BAPTIST PEOPLE WORK THEIR CROP MONDAY

Twenty-two teams and about 25 hoe hands met at the crop one mile east of town Monday morning for the purpose of giving their 100 acres of splendid cotton a needed working and they were on hand for business. The teams had the whole thing well "devised"—no apology to those Baptist folks, they say the same thing—by a little past the mid-afternoon, and the choppers got nearly over by night.

The editor had an invitation to happen out that way about noon and we wish to state that the invitation did not have to be urged and of repeated either, and we were ever prouder when we did get there and found two long wagon beds with pure white linen spread in them and loaded to the sideboards with grub choice enough for a king, and almost anything in the category to a modern billfare.

After a hearty lunch, we in company with some of the members took a stroll down in the field, and found their cotton making rapid growth and in some instances found squares that will likely be blooms long before this week is gone.

Going back to the lunching place all hands were served with ice cold, refreshing lemonade, and after having a pressing invite to conduct a hoe a round or two—which we politely but firmly declined—we hit the road a 20 per in our journey to get this in the paper.

These good Baptist and citizens, joined by the Herald, can always look across that 100 acres of shimmering green and see a nice brick building for their place of worship humming and let us hope that nature will be good to Terry this year, and that our vision will be no mirage.

Messrs. J. W. Lassiter, Barrett, J. M. McNett, Gen. Lassiter, Tom Lassiter, W. A. Brown, Blackwell, J. O. Wheatley and R. Stone, all prominent farmers of the Johnson community, got up with the work and left yesterday for the Concho on a business expedition.

SOME NEWSPAPER RULES

A Texas editor recently issued the following rules, which explain themselves:

"Fifty cents per line will be charged for all obituary notices of business men who get their job printing in another city; twenty-five cents per line will be charged for like notices to all business men who do not advertise, while all delinquent subscribers will be charged fifteen cents per line in passing out to the New Jerusalem. Advertisers and cash subscribers will receive the best there is in the shop free gratis when they shuffle off."

"Those who extend the paper to support whatever and go around knocking the editor, or the paper, or lambasting the community and its citizens, drop banana pebbles on it, sidewalk, spit like a dime or try to tell us gold bricks, will be given the truth, which won't look good in print when they give up the ghost."

"Better send in your orders for job printing and advertising, pay your subscription get to boosting this paper and its editor and speak in glowing terms of the town and its people, for an epidemic of hog cholera is said to be abroad in the adjoining community."

THE BANK ACCOUNT

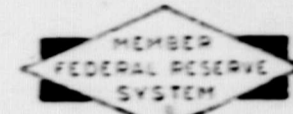

Born of toil and self denial, it's Father is Industry; it's Mother is Thrift. Fostered by Foresight it grows faster and faster and the prosperity of men and women, of farms and factories, of towns and nations grow with it. It is the Father of Riches and Credit is it's Son.

From the Bank Account springs all great undertakings, with it's help trade flourishes, homes are built, schools maintained. Without it hospitals and churches would not do their work. SANTA FE APPOINTS NEW AGRICULTURAL AGENT

J. D. Tinsley has been appointed general agricultural agent for all the Texas lines of the Santa Fe with his headquarters at Amarillo, announces T. B. Gallaher, general freight and passenger agent of the Panhandle and Santa Fe Railway, and J. S. Neunshy, general freight agent of the G. C. Colorado and Santa Fe Railway.

Fred Hale has been appointed as district general agricultural agent for the same territory with headquarters at Galveston.

Mr. Tinsley spent railway service in 1910 and for several years was in charge of the agricultural work of the Santa Fe on the plains of north-west Texas. Later Mr. Tinsley was transferred to Galveston and placed in charge of the agricultural department of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railway.

The scope of the agricultural activities of the Santa Fe Railway in Texas has now been materially widened and the plains of northwest Texas have been included in the territory of the newer and larger program. Mr. Hale has been added to the staff. He has been trained at the Texas A. & M. College and is well qualified for the work.

"In this work," said Mr. Gallaher, "the Santa Fe Railway plans to cooperate with Federal, State and community agents to encourage the growth of farming, live stock and other industries. Mr. Tinsley is quite familiar with the problems of the plains country and is in position to render this section valuable service."

