

Franco Dies, Carlos' Coronation Saturday

MADRID, Spain (AP) — An ideologically divided Spain began 30 days of national mourning today for Gen. Francisco Franco while across the border in France about 100 Spanish refugees celebrated in cafes and drove cars through the streets of Hendaye with their horns honking to mark the death of the dictator.

President Ford and other world leaders expressed condolences. A statement issued by Ford in Washington said in part: "We wish the Spanish people and the government of Spain well in the period ahead. The United States for its part will continue to pursue the policy of friendship and cooperation which has formed the touchstone for the excellent relations existing between our two countries."

Reagan, his wife Nancy at his left and an American flag at his right, said he will be represented in all 30 presidential primaries although he isn't going to campaign for all of them.

Reagan Challenges President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan announced his White House candidacy today, challenging President Ford, and a Washington "buddy system" he blamed for major national problems. He said he wouldn't be surprised if other Republicans entered the race "now that someone has broken the ice."

Reagan, his wife Nancy at his left and an American flag at his right, said he will be represented in all 30 presidential primaries although he isn't going to campaign for all of them.

The former California governor said he will run on his own record "in a gentlemanly manner" and will not criticize President Ford. Reagan wouldn't even say where he differs with Ford.

COLD

Fair today and Friday. High today in high 50s dropping to mid-20s. Cooler Friday in mid-50s. Northerly wind at 10-20 miles per hour today sagging to 5-15 tonight.

Living Cost Jumps Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation accelerated in October as sharply higher grocery prices pushed the cost of living up seven-tenths of one per cent, the government said today.

Last month's price increase was the third highest this year and followed increases of only two-tenths of a per cent in August and five-tenths of a per cent in September, the Labor Department said.

Inflation had cooled earlier this year, but spurted briefly during June and July before easing in late summer.

West European governments expressed the hope that the death of the man who had ruled Spain with an iron hand for 36 years would mean the rebirth of democracy in Spain. The Kremlin said while Franco's road to power was "covered by hundreds of thousands of corpses ... one can be sure that Spain will now enter the widened road of democracy and social progress."

Franco died early today at the age of 82 after a month-long battle for life. His last words, reportedly dictated after he became ill, were "upward Spain, long live Spain." He will lie in state for two days in Madrid's national palace, an open air mass will be celebrated in front of the palace Saturday and on Sunday there will be a state funeral.

Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, Franco's hand-picked successor, will be installed Saturday as Spain's first king in 44 years.

"Gen. Franco himself picked the prince as his successor and we have to accept it," three right-wing Falangists told newsmen on leaving a funeral mass commemorating the 39th anniversary of the assassination of their founder, Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera. "As of now the prince can count upon our support. The future will say if we have to withdraw it."

Other Falangists said, "We never gave him our support and it's hardly impossible that we change our mind. However, we'll try to not be an obstacle to the king, at least not until he proves how far he can go and how well he gets along."

The funeral mass was held at the Valley of the Fallen, 35 miles north of Madrid, where Franco will be buried. An estimated 5,000 Falangists attended the ceremony, giving the raised-arm, Fascist-style salute at the end of the mass. Juan Carlos was to have presided over the ceremony but was unable to because of Franco's death, thereby removing him from possible political embarrassment.

The 37-year-old prince, who has been acting chief of state since Oct. 30, is a grandson of King Alfonso XIII and was educated and trained under Franco's supervision from the age of 11. The dictator designated him as successor in 1969, but many Spaniards expect him to try to move the political system toward democracy.

Juan Carlos will take the name King Juan Carlos I. Reaction to Franco's death among ordinary Spaniards was split, just as it was among the Falangists.

"He was old, he had to die. But I feel as if I had lost a member of the family," said Felipa Sanchez, a cleaning woman on her way to work.

"He was a tough man. My God, what a heart he had," said taxi driver Carlos Martin.

"I'm sorry he died. He gave us a lot of years of peace," a barman pouring coffee said.

A young businessman said: "I could say a lot about Franco, especially in the last part of his life when he did both good and bad things. One bad thing was not to allow political associations years ago."

A farm worker said only, "I am thinking about the future of the country."

Condolences poured in from leaders around the world, including Paraguayan President Alfredo Stroessner, a longtime dictator, and Argentine President Isabel Peron, who lived in Madrid with her husband Juan D. Peron, the Argentine dictator, for 13 years as exiles.

Pope Paul VI also expressed condolences, saying he was offering "fervent prayers for the eternal rest" of Franco's soul and invoking "copious divine blessings for that beloved nation as a sign of concord and Christian progress."

Fifth Wettest Year in County

Those clouds which moved over Howard County Wednesday with the speed of a German blitzkrieg left .07 of an inch of moisture at the U.S. Experiment Station here.

That brings November's total to 1.09 — the other rain served to usher in the month. Rainfall Wednesday was somewhat heavier in other areas, but rarely more than .20 of an inch.

Yesterday's shower brought the year's official total of 27.80 inches, firming up 1975 as the fifth wettest year in Howard County history.

Already, more rain has fallen in Howard County than any year since 1941, when the total fall amounted to 31.62 inches.

Average November rainfall for Howard County for the past 74 years has been .93 of an inch.

In order for the year's rainfall to hit 30 inches or more (something that has happened only four times since moisture records were started here), another 2.20 inches would have to fall in the next 40 days. That is unlikely, since December's average rainfall is less than three-quarters of an inch. No rain at all fell in Howard County in December, 1973, and only .74 of an inch in the final month last year.

The World At-A-Glance

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — In the face of an "after-you-then-me" signal from President Ford, Gov. Hugh Carey is pressuring the legislature for quick action on a New York City tax increase he says is necessary to secure federal aid to help the city avert default. But the prospects for those taxes were mired in partisan squabbling today with Democrats opposing a city sales-tax increase and Republicans apparently opposing all alternatives to a sales tax. The negotiations on the issue, which were expected to take most of today in the state legislature's special session, are working against a potential deadline as early as next Tuesday, when the city could face default on some of its obligations.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate intelligence committee report will propose that any future government plots to kill foreign leaders be punishable under domestic murder laws, but the panel is fighting a Ford administration drive to suppress or censor the rest of its assassination findings. White House lobbyists and CIA Director William E. Colby sought Wednesday to persuade key senators that publication of specific names and events would expose the men involved to revenge and would damage U.S. intelligence operations. The committee's report on CIA involvement in assassination plots and attempts is to be presented to a secret session of the Senate today.

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — An estimated 1,000 Cuban combat troops have been flown into Luanda to beef up the Soviet-backed Popular Movement (MPLA) army in Angola's bloody civil war, informed sources report. About 1,000 other Cuban infantrymen and "advisers" are reported to have been sent in during the last few weeks to help the MPLA.

NEW SPANISH KING — Prince Juan Carlos, the designated heir of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, who died in Madrid, today will be installed Saturday as Spain's first king in 44 years, the government announced early Thursday.

BIG SPRINGERS TO SPEAK OUT TONIGHT

Education, Health, Housing Among Goals To Be Discussed

By TROY BRYANT

Interested citizens of Big Spring will meet today at 7:30 p.m. at the Howard College Auditorium to act on a list of 54 goals for progress for the community.

After a year of planning the program, whereby suggestions were taken from the public at five planning conventions and condensed into the 54 tentative goals, a list of the goals will become final.

The goals approved will then be published as a guide for local governments, businesses, organizations and agencies, to give them an idea what the citizens of Big Spring want for the future.

The goals are divided into eight areas, including education, economy, health, housing, community relations, design of the city, culture and entertainment, parks and recreation, and government.

Some of the goals include:

- More cooperation among governmental agencies and consolidation of governmental functions.
- Encourage county government to be more responsive to the needs of the residents within the city limits.
- Encourage support for law enforcement agencies and for a more efficient judicial system.

- Develop a continuing program to keep appraisal of property values current and on a common base.
- Drain one mile lake, a mosquito breeding area, and improve overall control of insects.
- Evaluate the need for providing additional free and low-cost medical care for the indigent and underprivileged.

- Evaluate the need for a child welfare office in the area.
- Air-condition all schools.
- Actively seek ways to use public school grounds, building facilities, and libraries when school is not in session.
- Encourage the renovation of older homes by providing tax incentives, long-term low interest financing, and recognition awards.
- Use existing lots within the city before annexing new areas.
- Restructure building codes to include quality manufactured housing.
- Construct a new terminal building and retain the commuter airline service from Big Spring to Dallas.

- Establish a legal aid agency for the underprivileged.
- Develop new master plan for the city and county concerning new traffic plans, planning and zoning, future growth and development and continued beautification.
- Establish a supervised youth center with a youth council.
- Allow citizens to vote on more reasonable alcoholic beverage control laws.
- Upgrade amphitheater; enlarge Heritage Museum; and renovate and air condition the municipal auditorium.
- Improve Lakeview YMCA or build a new one and provide a full-time director.

MIRACLE OF WATER TURNED TO KOOL-AID?

Booze Or Not To Booze Question Divides Abilene

EDITOR'S NOTE—"I am afraid before this issue is over, the opposition will make Richard Nixon and his White House horrors look like Snow White, all under the label of Christianity"—A letter to the editor.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — "Liquor, liquor, liquor. That's all I've heard all day," grumped Burl King, Taylor County's tax assessor-collector, one recent evening.

