WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO WITH THE ROAD TAX?

Next Saturday is going to be a test to the citizenship of old Terry. It will mean good roads or bad roads. Which will you travel?

The Commissioners' Court of Terry Co. with the expectation that the people would vote the tax, they have cut the tax rate to correspond to the 15 cents on the $100 valuation to be voted by the people for special road purposes.

We have been reliably informed, however, that if the tax is not voted, the county will be out of money for road purposes in the next six months and then we will of course set back and cuss the commissioners court for that.

Be assured, if you vote the tax that your taxes will be no higher than last year and all of the 15 cents will be kept and spent in Terry county.

Every property taxpaying citizen man or woman, otherwise qualified to vote can vote in this election. Go to the polls Saturday and vote right.

TABERNACLE MEETING CLOSED SUNDAY NIGHT

The meeting at the tabernacle held by Kerby Bentley, of West, Texas, under auspices of the local Church of Christ came to a close Sunday night with fine interest and every seat taken, and while less than half the ten days of the meeting was carried out on account of almost incessant rains, the meeting was a success, four young ladies being baptised and one restored.

People of all denominations learned to love and respect Bro. Bentley during his brief stay here, and he is just as fond of them, and no doubt this 24 year old evangelist that is in the near future to have no peers in his church, will return next year. He spent most of his time here visiting in the home of his uncle, J. C. Green and family.

Elder Metcalfe, of Lubbock, also did fine service in leading songs, in prayer and boosting the meeting, and had opportunity to renew old acquaintances and make new ones.

The church was left much strengthened and edited.

HEAVY HAIL FALLS SOUTH OF LUBBOCK

According to Floyd Beall, of the Beal Drug Store, who owns a farm seven miles south of town, that part of the country was visited by a heavy hail. All the crops were destroyed and grass damaged to a large extent. PROMINENT RANCHMAN GETS JAIL SENTENCE

Dallas, June 1.—R. L. Slaughter, Jr., wealthy rancher and cattleman, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of violating the Mann act in Federal Court here this afternoon, and was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $500.

Slaughter was arrested in Fort Worth on the charge some months ago. It is alleged that he transported a young woman from New York to Texas. Since his arrest Slaughter has been free on bond of $2,500.

SEVEN INCHES OF RAIN SINCE JUNE FIRST

For the Herald to mention rain at present looks like rubbing it in on the people, but the next shower we get could be a very welcome visitor. The south plains with her 300 days of sunshine per year, however, had begun to get a little bit restless under two weeks of cloudy weather, but now that old J. Plav has temporarily retreated and old Sol showed up, so that farmers can get into the fields, and the cattleman can run out to the pasture and watch the cows mow the "long green" the smile has returned, and the merchant is whistling as he goes to his work. Prosperity and content is here.

Since the first day of June exactly seven inches of rain has fallen in the local government gauge, and showers from this on will insure a heavy yield in old Terry and her neighbors.

TERRY AND YOAKUM OFFICERS MAKE BIG BOOZE HAUL

The sheriff of this county, Wood E. Johnson, had a tip late Saturday afternoon from Sheriff Keller of Yoakum county that a bootlegger was headed this way, and that he had captured one and was preparing to store a large consignment of liquor. Sheriff Johnson, Deputy A. E. Graham, County Attorney Graves and City Marshall Brown got busy and captured a man by the name of Sim Davis of El Paso and his wife in a brand new Cadillac eight with 450 bottles of booze wrapped mostly in gunny sacks. Sheriff Johnson estimates that there would be in the neighborhood of 280 quarts if it were all in quart bottles. Samples of the stuff that ranged from Scotch whiskey to "mugger" gin has been sent to the State Chemist.

Attorney G. E. Lockhart and Geo. Small of Tahoka, came over Monday and bonded the man out.

Altogether there are now in storage 417 quarts of booze in the vaults at the Court House.

