HIEDI LEAVES FOR HAWAII - Heidi Biggs, 14-year-old girl from Belleville, Illinois who is suffering from terminal cancer, waves goodbye to well-wishers from the steps on the plane which has carried her to a dreamed for vacation in Hawaii. Heidi, accompanied by her mother, Lucille, will spend a week in the islands. The cancer disease and its treatment has caused the young girl to loose her hair and her weight to drop to only 54 pounds. She now wears a wig. Heidi says she plans to ride horses and be a real tourist in Hawaii.

Cost Of Stamps Will Be Raised This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) - Postal rates will go up by the end of the year and it will cost 12 or 13 cents to mail a first-class letter that now carries a 10-cent stamp, says Postmaster Gen. Benjamin F.

"We are experiencing some very substantial cost increases. We are presently operating at a deficit," Bailar said Sunday on ABC's 'Issues and Answers.'

"We are continuing to have experience with the same inflation that s plaguing the rest of the country and we have labor negotiations coming up this summer," he said.

Another postal service spokesman later said the deficit is "in excess of $800 million this year." He said that the total government subsidy for the postal service for fiscal 1974 was $1.7

"Relatively speaking, we are becoming less dependent on public subsidies," said the spokesman. He explained that during the 12 years prior to postal reorganization in July 1971, subsidies averaged 17.7 per cent of income. In comparison, over the past three years, subsidies averaged 15.4 per cent of income, he

The last first-class postage rate increase, from 8 cents to 10 cents, took effect last March. If the rate for first class mail goes to 12 cents, it will have doubled since 1968.

Postal rates are set by a fivemember Postal Rate Commission, which passes on rates proposed by the postal service. The postal service can increase rates on a temporary basis while the commission weighs requests for permanently

Airman Killed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - Police sought today two men who shot and killed a 19yearold airman after robbing him of $25.

Police said Thomas Young, assigned as a flight medic trainee at Brooks AFB in San Antonio, and another airman, Martin Sabin, 18, were approached by two men who offered them a narcotics deal in the parking lot of a far east side shopping center. When they refused, one of the men pulled a pistol and ordered the two airmen into their car, police said.

The men drove around a residential section behind the shopping center until the robbers ordered the two airmen to get out of the car and surrender their wallets. Sabin told police both men lost about $25 each.

The bandits fled afoot, Sabin said, and Young jumped into his car and gave pursuit. When the car reached a dead end, the two airmen got out and chased the robbers down an alley.

Then, Sabin told police, one of the men whirled around and fired a volley of shots from about 10 feet away. One struck Young in the heart.

The friend smiled and paused, as if expecting John to say more. But no more was said.

Betty Gargan, a cousin and close friend of the Kennedy family, said that when the children get together, they rarely talk about their family's history.

"They know each other so well, they enjoy a chance just to be together," she said. "For instance, when Teddy Jr. had his leg amputated, my son Joey, who was 13, spent every weekend with him in the hospital. He slept in his room. Bandaged his leg. He was with him all the time.

'Then we went to Florida over Christmas and someone found Teddy a large three-wheeler. And they both rode bikes together, just like they always did. It was as if nothing had changed."

Teddy Jr., 13, who had his leg amputated 15 months ago to halt the spread of bone cancer, spent the weekend skiing with his family and his cousin, Joey Gargan. Young Kennedy has outrigger, ski-tipped poles to help him master the slopes.

Teddy Jr. and Joey laughed, played charades, shot spit balls and threw whipped cream at each other - and little was made of young Kennedy's handicap.

So, besides relieving the strain on their pocketbooks, they're also helping their hearts.

Dr. Logan notes that the saturated fats and cholesterol in whole milk products, rich desserts and choice meats can increase the risk of heart attack and

"Substitutes for these foods - skim milk and its byproducts, fresh fruit, and fish and poultry — are low in these dangerous substances," he says. "These substitutes not only add variety to your family's menu, but also help to cut your food budget and improve your heart-health."

One exception to the costcholesterol confrontation, Dr. Logan says, is egg yolks. Eggs tend to go up and down in price with the season and market conditions.