"Some of them say they're for it or against it, but most just say they want to be eligible to vote if it comes down to it."

Lured by a possible liquor election in the "buckle on the Bible belt," record numbers of would-be Abilene voters were parading into King's office to register.

Others were flooding the Abilene Reporter-News with "letters to the editor" while leaders of opposing factions jockeyed for favorable headlines.

Although "wet-dry" elections are not uncommon, this one is.

citizens, Abilene is the second largest city in Texas still legally dry. Booze has been taboo for 73 years and a vigorous effort is under way to keep it that way.

Unlike many West Texas towns, Abilene's heritage is one of religion rather than rowdiness and when citizens call it "God's country" they mean it.

"If Jesus had lived in Abilene, would he have turned the water into Kool-Aid?" a letter writer asked.

And then there's Impact, a tiny oasis surrounded totally by Abilene, a situation some might compare with the fabled fox which gnawed away at the spartan's belly.

By a vote of 28-0, Impact declared itself a city in 1960, then swiftly and just as decisively approved liquor sales for off-premises consumption.

However, a series of legal challenges ensued and it was Christmas 1962 before Impact dispensed its first spirits.

At the end of 1963, Impact's first full year of operation, beer and liquor revenue reportedly totaled $2.5 million, suggesting Abilene was not without a thirsty element.

The state comptroller's office in Austin reported last September that the city of Impact had received $185,420.39 from the one per cent city sales tax since Jan. 1, 1971.

That computes out at $18,542.039 worth of taxable goods sold during the nearly five-year period.

Impact's business district consists of two liquor stores, a grocery store that peddles beer, a warehouse from which stores are stocked and, finally, the home of Mayor Dallas Perkins.

Perkins, who camouflages a keen mind and subtle wit behind a crackerbarrel philosophy and an exaggerated drawl, scoffs at speculation that he's the richest man in town.

"Mercy," he told an inquiring visitor.

Although a second watering hole subsequently sprung up at Buffalo Gap, just south of Abilene, most of the abuse is directed at Perkins and his beloved township.

"They take millions from Abilene that never come back."

It has been noted with more than passing interest that the lone liquor store at Buffalo Gap is quite similar to one at Impact, both in structure and prices.

"Mercy," said Perkins. "If anyone doubts the old adage about politics spawning strange bed-fellows, he might consider that no one benefits more than Perkins if Abilene remains dry."

"The church councils are finding themselves siding with Impact and the private club owners, even though for not the same reasons," said one observer.

Although reticence is not among Perkins' strong suits, he sighed: "I feel like anything I'd say would just fan the flames of the uprising."

But if his honor is silent, he is about the only one. And it appears that a tactical error triggered as much hoopla as the wet-dry issue itself.

A half-page newspaper ad, entitled "Abilene is a Unique City" and sponsored ostensibly by "the 40 congregations of the Abilene Baptist Association," declared:

"We would like our friends, who are promoting a possible election, to know that every name on the proposed election petition will be printed a double page ad of the Abilene Reporter-News."

In retrospect, the response was predictable. Wets and dries alike cried "blackmail ... extortion ... coercion ... intimidation" and angrily rushed out to sign the circulating petition.

From as far away as Dallas, 200 miles to the east, came one letter that was typical in tone of many others:

"I can hardly wait for my Abilene Reporter-News to arrive in Dallas to see what the 'Christians' are up to now—it's going to be hard to top blackmail..."

It soon became clear that not all "40 congregations" had agreed to such an ad, and some of the city's most prominent ministers said so. Some denounced the ad. Some labeled it confusing.

A subsequent but smaller ad, this time signed by the executive board of the Abilene Baptist Association, appeared several days later.

With a headline reading "Let's Clear The Issue," it said in part:

"In as much as the issue has been clouded, it is the feeling of the board members that we should not and will not print the names of those who sign the current petition being circulated."

But, both sides agreed, the damage had been done.

On Halloween eve, County Clerk Mrs. Chester Hutcherson announced she had validated 4,196 signatures on the petition circulated by the Abilene Committee on Taxation and Trade (ACTT).

Although obtaining only 62 more signatures than required by law, ACTT Chairman Dub Burke Jr. quipped, "I'd like to think of it as a landslide."

Burke's jubilation was short-lived.

Even before a hassle over an election date could be resolved, Mrs. Hutcherson said she was refusing to certify the petition on the advice of Dist. Atty. Ed Paynter.

Paynter, the county's legal advisor, counseled against certification on grounds that commissioners cannot call an election for a city geographically located in two counties.

A small portion of Abilene spills over into Jones County. Burke vowed to appeal the decision, meanwhile circulating a similar petition for "Taylor County Justice Precinct One" and declaring:

"The ACTT doesn't anticipate having any difficulties in collecting the required number of valid signatures in two weeks, or no more than three, for sure."

Barring further bombshells, said Burke, "I see no reason why we couldn't have an election in December."

Asked to comment on the developments, Perkins replied:

"Mercy."

Stalled Nuclear Arms Talk

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's acknowledgment that a serious split had developed in talks on a new nuclear arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union can be viewed from at least two perspectives.

Kissinger is extremely anxious to conclude a new agreement before next February, when the Communist Party's congress opens in Moscow. There have been reports that the party leader, Leonid I. Brezhnev, is in poor health. Kissinger wants Brezhnev's signature on the agreement before the party congress, and he may be trying to jog Brezhnev's memory and urge him to act soon.

There seems to be no question that the Russians are very concerned about the new cruise missile, which is about the size of a naval torpedo, has astonishing range and accuracy, and can be mass-produced at relative low cost. It can be viewed as a first-strike missile, perhaps capable of destroying much of the Soviet missile system, and the Russian undoubtedly view it as such. We do some fretting about a new Russian bomber.

Kissinger complains that the Russians have rejected the latest American proposals.

There is every reason to believe that the Soviet Union needs an agreement on numbers of nuclear weapons as much as the U.S. does. Hence it is still possible that an agreement can be reached, but a factor is timing in February. Therefore Kissinger is pushing for action, hopefully, or telegraphing possible failure.

The approaching visit of President Ford to the People's Republic of China must also be bothering the Kremlin. The long border between Russia and China, the geographical disputes between the two countries which are deeply rooted in history, the ideological conflict between the two, may ultimately persuade Russia, as Charles de Gaulle forecast, to rejoin the family of Europe.

Ill-Timed, Ill Advised

The resolution adopted by the United Nations General Assembly last week on condemning Zionism as "a form of racism and racial discrimination" is as ill-timed as it is ill-advised.

For the Arab nations, who spearheaded the successful effort to pass the resolution, it may prove a pyrrhic victory.

At best, the resolution is irony. It was the United Nations which sanctioned the birth of a Jewish state, and Israel was one of the first of the new nations.

To equate Zionism with racism is nonsense. Zionism is a type of nationalism — the scattered tribes of Israel have longed for centuries to return to the land they call home. This same spirit is what has yielded such an abundant harvest of new states since World War II.

Our U.N. Ambassador Daniel Moynihan, in eloquent protest of the foolish action, was wide of the mark too, in saying that it gave international sanction to anti-Semitism. Arabs are Semites, too. No, the resolution, which has no legal effect, is a crude and provocative way of trying to put an onus on the Jewish state.

My Answer

Billy Graham

My dear wife of 51 years passed away recently and I miss her very much. She was a good Christian, and I would like to know if we will recognize each other in heaven.

I believe Scripture indicates we will know our loved ones in heaven. In the incident of Jesus' transfiguration (Matthew 17: 1-8), Moses and Elijah were seen talking with Jesus — and in their glorified state were apparently recognizable although they had been dead many centuries. Hebrews 11 contains a great catalogue of Old Testament characters and suggests they have retained something of their personalities as they look on and encourage us in our struggles.

Although I know you miss her deeply, it is a joy to know that she is in heaven waiting for you. In some of the most comforting words of Scripture Jesus told His disciples: "Let not your heart be troubled. . . I go to prepare a place for you, and if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also" (John 14:1-3). This is the hope of all who have trusted Christ.

At the same time, the Bible presents a glorious picture of heaven. It will be far beyond anything we can imagine as we live in unbroken fellowship with our Lord.

"I can't see you, but I know you're back there, Ronald Reagan!"

Fading Delight

Robert Novak

NEW YORK — Delight in Wall Street and among the old Republican establishment over the follies of this liberal Democratic city has now soured to fear over the future and anger against President Ford.

WHILE MR. FORD'S hard-line speech Oct. 29 against bailing out New York fit the national mood and was easily his most successful political venture in weeks, it has backfired here. Bankers, financiers and Republican politicians believe his hard-nosed language intensified the city's crisis. "I'm afraid," one New York conservative Republican told us acidly, "that the President got a little mixed up, and thought the election is being held in 1975, not 1976."

Moreover, the hostility may soon deepen. Financiers headed by Wall Street wizard Felix Rohatyn, spent the weekend trying to put together an eleventh-hour package to avert default for the city and for state government agencies but requiring some federal support. Even before the weekend meetings began, however, the President reiterated to close associates that he would veto any such federal support on grounds it would wipe out all self-help efforts here.