Now, just a word about law enforcement. We hear men on our streets saying that if they were officers they would close their eyes or get out of town when a bootlegger came thru. In the first place, there is not much danger of these men ever being officers in this town or county as long as the present citizenship lives here. We do not believe that these men realize what they are saying in the second place, for they are openly advocating outlawry. Young boys and young men are listening to all this talk, and will naturally reason that if the average citizen of Brownfield and Terry county will go to such length to protect to protect a bootlegger whom they never saw and probably will never see again, will they not protect a neighbor's boy who steals a cow or breaks a store?

There is no difference in the circumstances. The dry law is on our statute books and any violation of one is just as much crime as violating the other. Both are criminal offenses. Besides a man who is ready to risk the neck of the pen and to swear falsely to protect himself, just for the sake of making dollars fast, does not mind selling your boy or your neighbor boy adulterated and poisoned liquor. Oh! you say, they are going to the oil fields with it. That makes no difference, you or your neighbor boy will be working down there, and anyway, some other mother's boy is down there and can buy it. But you say that I am not my neighbor's keeper. The Bible says: "Thy brother's blood crieth from the ground against thee." And again it says: "These words (the Bible) will judge you in the last days."

We don't believe some of these citizens are thinking about what they are saying when they make "such talks, and at heart are really for law enforcement in the main, but that

MEADOW BRIEFS
By J. D. Moorehead.

The rains of the past week have put the farmers to work in their crops and in consequence the town is unusually dull.

Rich Bennett is back from the Oil Fields, where he has been visiting the past week. He reports things as very dull in that favored region, and that he is perfectly willing to remain in the best town in the county.

Mrs. John Arnett is visiting relatives in Fort Worth, but John started out to meet her Monday, at Lubbock, saying as he left that if she did not return, he didn't know that he would ever come back. He doesn't like bachelors.

Three of our county commissioners were visitors to our city Monday, looking after the roads. We were glad to have them with us. The road from Brownfield to Lubbock should be put through at once, along the railroad, thus shortening the distance and making it more direct and on better ground. Brownfield should be as interested as ourselves in this change.

Mr. Emmerson has leased his gasoline station to Jake Beall, of Ropesville. We hope he will do well and that other citizens of that town will come also.

Miss Frances Moorehead has returned to Canyon for summer session of school.

ARTHUR MOORE DEAD

News came in here the early part of last week that Arthur Moore, of New Mexico was not expected to live as he had a stroke of paralysis, and his father, A. P. Moore of Gomez and other relatives hastened to his bedside, but returned Tuesday, thinking he was better, the returned home and received work that he died on Wednesday morning at 5 o'clock.
Arthur with his family settled in Terry county early in its history, and was highly regarded throughout the county. He was a member of the Baptist church and was once an Odd Fellow.

Besides a wife and five children, he leaves his parents and several brothers and sisters, who have the sincere sympathy of the Herald.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Graham Norcross, railroad manager, and his secretary, Jimmie Dodds, are enroute at Santa Creek siding with a young lady, Sheila Macrae, and her small cousin, Kinch. They witness a peculiar train holdup, in which a new car is carried.

CHAPTER II—Norcross recognizes the car stolen by John Chadwick, financial magnate, whom he was to meet at Portal City. He and Dodds rescue Chadwick. The latter offers Norcross the management of the Pioneer Short Line, which is in the hands of western speculators, headed by Francis Macrae, Dumas, president of the line. Norcross, learning that Sheila Macrae is stopping at Portal City, accepts.

CHAPTER III—Dodds overhears conversation between Rufus Hatch and Gustave Henckel, Portal City financiers, in which they admit conspiracy in Chadwick kidnapping, their object being to keep Chadwick from organizing a meeting of directors to reorganize the Pioneer Short Line, which would jeopardize their interests.

CHAPTER IV—To curb the monopoly controlled by Hatch and Henckel, the Red Tower corporation, Norcross forms the Citizens Storage and Warehouse company. He begins to manifest a deep interest in Sheila Macrae. Dodds learns that Sheila is married, but living apart from her husband. Norcross does not know this.