"Don't get caught in the price squeeze by serving more eggs just because they make for less expensive eating than other foods," he cautions. "The whites of eggs are rich in protein and good for you, but the yolks are the greatest single source of cholesterol. The Heart Association recommends no more than three egg yolks a week, including those used in baked goods."

What does it mean if your regular diet is typically American — loaded with cholesterol and saturated fats?

Dr. Logan explains that too much of these harmful substances in the blood can contribute to a disease called atherosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries - a condition in which cholesterl and other fatty materials build up inside arteries through which blood must flow to the vital body organs. As this continues to coat the inner walls over the years, the artery channels grow narrow. When a blood clot forms and reduces or completely blocks the flow of blood, the result can be a heart attack or stroke.

One easy, enjoyable way to eat well and have a healthy heart is to make the recently pubished American Heart Association Cookbook one of your standard kitchen references, says Dr. Logan.

"It's not a diet book, but one that emphasizes low-fat, low-cholesterol cooking. There are more than 400 heart-healthy recipes for everything from appetizers to desserts. And it even tells you how to adapt your favorite recipes for healthier

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paid informants of the FBI were traveling abroad to spy on revolutionary groups here and overseas, while CIA agents were infiltrating domestic antiwar groups as part of a plan to penetrate the Soviet intelligence system, according to two accounts.

The reported activities showed the overlapping operations of the two intelligence agencies. The CIA is limited by law to foreign intelligence operations while the FBI handles internal security functions.

Meanwhile, two former CIA counterintelligence officers and a former security director of the agency were to testify today before the Rockefeller commission's investigation of CIA domestic spying operations.

The officials, all of whom retired at the end of 1974, are Howard J. Osborn, director of security, N. Scott Miler, chief of operations in the counteringelligence staff, and Raymond G. Rocca, deputy chief of the counterintelligence unit. Ray S. Cline, deputy director for intelligence in the CIA until 1966, said the attempt to gain entrance to the Soviet intelligence system through antiwar activists here was unsuccessful.

"Some guy got the bright idea that if you hired a young man or woman who was a really reliable person and able to take on the protective coloration of the antiwar movement and sent him overseas the Soviets might try to recruit him," Cline

However, he said he didn't think the program lasted long enough to be successful. The agents who infiltrated the peace movement did make reports to the FBI, Cline said.

"The reports were made because of heavy pressure from the White House to get something on the (antiwar) movement. I think they were a mistake," Cline said. He said the CIA never established any evidence the Soviets were trying to manipulate the Vietnam war protest movement

Meanwhile, spokesman James Murphy said the FBI paid travel expenses and fees to informants who traveled overseas to keep watch on organizations which have activities outside of U.S. borders.

In the men's mile at San Diego, Filbert Bayi, the 21year-old Tanzanian, didn't set a world record, but he didn't miss by much posting the third fastest indoor mile in history. Bayi's time was 3:56.4 — just 1.4 seconds off Tony Waldrop's world mark - as he beat New Zealand's John Walker and middle-distance specialist Rick Wohlhuter.

Joni Huntley, a freshman at Oregon State, won the high jump in 6-2 and Herm Frazier of Arizona State captured the 500-yard dash in 55.9 seconds in other highlights of the San Diego meet

Pays Good Dividends

The Texas Tourist Development Agency, now in its 11th year, will compete as it does every odd year with other agencies for a fair share of the tax dollar. By performance alone, the dividends it returns in tourist dollars should persuade legislators to fund it

In 1963, when the agency was created by an act of the legislature, Texas ranked well down among the states in visitor spending. Yet by 1973 Texas ranked fourth, behind California, Florida and New York, in the value of its tourist industry. In 1973 tourists spent an estimated $2.1 billion in Texas.

It would be foolish to claim that this improvement was solely the work of the state tourist development agency. But the agency was responsible for advertising in other states the advantages of vacationing in Texas. That advertising and other missionary work brought to the attention of residents in other states the wide variety of geography, of flaura and fauna, of mountains and seashore to be found in Texas.

