ARMED SIEGE DRAGS INTO SECOND WEEK

To Let Cons Flee With Hostages?

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — With the armed siege dragging into a second exhausting week, prison officials consider today a proposal to let three armed convicts escape with four of their 13 hostages.

Holed up in the third floor prison library, convict leader Fred Gomez Carrasco set deadlines Wednesday for bombing his hostages if his demands were not met. He then let the deadlines expire without incident.

'SHIELDS'
Kathy Pollard, daughter of hostage Novella Pollard, told newsmen that Carrasco's latest counter offer to authorities was to let him, his two convict-partners and four hostages leave by unspecified vehicle, using the other nine hostages as "shields."

The nine hostages would "move to a safe place" once the other seven were inside the vehicle, Miss Pollard said.

Prison spokesman Ron Taylor told newsmen Wednesday night that "transportation will be the first order of business" when talks were resumed today. He confirmed Miss Pollard's statements.

Taylor was asked at one point if Carrasco would be brought out the front or back entrance of the prison. He replied, "I do not know if they'll be going outside."

The most dramatic incident Wednesday occurred about 5:45 p.m. when Carrasco telephoned prison officials and angrily told them he would blow up two hostages with one of three bombs he claims to have fashioned.

At that moment two hostages, the Rev. Joseph O'Brien and school teacher Ron Robinson, were sitting in the library doorway and a cylindrical object which Taylor described "about the size of a quart jar" was nearby.

The 45 minutes came and went.

Immediately before that threat, Texas Department of Corrections director J. W. Estelle had delivered a written statement to Carrasco, outlining four options previously relayed to the rebel convict.

One was that the offer to withdraw a complaint against his wife Rosa in exchange for the safe return of all hostages still stood.

HUNT WIFE

Newsmen learned Wednesday afternoon from Miss Pollard that Rosa Carrasco, her whereabouts still unknown, had been charged with providing her husband a pistol.

Estelle also repeated his offers to permit worldwide television coverage upon Carrasco's surrender and the same coverage for the safe return of all hostages.

The last offer read by Taylor stated:

"To your new and final demands of transportation plus four hostages, it is acceptable after the release of all the other hostages."

It was this offer to which Carrasco replied through Miss Pollard after his latest bomb threat.

Carrasco at times has made his demands known publicly by having Mrs. Pollard telephone them to her daughter for relay to prison officials and reporters.

It was Miss Pollard who told newsmen early Wednesday afternoon that the former narcotics chieftain threatened to blow up hostages Bobby Heard, a guard, and Anthony Branch, a school teacher.

TOBACCO CHEWERS

A second bomb would be used on the rest of the hostages and "a third bomb on your tobacco-chewing troopers," Carrasco said.

This threat followed by four hours Carrasco's announced intent to blow up a woman hostage at 8 a.m.

That deadline passed and prison officials never reminded him of the threat, made Tuesday night.

At one point Wednesday morning, Carrasco told authorities to "meet my demands or prepare for war."

In the 8 a.m. threat, he demanded a bulletproof vest. Estelle said he would deliver it in exchange for hostages. Carrasco refused.

VERY LOYAL

Estelle then offered to withdraw charges against his wife and give him a vest in exchange for the hostages.

Carrasco countered through Miss Pollard by saying he had eliminated demands for guns, ammunition and the vest. Guns and ammunition had been demanded since the takeover of the library about 1 p.m. last Wednesday.

Fort Stockton Girl Missing

FORT STOCKTON, Tex. (AP) — Pecos County authorities searched today for a 7-year-old Fort Stockton girl whose clothes were found five miles south of here Wednesday. The girl, Dessie Holt, has been missing for 14 days.

Deputy Sheriff Mike Hill said the garments were found by a Texas Highway Department field survey crew. They were neatly stacked under a bush and covered with a white towel.

The plaid dress, green shorts, underclothing and blue purse were identified by her parents as those worn by the girl the night of July 19 when she left her house to walk to her sister's home in the same neighborhood.

Hill said the clothes were not torn and there were no signs of blood.

Plane Crash Claims Four

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — Four persons were killed and more than a dozen injured when a Navy plane which officials said was practicing touch-and-go landings crashed at the Elizabeth City Coast Guard Air Base.

A witness said the twin-engine turboprop TE2A Hawkeye trainer apparently suffered a power loss and skidded off a runway on Wednesday into a maintenance building, touching off an explosion.

Three of the dead were identified as Joe Spruill, Gilbert Spitzer and Maylon Jones, all of Elizabeth City and employed at the base.

A spokesman at the Norfolk, Va., Naval Air Station, where the plane was based, said a Navy student pilot aboard the craft also was killed. His name was not learned at once.

The pilot, identified as Lt. (j.g.) Helmut Christian Buqor of Fairfax, Va., survived. He was reported to have suffered chest and leg injuries.

Lehmann Elects Not To Assume Position

Eugene H. Lehmann, who arrived here Monday to assume the duties of Director of Public Works for the City of Big Spring, resigned that position this morning.

The announcement was made by City Manager Harry Nagel shortly before noon.

Lehmann formally accepted the job at the last regular meeting of the city council last month. He came here from San Antonio.

Nixon's Chances Slim, Republican Whip Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—With House debate on the impeachment question due to start in two weeks, some leading congressmen representing both parties and various political philosophies say President Nixon's chances are poor.

3-1 MARGIN

Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, a leading House conservative who supports impeachment, said Wednesday he expects the House to vote to impeach Nixon by nearly a 3-1 margin.

House Republican Whip Leslie Arends, generally considered the Republican congressional leader closest to Nixon, said of Nixon's chances of avoiding impeachment: "I would not tell him it looks good."

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill predicted more than 75 per cent of the House members will vote to impeach the President.

O'Neill said no firm counts have been taken but said his discussions with members indicate no more than 38 of the 248 House Democrats and fewer than 80 of the 187 Republicans will support the President on impeachment.

Rep. Joe D. Waggoner, D-La., a strong Nixon supporter, thinks even fewer than 38 Democrats will vote against impeachment, O'Neill said.

Milk Producers Fined $35,000

WASHINGTON (AP)—A federal judge today fined the nation's largest dairy cooperative $35,000 for making illegal corporate campaign donations. He declared "this kind of cavalier violation has got to be put to a stop."

The cooperative, Associated Milk Producers Inc., pleaded guilty before chief U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. today, only one day after the co-op's former general manager, Harold S. Nelson, pleaded guilty to a conspiracy to bribe John B. Connally to pay more than $300,000 in illegal political donations.

MAXIMUM FINE

The milk producers' lawyer, Edwin C. Heining, pleaded with Judge Hart to fine the corporation only $13,000, but the judge imposed the maximum fine on the six-count charge and gave the co-op 20 days to pay.

Heining argued that Nelson and other officials responsible for making illegal donations no longer are employed by the co-op and that the fine "will have to come out of the pockets of people who are completely innocent"—the co-op's 38,000 dairy farmers.

Nelson admitted on Wednesday that he authorized a payment of $10,000 intended for Connally, a former Texas governor and later Treasury secretary during President Nixon's first term.

Connally, who was indicted on Monday for accepting the $10,000, has said he is innocent and that he will fight the charge.

Nelson, 56, of San Antonio, Tex., pleaded guilty before U.S. District Judge George L.

Hart Jr. to charges drawn up by Watergate prosecutors. He faces a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Nelson admitted that as general manager of Associated Milk Producers Inc., the nation's largest dairy-farmer cooperative, he authorized payment of more than $300,000 to Democrats and Republicans in the elections of 1968, 1970 and 1972.

Industrial Development Progress Noted In Talk

Ray Farabee delivered the program for the Big Spring Kiwanis Club at noon today. The Wichita Falls businessman and attorney spoke on industrial and rural development in West Texas.

Farabee has represented various industrial development groups, including the Wichita Falls Board of Commerce and Industry and several new industries locating in Northwest Texas.

In his speech, Farabee outlined industrial development progress in such communities as Haskell, Spur, Wichita Falls, Electra, Crowell, Colorado City and Big Spring. "Several communities have expressed interest in the recent program adopted by Big Spring through the City of Big Spring economic advisory council in cooperation with the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce," Farabee stated.

"If we want to avoid the growing problems of crime and over population which presently threaten large cities, we should invest more energy and resources in rural development and the further economic development of medium size cities." He also expressed concern over the tendency of young people graduating from high schools in West Texas to leave their home areas because of a lack of job opportunities, stating, "We must do more to diversify our rural economy so that job opportunities are available and the local tax base is improved."

While in Big Spring, Farabee visited the Big Spring State Hospital and other state facilities. Farabee is the Democratic nominee for the State Senate position being vacated by Jack Hightower. Farabee will address the annual meeting Thursday evening of the Mid-West Electric Coop in Snyder.

May Slap Howard Hughes Empire With Civil Suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government may slap the Howard Hughes empire with a civil suit in the same case that led to Hughes' indictment on criminal conspiracy and stock manipulation charges, according to knowledgeable sources.

Officials of the Securities and Exchange Commission told the Justice Department three weeks ago that they intended to file the suit regardless of whether Hughes was named in a criminal indictment, department sources said Wednesday.

An SEC spokesman declined comment.

The reclusive billionaire and three associates were indicted Tuesday by a federal grand jury in Las Vegas, Nev., on charges of wire fraud, conspiracy and stock manipulation. They were accused of using illegal tactics to force the directors of Air West, a West Coast airline, to accept a Hughes company purchase offer.

On Dec. 31, 1968, the airline board reversed a position taken three days earlier and yielded to Hughes' terms. The Hughes Tool Co., now known as the Summa Corp., took over the airline.

WEIGHING COUNTY JUNK — Don Carter looks over a hunk of junk from a pile he purchased from Howard County for $310. Terry Carter, son of part-time scrap iron dealer, made the high bid of $80 for another pile. Auctioning surplus county equipment and junk brought $5,138 Wednesday afternoon.

Wednesday Sale Brings In $5,138 For County

"Okay, gentlemen, this equipment belongs to the citizens of Howard County," County Judge A. G. Mitchell told a group of 50 men at the road department barn Wednesday afternoon. "You buy at your own risk."

RELATED PICTURE ON 2-A

Mitchell mixed politics and stories with auctioneering, kidding bidders for higher prices and reminding them of his write-in campaign for reelection.

"This van has hauled a million dollars worth of commodities from San Angelo to the hungry people of Howard County, and now we don't need it any more," Mitchell said of one trailer.

Bill Tune, the Democratic nominee for county judge,

County commissioners Simon (Cy) Terrazan and Jack Buchanan and W. D. Berry, director of Civil Defense, were among those watching.

County Auditor Virginia Black recorded top bids from the front seat of a sheriff's office car while Mitchell stood outside speaking through the vehicle's public address system.

Sold items included four trucks, plus another with a dump bed, a float trailer, van trailer, four-wheel trailer, gravel spreader, one pickup, junk iron, a welder, four manual typewriters and two cash boxes.

The sale brought $5,138, and all but $35 had been received by Thursday morning.

Drawing the highest price was a 1962 truck sold for $850.

House Judiciary Committee, Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., said, "At the moment, I would have to say the odds are that the House would pass them (the articles of impeachment)."

The statements came as the House prepared for debate on the three impeachment articles approved by the Judiciary Committee.

A number of procedural matters have to be settled, such as the length of time for debate, whether the proceedings in the House chamber will be televised and whether the committee's articles will be open for amendment.

Meanwhile, there were these related developments:

COP-OUT — White House aide Patrick J. Buchanan said the White House was keeping open the option of essentially giving up a fight in the house in order to expedite Senate action.

However, a number of House members said this would amount to a cop-out.

Two senators on a panel studying impeachment rules said they oppose a strict definition of what would be required to convict Nixon in a Senate trial.

Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., said Nixon should not use public money for his own defense in a Senate impeachment trial. Montoya, chairman of a Senate subcommittee reviewing White House budgets, said, "I would not want the President to use one nickel of the money for the White House in this bill for his own defense."

Nixon's Watergate attorney, James D. St. Clair, disclosed that more than five minutes are missing from White House tapes of a Watergate conversation between the President and two close advisers.

House Speaker Carl Albert met with Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., to discuss the procedural questions, but no decisions were reported. Rodino said he wanted to talk matters over with other committee members.

The 10 Republican members who voted against impeachment held a meeting of their own to plan defense moves and later met with House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes.

Bentsen Charges Economic Cover-Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — A short supply, especially in the fields of housing and manufacturing, is a nationwide problem, says Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., who made the characterization Wednesday in a nationally televised response to Nixon's July 25 speech on the economy.

Bentsen, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on economic growth, called Nixon's speech an economic cover-up designed to hide his inability to deal with inflation.

"The president told us that our present economic troubles are everyone's fault—except his and his advisers," Bentsen said. "He blamed international conditions, wild spending by Congress, and the extravagances of citizens who spend money rather than save it."

Bentsen said, "I felt that I was hearing the language of economic cover-up."

He suggested an end to a pointless search for culprits. Bentsen made six proposals: —A program to convince banks and lending institutions to voluntarily aim new loans toward production of items in —Reform of the tax system to plug loopholes and produce some new revenue. —Increase industrial and agricultural productivity through research and job training. —Immediate steps by the Nixon administration to "put its own economic house in order" by a better coordination of its economic policies and programs.

Texas' Voter Laws Decision

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court has ruled that a lower court was right in striking down parts of Texas' voter registration laws.

The appeals court upheld Wednesday a decision that threw out a Texas law that requires voters to register between Oct. 1 and Jan. 31 of the following year. The lower three-judge panel said, and the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed, that Texas did not have a "compelling state interest" in denying the franchise to those who did not or could not register within the specified time.

The court added, "The Texas Legislature itself has recognized that a 28-day period is sufficient for the certification of voter lists prior to the holding of an election."

"In our decision we in no way diminish the right of the state of Texas to prescribe. . . . What we have held is that the tactic underlying the Texas annual voter registration system, which sought to win the war for representative government by inflicting devastating losses on its electoral army before it ever marched off to the polls, is inconsistent with the United States Constitution."

To Spend $15 Million On 'The Life Of Jesus'

ROME (AP) — The Italian and British television producers who are bringing Moses and William Shakespeare to American home screens are going to do the same for Jesus.

RAI, the Italian state television organization, and ITC-ATV, the British commercial production company, estimate they will spend $15 million on "The Life of Jesus," a six-part documentary to be filmed in Israel and North Africa.

The producers expect 200 million viewers in a host of nations. NBC will show the series in the United States in 1976, at Easter.

Banks Must Begin Making Reports Of Stock 'Deals'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's largest banks have been ordered by the government to begin making annual public reports of the stock transactions and holdings of their trust departments.