CHAPTER V—Hatch, aware that Dodds has knowledge of his and Henckel's participation in the Chadwick kidnapping, offers him inducements to leave Norcross's office. He is knocked senseless, recovering consciousness, he learns that Norcross has resigned and is believed to have resigned and gone east.

CHAPTER VII

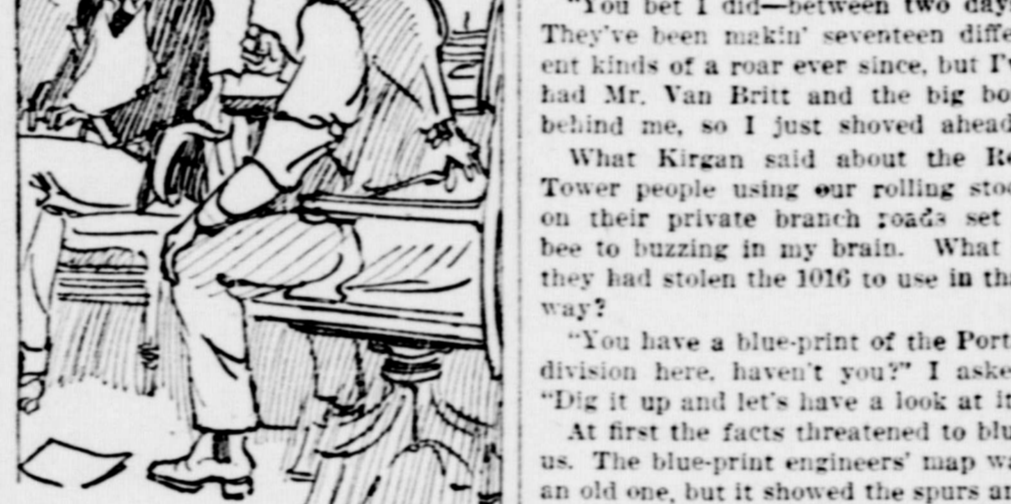

The Lost 1016

When Kirgan told me he was shy a whole locomotive, I began to see all sorts of fire-works. Of course, there was nothing on earth to connect the boss' disappearance with that of the engine which had been left standing below the coal chutes, but the two things snapped themselves together for me like the halves of an automatic coupling, and I couldn't wedge them apart.

"An engine—even a little old Atlantic-type—is a pretty big thing to lose, isn't it, Kirgan?" I asked.

Kirgan righted his chair with a crash.

"Jimmie, I've sifted this blamed outfit through an eighty-mesh screen," he growled. "With all the devil-topay that's got on over at the headquarters. I didn't want to bother Mr. Van Brit, and I haven't been advertising in the newspapers. But it's a holy fact, Jimmie. The 'Sixteen's gone."

"I've Sifted This Blamed Outfit Through an Eighty-Mesh Screen."

I was trying to pry myself loose from the notion that the loss of the engine and the boss' disappearance at about the same time were in some way connected with each other. It was no use; the idea refused to let go.

"Look here, Kirgan," I shoved in; "can you think of any possible reason why Mr. Norcross should write Mr. Van Brit a letter saying that he had quit and was going east on the midnight train and then should change his mind and come down here and go somewhere on that engine?"

"After I had said it, it sounded so foolish that I wanted to take it back. But Kirgan didn't seem to look at it that way.

"Well, I'll be shot," he exclaimed, "I never once thought of that! But where the devil would he go? And how would he get there without somebody finding out? And why in Sam Hill would he do a thing like that, anyway? Why, sufferin' Moses! If he wanted to go anywhere, all he had to do was to order out his car and tell the dispatcher, and go.