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Vernon Pat Brothers celebrated his fourth birthday, Thursday, June 21st. The little guests arrived at four o'clock and spent two happy hours at different games. He received many gifts from his little friends. The refreshments were pink cake, ice cream and marshmallows.

Those present were Inez Honey, Ora Dee Eicke, Buster Brown Jenett, Brown, Margaret Smith, Virginia May, Mary Dee Scoddy, Mary Handley and Bud Endersen, Margerit and Kathryn Alexander, Earl and Mildred Blackford, Mary Joe Neill, Elroy Lewis, Helen Ruth Raymer, Clyde Dallas, Richard Kendrick, Sal Trueman Stricklin, Kyle and Irene Adams, Aubrey Wayne and Verma Pat Brothers.

HE DID THE "ED" TOO

A man from the city wishing to explain the joys of metropolitan life to his country host, said: "Such fun we had last Thursday. We autoed to the country club and golfed until dark, trooped back to town and danced until morning."

The country cousin replied: "We have pretty good times here. We bugied out to uncle John's and bashed all the way to the corn field and then supped until sundown and then supped until dark and piped until nine. Then I bedded until the clock fired Adams, Aubrey Wayne and Verma Pat Brothers."

Grandfather added: "Yes, I muled all the way to the corn field and geahawed until sundown and then supped until dark and piped until nine. Then I bedded until the clock fired Adams, Aubrey Wayne and Verma Pat Brothers."

BRIDGE PARTY

Saturday afternoon, June 30, from four until six o'clock, Mrs. Joe McGowan was hostess with two tables of bridge honoring Miss Elizabeth Wines, bride-elect. Iced punch was served during the game, and at the conclusion cream and cake were served.

Miss Wines was presented with a lovely linen guest towel, while Mrs. Austin Anderson scored high and Mrs. Bell received consolation.

Those enjoying this occasion were, Misses, Bell, Endersen, Fred Smith, Dick Brownfield, Powell, King Anderson of Fort Worth, and the honoree—Reporter.

JOLLY SIXTEEN CLUB

Friday June 29th, Mrs. Ditto was hostess to the Jolly Sixteen Club from three to six. Other than club members present were Mesdames Dallas, Stricklin, Roberts and Miss Roberts, of Coahoma.

After the seventh game a business meeting was called and nominations for officers were called for.

Mrs. R. M. Kendrick was then elected president, and Mrs. S. H. Holgate, Reporter.

The membership committee consisted of Mesdames Hancock, Graham and Scoddy.

Refreshments were then served.

SOUTH PLAINS FAIR SECRETARY HERE LAST WEEK

The Terry County Chamber of Commerce was pleased one day recently to have for its guest, Mr. Geo. Briggs, prominent Lubbock and south Plains booster, being here in the interest of the South Plains Fair to be held this fall.

He informed those who could be hurriedly assembled that the fair at Lubbock would go for four days this fall, and that many new and novel attractions would be added. He also said that some new buildings were under contemplation, and that the premium list would be greatly augmented.

Cooperative advertising for the whole South Plains was then taken up and discussed at some length and it was the general opinion of all present, that if we could all get big enough to see beyond a county line, and take advantage of the already well established reputation of the "South Plains" as now before the public, great things could be accomplished in which all would share.

This would be in the nature of a well illustrated booklet, with a jumbo article covering the territory in general, and then permit each of the several counties some two thousand words on that particular part of the Great South Plains.

Mr. Briggs said that eight counties had already signed up and he was assured that Terry would be on hand and would want the same old stand

5000 PEOPLE THROG STREETS HERE THE 4TH OF JULY

People were here by the thousands on the Glorious Fourth, and the citizens pampered and petted and gave them the true glad hand of the great South Plains, as none other than the sons and daughters of the west can do. We did not have to look through our own spectacles for this information, for the visitor was profuse enough in his or her praise to let us understand that our efforts to entertain was wholly acceptable.

