PRESENTATION MADE BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

Impeachment Of President Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special Counsel John Doar today recommended that the House Judiciary Committee approve a bill of impeachment against President Nixon, a member of the committee reported.

Any recommendation by the committee will go to the full House, which would decide whether to impeach Nixon.

If a majority of the House votes for impeachment, the charges would then go to trial in the Senate, with a two-thirds vote needed for conviction and removal from office.

Rep. Wiley Mayne, R-Iowa, said on leaving the closed door meeting, that Doar referred specifically to an obstruction of justice charge in connection with his recommendation for impeachment.

OBSTRUCTION
Mayne's report, which came early in the session, was only fragmentary.

He said Doar was making a general discussion of the evidence gathered by the impeachment inquiry staff and the direction in which it pointed.

Besides an obstruction of justice charge based on Watergate, Doar is expected to propose articles charging Nixon with abuse of constitutional powers and contempt of Congress.

Doar and other members of the committee staff began presenting the case for impeachment during a closed-door briefing leading up to the committee's final deliberations next week.

A Republican member of the committee predicted on Thursday that both the committee and the House will approve at least one article, leading to a Senate trial to determine whether Nixon should be removed from office.

Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill.,

told newsmen that three or four committee Republicans are likely to vote for impeachment and that it could be much higher. He said only five of 17 Republican members could be counted as definitely opposed to impeachment at this time.

UNDECIDED

At a meeting called by the House Republican leadership to determine where the committee Republicans stand, McClory was one of five members who either said they were undecided or declined to give their views.

In related developments on Thursday, the committee released evidence collected during its six-month-long impeachment inquiry. Among the disclosures were:

—Former presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman says President Nixon "indicated his after-the-fact approval" of the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Nixon has maintained publicly that he abhorred the incident.

—Memos by late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover on three occasions cited Henry A. Kissinger as directly authorizing wiretaps on government officials and newsmen. Kissinger has denied making such requests and has asked the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to clear him of any such involvement.

Makarios Slated To Appear Before 15-Nation Council

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States today demanded a Security Council hearing for a representative of the military regime that overthrew Archbishop Makarios as president of Cyprus.

Makarios himself was due to appear before the 15-nation council later in the day.

In Ankara, informed sources said 35 ships had sailed from a Turkish port about 45 miles from Cyprus for an unknown destination. Most of the flotilla was reported to be troop-carrying landing craft.

ESCAPED
Council President Javier Perez de Cuellar of Peru said Makarios would speak as the "president of Cyprus." And it was apparent that the Soviet Union and most of the other 14 members of the council were not going to accord legitimacy to anyone from the Greek-led forces that deposed Makarios.

However, Perez said the new government's man might be heard under a council rule allowing the appearance of "persons whom it considers competent . . . to supply it with information." He called a morning council session to discuss the Nicosia request.

Makarios, who escaped from Cyprus on Tuesday as the island was taken over by its 11,000-man national guard and the 650 guard officers from the Greek army, arrived in New York from London on Thursday. He told newsmen he wants the council to condemn the takeover and demand that the ruling military junta in Athens withdraw the guards Greek officers. The archbishop apparently believed the rebellion then would collapse.

NO CHARGE
A draft resolution circulating

among council members demanded withdrawal of "foreign military personnel now serving in the national guard" of Cyprus. The Greek government tried to head this off with a promise to the council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Brussels that it would start "replacing" the officers with a new group of Greeks in a few days. But observers assumed that this would make no change in the situation.

Diplomats said the Soviet Union was insisting on condemning Greece, while the United States was opposed to naming its NATO ally on whose territory it has bases it considers vital. The sources said Britain also wanted any council resolution to recognize Makarios as the legitimate president of Cyprus.

United States In Recession

WASHINGTON (AP)—The cost of living rose one per cent in June as sharply higher prices for a wide range of consumer goods and services kept inflation soaring, the government reported today.

The Labor Department's figures underscored the bleak economic news Thursday from the Commerce Department which reported the economy underlined one of its most severe declines since World War II in the first half of the year.

The nation's output of goods and services—the Gross National Product—dropped between April and June for the second successive quarter of declines, the Commerce Department said. Some economists believe that two consecutive quarterly declines should be considered a recession. Other economists feel other factors must be considered.

FOOD PRICES

The June rise in the consumer price index, announced today, was led by higher prices for new and used cars, medical care, mortgage interest costs, household durables and fresh fruits.

Food prices rose a seasonally adjusted three tenths of one per cent, a rate slightly more than usual for June but a much more moderate pace than in any other month this year with the exception of April when food prices fell four tenths of one per cent.

The June increase in consumer prices works out to an annual rate of 12 per cent. For the three months ending in June the pace of inflation soared at an adjusted annual rate of 10.9 per cent, according to the government figures.

Consumer prices last month rose to a level 11.1 per cent higher than a year ago, with the government's index at 147.1. This meant it cost $147.10 to purchase a variety of consumer goods and services that cost $100 in 1967.

Nonfood items rose an adjusted 1.3 per cent, the sixth consecutive month of rapid rise. This was a reflection of sharply higher prices at wholesale which have continued to soar since price controls were dropped April 30.

UP SHARPLY
Also up sharply last month were service costs which rose one per cent, the same as in May.

As has been the case for most of the past year, the spurt of inflation took another bite out of the purchasing power of the average production worker.

Real spendable earnings, or take-home pay adjusted for taxes and inflation, fell by three tenths of one per cent last month to a level 4.5 per cent below a year ago. Over the past year, the government has reported real spendable earnings dropped every month with the exception of May, September and July.

Leading the surge in nonfood prices was the rising cost of new automobiles which went up in June instead of declining as usual. Also up were prices for household goods, gasoline, fuel oil and clothing.

For the second quarter of the year, the consumer price index rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 10.9 per cent.

Col. Owens In Command

Col. Robert G. Liotta relinquished command of the 7th Flying Training Wing to Col. Robert A. Owens in colorful ceremonies at Webb AFB Friday morning.

The change of command took place at a formal review on the flight line and in the presence of Gen. William McBride, commander of the Air Training Command.

Afterwards, Col. and Mrs. Owens, Col and Mrs. Liotta and Gen. McBride were honored at a reception at the officer's open mess.

Snappy Dresser

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Judith Cain found out it's not good enough to want to pay a traffic ticket. You have to be dressed for the occasion.

"I never dreamed they would kick me out of the courtroom, which they unceremoniously did," she said after a policeman whisked her from a Fort Worth corporation court.

At the time, she was wearing cutoffs, a T-shirt and was barefoot.

"But I had my toenails painted," she said. "But I had my toenails painted," she said. He went to the court to arrange payment on a traffic ticket but when she sat down in the courtroom an officer grabbed her arm and took her outside.

"He asked if I would go to church dressed this way, which I would. He got me in the hall and started giving it to me," she said.

She said her casual clothes "get me every where I go—the doctor's office, everywhere, I never wear shoes, either."

Mrs. Cain told the policeman to "go ahead and arrest me. It'll save us both a lot of trouble." She said he got mad and walked off.

She said she was given 15 minutes to go home and change clothes. But that wasn't enough time. She eventually got a lawyer, who is checking things out.

"I think they should state on the ticket the way they want you to dress in their court...instead of making you feel like an idiot," Mrs. Cain said.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A Pan American 747 jetliner with 92 persons aboard landed safely today after losing a big piece of its left wing as it was approaching Sydney airport.

The Boeing 747 has an overall wingspan of 196 feet.

A Pan Am spokesman said a piece 20 feet long and 3 feet wide of the left foreflap fell off about 12 miles before the plane touched down on a flight from Fiji.

The pilot, Capt. G.W. Jones, 53, of Las Vegas, Nev., managed to retain full control of the plane, the spokesman said.

Part of the wing section fell into the backyard of a house in the Sydney suburb of Roseville, but no one was hurt. Residents said they heard a loud crack as the plane passed overhead.

More Than 100 Persons Injured By Explosion

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — An explosion and fire ripped through a section of a large railroad yard today, injuring more than 100 persons and forcing the evacuation of a nine-square-mile area.

Hospitals reported treating 112 persons, including 15 who were admitted. Three victims were taken to a burn center in Springfield, about 70 miles away, officials said.

Officials said the explosion took place at 5:03 a.m. in a string of tank cars.

STILL BURNING

The fire spread and was still burning more than four hours later as firemen tried to keep the flames from spreading to more cars, including some which officials said contained dynamite and chemicals.

The cause of the explosion was not determined.

Police evacuated an area about three miles square on the east side of Decatur, a city of about 100,000 residents located about 200 miles south of Chicago. Several homes were reported damaged and a high school gymnasium under construction collapsed.

EARTHQUAKE?

The explosion flattened a building in the Norfolk and Western Railway yard complex that is used by railroad crews for overnight sleeping. It was not known how many persons were in the building at the time of the blast.

"I thought it was an earthquake," said Audrey Hudson, a secretary for the Decatur Fire Department, who lives about a mile and a half from the scene. "It practically knocked me out of bed."

A spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board said the blast occurred as a switching operation was under way. He said, however, he did not know what triggered the explosion.

Comedian Weds Mother Of Seven

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Tom Smothers has married his high school sweetheart, now the mother of seven, a spokesman says.

The bride is Rochelle Robley of Genoa, Nev. The ceremony was performed on Wednesday night in the Little White Church in Las Vegas.

Both are 36.

Smothers' publicist said on Thursday that the couple met in high school in Tujunga, Calif.

The first marriages of both ended in divorce. Smothers has a son.

The World At-A-Glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Newly published testimony by H. R. Haldeman conflicts with sworn statements by John B. Connally about donations by milk producers to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign. The former White House chief of staff told a closed session of the Senate Watergate committee last Jan. 31 that Connally once complained to him that no arrangements were made to receive dairy-industry contributions. But Connally has testified that he didn't discuss milk-producer contributions with anyone and that he had nothing to do with their political donations.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Emergency gasoline rationing coupons printed during the recent energy crisis are being stored in secret warehouses in case of future shortages, the Federal Energy Administration said. The 4.8 billion coupons, which cost $12.5 million to print, have been a source of embarrassment for the FEA since Rep. Bill Gunter, D-Fla., disclosed in May that they could be used to trigger dollar bill-changing machines. The coupons bear an image of George Washington identical to that on the dollar bill.

ATHENS, Ill. (AP) — Dr. Tolbert Hill has treated his last patient and let his medical license expire. He's 100. He'll try to end his practice in 1955, the year his wife died. But since no other doctor practices in Athens, a central Illinois community of 1,000, he continued to see some patients until earlier this year.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford says he changed his mind about listening to White House Watergate tapes and after hearing them still thinks President Nixon is innocent of anything impeachable. Since he took the nation's No. 2 office last December, Ford has insisted it would be inappropriate for him as a potential presidential successor to become involved by listening to the tapes.