Comptroller of the Currency James E. Smith estimated Wednesday the rule will apply to 90 per cent of the bank trust department holdings in the nation.

Trust departments, whose activities are usually shielded from public view, can exert strong leverage over the stock market and corporate policies through the stocks they hold for pension funds and other trusts.

Institutional investors, such as bank trust departments, increased their share of dollar volume on the New York Stock Exchange over the last decade from 39 per cent to 68 per cent.

The new rule, applying to banks holding common or preferred stock valued at more than $75 million, will require annual reports of trust department stock holdings beginning December 31. At the same time, the trust departments would have to start reporting every three months on stock trades involving more than 10,000 shares or $500,000. Smith warned his agency will watch carefully to make sure that banks don't try to get around the rule by splitting big trades into smaller units.

TARs Work Is Detailed

Teens Aid Retarded (TARs) have one objective, Mary Mullen, a past president of the organization, told the Downtown Lions at their Wednesday meeting.

"We try to be a friend to the retarded," she explained.

This is expressed in many ways, including socials, tours, picnics, field trips, day camp (extended camp, local, regional and olympics) field trip, etc.

For instance, the TARs will accompany an equal number of retarded young people to Prude Ranch in the Davis Mountains for a week of horseback riding and other recreation.

Teresa Smith, current president, projected slides of activities. Mrs. Harold Bell, sponsor, explained that the teen agers run their own program, although there is a parallel adult organization. They are much more effective in relating to the young retarded, she said.

One thing that is needed is members for TARs, particularly teenage boys. There are about 20 members enrolled now, which about matches the number of young retarded. However, Miss Mullen pointed out that there is a potential of serving some 200 young retarded, which would mean a big boost is needed in TARs membership.

Also needed is financial help for sending retarded youths to the state olympics plus uniforms, going to Prude Ranch and social activities costs money — and most of the retarded come from families with low incomes. Anyone can help by mailing a contribution to TARs, Box 1401, Big Spring 79720, she added.

Dick Klein was in charge of the program. Guests included two members from the new Webb Spring club, Pete and Hebrew Jones.

$40,000 Job Linked To LBJ's Milk Price Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a memorandum which he has now repudiated, Lyndon B. Johnson's former appointments secretary said he got a $40,000-a-year job from the milk producers by talking the late president into a lame-duck decision on milk price supports.

OKIE CONGRESSMAN
The former aide, James R. Jones, now a Democratic congressman from Tulsa, Okla., said in the memo that he helped pressure the Agriculture Department into recommending the price support action, then talked Johnson into approving it.

Now Jones says there was no White House pressure and that Johnson was not involved. He said he fabricated the story in an attempt to keep the milk producers' job. However, a new management fired him as a public relations consultant in early 1972.

The memo was placed in the Senate Watergate committee's open files despite a request from Jones' lawyer to suppress it as inaccurate.

It refers to an announcement by then-Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman on Dec. 26, 1968, that continued the level of milk price supports at $4.23 per hundredweight through the first year of the Nixon administration. Freeman made the announcement less than a month before the new Republican administration took office, months before the normal annual decision on price supports.

FEET DRAGGING
Jones wrote the memo to George Mehren, the new general manager of Associated Milk Producers, Inc., on Jan. 18, 1972. Mehren had just taken over the co-op and had fired Jones and many other consultants in a general economy move.

Jones protested, and said he had been given the $40,000-a-year retainer for five years by Mehren's predecessors, Harold Nelson and David Parr.

He said that after Nixon was elected, Nelson and Parr "were anxious to get President Johnson to approve price supports at $4.28. . . . They offered me a retainer with AMPI. I declined to talk about it and said I didn't want to consider any offers until we were nearly out of office."

"We got the Agriculture Department (over some pretty stiff feet dragging) to send the price support recommendation, over around Dec. 18. The President refused to sign it. Finally, after two conversations with him (by me) he did sign." Then Jones nailed down the job, the memo said.

'I PUFFED IT'
In an interview, Jones said the whole story was a fabrication. "I puffed it," he said. "I'm not proud of it, but that's what I did." He denied that he had talked to Johnson about price supports, and denied that he pressured the Agriculture Department into making the early announcement.

Freeman was unavailable for comment. But Jones' story is backed up by John A. Schrittker, then under secretary of agriculture.

Schrittker, in an interview, said that Freeman decided to announce price supports early to keep the incoming Nixon administration from lowering them. He said he knew of no pressure from the White House and that so far as he knows, Johnson, wasn't involved.

Also, Jones had dropped the LBJ story eight days after he wrote the memo. In a letter to Mehren dated Jan. 26, 1972, he said he had just recovered from a "devastating bout with the flu." He said he hadn't meant for the earlier memo to be sent.

JAMES R. JONES AT WORK — James R. Jones, right, hands a boxed pen to President Lyndon Johnson after the signing of an auto and highway safety bill in 1966. Jones, once an aide to Johnson and later a public relations consultant for Associated Milk Producers, Inc., claimed in 1972 that he talked Johnson into a favorable price support decision in 1968. Jones now says he made up the story to keep his job after a new manager took over the milk producers' organization.

Briscoe Says He Won't Call Special Session

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe, facing three pressing problems, says the legislators are too tired for a special session and the regular session begins in less than six months, anyway.

SCHOOL MONEY
Additional public school financing is needed; salaries need to be raised for state employees; and retirement benefits time would not be practical. To call upon the members of the legislature to reconvene in special session after having met for an exhaustive seven months in a constitutional convention is unrealistic at best.

COST OF LIVING
Briscoe noted the 1975 legislature will convene less than six months from now. He said he would make four recommendations to it:

—An increase of $40 per student in average daily attendance for the maintenance and operation of the public schools, distributed on the same basis that the school districts participate in the Foundation School

Fund. Poorer school districts would receive the full $40, and wealthier districts would get less, based upon their taxable wealth.

—A 10 per cent increase in retirement benefits of state employees who retired prior to Aug. 31, 1974.

—A 10 per cent cost of living increase for all state employees, effective Feb. 1, 1975.

—"In addition," Briscoe said, "I will present a plan for the comprehensive restructuring of the state system of school finance which will be a dramatic step forward in public education."

Wills Is Having Job Troubles

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Frank Wills, the former security guard who blew the whistle on Watergate, says he hopes to get a steady job soon, although most employers are reluctant to hire him.

"Employers have the idea I'm too hot to hire because of all the limelight I got into," said Wills, who spent the week end here campaigning for Victor V. James Jr., a candidate for Alameda County sheriff.

"But I'm getting along with a few TV interviews and talks to students who write to me through my attorney," said Wills, 26. "Anyhow, I'm thinking about getting a steady job pretty soon."

Wills was on duty at the Watergate complex in Washington, D.C. in June 1972 when he discovered the break-in at Democratic party headquarters and notified police.

Drafters Return $150,000 To General Revenue Fund

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Constitutional Convention spent $3.2 million and is returning $150,000 to the general revenue fund, says Price Daniel Jr., convention president.

Part of the saving comes from printing only 500 sets of the transcript of debate on the convention floor. Had the convention agreed upon a document, 1,500 to 2,000 sets would have been printed.

The 190 chairs and desks made especially for the convention will be divided two-thirds to the House and one-third to the Senate.

The House will use some of its chairs to furnish a hearing room. The Senate does not know what it will do with its chairs.

Neither has a decision been made on what to do with surplus covers that were intended for a convention brochure.

Delegates used some of these to collect signatures of fellow delegates, school-yearbook style.

Also left over are copies of an over-simplified booklet explaining the convention to elementary school children. These were dubbed "coloring books" by Rep. Billy Williamson, D-Tyler.

The PermaLife paper donated by a Virginia paper company was almost entirely used up Tuesday in printing the five resolutions considered most likely to win approval.

Convention secretary Charles Schnable said he might take this paper home and make coloring books from it.

Rep. Ben Grant, D-Marshall, who rode a horse to the convention in January to dramatize the need to replace the 1876 "horse and buggy" constitution, had different plans for his return home.

Largest Haul Of Dope In Oklahoma History

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A Texas man was sentenced Wednesday to a 15-year prison term and a $25,000 fine for his attempts to smuggle more than $3.8 million worth of heroin through Oklahoma.

Eduardo Rodriguez, 26, of Laredo, Tex. stared in wide-eyed disbelief as a court-appointed interpreter repeated in Spanish the sentence set by U.S. District Court Judge Allen E. Barrow.

"Distribution of hard drugs is the most heinous crime to come before this court," the judge said in fixing the maximum penalty for Rodriguez.

"When we think of the number of people that could become addicted by this one cache... it is not only shocking but frightening."

Rodriguez' attorney said he felt the Texas man "had been used by others and was a victim of circumstances."

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Thurs., Aug. 1, 1974 5-A

Border Patrol agents arrested Rodriguez April 13 near Miami, Okla., while following up on a tip about illegal aliens. The more than 25 pounds of heroin was found in a suitcase and agents said Rodriguez admitted to having the key.

Rodriguez contended in last week's trial that two unidentified men gave him the suitcase to carry from Mexico to Chicago in return for $50.

Rodriguez' companion, Armando Castillo, 28, also of Laredo, was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $15,000 by Barrow Tuesday for planning to distribute $31,000 worth of marijuana.

The 10 Mexican workers in the back of the truck were in the United States on legal work permits.

Government agents said the April 13 seizure, with a total street value of almost $4 million, was the largest haul of narcotics in Oklahoma history.

HE'S THANKFUL FOR BULLET-PROOF VEST — Los Angeles police officer Edwin Goulart shows where he was shot while writing a traffic ticket last month. He suffered only a chest bruise because he was wearing a bullet-proof vest, bought on impulse after attending the funeral of a fellow officer who had been slain while on duty. Now the city will issue vests to all its 7,000 policemen as standard equipment.

Bullet-Proof Vests Latest Rage In LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A year ago, motorcycle officer Edwin Goulart was returning home from the funeral of a fellow officer who had been gunned down on patrol.

On an impulse, Goulart stopped and bought a bullet-proof vest. He found out later that more than a dozen other officers had done the same thing.

"None of us wanted that — the funeral and all — to happen to us," said Goulart, 25.

Because he bought the vest and wore it, it didn't happen. Last month a motorist shot him with a .32-caliber pistol as he was writing out a ticket. Goulart suffered only a chest bruise.

$350,000 ITEM

Two weeks after Goulart was shot, San Francisco policeman Robert Hooper was only slightly injured when a motorist fired a bullet at his heart. He was wearing a vest like Goulart's—costing about $50, weighing less than four pounds and undetectable under his uniform.

Fans Of Singer Jim Reeves Still Visit His Grave

CARTHAGE, Tex. (AP) — Ten years after his death, fans of Gentleman Jim Reeves still come to visit his grave.

Exactly 10 years ago Wednesday, country singer Reeves died in a plane crash in Tennessee. A Jim Reeves memorial at the bottom of a small hill on U.S. 79 east of here has attracted thousands of visitors from throughout the United States and several foreign countries.

The memorial, a lifesize statue of Reeves on a 10-foot pedestal, stands a dozen yards off the highway at the end of a winding walkway shaped in the design of a guitar. Reeves' casket also is buried at the site.

Reeves gained fame in the early 1950s with hit country songs "Mexican Joe" and "Bimbo."

He was at the top of his career when he died at age 31, but there is little doubt he achieved his ambition, which is set out in an inscription on his memorial:

"If I, a lowly singer, dry one tear or soothe one humble human heart in pain, then my homely verse to God is dear and not one stanza has been sung in vain."

Peanut Supply Shows Big Gain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stocks of peanuts held in commercial facilities at the end of June totaled 691 million pounds, up 16 per cent from the year before, the Crop Reporting Board says.

But millings of farmers' stock peanuts in June were down 18 per cent from the year before. Peanuts crushed for oil and cake were down 44 per cent, for edible products down 8 per cent.

Impressed by the Goulart incident, the Los Angeles City Council ordered that bullet-proof vests become standard equipment for the city's 7,000 policemen. The expected cost is $350,000 — less than the city would have paid in pension costs to Goulart's family had he been killed.

Two Complete Training Course

Jim Gray, assistant manager of Administration, and Don Stone, assistant manager of the loan department, at Webb AFB Federal Credit Union, have completed the Southwestern Credit Union National Association (CUNA School for Credit Union Personnel).

The three-year training program, which is conducted at the University of Houston, is separated into two-week each session's summer. During those sessions, students are instructed on management, psychology, problem solving, economics, investments, and long range planning.

Participants gathered facts about the histories of different credit unions and a five-year projected goal analysis, estimating how large they expected their credit unions to grow during that period, how the credit unions planned to reach those objectives, and the costs.

Costly Federal Water Quality Bill Proposed

OMAR BURLESON, M.C., 17th District, Texas
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Our State of Texas has a health department capable of determining the quality of drinking water. A county or city health officer can submit a sample from a water supply, and in short order, an analysis will be furnished by the Department of Health.

For more than two years now, proposals for imposing national standards for drinking water have been pending. On July 10, the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of the House of Representatives voted out a measure to authorize the Environmental Protection Agency to set federal standards for all drinking water. The Senate passed such a bill in 1972 and will likely do so again, if and when the House acts favorably.

The committee reports the need was proved in 1973 when the General Accounting Office found that only 60 of 446 water systems studied met Federal standards. The GAO study estimated that 8,000,000 Americans consumed water not up to proper standards.

The bill voted out of the House committee on July 10 authorizes the federal government to force states to bring water quality standards up to the requirements set here in Washington. If a State does not so act, the EPA can sue the state for noncompliance. This is called "back-up authority." If the State does not exercise its primary responsibility of enforcement of the national standards set, the bill requires the states to report on specific plans to see that the federal standards are applied and enforced. If federal authorities decide that the state is not properly acting then it steps in with its own enforcement.

The legislation also grants the EPA authority to set guidelines for state regulations for underground sources of drinking water. Conceivably, local water systems could be condemned outright should the EPA not approve the taste, odor, and appearance of their water.

There are already existing federal regulations on contaminants in water which could cause a communicable disease. The sponsors of this new law say that present regulations do not provide enough authority to condemn drinking water supplies which could cause chemical poisoning or other diseases.

It is not a matter of whether drinking water should be pure or not. The point is that State and local authorities have this responsibility and should keep it. They know what is needed and are qualified to do the job without the Federal Government looking over their shoulder.

The federal government might do better by spending the nearly $200,000,000 which this measure will initially cost in helping communities improve their water supplies.

Flak vests, used by soldiers to protect against shrapnel, are now carried by Los Angeles police in their cars. But as one detective said, "Just about every time we've been involved in a wild shootout there's been no time to suit up."

