WORLD LEADERS AT ECONOMIC SUMMIT

Promise More Jobs, Lower Prices

(AP) — Leaders of the world's six major industrial nations including President Ford today ended three-day talks with a promise of more jobs, lower prices and greater economic security for their people.

A declaration in the names of the leaders of the United States, West Germany, Italy, France, Britain and Japan said: The industrial democracies have decided to resolve the high rate of unemployment, continuing inflation and the grave problems of energy."

'Die With Dignity' Appeal Is Recorded MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) months ago

An attorney for the ents of Karen Anne Quinlan today appealed a state court ruling preventing them from ordering their daughter's life-sustaining respirator disconnected.

Paul W. Armstrong, attorney for Joseph and Julia Quinlan in their request for court approval to let their 21year-old comatose daughter "die with dignity," filed the appeal with New Jersey's second highest court, the Appellate Division of uperior Court.

Armstrong went im-mediately from the court's office to a meeting in the office of Atty. Gen. William F. Hyland.

The appeal was filed a week after Superior Court Judge Robert Muir Jr. refused to grant the Quinlans' petition for permission to disconnect the respirator.

Earlier today, Armstrong had denied the Quinlans had decided to appeal the state court ruling

"No decision has been made yet," Armstrong said early today. However, he did not rule out the possibility that Muir's decision would be appealed. Armstrong had indicated previously that the parents would take their egal battle to higher courts. He noted that more than a month remained for an appeal to be filed.

Muir ruled that the question of whether to remove the life-sustaining machine was "medical, not legal" in nature, and that the courts should not supercede the decision of Miss Quinlan's doctors, who opposed the Quinlans' request.

The Washington Post reported that Armstrong said he would file an appeal in Trenton today.

ROCK RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — First it was bottles and beer cans. Now they're talking about recycling old, worn-out highways.

In rebuilding roads, contractors currently break up the old highway surface and bury it. The new surface is put down on top of rock filler — aggregate — which is trucked in, often at a cost of $6 or $7 a ton in this state.

The Iowa Highway Division's materials testing department now is preparing to test a new process that breaks up the old concrete, crushes it and mixes it with sand and cement.

When they are done, the old concrete top will be part of the aggregate put down to support the new surface.
"As near as we can tell, it will perform just as well as concrete made with what we call virgin aggregate—the rock filler used the first time," said George Calvert, head of the testing department. "And it should reduce our costs by about 15 per cent."

Next spring the new process will be used in the reconstruction of 1.4 miles of U.S. 75 south of Rock Rapids, a northwestern Iowa farming community.

The rebuilding will be monitored by the American Concrete and Paving Association and a number of state highway departments, Calvert said. "We wasted a lot in the past," he said. "We've already proven that the aggregate in the old highways is good — that it has 35 or 40 years in a concrete mix —

so why not use it again?"

Skirting The Issue

The case of Rep. Michael J. Harrington, Massachusetts Democrat charged with violating House rules by revealing secret testimony, apparently has been decided untidily, but with approximate Harrington was accused of leaking secret testimony by William Colby, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, concerning CIA involvement in a plan to remove President Salvador Allende Gossens of Chile. He said he was shocked to learn that the CIA had prepared a contingency plan for the assassination of Allende and participated in other efforts to remove him. He said he was so shocked that he gave some of the information to a reporter for the Washington Post and later to a reporter for the New York Times which published stories on the affair.

Weighing the pledge of secrecy against the need for public knowledge of the CIA activities, Harrington came down in favor of publicity.

The Armed Services Committee voted approval of a motion of censure. But the House Ethics Committee dismissed the complaint by a vote of 7 to 3. Characteristically, the committee did not go to the question of whether or not Harrington was guilty, but wormed out on a technicality.

The question posed by Harrington is not an easy one to resolve. In a somewhat similar form it cropped up at the Nurenberg war crimes trial, posing the question:

Should conscience take precedence over a lawful or-

The question will arise in the future. In this particular case, though, Harrington shed light on an agency but did he violate an oath?

Not Always Thus

Reports that President Ford fired Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger to mollify Rep. George Mahon, chairman of the House appropriations committee, seem far wide of the mark

True, Schlesinger was guilty of intemperate language in describing the reductions made by Mahon's potent committee as "savage and arbitrary cuts." But those who have known George Mahon through the years can't conceive of this gentle personality resorting to retribution or recrimination.