Astronaut Reveals His Retirement

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Alan B. Shepard, the first American in space, announced his retirement today from both the space agency and from the Navy.

Shepard, 50, is ending on Aug. 1 a Navy, aviation and space career that included active World War II and a walk on the moon.

Shepard, one of America's first seven astronauts, was in the tiny cockpit of a Mercury spaceship on May 5, 1961 as it shot into suborbital space to begin America's manned space program.

He was grounded two years later with an inner ear disorder that kept him from flying for years. He overcame the problem with surgery and medication to become commander of Apollo 14, the third mission to land on the moon.

Shepard served as chief of the astronaut office during the years he was grounded and after his Apollo 14 mission.

Shepard, a rear admiral, has a number of business interests that have made him perhaps the wealthiest of the astronauts.

He will join the Marathon Construction Co. as a partner and chairman upon retirement. Marathon is a subsidiary of Coogan and Walters of Houston, a real estate developing organization.

Dr. James Fletcher, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, praised Shepard's dedication and determination.

Charged With $2,600 Shakedown Of Trainees

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A training instructor absent without leave from Lackland Air Force Base was charged Thursday in connection with a $2,600 shakedown of 36 Lackland trainees. The man surrendered after a predawn chase.

Sgt. William E. DeWeese, 23, of Riverside, Calif., was held in lieu of $100,000 bond set by U.S. Magistrate Frank Baskin.

He specifically was charged with stealing personal property on a government reservation in excess of $100 from one of the trainees.

DeWeese appeared in federal court about noon Thursday dressed in green fatigues. He had a cast on his left foot which he said he injured during the high-speed chase in nearby Schertz, Tex.

Officers from 12 law enforcement agencies converged on DeWeese in a brushy field and he surrendered after about five hours. One policeman said DeWeese threatened suicide.

He was trapped after he fled on foot when his car crashed into a parked car at the residence of Al Cox, 50, of Schertz. Cox's backyard patio was also damaged.

On May 31, a man posing as a security police lieutenant roused the Lackland trainees from their bunks, ordered them into a nearby room and systematically looted their possessions.

THE RED ROSE — The fidelity of an anonymous friend (it turned out to be Nat Shick) in sending a red rose from the "unknown friend" every Sunday attracted a nationwide attention. The custom was started with a dozen red roses on Dr. O'Brien's first anniversary here, and every Sunday thereafter there was a red rose across his Bible at the church — or wherever he happened to be. The rose followed him as far as the Holy Land, never missing a Sunday until he resigned in September 1961. He was conscripted to preach the last sermon at the old church at Sixth and Main Dec. 5, 1965, and then to give the dedication prayer at the new church on Mercy Drive the following Sunday.

Nixon Considered Lie Tests For Bureaucrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nothing in more than 2,000 pages of domestic surveillance evidence gathered by the House Judiciary Committee shows clearly that President Nixon approved specific illegal acts by his assistants.

But the record shows that the President set no limit on what his aides should do to halt newspaper stories about sensitive U.S. diplomatic plans.

Nixon reserved some of his worst language for describing career government bureaucrats who talked freely with reporters about U.S. foreign policy.

NEWS LEAKS — He distrusted them so much that he seriously considered ordering lie detector tests for more than 1,000 State Department, Pentagon and Central Intelligence Agency employees, not because he thought they were all responsible for news leaks, but, in the President's words, so he could "immediately" say: "are the bastards."

"Listen. I don't know anything about polygraphs and I don't know how accurate they are but I know they'll scare hell out of people," Nixon said, according to a presidential transcript released for the first time on Thursday.

Nixon feared the leaks would jeopardize the strategic arms limitation talks. He thought Daniel Ellsberg likely had more than the Pentagon papers Vietnam War study to make public.

He did not believe that making his foreign policy public before it was fully carried out was necessary to the democracy.

DISCLOSURES — Former White House special Counsel Charles W. Colson quoted Nixon as saying in late June 1971, "I don't give a damn how it is done, do whatever has to be done to stop these leaks and prevent further unauthorized disclosures; I don't want to be told why it can't be done."

As a result, wiretaps were placed on the telephones of newsmen and National Security Council staff members. The late FBI director, J. Edgar Hoover, not known for open and friendly relations with reporters, objected and wouldn't even allow the files about the taps against suspected news leakers to be kept in FBI files.

The wiretap files eventually ended up in the White House.

Flag Format On Next Show

The next exhibit by the Heritage Museum will be tied to flags which have flown over this area.

The exact format is being shaped, said Daryl Hohertz, president. Mike Paul is chairman of the autumn exhibit committee.

The present exhibit, "Shine on Big Spring," a play on the historical theme set by Shine Phillips' book, "Big Spring," has so far drawn 2,779 visitors. Included are those from 26 states as well as from 49 other Texas cities. For 1974, the cumulative attendance has been 4,383, according to the report from Gerri Atwell, curator.

The museum is seeking an assistant to the curator, said Hohertz. The position is a part-time one.

During the last quarter, the membership report reflected 42 new members.

Hohertz urged the board to develop creative ideas for growth of the museum and of its sphere of service. He cited as an example the slide show which has been presented as a program for numerous clubs. Another idea advanced is that of assembling a history and publishing it. Still another was enlarging physical facilities.

Truckers Dodge Felony Charges

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — William Ronald Devitt, 30, and Jesse Gottfred Adams, 23, both of Chicago, pleaded guilty Thursday to misdemeanor federal charges of assisting Mexicans who had entered the United States illegally.

In return, the government dropped felony charges against them for illegally transporting 52 Mexican migrant workers in a refrigerated trailer truck from El Paso, Tex., to near Benton, Ark.

Devitt, the driver, pleaded guilty to four counts of assisting four of the 52 Mexicans. Adams, who is Devitt's half brother, pleaded guilty to two counts of assisting two of the Mexicans.

The two men, who were jailed because they have been unable to post bond, face a maximum of three months in prison and a $250 fine on each count.

The original felony charges against them carried a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $2,000 fine.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Kenneth F. Stoll said the government decided to let Devitt and Adams plead guilty to misdemeanors rather than trying them on felony charges because the two did not appear to be "hooked up with a ring" formed to transport aliens.

Stoll said the two were in El Paso with an empty truck looking for a load to haul when a proposition to deliver the Mexicans to Chicago was made to them by someone at a truck stop who didn't have papers from the Interstate Commerce Commission and state Transportation Commission to haul a legitimate load.

Crucial Vote Not Counted Twice, Says Cox's Answer

Crucial Ballot No. 701 was not included in the recount committee's tally of the results of the district clerk's race in the May 4 Democratic primary, and its addition does tie the results of the race.

Such is the crux of the answer filed by Mr. Fern Cox, district clerk, who is contesting the election in which Mrs. Peggy Crittenden apparently won by a single vote.

However, after the recount committee has tallied all votes (without changing the single-vote margin) Ballot No. 701 turned up on the stack of application forms for absentee ballots. It favored Cox and thus evened the totals, according to a trial court judgment.

In the appeal from the decision, Mrs. Crittenden's counsel argued that the ballot was included in the recount committee totals, and thus cannot be added to the committee's totals. Thus, Mrs. Crittenden would remain one vote ahead.

In answer, Cox's counsel, Jones and Milstead, contend that the stack of absentee vote application forms was on top of a filing cabinet in the clerk's office, whereas the recount took place in the basement, hence the two were physically separated. Since the ballot boxes were then locked and sealed, there was no way that Ballot No. 701 could have gotten out of the box into the stack of application forms, according to the answer.

This, according to Cox's answer, constitutes preponderant circumstantial proof that the ballot was not counted by the recount committee and hence was properly added by the trial court to the final totals, tying the vote.

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (AP) — Mobile homes are involved in more complaints for their number than houses or cars, says Mike Hanson, director of trade practices with British Columbia Consumer Services. Book About Ah, Er, Humm, Huhh, Well, You Know...

By JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — Rona Barrett, who for 5 1/2 years has kept Hollywood's fatuousness on the fire in her syndicated TV show, sat down the other day with her press agent, her husband and this observer to discuss literature.

The discussion, about her newly published autobiography, occurred at a modest restaurant. The middle-aged waitress who served the coffee peered at her, then gasped: "You're Rona Barrett, aren't you?"

I watch your show on TV all the time. I love it." It is sort of hard to ask her about her book because parts of it are luridly awfully with her fan club days, her fan magazine days and Hollywood inside staff of the early 1960s. I am not a courtier there. Another problem is that the thing also concerns ah, er, humm, uh, well, you know, fooling around. It even starts with the attempted seduction of her by an unnamed Hollywood superman, a married cad.

Miss Barrett, whose book also depicts her long drive to overcome a muscular disability and homeliness, was asked why she wrote it. Part of it, she said in a soft, low voice, was because she always gets letters from star-struck fans and it suddenly struck her they "have tremendous misconceptions about what it's like to be a success." Another reason, she said, was to inspire those who are as she once was — ugly, lonely and wandering about with a head full of dreams.

FRANCISCO FRANCO

General In Bad Shape

MADRID (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco, Spain's 81-year-old ailing chief of state, temporarily transferred power today to his designated successor, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon. Juan Carlos, 36, who will hold power until Franco's full recovery, was at Franco's hospital bedside. Premier Carlos Arias Navarro also went to the hospital as well as members of Franco's immediate family, sources said. A medical bulletin said earlier that Franco's condition had worsened because of gastric complications. But it added that "physiological constants are maintained within normal levels." Franco was hospitalized July 1 with a plebitis attack, an inflammation of the veins. President Nixon has also suffered from plebitis.

Cop Delivered Marijuana To Nurse While On Duty?

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A veteran San Benito police sergeant delivered marijuana to a nurse at Dolly Vansant Hospital while on duty as a police officer, a Cameron County deputy testified.

Deputy Donald Duncan testified at an examining trial for police Sgt. Ramon Davila, 38, charged with possession of marijuana. Duncan and Deputy Gaines Burns arrested Davila, who had been a police officer for 11 years, last week at a boat ramp in Rio Hondo. Duncan said they arrested Davila after he delivered 11 ounces of marijuana to Mrs. Helen West. Duncan said the nurse told him Davila had delivered small amounts of marijuana to her at the hospital on two occasions when Davila was on duty as a San Benito policeman. Officers testified that the marijuana delivered to Mrs. West at the boat ramp was in an envelope used by many police department's for evidence.

Not long after the testimony was given, Texas Ranger Bruce Casteel, Cameron County Sheriff Gus Krause and Deputy Harlan Brune went to the San Benito Police department to take an inventory of marijuana and other evidence in the evidence room.

Wild Fire Once Again Contained

JUNCTION, Tex. (AP) — A range fire which already had blackened 3,500 acres of ranchland has been brought under control after rekindling itself. The fire spread to a timber area after firefighters thought they had it contained earlier Thursday.