A 10-year-veteran of the San Francisco force, Hooper said, "They're a little like seat belts. For a while they were a pain." Hooper said getting shot while wearing the vest was "like getting hit with a baseball bat."

Ford Puts Granada On Review

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co. put its new luxury compact Ford Granada on review today with optimistic predictions for a sales rebound in 1975.

Ford sales during the first half of 1974 were down 20 per cent from their record 1973 pace, but company President Lee A. Iacocca said he was optimistic sales would rebound during the next model year.

However, Iacocca warned on Monday that continued spiraling inflation could shrink and, perhaps, eliminate profits despite sales gains in the coming model year.

"During the 1974 model year, our costs have gone up $35 a car a month," Iacocca said, while before-tax profits during the year averaged $150 per car.

"You can see that we can't absorb cost increases of $35 a car a month very long—about four months to be exact, and then we are at breakeven," he said. "In the fifth month, Ford goes into a losing operation."

Both General Motors, which reported a 73 per cent drop in first-half earnings Friday, and Chrysler, which said first-half earnings plummeted 85 per cent, blamed inflation for their poor earnings performance. Ford reports its first half profits on Wednesday.

Iacocca described the Granada and its companion Mercury Monarch, which was previewed Monday, as "swing" cars—"They're either the biggest of our small cars or the smallest of our big cars."

Ford officials acknowledge the luxury compacts have been modeled after the Mercedes-Benz. Company spokesmen said the cars will list for between $3,500 and $5,500, depending on options.

Smuggle Guns, Call Girls To Fugitive?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Guns and call girls have been smuggled out of the country to fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco and his associates in Costa Rica, according to information obtained by government investigators.

Sources said the weapons and prostitutes were flown to Costa Rica on a private Lear jet owned by Vesco associate Thomas P. Richardson, the head of a Los Angeles brokerage firm and a self-described close personal friend of Vesco.

The weapons, described as "enough guns for a small army," reportedly were used to arm Vesco's bodyguards, one source said.

According to the sources, President Nixon's nephew, Donald F. Nixon Jr., an employee of Vesco since 1971, also is believed to be in Costa Rica with Vesco.

Vesco fled the country after being indicted on charges stemming from a secret $200,000 contribution he made to Nixon's re-election campaign in an alleged attempt to influence an investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Evidence of the smuggling operation could be used to extradite Vesco from his hideaway, the sources said. The U.S. Customs Services has acknowledged it is investigating possible violations by Vesco associates of the so-called neutrality act, which bans illegal exportation of arms and ammunition to other countries.

The call girls reportedly flown to Costa Rica were procured by a Los Angeles madam who uses the name Betty Alexander, according to one source. Police sources in Los Angeles confirmed federal law enforcement agents are searching for Miss Alexander.

During hearings last week by the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee, Richardson denied knowledge of his plane's whereabouts, saying it was leased to a firm called Connex Press Inc.

Several lawyers seeking to unravel Vesco's tangled financial affairs said Connex is a shell corporation controlled by Norman LeBlanc, a Canadian citizen and one of Vesco's closest associates.

Vesco, LeBlanc and 40 others have been charged by the SEC with looting $224 million from mutual fund complex.

Hot Tests

Tests are being conducted to determine what kind of vest Los Angeles will buy. The rigors of police work—including running, diving under a car, jumping off a motorcycle or reaching for a gun—are being considered, along with how hot it makes the wearer.

Bullet-proof vests were considered by Los Angeles police in 1949 and 1957. They were rejected because they were too heavy and hot. Modern bullet proof wear is sleek and light. Metal has been replaced by fiber glass and boron carbide which are less cumbersome and more bullet resistant. A lightweight fabric called Kevlar, now used instead of steel in some radial tires, is used in some vests.

Like Seat Belts

Flak vests, used by soldiers to protect against shrapnel, are now carried by Los Angeles police in their cars. But as one detective said, "Just about every time we've been involved in a wild shootout there's been no time to suit up."

A 10-year-veteran of the San Francisco force, Hooper said, "They're a little like seat belts. For a while they were a pain." Hooper said getting shot while wearing the vest was "like getting hit with a baseball bat."

The legislation also grants the EPA authority to set guidelines for state regulations for underground sources of drinking water. Conceivably, local water systems could be condemned outright should the EPA not approve the taste, odor, and appearance of their water.

There are already existing federal regulations on contaminants in water which could cause a communicable disease. The sponsors of this new law say that present regulations do not provide enough authority to condemn drinking water supplies which could cause chemical poisoning or other diseases.

It is not a matter of whether drinking water should be pure or not. The point is that State and local authorities have this responsibility and should keep it. They know what is needed and are qualified to do the job without the Federal Government looking over their shoulder.

The federal government might do better by spending the nearly $200,000,000 which this measure will initially cost in helping communities improve their water supplies.

SOME PUBLIC OFFICIALS Quit Jobs Rather Than Bare Their Dollars To The Public

By The Associated Press

Some public officials are quitting rather than comply with strict new laws that require them to tell the voters how much money they make and where it comes from.

Fifteen states have passed financial disclosure laws since Watergate and the revelations of 1972 campaign finance abuses. Fourteen others already had such laws on the books, and more are working on them.

PEEK AT BOOKS
But many officeholders say laws that allow the public to peek at their bank books and tax returns go too far.

Alabama's law is one of the strictest in the country, requiring full disclosure of personal finances by all state, county and municipal employees who make more than $12,000 a year. Even college professors accustomed to the privacy of the campus world have suddenly been required to tell the public about their money matters.

The Alabama League of Municipalities says some 15,000 public employees are affected and about 300 have already resigned because of the 1973 law. Another 1,400 are ready to resign if court challenges to the law are unsuccessful, the League says.

In California, voters last month passed a law requiring all state officials and about 7,000 local officeholders to report all gifts and sources of income over $250. A less strict law passed last year led to the resignation of nearly 60 politicians. In recent years, resignations have also followed the enactment of disclosure laws in Florida and Washington.

There is some evidence that the public does not even care to know about the private financial affairs of their officials.

In a recent survey of 1,502 households, pollster Louis Harris reported that a large majority, 69-27 per cent, supported full disclosure of big campaign contributions; but almost as great a majority, 62-32 per cent, said that a candidate's personal income was not a fit subject for public discussion.

Common Cause, the "citizens' lobby" that has championed the fight for financial disclosure laws, notes that many states have passed such laws since the Watergate story was brought to the public attention.

THIRSTY RUSSIANS Soviet Scheme To Fight Drunkenness With Beer

MOSCOW (AP) — A grandiose Soviet scheme to fight drunkenness with an ocean of beer is bogged down by slow construction of breweries and a shortage of storage space and outlets.

A few years ago the Kremlin announced plans for 30 big breweries that would flood the country with an additional billion quarts of beer annually.

HARD TO FIND
It was part of the fight against endemic drunkenness and built on a theory that Russians could be coaxed from drinking vodka and other potent drinks to beer and wines.

The labor newspaper Trud, which keeps an eye on the drinking habits of Soviet workers, promised the Russian people Wednesday that there will be beer—but only if the construction ministries responsible for building the breweries get to work.

Many Russians say they would be happy to drink beer, but for the time being the brew, like many consumer products, is in short supply.

Even Zhigulevskoye, the beer that made the Russian town of Zhigulevsk famous, is hard to find in Moscow.

Thirsty Russians in many cities line up to enter the few beer halls and swarm around kiosks that dispense beer in communal glasses.

Trud said that in Rostov—a city larger than Milwaukee—there are only nine beer halls.

Things look even worse in Kazan where Trud reported "even during the cold season beer is rare in stores and buffets." A new brewery was scheduled to have opened last December in Kazan, but Trud said that the plant is still not finished.

A spokesman for the Soviet ministry governing the food industry conceded that progress at some brewery construction sites has caused alarm.

It's enough to drive a Russian to drink — vodka.

ACADEMY CHANGE OVER — Lt. Gen. A. P. Clark (right) turned the Air Force Academy's top job over to Maj. Gen. James R. Allen in ceremonies at the Academy Wednesday.

FEA To Open Energy Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — American prospects to become self-sufficient in producing energy by 1980 will come under public scrutiny when the Federal Energy Administration opens hearings on Project Independence Aug. 6.

The hearings begin in Denver, with other sessions scheduled over a two-month period in nine more cities. FEA director John C. Sawhill is scheduled to deliver a blueprint for Project Independence to President Nixon by Nov. 1.

Sawhill has stressed repeatedly that energy self-sufficiency means a reduction, not an elimination, of U.S. dependence on foreign oil. Under Project Independence, the government hopes to be able to survive any foreign oil boycott without severe economic consequences, Sawhill has indicated.

As described by Sawhill, Project Independence appears to be significantly less ambitious than the goal cited by the President last November.

Nixon declared that "By 1980 the United States of America can be and must be independent of any reliance upon any foreign source for its energy."

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The advertised specials and using Army's Ft. Sam Houston commissary building is pre-World War II vintage.

War II vintage: the canned goods on the shelves are still in $6.54 at the commissary, including cartons and the lines often long at the check-out counter.

But to military personnel, their dependents and retired veterans, the price is right at about 14 per cent higher, according to a Handy Andy spokesman's figures.

An Associated Press survey in this military community shows inflation is no stranger to the commissary. Prices on a 10-item shoppers' list have increased in the past year at the military grocery just slightly less than they have at a civilian supermarket.

INFLATION — Officials at Ft. Sam Houston's commissary, which handles between 65,000 and 90,000 transactions monthly, said they have noticed an increase in business which may be attributed to the fight against inflation.

NAME BRANDS — An energetic shopper with access to both the commissary and civilian supermarkets and might spend about the same at the commissary as the commissary's own brand, instead of name brands.

Bicycle Riding Astro Injured

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Scientist astronaut Don Lind has undergone surgery to repair bones broken in a collision between his bicycle and a car.

Lind, who has not been a member of a space flight, sustained broken bones to the left leg, left ankle and right hand in the Monday accident, a space center spokesman said.

The collision occurred as Lind was crossing a road that runs between the Johnson Space Center and NASA Bay, where he resides.

Lind, who holds a doctor's degree in high energy nuclear physics, currently is working on the space shuttle program.

Take Step Toward Building South Texas Nuclear Plant

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A quiet of utilities in power-hungry South Texas has taken another step toward construction of a second nuclear power plant in the region.

City Public Service of San Antonio announced Wednesday it and four other utilities have signed a memorandum of feasibility studies for the second plant.

The agreement does not bind any of the utilities to participation in the final stages of the project, the City Public Service announcement said.

Besides City Public Service, the City of Austin, the Lower Colorado River Authority, Central Power and Light of Corpus Christi and Houston Lighting and Power Co. signed the study agreement.

Already, City Public Service and the Corpus Christi and Houston utilities are participating in the construction of a two-unit nuclear power plant to be completed near Bay City in 1980 for the first unit and 1982 for the second unit.

The proposed plant, about which the five utilities have agreed to study would be located somewhere between Austin and San Antonio. Several sites for the second plant, also a two-unit facility, are reported available in either the Guadalupe or Colorado River basins.

City Public Service has agreed to handle the technical work for the second plant.

City Public Service's announcement said construction of the second plant could begin by 1977 and the first unit could be completed by 1980.

Probably the most exciting bridge player to kibitz is many-time world champion Benito Garozzo of Italy's famed Blue Team. Both his dummy play and defense are designed to keep his opponents guessing, and he has brought off many spectacular coups. This hand is from Italy's match against Spain in the World Team Olympiad.

The Spanish North-South pressed a little in bidding to the spade slam. South was aggressive in accepting North's slam try with his minimum hand. However, he reasoned that if North could jump to five spades without the two minor suit aces, there had to be play for twelve tricks. Against unimaginative defense, he would have been right.

Garozzo led his fourth-best club, and East's queen drove out the ace. Declarer had to get rid of dummy's club loser, so he cashed the king and queen of diamonds and the ace of hearts, and came to his hand with a heart ruff. A club was discarded on the ace of diamonds and a club was ruffed in dummy.

After discarding a club on the king of hearts, declarer continued with a low heart. East discarded a club and South ruffed with the six of spades. Without a moment's hesitation, Garozzo overruffed with the king!

This play convinced declarer that East held the jack of spades, so when Garozzo returned a club, declarer ruffed with dummy's ace to prevent an overruff. Now he confidently led the nine of spades and finessed, but Garozzo produced the jack of spades for the setting trick.

Observe that if Garozzo overruffs routinely with the jack of spades, declarer will make his contract. He has no alternative but to ruff the club return with the nine of spades and cash the ace, dropping the king, leaving declarer with two high trumps.

HE'S THANKFUL FOR BULLET-PROOF VEST — Los Angeles police officer Edwin Goulart shows where he was shot while writing a traffic ticket last month. He suffered only a chest bruise because he was wearing a bullet-proof vest, bought on impulse after attending the funeral of a fellow officer who had been slain while on duty. Now the city will issue vests to all its 7,000 policemen as standard equipment.

Bullet-Proof Vests Latest Rage In LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A year ago, motorcycle officer Edwin Goulart was returning home from the funeral of a fellow officer who had been gunned down on patrol.

On an impulse, Goulart stopped and bought a bullet-proof vest. He found out later that more than a dozen other officers had done the same thing.

"None of us wanted that the funeral and all — to happen to us," said Goulart, 25.

Because he bought the vest and wore it, it didn't happen. Last month a motorist shot him with a .32-caliber pistol as he was writing out a ticket. Goulart suffered only a chest bruise.

$350,000 ITEM

Two weeks after Goulart was shot, San Francisco policeman Robert Hooper was only slightly injured when a motorist fired a bullet at his heart. He was wearing a vest like Goulart's—costing about $30, weighing less than four pounds and undetectable under his uniform.

Fans Of Singer Jim Reeves Still Visit His Grave

CARTHAGE, Tex. (AP) — Ten years after his death, fans of Gentleman Jim Reeves still come to visit his grave.

Exactly 10 years ago Wednesday, country singer Reeves died in a plane crash in Tennessee. A Jim Reeves memorial at the bottom of a small hill on U.S. 79 east of here has attracted thousands of visitors from throughout the United States and several foreign countries.

The memorial, a lifesize statue of Reeves on a 10-foot pedestal, stands a dozen yards off the highway at the end of a winding walkway shaped in the design of a guitar. Reeves' collie dog also is buried at the site.

Reeves gained fame in the early 1950s with hit country songs "Mexican Joe" and "Bimbo."

He was at the top of his career when he died at age 41, but there is little doubt he achieved his ambition, which is set out in an inscription on his memorial:

"If I, a lowly singer, dry one tear or soothe one humble human heart in pain, then my homely verse to God is dear and not one stanza has been sung in vain."