Robert Novak

The tourist agency this year is asking the legislature to grant it a 46 per cent increase for the next bicennium from $1.3 million for the present biennium to $1.9 million in the upcoming biennium. This allows for the erosion of inflation and for an expanded program of attracting tourists to Texas.

There is no point in pretending that a 46 per cent the labor force.

increase is a "sacred" figure. Compromise is the essence of the legislative process. But the final figure should be a generous increase, if for no other reason than the fact that the program brings in an estimated $100 for each tax dollar invested, and that the tourist industry in the state accounts for one of every 12 jobs in

Hey, Hay Gone Away

The phrase, "and that ain't hay," has long been used to indicate the value of something being talked about, with the implication that hay is of little value.

Not any more. According to the National Hay Assn., hay has joined the lengthening list of items the world is short of today, and prices have gone up accordingly.

In 1973, more than 62-million acres were planted in hay crops. Total production was 135-million tons, with a total value of more than $5 billion. That was when hay sold for about $35 a ton; today it's shot over $100.

And that — dast we say it? — ain't peanuts.

BASRA, Iraq - The fact that Sddam Hussein, the leader of Iraq's revolutionary Ba'ath government, personally lifted the secrecy veil so that we could visit the "Soviet naval base" at Um Qasr on the Persian Gulf tells much about the subtleties of Iraq's nationalistic foreign policy.

DESPITE THE Iraqi-Soviet treaty of 1972, the force of Arab nationalism which gave the Ba'ath party dictatorial power in the 1968 revolution acts as a brake on Soviet or any other foreign influence.

That helps explain Saddam Hussein's response when we asked about alleged Soviet base rights to

Um Qasr is, indeed, a mini-naval base. However, the Iraqi patrol and torpedo boat navy base we saw, along with fishing and small cargo ships, seemed far removed from the "Soviet naval base" the Pentagon listed last year as one of three major Soviet bases in the Persian Gulf-Indian Ocean regions, chips in super-power rivalry for control of strategic oil lanes.

UM QASR lies on a shallow, narrow estuary at the northwest edge of the Persian Gulf. It consists of half a dozen jetties or piers built out into the estuary from naked sand, three of which are incomplete, plus housing for 1,200 officers and men of the miniscule Iraqi navy.

IN LATE November, after President Ford asked for funds for a new U.S. Navy installation on the Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia, the Pentagon listed Um Qasr along with two other Soviet bases -Aden, in South Yemen, and Berbera in African Somalia - as the reasons. Aden and Berbera do indeed quarter and service Soviet naval vessels. Even if they did not, the proposed American installation at Diego Garcia to counter the muscular Soviet presence in South Asian has more than ample justification.

But as of today, U.S., fears that the mini-port of Um Qasr is also a Soviet naval base seem grossly inflated.

WE FLEW there from Basra in a French-built Alouette III helicopter across perhaps 50 miles of flat, empty sand, barren of any habitation, until we reached the cluster of sheds, housing and headquarters buildings of the Iraqi navy at Um Qasr. Riding at anchor in a slow current of the narrow estuary were a couple of small freighters. We saw no sign of heavy naval stores, ammunition, spare parts, guns and other accourrements of a Soviet naval base.

Before embarking on our tour, the Iraqi naval commander, Adm. Abdu al-Dairy, told us in Basra with heavy sarcasm that it was "important to know the truth about our Soviet naval base at Um Qasr."

"WARSHIPS HAVE to be on water," he said. "They cannot hide. If the Soviet navy is bringing its warships to Um Qasr, they must go through the Strait of Hormuz (at the entrance to the Persian Gulf). The Iranians see every ship that goes through the strait."

The admiral claimed that the Soviet flag has been seen in waters around Um Qasr only when Iraq took delivery of a Soviet-made patrol or minesweeping vessel.

Western European specialists in Baghdad, who have never been permitted to inspect the Ym Qasr port facilities, told us that although destroyer-size vessels can navigate the estuary up to Um Qasr, the port's confinement and vulnerability to channel obstruction make it highly undesirable as a "naval base" for Moscow or anyone else.

