Runs as Easily as a Single-Row Cultivator

Double the results of your labor whenever and wherever you can. Be a combined boss and hired man. It will give you a feeling of independence.

The McCormick-Deering P & O Two Row Lister Cultivator works just as easy as a single-row cultivator. Each gang follows its own team between the rows whether the rows are straight or otherwise.

One of the appealing features on the McCormick-Deering P & O is the wide range of adjustments for first and second cultivation, and the ease with which they can be made. The gangs have a double movement, either forward or backward, or in and out on the connecting tube. The weight of the gangs, whether in or out of the ground, is counter-balanced by the drivers weight.

These are merely a few features on the McCormick-Deering P & O Cultivator. Come in and give us a chance to demonstrate it.

ANOTHER GIN ASSURED FOR BROWNFIELD

Some time ago we mentioned about Mr. W. B. English, of Bryan, Texas, being here and contemplating putting in a gin. He returned again this week and selected a site in the Santa Fe addition and is enthused over the fact that he is a real citizen of the west. Using his own language, "it looks good to me." shows how he esteems Terry county as a future cotton producing country.

He has practically a new outfit, it having run only one season, and it is now only 600 bales, just enough to wear the paint off. He is selling his engine and will install a brand new engine here.

We believe that three gins will be able to care for the cotton crop here this fall without too much inconvenience to the farmers.

Bull weils is the cause of the removal here of Mr. English from South Texas.

BROWNFIELD GETS GOOD MERKEL CITIZENS

We are pleased to have a letter from our good friend and former excellent citizen, Mr. L. B. Howard, who is now in the dry goods business at Brownfield, saying he wanted us to keep the (great religious weekly) the Merkel Mail, coming that way. Yes, Merkel has given two fine business men and good citizens to Brownfield, and from all accounts these men have absolutely fallen in love with that thriving, hustling and growing western town, for they are always boasting that town when writing to their many friends here.

And we are also pleased to have numbered among our exchanges the Terry County Herald, published in that city, which we count as among the best weekly papers coming to our desk. Its pages also bespeak a progressive, enterprising bunch of business men.—Merkel Mail.

We thank Merkel heartily for the gift of these two progressive citizens, Messrs. Howard and Hancock, and only wish that Merkel may spare us more of their like. Although knowing no one in the city of Merkel, we read each issue of the paper from old Taylor with ardent joy.

LOCAL REBEKAH LODGE TO REORGANIZE

Talk of reorganizing the Rebekah Lodge has been rife for some time, it being allowed to disband during the stress of war, and another dispensation has been granted for reorganization.

As a preliminary step in this direction, the Brother Odd Fellows recently appointed a committee consisting of J. L. Randal, Walter Yeiser and A. J. Stricklin to consult with former members of this Rebekah Lodge and if possible to fix a date for reorganization. It was generally agreed that Wednesday night, April 25th would be a good date for that purpose, inasmuch as the next day is the anniversary of Odd Fellowship, and the Sister Rebekahs can then more fully participate in the celebration.

It was suggested however, that if, in the meantime, former members of the Rebekah Lodge here wanted to meet before hand about any business connected with reorganization, they could have the liberty of the hall to do so.

YES, TERRY COUNTY NEEDS A NEW COURTHOUSE

About the first impolite thing a visitor says to a native on arrival here, is, "why don't you folks replace that shack with a courthouse."

We used to proudly answer: "We are busy building good roads with our money and besides we don't have much court anyway."

Now, if we make such an assertion, we would be laughed to scorn, for the adjoining counties that have real up-to-now courthouses, also have just as good roads as Terry, and in some instances better. The day of the plea of "no court much" is all over, and will rapidly increase as the county settles.

We understand that a great many of our citizens are now favorable to a new courthouse, and this includes most all if not all the county officials we understand.

The natural wealth producing capacity of Terry is great—her citizenship is proud of her. Why not show our pride by our works.

