bipartisanship, he might not be more conciliatory toward St. Clair's requests. Rodino replied he could not be forthcoming when the President defied subpoenas but demanded strict rules of evidence followed in making his defense.

THUS, ST. CLAIR'S game plan: stonewalling tactics help produce the partisan split which in turn leads Republicans to overlook the stonewalling. One moderate Republican committee member who six weeks ago was willing to impeach Mr. Nixon for defiance of congressional subpoenas told us his rage has been diverted from the President toward Rodino. Similarly, presidential counselor Dean Burch's characterization of the judiciary committee as a "partisan lynch mob" got by without a serious flap.

Biking Philosopher

"Every night I get into my sleeping bag and play the flute," Miss Ellen Charnews, 23, Long Island, N.Y., told Bicycling from Anaheim, Calif., to Washington, D.C., with a group of 30, has been good for her despite a two-day stay in an El Paso hospital.

THE CHIEF DIFFERENCE has been the sleep at night, the beautiful dreams," Ellen said. Exercise is 'good for the conscious."

If you get good exercise, she said you don't need to drink or use "any artificial stimulants.

The Bike-A-Thon group came back for her after the doctor confirmed she was okay.

Later, Ellen stopped by a local hospital for treatment. When I met her Wednesday afternoon at Sand Springs, she was pedalling alone, trying to catch the group 65 miles

THE BIKE-A-THON was organized to obtain bike trails through legislation. Also, she said the group will collect donations for curing respiratory diseases. Exactly how this fund-raising function works she could not explain.

What motivated Ellen personally is a John Kennedy-like belief in the need for people to improve their physical fitness. She noted the Russians are a strong people.

The United States needs "a nationguidance." "My boy friend (Kumar, 28, is a fashion designer) is a guru, and whenever I get a little affectionate he slaps me," Ellen said.

Ellen wears a celibate ring of jade he gave her and Kung Fu shoes, but otherwise her attire is not unusual a Western blouse and white shorts.

"A lot of kids my age are bums," she said. OF REACTIONARY older generations, she said: "The basic theme I have is a critical person is a person should not criticize. "The stronger you are, the more you endure, the more compassion you have, and the more you can understand the underdog.'

"ALL I KNOW is that old strong farmers have good tempers." Her grandfather is a farmer. "He's 86 and strong as an ox."

After the bike journey, she ventured "a lot of the kids will have a stronger hold on their emotions."

Most of the group are in their teens waiting to enter college. Helen, whose parents live in Long Island, is a sophomore at Los Angeles Junior College planning to make a career in ballet and "something medical." They're going around doing nothing."

"Physical exercise stimulates your mind. The more you use your body, the better your mind is."

WHEN SHE JOGGED, Ellen used to "repeat honesty, like in a chant, until the meaning of honesty comes

SPICES, SHE said, are sexually stimulating, and some gurus won't eat

"As far as women's lib, I think a lot of women are forgetting how to act like women."

Ellen thinks a woman ought to massage her man when he comes home and feed him spicy food and maybe he'd do better at work.

Trilateral Approach

Marguis Childs

WASHINGTON - With America's certa relations with Western Europe and Japan suffering from neglect, it is good news that a voluntary agency (GATT). is hard at work developing agreed goals for these three vital power centers.

THE TRILATERAL Commission meeting in Brussels is putting out series of papers spelling out the grave problems raised by oil prices and inflation and proposing remedies that must be taken immediately to forestall a worldwide recession.

Prepared by distinguished specialists in trade and economics, they were ratified by leading citizens of Japan, North America and Western Europe. The list reading like a Who's Who in commerce and finance is indicative of the desire to come to grips with the menace of recession, if not depression, just around the

THE NATO agreement reached in Ottawa is well and good. It promises an end to the wrangling that bedeviled relations between Europe and the United States. The crescendo came when a French foreign minister of unhappy memory, Michel Jobert, sabotaged the Kissinger plan for a joint conference of oil-producing and oil-consuming nations. Japan, not being a member of the North Atlantic Alliance, felt increasingly shut out as first the oil embargo and then the quadrupling of oil prices hit hard. Japan imports up to 95 per cent of her petroleum from the Middle East with a reserve supply of scarcely more than seven weeks. One of the chief initiatives in creating the Trilateral Commission was to bring Japan into the mainstream of international cooperation.