The day was filled brim full and almost running over with the program, and not a monotonous minute the entire day. The multitude was on the move from one event to another, but it was a good natured and happy multitude. There was not a cross word spoken that we heard of the entire day, and only two accidents, and but one of them serious. Those in charge did a wise thing in roping off two sides of the square, and this alone probably keep the accidents from auto traffic to nothing.

In basing our estimate at 5000, we do so when we learn that 1200 automobiles were actually counted, besides hundreds of farm wagons, buggies, saddle horses, and other that came about on the train from Seagraves and other places down the road.

Among the many visitors who were especially glad to have Mr. Jenkins, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.; J. F. McDonald, State Entomologist, Austin, Texas; Mr. Smyth, New Mexico Board of Agriculture, Santa Fe; Mr. Beatty, County Agent, Lea County, Lovington, N. M.; Curtis A. Keen, Lubbock Chamber of Commerce; and Mr. W. H. Steel, one of the leading citizens of Seagraves. These visitors, together with Messrs. L. Copeland, President, T. C. C. of C. Rev. Bill and the writer assembled at the tabernacle to discuss the pink boll worm quarantine now existing between Texas and New Mexico, full report of this meeting to appear next week.

Will say however, these men are of the opinion that the south Plains of Texas will be the biggest producer of cotton than any similar section in the world in the next ten years and probably in five years.

Mr. G. M. Whitaker, representing the agricultural department of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce was here and made a short but good address, lauding our people and our country even more than we have ever dared do ourselves, and promised to be back sometime in the near future when we are not started in celebrating the nation's birthday and bring his lantern slides and tell us a lot we ought to know about the Cow, Sow and Hen, and how to rid our flocks and herds of boarders.

Judge O. W. Gillespie made the morning oration which was not only addressed to the audience but also to the Confederate and Federal Veterans who occupied places in the band stand. Curtis A. Keen, secretary of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce also delivered a splendid address in the afternoon.

Scores of prizes were given by the bustling business men of the town, but as we are already late with this paper, we could not get them together in correct form for this issue.