ACTUALLY, Republicans and businessmen unanimously agree with Mr. Ford's assessment that the city's profligate Democratic leaders neither comprehend their misdeeds nor are truly repentant. But joy over the Democrats' nightmare here has been suppressed by a starker emotion: terror.

THIS TERRIFIES the city's world famous banks which hold heavy amounts of city and state paper. The immediate result is scare talk about major businesses, both U.S. and European, rescuing their deposits. Even though the Federal Reserve System is pledged to prevent it, fear of a liquidity crisis runs rampant in New York today — in itself an unsettling economic phenomenon.

A POST-DEFAULT financial panic is generally viewed as improbable, but not remote. Even if it is averted, however, there is deep worry about long-term economic repercussions: one of Wall Street's brightest young economists sees default so tilting the balance toward personal saving and against spending as to threaten a 1976 recession.

At the least, default would make permanent the severe difficulties of the tax-exempt bond market caused by New York's deepening problems over the last nine months.

WALL STREET'S chortling over city hall's nightmare has been stilled by voices of caution. Word has widely circulated that Dr. Arthur Burns, respected chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, was outraged by the strident tone of Mr. Ford's Oct. 29 speech. Similarly Wall Street has been quietly informed that Burns is considerably more concerned about the post-default conditions of New York banks than either the President or Treasury Secretary William Simon. Simultaneously, previously solid New York Republican support for Mr. Ford's hard line has ended.

Throwaway House Passe

NEW YORK (AP) — The big increase in housing starts during October means many things, depending upon your viewpoint.

To furniture makers it suggests the likelihood of higher sales. To builders it's a signal to contact old hands, if they haven't already done so. To lenders it's a warning to prepare for more mortgage requests.

To economic forecasters the increase means other things. Some view the October rate of 4,458,000 units as 15 per cent higher than the month before. Some say it's an aberration. Others claim it is unhealthy low.

To certain other analysts, all these considerations are secondary.

Urbanologists recognize the need for brand new homes, and they know that construction has a catalytic impact on business in general, but they think the emphasis is all wrong.

To them, the construction of a new house often represents the flight from the city. Americans, they say, have been fleeing for decades, discarding in the process houses and neighborhoods that should have been rehabilitated.

The throwaway generation is passe, they say. Our resources, including money, are limited. We must conserve, not waste, and that applies to housing too. The throwaway house is out of fashion, they say.

"We can no longer accept the traditional notion that the way to deal with a 'used' house is to throw it away and build a new one somewhere else," said Carla A. Hills, secretary of housing and urban development, in an address to lenders.

Instead, she said, "We must seek to preserve and recycle the wealth of housing we have in our cities and suburbs."

Mrs. Hills and others are concerned about the enormous assets — cultural and physical — that lay abandoned, relatively unused, underfurnished or seemingly destined for that fate, in the nation's cities.

Included in the list, to one degree or another, are billions of dollars of educational, recreational and health facilities, transportation systems, streets, sewer and water systems, theaters, utilities, churches, parks, stores, factories. And housing.

Those close to housing and urban matters are appalled by the abandonment of well constructed private homes and multifamily units, many of which couldn't be replaced for double their original costs.

The problem is easily recognized, and so is what needs to be done: Bring back investments and entrepreneurs and residents. The real problem isn't one of recognition — it's taking the first step.

Private lenders don't hesitate to state flatly that they cannot risk their depositors' funds on investments in the blighted, inner city areas. That, they say, is simply a sound business decision.

Government officials say they cannot do the job alone.

So there are government-industry programs, and industry-government programs. Neither wants to go it alone, and together they apparently have not, as yet, come up with the programs they agree must be developed if restoration is to take place.

More Word On Nasal Sprays

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am writing this letter as a sort of follow-up to a letter from Mrs. A. P. on nasal sprays. I, too, was hooked on the stuff. I couldn't let a day go by without getting relief because I couldn't breathe. Well, I was lucky. I make up my mind to see an eye, ear, nose, and throat man. And am I glad I did.

I can't begin to tell you the relief that man brought to me. He examined me and explained that I had no polyps on the back of my nasal passages, and told me of the evils of overusing the sprays.

I didn't know how I was going to make it without spraying something into my nose, but I did. For one solid week I didn't use any, and then went back and had one of my sinuses drained. That was a big part of my problem. Now I only use a spray (prescribed) when my allergy springs up.

Those who do not have sinus difficulty or allergies may think that breathing naturally for one whole week is not such a big deal. But when you have sprayed your nose as often as I had this is quite an accomplishment. — K. G.

The amount of mail I received from other "nasal spray junkies" following Mrs. A. P.'s letter surprised me. Some, like you, had weaned themselves away from the overuse — one nostril at a time, in some cases.

The sprays have their place, and most doctors will give stern warnings to patients about them. I hope Mrs. A. P.'s letter, and your own serve to point up the problem — and the solution. There are more sensible methods of dealing with sinus problems.

How To Lose

Around The Rim

Marj Carpenter

A lot has been said in recent weeks about the losing football season which follows many years of the same.

At the risk of sounding like an Aggie, I would like to say "Maybe next year." One only has to look at the Junior Varsity and freshman teams to gather up a good deal of hope.

PERHAPS HOPE simply springs eternal to this optimist. Recently I may have become tagged with the label "aginner". And I am really "agin aginners".

There is always something around to be "for." Just in recent weeks in Big Spring some of the people who should definitely be commended are George Frimel who rode a bicycle 88 miles to raise funds for the cancer campaign, members of the Malone-Hogan Clinic for their successful open house, Jan Morgan for the successful Gala which raised funds for the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, the high school debate team who won their opening tournament, the Y-Teens who literally took over the district meet at San Angelo, and the Howard College Hawks who are off to a great start with their season.

I'm sure there are a lot more. But I'd like to end the football season by saying I am also for that bunch of losing Steers. I think they will be among the first to admit that they kind of gave up at the end, although they tried to keep fighting. They not only took a lot of physical punishment, they took a lot of verbal abuse from their fellow students as well as the community.

I AM SURE we can stay losers if that is what we all want. Part of it is a matter of sheer numbers. But I can think of some dos and don'ts that will help keep us losers. If you want to keep losing, be sure:

1. To point out every chance you get that the coaches have the wrong boys playing in the wrong positions. Of course, the coaches are simply trying to get along socially and have no desire to win football games.
2. If your boy didn't get to play as much as you wanted him to on his respective team, tell him that his talents are overlooked by dumb coaches. Never tell him to try harder or look to the future.

3. If you have a youth down in the younger leagues, blame the coaches for anything that goes wrong for him. Blame the schools, when it isn't even school sponsored. And blame the volunteer coaches every chance you get.
4. If you are a citizen in town, be sure to say, "I would attend more if we'd win. In the town I used to live in, we always went." That will really encourage the team here and now.
5. If you played years ago, be sure and tell the players every chance you get how much better the teams were then.
6. If you are a high school boy that does not choose to play, either because you don't have the stamina for the discipline of sports, don't have the physical capability or talent for sports, or simply because you choose to do other things, be sure and make fun of the boys who go out, and tell them regularly how much better any of the rest of you could do (Only you don't).

7. IF YOU are in the band, you have just put on an outstanding halftime show because Big Spring Steer bands always do. And the crowd really enjoys them a lot. In fact, for some, that's all that they enjoy. However, if you want to help us continue to be losers, as the game progresses, play less and less enthusiastic music and less often in the second half. Also, very rarely play the fight song as the boys run on the field at the beginning of the game or at the half.

8. If you are in the student body and not involved in the sports which take hours of time or the band which takes hours of time, make fun of both units and laugh if they lose. Never remember that all students are in the same high school and they rise and fall together.

9. Elect good cheer leaders and then sit up there dozing while they knock themselves out trying to get a little response from the crowd, both students and adults.

10. Every chance you get, whether you be a student, a teacher, a businessman, or simply an interested citizen, be sure to point out, "Why should I support the team? They're losers."

Takes Reshuffling

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — People take power very seriously in Washington, and when there is a major reshuffle in government it really plays havoc with the social life of the town.

MY WIFE and I were talking about it the other night.

"Well, I guess we don't have to worry about inviting the James Schlesingers to dinner any more," I said.

"That's a pity," my wife said. "He seemed like such a nice, intelligent man."

"Don't go sentimental on me now," I warned. "This is a cruel town. He just isn't one of Gerry Ford's guys."

"I guess you're right. I also hated to cut the William Colbys off our list."

"WELL, WE don't have to until Dec. 18. President Ford asked him to stay on at the CIA until then, so I can't see what harm it would be to have them over before Christmas," I told her.

"What are we going to do about the Henry Kissingers? I read in one of the columns that he had his wings clipped," she asked.

"HENRY DOES present a problem," I admitted. "He's still secretary of state, so we can't cut him off completely. Besides he has great survival powers. Probably the best thing to do, until the dust settles, is invite him for cocktails and buffet. But let's wait awhile before we consider him for a sit-down dinner."

"That's a good solution," my wife said happily. "We'll let Washington decide for us. Now what do we do about the Rumsfelds?"