Writing for the Washington Post, Mary Russell concludes as much, saying that Rep. Mahon "is a gentle, soft-spoken man who eschews such heavy handedness." She adds: "But his sleepy-eyed look belies deep intelligence and a wily shrewdness, adding several instances of how he adroitly refused pressure and potential opposition. One can only conclude that George Mahon hasn't been in Congress for two score years without learning a few ropes.

If any currency were to be given the report that the President reacted to an attack on Rep. Mahon and his committee, it is that the two are long-time and close friends. But George Mahon wouldn't ask the President to pull his chestnuts out of the fire, indeed if he had any there. Always the gentleman, he's well able to take care of his own affairs.

Answer

I am married to a wonderful wife, and we have several children. Recently I have become romantically involved with a younger woman who works in the same office I do. For the sake of the children I hate to leave my wife, and yet I love this woman very much. I have prayed and prayed for an answer about what I should do. What is your advice?

There are some things we do not need to pray about, because God has already given His answer in His Word. This is such a case. The Bible already states that this relationship is wrong, and under no cir-cumstance whatsoever will God honor it.

I would urge two things for you. First, the answer to a physical sin is often physical is nature. This relationship must be ended, and I urge you to get as far away from this woman as possible, to eliminate the temptation that will otherwise be there. You may even have to take a new job, but that would be far better than shipwrecking your life and the lives of many others through this relationship.

Second, remember that you took a vow before God when you were married. Therefore, seek to rekindle the spark of love in your marriage.

How is the nation progressing in its efforts to boost recycling of resources, in the face of the energy

The sad fact is that Americans haven't even begun to tap the potential savings from recycling. Enough trash to fill the Panama Canal four times over every year —
40 billion pounds — is produced by U.S. citizens annually. Less than one per cent of it is now reclaimed.

As an example of what might be saved, according to the U.S. Bureau of Mines, the half-million tons of fly ash produced from burning refuse every year could yield 150,000 pounds of reclaimed silver alone.

per cent from any advance. James Pate, assistant commerce secretary, noted that in the past three months the rise in retail sales has slowed substantially from the rate of the previous five months. The leveling, he said, was more than anticipated.

Some forecasters, and some in academe too, never got their hopes high about this recovery. Unlike many government officials, they never joined in the sense of euphoria that seemed to prevail during the summer.

Neither did consumers. although they did increase spending from deeply depressed level of a year ago. A survey by the First National City Bank was released today with the headline: "Consumer Has Hang Dog Outlook." "Americans are more essimistic now over the state of the economic recovery than at any time this year," the survey's editors reported. Two out of three respondents said it would take at least a year for a definite improvement in the economy.

If that is really the mood of consumers, the hopes of forecasters for a continued recovery may be dashed. Consumer spending is the prime mover of economy; the economy can hardly expand steadily if the isn't consumer ticipating.

One factor that does little to lift consumer spirits is the high and rising rate of unemployment. After reaching a low for the year of 8.3 per cent in September, it October.

This increase comes in the midst of a disturbing trend. The trend is for disheardrawn from the labor force, as officially defined by the government, to begin returning in volume. They are seeking jobs again, and that means they are again members of the labor force.

Chris Verdegaal, the Hollander who visited here last week on special Center, has had ample opportunity to compare the life styles of people in the Netherlands and the United States. In some respects, he reasons some improvements could be made on both sides of the Atlantic.

OF HIS OWN people, he says they are restricted by an over-abundance of socialism. The tax structure enburdens everyone and no one more than those in the higher echelons of business. By the same token, he has no great fear of crushing medical bills in event critical illnesses should strike within his family, since the medical industry is not exempt from the socialistic stance taken by

The Hollanders pay something like $1.38 a gallon for gasoline, much of which winds up in government coffers as tax money. For that reason, most everyone makes local

Americans, on the other hand, are prone to depend too heavily on the automobile and, for that reason, do not get the proper exercise, he says. If we need a loaf of bread from the corner grocery store, we wouldn't think of walking for it.

The eating habits of the Americans are somewhat astonishing, too, to Verdegaal. He says we are prone to eat too much of everything. Meat, of course, is much harder to come by in Holland and other parts of Europe. In America, many reason they cannot get by at any meal without some sort of meat be it steak, lamb or chicken.

Verdegaal obviously has great affection for America and its food. He concedes he is prone to put on ten to 12 pounds everytime he spends any time here. That invariably comes off when he turns in his rented cars here and goes back to using bicycles in his native land.