Late Thursday, a Kimble County Sheriff's office spokesman said the blaze was once again contained. The fire broke out Wednesday on the S.C. Nelson ranch and spread to two others Thursday. Fire departments from Sonora, Mason, Rocksprings, Ingram, and Mountain Home fought the fire.

$5.6 Million Damage Suit

EASTLAND, Tex. (AP) — Testimony was to continue today in the $5.6 million damage suit filed by developer Don Pierson against a former executive of his corporation, Dupont Caribbean Inc.

Pierson told the court Thursday that the defendant in the suit, Eastland banker Mike Collins, attempted to turn away investors and undermine a West Indies development project after Collins left the company in February 1972.

Pierson also indicated in his testimony that Collins had one million shares of stock in the company which Pierson claimed Collins should have returned when he resigned.

WASHINGTON NEWS STAFFERS Might Still Have Bad Case Of Telephone Ear

NEW YORK (AP) — News staffers at radio station WASH in Washington, D.C., may still have a bad case of telephone ear. But they have a good reason: four days of talks with two convicts holding terrified hostages at gunpoint.

When the talking started at 3:05 p.m. on July 11, WASH news director Bill McCloskey recalled, somewhat incredulously, he heard the convicts "negotiating back and forth on what their press policy would be."

The men, Franu Gorham Jr. and PiLert N. Jones, earlier had seized eight hostages at a cellblock in a federal courthouse in Washington. Through newsmen, the convicts demanded freedom in return for their captives' safe release. They freed one hostage Friday.

LUCKY SEVEN
The other seven escaped Sunday and the convicts were recaptured Monday night after a shootout with police in which no one was hit.

McCloskey said his station was the first to contact the convicts during the tense, potentially bloody ordeal. He said he looked in the phone book, found a number for the cellblock and zimpily called up.

Once he had the men on the phone, the station didn't relinquish the line unless the convicts or hostages requested it. WASH got off the line for good Sunday at the request of federal officers, he said.

The cellblock had three phones, he added, "and at one time we were talking simultaneously on all three to either hostages or convicts. Once we realized that, we hung up one of them because we never wanted to block the authorities' access to the cellblock by phone."

KEEP TALKING
He said WASH, when the convicts or hostages consented, taped interviews with them for its news broadcasts, but either offered the talks live for other newsmen who came to the station or replayed the taped conversations for them. After the 105-hour drama ended, Deputy Atty. Gen. Laurence Silberman said that to avert bloodshed "the main thrust of our strategy was to keep them (the convicts) talking and our main ally was the press."

McCloskey, who said WASH kept its five-member news staff working in shifts to keep its cellblock line open, noted that when the convicts asked the station to hang up "they always called us back."

SECOND THOUGHTS
He attributed this in large part to the telephone rapport Chris Lorenzo, a Washington newspaperman, had built up with the men during the early stages of their escape attempt. The authorities didn't interfere with the station's phone link, McCloskey observed, but he said he regretted getting off the phone Sunday at the request of federal officers. "We gave up the line, but it frankly troubled us later because we thought, 'Damn it, we're letting the government decide what we do journalistically,'" he said.

Opening lead: Five of ♥

This hand played a vital part in determining the winners of Italy's major team championship. It is only fitting that victory went to the player with the courage to back his judgment.

South needed no more than a sign of life from his partner to decide that there has to be reasonable play for four spades. Rather than reveal anything about his hand, he leaped straight to game.

At both tables of the match, West found the inspired lead of the five of hearts, and at each table East made the expert play of the jack, won by declarer's queen. At one table, declarer entered dummy with the king of clubs and successfully finessed the jack of spades. When the king did not fall under the ace, he eventually had to surrender a trump trick and two diamonds for down one.

The successful declarer did not immediately commit himself to a spade finesse. After winning the queen of hearts, he returned the nine, covered by the ten, king and ace. East shifted to the ten of diamonds, and the defenders took two tricks in that suit to complete their book. West then exited with a diamond. Declarer ruffed, and it seemed he was bound to meet the same fate as his opponent.

However, declarer was aware that four missing cards are more likely to divide 3-1 than 2-2. Thus, it was unlikely that one spade finesse would be enough—he needed to finesse twice. For that, however, he would need two entries to dummy where, apparently, there was only one.

To create a second entry to dummy, declarer led a club and, when West played low, he boldly finessed the ten. This was a brave play, for declarer knew he was taking an unusual line that might cost him the championship—and it was only just that it should succeed. It was now a simple matter to lead a trump to the jack, reenter dummy with the king of clubs and repeat the trump finesse, thereby making the contract.

She's Honest

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A Southern gentleman fell for a real estate woman and courted her in style. He took her to New York (separate rooms) and showed her a wonderful time. He even took her to a jewelry store, hoping she'd select some rings, but she selected a diamond wristwatch instead. All this time he didn't lay a hand on her because he wanted her to know that he was a true Southern gentleman with honorable intentions.

After the trip, the lady returned the diamond watch, saying she couldn't marry him because the "chemistry" wasn't right. Abby, that lady is out of her tree! Please send me the gentleman's address. I'm a female chemist who can MAKE the chemistry right. Sign me...

"MADAME CURIE IN A HURRY"
DEAR MADAME: The real estate lady may be out of her tree in YOUR book, but she has a fan in Paradise Valley, Ariz. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Hooray for that woman who returned the diamond wristwatch, telling the gentleman she couldn't marry him because the chemistry wasn't right. Assuming Diogenes isn't a male chauvinist pig, and therefore will settle for an honest woman — he can quit looking.

DEAR ABBY: I am a happy-go-lucky, 25-year-old guy who is still shook by something that happened to me last week.

I went to a newsstand where they sell magazines and paperback books. I got interested in a magazine and started to read it. I was standing there maybe 30 or 40 minutes, reading, when the lady who works there came up and said, "I think you've been here long enough. Either buy that magazine or put it back and leave."

Abby, I was so embarrassed I put the magazine back in the rack and left. A couple of people heard her, and I really felt cheap. Aren't those magazines put out for people to look at? I wasn't bothering anyone or making a disturbance. Did that lady have the right to tell me to leave?

RED FACE
DEAR RED: Yes, but she could have done it quietly and spared you the embarrassment. Leafing through to buy it is one thing — reading it is something else. Magazines that have been read by half a dozen people are fairly shopworn and not easy to sell.

Debi Horn Loses 73 Pounds And Husband

GIBRALTAR, Mich. (AP) — Debi Horn says that during the seven months she had her jaws wired shut she lost 73 pounds and her husband.

But, she says, she found herself during the ordeal of not eating in an effort to slim down from 229 pounds. "I'm a different person," said Mrs. Horn, 23, who had the wires taken out on her jaw this week even though she plans to lose another 20 pounds.

"I've had my hair cut, I'm starting to use makeup, I go to more trouble to take care of myself. But my marriage is a mess," Mrs. Horn said.

She said she and her husband, John, split up six weeks ago. She said she expects him to file for a divorce this week. Horn could not be reached for comment. "I've found someone else," Mrs. Horn added. She said her weight loss and development of a more positive outlook drove a wedge between herself and her husband.

Mrs. Horn, a 5-foot-7 brunette, now weighs 156 pounds.

They Asked For It

Few Americans relish the thought of other Americans undergoing the indignities which those now imprisoned in Mexico City jails claim they have experienced. But it also is most difficult to feel much sympathy for those jailed Americans who have admitted to charges of smuggling cocaine or other drugs en route from South America to the United States through Mexico.

In many instances those persons questioned by reporters have said they became involved in the drug trafficking because they were assured of making considerable money by acting as drug couriers.

One of those interviewed by Tom Wells, Associated Press writer is a 28-year-old Minneapolis school teacher, Alvin O. Oedermann. He told Wells he decided to make enough money to buy some land by smuggling cocaine from Columbia to the United States. His wife and 3-year-old daughter were traveling with him, and Mrs. Oedermann also was jailed.

The situation of the 106 Americans and other foreign prisoners began making the news last week with hunger strikes at Lecumberri Prison for men and Santa Marta Women's Prison. The hunger protest, they say, is not over prison conditions but to draw attention to the inmates' charges of being tortured, beaten and tricked into signing confessions.

Reporter Wells, filing his stories from Mexico City, said the jail cells in which the inmates are held "look like college dormitories, except for the bars across the doors."

This is a far cry from border jails where many prisoners have been holed up so some unscrupulous officials extract fines and bribes.

The Mexico City prisoners, however, have in many cases already been tried and found guilty of smuggling.

With the growing dope addiction problem in the United States, it's difficult to see any difference between the amateur and the professional dope smuggler. If the smugglers had gotten back to the United States with their cocaine or other drugs, they would have contributed to the problem; made it possible for more young Americans of tender years to run their lives.

Those guilty of dope smuggling were willing to dump the stuff on the market for their own profit without any concern for others. They have no right to expect any special concern on the part of the American people for the plight in which they now find themselves.

The Old Shell Game

It gets increasingly difficult to analyze and compare public budgets.

Part of this comes from shifting accounting procedures, and some from the whims of higher government agencies who contribute to funding. Everybody wants the same information broken down just a little differently.

But what the average citizen wants to know is how much will our income be, and where is it coming from; how much do we estimate our expenditures will be and for what purpose. And how does this compare with last year's figures?

But various agencies change forms almost constantly, the Texas Education Agency being a prime example. It's hard to get valid comparisons when you put the oranges in the lemon bin this year and in the apple box next year.

We don't care how they keep their books, but we do wish agencies would get some reasonably constant, understandable forms which answer the key questions simply, concisely — continuously.

According to the adage, even a blind pig will find an acorn once in a while, and so television has come up with something in its summer reruns.

NO USE TO JUST file away those programs, movies, specials, etc., and turn back to taxing the old brain and productive resources for some new creation. No sir; just pull 'em out of the can and run 'em by again.

So I figure it would be just professional jealousy to knock it. Why not join 'em when it comes to the news budget? Anyway, another old saw has it that history repeats itself.

IN THESE DAYS when the heavens seemed to be locked up to the point that ordinary drinking water already has lost 11.2 per cent of its wetness, why not haul out a story back in 1923 when flood waters inundated the railroad yards and filled every lake basin and depression in sight? And when things look bleak for poor cotton (if you stand real still and listen, you can hear it panting for water), why not resurrect some of those bumper crop stories from last year?

If businessmen get a little despondent, why not pull some of those roundups out of the file that show 10 and 20 per cent gains from booming Yuletide trade?

IF WE LAMENT the pinch on highway funds and rocketing costs that compound the felony, why not re-run a story when the interstate was being contracted and two of three other major road jobs were going?

Or, during this energy crisis and with oil prices higher than a tall dog, why not banner an occasional story we had announcing discoveries strikes in the Reinecke, Vealmoor, East Vealmoor, Luther, and Hobo fields?

OR, IF WE FRET about a housing shortage and the prices which back off all but the most courageous and affluent, why not repeat those year-end roundups on construction when new residences ran into the hundreds? Or, if we feel in need of a shot of morale, why not clip and replay those great old stories about major expansions at Cosden, the location of Cabot and Richardson and Grace plants?