"FROM ALL reports they're coming up fast. I think we should have a black-tie party for them," I said.

"Do you think they'll come? We never paid much attention to Rumsfeld when he was working in the White House," my wife said.

"It wasn't our fault. At the time we didn't know how important he was. I thought he was just another pretty face in the White House."

"SHOULD WE invite George Bush to dinner?"

"Of course. What a stupid question to ask."

"It's not that stupid," she said. "When he was posted to China you said he was going nowhere and we could forget about him."

"How did I know he was one of Gerry Ford's guys? Send the invitation to Peking so we get in ahead of all the social climbers in this town."

Who are we kidding by insisting that it is some divine right of Americans to have in their possession the means to kill — from a distance and at will — other Americans? What sort of twisted logic can justify that circumstance of American life?

And for the rest of this political season, we can exercise prudence. Candidates must not try to prove their manhood by daring the odds, as the President seems to think he must. Instead, situations where crowd control is difficult or impossible should be avoided. True, this may limit traditional campaigning — the kissing of babies sort of thing. But it will not limit serious discourse, nor deprive voters of the means to judge a candidate's worth.

That is not covering before a loony minority. That is taking positive and guber action to confront a national menace.

DA Investigates Shady Print Job

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Allegations that Secretary of the Senate Charles Schnabel had private printing done on the Senate press are being investigated by the Travis County district attorney's office.

Dist. Atty. Bob Smith acknowledged the probe in a news conference Wednesday.

"It is under way," Smith said. "We have an open mind. We have not reached any conclusions as to whether or not there is any basis for the charges."

"We will conduct a thorough investigation. I would expect it to last for six weeks or longer. We will not have any statement to make publicly about the progress of our investigation."

Smith said he learned of the charges approximately six weeks ago, but he was tied up in a capital murder trial that was not completed until Monday. The Schnabel probe began Tuesday, he said.

"The results of the investigation, whether they be good, bad or indifferent, will be reviewed by the grand jury in session at the time the investigation is completed," he said.

No pressure had been brought against him either way in the case, Smith said in answer to a question. In fact, he said, both Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Sen. Don Adams, D-Jasper, chairman of the Senate Administration Committee, have told him they thought an investigation was "proper."

Schnabel has declined to comment on the case beyond saying he knew nothing about the Senate press being used by anyone for private purposes.

Cut In Texas Travel Literature Revealed

The Travel and Information Division of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation is discontinuing several popular travel related publications.

These are: Flower Folder, Land of Contrast Folder, Foreign Language Folders (Spanish, French, and German), Travel Literature Request Card, Map Request Card, and Map Envelope.

These materials have been distributed to the public through Department offices and Travel and Information Centers throughout the state — almost six million pieces of these and other materials were given to citizens and travelers in 1974. The present reduction in travel literature is caused by the rising costs of printing, and the current economic squeeze upon the Department, which promotes the $4.8 billion per year Texas visitor industry.

The dwindling supply of highway funds is keyed largely to inflated costs and the lowest State gasoline tax in the nation of 5 cents per gallon. Gasoline consumption in Texas was reduced 3.1 per cent in 1974 compared to 1973, and even greater reductions will come as federal fuel efficiency standards take effect, eventually raising cars to an average of 31 miles per gallon, as compared to 13.4 in 1972. This will mean fewer dollars from the State motor fuel tax. Education will also be hit because 1-1/4 cents of the per gallon tax, is dedicated to the state's educational fund, leaving only 3-3/4 cents for highways.

Reporter's Tapes Tell How Lubbock Landed Tech

LUBBOCK — A West Texas newspaper reporter whose telegram sparked a tumultuous celebration in Lubbock more than a half-century ago has contributed tape-recorded reminiscences to Texas Tech University's Southwest Collection.

W. Hamilton Wright, Abilene, toured West Texas in 1923 with the Texas Tech Locating Board, a committee to select a site for the new college. He is the only surviving member of the group of state officials and newspaper reporters who visited 38 towns competing for the school.

The 90-year-old journalist-minister recorded more than eight hours of interviews with a representative of the Southwest Collection, and the tapes are on file in the Tech repository's oral history collection.

GOT ASSIGNMENT

"I was touring Carlsbad Caverns with Jim White (who discovered the caverns) in July of 1923, while I was working for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce," Wright recalled. "The Fort Worth Record sent word that it wanted me to cover the Locating Board tour. I joined the group at Stanton and we visited two towns a day."

After the tour the board met in Fort Worth to decide where Texas Tech was to be placed, and Wright was there to cover the story.

"I stationed myself outside the door," he said. "After several hours the secretary of the group came to the door and said, 'We've settled it. It's going to Lubbock.'"

Wright ran to a telegraph office to send the news to Lubbock that "turned the city upside down," he said. "Stores closed, whistles blew, citizens gathered in a mob to shout and celebrate, and carried on the festivities for many hours."

Now retired from a long career in the Methodist ministry, Wright also witnessed the birth and growth of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

BIRTH OF WTCC

"When working in Amarillo in 1913 as a reporter, I met Porter A. Whaley, then manager of the Amarillo Board of City Development," Wright said. "He told me that we ought to have a chamber of commerce for West Texas. I contended that he was one of the first who had the idea." The WTCC was born in 1918 and Whaley was named its first manager. Wright joined its staff the next year as publicity director.

Wright worked briefly as a newspaperman in Big Spring.

Powderpuff Football Classic Due Tonight

The annual Powderpuff Football Classic is at 8 p.m. tonight in Memorial Stadium with profits from the game to aid the March of Dimes.

The student council is sponsoring the event which pits a junior-senior girls' team against a freshman-sophomore girls' squad.

Last year, the junior-senior team won 21-14 and the venture netted $250 for the MOD. Admission to the game is 50 cents for students and $1 for adults.

Steer football players are helping with coaching duties. There will also be boy cheerleaders, Key Club twirlers, half-time entertainment and pre-game ceremonies.

The girls will play by flag football rules. A pep rally this afternoon will be held for the girls' teams with participation by the students expected to be enthusiastic, as the classes compete against each other.

The Herald fumbled when it reported the game would be held Wednesday night.

OUTLASTED THEM ALL

Franco: Friend Of Hitler, Mussolini, Ike And Nixon

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Francisco Franco was a friend to Hitler, Mussolini, Eisenhower and Nixon — and outlasted them all.

Unlike his German and Italian counterparts, the Spanish dictator shunned publicity but for most of his rule held as tightly to absolute power as they did. The Nazi and Fascist dictators provided Franco with arms, men and equipment during his 1936-39 civil war against Spain's Republican government, and he let them make his country the testing ground and the Spanish people the guinea pigs for the techniques they used in World War II. Franco repaid them with various kinds of support but with the exception of one division he sent to the Russian front, he kept Spain out of the fighting.

After the war, the Spanish leader was an outcast to the democracies. But his strong anti-Communist views gradually won him acceptance from Western Allies fighting the threat of international Communism, and in 1955 Spain was admitted to the United Nations.

He gave the United States military bases in Spain and in return got $1.5 billion in economic aid and $500 million in military help. His close relationship with the United States was emphasized when President Eisenhower visited him in 1959 and President Nixon came to him in 1970.

Franco held absolute power in Spain from 1939 on and was challenged only by periods of international criticism and recently by terrorist attacks by Basque separatists and anarchist terrorists.

A professional soldier and devout Roman Catholic, he raised Spain from a destitute, shattered country after the Civil War to economic prosperity financed by the United States and by a flood of tourists from Western Europe and the United States.

But an increasingly socialist Europe resented his authoritarian regime, and the execution on Sept. 27, 1975, of five terrorists convicted of killing policemen touched off anti-Spanish displays in much of Western Europe.

Born into a line of naval officers on Dec. 4, 1892, Franco entered the army because the navy was in a decline. He became a brigadier general at 34. His promotions were largely the result of brilliant action and luck in Spanish Morocco, where he participated in 150 engagements and was only wounded once.

He was chief of the army in 1935 but a year later was exiled by the leftist Popular Front government to a command in the Canary Islands. There he and other dissident army leaders plotted a military revolt, and when their leader, Gen. Jose Sanjurjo, was killed in a plane crash, Franco took command of the revolution.

Three years later, on March 28, 1939, he led his troops into Madrid in triumph and declared the Civil War over officially four days later.

Despite his age and chronic Parkinson's disease, Franco was seriously ill only once before his final illness. In the summer of 1974 an attack of phlebitis in one leg so incapacitated him that Premier Carlos Arias Navarro prevailed on him to name Prince Juan Carlos acting chief of state. But the old man recovered and resumed his office after 40 days.

Residents In Tarzan, Firemen Fight Flames

STANTON — More than 30 Tarzan residents and two fire departments joined in an early morning battle Wednesday to save the Nellie McMorrises residence in Tarzan.

It was the second major fire in the Stanton area this week.

Mrs. McMorrises awakened at approximately 3 a.m. Wednesday and noticed a reflection of light, according to Sheriff Dan Saunders. She ran out of the house and stopped a truck driver, who was slowing down because he saw flames licking at the roof of the house.

Mrs. McMorrises' neighbors were successful in carrying many of her possessions from the newly-remodeled home. The fire was believed to have started in the southwest corner of the ceiling, possibly in the electrical wiring, according to Saunders. Martin County Volunteer Fire Department and the Midland Fire Department answered the call.