Chris says he and his wife may go out to dine with friends once a year, invitation of the D & M Garden no more. For four people at a good restaurant, with a wine course, a meal will cost something like $75.

When the Arab nations stopped the shipment of fuel to Holland and the United States last year, the government issued the edict that no one would be allowed to drive gas-powered vehicles on Sunday. That order lasted only about two weeks, Verdegaal recalled, mainly because most Hollanders could motor over to nearby Germany and replenish their supplies of gasoline.

Hollanders take their politics seriously, Verdegaal says, but in a non-violent manner. The Dutch are a placid people, with a great sense of unity, altough three languages are spoken within the country.

ICE SKATING in Holland is still a very popular sport, but the rivers and lakes don't freeze over for long periods of time there as they once did. Machines, more and more, are providing ice for the skating rinks. Soccer is very popular in his nation, and baseball is catching on, with the help of American in-structors. He's grown to like American football more than soccer, he concedes Verdegaal's business is that of promoting the sale of flower bulbs, and he's good at it. His nation is the world's leading exporter of such flora. Germany is the No. one importer of Holland's bulbs, with the United States a close second, followed by the Scandanavian countries

Verdegaal has a word of advice for those who would like to visit Europe. He says the best buy in vacations now would be Portugal. The papers are full of items about violence in Portugal and that is enough to keep many visitors away, but the violence localized, and infrequent. The bargains to be had are better than they have been in a long time, mainly because the shopkeepers and the innkeepers are needing the

That Jackson should return to the busing issue after years of ignoring it (though not changing positions on it) reflects the outcome of a strategic debate waged for months within his campaign. U.S. Teens Losing Ability To Communicate In Writing

DENVER (AP) — A study released today indicates American teen-agers are losing their ability to communicate clearly through written English.

Compared with students tested in 1970, students 13 and 17 years old tested last year wrote a greater number of incoherent paragraphs and wrote in a shorter, "primer-like" style, said a report from the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP).

But 9-year-olds tested in similar fashion wrote better in 1974 than their counterparts four years earlier, Females wrote better essays than males at all three ages, the study found. The NAEP is a project of the Education Commission of the States, an organization to which 45 states belong.

Based in Denver, it conducts subject fields to measure the relative skills of students from year to year. It is funded by the National Center for Education Statistics, a federal agency.

In a survey of writing skills taken first in 1970 and repeated in 1974, the NAEP tested 80,000 students in three age groups — 9-year-olds, 13-year-olds and 17year-olds who were still in school. The test involved writing essays to answer

The survey showed the writing of 17-year-olds declined in quality between the two assessments. The 1974 students showed an and run-on sentences and a tendency to write as they would speak, the report said. Writing performance for

NEW YORK AP - Hikers can be bird watchers, too. According to "The Magnificent Continent," just published by Rand McNally, the 2,000-mile hiking trace called the Appalachian Trail is also the route for one of our continent's major avian flyways.

Only the papers from the 9-year-olds showed an improvement, with the proportion of good writers rising in 1974, the report

Only a few 9-year-olds in either year wrote fully developed paragraphs, the report said. But 9-year-olds surveyed in 1974 attempted more complex sentences and appeared to be moving toward more sophisticated

The NAEP offered no explanation for the decline in writing skills, but did offer some recommendations for It suggested that remedial laboratories be made available to all students; that more writing be required in schools, and that educators recognize teaching grammar is not teaching writing.

COMMITTEE TO FOCUS ON JUDICIAL TEMPERAMENT, INTEGRITY

Sketches Of Potential Nominees For Supreme Court

lawyer's committee screening potential Supreme Court nominees says it will focus on professional qualifications, judicial temperament and integrity. Later, when he makes the selection, President Ford is likely to take political and other factors into account.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi received the first report Sunday from the American Bar Association's committee on some of the suggested nominees to replace Justice William O. Douglas, who retired last week because of ill health. The administration asked the ABA to evaluate about 12 persons for the job. Warren Christopher of Los Angeles, chairman of the panel, said the report to Levi was made by telephone, was very tentative and covered the list. He said he expected the committee to be meeting "on and off for the next several days.

After the committee's evaluations are finished, Ford will submit his choice to the Senate for confirmation.

The choice is not limited to the list before the ABA committee, administration officials say

'A clear pattern emerges: there is a industry-wide underrepresentation women in public broad-casting at the higher levels," a report by the Task Force Women in Public Broadcasting has concluded.