FARMERS AND STOCKMEN WELCOME GOOD RAINS

We don't know which is wearing the broadest grin these days the old farmer, or stockman, for both have occasion in common to vent their good natured mugs, for grass was already "agreening" and while only the top of the ground was getting dry, this will start the farmer to planting what he considers safe at this time.

The precipitation Wednesday night amounted just shy three-quarter inches, and the old timers are still predicting a bumper yield.

Luther French, assistant cashier of the First National Bank, caught the news over the radio yesterday that the rains were general over Western Texas. Carl Lewis, Brownfield-Tatum, N.M. mail carrier reports the rain heavy all the way to Tatum, and in fact much heavier there than here. Give the goose the air.

MIDLAND AND NORTHWEST- ERN TO BE SOLD JUNE 12

The Midland & Northwestern Ry. will be sold to the highest bidder on the second Tuesday in June, the same being June 12th.

This is the message received here last week by interested parties. It is understood that all land and notes given the railroad will be sold at Seminole and the railroad proper at Midland.

The order to sell is the final decree of the courts, in which it is said that the Texas & Pacific who holds the largest claim was favored.

This litigation has been in the courts at El Paso and New Orleans for the past three years and although we do not know what the final outcome will be in the sale, it is hoped that the purchaser can and will put the M. & N. W. in operation. Here's hoping.—Seminole Sentinel.

WEN IS EASTER?

Last Sunday was generally celebrated as Easter Sunday, but here

Easter is not mentioned but one time in the New Testament and that time in connection with a Jewish feast, and never was intended that Christians should observe it. The Book plainly tells Christians when to "show forth His death." Every Sun-world would pay more attention to their duty as recorded in the Bible and run less after Jewish and heathen feast days, there would be less division among them.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—John Bartley, noted criminal investigator, recently returned from Secret Service work during the war, is asked by the governor of New Mexico to investigate a mysterious attempted robbery of the Robert King, owner of Crown Lake, near Saratoga. Peculiar circumstances of the case interest Bartley, and he accepts.

CHAPTER II—With his friend Pelt, Bartley goes to Crown Lake, the pair becoming the guests of Bob Carran, old friend. The three visit the King's home. Slight apparitions prevent Bartley's seeing a mysterious man in the attic. Bartley is arrested for the attempted robbery. Next morning Slyke is found dead in bed, apparently having shot himself.

CHAPTER III—Miss Potter, the dead man's sister-in-law, the village police chief, Roche, and the family physician, Doctor King, all agree Slyke killed himself, but Bartley insists he was murdered.
Investigating, Bartley finds evidence that Slyke, after a card party he had given, was shot on the tower of the house, un-dressed and placed in bed. Bartley discovers from the room someone releases the revolver from Slyke's hand.

CHAPTER IV—A boy working in the garage asserts he heard a shot fired right, apparently "in the air," of course really on the tower.

CHAPTER V—Pelt starts out to interview the members of the bar and finds to his surprise that Slyke, apparently wealthy looking, had been seen in the trunk whiskey. He finds evidence that the men in jail for attempted robbery of Slyke were framed.

CHAPTER VI—Returning from a visit to Saratoga, Bartley, Pelt and Carran come upon a large party without lights and on the road. They are discovered endeavoring to ascertain the license number and find on the truck gets away. The three come upon a long-distance motor car. Apparently the look in new and Bartley places it. They find the vault stored with whiskey and find the revolver which had been found in Slyke's hand. A man, seemingly well-acquainted with the party, arrives and they detain him. It is Slyke's missing chauffeur. A detective working for the revenue department arrives and takes charge of the vault.

CHAPTER VII—After considering all the mysterious angles of the case, Bartley apparently reaches no conclusion as to the murderer. He is satisfied that deals in whiskey had something to do with it. Miss Potter's belief in the "wink board," and spiritualism also seems to interest him.

CHAPTER VIII—Bartley continues his search for evidence and apparently discovers some things of value. The inquest opens. Doctor King, who is the coroner, war veteran, and who had been shell-shocked, conducts it. A heavy thunderstorm is in progress. Doctor Webster, called in consultation, testifies he believes Slyke was murdered.