OR, IF THINGS get entirely too dull, why not reproduce a torrid story or two on a wet-dry election?

Or better still, as my colleague, Walt Finley, so wisely suggests, why not build up a backlog of 32 columns to fill this space and then re-run them each year? Hmmm, wonder if anybody would notice?

Railsback Shadow

Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON — A shadow was cast on President Nixon's rising hopes for survival at a recent closed-door session of the House Judiciary Committee by Rep. Thomas Railsback, a 42-year-old downstate Illinois Republican who has become pivotal in the historic impeachment drama.

RAILSBACK REQUESTED the impeachment inquiry staff to determine whether Mr. Nixon's April 17, 1974, order to aides to convey secret grand jury information to his personal lawyer, Herbert Kalmbach, was actually carried out. Exactly what the committee staff reported back is unknown. Railsback, in private conversation with committee colleagues, has expressed shock over possible defilement of grand jury sanctity.

This indicates that Railsback has implicitly rejected the White House defense strategy of narrowly focusing the inquiry on whether it can be proved, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Mr. Nixon authorized hush-money payments. On the contrary, the fact that Railsback is independently probing the overlooked but potentially lethal grand jury issue indicates a possibility he may vote for impeachment.

IF SO, this is bad news for Mr. Nixon because of Railsback's unique position. Although moderate ideologically, he is closely aligned socially with the party's conservative mainstay as a member of the elite Chowder and Marching Society and as a daily communicant in the House gymnasium (no place for liberals). He is a close friend and admirer of Rep. Robert Michel, the Congressman from Peoria whose loyalty to Mr. Nixon knows no deviation.

WITH THIS background and by shielding his intentions, Railsback has become the committee's single most influential member. If he votes against impeachment, the White House hopes for 16 out of 17 Republicans — a near party-line vote that could carry over to the House floor. If Railsback votes for impeachment, however, he probably would be accompanied by another four Committee Republicans and would influence many other Republicans on the House floor.

When the impeachment inquiry was beginning last year, Railsback collaborated with Rep. Charles Wiggins of California — now Mr. Nixon's most effective defender — in decrying Democratic partisanship. He has since been sharply critical of Chairman Peter Rodino for limits placed on witnesses called by Nixon defense lawyer James St. Clair.

BUT HE HAS never bought the prevailing Republican thesis that only a criminal offense is sufficient to impeach a President. Rather, Railsback feels several noncriminal actions in both misusing government power and in Watergate obstruction of justice, constitute grounds for impeachment.

Railsback found something when he read a June 3 column in the Washington Post by Walter Pincus, executive editor of the New Republic. Three paragraphs in that column, suggesting Mr. Nixon violated the grand jury process, led Railsback to the edited White House transcripts.

IN A TELEPHONE conversation April 16, 1974, the President asked Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen what was happening inside the Watergate grand jury, promising not to pass on the information "because I know the rules of the Grand Jury." On the next morning, April 17, the President relayed to H. R. Haldeman what Petersen had told him and suggested Haldeman share it with John D. Ehrlichman.

MY ANSWER

Billy Graham

The other night I accepted an invitation for a show from a fellow of Japanese nationality. My father said it was against the Bible, and was furious. You tell me, Billy Graham, is it against God's will to go out with a different nationality than your own?

D.G.

In one of Paul's sermons (Acts 17), he said of God, "From one man, he made every nation of men, that they should inhabit the whole earth."

Paul says here that man is the offspring of God, of one blood, accountable to God and under His providential care. There is no reference in the Bible where God suggest that prejudicial attitudes are permitted, or that one race, nationality or people is inferior. God loves all peoples, and we say the ground is level at the foot of Christ's cross.

Your question suggests other considerations, however. One is that often dating leads to courtship and courtship to marriage. In other words, dating is not a frivolous activity, because it may lead to matters of serious importance. A parent is always right to urge reflection and caution in affairs of the heart.

The other consideration is that should dating lead to marriage, the couple needs to face possible adverse reactions from the larger family relationship. All I'm saying is that the love between the two must not be blind to repercussions from others such as you got from your father.

God's will is that you might come to know the full happy life of faith in Christ — living for His glory and in His service.

A Devotion For Today . . .

"So faith, hope, love abide, these three; but the greatest of these is love." (1 Corinthians 13:13)

PRAYER: Father, help us not to give love sparingly; for the more we give, the greater it becomes. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

"Come on, hit me... I dare ya."

Combating Inflation

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite some bad experiences with controls, the idea of voluntary wage and price restraints continues to be entertained in business and government circles as a way of combating inflation.

Apparently little support, however, exists for credit controls, even though it is in the borrowing area that the greatest strains currently are being made on the economic system.

In testimony this week before the House Ways and Means Committee, the man most influential in determining the nation's credit policy, Arthur F. Burns, suggested the reimposition of voluntary wage-price controls. Credit controls weren't discussed.

The irony of this is twofold.

First, many critics of economic policy feel that credit restraint by price alone, that is, by permitting interest rates to rise, has failed. As rates rose, demand failed to diminish.

Second, a law already in the books that would permit the Federal Reserve, of which Burns is chairman, to enforce credit controls or allocate loans by a system other than price.

Activation of the law would be automatic if the President were to determine it was "necessary or appropriate for the purpose of preventing or controlling inflation generated by extension of credit in excessive volume."

The authority is contained in Public Law 91-515, signed Dec. 23, 1969, permitting the President to regulate and control any or all extensions of credit.

In commenting on the situation, the brokerage house of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis claims that credit allocation via cost hasn't worked. The reason, it adds, is clear: "Interest rates have not reached a level whereby the borrower has incurred any real cost."

The payment by a corporation of 10 per cent a year on a bond issue might appear to be costly, the broker explains, but that's only if you overlook the fact that nearly one-half of that is written off by the 45 per cent corporate tax rate.

Drive That Fizzled

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — A ploy by businessmen, hungry for profits from U.S.-Soviet trade, to use pro-detente liberals as a battering ram against the Jackson amendment, is being foiled by the realities of American politics.

DEFEAT OF SEN. Henry M. Jackson's amendment, linking Soviet trade concessions to freer emigration by Russian Jews, is the underlying purpose of the businessmen joining liberal soft-liners in the newly formed American Committee on United States-Soviet relations. In the cause of saving detente, it was thought the committee might induce Jackson's potential presidential rivals, Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and Walter F. Mondale, to abandon the Jackson amendment.

But Kennedy and Mondale aren't buying. Indeed, one charter member of the committee is quitting over the Jackson amendment. The conclusion: the Jackson amendment's political force exerted by the American Jewish community can suffocate the strange bedfellows in the pro-detente lobby.

THE COMMITTEE was ostensibly thought up by Prof. Fred Warner Neal of Claremont (Calif.) men's college, a veteran soft-liner and cold war revisionist. In a May 21 letter to Prospective members, he lamented the absence of a pro-detente lobby "other than, possibly, something like the American-Soviet Friendship Society, which consists of a few tired old Communists and fellow travelers plus Cyrus Eaton, and has no influence at all or a negative influence."

NEAL COLLECTED mainstays of the Vietnam peace movement for his committee: Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith of Harvard, MIT president

Jerome B. Weisner, Los Angeles industrialist Harold Wilkens, former Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

But other members made the committee truly a collection of strange bedfellows. Washington attorney Charles W. Rynne is an old friend of President Nixon. Thomas Watson, Jr., of IBM contributed $25,000 to Mr. Nixon's reelection.

THE MOST IMPORTANT businessman on the committee is Donald M. Kendall, chairman of PepsiCo, Inc. — longtime Nixon intimate, front man and spear carrier. As chairman of Americans for the Presidency, Kendall is fighting hard against impeachment. Moreover, he represents those businessmen whose one-time ferocious anti-Communism has been diluted by the scent of profits.

ON APRIL 19 Kendall signed a contract to sell Pepsi-Cola to the Soviet Union and market Russian Vodka in the U.S. The $5 duty on a gallon of vodka would be reduced to $1.25 by the trade bill's provision granting the Soviets most favored nation status. Accordingly, a pecuniary interest is added to Kendall's undisputed Nixonian loyalty — one reason why Prof. Neal is regarded as a front for businessman Kendall.

That speculation was fueled by Neal's private June 28 memorandum to committee members that revealed his intended lobbying effort against the Jackson amendment. He disclosed: "Sen. Mondale has already indicated to me his disenchantment with support for the Jackson amendments. The committee's first meeting July 10 was described by one participant as 'an anti-Jackson rally.' But so far, the lobby has fizzled."

'Uptown Saturday Night'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What happens when black superstars band together to make a film? They are misunderstood, asserts comedian Bill Cosby.

The film is "Uptown Saturday Night," and it stars Sidney Poitier, Cosby, Harry Belafonte, Flip Wilson, Richard Pryor, Calvin Lockhart, Roscoe Lee Browne, Paula Kelly and others.

POITIER PUT the project together and directed it for First Artists, in which he is a partner with Barbara Streisand, Steve McQueen, Dustin Hoffman and Paul Newman.

"Uptown Saturday Night" opened to excellent business in New York and Chicago, but some of the reviews have been dismaying.

"As black film makers, we are subject to a condition in which things get pushed out of proportion," Cosby observed.

"In the first place, this is not a black film made by blacks for black audiences. We are Americans, and we made the picture to be seen and enjoyed by Americans."

Cosby was especially piqued by criticisms that "Uptown Saturday Night" repeated the old movie stereotype of eye-bugging by black comies.

"THE COLOR of the skin of a black man," said the comedian in a pedagogical manner, "gives more prominence to the whiteness of the eyes than does the pinkish tinge of the white man's skin."

"Watch George Segal or Jack Nicholson or Walter Matthau or Jack Lemmon when they are doing comedy and you will note that their eyes do indeed bug out. It is only natural in comedy to open your eyes wider."

Most of the reviews of "Uptown Saturday Night" in New York were favorable (11 pro, 1 con, 3 no opinion), but Cosby complained that "we as black Americans tend to be auditioning every time we make a movie."

"NOBODY TALKS about a 'white movie.' But whenever blacks do a film, the critics ask 'is it a black movie? Is it real?'"

"Well, I'll tell you what a real black movie would be: two hours of sorrow, poor people, roaches, being called names and no place to go."

"Uptown Saturday Night" tells about a fun-loving pair (Poitier and Cosby) who lose their money in a night club heist and encounter adventures in trying to recover the dough.

The film was designed as "sheer entertainment," Cosby insisted, "but because we are black, we are compared to Amos 'n' Andy, or anybody who made laughs in the 1940s."

Too High Is Too High

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like you to explain a blood pressure reading of 170-100, and would also like to know if the diastolic reading is too high. Also what causes the diastolic to rise so high? Is it emotional strain, exercise, etc.? Does a high diastolic reading bring on a stroke? — T. J. W.