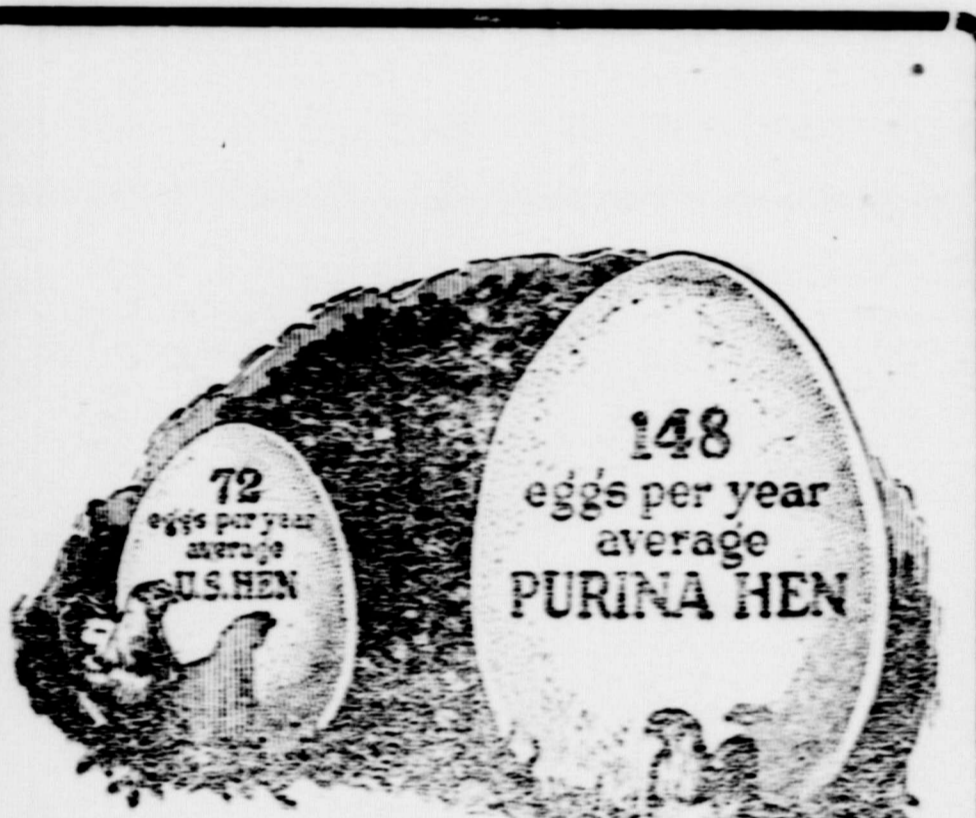

Everybody had a great time, and met friends that had not seen for years. Hockley, Lubbock, Lynn, Dawson, Gaines and Yoakum counties Texas and Lea county N.M. had especially fine representation here, and Oklahoma and as far east as Graham, Texas.

THAT SCHOOL ANNUAL STILL BEING DISCUSSED

The News has observed in many exchanges the past few weeks the complaint of high school students sending out of town for their commencement announcements, invitations and other printed matter. This is the most reprehensible that could be imagined. Did these papers retaliate by refusing to boost the school chronic, the commencement and other exercises and generally ignore the schools, there would be no schools in a short time. No other institution does as much for the schools as the local paper, and no other institution is called upon for as much free aid from them. The News is glad that no graduating class in the present editor's experience has sent away from Garland for invitations, though salesmen are here in hordes every year soliciting the work. Garland, pupils are taught from infancy by their dads and mams to patronize home institutions and the teachers in the schools have always been friendly toward the local paper. This is as it should be. Teachers should make this one of the first lessons taught in schools—trade with home people. The teacher who permits pupils to send away for invitations are doing the pupil a grave injustice and instilling in their minds practices which will disrupt the community.—Garland News.

The order for announcements of the Seniors of Slaton High School went to a Louisville, Ky. firm this year. Yet we believe the most exacting persons in Slaton or community will have to admit that the Slatonites gave the school activities favorable mention during the entire term and that the graduation exercises were given all the space that could be desired. The school organization always gave this paper work that must be rushed out, provided the prices are in keeping with the ideas of some of their members, who pose as experts on the cost of printing. We are then compelled to add the cost of bookkeeping and carrying the account sometimes indefinitely, while the Louisville firm received their money before the work was delivered.

Another incident of similar nature has been called to our attention by the manager of a hardware business in Slaton. He stated that the department of domestic economy of the Slaton schools last fall borrowed a number of dishes from his store, used them several months, and after accumulating sufficient funds by serving lunches to pupils by dish dishes, the head of the department then bought the dishes from a mail order house, and the taxpayers furnished the money that paid the salary of that particular teacher.

Slaton money should be kept in Slaton as far as possible, and if the merchandise here don't appeal to you it would be well to move to a town that is in keeping with your ideas.

The town will always be just what you make it, not what any mail order house makes it. Bear that in mind.—Slaton Slatonite.

ANNOUNCEMENT PARTY

One of the most enjoyable parties of the season, was given at the home of Mrs. Stricklin, Thursday afternoon, June 28th, with Mesdames Stricklin, Randal and Miss Treadway as joint hostesses.

The decorations used throughout the rooms were simple but very effective, evincing a profusion of roses, dahlias, phlox and other flowers from the home garden, while small owls, "very knowing" wife, everywhere, and a large owl with a scroll under his wing, perched on a limb under the Victrola.

The guests engaged in playing progressive Hearts with much merriment for an hour and thirty minutes, then Miss Shepherd gave a reading in dialect which delighted her hearers. Mrs. Randal then read the message of the large owl, which was:

To Whoop! To Whoop! To whom it may concern! Whoop! Whoop! To you that may learn.

The two engaged I do affirm, Miss Elizabeth Wines and Mr. Robert L. Bowers.

The rest of the message was left to the small owls to give. Miss Shelton sang with violin accompaniment by Mrs. W. G. Hardin. Miss Stella Treadway read "B. Courier" by O'Henry and gave "Pastoral Romance" as encore.

Bells were distributed on which each guest wrote a wish. These being collected were made into a basket, which was then read by Miss Treadway to the bride-elect.

Mrs. Stricklin distributed the prizes. The guest prize was a set of silver spoons with heraldic design. Miss Lorette Brownfield drew high score, a bottle of Houbertan perfume, which she presented to Miss Wines. Mrs. M. M. Smith drew low a box of stationery.