A fire in Stanton at 5 a.m. Sunday was an apartment complex near the Gene Perry residence at Lomax. Owned by Jack Bennett of Big Spring, they had been sold to Carol and J. M. Yater of Stanton.

The prospective apartments were former officers quarters from Webb AFB, and were being hauled to a new location by a truck-trailer rig. Because of road repairs, the rig and the apartments were left at the location near Lomax Friday afternoon.

Investigators found one of the flares used to mark the location for traffic inside the structure and believe someone threw the flare into the apartments, causing its destruction.

'Rainbow Jones' Well Under Way

Rehearsals for the Howard College Fine Arts Department presentation of "Rainbow Jones" are well under way. "Rainbow Jones" is a musical fantasy written by Jill Williams, author of the popular hit, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown". Rainbow Jones was first presented in 1972 in Philadelphia, then moved to a lengthy performance "Off Broadway".

"Rainbow Jones" is a musical fantasy about a young girl who has trouble holding a job and has no close friends, as New York is an unfriendly city. As a result, Rainbow, Karyl Thames, begins to talk to animals.

Portraying the roles of the animals are Steve Corson, Mike Hinton, Laurie Choate, and Lynda Franklin.

As in any romantic musical, a lover comes along; in this case Joey Miller, played by Dick Risk. They develop their relationship under the watchful eye of the comic couple, Aunt Felicity and Uncle Thaca, played by Carol Gibson and Jim Wiley respectively.

"Rainbow Jones" will be presented in a Dinner Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 9-10 in the Howard College Cafeteria at 7:00 p.m. Tickets for both dinner and the show will be $5. Reservations can be made by dialing 267-6311.

ABWA Chapter Plans Harvest Sale

Members of the Cactus chapter of the American Business Women's Association made final arrangements for the annual Harvest Sale at the Monday evening meeting held at Coker's Restaurant.

The sale will be held Saturday at Highland Center mall. Mrs. Cheryl Walker is coordinating the sale. Items to be sold Saturday include macramé, liquid silver necklaces, aprons, pot holders, Christmas decorations, crocheted and knitted items, home canned goods and baked goods.

The proceeds from the sale will be added to the scholarship fund which provides scholarships to young women in college. This semester the Cactus chapter awarded four scholarships.

During the Monday evening dinner meeting, Ed Kissinger spoke about crime prevention. He is the head of the Crime Prevention Department of the Big Spring Police Department.

Kissinger explained that the crime prevention was not a new concept, and that the purpose is to educate the public to be a step ahead of the would-be criminal.

He cited that the crime rate in Big Spring has increased approximately 19 per cent with 80 per cent of the crimes related to drugs.

He estimated the rape and assault increase as 156 per cent.

Simple defensive habits in daily life should be practiced by every woman. He suggested habits to develop including never piking up a hitch-hiker, signaling for help when stranded on a highway, keeping all car doors locked, checking car before entering, and not labeling mail boxes with female names.

Kissinger informed the group that the police department will label valuables so identification can be established in event of theft.

Kissinger listed defensive measures for a woman, hiding, running, screaming and striking with all force as possible. He said that weapons are not recommended for the average woman because of lack of knowledge in their use.

Kissinger concluded that the best defense is prevention, followed by familiarity of weapons, observing and reporting any suspicious person or action and getting involved in the Good Neighbor Watch Program.

Ms. Wanda Petty was the vocational speaker. She is employed as a horticulturist in the plant department of Montgomery Ward.

Other business discussed at the meeting included the Christmas party for residents of the State Hospital to be held Dec. 16.

The next meeting will be the annual Christmas dinner and party to be held Dec. 15 at the NCO Club, Webb Air Force Base.

Use Legal Names When Writing 'Shacked-Up' Couple

DEAR ABBY: Here among us Florida retirees, more and more of our widowed friends are "shacking up." If they marry, the widow loses part or all of her Social Security payments. Our problem is how to address these couples.

"Mr. John Smith and Mrs. Robert Jones" is probably correct, but it sounds so stilted, and besides, I think old Bob would want no part of this whole deal.

"Mr. John Smith and Mrs. Mary Jones" not only is incorrect but also slightly salacious. Their mailman is a very straight-laced, conservative type, which makes matters worse.

Shacked up or not, these are very proper people, and we want to address them correctly.

Can you help? And please don't take the easy way out and suggest "Occupants."

FLORIDA RETIREES

DEAR RETIREES: The only correct way to address one is by his (or her) legal name. Don't worry about the mailman. His job is to deliver the mail, not to make moral judgments.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, my husband's brother died and left a widow. (No children.) We agreed to let her live with us for a while so she wouldn't be alone. (Their apartment held so many memories she didn't want to live in it without him — which was understandable.)

Well, it's now going on the third year, and she hasn't said a word about leaving. We do love her and didn't mind having her for the first year, but we want very much to be by ourselves now.

She dates a little and has Mrs. Affleck Speaks To Woman's Forum

The Modern Woman's Forum met Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. C. R. Moad.

Mrs. Bert Affleck Sr. presented a program entitled "Threat For The Bicentennial Year."

She stated that political terrorism is on the rise again in the United States, building toward what could be a dramatic and possibly bloody climax to the nation's bicentennial year.

Mrs. Affleck gave further data on terrorist factions and history of the past violent years.

Mrs. W. E. Moren reviewed some information concerning "More Violence in Churches."

Mrs. Quigley Shows Slides To Garden Club

Members of the After Five Garden Club viewed a slide presentation by Mrs. John Quigley during a meeting held Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. D. G. Thomas.

Mrs. Quigley showed the slides of her trip to Alaska last May. She explained that the climate was moderate in May, but snow was still abundant in many areas.

Slides of Anchorage, Fairbanks, Alert Bay and Fort Yukon were shown. Mrs. Quigley said that the highlight of her trip was a flight into the Arctic Circle.

She commented that she saw many tourist attractions, including glaciers, totem poles, Alcan highway and the Alaskan pipeline under construction.

During the business meeting Mrs. Hank Dirks reported on the recent Southern Zone meeting held in Big Spring. One of the priority projects designated at the meeting was for each garden club to plant a "Liberty Tree" in observance of the bicentennial year.

Plans for the annual Christmas party were completed. The party will be held in the home of Mrs. J. E. Smith at 7 p.m., Dec. 16.

Officers Elected To Desk & Derrick Club

Officers for 1976 were elected at the Monday evening meeting of the Desk and Derrick Club. The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Leon Kinney.

Officers elected were Mrs. John Rains, president; Mrs. Everett Barnett, vice president; Mrs. Doryne Hefner, corresponding secretary; Mrs. William Higgins, recording secretary; and Mrs. Joe Blasingame, treasurer.

The officers will be installed on Dec. 15 with Ms. Doris Ward of Andrews as the installing officer. Ms. Andrews is the director of Region V of the Desk and Derrick Clubs of North America.

Mrs. R. C. McDaniel presided at the business session.

Ms. Kay McDaniel was welcomed as a new member. An article entitled "The Buffalo Crisis" by Don McElreath, Signal Oilfield Service, Inc. of Casper, Wyo. was presented by Mrs. McDaniel for further study as an analogy to the oil industry.

Members of the club toured the Permian Basin Coahoma Club

Plays Bridge

The Coahoma Bridge Club met Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Tommy Wyrick for a salad supper and bridge competition.

Winners for the evening were Mrs. Charles Parrish, high; Mrs. Glenn Mitchell, low; Mrs. Jody Sory, bridge; and Mrs. Billy Spears, table prize.

Members will have a country stew dinner before the next bridge contest, slated for 6:30 p.m., Dec. 1 in the home of Mrs. Glenn Mitchell.

Lomax Dinner Postponed

CALLING ALL HOMEMAKERS

Brought to you by Ted Hatfield

MODEL HOMES are very often excellent showcases for decorating ideas and new directions in living.

If you're house hunting, or just "Sunday shopping," take a good look at the ways in which even a modest house can be made to look inviting and livable.

You'll find carpeting and rugs are one of the favorite tools of the designers who make these models so appealing. Wall-to-wall broadlooms are the favorite, of course, for their look of luxury, the pleasing use of color, the ways in which these carpets can create illusions of space and a flow from room to room.

Accent rugs are another popular "model" idea, to capture the eye in a small children's room and make it look delightful, to give style to a study or a dramatic focal point to a large living area.

The point is that all these ideas can readily be adapted to your home... to make it a "model" for living with style and color.

See something just right for you, in a model home or home magazine? You'll be sure to find that luxury texture, that delightful color combination or design in our huge display of fine carpeting... home of the best ideas in carpets.

offers a change that makes driving fun again. Breathtaking acceleration. A jetlike smoothness and lack of strain at high rpm's. Its performance is unique among small cars. Because Mazda's rotary engine is unique.

A warranty that hasn't changed.

But there's one thing that hasn't changed. Cosmo, like other rotary Mazdas, comes with a 50,000-mile/3-year limited rotary-engine warranty. It states that the basic engine block and internal parts will be free of defects, with normal use and prescribed maintenance, for 50,000 miles or three years, whichever occurs first, or Mazda will fix it free. This non-transferable limited warranty is free on all new rotary-engine Mazdas sold and serviced in the continental United States.