"I can't figure it out any better than you can," I confessed. "Mr. Norcross is gone, and the Ten-Sixteen is gone, and they both dropped out between ten and twelve o'clock on the same night. Mart, I don't believe Mr. Norcross went east at all! I believe, when we find that engine, we'll find him!"

Kirgan got out of his chair and began to walk up and down in the little space between his desk and the drawing-board. Besides being the best boss mechanic in the West, he was a first class fighting man, with a clear head and nerve to burn. When he had got as far as he could go alone he turned on me.

"Jimmie, do you reckon this Red Tower outfit was far enough along in its scrap with the boss to put up a job to pass him out of the game?" he demanded.

I told him it didn't seem to fit into any twentieth-century scheme of things, and past that I mentioned the fact that the Hatch people had taken the back track and were now offering to sell out and stop chocking the wheels of reform.

"I know," he put in. "But I've been readin' the papers, Jimmie, and it ain't all Red Tower, not by a jugful. The big graft in this neck-o-woods is political, and the Red Tower gang is only set-a-cogs in the bull-wheel. Mr. Norcross was gettin' himself mighty pointedly disliked; you know that. The way he was aimin' to run things it was boundin' to look as if maybe the people of this state might wake up some day and turn in and help him."

"I know all about that," I threw in. "But where are you trying to land, Mart?"

"Right here, Mr. Norcross was the whole show. Take him out of it and the whole shootin'-match would fall to pieces—as it's doin', right now. They didn't need to slug him or shoot him up or anything like that; if it could be made to look as if he'd jumped the job, quit, chucked it all up, why, there you are. A new boss would be sent out here, and you could bet your sweet life he wouldn't be anybody like Mr. Norcross. Not so you could notice it. The New York people would take blamed good care of that."

"You think the Dumas people are standing in with the graft?"

"Nobody could've grabbed off the motive-power job on this railroad, as I did, Jimmie, and not think it—od be de-n' sure of it. Why, Lord o' Heavens, the Red Tower bunch was usin' us just the same as if we belonged to 'em!—orderin' our men to do their machinery repairs, helpin' themselves to our railroad material that they happened to need, usin' our cars and engines on their loggin' roads and mine branches."

"You stopped all this?"

"You bet I did—between two days! They've been makin' seventeen different kinds of a route ever since, but I've had Mr. Van Brit and the big boss behind me, so I just shoved ahead."

What Kirgan said about the Red Tower people using our rolling stock on their private branch roads set a bee to buzzing in my brain. What if they had stolen the 1016 to use in that way?

"You have a blue-print of the Portal division here, haven't you?" I asked. "Dig it up and let's have a look at it."

At first the facts threatened to bluff me. The blue-print engineers' map was an old one, but it showed the spurs and side-tracks, the stations and water tanks. Since the lost engine had been standing at the western end of the Portal City yards, we didn't try to trace it eastward. To get out in that direction it would have had to pass the round-house, the shops, the passenger station and the headquarters building, and, even at that time of night, somebody would have been sure to see it.

"Tracing the other way—westward—we had a clear track for ten miles to Arroyo. Arroyo had no night operator, so we agreed that the stolen engine might easily have slipped past there without being marked down. Eight miles beyond Arroyo we came to Banta, the first night station west of Portal City. Here, as we figured it, the wild engine must have been seen by the operator, if by no one else. Banta was an apple town, and the town itself might have been asleep, but the wire man at the station shouldn't have been.

"Let's hold Banta in suspense a bit, and allow that by some means or other the thieves managed to get by." I suggested. "The next thing to be considered is the fact that the Ten-Sixteen must now have been running—without orders, we must remember—against the Fast Mail coming east. The Mail didn't pass her anywhere—not officially, at least; if it had, the fact would show up in some station's report to the dispatcher's office."

At this, we hunted up an official time-card and began to figure on the "meet" proposition. The Fast Mail

The Wreckers

"Opprobrious" very clearly, and I couldn't seem to remember anything about the siding ten miles west of Banta. So I asked Kirgan.