Peanut Supply Shows Big Gain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stocks of peanuts held in commercial facilities at the end of June totaled 691 million pounds, up 16 per cent from the year before, the Crop Reporting Board says.

But millings of farmers' stock peanuts in June were down 18 per cent from the year before. Peanuts crushed for oil and cake were down 44 per cent, for edible products down 8 per cent.

Impressed by the Goulart incident, the Los Angeles City Council ordered that bullet-proof vests become standard equipment for the city's 7,000 policemen. The expected cost is $350,000 — less than the city would have paid in pension costs to Goulart's family had he been killed.

Two Complete Training Course

Jim Gray, assistant manager of Administration, and Don Stone, assistant manager of the loan department, at Webb AFB Federal Credit Union, have completed the Southwestern Credit Union National Association (CUNA School for Credit Union Personnel).

The three-year training program, which is conducted at the University of Houston, is separated into two-week each sessions summer. During those sessions, students are instructed on management, psychology, problem solving, economics, investments, and long range planning.

Participants gathered facts about the histories of different credit unions and a five-year projected goal analysis, estimating how large they expected their credit unions to grow during that period, how the credit unions planned to reach those objectives, and the costs.

OMAR BURLESON, M.C.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Our State of Texas has a health department capable of determining the quality of drinking water. A county or city health officer can submit a sample from a water supply, and in short order, an analysis will be furnished by the Department of Health.

For more than two years now, proposals for imposing national standards for drinking water have been pending. On July 10, the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of the House of Representatives voted out a measure to authorize the Environmental Protection Agency to set federal standards for all drinking water. The Senate passed such a bill in 1972 and will likely do so again, if and when the House acts favorably.

The committee reports the need was proved in 1973 when the General Accounting Office found that only 60 of 446 water systems studied met Federal standards. The GAO study estimated that 8,000,000 Americans consumed water not up to proper standards.

The bill voted out of the House committee on July 10 authorizes the federal government to force states to bring water quality standards up to the requirements set here in Washington. If a State does not so act, the EPA can sue the state for noncompliance. This is called "back-up authority." If the State does not exercise its primary responsibility of enforcement of the national standards set, the bill requires the states to report on specific plans to see that the federal standards are applied and enforced. If federal authorities decide that the state is not properly acting then it steps in with its own enforcement.

The legislation also grants the EPA authority to set guidelines for state regulations for underground sources of drinking water. Conceivably, local water systems could be condemned outright should the EPA not approve the taste, odor, and appearance of their water.

There are already existing federal regulations on contaminants in water which could cause a communicable disease. The sponsors of this new law say that present regulations do not provide enough authority to condemn drinking water supplies which could cause chemical poisoning or other diseases.

It is not a matter of whether drinking water should be pure or not. The point is that State and local authorities have this responsibility and should keep it. They know what is needed and are qualified to do the job without the Federal Government looking over their shoulder.

The federal government might do better by spending the nearly $200,000,000 which this measure will initially cost in helping communities improve their water supplies.

Smuggle Guns, Call Girls To Fugitive?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Guns and call girls have been smuggled out of the country to fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco and his associates in Costa Rica, according to information obtained by government investigators.

Sources said the weapons and prostitutes were flown to Costa Rica on a private Lear jet owned by Vesco associate Thomas P. Richardson, the head of a Los Angeles brokerage firm and a self-described close personal friend of Vesco.

The weapons, described as "enough guns for a small army," reportedly were used to arm Vesco's bodyguards, one source said.

According to the sources, President Nixon's nephew, Donald F. Nixon Jr., an employee of Vesco since 1971, also is believed to be in Costa Rica with Vesco.

Vesco fled the country after being indicted on charges stemming from a secret $200,000 contribution he made to Nixon's re-election campaign in an alleged attempt to influence an investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Evidence of the smuggling operation could be used to extradite Vesco from his hideaway, the sources said. The U.S. Customs Service has acknowledged it is investigating possible violations by Vesco associates of the so-called neutrality act, which bans illegal exportation of arms and ammunition to other countries.

The call girls reportedly flown to Costa Rica were procured by a Los Angeles madam who uses the name Betty Alexander, according to one source. Police sources in Los Angeles confirmed federal law enforcement agents are searching for Miss Alexander.

During hearings last week by the Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee, Richardson denied knowledge of his plane's whereabouts, saying it was leased to a firm called Connex Press Inc.

Several lawyers seeking to unravel Vesco's tangled financial affairs said Connex is a shell corporation controlled by Norman LeBlanc, a Canadian citizen and one of Vesco's closest associates.

Vesco, LeBlanc and 40 others have been charged by the SEC with looting $224 million from mutual fund complex.

Ford Puts Granada On Review

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co. put its new luxury compact Ford Granada on review today with optimistic predictions for a sales rebound in 1975.

Ford sales during the first half of 1974 were down 20 per cent from their record 1973 pace, but company President Lee A. Iacocca said he was optimistic sales would rebound during the next model year.

However, Iacocca warned on Monday that continued spiraling inflation could shrink and, perhaps, eliminate profits despite sales gains in the coming model year.

"During the 1974 model year, our costs have gone up $35 a car a month," Iacocca said, while before-tax profits during the year averaged $150 per car. "You can see that we can't absorb cost increases of $35 a car a month very long—about four months to be exact, and then we are at breakeven," he said. "In the fifth month, Ford goes into a losing operation."

Both General Motors, which reported a 73 per cent drop in first-half earnings Friday, and Chrysler, which said first-half earnings plummeted 85 per cent, blamed inflation for their poor earnings performance. Ford reports its first half profits on Wednesday.

Iacocca described the Granada and its companion Mercury Monarch, which was previewed Monday, as "swing" cars—"They're either the biggest of our small cars or the smallest of our big cars."

Ford officials acknowledge the luxury compacts have been modeled after the Mercedes-Benz.

Company spokesmen said the cars will list for between $3,500 and $5,500, depending on options.

SOME PUBLIC OFFICIALS Quit Jobs Rather Than Bare Their Dollars To The Public

By The Associated Press

Some public officials are quitting rather than comply with strict new laws that require them to tell the voters how much money they make and where it comes from.

Fifteen states have passed financial disclosure laws since Watergate and the revelations of 1972 campaign finance abuses. Fourteen others already had such laws on the books, and more are working on them.

PEEK AT BOOKS
But many officeholders say laws that allow the public to peek at their bank books and tax returns go too far.

Alabama's law is one of the strictest in the country, requiring full disclosure of personal finances by all state, county and municipal employees who make more than $12,000 a year. Even college professors accustomed to the privacy of the campus world have suddenly been required to tell the public about their money matters.

The Alabama League of Municipalities says some 15,000 public employees are affected and about 300 have already resigned because of the 1973 law. Another 1,400 are ready to resign if court challenges to the law are unsuccessful, the League says.

In California, voters last month passed a law requiring all state officials and about 7,000 local officeholders to report all gifts and sources of income over $250. A less strict law passed last year led to the resignation of nearly 60 politicians. In recent years, resignations have also followed the enactment of disclosure laws in Florida and Washington.

There is some evidence that the public does not even care to know about the private financial affairs of their officials.

In a recent survey of 1,502 households, pollster Louis Harris reported that a large majority, 69-27 per cent, supported full disclosure of big campaign contributions; but almost as great a majority, 62-32 per cent, said that a candidate's personal income was not a fit subject for public discussion.

Common Cause, the "citizens' lobby" that has championed the fight for financial disclosure laws, notes that many states have passed such laws since the Watergate story was brought to the public attention.

THIRSTY RUSSIANS Soviet Scheme To Fight Drunkenness With Beer

MOSCOW (AP) — A grandiose Soviet scheme to fight drunkenness with an ocean of beer is bogged down by slow construction of breweries and a shortage of storage space and outlets.

A few years ago the Kremlin announced plans for 30 big breweries that would flood the country with an additional billion quarts of beer annually.

HARD TO FIND
It was part of the fight against endemic drunkenness and built on a theory that Russians could be coaxed from drinking vodka and other potent drinks to beer and wines.

The labor newspaper Trud, which keeps an eye on the drinking habits of Soviet workers, promised the Russian people Wednesday that there will be beer—but only if the construction ministries responsible for building the breweries get to work.

Many Russians say they would be happy to drink beer, but for the time being the brew, like many consumer products, is in short supply. Even Zhitulevskoye, the beer that made the Russian town of Zhitulevsk famous, is hard to find in Moscow.

Thirsty Russians in many cities line up to enter the few beer halls and swarm around kiosks that dispense beer in communal glasses.

Trud said that in Rostov—a city larger than Milwaukee—there are only nine beer halls.

Things look even worse in Kazan where Trud reported "even during the cold season beer is rare in stores and buffets." A new brewery was scheduled to have opened last December in Kazan, but Trud said that the plant is still not finished.

A spokesman for the Soviet ministry governing the food industry conceded that progress at some brewery construction sites has caused alarm.

It's enough to drive a Russian to drink—vodka.

Sawhill says he does not have yet an accurate estimate of what would be an acceptable level of reliance on foreign oil, but "my gut feeling is that it is somewhere between 20 and 30 per cent."

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A quintet of utilities in power-hungry South Texas has taken another step toward construction of a second nuclear power plant in the region.

Opening lead: Three of ♠.
 Probably the most exciting bridge player to kibitz is many-time world champion Benito Garozzo of Italy's famed Blue Team. Both his dummy play and defense are designed to keep his opponents guessing, and he has brought off many spectacular coups. This hand is from Italy's match against Spain in the World Team Olympiad.

The Spanish North-South pressed a little in bidding to the spade slam. South was aggressive in accepting North's slam try with his minimum hand. However, he reasoned that if North could jump to five spades without the two minor suit aces, there had to be play for twelve tricks. Against unimaginative defense, he would have been right.

Garozzo led his fourth-best club, and East's queen drove out the ace. Declarer had to get rid of dummy's club loser, so he cashed the king and queen of diamonds and the ace of hearts, and came to his hand with a heart ruff. A club was discarded on the ace of diamonds and a club was ruffed in dummy.

After discarding a club on the king of hearts, declarer continued with a low heart. East discarded a club and South ruffed with the six of spades. Without a moment's hesitation, Garozzo overruffed with the king!

This play convinced declarer that East held the jack of spades, so when Garozzo returned a club, declarer ruffed with dummy's ace to prevent an overruff. Now he confidently led the nine of spades and finessed, but Garozzo produced the jack of spades for the setting trick.

Observe that if Garozzo overruffs routinely with the jack of spades, declarer will make his contract. He has no alternative but to ruff the club return with the nine of spades and cash the ace, dropping the king, leaving declarer with two high trumps.

FT. SAM HOUSTON Price Is Right At Commissary

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The advertised specials and using Army's Ft. Sam Houston commissary building is pre-World War II vintage, the canned goods on the shelves are still in $6.54 at the commissary, including the three per cent are often long at the check-out counters.

But to military personnel, their dependents and retired veterans, the price is right at the commissary.

An Associated Press survey in this military community shows inflation is no stranger to the commissary. Prices on a 10-item shoppers' list have increased in the past year at the commissary just slightly less than they have at a civilian supermarket.

For instance, when the AF survey was made in the past two weeks, different chains of supermarkets advertised specials on individual items that undercut slightly the commissary price.

And a spokesman for Handy Andy said, the variety is better at a supermarket and there are services offered for cashing checks, buying license plates, paying utility bills and purchasing amusement tickets.

The spokesman for Handy Andy said, however, "We don't try to compete with the commissaries for business."

INFLATION
 Officials at Ft. Sam Houston's commissary, which handles between 60,000 and 90,000 transactions monthly, said they have noticed an increase in business which may be attributed to the fight against inflation. But they cannot positively say the increase means some marginal customers are surrendering to the convenience of the civilian stores for the low prices at the commissary.

NAME BRANDS
 An energetic shopper, with access to both the commissary and civilian supermarkets and precious gasoline to expend, might spend about the same at supermarkets as the commissary if the shopper bought the commissary's own brands instead of name brands and in the commissary's super-Handy Andy chain, avoiding markets for specials.

Bicycle Riding Astro Injured

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Scientist astronaut Don Lind has undergone surgery to repair bones broken in a collision between his bicycle and a car.

Lind, who has never been a member of a space flight, sustained broken bones to the left leg, left ankle and right hand in the Monday accident, a space center spokesman said.

The collision occurred as Lind was crossing a road that runs between the Johnson Space Center and NASA Bay, where he resides.

Lind, who holds a doctor's degree in high energy nuclear physics, currently is working on the space shuttle program.

Siboney Jumps In Earnings

Siboney Corporation reported substantial improvements in its net earnings for the second quarter and the six months ended June 30.

Net earnings of $380,000 in the second quarter of 1974 reflect a six-fold increase over the net earnings of $62,000 in the same period in 1973.

The second quarter results, coupled with a 32 per cent improvement in operations during the first quarter, produced a profit for the six months of $184,000. This figure represents an improvement of $412,000 over a $228,000 loss sustained in the first six months of 1973. It also represents a decided improvement over the results of any first six months period in the company's history.

Revenues during the current year's second quarter totaled $3,435,000 — an increase of $930,000 over revenues of $2,505,000 in the second quarter of 1973. Revenues during this year's first six months totaled $4,959,000 — an increase of $1,161,000 over revenues of 3,798,000 in the first six months of 1973.

In April 1974 another successful gas well was drilled on a lease jointly owned by the Company in Jackson County, Texas. This is the third new and successful gas well drilled on this lease since March 1973.

The company's wholly owned subsidiary, Axel Heiberg Oil Company, has just completed what the company considers to be a very successful transaction with Phillips Petroleum Canada Ltd. involving the sale of certain undivided working interests in four offshore oil and gas permits in the Canadian Arctic.

In exchange for the working interests transferred, Axel Heiberg Oil Company received a substantial cash payment, retained an overriding royalty, acquired a net profits interest and was relieved of substantially all of the burden of making payments necessary to keep the permits in good standing with the Canadian Government. The Company still owns varied working interests in approximately 260,000 gross acres in the Canadian Arctic and approximately 250,000 gross acres in Hudson Bay, Canada.

Span Collapses After Collision, Three Persons Die

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — A tugboat pushing four empty barges crashed into the Lake Pontchartrain Causeway today, and three persons drowned when their vehicles plunged into the lake, deputies said.

A 240-foot section of the 24-mile causeway was knocked out. Two bodies were recovered and another was seen trapped in a car, Jefferson Parish sheriff's deputies said. Their identities were not immediately known.

A car and a truck ran off the span when the collision occurred at about 4:45 a.m., deputies said.