The salient fact is that 170-100 is too high. The first figure, 170, is the systolic pressure — the level to which pressure in your arteries rises when the heart is pumping.

The second figure (diastolic pressure) is the pressure that persists between heart beats.

Both are important. You might compare it to some (certain) contrivance being fed by (run) which has repeated surges. The average current is too high, it will gradually wear out the apparatus, but the actual breakdown is more likely to occur during one of the surges.

As a practical matter, if you control the systolic pressure — the surges — you usually find the diastolic pressure falling into line too.

Asking the cause is a barbed question. Causes range through heart or kidney disease, hardening of the arteries, anxiety, nervous tension. But NOT exercise.

For fuller discussion of the problem, I refer you to my booklet, "Controlling Your Blood Pressure." Send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald. And please, sir, don't forget the stamp and zip code on the envelope!

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had a kidney-stone attack. The stone was too large to pass. The doctor said next time it starts down and gets stuck they will operate on the kidney to remove the stone.

"Everyone" we've talked to says there is medicine to dissolve the stones or break them up so they are small enough to pass. One was a nurse and another was a man whose father had taken the medicine.

Our doctor says there is no medicine to dissolve kidney stones. I'd sure like to find out before he resorts to an operation. — Mrs. J.M.

Such medications have been tried but my consultants in the field of kidney care tell me they are not being used now — they proved too irritating to tissues in the urinary tract.

NFL Players, Owners Resume Negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of the National Football League owners and striking players met again today amid bargaining table today and statements by both sides dripping with acrimony.

Federal mediator James Scarce called for resumption of negotiations Thursday in an effort to resolve the labor dispute and end the 19-day old strike.

During the past two days, harsh words were exchanged between the owners and the players over violation of an apparent agreement made with MIDLAND HOMER — Dan Drury, Midland Northern player who just hit a home run for his team, is welcomed home by a group of his teammates in third inning action last night. The shot gave Midland an 8-0 lead. They went on to win the District 3 Little League Championship 14-10 over Lamesa.

District LL Title 14-10 Midland Wins

The Midland Northern All-Stars came to Big Spring Thursday night with hot bats, coupled with hot pitching as they defeated the Lamesa All-Stars 14-10 to take the District 3 Little League Championship.

The Midland team got 11 hits from Lamesa including three home runs and their pitcher, Robert Smith struck out 13 batters to lead the way to the six hit win.

Midland jumped to a quick 3-0 lead after the first complete inning as the fence just seemed too short for the Midland power hitters and they popped the ball over the fence with regularity.

Midland scored four more in the second inning to take a 7-0 lead before Midland scored some runs in the top of the third. Midland matched those three runs in the bottom of the third and held a 10-3 lead after three.

In the fourth, Lamesa was held scoreless, but Midland added three more to increase their lead to 13-3 after four. Both teams added one run in the fifth, but in the sixth inning Lamesa finally found their scoring tower to score six runs, not enough for the win.

Bill Roberts was the losing pitcher for Lamesa.

Extra base hitters were Michael Feldt who hit a double for Midland, and Sam Driskill, Dan Drury, and Craig Bales who each hit a home run for the Midland team.

Midland will face the winner of District 4 here in the National League Park on July 29. The winner of that game will advance to the State Tournament in Waco in August.

Five Tied For BC Open Lead

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — "There's an awful lot of good players on the tour who have never won," observed Don Iverson, one of five men tied for first place going into today's second round in the B.C. Open Golf Tournament.

Iverson fits that description—a good player who has yet to win—and so do most of the rest of the leaders in this chase for a $30,000 first prize in the $150,000 tourney.

Of the first 10 men after Thursday's opening round on the 6,804 yard, par 71 En Jole Golf Club course, only one—Leo Elder—has won.

"I feel like my old game is coming back," Elder said after his opening 67 left him one stroke behind the five men tied for the top at 66—Iverson, Forrest Fezler, Mark Hayes, Jim Ferriell and Bruce Fleisher the runner-up in last week's Quad Cities Open.

Tied with Elder were Richard Crawford, Bob Payne, Andy North and Jim Masserio.

Most of the game's top names are skipping this tournament in upstate New York.

Hubert Green, the defending champion here and a three-time winner this year, is an exception. Green, No. 2 money-winner on the tour this year, had his difficulties, however. He struggled to a 40 on the back nine and was well off the pace at 74.

Iverson is in his sixth year on the tour. His greatest claim to fame has been a couple of filtrations with major championships—the 1973 PGA and this year's Masters. He was one shot out of the lead after the first round at Augusta, Ga. this spring, but faltered in the late going.

Chiefs Pick Up Houston Punter

The Chiefs announced the acquisition of Clark late Thursday and also said they have waived quarterback Micky Brokas of Tennessee Chattanooga.

Dave Jaynes of Kansas and Ken Pettiford of Tennessee State, who was cut earlier by the Houston Texans of the World Football League, are the only quarterbacks remaining in the Chiefs' training camp at Liberty, Mo. Jaynes was the club's third round draft choice.

The owners countered Thursday by holding a news conference during which they offered a total contract proposal, which John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council, called the "largest money package ever offered in sports."

Bill Curry, union president, then issued a statement in which he said the proposal "is not a serious response to our demands."

"We will be at the bargaining table tomorrow (Friday) morning and continue to look forward to a response to our proposals with respect to the players' freedom," he said.

The freedom issues, which include elimination of the option and reserve clause, have been the major stumbling bloc in the negotiations that began March 21.

Thompson said the owners' offer, which would run to Sept. 15, 1978, would be worth almost $12.5 million in preseason salaries, pensions, insurance and Pro Bowl pay.

Under the proposal, players choosing to play out their options will do so at full salary, compared to the present level of 90 per cent. It also calls for an additional sum per year equal to 10 per cent of a players' base salary to be paid during the preseason period in equal weekly installments beginning the day on which a club's veterans are scheduled to report. This is subject to a minimum increase of $3,000 for veterans and a maximum salary of $10,000.

Minimum salary of $16,000 including preseason for veterans and $14,000 for rookies is also offered.

No mention of the freedom demands were made. In a letter to Scarce, Thompson said, "to the extent the demands of the union are not incorporated in our proposed collective bargaining agreement, they are rejected."

Astros Slug Cards With 13 Hits, 8-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Houston Astros, Lee May, Milt May and Tommy Helms are hitting a collective .281 for the year, but against the St. Louis Cardinals it's .437.

Spraying salvos as usual in every direction, the three ganged up on the Cardinals again Thursday night in an 8-2 Astros National League victory.

Four Cardinal errors, including three by Ken Reitz, contributed to a Houston onslaught sending St. Louis down to its sixth successive loss.

Bats of the two Mays and Helms, who combined for eight hits, also were prominent in a 13-hit assault on four Cardinals pitchers.

Lee May's lustrous performance boosted his year's production to four home runs and nine runs batted in against the Cardinals on 15 hits for a .405 average in nine games.

Milt May has 11 hits in 24 times at bat for a .458 mark, and Helms, the Astros' scrappy second baseman, has 12 hits for .461.

"I can't buy a hit against the Pirates and Cubs," reflected Helms, who had two singles. "You just keep swinging and hope they fall, that's all you can do."

Houston, halting a loss string of its own at three games, snapped a 2-2 tie in the seventh as singles by Helms and winning pitcher Claude Osteen, 9-7, ignited a six-run burst.

A rash of St. Louis miscues followed, the first by Reitz loading the bases on Greg Gross' sacrifice and the second by Joe Torre yielding the winning run.

Cesar Cedeno singled home another run off losing pitcher Lynn McGlothen, 12-6. Lee May's double made it 8-2 and another Reitz error and Larry Milbourne's single accounted for two more.

The stylish Osteen went the distance and permitted only two of St. Louis' eight hits after Lou Brock's two-run single in the fifth.

"He's a scientific type pitcher," Milt May, observed. "He relies a lot on the movement of his fast ball. I think he makes the very most of the ability he has."

Southern Top Portland 16-8

MEMPHIS (AP) — The Memphis Southern hadn't planned on much of a passing attack Thursday night, but veteran quarterback John Huarte gave them one anyway in a 16-8 World Football League victory over the Portland Storm.

"The game plan didn't call for any more passes than last week, but the Portland defense just dictated pass," Huarte said.

So, Huarte, who completed seven of 13 a week ago against Detroit, hit 15 of 24 for 197 yards and the two touchdowns against Portland.

The victory, witnessed by a home crowd of 31,088 and a national television audience, gave Memphis a 2-0 record. Portland is winless in its two games.

Huarte, 31, a Heisman Trophy winner at Notre Dame, played only sparingly in 10 years with five National Football League teams before giving up football last season. He decided to give it another try with the Southern.

Was Thursday night's performance the best of his professional career?

"It was one of them," Huarte said.

Teresa Beal In All Star Game Saturday

Coahoma High School's Teresa Beal, all star girls basketball player, will play for Texas Saturday night as the Texas Girls Basketball All-Stars will play the Oklahoma Girls Basketball All-Stars in Plainview.

Miss Beal, who played for the North in last week's North-South All-Star game in Brownwood, is the only player from this area in that game.

At Coahoma High School, she led her team to the Regional Playoffs, averaging 27 points per game.

According to Coach Hershell Burleson, she has had several offers to play college basketball.

FUNERAL SATURDAY Dizzy's Body Flown Home

WIGGINS, Miss. (AP) — The body of baseball immortal "Dizzy" Dean lay in a funeral parlor today for old fans and friends who wanted to pay last respects.

Gov. Bill Waller declared a three-day mourning period for Mississippi. The funeral was set for 10 a.m. Saturday in First Baptist Church here.

Jay Hanna "Dizzy" Dean, 63, died in a Reno, Nev., hospital Wednesday after a heart attack and nearly everybody who knew him was unanimous about one thing—he lived a great life.

He was big league baseball's folk hero of the 1930s, then became a memorable sports commentator with a cotton-picking Arkansas twang and very casual grammar.

Through it all, he was a happy humorist who made both friends and money with no apparent effort.

"He enjoyed every minute of it," said his nephew, P. J. Dean of Springdale, Ark. "He never even had a Blue Monday."

P.J. is the son of Dizzy's brother Paul, who was known as Daffy back in the days when they were a premiere brother act for the old St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cards won the pennant in 1934, with "Dizzy" logging a 30-7 season. "Daffy" won 19. In the World Series, Ole Diz won two games, Daffy won two, and that was the championship.

Dean's coffin was flown to New Orleans, 80 miles to the southwest, and brought here by hearse. Even before the undertaker had the scene set, old fans were stopping by.

Despite his nickname, and the fact that his formal education ended at the third grade, Dean was a shrewd businessman.

"He was the smartest third grade graduate you ever saw," said Edward R. Taylor, a Wiggins Bank vice president who was one of Dean's best friends here.

"He didn't read much but he was very quick with figures. He always knew the score."