"That siding isn't in any such shape that the Fast Mail could get by without seeing a 'meat' train on the side-track, is it?"

"Hardly, you'd think. I reckon we are up a stump, Jimmie. That siding is part of an old 'Y' at the mouth of a gulch that runs back into the mountains for maybe a dozen miles or so. They tell me the 'Y' was put in for the Timber Mountain Lumber outfit when they used the gulch mouth for their shipping point. They had one of their saw-mills up in the gulch somewhere, but the business died out when they got the timber all cut off."

"Tell me this, Mart. I put in quickly. 'The Timber Mountain company is one of the Red Tower monopolies, did it have a railroad track up that gulch connecting with our 'Y'?"

"Why, yes; I reckon so. I'm not right sure that there ain't one there yet. But if there is, it's been disconnected from the 'Y'. I'm sure of that, because I went in on that 'Y' one day with the wrecker."

"You'd think this would have settled it. But I hung on like a dog to a root."

"Say, Mart, I insisted, 'this 'Y' siding were talking about is just around where the Ten-Stations outfit has their main office, so far as we can tell by this map it's the only place where it could have met it. And the old gulch track would have been a mighty good hiding-place for the stolen engine."

"There ain't any track there," said Kirgan, shaking his head; "no, best-wise, if there is, it hasn't any rail connection with our siding, just as I'm telling you. We'll have to look farther along."

"We left the shop offices together, and got shut out, crossing the yard by a freight that was pulling in from the west. There was a yard crew shifting on the other side of the incoming train, and rather than wait for the double obstruction to clear itself, we walked down the shop track, meaning to go around the lower end of this."

This detour took us past the round-house, and when we reached the turntable led the engine of the just-arrived freight came backing down the skip-track. Seeing Kirgan, the engineer swung down from the step at the lead switch, leaving the hostler to 'spot' the engine on the table. I knew the engineer by sight. His name was Gorbner, and he was a reformed cow-punch—with a record for getting out of more tight places with a heavy train than any other man on the division.

"Here's looking at you, Mr. Kirgan," he said, with a sort of Happy Holligan grin on his smutty face. "You been passin' the word, quiet, among the boys to keep an eye out for that Atlantic-type that got lost in the shuffle, ain't you? Well, I found her."

"What's that—where?" snapped Kirgan, in a tone that made a noise like the pop of a whip-lash.

"You know that old gravel pit that digs into the hill a mile west of the old 'Y' on the Timber Mountain grade? Well, she's there, plumb at the far end of that gravel track, cold and dead."

"Crippled?" Kirgan rapped out.

"Not as we could see; just dead. She's got her nose shoved a piece into the gravel bank, but she ain't off the rail."

Kirgan nodded. "Who else saw her?"

"Nobody but the boys on our train. I reckon."

"All right. Don't spread it. Want to make a little overtime?"

"I ain't Kirgan's boss."

"That's enough," I rasped. "I'm gone" and I tumbled down the two flights of stairs and sprinted for the railroad yard, reaching the round-house not one half-second too soon. Kirgan was there with Gorbner and two fellows. They had a light engine on the tank track and were filling her with water.

"They took Mr. Norcross with them on the Ten-Stations" was all I could say and then I gazed my late electric light out in its work to pay for the quick sprint down from the newspaper office, for I looked over into Kirgan's arms and sort of half-fainted, it seemed.

Because, when I came to, right good again, Kirgan had me up on the fireman's box, with an arm around me to hold me there. Billy Gorbner was on the other side of the cab, snipping at the throttle; and the light engine was chugging it off about fifty miles an hour on the straight piece of track between Portal City and Arroyo.