Two sections of the concrete roadway collapsed into the lake and a third was partially in the water and partially atop the barge that struck it, according to Malcolm T. Stein, general manager of the causeway. Several of the barges were taking on water, and all traffic on the bridge was blocked for several hours. There have been at least seven major accidents in which sections of the bridge have been knocked out since it was opened in 1956.

NOT AS BAD AS IT LOOKS — What may have appeared to be a major fire north of town earlier this week turned out to be nothing more than the burning of waste oil, but it darkened the sky for a long time. The Herald photographer, on another mission, got close enough to snap this picture. The fire didn't attract much attention from anyone else close.

Worst Round Of Grocery Price Increases In More Than A Year

Consumers got hit during July with the worst round of grocery price increases in more than a year, an Associated Press market basket survey shows. The bill went up an average of 4 per cent.

The AP checked the prices of 15 food and nonfood items in 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked at the start of every succeeding month. July was the first month since the beginning of the survey in which the market basket bill went up in every city checked.

TOTALS HIGHER

During June, the AP market basket went down in nine cities and up in four. The U.S. Department of Agriculture market basket for June, the latest month available, showed the price for farm produced foods declined 1 per cent.

The higher totals at the end of July were due in part to higher wholesale prices. The Agriculture Department's Crop Reporting Board said Wednesday that prices of raw farm products went up 6 per cent from June 15 to July 15 after four months of decline.

There were higher prices for cattle, wheat, corn, soybeans and eggs and lower prices for milk, cotton, peaches and dry beans. The farm price levels were reflected in the market basket survey. The AP found higher prices for eggs, which had been steadily declining since last August; a new round of increases in the price of meat; and a slight drop in the cost of milk.

SPECIAL SALES

During June, the price of meat went down, largely because of special sales staged by supermarkets in response to government pleas. The prices received by farmers for their livestock had been declining, but because retail prices remained relatively high through the first half of this year, consumers rebelled and a backlog of meat was created.

The sales during June helped move the backlog onto the family dinner table and wholesale prices started rising again. Now retail prices are right back where they were before the sales and some items cost more now than they did on March 1, 1973.

The price of chopped chineck went up during July in nine of 13 cities checked, was unchanged in two and was down in one—Detroit. The average price on March 1, 1973, was $1.12. By Jan. 1, 1974, the average price was up to $1.23. It dropped back down to $1.12 on July 1, but at the time of the latest check was $1.27, a 13 per cent increase during the month.

EGGS UP

The price of a dozen medium white eggs was up in every city during July, reflecting higher demand and shorter supply. The price remained below the record $1-a-dozen level of last August, however. At the time of the latest check the average price of eggs was 62 cents a dozen, up 19 per cent during the month from 52 cents a dozen on July 1.

The average price on March 1, 1973, was 62 cents. Farmers have been complaining that they lost money and were forced to cut back production when eggs were selling at bargain prices during the first half of this year.

The latest survey showed that increases in the market basket totals ranged from a fraction of a per cent in New York City to 10 per cent in Miami, Fla. The average increase was 4 per cent.

In 11 cities, the bill was higher at the end of July than it was on Jan. 1, 1974, and on the average, prices are 6 per cent higher than they were seven months earlier.

From March 1, 1973, to the end of July, the market basket bill was up an average of 20 per cent.

BRIGHT SPOT

One bright spot during July was milk. The price of a quart of whole milk declined in more cities than any other item. The average price of a quart of milk went from 44 cents on July 1 to 43 cents at the end of the month, a 2 per cent drop, but 19 per cent higher than the 36-cent level on March 1, 1973.

The AP survey covered Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Ga., Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City, Utah, and Seattle.

The items on the checklist were: chopped chuck, pork chops, frozen orange juice, coffee, paper towels, detergent, fabric softener, butter, eggs, peanut butter, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, all-beef frankfurters and granulated sugar.

Standard brands and sizes or their nearest equivalents were used for the survey. The same supermarket in each city was checked on each item. If an item was not available on one of the check dates, it was not included in the market basket total.

DETROIT (AP) — The nation's Big Three auto makers blame rapid inflation for trimming profits by $1.8 billion during the first half of 1974.

For the consumer, the problems of the mammoth firms will translate into price increases on new models in September.

Ford, which rounded out the first-half picture for the industry Wednesday with a reported 65 per cent earnings decline compared with the same period last year, says it plans an 8 per cent increase in wholesale prices for the opening of the 1975 model year.

PRICE TAGS

The other makers plan similar increases, while leaving open the possibility that price tags will swell as the model year proceeds.

Taken together, the Big Three's first-half earnings were at their lowest level in 13 years.

Ford reported earnings of $291 million on sales of $11.4 billion, down from last year's $755 million profit on revenues of $12.4 billion.

General Motors last week listed first-half earnings of 73 per cent at $426 million on sales of $15.2 billion, compared with $1.6 billion profits on sales of $19.2 billion in 1973.

Chrysler's profits were $29.4 million on sales of $5.7 billion, down 85 per cent from profits of $198 million on sales of $6.1 billion in the first half of 1973.

Waste Disposal Bid Withdrawn By Austin Firm

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — An Austin firm has withdrawn its application for a proposed industrial waste disposal site in Limestone County.

Announcement of the withdrawal of the application was made Tuesday by the Texas Water Quality Board which said the firm, Midway Services, had acted following a series of public hearings on the proposed disposal.

John Mobley, president of the company asked on June 4 that action on the application be suspended until after the public hearings. He said on Monday in a letter to Board director Hugh C. Yantis Jr. that he still felt that the disposal site would improve the environment rather than harm it.

"However," Mobley said, "it has become increasingly evident that locally-generated opposition, some of it well meaning, but uninformed, some of it totally irresponsible, was, by misstatement and misrepresentation, created a gross misunderstanding of the project in the minds of local citizens and some public officials."

Mobley said he felt the "created... apprehensions, misconceptions and fears would have a great bearing on the ultimate fate of the application," and that was why the company withdrew it.

Recipe Wins $10,000 For Rancher's Wife

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — Mrs. Fayne Lutz of Taos, N.M., walked unsteadily off the stage of Winston-Salem, North Carolina's Benton Convention Center Thursday night dazed by the $10,000 check in her hand.

Mrs. Lutz's recipe for Hot Chinese Chicken Salad won her the grand prize at the National Chicken Cooking Contest.

This was the celebrator of the 25th anniversary of the contest now sponsored by the National Broiler Council. Fifty-one contestants representing every state and the District of Columbia participated in the contest competitor, and vied for $25,000 in cash prizes.

Mrs. Lutz likes to entertain guests and "eat well". She spends a great deal of free time scouring cookbooks and creating new dishes, and she developed her recipe for the contest "while perfecting my stir-fry techniques". Fayne lived in Japan for two years where she became interested in oriental cooking. She and her husband, who is a pilot, live on a ranch outside Taos.

Second prize went to Dr. Harold Tara of Wayne, New Jersey, who cooked Persian Chicken Kebabs. That recipe was worth $4,000 to Dr. Tara, who says he created it through a trial-and-error process. Dr. Tara was born in Iran and is presently a urological surgeon.

Lenore Swank of Cassopolis, Mich. placed third in the national chicken cookoff. She will bring home $3,000 for her recipe of Wine Glazed Chicken and Vegetables. Mrs. Swank was a farm wife for 50 years, and now, when the family is together it includes 34 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The $2,000 fourth prize was awarded to Ms. Cara Berggren of State College, Penn. for Lindsos Chicken. Ms. Berggren invented her recipe when she was living in Greece and has adapted it for the contest. Ms. Berggren's a free-lance designer.

And the fifth prize winner was Mrs. Elizabeth Evans of Portland, Ore. She received $1,000 for her recipe for Chicken with Shrimp.

The five winning recipes along with the 46 other contestant entries will be included in the Silver Anniversary Cookbook, available from the NCCC Office, 614 Madison Building, 1155 15th Street, N.W. Washington D.C. 20005. Please enclose the $1.00 purchase price.

The Great Strikeout

The Texas Constitutional Convention has struck out.

Whether the body charged with shaping a new state charter went down swinging or was called out on strikes is almost moot, for the effect is the same. For the record, however, it was more like watching the third strike over, based on futile efforts to get as many as 100 votes for any version until just at the last minute.

This points up one of the problems connected with the seven months of seemingly futile effort to squeeze a volume of statutory clutter from the patched-up constitution under which we have functioned for nearly a century: to combine the sense of many amendments into general policy, and to come out with a document in today's languages and geared to today's activities.

Foremost among these problems was a seeming unwillingness to compromise positions. When steadfastness issues from a deep moral conviction, that is one thing; when it is obedience to special interests, it is quite another. The evidence is abundant that failure to have a meeting of the minds resulted vastly more from the latter.

Another problem was trying to get into the constitution things which would be better left to statutory implementation. One reason that the constitution of the United States has survived as a viable instrument is that it has left the changing specifics to be spelled out in the body of law.

These things point to still another, and fundamental problem, namely naming the members of the legislature to be the delegates to the convention. There were misgivings at the start, but most agreed it was unfair to say that legislators could not lay aside their obligations to special, powerful constituents and approach the task for the good of all Texas. All through the convention, and especially in the final phases, it became apparent that many delegates were looking out for their own political futures rather than trying honorably to accommodate their differences.

Months ago former Justice Robert Calvert, who did such superb job of leading the advisory committees through preliminary work for the convention had said (although at the time he was optimistic of passage) that even failure to come up with a proposed constitution need not be a total loss. He said the work done by this convention could be invaluable if another attempt is made to come up with a new constitution.

Indeed, we might start with the lesson of private citizens, not members of the legislature, being named delegates. Secondly, we might try the approach of referendums section by section until the whole of the body is approved or rejected.

Pretty Notable Company

Noted musician Skitch Henderson may have set some sort of record for artistic pique recently when he pleaded innocent to a federal charge of fraud involving a $350,000 tax deduction he claimed on a collection of scores and arrangements he donated to the University of Wisconsin.

After being arraigned on the grand jury indictment, Henderson really didn't seem concerned over the affair as he talked to newsmen. His only complaint involved some of the press stories about the incident.

"I've been a conductor for 30 years and they call me a band leader," he complained bitterly.

Skitch really shouldn't be so upset by the description. Most people still refer to John Phillip Sousa as a band leader which puts Henderson in pretty fair company in the music world.

A Lot To See

Around The Rim

Marj Carpenter

Vacations always interest me. This time of year, people travel to so many different places and as they return, they sing the praises or tell of the horrors of the location which they visited.

MY TROUBLE IS that I simply want to go everywhere, but funds and time have always denied me this pleasure.

But in trying to decide in the few measly places I've gotten to visit in my lifetime on which was the best, it would certainly be hard to choose.

How can one find anything wrong with any of them? Some hate cities, but the many things to do and see and enjoy in Manhattan certainly make it a fine place to visit.

AMONG MY memories are a stark silhouette of Manhattan against a morning sky... a fantastic musical at Radio City... over in Philadelphia, a quiet beauty and dignity around Independence Hall where we sat on the steps and devoured huge Pennsylvania Dutch pretzels bought off a street cart.

DID YOU ever walk from the Lincoln to the Washington Memorial at the nation's capitol? Did you ever stand silently in the graveyard at Gettysburg where all those Civil War dead are buried?

Did you ever watch the lights come on at the state capitol at Harrisburg across the water? Did you ever drive down the roads in front of the old plantations out of New Orleans and look at the hanging moss?

Those aren't scenes over in Europe or somewhere — but the good old U.S.A.

OR IF YOUR time and money won't take you out of Texas, did you ever drive in early morning through the big thicket in East Texas and wonder at the secrets of those pines?

Did you ever walk down the beach on Padre Island and stare at the shrimp boats coming in across the horizon?

Did you ever stand in the Basin at Big Bend and wonder at the sunset?

DID YOU ever watch the production of Texas in Palo Duro Canyon or sit through a musical in Brackenridge Park in San Antonio?

Did you ever really enjoy a day at Six Flags with a group of kids or did you ever look out at the Gulf near Galveston and wonder about the pirates?

Did you ever eat alongside the San Antonio River and wonder about the historical days there, or stand and look at the monument at Goliad and think of those tragic days?

DID YOU ever walk around the old park in El Paso and look at the crocodiles of wonder through Mackenzie State Park in Lubbock and watch those silly prairie dogs?

Did you ever swim at Barton Springs or tour the capitol at Austin or stop to see the Nimitz museum in Fredericksburg?

Did you ever climb a hill or wade a creek near Kerrville or visit a dude ranch at Bandera? Did you ever go to the McDonald Observatory at Fort Davis or fish at Falcon Dam?

You know, there's an awful lot of Texas and in these days of high gasoline, look around. A wonderful vacation, may be closer than you think.

Senators' Chore

William F. Buckley Jr.

Notwithstanding that the vote against Mr. Nixon by the Judiciary Committee was formally bipartisan, the cluster of nays was Republican, and everyone who speaks about the forthcoming event in the Senate speaks about "Republican stalwarts" or "Southern Democratic conservatives" as making up the hard core of "Nixon loyalists." It is of course too bad that, notwithstanding serious efforts, the question of whether Mr. Nixon should be impeached sits up as a partisan affair. Young liberals at one end of the antipodes, are in favor of conviction. Old conservatives, at the other end, are opposed.

AND OF course it is, in a profound sense, a political question rather than a juridical question. By this I mean that scholars equally learned could disagree endlessly on whether Mr. Nixon should have been impeached, though as the factual evidence mounts against him, the burden increases on the non-impeachment scholars.

But non-scholars, and non-lawyers (and they are a majority in the Senate) are in a position to say that their view of the country's interests transcends the kind of discussions about what was or was not said on March 21, 1973 in the Oval office. I could understand, and respect, a senator who took the position that he would not vote to convict the President in the absence of the clear necessity to get him the hell out of the White House because his conduct showed that he had gone off his rocker, that he thought he was Napoleon, or FDR, or somebody. And I could respect a senator who takes the strictest view of the conduct of the White House and concludes that this is a historical opportunity to reorient the presidency toward the high road. Such a senator, upon being asked whether other presidents might not have been impeached if subjected to such rigorous standards, might reply: "Yes, and probably many of them should have been. On the other hand, if we had impeached Andrew Jackson, and maybe one or two since then, the problem of executive arrogance we suffer from now would not afflict us."

HOW PROPER is it for a senator to be influenced, in choosing among the alternative courses of action, by his own constituency? That is a truly vexing problem, because there is that enduring historical ambiguity in the role of the representative in a republic. The House managers of the impeachment proceedings don't have the burden of persuading the people of Nebraska that Nixon has committed an impeachable offense. They have the burden of persuading Sen. Curtis and Sen. Hruska that Nixon has committed an impeachable offense.