CHAPTER IX—The storm increases in intensity as the inquest progresses. Little of importance is elicited. Bartley, the chauffeur, is called to the stand. Before he commences his testimony the lights in the room are extinguished, a stroke of lightning having broken the power.
During the ensuing confusion the party is horrified by the utterance of a sudden horrifying shriek.

CHAPTER X—With the restoration of the lights it is discovered that Bartley has been stabbed. He had been seated directly in front of Doctor King. No one in his vicinity had noticed anything unusual before the man's shriek. Bartley wondered if he had been murdered, refers to the "boy's" knowledge of the robbery, and tries to point out the person who had stabbed him, but dies before he can do so. The greatest shock is administered when Bartley is found dead.
How Bartley had been stabbed without any one being aware of the movement of the murderer seems unexplainable.

CHAPTER X

Sudden Death.
For a moment after the cry had fled away the only sound to be heard was the clashing of the rain against the windows and the lashing of the trees outside. Everyone was too startled and frightened to move. I felt Bartley's hand on my arm, his fingers sticking deep into my flesh. Then the spell was broken, and men asked each other in excited whispers what had happened.

The cry had seemed to come from the front of the room. It had been one of horror, dread and surprise, as if the person uttering it had met with some unexpected and awful experience. It had been a man's voice, and I wondered whose it could have been.
"Come on, Pelt."

Bartley pushed back his chair and half dragged me to my feet. We started to grope our way between the chairs toward the place from which the cry had come. The room was still in darkness and our progress was very slow. Then the lights began to flicker very dimly, and suddenly flashed out again in all their power.

At first glance there seemed to be nothing wrong; then I noticed that King was bending over his desk, his face dead white, his eyes fixed on something on the floor in front of him, and fear showing in every feature. I realized suddenly that the chauffeur's chair was empty, and that Roche was on his knees before some object. Miss Potter, who had also been staring at the floor, fainted and fell sideways into the arms of her aunt. Then I saw what was the matter; the chauffeur was lying on the floor, with his face white, and his eyes closed.

Bartley dropped to his knees beside Roche and gave one searching look at the man, then straightened up with a queer expression on his face. He pointed silently to the chauffeur, on his brown coat, slowly darkening and widening; was a splash of blood, and from his breast protruded the hilt of a knife.

For a moment my head swam. Only a short time before the lights had gone out the chauffeur had had a self-confident sneer on his face; now he was lying on the floor, white and still, a knife in his breast. Another murder had taken place in Slyke's house, and this time in a room crowded with people.

The district attorney and Doctor Webster had by now reached the scene and the doctor knelt down by the chauffeur. With a glance at the excited crowd pushing its way toward us, Bartley suggested to Roche that he clear the room of all but the family. It was not until he had called some of his men to his aid that he was able to make the excited spectators obey his orders and withdraw.
Doctor King was assisting Roche to restore her aunt to consciousness. As for Bartley, myself and Black, who had come forward, we had eyes for nothing but the silent figure of the chauffeur.

Doctor Webster opened his coat and examined the wound. Then, when he had turned back his eyelids and felt his pulse, he slowly shook his head and said to Bartley: "He can't live more than five minutes. The knife reached his heart."

"Will he recover consciousness before he dies?" Bartley asked.
"I can't say. He might, for a moment."

Even as he spoke the chauffeur opened his eyes, eyes that still retained their look of horror and dazed surprise. Weakly his glance traveled over the faces leaning over him; he tried to raise one hand, but the effort was too much for him and his eyes closed again. When he opened them a second time, he seemed to recognize Bartley and gave him such an appealing look that he bent closer. His eyes had begun to glare and his face to take on a waxen hue. Though his lips moved feebly, no words came from them. Then, with a final effort, he gathered up what little strength he had left, and, in a voice so low we could hardly distinguish the words he stammered forth: "The—robbery—robbery. Those men—innocent, ask-boy."

His voice died away and his eye lids sank; then he opened them again and gasped, "The—boy—he knows." I saw Bartley's face lighten, but he did not speak. Bartley lay so still that we thought he had ceased to breathe; but, as the doctor started to rise, he made a sudden effort to sit up.