Unitas Not Sure Of His Chances

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "I'm just here, I don't know what the coach wants me to do," says a quarterback Johnny Unitas, entering his 19th—and last—year as a National Football League player.

Unitas is as unsure of his chances of playing this season as the rookies and free agents in the San Diego Chargers training camp here, although he has a no-cut $250,000-a-year contract.

The new Chargers coach, Tommy Prothro, is beginning a new system for the troubled team and says he's building for the future.

And Unitas, at 41, is not the future.

"I understand," he said. "If I were coach of this team I'd make the same decision. I couldn't understand why they bought my contract."

The Chargers paid the Baltimore Colts $150,000 for Unitas after the 1972 season and signed him to a two-year contract, reportedly at $250,000 a year. He sat out the second half last season with back and leg injuries. The Chargers finished 2-11-1, their worst season ever.

Despite the likelihood he will see little or no action on the field this season, Unitas reported to the training camp on schedule, becoming the only Charger veteran to cross the picket line outside U. S. International University. About 20 teammates were on the line with signs asking him not to cross.

"I have an obligation to be here, an obligation to the Chargers and an obligation to my family," he said in an interview.

"I don't oppose the players' union, though I'm not real clear about the freedoms they're demanding. They're striking for things that don't concern me. I can't look ahead seven years, this is my last season."

Unitas, the NFL's all-time leading passer, only works out at the afternoon practice. Mornings he watches the drills and talks with coaches and players.

"This team can accomplish a lot with a little more organization, a little more discipline and concentration," he said.

Suspended Manager Watches In Clubhouse

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — In the cloak-and-dagger league, the Texas Rangers graded out several hundred percentage points below the Central Intelligence Agency after bowing Manager Billy Martin's over Thursday night.

It was winning pitcher Ferguson Jenkins who freely told writers about clandestine operations in the dugout leading to a victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The fiery Martin was in the second day of a three-day suspension from American League President Lee MacPhail for ordering his pitcher to throw at a Milwaukee Brewers batter last Sunday.

A rule states that a manager under suspension should not be on the bench and not occupy a seat in the vicinity of the club's bench. If the rule is violated, the terms of the suspension or fine will be doubled.

The rule is vague about the clubhouse.

Writers were barred from the Rangers' clubhouse about 15 minutes after the game. When the doors swung open, acting manager Frank Lucchesi handed the questions.

Enter Jenkins, elated over an eight-hitter which gave him his 12th victory against nine losses.

Asked if Martin had any instructions for him, Jenkins said, "Billy asked me in the dugout (after the seventh inning) if I wanted to change catchers. I said no because we had the tempo of the game going in our favor."

It turned out to be a wise decision by Martin. Duke Sims, ordinarily just average defender, threw out Tommy Harper's peep the ninth inning trying to steal. Rico Petrocelli followed with a single which would have tied the score. Jenkins worked his way out of the jam for the victory.

"I talked to Billy in the dugout. . . . He was dressed casually in sun glasses and slacks," Jenkins said.

There is a runway under the stands leading from the Rangers clubhouse to the dugout on the first base side.

Martin was nowhere to be seen after the game.

Carl Yastrzemski was the only Sox hitter to rough up Jenkins, touching him for a homer in the second inning and

They Asked For It

Few Americans relish the thought of other Americans undergoing the indignities which those now imprisoned in Mexico City jails claim they have experienced. But it also is most difficult to feel much sympathy for those jailed Americans who have admitted to charges of smuggling cocaine or other drugs en route from South America to the United States through Mexico.

In many instances those persons questioned by reporters have said they became involved in the drug trafficking because they were assured of making considerable money by acting as drug couriers.

One of those interviewed by Tom Wells, Associated Press writer is a 25-year-old Minneapolis school teacher, Alvin O. Odermann. He told Wells he decided to make enough money to buy some land by smuggling cocaine from Columbia to the United States. His wife and 3-year-old daughter were traveling with him, and Mrs. Odermann also was jailed.

The situation of the 100 Americans and other foreign prisoners began making the news last week with hunger strikes at Lecumberri Prison for men and Santa Marta Women's Prison. The hunger protest, they say, is not over prison conditions but to draw attention to the inmates' charges of being tortured, beaten and tricked into signing confessions.

Reporter Wells, filing his stories from Mexico City, said the jail cells in which the inmates are held "look like college dormitories, except for the bars across the doors."

This is a far cry from border jails where many prisoners have been holed up so some unscrupulous officials extract fines and bribes.

The Mexico City prisoners, however, have in many cases already been tried and found guilty of smuggling.

With the growing dope addiction problem in the United States, it's difficult to see any difference between the amateur and the professional dope smuggler. If the smugglers had gotten back to the United States with their cocaine or other drugs, they would have contributed to the problem; made it possible for more young Americans of tender years to ruin their lives.

Those guilty of dope smuggling were willing to dump the stuff on the market for their own profit without any concern for others. They have no right to expect any special concern on the part of the American people for the plight in which they now find themselves.

The Old Shell Game

It gets increasingly difficult to analyze and compare public budgets.

Part of this comes from shifting accounting procedures, and some from the whims of higher government agencies who contribute to funding. Everybody wants the same information broken down just a little differently.

But what the average citizen wants to know is how much will our income be, and where is it coming from; how much do we estimate our expenditures will be and for what purpose. And how does this compare with last year's figures?

But various agencies change forms almost constantly, the Texas Education Agency being a prime example. It's hard to get valid comparisons when you put the oranges in the lemon bin this year and in the apple box next year.

We don't care how they keep their books, but we do wish agencies would get some reasonably constant, understandable forms which answer the key questions simply, concisely — continuously.

Season Of Reruns

Around The Rim

Joe Pickle

According to the adage, even a blind pig will find an acorn once in a while, and so television has come up with something in its summer reruns.

NO USE TO JUST file away those programs, movies, specials, etc., and turn back to taxing the old brain and productive resources for some new creation. No sir; just pull 'em out of the can and run 'em by again.

So I figure it would be just professional jealousy to knock it. Why professional jealousy to knock it? The news budget? Anyway, another old saw has it that history repeats itself.

IN THESE DAYS when the heavens seemed to be locked up to the point that ordinary drinking water already has lost 11.2 per cent of its wetness, why not haul out a story back in 1923 when flood waters inundated the railroad yards and filled every lake basin and depression in sight? And when things look bleak for poor cotton (if you stand real still and listen, you can hear it panting for water), why not resurrect some of those bumper crop stories from last year?

If businessmen get a little despondent, why not pull some of those roundups out of the file that show 10 and 20 per cent gains from booming Yuletide trade?

IF WE LAMENT the pinch on highway funds and rocketing costs that compound the felony, why not re-run a story when the interstate was being contracted and two of three other major road jobs were going?

Or, during this energy crisis and with oil prices higher than a tall dog, why not banner an occasional story we had announcing discoveries strikes in the Relnecke, Vealmoor, East Vealmoor, Luther, and Hobo fields?

OR, IF WE FRET about a housing shortage and the prices which back off all but the most courageous and affluent, why not repeat those year-end roundups on construction when new residences ran into the hundreds? Or, if we feel in need of a shot of morale, why not clip and replay those great old stories about major expansions at Cosden, the location of Cabot and Richardson and Grace plants?

OR, IF THINGS get entirely too dull, why not reproduce a torrid story or two to a wet-dry election?

Or better still, as my colleague, Walt Finley, so wisely suggests, why not build up a backlog of 52 columns to fill this space and then re-run them each year? Hmmm, wonder if anybody would notice?

Drive That Fizzled

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — A ploy by businessmen, hungry for profits from U.S.-Soviet trade, to use pro-detente liberals as a battering ram against the Jackson amendment, is being foiled by the realities of American politics.

DEFEAT OF SEN. Henry M. Jackson's amendment, linking Soviet trade concessions to freer emigration by Russian Jews, is the underlying purpose of the businessmen joining liberal soft-liners in the newly formed American Committee on United States-Soviet relations. In the cause of saving detente, it was thought the committee might induce Jackson's potential presidential rivals, Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and Walter F. Mondale, to abandon the Jackson amendment.

But Kennedy and Mondale aren't buying. Indeed, one charter member of the committee is quitting over the Jackson amendment. The conclusion: the Jackson amendment's political force exerted by the American Jewish community can suffocate the strange bedfellows in the pro-detente lobby.

THE COMMITTEE was ostensibly thought up by Prof. Fred Warner Neal of Claremont (Calif.) men's college, a veteran soft-liner and cold war revisionist. In a May 21 letter to prospective members, he lamented the absence of a pro-detente lobby "other than, possibly, something like the American-Soviet Friendship Society, which consists of a few tired old Communists and fellow travelers plus Cyrus Eaton, and has no influence at all or a negative influence."

NEAL COLLECTED mainstays of the Vietnam peace movement for his committee: Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith of Harvard, MIT president

Jerome B. Weisner, Los Angeles industrialist Harold Willens, former Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

But other members made the committee truly a collection of strange bedfellows. Washington attorney Charles W. Rhyne is an old friend of President Nixon. Thomas Watson, Jr., of IBM contributed $25,000 to Mr. Nixon's reelection.

THE MOST IMPORTANT businessman on the committee is Donald M. Kendall, chairman of PepsiCo, Inc. — longtime Nixon intimate, front man and spear carrier. As chairman of Americans for the Presidency, Kendall is fighting hard against impeachment. Moreover, he represents those businessmen whose one-time ferocious anti-Communism has been diluted by the scent of profits.

ON APRIL 19 Kendall signed a contract to sell Pepsi-Cola to the Soviet Union and market Russian vodka in the U.S. The $5 duty on a gallon of vodka would be reduced to $1.25 by the trade bill's provision granting the Soviets most favored nation status. Accordingly, a pecuniary interest is added to Kendall's undisputed Nixonian loyalty — one reason why Prof. Neal is regarded as a front for businessman Kendall.

That speculation was fueled by Neal's private June 28 memorandum to committee members that revealed his intended lobbying effort against the Jackson amendment. He disclosed: "Sen. Mondale has already indicated to me his disenchantment with support for the Jackson amendments. The committee's first meeting July 10 was described by one participant as 'an anti-Jackson rally.' But so far, the lobby has fizzled.

"Come on, hit me... I dare ya!"

Combating Inflation

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite some bad experiences with controls, the idea of voluntary wage and price restraints continues to be entertained in business and government circles as a way of combating inflation.

Apparently little support, however, exists for credit controls, even though it is in the borrowing area that the greatest strains currently are being met on the economic system.

In testimony this week before the House Ways and Means Committee, the man most influential in determining the nation's credit policy, Arthur F. Burns, suggested the reimposition of voluntary wage-price controls. Credit controls weren't discussed.

The irony of this is twofold. First, many critics of economic policy feel that credit restraint by price alone, that is, by permitting interest rates to rise, has failed. As rates rose, demand failed to diminish.

Second, a law already is on the books that would permit the Federal Reserve, of which Burns is chairman, to enforce credit controls or allocate loans by a system other than price.