COUNTY JUDGE'S ORDER

State of Texas, County of Terry—Whereas, on the 13th day of June, 1921, a petition was presented to me for an election in Common School District No. 18 of this county on the question of authorizing a tax of and at the rate of 50 cents on the $100 valuation of taxable property in said district for the purpose of supplementing the State school fund apportioned to said district, said petition bearing the requisite number of signatures of property taxpayers voters of said district, and being in every respect in conformity with law; Now, therefore, I, D. J. Broughton, in my capacity as County Judge of Terry county, Texas, do hereby order that an election be held on the 9th day of July, 1921, at (a) the School House in said common school district No. 18 of this county, as established by order of the County Board of Trustees of this county, of date the 21st day of May 1921, which is recorded in book 1, page 16 of the minutes of said board, (c) to determine whether a majority of the legally qualified property taxpayers voters of said district desire to tax themselves for the purpose of supplementing the State school fund apportioned to said district and to determine whether the commissioners' court of this county shall be authorized to levy, assess and collect annually a tax of and at the rate of (a) 50 cents on the $100 valuation of taxable property in said district for said purpose. Brit Clark is hereby appointed presiding officer for said election, and he shall select two judges and two clerks to assist him in holding the same, and he shall within five days after said election has been held, make due returns thereof to the commissioners' court of this county as is required by law for holding a general election. The ballots for said election shall have written or printed thereon the following: "For School Tax." "Against School Tax." All persons who are legally qualified voters of this State and of this County, and who are resident property taxpayers in said district shall be entitled to vote at said election. The Sheriff of this county shall give notice of said election by posting three notices at three public places in said district for three weeks before the election. Dated the 13th day of June, 1921. CHINA'S GREAT FAMINE RESULT OF DEFORSTATION

(Editor's Note.—The Herald has always contended that when the citizens of Terry county saw fit to make Terry county a forest country, that our droughts would end, and it can be done easily by cooperation. We ask each of our readers to carefully read the following government bulletin.)
The ruthless destruction of their forests by the Chinese, is according to foresters of the United States Department of Agriculture, one of the reasons why famine and plague today hold this nation in their sinister grip. Denudation, wherever practiced, leaves naked soil; floods and erosion follow, and when the soil is gone men must also go—and the process does not take long. Forests, it is pointed out, not only play an important part in the distribution of mankind over the earth's surface, but also deeply affects his spiritual, physical and economic life. A country that wrecklessly wastes its natural resources faces ultimate poverty and decadence. History is full of such examples.

In the provinces of Honan, Shensi and Chihli, China, over an area of some 100,000 square miles in extent, several million people are starving. The immediate cause of the famine were disastrous floods followed by long periods of drought, which resulted in the failure of three successive crops.

The Great Plains of Eastern China, occupied by the first Chinese of history, were centuries ago transformed from forests into agricultural land. The mountain plateaus of Central China have also, within a few hundred years, been utterly devastated of tree growth, and no attempt made at either natural or artificial reforestation. As a result, the water rushes off the naked slopes in variable floods, gully away the mountain side, causing rivers to run muddy with yellow soil, and carrying enormous masses of fertile earth to the sea. "Beware of the mountain water," read a sign in many canyons of China, posted as a warning to travelers against the sudden rise of torrents during storms.

This lack of forest cover has made possible many of the factors that have brought disaster to millions of people of China this year. The tree covered mountains formerly absorbed a considerable portion of the annual rainfall and let it escape by slow, regular seepage during the dry season. Now that there are no trees, shrubs, or even grass to retain the rainfall, the streams that formerly were narrow and deep, and supplied an abundance of clear water the year round, have become broad and shallow, with slender currents of muddy water, which when it rains, swell to roaring torrents that bring disaster and destruction everywhere.

Water courses have also changed; rivers become uncontrollable and the water level of the country lowered perceptibly. In consequence, the unfortunate people see their crops wither and die for lack of water when most needed. In many parts of China, it is said, these factors, combined with uncertain moisture conditions, make seven years out of every ten more or less famine years.

