BRIEF HISTORY OF THE SAM CATES CASE

Sam Cates was indicted by the Cross county Grand Jury on May 10th, 1920, for the murder of Judge J. W. Burton, at Crosbyton on the night of March 8th, that year. He was tried on May 20th, 1920, the jury finding him guilty as charged in the indictment, and assessed his punishment at 99 years in the penitentiary. The Court of Criminal Appeals at Austin reversed this sentence. The case already having gained wide notoriety, it was impossible to secure a second jury in Crosby county, and on change of venue, the next trial was held in Lubbock on June 24th, 1921, one year after the first trial. The jury in this trial gave the defendant 14 years. It was during this last trial that the State's principal witness, Mary Steffen, which prevented her from testifying against her then husband, Mr. Cates, it being inadmissible, and this, very likely was the reason the former sentence of 99 years was cut down to 14. The defendant's attorneys immediately filed motion for a new trial which was overruled, and a second appeal was taken to the Court of Criminal Appeals at Austin. It was during the pendency of this appeal, and while Cates was confined in the Lubbock county jail that he and his cell mates, Hulet Smith (also of Crosby county) and J. B. Callahan made their first attempt to escape by overpowering the sheriff and his wife during the noon feeding hour. Cates during the scuffle gained possession of the Sheriff's gun, and held him at bay for some ten or fifteen minutes, the other prisoners, Smith and Callahan, overpowering Mrs. Holcomb, just at the opportune time, the sheriff's deputy, Jno. McCulloch appeared on the scene, but being at a disadvantage trying to shoot through the bars at Cates. The quick eye of Cates noticed McCulloch, and jumped back in the cell. The bullet fired by McCulloch just grazing Cates' arm. This was the second attempt, and was frustrated. The first plan by the prisoners to escape was nipped in the bud by the sheriff and his deputies.

The last attempt to escape was perfected on the night of September 29th, Cates and Smith both were confined in the dark cell and had been for some three weeks. The prisoners by the manufacture of a crude mechanism, consisting of cot rollers, strings from their bed clothes, a pen knife, etc., made a device that finally opened the combination door of the dark cell. After their entrance to the run-around, five doors were between them and the top window, out of which they climbed. So they made a key from a hook on which their hammocks were hung, that opened all locks.

For almost four months, Sheriff Holcomb has been chasing suspects and following out different clues, but all proved unverified. Very little has been said about the final escape, but it has all been for the better. Sheriff Holcomb is a quiet, modest, unassuming character, ever alert, and his plan and schemes of this nature are always kept concealed. He is an untiring worker, a fearless officer and ever attentive to his official duties, and he is to be congratulated in his efforts in this connection. While the public has been kept in the dark, the Sheriff and his deputies have spared no time nor money, and they have been on the Cates' trail for several months, having kept track of him in Old Mexico and his final capture was expected daily.

Not only will Cates have to serve 14 years allotted him for murder, but also four years allotted on charges of forgery in Crosby county, and a dozen more charges still pending against him in that county. He will also have to answer indictments for assault and attempt to murder on Sept. 27th, which carries a penalty of two to ten years. J. B. Callahan, co-defendant in the assault and attempt to murder charge was given five years in the penitentiary in this connection the past week. Hulet Smith, who accompanied Cates in the final getaway's still at large, however, we have every assurance that he will be caught in the near future.

JOHN BURNETT BADLY HURT

The entire community was badly shocked last Thursday when it was learned that John Burnett, who owns a ranch jointly with his brother R.E. Burnett in the east part of the county had been hurt badly while hauling a bundle of stuff.

A local physician was immediately called, and found that the bones below the knee had been broken and were thrashed through the flesh. It was thought best to call Dr. Krueger, a surgeon of Lubbock, who advised that he be carried to Lubbock and X-rayed to find the exact extent of the injury, and he was carried on Friday. An X-ray was made Friday and the bones reinforced by metal supports when the operation was performed, Saturday, and it is expected he will soon be able to come home.

He and brother, Redge were in the field, Thursday, hauling out bundle of stuff as stated above, and had secured a load and had started homewhen John, who was driving sled off behind the horses, which caused them to get into a fast walk or trot, and it is thought he lost his balance, and his foot being hung in the doubletree he was turned back under the wagon head foremost, thereby breaking the bones.