So on your way down to a small car, move up to Mazda's new rotary car.

A change to more quality in small economy cars.

The piston-engine Mazda 808s are a far cry from economy cars that are under-equipped and underpowered. Up front, there's a spirited 1600-cc engine, combining efficiency with brisk performance. Interiors are completely finished. Nylon carpeting. Vinyl upholstery. Full instrumentation. Standard features include tinted glass, reclining bucket seats, power-assisted front disc brakes.

And the 808s, like all Mazdas, are carefully put together. So if you're looking for something more than economy alone in a small car, our 808s have it. We offer you a change to quality.

Make a change now. See your Mazda dealer.

Mazda's rotary engine licensed by NSU-WANKEL.

A change for the better in rotary gas mileage.

All rotary-engine Mazdas for 1976 show a dramatic increase in gasoline mileage over earlier models without sacrificing performance. Up to 50% more in the RX-3, 45% more in the RX-4.*

Using an improved combustion, a leaner fuel mixture, an improved thermal reactor with heat exchanger, a lower gear ratio and five-speed manual transmission (optional in certain states), the new Mazdas deliver up to 30 mpg on the highway, 19 in the city, according to EPA estimates.

A change to new luxury: Cosmo.

Low and wide, sleek and swift, Cosmo is easily the most advanced Mazda ever built.

Cosmo strides the highways like the classic road car it is. With anti-sway bars fore and aft. A front spoiler for greater stability at highway speeds. And steel-belted radial white-line tires.

Cosmo surrounds you with luxury. Inside, the glow of real wood. Reclining seats in soft velour, or vinyl that breathes. Deep carpeting from door to door - and even on the doors. And Cosmo's quiet rotary engine makes long trips seem shorter.

Cosmo provides stopping power to match its going power with power-assisted disc brakes on all four wheels - not just two. The front discs are ventilated for greater fade resistance.

A change from ordinary small-car performance.

Many small cars are small performers. Mazda

Colonels Hear Spurs Jingle

By The Associated Press
St. Louis Coach Rod Thorn admits he had a lot to do with his team's American Basketball Association defeat at the hands of the Denver Nuggets.

"I hate to say it, but I think when I got that second technical it turned the game around," Thorn said after the Nuggets crushed the Spirits of St. Louis 119-106. "If it hadn't been for the two technicals, it would have been 97-97 and anybody's ball game. Instead they got a quick basket and we were out of it."

Thorn's first technical came when he protested Bobby Jones' block of a Maurice Lucas shot with 5:55 remaining in the game. The second technical was called 36 seconds later when St.

Louis' Freddie Lewis was called for carrying the ball after a steal.

"I don't usually yell at referees," Thorn said, "but Luke had gone around the guy (Jones) for a layup and he had hold of his arm."

In other ABA games Wednesday night, Virginia defeated New York 110-100, San Antonio downed Kentucky 113-106 and Indianapolis crushed Utah 130-110.

Nuggets 119, Spirits 106
Byron Beck and Dan Issel converted the technical fouls into points as Denver put on a 10-2 surge enroute to its victory. The Nuggets had been down by four at 87-83 before they made their successful comeback.

Rookie David Thompson led all scorers with 31 points and 14 rebounds while Lucas had 28 points and 18 rebounds for St. Louis.

Squires 110, Nets 100

Virginia, with Ticky Burden and Willie Wise doing the most damage, gave Bill Musselman a victory in his first game as coach of the Squires. Burden poured in 32 points and Wise added 22 as the Squires broke a seven-game losing streak and won only their second game of the season against 12 losses. John Williamson paced New York with 33 points and Julius Erving added 26.

Squires 113, Colonels 106
George Gerwin's 21 points led a San Antonio attack that buried Kentucky, handing the defending ABA champions their third straight defeat. James Silas pumped in 20 points for the Spurs while Billy Paulz had 19 and Allan Bristow 18. Louie Dampier led the Colonels with 23 points. Kentucky led only three times in the game, the final time with 10:14 left at 89-88.

Midland Grid Pacts Renewed

MIDLAND — The contracts of both head football coaches in the Midland school system, John Reddell of Midland High and Jim Acree of Midland Lee, have been renewed by the Midland school board.

Each received a raise to $19,500 per annum. Each team finished with a 6-3-1 record, and the two clubs tied each other at the end of the season.

SPARSE CROWD — Although the Texas Longhorns, 9-1, are one of the nation's top-rated football teams, they drew only 34,500 fans to their game with Texas Christian University last Saturday. Few spectators dot the east stands from the 10-yard line to past the end zone as Texas' Adrian Ford (18) tackles TCU tight end Ronald Parker (87) as Bill Hamilton (13) looks on. Texas won, 27-11.

WHITE ELEPHANT? Only 3 Sellouts Since Upper Deck Finished

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The enlarged football stadium at the University of Texas can seat more than 80,000, but only 34,500 seats were needed for the Longhorns' last 1975 home game on Saturday with Texas Christian.

If that game hosted by the nation's No. 6-ranked team is an indication, the relatively new 15,000-seat upper deck, beautifully white in sunlight, may become an alabaster white elephant.

Did Texas spend $18.5 million to build the deck, along with the classrooms, gyms and offices under it, when big stadiums are becoming "passé"?

Consider "The Decks that Doak Bull" at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, where full houses watched Doak Walker and Kyle Rote. Now, Walker's alma mater, Southern Methodist, is lucky to draw 20,000 and the Mustangs may play some future games in cozy Owenby Stadium on campus.

This year's also-ran private Southwest Conference schools such as Rice and TCU are having the same problems.

But now, it's happening to Texas, a perennial championship contender.

The 34,500 at the TCU game is the smallest crowd Bob Rochs of UT's athletic business office can remember. Rochs played on the great 1941 team, so his memory covers more than three decades.

Texas sold 20,000 season tickets in 1973. Last year, during the energy crisis, the number dropped to 18,000.

This year, it plummeted to 13,000.

This is what happens to poor teams. But what about Texas?

The Longhorns won the Southwest Conference championship in 1972, the season before the sale of the 1973 season tickets. They won it again in 1973. They finished second in 1974 and that was the lowest they finished in seven years.

This year, Texas has a 9-1 record and can win its seventh conference title in eight years by beating Texas A&M on Nov. 28.

Except for Baylor, the SWC church schools compete with pro football for the hometown sports dollar. Texas does not.

Rochs says there have been only three sellouts in the four years since the completion of the upper deck: the 1973 Arkansas game, the 1974 Texas A&M game and this year's Texas Tech game.

This year, Texas has the highest average attendance in the Southwest Conference with 54,890—about two-thirds capacity—after six games. The Texas Aggies are second with a 49,012 average after four games.

However, A&M, which has a much smaller student body and is surrounded by a smaller metropolitan area, is outdrawing its stadium's capacity of 48,000.

Crowds at enlarged Memorial Stadium in Austin averaged 67,874 in 1972 but Texas' home attendance average dropped to 63,511 in 1973 and further to 61,167 in 1974.

Akins Still Favors Knee

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Coach Darrell Royal of Texas has told the Longhorn Club members that quarterback Marty Akins "is barely walking and that, to me, is a bad sign."

"I can't look inside his knee," Royal said of the knee injury to Akins, the key to sixth-ranked Texas' wishbone-T offense.

Earlier, the Austin American-Statesman quoted trainer Frank Medina Wednesday as saying Akins would not be able to do the weight exercises he is doing "if the knee was hurt."

"I've examined the knee," said Medina. "He couldn't have a more stable knee."

Akins limped off in the first quarter of last Saturday's 27-11 victory over winless Texas Christian, and team doctors diagnosed the injury as a sprained right knee.

Royal said, however, of several injured Longhorn players "the most doubtful (for the Texas A&M game) is Marty."

Royal narrated films of the TCU game, calling it "one of the sloppiest games you'll ever want to see."

Royal also said that one of the defensive stars of the TCU game was freshman end Jim Campbell, who tackled TCU quarterbacks four times for losses.

"He thinks he is a one-man pass rush, and he just about is," said Royal. "He's about the best pass rusher we've had."

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — The International Federation of Soccer Federations picked nine European countries Wednesday to open the qualifying rounds of the 1978 World Championships in Argentina.

The countries chosen were Bulgaria, East Germany, Italy, Yugoslavia, Holland, Poland, Scotland, Sweden and the Soviet Union. All except the Soviet Union played in the world finals in Germany in 1974.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Chuck Thorpe of Durham, N.C., fighting back from a sudden-death loss in last week's Riviera Open, has taken the first-round lead in the Dunes Open golf tournament with a 65.

Thorpe's seven-under-par round Wednesday gave him a one-shot lead over Slugger White of New Smyrna Beach and Lee Tomlinson of Barbersville, W.Va., after 18 holes.

Another shot behind in the $11,000 tournament, which drew a field of 170 golfers to the 6,533-yard Dunes Golf and Country Club, is Jim Morton of New Smyrna Beach, Fla.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi State University was expected to name Ron Polk, an assistant at Miami (Fla.), as its head baseball coach today, television station WJTV reported.