Activation of the law would be automatic if the President were to determine it was "necessary or appropriate for the purpose of preventing or controlling inflation generated by extension of credit in excessive volume."

The authority is contained in Public Law 91-515, signed Dec. 23, 1969, permitting the President to regulate and control any or all extensions of credit.

In commenting on the situation, the brokerage house of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis claims that credit allocation via cost hasn't worked. The interest rates have not reached a level whereby the borrower has incurred any real cost.

The payment by a corporation of 10 per cent a year on a bond issue might appear to be costly, the broker explains, but that's only if you overlook the fact that nearly one-half of that is written off by the 48 per cent corporate tax rate.

'Uptown Saturday Night'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What happens when black superstars band together to make a film? They are misunderstood, asserts comedian Bill Cosby.

The film is "Uptown Saturday Night," and it stars Sidney Poitier, Cosby, Harry Belafonte, Flip Wilson, Richard Pryor, Calvin Lockhart, Roscoe Lee Browne, Paula Kelly and others.

POITIER PUT the project together and directed it for First Artists, in which he is a partner with Barbara Streisand, Steve McQueen, Dustin Hoffman and Paul Newman.

"Uptown Saturday Night" opened to excellent business in New York and Chicago, but some of the reviews have been dismaying.

"As black film makers, we are subject to a condition in which things get pushed out of proportion," Cosby observed.

"In the first place, this is not a black film made by blacks for black audiences. We are Americans, and we made the picture to be seen and enjoyed by Americans."

Cosby was especially piqued by criticisms that "Uptown Saturday Night" repeated the old movie stereotype of eye-bugging by black comers.

"THE COLOR of the skin of a black man," said the comedian in a pedagogical manner, "gives more prominence to the whiteness of the eyes than does the pinkish tinge of the white man's skin."

"Watch George Segal or Jack Nicholson or Walter Matthau or Jack Lemmon when they are doing comedy and you will note that their eyes do indeed bug out. It is only natural in comedy to open your eyes wider."

Most of the reviews of "Uptown Saturday Night" in New York were favorable (11 pro, 1 con, 3 no opinion), but Cosby complained that "we as black Americans tend to be auditioning every time we make a movie."

"NOBODY TALKS about a 'white movie.' But whenever blacks do a film, the critics ask 'Is it a black movie? Is it real?'"

"Well, I'll tell you what a real black movie would be: two hours of sorrow, poor people, roaches, being called names and no place to go."

"Uptown Saturday Night" tells about a fun-loving pair (Poitier and Cosby) who lose their money in a night club heist and encounter adventures in trying to recover the dough.

The film was designed as "sheer entertainment," Cosby insisted, "but because we are black, we are compared to Amos 'n' Andy, or anybody who made laughs in the 1940s."

Too High Is Too High

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like you to explain a blood pressure reading of 170-100, and would also like to know if the diastolic reading is too high. Also what causes the diastolic to rise so high? Is it emotional strain, exercise, etc.? Does a high diastolic reading bring on a stroke? — T. J. W.

The salient fact is that 170-100 is too high. The first figure, 170, is the systolic pressure — the level to which pressure in your arteries rises when the heart is pumping.

The second figure (diastolic pressure) is the pressure that persists between heart beats.

Both are certain. You might compare it to some "certain" contrivance being fed by "certain" which has repeated surges. The average current is too high, it will gradually wear out the apparatus, but the actual breakdown is more likely to occur during one of the surges.

As a practical matter, if you control the systolic pressure — the surges — you usually find the diastolic pressure falling into line too.

Asking the cause is a barbed question. Causes range through heart or kidney disease, hardening of the arteries, anxiety, nervous tension. But NOT exercise.

For fuller discussion of the problem, I refer you to my booklet, "Controlling Your Blood Pressure." Send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald. And please, sir, don't forget the stamp and zip code on the envelope!

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had a kidney-stone attack. The stone was too large to pass. The doctor said next time it starts down and gets stuck they will operate on the kidney to remove the stone.

"Everyone" we've talked to says there is medicine to dissolve the stones or break them up so they are small enough to pass. One was a nurse and another was a man whose father had taken the medicine.

Our doctor says there is no medicine to dissolve kidney stones. I'd sure like to find out before he resorts to an operation. — Mrs. J.B.

Such medications have been tried but my consultants in the field of kidney care tell me they are not being used now — they proved too irritating to tissues in the urinary tract.

Railsback Shadow

Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON — A shadow was cast on President Nixon's rising hopes for survival at a recent closed-door session of the House Judiciary Committee by Rep. Thomas Railsback, a 42-year-old downstate Illinois Republican who has become pivotal in the historic impeachment drama.

RAILSBACK REQUESTED the impeachment inquiry staff to determine whether Mr. Nixon's April 17, 1973, order to aides to convey secret grand jury information to his personal lawyer, Herbert Kalmbach, was actually carried out. Exactly what the committee staff reported back is unknown. Railsback, in private conversation with committee colleagues, has expressed shock over possible defilement of grand jury sanctity.

This indicates that Railsback has implicitly rejected the White House defense strategy of narrowly focusing the inquiry on whether it can be proved, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Mr. Nixon authorized hush-money payments. On the contrary, the fact that Railsback is independently probing the overlooked but potentially lethal grand jury issue indicates a possibility he may vote for impeachment.

IF SO, this is bad news for Mr. Nixon because of Railsback's unique position. Although moderate ideologically, he is closely aligned socially with the party's conservative mainstream as a member of the elite Chowder and Marching Society and as a daily communicant in the House gymnasium (no place for liberals). He is a close friend and admirer of Rep. Robert Michel, the Congressman from Peoria whose loyalty to Mr. Nixon knows no deviation.

WITH THIS background and by shielding his intentions, Railsback has become the committee's single most influential member. If he votes against impeachment, the White House hopes for 16 out of 17 Republicans — a near party-line vote that could carry over to the House floor. If Railsback votes for impeachment, however, he probably would be accompanied by another four Committee Republicans and would influence many other Republicans on the House floor.

When the impeachment inquiry was beginning last year, Railsback collaborated with Rep. Charles Wiggins of California — now Mr. Nixon's most effective defender — in decrying Democratic partisanship. He has since been sharply critical of Chairman Peter Rodino for limits placed on witnesses called by Nixon defense lawyer James St. Clair.

BUT HE HAS never bought the prevailing Republican thesis that only a criminal offense is sufficient to impeach a President. Rather, Railsback feels several noncriminal actions, in both missing government power and in Watergate obstruction of justice, constitute grounds for impeachment.

Railsback found something when he read a June 3 column in the Washington Post by Walter Pincus, executive editor of the New Republic. Three paragraphs in that column, suggesting Mr. Nixon violated the grand jury process, led Railsback to the edited White House transcripts.

IN A TELEPHONE conversation April 16, 1973, the President asked Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen what was happening inside the Watergate grand jury, promising not to pass on the information "because I know the rules of the Grand Jury." On the next morning, April 17, the President relayed to H. R. Haldeman what Petersen had told him and suggested Haldeman share it with John D. Ehrlichman.

MY ANSWER

Billy Graham

The other night I accepted an invitation for a show from a fellow of Japanese nationality. My father said it was against the Bible, and was furious. You tell me, Billy Graham, is it against God's will to go out with a different nationality than your own?

D.G.

In one of Paul's sermons (Acts 17), he said of God, "From one man, he made every nation of men, that they should inhabit the whole earth."

Paul says here that man is the offspring of God, of one blood, accountable to God and under His providential care. There is no reference in the Bible where we suggest that prejudicial attitudes are permitted, or that one race, nationality or people is inferior. God loves all peoples, and we say the ground is level at the foot of Christ's cross.

Your question suggests other considerations, however. One is that often dating leads to courtship and courtship to marriage. In other words, dating is not a frivolous activity, because it may lead to matters of serious importance. A parent is always right to urge reflection and caution in affairs of the heart.

The other consideration is that should dating lead to marriage, the couple needs to face possible adverse reactions from the larger family relationship. All I'm saying is that the love between the two must not be blind to repercussions from others such as you got from your father.

God's will is that you might come to know the full happy life of faith in Christ — living for His glory and in His service.

A Devotion For Today..

"So faith, hope, love abide, these three; but the greatest of these is love." (1 Corinth. 13:13)

PRAYER: Father, help us not to give love sparingly; for the more we give, the greater it becomes. Amen.

Baptist Association Holds Semiannual Meeting Here

By EDITH HEIRMAN
Dr. James Basden, secretary of Human Welfare Commission of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, was the guest speaker for the semi-annual meeting of the Big Spring Baptist Association Monday evening at College Baptist Church.

Dr. Basden listed some rules that a church can use in order to grow. The rules that he gave was the willingness to seek God's direction, faith to prepare, courage to act upon the preparation and commitment. If a church acts upon each one of these rules, it will definitely grow.

Plans for the coming month was discussed and the calendar for next year was approved. Friday, the Associational Women's Missionary Union will serve a meal for the ministers and their wives. July 28-Aug. 2 a crusade will be held in San Angelo; July 22-27 will be Boy's Home Camp, anyone willing to help sponsor, or any boy who would like to attend please contact Rev. Rufus Wilson, 263-8274. Aug. 18 will be Pastor Appreciation Day where all the churches will be doing something special for their pastors.

HOUSE PARTY SET
WMU House Party will be Aug. 20-23 in Waco. The WMU will pay $5 toward the expenses of a pastor's wife to go to the house party and for any Latin American woman. For further information contact Mrs. A. W. Page, 267-5192.

This fall the Baptist Student Union will be in charge of distributing the religious preference cards and registering students for the Bible classes during the fall registration at Howard College. David Norvelle, BSU director, plans to start a BSU choir, having a BSU retreat and several Bible study groups.

The Permian Basin Encampment has had approximately 79 professions of faith so far this summer. Due to the state requiring camps to have a licensed administrator, there are some improvements that have to be made at the encampment before the state will issue the camp license. In order to take care of the improvements, the camp is in need of financial support, so the Association is asking the local churches to increase their financial support to the encampment so the improvements can be made.

ANNIVERSARY SET
Next year the Southern Baptist Convention will be celebrating the 50th Anniversary of the Cooperative Program. The Cooperative program is designed to pay the salaries of the missionaries, help build churches, hospitals, good will centers, rest homes, and orphanages. The Convention's goal is $40 million and the state's goal is $20 million. Special music was presented by the Complete Seven from Crestview Baptist Church.

The Associated Task Force committee chairman, Dan McClinton, gave the following report about Church Organization Long Range planning, items 2 and 8 of Section III.

Item 2 dealing with church training proposes workshops for training leaders in Royal Ambassadors, Girls in Action, Acteens, Baptist men and women, music, Sunday school and church training every three to five years; seminars and training sessions on how to implement a more productive Sunday evening church program; provide resource people and materials to churches to adjust to Southern Baptist programs to the smaller churches in West Texas; encourage churches to participate more in associational training activities, where not only the small church can receive help, but the larger churches also; and provide training opportunities for the women of the association to become resource people needed for a going church training program.