THE COMMISSION papers cover a wide variety of subjects. The most significant perhaps is the study of the directions for world trade in the 1970s. The study concludes:

"A major reduction in industrial tariffs is needed, both to bring down obstacles to world trade and also to moderate the discriminatory effect of the emerging Western European freetrade area. Pending United States trade legislation would provide the basis to achieve deep reciprocal cuts in outstanding levels of tariffs."

THIS UNDERSCORES one of the baleful results of the widespread stalemate prevailing in Washington today. A trade bill is becalmed in the Sargasso Sea of Congress with the prospect that it may not be freed before the session ends. This would put off into an indefinite and un-revising the now outdated General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade

"The pervasive influence of the energy crisis on the entire fabric of national and international economic life will inevitably have political consequences and will require hard political decisions," the energy study states. "Hence the importance, for the governments and peoples of the Trilateral countries, of seeing the magnitude and scope of the problem. When they see it, we believe they will find no viable alternative to a common approach."

THE SAD truth is that the hard decisions are not being made in Washington. With the gasoline shortage taken as a temporary aberration, the American motorist is roaring ahead as though the crisis was merely a bad dream.

Chairman of the Trilateral Commission for North America is Gerard C. Smith, a Republican who served as chairman of policy planning in the State Department in the 1950s. He was also head of the U.S. delegation to the SALT I talks in Vienna and

AS PRESIDENT Nixon prepares for another SALT round in Moscow, it is pertinent to ask why Smith's encyclopaedic knowledge and his exceptional skill as a negotiator are not being used.

Smith was given shabby treatment at the conclusion of SALT I after his tireless efforts in the jungle of nuclear weaponry to find a way for the two superpowers to agree on slowing the arms race. Whatever bitterness and frustration he may have felt, he kept to himself. Instead he put his energy and much of his time into this constructive attempt to build badly needed bridges.

At Michigan University, where the marching band made the switch 17 vears ago, Director George Cavender likes the lighter weight of the new instruments since moving with onfield formations is as critical as the Lynn Caine has just had her first book published. The woman with big hazel eyes reviews have been laudatory. She has been interviewed, acclaimed, lionized and partied.

"But the one person I want to share it all with isn't here," she says.

NEW YORK (AP) -

The book is called "Widow," which is what its author has been since her husband, Martin, died of cancer three years ago.

"After he died, I wanted to die," she says of those years filled with "nights of waking up at 4 a.m. in terror," financial panic, "crazy" acts and "stupid" decisions.

The realization that one out of every six women in this country over age 21 is a widow and the hope that her experiences would help others motivated the book, she explains.

SEASONS OF GRIEF "There are seasons of grief," she says. "If you loved your husband you're going to be mourning him the rest of your life. But it softens the grief to know there is a pattern, and you'll not always feel so helpless and trapped."

The book is based on a sort of diary she wrote during those sleepless nights, pouring out her anger at a husband who had "abandoned" her, children whose very existence she resented, and a society in which she lost her identity when she became a widow.

"So much of what I was, was contingent on being married to Martin," she points out. "People think of a widow as a poor, bereft, forlorn, frail, helpless creature, a pitiable being. Emotionally it may be as hard when a man loses his wife but socially and and short dark hair, admits she was lucky to have had a job and wise to have continued working during the difficult 14 months of her husband's terminal illness. JOB WAS LIFELINE

"My job was my lifeline and I'm convinced it saved my sanity," she said in her office at a publishing firm, where she is publicity manager. "You must participate in the wor'd as soon as you can. Find stimulating interests or work to get you out of yourself. "And exercise. Healthy fatigue is good," advises the 5 foot 1, 105 pound advocate of yoga. "Don't depend on tranquilizers, because you'll have to face your grief eventually. If you can't deal with your depression get professional help."

Most important of all, plan ahead from the first day of marriage, warns Mrs. Caine, whose husband had a World War II injury and couldn't get life insurance. She suggests an annual contingency day to discuss wills, investments and the family's financial situation.

"The problem begins and ends with our attitude toward death," she says. "We won't face the fact that we're going to die. It's an act of love for a husband to discuss finances with his

BIG MISTAKE

She acknowledges that her biggest mistake was to have bought a house in New Jersey at the urging of her husband's best iriend. "What woman in her right mind would move to the suburbs when she can't even drive? I began to feel better when I decided a year later to move back to Manhattan where I belonged."

Moving is the step widows most often take, she notes, and she strongly advises against making any immediate decisions after the death of a husband "when you have no perspective, no judgment, your emotions and intellect are at odds."