The report Wednesday night said Polk had been selected for the vacant post, but the university declined comment.

Polk, 32, formerly was at Georgia Southern.

Polk would succeed Jimmy Bragan, who resigned to take a coaching

Los Angeles Rocks Rockets, 118-110

By The Associated Press
Remember when John Drew scored 44 points in a game during his rookie season last year? And then there was that game when he grabbed 25 rebounds.

Well, apparently that's just for openers.

"As soon as he learns how to play this game, he's going to be great," Atlanta Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said of Drew Wednesday after the Hawks scored a 104-98 National Basketball Association victory over the Golden State Warriors.

Drew, who averaged 19 points and 11 rebounds a game last season, scored six of his gamehigh 27 points in overtime to pace the Atlanta victory.

In other NBA games Wednesday, it was Detroit 120, Portland 104; Philadelphia 113, Kansas City 103; Los Angeles 118, Houston 110; Milwaukee 96, Phoenix 94, and Seattle 97, Chicago 87.

Hawks 104, Warriors 98
After Clifford Ray's tip-in tied up the regulation game, Drew scored the first six points of the extra period before Atlanta's largest crowd of the season, 8,674.

Blazers, who played without Bill Walton, out with an ankle injury, were paced by Lloyd Neal's 24 points.

76ers 113, Kings 103
Pulling ahead in the second period, the Philadelphia 76ers rode the shooting of George McGinnis, Billy Cunningham and Doug Collins to their victory over Kansas City. McGinnis finished with 28 points, Cunningham 20 and Collins 19.

Lakers 118, Rockets 110
An 11-point outburst by Lucius Allen in the third period lifted Los Angeles past Houston. With the score tied at 54 at halftime, Don Ford scored the first two points in the third quarter for Houston. Then Allen popped in 11 straight points and the Lakers were off and running. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 26 points and 20 rebounds to pace the Lakers while rookie Joe Meriweather led Houston with 29 points.

Bucks 96, Suns 94
Brian Winters sank a free throw with two seconds left to ice Milwaukee's victory over Phoenix. Trailing 95-92 with 22 seconds left, Curtis Perry scored for the Suns to narrow the lead to one.

Appeals Court Reviews Barbecue Workmen's Comp Case

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court instructed an appeals court today to take another look at a workmen's compensation case in which the appeals court ruled that Carl Gregory, an employee of Dow Chemical Co., intentionally jumped from a building.
 After Gregory died in a fall from the top of a 43-foot high building, the Industrial Accident Board awarded death benefits to Carl Gregory and Sonya Gregory.
 Texas Employers' Insurance Association, Dow's compensation carrier, appealed to a Brazoria County district court, which affirmed the award.
 The civil appeals court, however, reversed the judgment, holding that the evidence established that "Gregory died of injury caused by his willful attempt to injure himself."
 The Supreme Court said the appeals court erred and sent the case back to the lower court.
 An expert witness testified that Gregory's body landed 20 feet from the building and thus would have had to be running 9.15 miles an hour when he left the roof.

 The Supreme Court said, however, that the evidence did not establish conclusively that Gregory's body did not hit a platform, possibly throwing his body father from the building.

EDITOR'S NOTE: They were the ruling elite of Saigon for a decade. Then the Communists took over. In the second of two articles on the rich and powerful of South Vietnam, AP Special Correspondent Peter Arnett writes of the life of a Saigon exile for South Vietnam's privileged senior officials and generals.

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some South Vietnamese were more than ready for the collapse.

Gen. Trang Si Tan moved enough money abroad during his two years as Saigon's police chief to seriously consider several big business deals, including buying an old aircraft carrier for scrap metal and purchasing a Holiday Inn hotel at San Diego.

Some waited until the last minute.

A former corps commander and chief of staff of the army cleared his safe deposit boxes just a few hours before he left Saigon. He arrived at Fort Chaffee, Ark., with a million dollars in large bills in a suitcase. His young mistress ran off with the suitcase and a young lover, and the general spent a month in a military psychiatric ward while his friends tried unsuccessfully to get the money back.

Some reacted too late.

Several wealthy generals invested heavily in property in Vietnam, like the former vice president and air chief, Marshall Nguyen Cao Ky, who lost five tractors and other farm machinery when the Communists overran his 2,500-acre property in the Central Highlands. Ky said he brought out "only" $40,000 in cash.

Then there were those senior Vietnamese who arrived with nothing because they had nothing.

Three-star general Dong Van Khuyen, the last chief of staff of the South Vietnamese army, found work as a $180-a-week waiter at a seafood restaurant at Yorktown, Va. He sometimes serves U.S. military officers who used to advise him on running the 1.1 million-man Vietnamese armed forces.

The quality of the lives of Vietnamese officials in exile in America has come as no surprise to U.S. officials familiar with the Vietnam scene.

"The U.S. Embassy was always well aware about who was making big money in Saigon and who was relatively honest," said one official handling the refugee resettlement program in Washington D.C. "We went along with Vietnamese corruption as the price we paid for their loyalty."

None are surprised that while the last president of Vietnam, Nguyen Van Thieu, flits between his handsome homes in Taipei, London and the south of France, the last president of Cambodia, Sauram Khoy, ekes out a modest existence with his son in Austin, Tex.

While former Vietnamese Vice Premier Nguyen Luu Vien, a physician, struggles at the University of Oklahoma at Norman, Okla., to be licensed to practice in America; the prime minister, Tran Thien Khiem, now a resident of Taipei, tries to decide which western country to settle in to better manage his business enterprises. He would prefer the U.S., his friends say, but only if he could move in quietly.

Some of the wealthier exiled generals — a total of 116 were evacuated from Saigon — are similarly concerned about adverse publicity and are trying to maintain a low profile.

They were shocked by the case of Gen. Dang Van Quang, a former corps commander in Vietnam who was fired for blatant corruption in the late 60s, and then returned to power as one of President Thieu's closest aides and reputed bag man. Quang was denied residence in the United States, and is currently fighting a deportation order from Canada.

Some generals linked with Quang in the past are discreetly settling in. But the wealth shines through. Gen. Cao Van Vien, formerly chief of the general staff headquarters in Saigon, whose wife was notorious in Saigon for her business dealings, purchased an $80,000 home in Virginia for a quiet retirement. His son, Cao Anh Dung, went public by soliciting gold from Vietnamese refugees, offering a higher price than Deak and Co Inc., the international money exchange, banking and investment concern.

Madame Vien's younger brother, Lt. Col. Tran Ngoc Tran, also living in Virginia, began driving a black Mercedes soon after arriving in the Washington D.C. area.

A close political adviser to President Thieu, Hoang Duc Nha, has invested around $100,000 on a home and store specializing in oriental goods in Arlington, Va. Thieu had to fire Nha, his nephew, because of his unpopularity in Saigon, and Vietnamese living in the Washington area say they are boycotting his store.

Nha tells friends he doesn't care because all his business is from Americans living in the neighboring apartment buildings.

Not all the senior Vietnamese are living a life of luxury in the United States.

Gen. Pham Van Dong, onetime commander of the capital military district and a minister for veterans affairs, had two military aides in Saigon, three maids for his wife and five children, a cook, and three guards.

Today in Arlington, Va., he drives his children to school himself while his wife does the housework, and lives "on a little money I put away."

Former corps commander Gen. Nguyen Van Minh lives rent-free in an apartment provided by a church group in New York's West 99th street, and earns enough "to live in dignity" in the accounting department of a New York trade book publisher. Minh's luxurious home in downtown Saigon had walls covered with jade-inlaid lacquer paintings, and rooms furnished with mother-of-pearl inlaid chairs and tables.

Other generals formerly with power and influence are reduced now to ordinary pursuits.

Other generals are unemployed. Gen. Tran Van Minh, last commander of South Vietnam's air force, and now living near Sacramento, Calif., says he will take "almost any job."

Brig. Gen. Pha Hoa Hiep, formerly a tank brigade commander, and minister of information shortly before Saigon fell, is living on food stamps at Ocala, Fla.

The last commander of the South Vietnamese navy moved into the basement of the home of the former chief of U.S. naval operations Elmo Zumwalt.

Retirement Planning Urged

SAN FRANCISCO AP — Melvin Jay Schwartz, an attorney who specializes in estate planning, says: "The great middle-class retired section of our population is ignored, uninformed and easily harmed financially by everybody from con artists to their own children."

Schwartz says he has counseled more than 4,000 retired persons and "not more than 20 of them had proper advice in planning their retirement."

The greatest mistake, he believes, is not spending some money for sound advice.

And with cotton at a pound, the G farmers thought it to sell the equivalent pounds from each their protection especially when recalled the $12 cost in 1968.

Growers in County also spent acre this year growers in Reagan Upton Counties, members of the Lawrence Cotton Association — dedicated to prevent the overwintering of their 42,000 cotton the four counties.

Since that first 1968, the association used the insecticide

Cotton Growers Paying To Control Boll Weevils

GARDEN CITY — Many cotton growers in Glasscock County already have spent $2.40 per acre in using insecticide this year to help control boll weevils in next year's crop.

And with cotton at 40 cents a pound, the Glasscock farmers thought it a bargain to sell the equivalent of six pounds from each acre for their protection next year — especially when they recalled the $12 cost per acre in 1968.