DON'T MISS THE FIRST IN STALLMENT OF NEW STORY

It may so happen that we will not receive advertising plates in time to tell you of our new serial in this issue of the Herald, and for that reason, we are running this article. This week will finish the "Clan Call" and next week "Storm Country Poly" the new serial is to make its appearance in these columns.

This is a high priced, bran new story by Grace Miller White, and anyone who has read her books or seen them on the screen can testify their high quality. Among those of her stories that have been screened for the movies, are "Tess of the Storm Country," "From the Valley of the Missing," and "Shadow of the Sheltering Pines" and others less noted. It would cost you from $2.00 to $2.50 in book form, but you get it in these columns at less than half price, not to mention all the home news.

All our readers have enjoyed "The Can Call" and we have been just as careful in selecting this story.

TO THE COTTON GROWERS OF TEXAS:

Thelast two cotton crops have sold below cost of production. No business enterprise can stand when forced to sell its products for less than cost. Farming is the biggest enterprise in the State. It is a sure business barometer, measuring the success or failure of other business enterprises.

It should be placed on a sound business basis, and to do this it is necessary to find the average cost of production, so that money crops, and specially cotton, may be sold upon a cost, plus basis, as the products of all manufacturing plants are sold. I want you or three thousand farmers to keep the cost of producing cotton for this season, as they did last year, and report to me upon blanks to be furnished by this department.

Enter every item of cost upon a lay book, and from the time of breaking the land begins until the crop is aged by. These items must include: teaming up the land, breaking, harrowing, bedding, planting, chopping, weeding and cultivating at current wages paid in other lines of work, and must include soil depreciation, taxes and interest on the investment.

I will furnish blank forms upon request, to be filled out and returned to this office when the crop is laid by.

In order to be able to price the crop we must know the cost of production, and in order to sell for the cost of production and a profit, the farmer must make the farm self-supporting and make the cotton a surplus crop, and be able to enforce the demand for a cost plus price.

Raise less cotton and more to eat.

THE OLD ONES ARE THE BEST

The printer's devil was going thru his first experience in "making up" forms. The paper was late and the boy got the galleys mixed. The first part of an obituary notice of a prominent citizen had been dumped into the forms, and the next hand full of type came off a galley describing a recent fire. It read like this: "The pal bearers lowered the body to the grave and it was consigned to the flames there were few if any regrets for the old wreck had been an eyesore to the town for years. Of course there was individual loss but that was fully covered by insurance." The widow now thinks the editor wrote the obituary that way because the lamented partner of her joys and sorrows owned him five years' subscription.

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown and Company

THE MILLIONS whose hearts were touched by the story of "Tess of the Storm Country" or who were equally affected by the sweet, pathetic little heroine as acted on the screen by Mary Pickford, will be charmed by this new tale of the squatter folk who once lived on Lake Cayuga, a few miles outside of Ithaca, N.Y.

Polly herself, crude and untaught, but beautiful in face and fine in spirit, is an adorable heroine, loyal through thick and thin, tempestuous at times when her anger is aroused by wrong or injustice, but tenderness itself to all weak and helpless creatures.

The situations in "Storm Country Polly" are tensely emotional, skillfully portrayed and adroitly handled, and the reader's sympathy with Polly and her people never lapses from start to finish.

By Heck was puzzled. "Here comes Bill," he frowned, "and over here comes Babe. And that, as plain as day, goes Bill; but what because of Babe? What in the name of the devil's pet ridin'-boss did she go to? Not straight up, shorely!"

He scrutinized the signs with the understanding eye of the born woodsman. Then he grinned broadly and said to himself:

"Well, dang my forehead and blast my eyes! The dang'd old Injun, he jest picked her up bodily and carried her off home, and I know what that means, thank God. I can't pray, but I shore can sing—

"Oh, when I die, don't bury me deep; Put a tombstone at my head and feet; Put a bear's jawbone in my right hand, On my way to the Promised Land; Oh, on my way to the Promised Land!"

Storm Country Polly

By GRACE MILLER WHITE

LOVE, tenderness, heroism and fine sentiments are attributes of the human heart and soul, existing irrespective and frequently in spite of environment; quite as likely to be found in hovel as in palace.

Grace Miller White discovered a mine of human contrasts and a wonderful new setting for romance and heroism in her squatter settlement on the shore of Lake Cayuga, within sight of busy, prosperous Ithaca and almost under the shadow of classic Cornell university.