THE SIGNIFICANCE of opening Um Qasr to Western view, however, transcends its dubious utility, present or future, as a "Soviet naval base." Rather, it underlines this ambiguity: despite its Moscow treaty, the singlemost nationalistic, anti-Western Arab state now courts Western help to achieve rapid economic growth financed by vast

Erratic Labels

Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON - How totally meaningless current political labels are is seen in the banner of those coming together as "conservatives" to challenge President Ford. They seem to believe that by cutting social programs they will conserve the present system, whereas it is perfectly obvious that if such cuts could be put through against the resistance of a Democratic congress, they would only deepen the already serious recession.

THEY ARE A KIND of suicide squad. In the war in the Pacific kamikazi was the term for Japanese pilots who crashed their planes onto American warships. That appears to be the role of the true believers on the right taking aim at the Republican President. If nothing else they will succeed in making Ford look good. To the best of his ability he is struggling against fearful odds to overcome a situation that is not of his making. Deficit financing is perilous on the scale proposed by the Administration. But the "conservatives" have an alternative, it is to combine budget cuts with heavy taxation, a sure mixture at this state to deepen the disagree with his program in whole or in part, Ford is out battling for what he believes to be the right. This is in marked contrast with the  Democratic congress which has only belatedly come up with a counter program of energy conservation and taxation.

There are hints that these "conservatives" would like to supplant Ford as the party's nominee in 1976. The suggestion is that he might be replaced by Ronald Reagan, the former governor of California who is now out on the chicken patty circuit for the conservatives as he once travelled that circuit as a flack for General Electric. But Reagan is reported playing coy.

PRESIDENT FORD has said that regardless of the state of the economy next year, described by his soothsayers in the gloomiest possible terms, he will run for reelection. A view increasingly held is that he may opt out when the showdown comes This would be simple justice for his critics on the right since they would find it hard to pick a substitute with any chance of winning the election once the sitting president had been dumped.

THE POLITICAL STRENGTH of the rightists is shallow in their own party and in the country. One measure was the vote in the Senate on the confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller to be vice president. Three Republicans, Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Jesse A. Helms of North Carolina and William L. Scott of Virginia, voted no. The only authenticated member of the conservative party. James Buckley of New York, voted for Rockefeller.

In its general use the label "liberal" is as meaningless as "conservative." In the classical sense it was applied to those who believe in the free play of economic forces in the body politic. Alan Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, is a classical liberal who champions the free play of the market against state intervention, as does Secretary of the Treasury

The minister of my church preached on Jesus one Sunday, and I congratulated him on the sermon. It was the first time I had done so. He gave me a shocker though when he replied 'Well, we can't always do that.'

Cuevas

HOUSTON (AP) Ignacio Cuevas, the lone survivor of three inmates Saturday at his home involved in a prison shootout that left four persons dead last year, was scheduled to go on trial today on one murder count.

> Cuevas, 42, is accused in indictment of intentionally causing the death of Julia Standley, a prison librarian and one of two hostages killed in the Aug. 3 Huntsville prison shootout.

The shootout ended an 11day prison escape attempt by three convicts. Two other convicts Fred Gomez Carrasco, 34, and Rudolfo p.m. Dominguez, 27, also died in the shootout Cuevas entered a plea of innocent Nov. 21 before State District Court Judge Miron Love. The trial was transferred her from Huntsville on a change of venue.

Defense attorneys Will Gray and Hector Azios have filed eight motions to be ruled on by Love.

Among the motions is one filed by Gray Jan. 20 in which he asked that the body of Elizabeth Beseda, the second hostage killed in the shootout, be exhumed. Gray said a post mortem examination might indicated she was struck by a bullet that was not fired by one of the three inmates. No autopsy was performed before Mrs. Beseda's burial.

Love imposed a gag rule in November and lawyers would only say that any arguments on the motions would be heard prior to the selection of a jury.

When the boat failed to halt and began fleeing northward, South Korean navy ships began chasing it.

An exchange of fire ensued and South Korean air force jets scrambled while South Korean shore batteries opened fire, sinking the boat about an hour after it was first spotted.

It was the second naval battle fought in the area in eight months. Last June 28, a 200-ton South Korean patrol boat was sunk in an exchange of fire with Communist naval