I saw Bartley's face lighten, but
up.

"—Killed—"

un and Bartley put his arm under his chin. With eyes flashing, he cried in a loud voice, "Slyke—murdered."
"—?" His arm rose from his side and pointed straight in front of him, his finger almost touching Doctor Webster, who gazed down at him, puzzled.
"—killed—?" The chauffeur's voice broke; his lips ceased to move, and without even a sigh, his head fell back. The chauffeur would never speak again.

Silently we rose to our feet, and stood looking down at the dead man.
We were all too overcome by what had taken place to speak. It seemed impossible that a man could have been done to death in a roomful of people with the chief of police on one side of him and three detectives near him.
But somehow he had been. Bartley seemed to feel as dazed as I did; for he took the knife the doctor handed him, without looking at it, his eye upon the chauffeur and on his face a very odd expression. None of us seemed fully able to grasp that a man had been murdered almost before our eyes.

Doctor King had been working over Miss Potter, and she now opened her eyes and glanced around wildly. She saw the body at her feet, and with a little cry asked, "What's happened?" No one answered for a moment, and then Bartley replied simply "Someone has murdered the chauffeur."

At the word murder she gasped and covered her eyes with her hands. After a moment she removed it, and stampered, "How—how?"

No one attempted to answer. The truth was that no one could. All we knew was that he had been killed by the knife that was now in Bartley's hand. But how, and by whom? It was done, none of us knew. It seemed incredible that anyone could have crept up to the murdered man in the dark without being heard by those seated on either side of him.
His cry had lasted but the briefest fraction of a second; it seemed scarcely time enough between the moment when the lights went out and the time when the cry came for anyone to have come up to him, murdered him, and retreat away again. The murder must have been committed by someone near him. On one side of him had been Miss Potter; and on the other, Roche.
Roche was above suspicion; a police chief does not kill his prisoner unless he attempts to escape. Then I remembered the strange look that had passed between Miss Potter and the chauffeur when the latter had entered the room.

Though there had evidently been ill-feeling between the two, it seemed absurd to suppose that she had killed him. To have done it, she would have had to have known that he would be seated beside her. I knew that so she but the courier, who knew before hand how the witnesses would be placed. Nor could she have known that the lights would go out just when they did, and thus give a chance to strike the blow. It dawned on me at this point, that she could not have known that the chauffeur would be called as a witness, and might not have even known that he had been arrested. Yet the blow had been struck by some one near her, and very near to him.

At this moment Roche hurried into the room, his fat red face flushed to an even redder hue, his eyes wide and curious.

Ford
ANNOUNCEMENT of Interest to MILLIONS of FAMILIES

"I will build a car for the multitude" Said Henry Ford in 1908 -- Read how the fulfillment of that prophecy is now made possible through the

Ford Weekly Purchase Plan

For many years it has been Henry Ford' personal ambition to make the Ford the universal family car, to put it within the reach of the millions of people who have never been privileged to enjoy the benefits of motor car ownership.

During the past fifteen years over 7,500,000 Ford cars have been placed in the hands of retail customers, more than a million and a half within the past twelve months, and yet there are still millions of families who are hopefully looking forward to the day when they can own a Ford. And now the way is open.

Under the terms of this plan you can select your Ford car, set aside a small amount each week and you will be surprised how soon you will own it. In the meantime your money will be safely deposited to your credit in one of the local banks where it will draw interest.

Think it over. Five dollars will start an account. The whole family can participate in it, father, mother, brothers and sisters can each do a little.

Why not start today. Stop in and talk it over with your local Ford dealer. He will be glad to fully explain the details of the plan and help you get started toward the ownership of a Ford car.

ZINC is the backbone of Peesee Mastic Paint—50% highest quality ZINC Oxide and 50% pure sublimated white lead, ground in genuine linseed oil. Lead alone is too soft—the paint would crack and crack. COMBINED in a double pigment paint, such as Peesee Mastic, Lead and ZINC resistance each other, eliminating the deficiencies that appear when either pigment is used alone.