Polly is the latest find and likely to be quite as popular as Tess, Tonnie Devon or any other of the author's sweetly appealing heroines.

We shall print this story as a serial. In book form it would cost you as much as this paper for a year. In a magazine or metropolitan newspaper, it would be made the basis of a subscription campaign.

MY EXPERIENCE IN THE WORLD WAR

By Homer R. Winston

On Dec. 18th, 1918, we entered Germany just south of Treves, and found the most beautiful scenery I ever saw but I was not in much of a humor to enjoy it, for just before getting there a colonel came along in a show case (closed car) and he ordered me to put the whole eleven trucks in the ditch so he could get by and then we wasted about two hours in pulling them out.

You could never tell that the war had effected the people in this part of the country. The show windows were full of everything and the people dressed very nice. We had read in the papers that the people were wearing paper clothes; also paper shoes. These people had plenty of regulation clothes, but the things that were missing almost entirely were soap, bread, meat and any kind of sweet meats. Nearly every German had from 300 to 1000 gallons of Mosele wine and got rich selling it to the Americans for 25c to 40c per qt. and a large glass of beer for 2c.

If the Americans had to make a living in that country, they would starve to death. They take the side of a mountain and shovel out places flat enough to place manure on it, and then carry the manure maybe 1/2 to 1 1/2 miles up there on their backs, for a horse can't climb it, and plant it in grapes, and if they sell the land it costs from $7,000 to $25,000 per acre (after they get a good vineyard started). No wonder they get rich when they come to a good country where they can have plenty of room. Just to think here in Terry county we can raise all the grapes we want by just setting them out, and maybe watering them once or twice, but we are too lazy. Put one of those Dutchmen here and in four or five years to the Vaterland with $20,000 he would go, but he would not get a red for his community while he was here, for he would not be thinking about it, but the Fatherland.

From here we went to Wittlich, another good town. The people were afraid of us. Three other boys and myself stayed at a school teacher's house. One of the boys was a Dutchman himself, but being born in this country, he was 100 per cent American. When he knocked at the door for admission, she came to the door trembling and scared to death. This old button told her we would do her no harm, and that if the Germans treated the boys good, they would be treated good in return. She said that she could not believe that, for she had heard so much about them from boys that had deserted the German army, that we were regular barbarians, and thought it was fun to kill people. This old boy admitted that they were pretty bad in battle, but the war was over now, and if they stayed in their places, they would be treated with courtesy. She said the war was going alright for Germany up until the St. Mihiel drive, and the boys deserted the army and said the Americans were over there by the millions, for they had seen them. We stayed here two days and then moved up to Traben on the Moselle, a summer resort. It was fit for nothing else so far as I could see.

Between Berncastel and Traben is one of the prettiest roads I ever saw. Hair pin curves all the way to the top, and the same way going down on the other side.

From here we moved to Blackhousen, and we left the other companies and went to Daun for the winter; an awful cold country, and on the last day of the year we move back to Cuse on the Moselle.

In moving from one town to another, the first thing the company commander would do, was to find the Burgomaster (mayor) and make him furnish him with every house; how many beds to the house. How many women and real old men and little children. They would leave enough beds for these and take the rest for the soldiers and make the German men hunt a place to sleep in the hay barn or on the floor in the hall. This was treating them pretty rough, but they deserved it, for none of us wanted to go to Germany, but since they had invited us over, we made them furnish us with a couple of nice goose feather beds to sleep between.

A MILLION DOLLAR BABY

Naturally, those who see this heading expect to read about some "baby heir" of an American multi-millionaire, and they will be surprised to learn that such a description applies to a scientific pyorrhea preventative, tooth and mouth preparation, and they will doubtless wonder how such a product ever came to be spoken of as a "million dollar baby." So the story must be told. Over three years ago, the Research Department of the Kewell Company, in consultation with chemical specialists, began an exhaustive investigation into the disease Pyorrhea, and its proper treatment, and in their characteristic thorough way spent over two years before they perfected a compound which answered every test, according to their high standards. Such a remarkable demand has been created that they have named it "the Million Dollar Baby." Probably no preparation that is devised for use as a germ combatter was found so efficacious in preventing all contagious diseases that enter the system through the mouth and nose as Klenzo Liquid Antiseptic. Especially was it proved that users of it completely escaped all attacks of the flu when so prevalent last year. This Klenzo product can be purchased in 25c. and 50c. special toilet bottles at

METHODIST INSTITUTE "PAY-UP WEEK"

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 6.—Throughout Southern Methodist territory a special period, known as pay up week is being observed in the interest of Centenary collections. At this time it is expected that every member of the Methodist church who made a subscription to the Centenary of Missions movement will make some payment on that pledge.