Brick ice cream and cake were served. Tiny rolls inside the mint baskets (the message of the small owl) read: "Miss Elizabeth Wines, Mr. Robert L. Bowers, July 10, 1923."

CHAPTER IV—Whispering to her friend, Julia Carter, the girl Julia Carter is called to the office of the Duke's successor in Scotland. She is saved.

CHAPTER V—Seeing similar relations between the Duke's successor in Scotland and the girl Julia Carter, she is saved.

CHAPTER VI—During a conversation between the Duke's successor in Scotland and the girl Julia Carter, she is saved.

CHAPTER VII—When the day arrived Julia Carter needed a considerable amount of persuading but Tuppence held firm. "It can do no harm," was what she always came back to. In the end Julia gave in, and they proceeded in the car to Carlton House terrace.

The door was opened by an impeccable butler. Tuppence felt a little nervous. She had decided not to ask if Sir James was "at home," but to adopt a more personal attitude. "Will you ask Sir James if I can see him for a few minutes? I have an important message for him."

The butler returned, returning a moment or two later. "Sir James will see you. Will you step this way?"

He ushered them into a room at the back of the house, furnished as a library. The collection of books was a magnificent one, and Tuppence noticed that all one wall was devoted to works on crime and criminology. There were several deep-faded leather arm-chairs, and an old-fashioned lamp with a shade. In the window was a big roll-top desk strewn with papers at which the master of the house was sitting.

He was as they entered. "You have a message for me?" "You have a message for me?" "You have a message for me?"

"Ah, that is where I come in. I think it quite likely that I shall be able to assist Mrs. Vandemeyer tell me what I want to know."

"Dear Tuppence," said Tuppence, opening her eyes wide. "That's the way we do it, you know. He tapped with his finger on the table, and Tuppence felt under the intense power that radiated from the man."

"And if she won't tell," asked Julia suddenly. "I think she will. I have one or two powerful levers. Still, in that unlikely event, there is always the possibility of bribery."

smile—"It's you, is it? Brought a message from Mrs. Vandemeyer, I suppose?"

"Not exactly," said Tuppence. "In fact, I'm afraid I only said that to be quite sure of getting in. Oh, by the way, this is Mr. Hershimmer, Sir James Peel Edgerton."

"Pleased to meet you," said the American, shaking out a hand.

"Won't you both sit down?" asked Sir James. He then forward two chairs.

"Thank you, please," said Tuppence, "I dare say you will think it is most awful cheek of me coming here like this. What I really want to know is what you meant by what you said to me the other day? Did you mean to warn me against Mrs. Vandemeyer? You did, didn't you?"

"My dear young lady, as far as I remember I only mentioned that there were equally good situations to be obtained elsewhere."

"Yes, I know. But it was a hint, wasn't it?"

"Well, perhaps it was," admitted Sir James gravely.

"Well, I want to know more. I want to know just why you gave me a hint?"

Sir James smiled at her earnestness.

"Well, without prejudice, then, if I had a young sister forced to earn her living, I should not like to see her in Mrs. Vandemeyer's service. It is no

"Even better. If I opened in opening the address book her we can go there at once, taking Mrs. Vandemeyer with us if necessary. You understand?"

"Yes," Tuppence rose to her feet with a sigh of delight. "Oh, I feel so much better."

"Don't build on it too much, Miss Tuppence, go easy."

Jullius turned to the lawyer.

"Say, then, I'll call for you in the car about about nine-thirty. Is that right?"

"Perhaps that will be the best plan. It would be unnecessary to have two cars waiting about. Now, Miss Tuppence, my advice to you is to go and have a good dinner, a really good one. And don't think ahead more than you can help."

He shook hands with them both, and a moment later they were outside.

"Isn't he a sport?" laughed Tuppence, as she slipped down the steps. "Oh, Julia, isn't he just a duck?"

"Well, I allow he seems to be the goods all right. And I was wrong about his being slow to go to him. He shall see us right away back to the Ritz."

"I must walk a bit, I think. I'll meet you at the Ritz at seven."