Paint with a low ZINC content lacks oil-carrying capacity, and soon goes "flat"—for as you know pure linseed oil is the life of paint. The high gloss finish of every Peesee Mastic job is readily explained by the fact that it is ground in pure linseed oil.

Remember that paint costs less than water—that a few dollars spent for Peesee Mastic will save you a great many dollars in

There is still considerable flu in our midst. The four children of Perry Decker have all been in the bed the past week and one of them is still very sick. Also the baby of A. L. The Panhandle Gin Company have commenced the erection of a new gin plant here. This will give us two gins the coming season, and here's hoping there will be plenty of cotton raised to keep them running. Saturday was the day for election of trustees for the newly created independent District. Most all the adult male population appeared to be candidates, or were, at least, voted for. We had the usual arguments pro and con over the probable amount of the bond issue that will be necessary for the new school building. The election was largely in favor of those who regard an expensive building necessary. The vote against it was negligible, and the trustees should regard it as a mandate to proceed and meet the wishes of the majority. While the writer regards it as a calamity, little better than pestilence or famine he wishes to assure the community of his hearty co-operation in meeting the wishes of the voters. This is still a democracy and the majority should rule right or wrong.

There were fifty-one votes cast and fourteen of them were received by those opposed to a large outlay at this time. The newly elected trustees are: E. H. Jones, D. B. Smith, R. H. Timmons, S. W. White, P. E. Ches-shir, G. C. Forgas, Robt. Welch.

We are to have another election on the 27th inst., to try and put cows, hogs and other live stock off the streets. If we could have added about two hundred worthless curs to the list, it would have been much better for the peace and quiet of the neighborhood, especially at night. If troops of many dogs are a sign of degeneracy—and I suspect they are—then may the Lord have mercy on our souls.

Rev. Terry, instructor for Sunday School work, lectured at the Methodist church Sunday. It was rather a pity to see such poor attendance. If we are ever to return to better days it must come through the proper training of the young. There is no better place outside the home, in which to direct the young along the best moral lines. While quite young is the time to start them right, and most of them when grown older will keep to the path.

TOKIO TALKS

Mr. Clifford Johnson and wife spent the week end with home folks near Post, Texas.

Snodgrass is Defendant, and said petition alleging that plaintiff is the legal holder and owner for valuable consideration of five certain Vendor's Lien Notes for the sum of $184.00 each, dated November 15th, 1921, payable to the order of J. W. Hatton, at Brownfield, Texas, on or before 1, 2, 3, 4 and five years after their dates, respectively, with 8 per cent interest from their dates until paid, interest payable annually as it accrues, each of said notes providing that all past due interest and past due notes shall bear interest at the rate of 10 per cent per annum after the annual maturity thereof; said notes further providing that failure to pay either of said notes, or any installment or interest thereon when due, should at the option of the holder of them, or any of them, mature all of said notes; each of said notes further providing for 10 per cent additional to the amount due thereon as attorney's fees if placed in the hands of an attorney for collection or if collected by suit.

That each of said notes was given as part payment for all of Section No. 107 in block D-11 in Terry County, Texas, and that a Vendor's Lien was retained in said deed to secure the payment of all the above described notes.

That defendant has failed and refused to pay Note No. 1 of said series of notes due November 15th, 1922 and the annual interest due on all said notes, due November 15, 1922, and on account of the failure of the defendant to pay said Note No. 1 and said interest, plaintiff has declared all the said notes due and payable and filed this suit for the collection of said notes and employed attorneys and agreed to pay them as attorney's fee the 10 per cent as provided for in said notes.

Plaintiff asks judgment for the full amount of said notes, interest, and attorney's fee, for foreclosure of Vendor's Lien, as it existed on the 15 day of November, 1921, for order of sale, costs of suit, and other relief to which he may be entitled.

Herein fail not but have before said Court, at its aforesaid regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said Court, at office in Brownfield, Texas, on this 27th day of March, 1923.

H. R. Winston, Clerk,
District Court, Terry County, Texas