Growers in Midland County also spent $2.40 per acre this year along with growers in Reagan and Upton Counties. All are members of the St. Lawrence Cotton Growers Association — dedicated to prevent the weevil from overwintering this year on their 42,000 cotton acres in the four counties.

Since that first spraying in 1968, the association has used the insecticide Guthion every year to control the weevils, for the succeeding crop year.

"To kill the weevils early in the growing season," said Ronnie Hirt, association president, "means also to kill the beneficial insects — beneficial because they help destroy the boll worm, which is as damaging to cotton as the boll weevil.

"For that reason, we fly on our insecticide late in the season just before the weevil goes into diapause, or into hibernation. In this way, it won't be around to hit our young cotton early in the next growing season."

Oliver F. Werst, Glasscock county agent, said participation by members in the aerial spraying this year — once in late September and twice in late October — was 100 per cent. This kind of participation is necessary, because everybody helps protect everybody else, he said.

THEY MAKE ARMORED SEDANS — Fred Mueller, left, and Ron Chandler, vice presidents of Tetradyne Corp., in Richardson, display a bullet proof window that had been tested and shown to resist high-powered rifle shots. A window of this type will be put in the sedan in the background along with armor plating to protect the occupants for up to a minute of an attack as long as bazookas and armor-piercing bullets are not used.

Doing Booming Business Bullet-Proofing Cars

RICHARDSON, Tex. (AP) — Many automobiles altered by the Tetradyne Corp. come equipped with a speaker that can blare out in the language of your choice: "This vehicle is under attack. Stay clear and call the police."

Such a car might look like any other Ford, Omega or Ventura. It's not. For example, it will weigh up to 1,700 pounds more than the original stock model and the two-inch thick bullet-resistant windows won't roll down.

"If a passenger could roll down the window, it would defeat the purpose of a protective vehicle," said Fred Mueller, a vice president of the company that has customized 80 such cars in the past two years.

Most of the firm's "protective car" customers are wealthy Latin American industrialists who shipped their cars to the company's bustling shop in Richardson, a Dallas suburb.

On a recent visit to the shop, there were two Mexican-licensed American-built sedans with their interiors stripped out. Welders and mechanics were crouched inside the cars laying steel plate and replacing factory equipment.

Others were working on the interior of a British-built Range Rover, reportedly the car of the owner of a coffee plantation in El Salvador.

Ron Chandler, another Tetradyne vice president, said, "Our customers want protection against attack or kidnaping by terrorist groups."

And for between $5,000 and $30,000 Tetradyne will add armor plating, bullet resistant windows, sirens, two-way radios and gun racks to almost any vehicle. These additions, Chandler said, will withstand up to one minute of a terrorist attack as long as bazookas and armor-piercing bullets are not used.

"We don't try to build the cars so they will run after an attack," Chandler said. "We just want to keep the occupants alive through an assault."

Each vehicle, which takes a month to prepare by the 30-worker staff, has hinged slots for shotguns on the inside of each unaltered door. "It's not necessary for a hole on the outside," Chandler said. "The first shotgun blast gives you the hole you need."

Tetradyne's new customers come through old customers, Chandler said.

"We always check out our clients," he said. "We won't sell a car to just anyone. We wouldn't want someone using one of our cars to knock off a Dallas bank."

"In some countries, owning an armored vehicle is just like belonging to the local country club," Chandler said.

Mueller said none of his company's cars have been attacked. He said he was not worried about the ability of the vehicles in case of attack.

"Actually we expect them all to be around for a long time," he said. "What we are wondering is what the cars' owners are going to do with their automobiles after the cars get old."

Snow Closes Highways In Colorado

HAYS, Kan. (AP) — A 450-mile stretch of Interstate 70 from Hays to Denver was closed late Wednesday night as a sudden winter storm ripped much of western Kansas.

The highway patrol closed not only the interstate but also U.S. 40 and U.S. 36. More than a foot of snow in places, whipped by winds up to 70 miles per hour, trapped hundreds of motorists, cut power to many communities, and closed schools and businesses.

In the Goodland area, 18 miles east of the Colorado border, citizens band radio operators reported at least 25 people stranded in cars equipped with CB equipment. This led to concern among authorities that many more were stranded and unreachable because of the weather.

The highway patrol at Hays reported the interstate was being closed eastward in stages and indicated it might be closed as far east as Salina.

Ellis County authorities dispatched search and rescue units Wednesday night to assist workers at the Travenol plant west of Hays. One source said several hundred workers left the plant Wednesday night and started for their homes without realizing the intensity of the storm.

Winds were gusting to 57 miles per hour in the Hays area.

A highway patrol dispatcher in Garden City said, "Travelers are stranded in every direction. We can't see to do anything yet but we will work on the roads just as soon as we can get there."

Travelers were crowding motels in Colby, Oakley and Goodland. Several churches were opened in Oakley and residents were offering their homes to travelers with children needing a place to stay.

Ten inches of snow were measured in the Goodland area Wednesday night and the National Weather Service said 15 inches of new snow could fall in the area before the storm passed later today.

Wind Shift On Deficits And Increased Spending

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Last week the House of Representatives passed another crucial test in this new approach at trying to get control of federal spending, looking with hope to a balanced budget in 1978.

The first budget resolution in March of this year laid the groundwork for the action taken last week and for another binding resolution before this session ends to hold spending at a certain level which, of course, relates to the deficit as well.

The resolution this past week provides that any bill pushing spending beyond the ceiling set will be out of order and can be blocked by any one member's objection. It provides that if the current tax bill does not raise enough money to meet revenue requirements, thus Congress will either have to send it back to the tax committee or vote to raise the deficit.

For the first time in its history, Congress is having to vote on a budget as a whole and on the deficit. The result is a profound change in the way Congress thinks about money.

If the 535 unruly and highly individual members can sum up the cohesion, stamina and courage to enforce these provisions, the new budget law will accomplish more than any event of this century to bring Congress back into a genuine share of the authority and responsibility for enacting economic policy. Spending and taxing is no longer being left to the separate committees. Each legislative authorization and appropriation, of which there are 14 major bills, is being looked at in totals instead of in a fragmented and unrelated way as has been the case in the past.

During the last six months, the budget committee in the two Houses has carried on an effective influence to enforce the provisions given the Joint Committee.

Throughout the remainder of this session, the new procedures will be taken a great deal farther, demolishing a number of comfortable but irresponsible customs as it goes. There are still rough times ahead to make this machinery work. For instance, what happens if some times around Christmas Eve, the tax bill finally emerges, which raises less revenue than the resolution requires? What happens under this process if ceilings are exceeded and the deficit is beyond what is now calculated?

SOARING HOPES — Jim Woodman, right, of Miami, and Julian Knott of Great Britain demonstrate a model of a balloon they believe to be of the type ancient Incas may have used to soar above the Plains of Nazca in Peru, where age-old markings visible only from the air have long mystified modern man. The two say they hope to duplicate the flights with a 12-story high replica of the ancient balloon.

Men Hope To Soar In Ancient Balloon

MIAMI (AP) — Two men hope to soar high above the mysterious markings on Peru's Plains of Nazca next week to prove that ancient balloonists, not visitors from another planet, carved the strange symbols.

Jim Woodman of Miami and Julian Knott of Great Britain said Tuesday they believe the ancient Incas had the imagination, intelligence and materials to fly.

"We've taken 3,000-year-old textiles from the graves at Nazca and had them tested by American balloon and parachute manufacturers," said Woodman. "The word was always the same. This stuff could be used to make balloons that could carry men."

miles long and believed to be thousands of years old, were landing strips for ancient spacemen.

"We think that's wrong," said Woodman. "We think ancient man himself flew, and we think we can build and fly the same kind of craft he may have flown in."

About 110 miles from Nazca is Lake Titicaca, where for thousands of years the Incas have woven lightweight reed boats. Woodman said the boats were light enough to be used as gondolas.

If weather permits, on Nov. 28 Woodman and Knott will climb aboard a similar gondola hanging below a 12-story high balloon, all made of material of the same weight, porosity and strength as ancient Inca fabrics. They expect the flight to reach as high as 1,200 feet and last for as long as seven minutes.

Peru Envoy Appointed

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Carlos Garcia Bedoya, secretary general of Peru's Foreign Office, has been appointed ambassador to Washington by the military government.

Garcia Bedoya will leave for his new post in late December, the government said Monday. He will succeed Rear Adm. Jose Arce, who resigned last August after a coup ousted Gen. Juan Velasco and replaced him with Gen. Francisco Morales Bermudez as chief executive.

Matters To Buyers

NEW YORK AP — Anationwide survey, conducted for the Plastic Bottle Institute, shows that safety is one of the most important reasons for the growing popularity of products packaged in plastic.

The survey, done by Technical Analysis and Communications Inc., consisted of a random sampling of 300 families in both rural and urban areas. It involved the study of attitudes towards all types of bottles in their homes.

"Interestingly," says John Malloy, PBI's staff director, "the survey showed that safety was equally important to women without small children as it was to women with young children."

Other reasons mentioned for plastic's increased popularity included ease of handling, reusability and convenience.