The Hwang Ho or Yellow river, which which drains a large part of the famine district, once, records show, flowed through a rich, fertile valley, its tributary hill well wooded. Today it is a broad moving quicksand, with a small amount of water most of the year, but when the floods come the whole face of the landscape may be changed. In 1886 this river, which is known as "China's Sorrow," flooded some 20,000 square miles of the most densely populated lands, wiped out thousands of towns and villages, and drowned 2,000,000 people.

Some idea of the rapidity of the runoff of the mountains may also be obtained from the records of the Yan ste River, which has been known to rise 58 feet above mean water level in one week, and then fall 68 feet in less than three weeks.

Human folly and short-sightedness have thus made a country fertile enough to support over 50,000,000 people into a place of where man must ever be haunted by fear of starvation and destruction. The lesson of deforestation in China is one which mankind should have learned many times from what has occurred in all other places. In fact, it may, in lesser degree, even be brought home to

WHY THE NEGRO?

The race riot in Tulsa, Okla., last week, in which 50 negroes and twelve whites were killed, and the most of the houses in the negro quarter destroyed by fire, was the direct result of an attack of a negro upon a young white girl. It was ever thus, and always will be. While this lawlessness is to be regretted, it is the result of a cause that never fails to bring about similar, if not as disastrous consequences. When a negro lays hands upon a white woman, actuated by unholly lust, he may expect swift and sure retribution, whether the crime occur in the north or south.—Ralls Banner.

COUNTY JUDGE'S ORDER

The State of Texas, County of Terry.—
Whereas, on the 9th day of April, 1921, a petition was presented to me for an election in Common School District No. 12 of this County on the question of issuing bonds and to provide funds to be expended in payment of accounts legally contracted in (a) building and equipping a wooden school building in said district and authorizing a tax upon all taxable property within said district sufficient to pay the current interest on said bonds and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to pay the principal at maturity; and

It appearing that said petition bears the requisite number of signatures of qualified property taxing voters of said district and is in every respect in conformity with law; and
It further appearing that Terry County contains a population of 326 people according to the latest United States Census and it further appearing that said Common School District No. 12 has been heretofore on the 18th day of September, 1919, properly established in compliance with Art. 2849F (Amendment to Art. 2817 of Vernon Sayles Texas Civil Statute 1914, and

It further appearing that said district as so established contains an area of 26 square miles and that no other district has been reduced in area below 9 square miles by reason of the creation of this district, and
It further appearing that said district does not embrace any territory that was taken from any other district, either common or independent, that has an outstanding issue of bonds at the date of such inclusion in this district.

Now, therefore, I, D. J. Broughton in my capacity as County Judge of Terry County, Texas, do hereby order that an election be held on the 18th day of June, 1921 at (a) the school house in said school district No. 12 of this county as established by order of the County Trustees of Terry County on the 18th day of September, A. D. 1919, which order is recorded in Book 1 at page 5 of the Minutes of the Trustees of Terry County (b) to determine whether a majority of the legally qualified property taxing voters of that district desire the issuance of bonds on the faith and credit of said Common School District in the amount of $15,000.00, the bonds to be of the denomination of $100.00 each, numbered consecutively from one to fifteen, both inclusive, payable in twenty years from their date and bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum payable annually on the first day of September of each year, to provide funds to be expended in payment of accounts legally contracted in (c) building and equipping a wooden school building in said district and to determine whether the Commissioner's Court of this county shall be authorized to levy, assess and collect annually, while said bonds or any of them are outstanding a tax upon all taxable property within said district sufficient to pay the current interest on said bonds and provide a sinking fund sufficient to pay the principal at maturity.

A. J. Bryan is hereby appointed presiding officer for said election and he shall select two judges and two clerks to assist him in holding the same, and he shall within five days after said election has been held, make due returns thereof, to the Commissioner's Court of this county as required by law for holding a general election.
All persons who are legally qualified voters of this State and of this county, and who are resident property taxpayers of said district shall be entitled to vote at said election, and all voters desiring to support the proposition to issue bonds shall have written or printed on their ballots the words:

"For the Bonds."
And those opposed shall have written or printed on their ballots the words:

"Against the Bonds."