Women hold slightly less than 30 per cent of all jobs in-public broadcasting, but are clustered at the bottom as secretaries and as "support" personnel, the task force said.

They are outranked 10 to 1 by men in the top jobs. The Medders built a 20room mansion here, dubbing it Colonial Acres. They partied with upper crust of nearby Dallas and their daughters went to an exclusive private school.

When the bubble finally burst, 200 creditors filed suit against Medders to recover their loans. In a five-year period, the Medders had spent an estimated $3 million. Creditors eventually settled for 121/2 cents on the dollar.

they are experiencing. Q. Are they irrigating on a large scale now?

A. Yes, they have about 20 million acres of very successful irrigation growing at the moment. Their goal in a decade is about 80 million, which I don't think can be obtained, but with their vigor and enthusiasm, they may get close to it.

A. They always had court reporters, and when we were all through we were given a report, same as they were. It will be the basis of my report

Q. Did you have the answers to all their questions? A. No, we couldn't answer them with respect to the size of pumps they want to build. I think we'll be very helpful on that when they come over here. We're going to go to Westinghouse and our own (government) engineering offices in Denver and be prepared to answer that.

THOUSANDS KILLED IN LAST EIGHT MONTHS

Angola's Agony Shows No Signs Of Ending

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — The slogan "A Luta Armada Continua' - The Armed Struggle Continues - is written on walls, windows, trees and even auto windshields throughout Luanda. It is a grim reminder that Angola's agony shows no sign of ending.

Portugal gave her last African colony independence Nov. 10 after 13 years of bloody guerrilla struggle. The nation was wracked by a civil war between three rival nationalist movements before it was even born. Usually reliable sources estimate more than 20,000 persons have been killed in the last eight months. Some diplomats believe the carnage could be worse than that in the Congo after Belgium pulled out in 1960.

'The war of resistance could last for many years,' said Lopo da Naciemento, 35-year-old prime minister of the People's Republic of Angola set up by the Soviet-backed Popular Movement (MPLA) when the Portuguese quit.

"Our cities could be destroyed. Many of our comrades will die. But we will never let ourselves be intimidated."

The leftist MPLA is led by Agostinho Neto, a poet-philosopher jailed for several years by the Por-tuguese. It controls Luanda, the capital; the center, and the diamond-rich northeast.

Ranged against it are the backed by the United States, China and Zaire, and the Union for Total Independence (UNITA), supported by South Africa and considered the most moderate politically.
The FNLA and UNITA

joined in an uneasy alliance of military expediency, hold the northwest and the south and are trying to crush the MPLA between them.

The MPLA's northern front is only about 15 miles from Luanda along the Dange river. Heavy fighting is reported around a key road junction at Caxito, 35 miles northeast of the capital. But the MPLA issues only sporadic communiques on the military situation.

The MPLA appears to be lding its own in the north. Officials here claimed that several strategic villages have been recaptured from the FNLA in the last 10 days. There is also fighting east of Luanda around Carmona, 150 miles northeast. MPLA officers said they still hold the town despite fierce FNLA assaults.

Luanda itself is quiet. Occasionally the sound of mortar fire drifts across the palmfringed bay from the battlefield across the water. In the south, the MPLA is under increasing pressure from FNLA and UNITA forces spearheaded by a column of white and black ruins. Factories and construction sites on Luanda's outskirts are deserted. MPLA leaders talk about reconstruction plans, but there are food shortages in the city and little activity at the port, once one of the busiest in Africa. A flood of Soviet arms -

Angola's economy is in

SWC Bowl Agreement Reached

Texas A&M, Texas and Arkansas—the Southwest Conference football front-Southwest runners - have reached agreements with the Liberty Bowl and the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl to insure that each team will play in a postseason game, athletic officials have disclosed.

The conference winner—which will be one of the three— will host the University of Georgia in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day in Dallas. Cotton Bowl officials announced Georgia's acceptance Sunday.

The plan to assure all three in bowl teams would be in bowl games was disclosed Sunday night by coaches Frank Broyles of Arkansas, Emory Bellard of A&M and Darrell Royal of Texas.

The loser of the Nov. 28 game between third-ranked Texas A&M and No. 7 Texas will go to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl to face Colorado. The Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl is Dec. 27 at the Astrodome in Houston.