LET US ASSUME — for purposes of illustration — that Sen. Hruska and Curtis believed Nixon should be ousted, but that the voters of Nebraska were adamantly opposed to his ouster: how should they vote? There are two schools of thought, one of them plebiscitarian, the other the correct one. Nixon will be tried, and should be, by senators who have been elected not to transcribe the will of the people, but to serve the people according to the senators' best lights. If the people then desire to punish a senator as they punished Sen. Ross for casting the deciding vote for Andrew Johnson, that is the people's privilege, but it ought not to be confused with the privilege to put pressure on individual senators.

"Now my friend here will explain how I'm doing everyone a favor by ripping hell out of the countryside."

Sisco's Tough Talk

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Full-scale war between Turkey and Greece was averted and the seven-year-old military dictatorship in Athens toppled when Washington belatedly abandoned permissiveness and laid down the law to the Greek junta.

THERE IS LITTLE DOUBT Greece would have responded to Turkey's invasion of Turkey were it not for Undersecretary of State Joseph Sisco's backstage pressure in Athens. In most undiplomatic language, Sisco told the Greek generals that the U.S. would abandon them to inevitable destruction if they attacked Turkey. Jolted by this unexpected threat, the military dictatorship backed down and thereby guaranteed its own fall on Tuesday.

But there is no room for American self-congratulation here. The generals held tyrannical power so long because of Washington's coddling. The Cyprus crisis which has shaken the NATO alliance should have been averted by the United States. What's more, this menacing question remains: will bitterness by ordinary Greeks toward Washington for wet-nursing the dictator nation out of the Western alliance?

U.S. POLITES toward Athens date back to the Johnson administration, which embraced the Greek military coup of April 1967. U. S. diplomats in Athens felt the obscure colonels masterminding the coup would have collapsed at a single word from Washington, but that word never came. This policy was perpetuated by the Nixon administration, freezing tyranny in Greece.

Despite a growing coolness toward Athens recently, the U.S. has rigidly refused to pressure the military dictatorship. The current junta, dominated by Brig. Gen. Dimitrios Ioannides, seemed puzzled that Washington demanded so little for friendship and military aid.

NOTING AMERICAN permissiveness coinciding with increased opposition from the Greek people, Ioannides decided on the ancient expedient of faltering regimes: a foreign adventure. Athens' plot to take over Cyprus should have been foreseen and prevented by Washington. Instead, as the junta expected, there was no U.S. interference.

Moreover, working-level State Department officials who wanted to condemn Athens for the Cyprus plot after it occurred were overruled by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, heeding Pentagon fears of losing Greece as NATO's anchor.

Lack Political Clout

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Corporate management is becoming less and less willing to accept blame from shareholders and others about the depressed price of most shares in American industry.

The latest to speak out was the chairman of Sperry Rand Corp., J. Paul Lyet, who blamed the declining price of his stock on economic mismanagement by the federal government.

Earlier critics have blamed what they consider unfairly high capital gains taxes that discourage trading, investment advisers who concentrate on only a handful of stocks and ignore the rest, and the big investment institutions. Lyet told shareholders at the annual meeting this week that the depression in securities prices is merely the extension of an economic malaise resulting from governmental acts of omission or commission.

Moreover, he suggested that powerful as they are financially, corporations lack political clout in Washington because of their inability to deliver votes.

In recent annual meetings, most of which are now concluded, corporate officers bore the brunt of shareholder criticism of share prices, the majority of which are at or just above book value.

While many of them could show solid profits, improving growth prospects and other indications of progress, they had to concede their inability to promote the image and aura that encourages investors.

To a great extent the problem appears to lie in high interest rates, which not only draw money away from equities and into debt securities, such as bonds, but which add greatly to the cost of doing business.

Some businessmen also detect a sense of fear or a lack of interest on the part of investors in making long-range plans, an attitude they tend to associate with a Watergate-induced malaise.

Brandy Nose Misnomer

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have enlarged blood vessels in my nose. The redness is quite prominent and embarrassing. A dermatologist prescribed an ointment some time ago, but it still hasn't cleared up. Is there anything else I can do? — B.A.W.

From the description I would assume it to be acne rosacea, a skin condition seen in older people, particularly women although, as you know, not by any means confined to them.

It's a matter of small blood vessels becoming dilated and more prominent. The nose itself thickens, and flushing extends to other parts of the face as a rule.

Wanting it to clear up completely is probably a vain wish, but there are ways of minimizing it. Alcohol as well as any hot, spicy drink tends to exaggerate the condition — a dermatologist has nicknamed "brandy nose" — and while it is not by any means limited to drinkers, drinking is a factor.

The ointment you tried probably was a drying agent, but since it didn't bring results you should see the dermatologist for something more effective. Such local applications are usually ineffective.

Plain "nerves" can be involved in some cases, and mild sedatives often help when that is the situation.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any truth to the statement, "If you want to get pregnant you can't have sexual intercourse every night because it will kill the sperm before it has a chance to impregnate you?" — Mrs. K.M.

That's essentially nonsense. Intercourse doesn't "kill the sperm." If a husband has a slightly low sperm count, it often helps to avoid intercourse for several days before your fertile period starts. After all, pregnancy is possible only a few days a month at the time you are ovulating. If you don't understand about that, you'll find some explanation of it in my booklet, "Twelve Methods of Birth Control." You can get a copy by mail. Send 25 cents and a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald.

MY ANSWER

Billy Graham

I'm puzzled over the matter of transcendentalism. In our little town, I see posters everywhere advocating transcendental meditation.

The prevalence of cults based on eastern religions is a contemporary phenomenon. People want an answer to spiritual questions. They seek peace of mind and purpose in living. When this is not found in the Word of God — the Bible — the seeking mind turns to human philosophy.

It is said that once when Abraham Lincoln was on the Ohio River, he asked, "What is this transcendentalism that we hear so much about?" The answer came, "You see those swallows digging holes in yonder bank? Well, take away the bank from around those holes, and what is left is transcendentalism."

I am not faulting the practice of contemplation or romantic idealistic meditation. I am saying that in the quest for spiritual truth, we've got to latch on to something of substance. It is not enough to talk as the transcendentalists do of "being," "unity" and "goodness" if our sirs are still unforgiven and heaven unsecured.

If an inquiry into nature leads one to the God and Christ behind the observable world (as it did in Psalms 8), then it is worthwhile.

Fannie Merritt Farmer Took Guesswork Out Of Cooking

BOSTON, Mass. — The Mother of Level Measurements is not a rock band, but the well-deserved title of a great American culinary artist — Fannie Merritt Farmer — the woman who took the guesswork out of cooking.

FANNIE MERRITT FARMER

New inventions of the mid-19th century, like the unpredictable and cumbersome coal range, made cooking more complicated rather than more convenient. Not only did the woman have to slave over a hot iron monstrosity, she had to struggle with recipes sans standard measurements. Cooking was as risky a business as demanding the vote.

Following a recipe calling for a pinch of this, a dash of that, a palm of this and a speck of that made everything from chowders to cakes vary in taste and digestibility from household to household. It was a matter of luck whether or not the family's favorite apple pie turned out a favorite when directions called for butter the size of an egg, a wineglass of spices or a lump of shortening the size of a walnut.

And if grandma hadn't thought to hand down her china cup or silver spoons along with her recipe, the unlucky heir who measured flour and sugar in a new china or silver pattern could end up with a pie that made grandma turn in her grave with indignation.

It wasn't until Fannie Farmer came along with the standardized measuring cups and spoons that reproduction of recipes became as uniform as cars coming off the assembly line.

Writing about her innovation in 1902 Miss Farmer said: "A generation or two ago each household had its favorite cups and spoons of varying sizes which helped as guides in measuring. It was in these days that one often heard the statement: 'Cooks are born, not made.'"

Fannie admitted that

"good judgment and experience taught some to measure by sight," but "a vast majority needed definite guides."

When Fannie enrolled in the Boston Cooking School in 1887, at the age of twenty, she was one of many women who looked to the cooking school for culinary guidance. The industrial revolution, urbanization, and compulsory education drastically altered the woman's former routine of studying the domestic arts under the tutelage of a "wise and competent mother."

Mrs. Mary Bailey Johnson Lincoln, director of the school when Fannie enrolled, complained that "Many women do not know what the simplest things in our daily food are; cannot tell when water is boiling; or the difference between lamb and veal, lard and drippings."

She even went so far as to say that her experience with "such ignorance" suggested the subtitle of her cookbook — "What to do and not to do in cooking."

Apparently Fannie learned what to do quickly. When she completed her two-year course she was named assistant principal of the school; in 1894 she became principal and two years later she wrote her famous "Fannie Farmer Cookbook," now in its 11th edition with over 4 million copies sold in the United States, Europe and Asia.

When Fannie opened her own school of cookery in 1902 her students included society girls, career girls and professional cooks. Her weekly cooking demonstrations were faithfully covered in the Boston Transcript and reprinted around the country. Although polo ended her high school career at 16, and later paralytic attacks finally confined her to a wheelchair, she toured the women's clubs around the country lecturing on cooking and proper diet.

While Miss Farmer prepared for her career as an innovator, educator, lecturer and business woman, the Victorian spokesmen of her day — from the clergy, medicine and science — condemned and warned Americans against any role for the woman other than in the home. One Eastern physician wrote in 1869, "Woman is to deal with domestic affections and uses, not with philosophies and sciences. . . . The house, the chamber, the closet, are the centres of her social life and power, as surely as the sun is the center of the solar system."

Fannie was twelve years old when that was written.

But Fannie Farmer lectured at Harvard Medical School; she trained nurses in various New England hospitals in preparing special diets for the sick; and she wrote a monthly cooking column and authored five books on cookery and diet.

Miss Fannie Farmer — the woman who helped take the jokes out of careers for women and the guesswork out of cooking.

Here's Fannie's famous 20-minute fudge:

- Mix:
- 1 egg, well beaten
- 3 tbsps. cream
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1 lb. confectioner's sugar
- Melt together:
- 4 ozs. unsweetened chocolate
- 1 tbsps. butter
- Add to the first mixture.
- Stir in:
- 1 cup chopped walnut meats or marshmallows, cut in pieces, or some of each.
- Spread in a buttered pan 8 by 8 inches. Cut in squares. Makes 1 1/2 pounds.

A LOVELIER YOU "Not What You Say, But How You Talk"

By MARY SUE MILLER
According to an old maxim: "It's not what you say, but the way you say it."

A simple "Hello" can sound like "I'm glad to see you." Or "Get lost!" The sound of the voice reveals the true meaning of your words.

Further, your voice bespeaks your personality. To exemplify, when a teen speaks in a raucous tone or in a shy, itsy-bitsy girl voice, you know that she has not yet learned the secrets of poise. A flat, whiny or gruff tone causes a woman to sound older than Mrs. Methuselah — weary of it all, out of touch and tune.

Interpretations, however, can be wrong. A person may have all the right attitudes and still lack voice appeal. The trouble then stems from unconscious vocal habits. Improvement is not hard to come by.

What's wanted is a low pitch, warmth and color. To possess those qualities, you first have to listen for admirable traits in other voices and for flaws in your own.

The means to improvement are: 1. For pitch control, read this column aloud. Start in a whisper and end in a shout, keeping your pitch at a low level all the while. 2. To gain warmth, really think about what you say. Put the exclamation point in "Hello!" 3. Increase color by saying a long sentence, up and down the scale.

Practice. You will sound your loveliest.

WINNING MANNERS

"Married" Dogs

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Now I've heard everything. Some woman out in California was so appalled by animals living in "sin" that she has founded The First Religion For Animals. She recently "married" two poodles, so now I suppose she can sleep better knowing that whatever these dogs do is legal, and therefore respectable.

Abby, do you actually believe that dogs are ashamed of anything they do, and that it makes a difference to them if they are "married" or not? PUZZLED IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR PUZZLED: A "marriage ceremony" won't mean a thing to a couple of poodles, because dogs are not ashamed of their natural biological urges, which is more than I can say for the lady in California. Her "marrying" the dogs will help HER — not them.

DEAR ABBY: As the mother of two and grandmother of one (so far), may I jump into the "to-have-or-not-to-have-children" issue?

When anyone asks my daughter (who's been married for four years) whether she plans to have any children, she says: "We're not ready for children yet. Children are great, but once you have them, if you find out that motherhood isn't all it's cracked up to be, you can't send 'em back."

I think her attitude is far more realistic than the girls who get all dewy-eyed over tiny babies — until they spit up, wet their diapers and cry all night.

I know. My children were no picnic to raise, and I admire my daughter and others in her generation who are wise enough to do their growing up before they have children of their own to bring up.

MRS. S. IN VA.
DEAR MRS. S.: Right on! Nothing is sadder than seeing children trying to bring up children.

DEAR ABBY: My son is being married. His mother and I have been divorced for two years, after 26 years of marriage. She still hasn't married the loverboy who broke up our home.

I have had no contact with my "ex" since our divorce, and although I've forgiven her, I don't care if I never see her again. I am informed that Loverboy will be at the wedding. I don't wish to shake hands with either him or her.

Wouldn't it simplify matters if I just stayed away? Any suggestions? MIDWESTERNITE

DEAR MID: If you want to go to your son's wedding, why let Loverboy keep you away? You needn't shake hands with anyone. Keep a comfortable distance, and if you meet head-on, give them a polite nod, and keep walking.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THOSE READERS WHO CHARGED ME WITH CONSULTING A DOZEN EXPERTS INSTEAD OF A DICTIONARY TO LEARN THE DEFINITION OF THE WORD "NESCIENCE":

When I came upon the word, whose meaning I did not know, I immediately got out my hernia edition of Webster's New International Dictionary, and looked it up. I then telephoned a dozen erudite friends, NOT TO LEARN WHAT THE WORD MEANT, BUT TO ASK IF THEY HAD EVER HEARD OF IT.

All were nescient! But after admitting their nescience, each one reached for his dictionary, and looked up the word while still on the telephone. Am I vindicated? ABBY

Ten Women Host Gift Affair For Bride-Elect

A gift shower honoring Miss Sara Johns, bride-elect of Dwayne Ray, was held in the fellowship hall at Prairie View Baptist recently.

Receiving guests with the honoree were her mother, Mrs. Neil Johns of Waco, and the bridegroom-elect's mother, Mrs. Lois M. Ray.

Miss Johns who was attired in a pale green A-line dress, was presented a corsage of green carnations. Hostesses for the affair were Mrs. B. M. Newton, Mrs. Alden Ryan, Mrs. Marian Newton Jr., Mrs. A. J. Pirkle Jr., Mrs. R. C. Thomas, Mrs. Edgar Phillips, Mrs. E. M. Newton, Mrs. H. B. Hatch, Mrs. W. J. Rogers and Mrs. W. C. Fryar.