The Sheriff of this county shall give notice of said election by posting 3 notices in three public places in said district for three weeks before the election, and it is further directed to have said notice of election published for three weeks prior to said election in some newspaper of general circulation that has been continuously and regularly published for more than one year previous to the date of this order, in the Terry County Herald, situated in Brownfield, Terry County, Texas, the date of the first publication being not less than twenty-one full days prior to the date of election. Dated this May 18, 1921.
D. J. BROUGHTON,
County Judge Terry County, Texas

COUNTY JUDGE'S ORDER

The State of Texas, County of Terry.—
To the resident property taxing voters of Terry County:—

Take notice that an election will be held on the 18th day of June, 1921, in said county to determine whether or not there shall be levied upon the property within said county by the Commissioner's Court, a special road tax not to exceed fifteen cents on the $100 worth of property in obedience to an election order ordered by the Commissioner's Court on the 18th day of May, which is as follows:—
On this the 18th day of May, 1921, the Commissioner's Court of Terry County, Texas being in regular session, at the regular meeting place thereof in the Court House in the town of Brownfield, Texas, all the members of the Court, to-wit: D. J. Broughton, County Judge; D. S. Cunningham, Com. Pre. No. 1; Jay Barrett, Com. Pre. No. 2; W. D. Winn, Com. Pre. No. 3; W. H. Black, Com. Pre. No. 4, and H. R. Winston, County Clerk, being present, came to be considered the petition of A. E. Graham and 231 others, that an election be ordered in Terry County for a Special Road Tax not to exceed 15 cents on the $100 worth of property, to be levied upon the property of said County, subject to taxation; and said tax being for building, maintaining and general road purposes for said county.

It appearing to the Court that said petition is signed by more than 200 of the resident taxing voters of said county.
It is therefore considered ordered and adjudged by the Court that an election be held in said County on the 18th day of June, which is not less than twenty days and more than 90 days from date of this order, to determine whether or not there shall be levied upon the property within said County a special road tax not to exceed 15 cents on the $100 worth of property under the provisions of the Constitution of the State of Texas as amended and adopted in 1890; said tax being for building, maintaining and general road purposes.
That said election shall be held under the provisions of Art. 7042 to 7046 inclusive of Chapter XI, Title 119 of the Civil Statutes of Texas, 1920.

All persons who are legally qualified voters of this State and of this County, and who are resident property taxpayers, shall be entitled to vote at said election, and all voters desiring to support the proposition for the tax shall have written or printed on their ballots "For the Tax" and those opposed shall have written or printed on their ballots, the words "Against the Tax."

The following places and presiding officers of said election shall be respectively as follows:—
Box No. 1 with J. W. Hatton as the presiding officer.
Box No. 2 with J. C. Green as the presiding officer.
Box No. 3 with Ben Broughton as the presiding officer.
Box No. 4 with O. L. Jones as the presiding officer.
Box No. 5 with J. C. Scudday Jr. as the presiding officer.
Box No. 6 with M. K. Lindsey as the presiding officer.
Box No. 7 with U. D. Sawyer as the presiding officer.
Box No. 9 with Brit Clare as the presiding officer.
Box No. 9 with J. T. Pippin as the presiding officer.

The manner of holding said election shall be governed by the general laws of the State of Texas, regulating General Elections, when not in conflict with the statutes hereinbefore referred to.
Notice of said election shall be given by the County Judge issuing his proclamation and that the fact that such election is to be held shall be published in a newspaper in said county once each week for four consecutive weeks before the date of the said election.
The County Judge is hereby directed to cause said notice to be published as heretofore directed, and further orders are reserved until the return of said election are made by the duly authorized officers and received by the Court.
Given under my hand and the Seal of the Commissioner's Court affixed this 18th day of May, 1921.