FREEDOM OF CHOICE - Alabama Gov. George Wallace, appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press" in Washington Sunday, said that if elected President he would introduce a constitutional amendment to allow freedom of choice in schooling. Wallace also repeated does not intend to run as a third party candidate if he fails to win the Democratic presidential nod.

Harris, Udall Emerge As Liberal Favorites

The political infighting among Democratic presidential candidates continues with former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris and Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona emerging as liberal favorites and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter besting Alabama Gov. George Wallace in a straw vote in Florida. The first phase of the struggle within the party's liberal wing ended Sunday with Harris and Udall receiving the most favorable responses at the last of five regional conferences.

The two men received the most public applause and considerable private favorable reaction 1,000 party activists representing seven Middle Atlantic states and the District of Columbia. Similar patterns had appeared at earlier sessions in Minneapolis, Springfield, Mass., Atlanta and Los Angeles.

Staunch Wallace supporters immediately labeled the poll meaningless. 'It won't change the mind of the mechanic, the farmer, the worker — the Wallace supporters," said Norman Bie of Clearwater, co-chairman of Wallace's Florida campaign. But Carter, 51, said the outcome shows people are "looking for a fresh face and new ideas and proven executive ability."

Wallace, meanwhile, said Sunday that as President he would push for a Con-stitutional amendment to stop forced integration of

"I believe, as far as integration is concerned, we shouldn't have forced integration; we shouldn't have forced segregation," Wallace said on NBC's "Meet the Press." "We should have freedom of choice and if I were the President, I would recommend a freedom of choice amendment to the Constitution ... that lets people in Boston and Alabama choose what school they wanted to go to, whether they were black or white," said Wallace, who announced his candidacy last week. In Washington, labor leader George Meany said Sunday he is not sure President Ford will still be a candidate for election to the 1,035 total; Pennsylvania presidency after next year's Traffic accidents and homicides boosted number of violent deaths in Texas during the weekend, although the toll remained relatively low for a third straight week.

May Revamp Food Stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Puerto Rico, where the Senate agriculture sub- average benefit now runs committee is beginning a second series of hearings on proposals to revamp the nation's food stamp program.

Scheduled to appear today were Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers, many of whose members turned to the $5.2 billion-a-year program last winter when the recessionwracked automotive industry laid off thousands of workers; and Puerto Rican Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon and New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne.

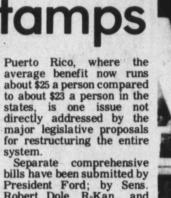

About 100 witnesses. predominantly representatives of state agencies and special-interest groups, are expected to address the committee before the hearings end Thursday.

The first week of hearings a month ago was dominated federal officials, congressmen and conservative interest groups.

Recession-related layoffs in the auto industry have been viewed by analysts as the major cause for a 3.8 million surge in the program's rolls between fall 27 Added and spring. The program peaked in April at 19.6 million and had fallen to 18.5 million by September.

Extension of the program to Puerto Rico, where an estimated two-thirds of the citizens are eligible and about half participate, is a second reason for the substantial increase in the program over the last 18 months, officials say.

The schedule now calls for the the feel senate to act on Man Makes Emergency food stamp legislation early in the new session in January, although aides say a chance still remains for a vote this year.
Ford administration officials are due back before the panel Wednesday to defend their proposal saving an estimated $1.2 billion a year — by cutting off eligibility for the stamps at the official poverty level for each size family.

Basing his estimate on the committee's price figures, the Houston oil executive said the average price of Texas crude oil would be reduced about $1.09 per barrel for each of the 1.3 billion barrels produced each year.

"The promised reductions in gasoline prices are not likely to materialize because this bill will lead to the use of a higher percentage of more expensive foreign crude oil,' Blanton said.

Blanton explained that production in Texas and other oil producing states is declining because of shrinking reserves, a trend that will be accelerated by drilling and develop-

"About 40 per cent of our crude oil comes from foreign sources where prices cannot be controlled by the U.S. Congress," he said. "Their higher prices will be passed on to the consumer whose money will go to other nations rather than being spent here to develop U.S. oil

"The cutback in crude oil prices in Texas alone would be equivalent to the cost of drilling 18,000 average oil wells," Blanton said.

"This scheme will add another billion dollars by which Texas is subsidizing the nation's energy needs through controlled prices on oil and natural gas. This bill will reduce state crude oil production tax revenues by about $64 million a year. It will cost Texas landowners who receive royalty for production on ther lands some $175 million a year," Blanton said. 'Most important, there