Int this work the presiding elders, pastors, missionary secretaries, and Centenary treasurers are to have the leadership and a statement is to be given each subscriber and an appeal made for the payment of the amount due to date. Owing to depressed business and financial conditions, it is said that in many sections the payments have not been in keeping with the record made by the churches in the matter of subscription. Subscriptions are made on a five year basis and more than half of the total subscriptions are now due. An earnest effort will be made during the "Pay-Up" movement throughout Southern Methodist territory to bring all payments up to date.

DEATH FROM T. B. BEING SPEEDILY REDUCED

Austin, Feb. 6.—A recent report of the United States Bureau of Census announced that the national tuberculosis death rate had reached the remarkably low level of 114 per 100,000. If this figure is to be applied to Texas, and there can be no question but that it is at least a moderate one, it means that over 5000 Texas citizens died from tuberculosis in 1920.

The disease so spreads itself that according to the best statistics available, for every death, eight others have become afflicted. This means that Texas has nearly 43,000 citizens suffering from this one terrible disease. Many of these cases can be saved with a proper understanding of what to do and then doing it in time.

In helping others to care for themselves one is at the same time working to protect himself and family. Fighting tuberculosis is a cause in which every citizen of Texas must engage if the battle against this disease is to be successful, said Dr. D.E. Breed, Executive Secretary of the Texas Public Health Association.

THE SUCCESSFUL FARMER

Recently the Kansas City Star sent a correspondent to the country with a view of writing a series of stories telling how some farmers were succeeding where others were failing.

After an extended trip through Missouri and Iowa, the correspondent reported:

"Whenever I arrived in a community and inquired of a banker or country merchant for a prosperous farmer, the trail led to the farm of some one who raised fattening hogs as a regular business, or who milks some cows or keeps a flock of hens. So universally was this true, there was but one story to tell: The hog, dairy and chicken farmers are making money; few others are breaking even."

Regardless of production quality, price or demand for cotton, wherever there is a man in this country raising and fattening hogs, milking a few cows and keeping a flock of poultry, he is not likely to be the one that is behind with his account at the store or at the bank; he is not likely to be embarrassed because of it.

There may be an occasional overproduction of farm products outside of what we produced from the soil, but it is not so easily brought about, and there is rarely a time when a fair price is not available for live stock, poultry, eggs and butter. Some effort is required, of course, but the reward is liberal when compared with the amount of energy expended in the production of things that mean revenue, or at least an abundance of foodstuffs throughout the year.—The Salem (Ark.) Banner.

These facts in Terry county, or any other farm community from the state of Maine to California, or from the Great Lakes to Texas.

The Green Heron.

This bird, which is sometimes called the "fly-up-the-creek," is about one and a half feet long and is common throughout the United States and Canada. It feeds mostly on fish, frogs and other aquatic animals, and may be seen, particularly in the morning and in the evening, standing patiently motionless in some shallow water, waiting till prey comes within reach.

Mrs. W. A. Bell was called by wire Wednesday morning to Marshall, to attend the bedside of her mother who is seriously ill. The train was in the city limits a moment when she received the message, but happily she made the train in time. We hope she finds her mother improved in health when she arrives at home.

Saturday P. M. Jan. 28th, a number of the little friends of Freda Tandy, together with their parents, gathered at her home to help her celebrate her tenth birthday. After several hours spent in play, they were called in to dispose of some cake and hot chocolate. After more playing, they departed to their homes, wishing their little hostess many happy returns of the day. Those present were Winnie and Vivian Clare, Jaunita Murphy, Ruby, Freda, Nora Lee and Gorda Tandy, Eileen Ellington, Raymond and Don Fitzgerald, Junior Clare and Ben Huston Tandy.

Let the following be our creed: "Don't look for the flaws as you go through life.

And even when you find them it is wise and kind to be somewhat blind.

And look for the virtues behind them. For the cloudiest might have a hint of light.