An out-of-town guest was the bride's sister, Miss Amy Johns, Waco. The refreshment table, appointed with crystal and silver, was covered with a white cloth trimmed in lace. The centerpiece was of yellow and white daisies. The couple plans to be married Aug. 10 in the Woodway First United Methodist Church, Waco.

Primitive Life Appeals To Two

CAMBRIDGE, N.Y. (AP) — Judy Lowry swapped her electric sewing machine for a treadle model when she and her husband moved to a 25-acre plot near here three years ago. Their handmade, one-room home is without electricity or indoor plumbing. But both say they're "committed to this life forever."

"When we first moved here, we lived in a shack," said Judy, 28, whose husband Charles holds a Ph.D. in molecular biology. "Well, it was more of a lean-to . . . It had a dirt floor and we cooked over a camp stove while we were building the big house." Now Judy's cooking is done on a cast iron, wood-burning stove, although she resorts to gas in the summer. The couple moved here from St. Louis, Mo., because Charles wanted to carry on his research in a secluded setting.

Feels Like He Has Taken On The Entire U. S. Air Force

TOKYO (AP) — John R. Deakin, an American resident in Japan, isn't taking any chances. He said Wednesday he feels like he has taken on the entire U.S. Air Force and can't afford not to.

Deakin, 34, a commercial airline pilot originally from Sarasota, Fla., mans a homemade barricade in front of his house and adjacent to Yokota Air Base on the western outskirts of Tokyo.

Fearful that the base he lives next door to was about to cut off the neighborhood's only road with a high steel fence, he constructed a barricade with his sports car, a wooden ladder, and nylon rope where part of the fence is expected to go.

He also set up an alarm system with trip wires and tin cans. With all this plus spotlights and a videotape camera, Deakin maintains 24-hour vigilance.

"Friends have told me I can't fight the entire military establishment," Deakin said in an interview. "And I answered, why not? They're trying to make me a prisoner in my own home."

A spokesman at Yokota Air Base said construction of the fence was ordered for security purposes.

Deakin's neighborhood is composed of foreigners and is nicknamed "America Village." Used originally by Air Force personnel as off-base housing, residents had been allowed to cross base property for the past 18 years in order to reach outside roads.

If the fence is built, residents would either have to build a new road through some backyards or be cut off from the outside.

Deakin said the only official word he got about the fence was a photocopy of a letter addressed to "occupant" and slipped under his door last January.

"This isn't legal notification in Japan or in the United States," he said.

After he blocked fence construction with his makeshift barricade, an Air Force officer set up a meeting July 22 with America Village residents, "but I wasn't permitted to attend because he said I was engaged in illegal activities," Deakin said.

The base spokesman said a moratorium on fence construction was ordered after the meeting and will continue until Aug. 5, when work on the fence is to resume.

Giant Files Boat Suit In Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — A professional football player and five other persons have filed separate suits against the City of Houston claiming the city was responsible for a boating accident last year in Lake Houston.

The plaintiffs include John Mendenhall, 25, a defensive lineman for the New York Giants who lives in Houston.

Other plaintiffs are Chauncey Riggins, Betty Lovick, Curtis Blackmon Jr., and Charles Jones, all of Houston, and Sean McGowan of Washington, D.C.

The six said in their suits they were riding in a boat April 25, 1973 when without warning the boat went over the lake spillway.

Each suffered bodily injury, they said, and claimed the city was responsible because it did not provide a barricade or warning signs.

Board Hears Testimony For And Against Plant

GLEN ROSE, Tex. (AP) — Glistening statements and testimony for and against the proposed Comanche Peak nuclear power plant were presented as the Atomic Safety Licensing Board opened a public hearing Wednesday.

The board will decide on the basis of the testimony what action to take on the Texas Utilities Co. request to build a 2,300-megawatt plant—the first in Texas—near Glen Rose. The hearing continued today.

COURT ACTION
Supporters of the plan, including a massive staff for the utility company and numerous local government and civic officials, offered numerous prepared studies on the effects of a plant.

Opponents made limited appearances at the hearing—and received limited answers from the Texas Utilities Co. legal and scientific staff.

Fort Worth lawyer Denning Chatman said if the board wanted the limited work permit for building a dam on Juaw Creek, he would seek court action to stop the work. He said a client, Dr. Charles Oster, owns land downstream from the site and his water supply would be jeopardized.

CLEAN PLANT
Support for the project centered around long written discussions about the need for the in-reactor facility, its favorable economic impact of the plant's operations, and the operating and construction methods which would be used to insure a safe and environmental-clean plant.

Opposition centered on arguments that the plant would be needed, dangerous and too expensive to operate.

A report favorable to the project was placed in the licensing board records by Cliff J. Hale, senior project manager in the Atomic Energy Commission's licensing division.

"Based on our analysis and evaluation," the report said, "we have concluded that there is reasonable assurance that the proposed site is a suitable location for the two nuclear power reactors . . . from the standpoint of radiological health and safety considerations under the Atomic Energy Act and rules and regulations . . . pursuant thereto."

'NO ARGUMENT'
AEC lawyer Gregory Fess said in an interview that the commission had "no argument" with the plans because Texas Utilities had "agreed to everything we want them to."

Troy B. Conner Jr., a Washington lawyer representing the utilities, presented the panel with multiple volumes of evidence opposing the plant.

Among the documents were a 10-volume environmental study previously given to the Atomic Energy Commission, the AEC final environmental statement and a 12-page statement by Robert K. Campbell, vice president of Texas Power & Light Co., which along with allas Power & Light and Texas Electric Service Co. makes up the Texas Utilities Co. system.

The statement dealt with electrical consumption growth and need for the Comanche Peak plant.

Robert W. Caudle, engineer in charge for the Utilities Co. project, submitted a three-page statement citing need for the nuclear power and urging the issuance of a limited work permit.

The permit would allow the company to construct the Juaw Creek Reservoir dam, which would provide a cooling lake for the plant. Caudle said it would take about 18 months to build the dam.

Among the non-utility supporters of the plant to testify were the Somervell, Hood and Rath county judges, mayors of Jen Rose and Cleburne and the chairmen of the Glen Rose school board and the Glen Rose Industrial Commission.

Somervell County Judge Temple Summers said he had conducted a survey which showed "more than 90 per cent of the local residents" favor the plant.

Granbury school Supt. James Mann, whose system would bear the influx of construction workers' children, said his schools were ready for the new pupils and would not be adversely affected.

The only resident who testified against the plant was Mrs. M. S. Weis of Glen Rose, who said she thought the citizens of her town should have more time to study the proposals and that the licensing board permit should not be granted yet.

Fort Worth and Dallas opponents of the plant were more critical of the proposal and called for a denial of the work permit and a complete end to construction of nuclear reactors in the United States.

Sue Carter, an Arlington resident whose parents own a farm within five miles of the proposed site, presented the licensing board an 11-page statement opposing the plant on safety and environmental grounds. Her statement, in summary, said the plant would be detrimental to the area underground water table, a drain on the Brazos River, increase radioactive pollutants received by the immediate population because of an inadequate vent stack system, a drain on the national uranium supply "which has already been recognized by the AEC as being insufficient," and a producer of a constant rise in electric rates.

Robert Pomeroy, a Dallas-based pilot who has been a frequent critic of the plant, said it was dangerous. He asserted the licensing panel, which was supposed to be independent of the AEC and the nuclear establishment, was subject to bias because of its members' long association with the AEC.

Gen. Adan Appointed Attache In Washington

TEL AVIV (AP) — Gen. Avraham Adan, the tank commander who closed the armored ring around Egypt's 3rd Army during the October war, has been appointed Israel's military attache in Washington.

The military command said on Wednesday that Adan, 48, will assume the post this weekend.

During the October fighting, Adan led his tanks into Egypt, capturing the city of Suez and cutting off Egyptians who had crossed to the eastern side of the Suez canal.

Farmer's Market Lures Shoppers To City Area

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Shoppers in this farm belt city are fighting the supermarket syndrome with something new to them, a farmer's market. It's amazing, said Dick Myers, a bearded farmer from Middletown. "We can't sell it fast enough."
Crowds of shoppers swarm every Tuesday around trucks loaded with corn, tomatoes, squash, cucumbers and other produce, buying everything in sight. "It's amazing," said Dick Myers, a bearded farmer from Middletown. "We can't sell it fast enough."
Springfield started its farmer's market three weeks ago in an effort to lure shoppers to the downtown area and away from the big supermarkets that ring the city.

the big supermarkets that ring the city. "We sell sweet corn to the supermarkets, too," said Myers, who farms about 100 acres north of Springfield. "We get about 80 or 90 cents a dozen for corn. Here we sell it retail, about $1 to $1.25 a dozen. But the customer gets it fresh, picked this morning."
Some shoppers grumble about prices, saying they should be lower than in supermarkets. But most are more concerned with freshness and quality. "The bargain is in the freshness," said Linda Adams of Virdon, who bought a bushel of string beans and sacks of corn and brussels sprouts. "This stuff lies in the stores for days and days. There's a real difference."
So far, there's been only one sour note about the market. The supply lags behind the demand. Some shoppers made special trips downtown, fought the crowd and then found what they wanted was sold out.

Five Minutes Are Missing From White House Tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than five minutes are missing from White House tapes of a Watergate conversation between President Nixon and his two closest advisers at the time the cover-up was unraveled.

on Wednesday to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica. The gap occurred because a reel ran out midway through a 45-minute meeting between Nixon, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman on April 17, 1973, St. Clair wrote.

"Judging from the notations on the tape boxes, the tape ran out and was replaced in the midst of this conversation," St. Clair said. "A timing of the two segments indicates that approximately five minutes and 12 seconds of conversation were never recorded."

The disclosure was contained in an eight-page index and analysis of the tapes of 29 conversations delivered to Sirica Tuesday in partial compliance with a subpoena for recordings of 61 conversations. Tapes of another 12 sessions are due in court Friday and the others are to be turned over later.

PRIVATE INVESTIGATION
Nixon must relinquish the tapes to Sirica for his private inspection to determine which parts to provide to the Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski for use in the cover-up trial being held in September.

The judge was rejecting Nixon's request that portions of 10 of the conversations in the first batch be withheld from Jaworski.

Nixon claims those portions are shielded from disclosure by executive privilege and that they are unrelated to the Watergate case. St. Clair stated the executive privilege claims in the papers submitted to Sirica during a one-hour closed hearing and later filed in the public record.

The White House has published edited transcripts of the 29 conversations already surrendered.

PRECISE POINT
The gap in the April 17 conversation is the only missing portion St. Clair listed.

According to the White House transcript, Nixon, Haldeman and Ehrlichman spent the 45-minute session discussing the wording of a public statement Nixon would make later that day. In it, he announced "major developments" in the Watergate investigation, said White House staff members would testify if summoned before the Senate Watergate committee and declared no top administration employees would be given immunity from prosecution.

St. Clair listed the page of the transcript at which the gap occurred but did not note the precise point of the omission. It could not be clearly determined from reading the transcript.

The executive privilege claims involve Nixon's meetings with aides on March 27, April 14, April 15, April 16 and April 17, 1973, the period after John W. Dean III and Jeb S. Magruder had confessed to prosecutors.

In all cases, the segments are excluded from the White House transcripts with the notation "material unrelated to presidential actions deleted."

Does Not Expect Nixon To Seek Quick House Vote

BOSTON (AP)—Sen. Edward Kennedy says he does not expect President Nixon to seek a quick House vote on impeachment so he can stand trial sooner in the Senate.

In an interview with the Boston Herald American in Washington on Wednesday, at Massachusetts Democrat said, "I've heard talk about the possibility, but I don't expect it will happen."

Several White House aides said Wednesday that option was open but not under active consideration.

Kennedy refused to predict how the Senate would vote, but he forecast overwhelming approval of impeachment in the House.

He praised the House Judiciary Committee, which recommended three articles of impeachment. He said the panel performed a "noble service" at a time when a large segment of the public held government institutions—and the Congress itself—in low esteem.

Asked whether he had decided to seek the presidency in 1976, Kennedy said, "My target date is still next year. I will make my intentions known at that time, if not before. Right now I'm still undecided."

FEMALE EVEL KNEIVEL? — Debbie Lawler of Phoenix sits aboard a motorcycle in New York Wednesday. She is a professional motorcycle jumper and is billed as "the flying angel." She equaled Evel Knievel's record by going over 16 cars early this year, although he recaptured sole possession by jumping 17 last month. "There's nothing to protect you and you can't calculate speed," she says. "That's why we draw such big crowds."

Texans Barely Win, 7-6

HOUSTON (AP) — The World Football League's Houston Texans don't score many points. But neither does their opposition. "We must be the best defensive team in the WFL," said Houston Coach Jim Garrett after the Texans edged the previously unbeaten Florida Blazers 7-6 Wednesday night. John Mallory set up the only touchdown on a 59-yard pass interception return with about a minute and a half gone in the first quarter. The only other points scored were two field goals by the Blazers' Les Perry as an announced "nickel hot dog night" crowd of 16,263 in the Astrodome watched the ragged defensive struggle. Houston managed 157 total yards and Florida picked up only 120 yards in a contest that saw both teams penalized a total of 217 yards.

Conover Rips New League

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice's Al Conover has been known to throw a chair through a window to fire up his Owls, but now he's showing his form at throwing 1-2 combinations against professional football. Conover, who must compete with six pro franchises and two other college teams for the sports entertainment dollar, came out swinging from the heels Wednesday when asked his opinion of the World Football League. "I can't imagine 26,000 people or 6,000 paying $7, or $3.30 or a dime to see that mess," Conover said, confessing he sat through one half of a Houston Texans game in the Astrodome but left at the half. "It was the worst I've ever seen," Conover said. "I couldn't believe it, I said, 'what are they doing to my game.' The game of football means a lot to me. "What they're doing is like taking a beautiful picture and painting something bad on it." Not even taking a breather between rounds, Conover then launched a few jabs at the National Football League Players Association (NFLPA) strike. "I think it's the biggest bunch of garbage I've ever seen," Conover said. "It makes me want to throw up just talking about it. I think they are distorting the game and what it stands for."