What else would she have done differently? "I wish we both could have cried together, expressed more anger," she says. "Martin was a very strong personality; he was dignified and had to die the way he lived. He tried to spare me but it would have been better if I had been able to release my emotions. It would have been better for the kids if I had been able to give up my brave act and tell them I was scared to death."

The kids are son Jon, 12, and daughter Buffy, 8. And their mother is determined that Jon must not feel the burden of being "the man of the family." She would consider marrying again only if she found a man "in touch with his emotions."

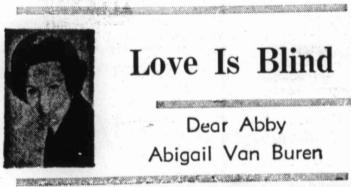

"The greatest gift is a happy marriage or a happy relationship," she declares. "It's nice to share, but I'm no longer afraid of being alone. I have my children, my friends and a wide variety of interests. The women's movement has touched us all and I can go anywhere I want. I don't feel my future or my happiness is contingent on

Love Is Blind

Dear Abby Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Regarding that "Double Ugly" guy who says ugliness is a curse because no one wants to associate with physically ugly people. You said, "Ugliness — like beauty, lies in the eye of the beholder. The qualities that make one loved and wanted have nothing to do with the way one's face is formed. Honesty, patience, kindness, generosity - all the virtues - can be developed. A beautiful character counts for more with people who count than physical beauty." Abby, you missed the point. This ugly person should seek out the blind for friends. He should volunteer to help in a school for the blind, or get a job

They say if a deaf lion roars in the desert, there is no sound. Nothing looks ugly to those who cannot see, so forget all that rot about developing honesty, kindness and a beautiful character, and give the poor guy some practical advice. He might find what he's looking for in the world of the sightless.

PRAGMATIST Dear Prag: Who says: a deaf lion roars in the desert, there is no sound?" Just because the lion can't hear the sound he makes, doesn't mean it's nonexistent. To suggest that physically ugly people should seek out the blind in order to be loved is an insult to the sightless. Although they are unable to see physical ugliness, they're better able to "see" those qualities which are far more intrinsic to a person's real worth than physical beauty.

So if a physically ugly person has an ugly character, he should stay way from the blind - for they may "see" him better than those with 20-20 vision.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to Double Ugly: I have never met an ugly person I didn't like. They have personality

When I was a young girl, I learned the little fellows with the big freckles and the stringy red hair that hung in their yellow-green eyes were the ones to ask a favor of. The handsome guys were too busy thinking about themselves.

Mr. Ugly, I like you already, for you have shown a lot of character and humility by asking for help with your problem. That is beauty right there! So you see, you aren't as ugly as you thought you were.
ONE WHO KNOWS

DEAR ABBY: When I first saw this nurse, I said to myself: "That has got to be the ugliest woman I've ever seen!" She was shaped like a pear, had a pockmarked complexion, an enormous nose and buck glasses. But an hour later, after watching her work with disturbed children, and observing her gentle, patient, kind, loving personality, I completely forgot about her looks.

teeth, and she wore thick

Everyone who knew her adored her. She had the disposition of an angel and a way of bringing out the best in people. If I had to name the most beautiful woman I've ever met, I would have to say that nurse wins, hands down.

For quite a few years members of the Garden City Cumberland Presbyterian Church and the Garden City United Methodist Church have been worshipping together on alternate Sundays. On the fifth Sunday of each month they are joined by their Baptist brothers and sisters in worship.

This summer all churches will get together in a joint revival that will be held in July, the 8th thru the 14th. The United Methodist Sanctuary will be the host church with all services held in the evening from 8 to 9 p.m.

Planning for this joint venture was by the regular assigned pastors, Rev. Short of the Cumberland Presbyterians, the Hedges; Bring 'Em In Rev. McPherson of the Baptist Church and the Rev. of the First Church of God here was pointing out how this church associated with the head church at Andersonville, is quite different from Churches of God headed in Cleveland.

This church stresses unity in the spirit and also has some interesting beliefs on members. It is quite different from some churches with similar names.

The Rev. Beasly invites those interested to visit them at 2009 Main.

You don't have to be a scientist to realize that se tons of rock are held in check by perfect balance. You wouldn't want to be sitting nearby if they

This kind of balance results in inertia. There is another state of being that results in sound initiative and worthwhile action.

You've heard men speak of a balanced background, a balanced education, a balanced life. They're usually referring to the fact that no important element has been ignored or neglected.

Religious sincerity is one necessity for this kind of balance. It cannot take the place of any of the other essentials. Nor can anything else take its place. The Church is constantly helping us gain—and keep—our balance!