Item 8 dealing with youth involvement proposes that more emphasis be placed on youth involvement within the church; provide training opportunities through workshops for youth leaders and young people in areas of responsibility within the church; promote associational youth activities but not to over-promote because the local church activities should come first; provide help to churches who do not have a full or part-time minister of youth in organizing a youth program; provide religious oriented counseling service for young people who are having problems; and seminars in religious oriented work and job opportunities to encourage young people in the religious profession.

Where are You Going?

"Look, Daddy! A stopped freeway!"
Eight-year-old Kristen pointed at the span of concrete that soared over the road ahead of us and then ended abruptly as if it had encountered an invisible wall.

Two months later, we took a hike in the country. A small trail led us through green fields of waving grass and wildflowers. There the trail ended, gradually, as if reluctant to stop. Is your life like a freeway—fast, impressive, known to many? Or is it more like a trail—plain, but comfortable, less well-known, but quite adequate?

It really doesn't matter.
The important question is: Does your life have a goal? A freeway or trail can end, gradually or abruptly, without ever reaching a specific destination.

In God, your life can have a goal. In church, He'll tell you how to reach it.

'INHALED' BY JEWFISH Modern Day Jonah Story Related By Vet Diver

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) - "He just inhaled him," a fellow diver said, explaining how Steve Withers, 25, was swallowed head first and then spit out by an enormous jewfish in the Gulf of Mexico.

The modern day Jonah story was related today by veteran diver John Beard, who said the incident occurred last Sunday about two miles off Malibuque Beach near Padre Island. Withers' mother confirmed the story.

Beard said he and Withers were scuba diving near some old drilling pipes when they spotted what Beard called the largest jewfish he had ever seen.

BRICK WALL

A jewfish, also known as a grouper, can normally run six feet in length and weigh 600 pounds. It is described as a "good game fish."

Beard said this one was at least four feet in diameter.

Beard and Withers moved in behind the fish, when it suddenly turned around, its mouth wide open. "He just inhaled him," Beard said. Beard said Withers was so far inside the fish not even his swim fins could be seen.

"He said it was like hitting a brick wall. Everything went black," said Withers' mother.

Withers was out of town and could not immediately be reached.

Beard said he watched the fish head straight for the bottom, about 55 feet down, and disappear in a cloud of mud.

Beard gave up hope and went to the surface.

But he found a rather shaken Withers sitting on the boat. He was cut and scratched but alive and well. His oxygen tank was crushed and his spear snapped in two.

"SCARED TO DEATH"

Beard and Withers think the diving equipment saved Withers' life by taking pressure off the jaws of the jewfish.

Withers has no idea why the fish disgorged him.

"He really doesn't know what happened. He felt himself pinned and all the sudden loose and he shot to the top," Mrs. Withers said.

"He came into the house and said, 'Momma, look what happened to me. I got bit by a big jewfish.'"

James Copeland, head of a local diving group, said Withers' tale was possible though extremely rare. Copeland said he has heard of at least one other instance of a diver being partially swallowed by a jewfish.

Copeland said he had seen jewfish up to 200 pounds and 12 feet long.

Mrs. Withers said her son would try to catch the fish soon and that he wasn't particularly frightened.

"But it scared me to death, I'll tell you that," she said.

WHAT IS ART?

"On the other hand, the foes of pornography contend that it corrupts youth, degrades society and is without redeeming social value. There is also the problem of determining what is 'art' and what is unmitigated trash."

He cited Supreme Court decisions which have established current "guidelines" defining obscenity and pornography as a work depicting and defining in an offensive way sexual conduct that is offensive to an average person, under current community standards, and which arouses "prurient interest."

In this manner, he cited Marlon Brando's "Last Tango in Paris," which was not obscene and only last week, the Supreme Court overturned a Georgia decision which had held that the movie, "Carnal Knowledge," was obscene.

Despite Help, Schools Below Lunch Break-Even

An increase approved by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to assist schools taking part in the national school lunch program affects the Big Spring schools.

Don Crockett, assistant superintendent of business said that the increase was anticipated since a law was passed that provides lunch payment rates be adjusted twice each year to reflect changes in food prices.

However, even with an increase of money paid by the government and a five-cent increase in school lunches this year, the cafeteria may still be about a nickel short per lunch being out at cost, said Crockett.

"The cafeteria has made no profit up to a point of time simply due to break even, including federal assistance, he said.

The additional guaranteed average payment to States to assist local schools in the service of lunches to needy children will be boosted 2.25 cents - to 39.50 cents for each lunch and to 49.50 cents for each free lunch.

The maximum reimbursement which States can pay to individual schools on free lunches is increased 2.75 cents. It can range as high as 65.5 cents for a reduced-price lunch and as high as 75.5 cents for each lunch served free. These maximum rates are arrived at by combining "general cash assistance," paid on all lunches served and "special cash assistance," paid on free or reduced price lunches served to needy children.

Fight To Curb Deadly Anthrax

MARLIN, Tex. (AP) - Cattle quarantines and vaccinations continued today in Central Texas and officials were expressing cautious optimism that their efforts to halt anthrax may be working.

A spokesman for the Texas Animal Health Commission reported Thursday night that no new anthrax deaths were reported.

"We're still going to keep an extra-sharp eye out, but things seem to be in real good shape," he said.

Oklahoma state veterinarian John W. Holcombe said final lab reports were expected to determine today if the 13 Texas cattle that died Tuesday at the Oklahoma City stockyard had anthrax.

LIFT EMBARGO

Texas officials said the 13 cattle had been traced from a consignment at Sulphur Springs, more than 200 miles north of the outbreak area, to seven East Texas areas that are at least 125 miles from Falls County.

Oklahoma officials have lifted an embargo on all Texas cattle except those from Falls County and the seven surrounding counties, pending the test results.

The disease has killed 200 to 300 Texas cattle since June 23, and authorities say it could break out at any time among unvaccinated cattle. The disease is caused by deadly spores which lie in certain types of alkaline soil and may become hazardous in drought conditions as cattle graze closer to the ground.

Dr. Francis Mulhern of the U.S. Department of Agriculture says livestock producers in West Texas, Southwest Oklahoma, Eastern New Mexico and Southeast Colorado should begin vaccinations because of

Westbrook School Bond Vote Saturday

WESTBROOK - The Westbrook $400,000 school bond election will be held from 8 a.m. until 7 p.m. Saturday in the kindergarten room at the school, according to Supt. L. M. Dawson, D. J. Harper will serve as election judge.

The proposed bonds are scheduled to be paid off over a 9 1/2-year period at the rate of $40,000 a year, said Dawson. He added that the issue will not necessitate changing either the 25 per cent of the valuation or raising the 35 cents rate per $100 valuation.

Valuation of the district for tax purposes is $14,000,000. If voters approve the bond issue, Westbrook school district will launch a building program which calls for half the money to be spent on new buildings and half on remodeling.

Projected plans call for building a 398-seat auditorium containing 6,639 square feet. The auditorium will be located south of the present building and connected to it by covered walkways.

Also to be built would be an addition to the offices and teacher-workshop area, a 1300 square-foot southern extension with a large board room and space for a future tax office.

Remodeling calls for installation of modern air conditioning and heating systems, new ceilings and carpeting the entire classroom and office areas of the school.

MAY FORETELL CRACKDOWNS ON OTHERS

Raid Church Bingo Party

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — "Okay, this is a raid," said the police officer and the regular Wednesday night St. Phillip Neri Roman Catholic Church bingo and beer party came to a sobering stop.

'GAMING FOR GOD'

In minutes, a squad of 20 officers had closed down a "gambling for God" operation that one person called "the most successful bingo game in town," with an estimated gross of $10,000 a night.

"It looked like a Las Vegas casino," said one officer. "There were lights flashing, drinking, numbers called and gambling signs all over. They had punchboard games with names like Nevada Club, Casino Bingo, Poker Punchboard. To me it was a flagrant violation of state law."

CRIPPLING DEBT

But to the Rev. James Connors and his parish members, it was a way to pay off a crippling church debt and to keep a parochial school in operation.

The game was also a church and neighborhood tradition that had been in operation for years and was well-known to police officers and politicians.

"The politicians knew about it," says Rev. Connors. "They all knew about it. We've had judges come in and play bingo. We've had state senators and sheriff's candidates come in. We had the best one going in town."

And officers said the game is only one of many in operation in Houston and across the state. "Gambling for God" in Catholic churches or gaming for charity at fraternal or veteran's lodges has been a statewide activity for decades, say officers, but it may be coming to a halt.

GOOD CAUSE

As long as the gambling was for a good cause, said one state officer, law enforcement agencies often have looked the other way, unless there's a complaint.

But no matter what the money is to be used for, "They're just as illegal as they can be," said an officer of the bingo games.

And, noted another state officer, "it's the law and we've got to enforce it."

"There's no hard core, organized effort to close these places said one officer who asked his name not to be named, "but I think several agencies are beginning to take a closer look at them. Some of them (the games) are beginning to get out of hand."

SHUTTING DOWN

The raid on St. Phillip Neri's sent tremors of alarm through lodges and other churches here where gaming takes place. For many, the proceeds from the weekly bingo games represented a large part of the organization budget.

"We're shutting ours down," said the Rev. Connors. "They nailed us first because we had the best one going and to set an example for the others. One officer told me they planned to close 'em all down."

John Holmes of the Harris County District Attorney's office said the law makes no provision for gambling for charity. He said it states clearly that bingo or punchboards or other forms of lottery are illegal when there is a charge for participation.

(Often there is no enforcement as long as the bingo parties remain "friendly, social games," said one officer.

Suit Hits NASA

HOUSTON (AP) — A Johnson Space Center employe has filed a federal court suit against the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Elton A. Wilborn alleges in the suit filed Thursday that NASA practices discrimination against blacks in its hiring and promotion procedure at the space center.

A spokesman at the space center said he did not know about the suit.

HOUSTON (AP) — Police said a raid on a Houston apartment Thursday netted $70,000 worth of heroin and opium. They arrested five persons.

Fine Prizes For Jr. Rodeo

The Howard County Junior 4-H Rodeo, rated one of the best on the American Junior Rodeo Association circuit, offers one of the best collections of prizes on the circuit.

That may account for its usually large field of entries.

The rodeo is scheduled to open a three-night stand next Thursday.

The top cowboy and cowgirl each will receive a saddle. This event is open to those who score points in two or more events.

In addition, there will be 20 handsome belt buckles given away to winners in the various events and the various age groups.

Winners also share in the distribution of the money paid in entry fees.

"Without the help of local businessmen and individual donors who sponsor the buckle and saddle prizes, the Junior Rodeo could not post such outstanding prizes," said Bruce Griffith, county agent and one of the adult sponsors.
