Our understanding about placing the Ferguson picture in the Texas hall, was to the effect of contrast with those other men who served Texas as governor, and in a way as a perpetual reminder and warning to the future governors.

In his platform he further says, "I am opposed to all the blue laws and proclaim the inalienable right of the people to attend Sunday baseball and Sunday moving picture shows, boxing exhibitions and other places of amusement as they prefer. An old time "hoss race ain't bad either."

In other words, Jimmie turns 'em loose, makes Sunday the "sport" day and the gambling day. He is probably in sympathy with the officers in the streneous life they lead, and reasons that by doing away with the laws, it would give them a rest, as ! there would be no laws to enforce.