North Hangs On To Win, 85-77

HOUSTON (AP) — The South was about to rise in the Texas High School Coaches Association (THSCA) all-star basketball game Wednesday night when Gary Goodner and Larry Harris led a cavalry charge that turned back the Rebels. Goodner scored nine points in the last 4:30 of the fourth quarter and Harris, hobbled most of the game by three fouls, scored six points in an overtime to lead the taller and favored North to an 85-77 victory. "We had six or eight work-outs to get it together and we did," said Goodner, a University of Texas-bound star from Denton, who finished with a game-high 22 points and shared the most valuable player award with two others. "They (South players) started getting second and third shots and moving our big men outside. But we just made up our minds that we were going to turn it around and we did," Goodner added. agate

Ducks Approve Of Lubbock

LUBBOCK — The Texas Panhandle may look dry and dusty to most folks, but to a large population of ducks, its home. A brood production survey was run in early July by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept. and an accurate estimation of waterfowl production has been initiated. "We use a system of transect lines for estimating brood production," Bob West, Texas Parks and Wildlife waterfowl biologist, said today in Canyon. "I have observed along these transect lines over one thousand broods of waterfowl with an average of five ducklings in each brood," he continued. Among the species spotted by West are mallard, pintail, cinnamon, blue-winged teal, ruddy, redhead ducks. Also, coots are prevalent on nearly every lake. The survey will furnish much needed data as to the yearly fluxuation of waterfowl numbers, nests, and a year-to-year census for the state and federal regulating agencies. Periodic droughts and sporadic rains will affect the nesting of hens although late rains this summer will allow broods to mature before the annual early teal season in September. Many of the early mallard and pintail ducks bagged by Panhandle duck hunters are thought to be Texas-raised birds. A more complete picture of this aspect will be studied when the department starts its summer brood banding program next summer.

Tiant Can't Lose; Perry Can't Win

By The Associated Press — Tiant's catching in Boston. For the second straight game between the Detroit Tigers and Boston Red Sox, a catcher committed a misplay that led to his team's undoing. Wednesday night Detroit was undone 5-4. With runners on first and second and two out in the Boston fourth, Rick Miller swung and missed for a third strike. But the ball bounced off catcher Gene Lamont's glove, hit his knee and rolled about 10 feet away. Miller was safe at first and the Red Sox went on to score five runs, providing the cushion for Luis Tiant's 16th victory. "KICKED IT!" "He just kicked it with his knee," Detroit Manager Ralph Houk said of Lamont's misplay. "It was just one of those things." Tuesday night, with the score tied 5-5, two on and two out in the Detroit ninth, Boston catcher Tim Blackwell threw wild on an attempted pickoff at third. Two runs scored and the Tigers won 7-5. In other AL action, the Baltimore Orioles topped Cleveland 7-4 as Gaylord Perry failed again to win No. 16; the Texas Rangers edged the Oakland A's 7-6; the California Angels trounced the Chicago White Sox 14-4; the New York Yankees edged the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3, and the Kansas City Royals ripped the Minnesota Twins 32-7.

Slick Hill Performance Gives Cardinals Lead

By The Associated Press — Al Hrabosky is proving that patience is indeed a virtue. The patience, in this case, belonged to St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst, who stuck with Hrabosky even though the 25-year-old left-hander got off to a horrid start this season. The latest dividend on Schoendienst's confidence came Wednesday night, when Hrabosky put the clamps on a Philadelphia comeback and saved a 9-8 victory for the Cards, lifting St. Louis into a first-place tie with Philadelphia in the National League East. Hrabosky's earned run average ballooned as high as 10.43 earlier this year. Elsewhere in the National League, the Atlanta Braves routed the San Francisco Giants 9-0, the Montreal Expos swept a doubleheader from the Chicago Cubs 7-4 and 4-0, the Pittsburgh Pirates pounded the New York Mets 8-3, the Cincinnati Reds blanked the Houston Astros 4-0 and the Los Angeles Dodgers routed the San Diego Padres 15-4.

60 STATIONS TO CARRY THEM Large TV Audiences Sure To See Ruidoso Features

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. — Take a quarter horse classic, add several heappings of big cash, mix well on TV, and what do you have? The answer, apparently, is a huge Sunday afternoon viewing audience. That's the word from Thad Sandstrom, the moving force behind the All-American Network, conceived and developed by Sandstrom, produces a live telecast of the Triple Crown races at Ruidoso Downs. The Kansas and the Rainbow Futurities go out to a sizeable audience in this section of the country, while the All-American telecast, on Labor Day, is televised coast-to-coast. The All-American penetration includes every major market in the country. Next stop in the three-part series is the Rainbow Futurity on Sunday, Aug. 4. "The fact so much money rides on the outcome of a race of only 400 yards or so has been a point of great viewer appeal," Sandstrom said. "There's no doubt the tremendous size of the purses has helped generate considerable interest." The Kansas Futurity, run June 23, offered prize money of $388,705. The upcoming Rainbow packs a purse of $301,560. The All-American Futurity offers a total pot of $1,030,000. "The overall interest in the Rainbow Futurity is much higher as a result of the previous telecasts," Sandstrom said. "But I'd say the single biggest change is the fact we have so many people anticipating the telecasts, as opposed to a large number who are looking for something to watch on Sunday afternoon, and just stumble onto the program." SIZEABLE GAIN The Aug. 4 show is expected to reach about five million viewers via some 60 stations in 14 states (plus the West Indies). This would be a gain of about 1.5 million viewers over the last year's Rainbow telecast, which went out to 45 stations. This year's improved lineup includes an outlet in St. Louis and a high-powered VHF station in Houston. The Rainbow show will include a special feature entitled "How to Watch a Quarter Horse Race." Don Essary, director of racing for the American Quarter Horse Association, will take part in the segment. The general telecast techniques will include the use of a versatile hand-held camera behind the starting gate and in the paddock. The telecast team will again consist of Sandstrom; Jerry Holley; and Ruidoso Downs announcer Bob Dudich, who'll call the race and provide incisive post-race analysis. Dudich's in-depth review of the race will be accompanied by a slow-motion re-run on video tape. The show will be beamed from 3-4 p.m. Central Daylight Time. In Texas, the show will be seen in the following markets: Amilene, Amarillo, Austin, Corpus Christi, Dallas-Ft. Worth, El Paso, Harlingen, Houston, Lubbock, Laredo, Odessa-Midland, Port Arthur, San Angelo, San Antonio and Temple. IN NETWORK Other states included in the network: Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Oklahoma and South Dakota. In the West Indies, the Rainbow will be carried in St. Martins and Virgin Islands via a tape-delay basis.

Lanny Wadkins Off His Feed As Linkster

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — "I won't panic," Lanny Wadkins said. "I'm having a bad year. But I'm only 24. There's lots of time." He paused and repeated himself: "I won't panic." Wadkins made the observation before teeing off today as defending champion in the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic. He set money-winning records each of his first two seasons on the tour, $116,616 as a rookie and $200,455 as a sophomore last year. He won three times in those two seasons and ranked high among the most promising young professionals. This year has been a different story. He's won only $47,697 with the season two-thirds gone. An eagle on the last hole got him a second place finish in Phoenix in January. He hasn't threatened since. In one string of seven consecutive appearances he missed the cut five times and withdrew once. Wadkins seemed to agree. "It's just a bad year," he said. "I've always been a good iron player. This year I've had a lot of trouble with my irons. My swing got kind of kinky. "I've been working on it. I mean really working on it, the hardest I've ever worked in my life. "It seems to be coming around. It's not all right yet, but it seems to be getting there. "And," he continued, a big smile breaking across his face, "it's just at the right time. I'd sure like to be playing good in August." August is the richest month on the schedule. The five tournaments in the month offer $1,125,000 in total prize money. "If I could play good the rest of the season I could still make $200,000," Wadkins said. "And, look, if I win the PGA, well that gets you in the World Series and that could be another $50,000 so that's maybe $250,000 for the year." He and some of the other Young Lions—Jerry Heard, Tom Watson, Ben Crenshaw, John Mahaffey—ranked high among the list of favorites for the $40,000 first prize here. Other standouts included Dave Stockton, Tom Weiskopf, Dave Hill, Bruce Crampton, England's Tony Jacklin, Canadian Open champion Bobby Nichols and Lee Elder, the runner-up each of the last two seasons when this tournament was known as the USI Classic.

Sanjay Gandhi To Wed Beauty

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Sanjay Gandhi, 28, the younger son of Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, is engaged to marry former college beauty queen Maneka Anand.

TWBIC

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The outcome didn't change but an election contest suit here over a Democratic state senate nomination has revealed an apparent soft spot in new Texas election laws.

SUIT REVEALS

Apparent Soft Spot In New Election Laws

uled on Wednesday that Frank Lombardino won the Democratic nomination for Bexar County's District 26 state senate seat over Joe Bernal.

Lombardino led the June 1 primary runoff by 129 votes and then Bernal filed his suit. Dice, in signing an agreed judgment, ruled Bernal successfully challenged 30 votes and so Dice gave the victory to Lombardino by 99 votes.

The runoff race pitted Lombardino, a state representative, against Bernal, who lost his senate seat in a previous election, for the senate seat now held by Nelson Wolff. Wolff declined to run for re-election and instead lost a bid for the Democratic Congressional nomination for the seat held by retiring U.S. Rep. O. C. Fisher, D-Tex.

Bernal attacked alleged voting by the same person in both Democratic and Republican primaries. Investigation in connection with the contest suit showed 150 persons voted in both primaries and one person probably voted in the primaries of the two major parties and also the Raza Unida Party.

The investigation showed some of the voters who participated in more than one primary cast ballots for Bernal and others for Lombardino, allowing Bernal to make little headway.

Jack Leon, attorney for Lombardino and Bernal said the suit helped point out some of the problems arising from the 1974 Texas Election Code.

"The voter registration system provides no advance notice for poll judges about who is voting... that is, who voted in other party primaries," said Leon.

In past elections the election judge could check voter's registration card for a stamp to see if the voter had voted in another party primary. Such cards are no longer stamped.

Wants Divorce After 34 Years

DALLAS (AP) — After 34 years of marriage, Deputy Secretary of Defense William P. Clements Jr. has petitioned for divorce from his wife, Pauline.

The divorce petition, filed here July 12, said the marriage was "insupportable because of discord and conflict which has destroyed the legitimate ends of the marriage relationship and prevents any reasonable expectation of reconciliation."

Before becoming deputy secretary of defense, Clements was president of Sedco, a Dallas-based oil drilling firm.

Building Plan Progressing

Good progress toward a new headquarters building in Big Spring is being made, Clyde McMahon Sr., chairman of the building committee, told the Colorado River Municipal Water District trustees in a meeting here today.

A basic floor plan has been selected and drawings will begin as soon as a topographic map is obtained so that the actual site at Goliad and FM 700 can be staked. The building will contain 8,320 square feet.

Proposals for revamping the Pension and Retirement system are still under consideration, said H. S. (Duke) Sampson, chairman of the personnel committee. Anticipated changes would prove more beneficial to employees. The board also approved adjustments on ceilings for virtually all positions under its merit system.

An offer for sale of district-owned land near Lake Thomas was tabled to see if the district may have need for it in developing additional kish water wells in that general area. The first of three additional wells in that general area is due for completion within about a week.

Greek Cartoonists Having Fun At Last

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — After seven years of military dictatorship, Greece's liberated newspaper cartoonists are having a field day.

Tuesday's edition of the weekly Paratiritis (Observer) featured ex-strongman George Papadopoulos — ousted last November by another military man — in tiny shorts, muscles rippling, in a wrestler's pose. His wife, Despina, was in a micro-miniskirt with a sash reading "Miss Democracy 1974."

Another cartoon in Paratiritis shows deposed King Constantine offering Papadopoulos a large silver cup "for winning the Greek dictatorship marathon." His six and a half years was the longest rule of any Greek dictator since the modern state was founded in 1830.

An evening daily showed Papadopoulos' deputy premier Nicholas Makarezos and one of his appointees holding candles at a church service. The caption read: "At their own funeral."

There was strict press censorship under the military dictatorship, and even under the new civilian government of Premier Constantine Karamanlis police control of newspapers has not entirely disappeared. But the new government apparently does not object to ridicule of the old military dictators.

"DEMOCRACY" Many cartoons now focus on the emblem of the old dictatorship, a phoenix rising from the ashes with a soldier at arms. The emblem, which decorated all public buildings, has been ordered removed by the new government.

Cartoons show the phoenix burning in its ashes, being plucked or being roasted on a spit, a traditional Greek culinary method.

One cartoon shows a phoenix hatching an egg in its nest with a contented look on its face. In a second panel the bird squawks in horror when out of the egg steps a smiling little man with a banner reading "democracy."

New Engine Could Save Gasoline

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co. says it can achieve a 25 per cent gasoline savings with a new stratified charge engine, but can't build it unless future pollution rules are relaxed.

Ford President Lee Iacocca said today the firm is "more optimistic than ever" about the stratified charge engines, which spread combustion over a longer period of time to obtain a more efficient burn.

"These engines have two rather important characteristics: They can meet current emission standards, and they can deliver a fuel-economy improvement of up to 25 per cent, compared with current engines," he said.

The experimental engine, however, cannot be tuned to meet the scheduled 1978 limits on emissions of nitrogen oxide exhausts, Iacocca said in remarks prepared for the 1975 Lincoln-Mercury preview.

Pre-Sentence Hearing For Henley Postponed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A pre-sentencing hearing for convicted mass murder defendant Elmer Wayne Henley has been postponed until Aug. 7, District Court Judge Preston H. Dial said Wednesday.

The hearing, originally scheduled for today, was delayed because of a death in the family of Rudy Escuivel, Henley's lawyer in San Antonio. Henley's Houston lawyer, Will Gray, asked for the postponement.

When the hearing opens, Dial will rule on Henley's motion for a new trial and also allow the defense to offer evidence on its motion to perfect exceptions to Dial's trial rulings.

Meanwhile, Henley, 18, remains in a one-man cell in the Bexar County jail.

He was convicted 2 1/2 weeks ago on six murder charges and a jury here assessed his punishment at 99 years in prison for each of the six convictions. Henley was tried on charges involving six of 27 deaths in a Houston homosexual torture ring.

Dial has not yet exercised his option to make the prison terms concurrent or consecutive. Regardless of the judge's ruling, Henley would be eligible for parole under optimum conditions in about 8 1/2 years in event his planned appeals failed.

There is a possibility Dial will sentence Henley Aug. 7 if the defense decides not to amend further its motion for a new trial and Dial overrules the motion already on file.

For the pre-sentencing matters, 19 defense subpoenas for representatives of 15 San Antonio news gathering organizations have been issued. Gray contends the trial, which was moved from Houston to here, should have been moved from San Antonio also because of news coverage.

Henley's lawyer also claims Dial should have held a hearing to determine whether newsmen attempted to contact families of jurors.

Gray also cites as an alleged error Dial's starting selection of jurors in secret before the judge reversed himself.