Tuppence walked slowly towards the telephone, first glancing at her watch. It was nearly six o'clock. She remembered that she had had to see her father two weeks ago in connection of her father's death. She had been so busy that she had not had time to see him. She had been so busy that she had not had time to see him. She had been so busy that she had not had time to see him.

At any rate, she decided, it would do her harm to go and look at the building. Perhaps, then, she would prefer to wait patiently for her clock.

South Andley gardens looked exactly the same as usual. What Tuppence had expected she hardly knew, but the sight of its red brick and white stucco suggested the growing and utterly unreasonable meanness that possessed her. She was just turning away when she heard a sneezing whistle and the faithful Albert came running from the building to join her. He was purple with suppressed excitement.

"I say, miss, she's a-goin'!"

"Who's going?" demanded Tuppence sharply.

"The crowd. Ready Ritz, Mrs. Vandemeyer. She's a-pickin' up and she's just sent down word for me to get her a taxi. I thought maybe as you didn't know about it."

"Albert," cried Tuppence, "you're a brick. If it hadn't been for you I'd have lost her."

Albert flushed with pleasure at this praise.

"There's no time to lose," said Tuppence, crossing the road. "We got to see her. At all costs I must keep her here until—" She broke off. "Albert, there's a telephone here, isn't there?"

The boy shook his head.

"There's mostly her own auto, but there's a bar just around the corner."

"Go to it, then, at once and ring up the Ritz hotel. Ask for Mr. Hershimmer, and when you get him tell him to get Sir James and come on at once, as Mrs. Vandemeyer is trying to book it. If you can't get him, ring

L. H. R. Winston, County Clerk of Terry County, Texas, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing is correct as appears of Record in Vol. No. 2, pages 251 to 259 inclusive.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT
House Joint Resolution No. 16
Proposing an amendment to Article 8, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, which relates to taxation and revenues, by adding a new section to be known as Section 9a, directing the Legislature to provide for the construction, operation and maintenance, under State control, a State system of highways; providing for an election for the ratification or rejection of amendment herein proposed, and making an appropriation to defray the expenses of said election.

Section 1. That there be submitted to the people of Texas, for ratification or rejection at a special election provided for herein an amendment to article 8, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, amending article 8 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, by adding thereto a new section to be known as Section 9a, which shall read as follows:

Section 9a. The Legislature is authorized and directed to provide for the creation, establishment, construction, maintenance and repair of a system of improved highways throughout the State; and in order that the State may provide the means, revenues and instrumentalities of such establishment and maintenance of such system of highways, the Legislature is empowered to levy and cause to be collected specific excise and ad valorem taxes, in addition to those permitted for other purposes in the Constitution, but such an ad valorem tax shall be imposed only for the purpose of retiring the bonds authorized by vote of the people of this State as provided for hereinafter in this Section.

When said system shall have been designated and taken over for the State as provided in Section A hereof, the Legislature is authorized to make provision for the equitable compensation to such counties for the value of such improvements as have been heretofore been constructed by the counties in the State.

Provided, also, that save for the State highway system, in all other respects, Counties shall have the right to build, construct and maintain roads, turnpikes, and bridges within their boundaries and the Constitutional provisions relating thereto are not qualified or repealed by reason hereof.

The Legislature, at any Regular or Special session, is authorized and directed to pass and enact all appropriate legislation necessary to carry out and effectuate the purpose and intent of these articles.

Section 2. The governor of the State is hereby directed to cause to be issued his necessary proclamation for an election to be held on the fourth Saturday in July, 1923, at which election, this amendment shall be submitted to the qualified electors of this State for adoption or rejection and shall make the publication required by the Constitution and Laws of the State. Said election shall be held under and in accordance with the General Election Laws of the State, and the ballots for said election shall have written or printed thereon in plain letters the following words:

"OFFICIAL BALLOT": "For the Amendment to Article 8 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, providing for a State system of highways." "Against the Amendment to Article 8 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, providing for a State system of highways."

Who owns the Santa Fe?

Not a few persons, but many thousands, are stockholders in this great railway. All have a voice in its management. The number of stockholders living in states traversed by the Santa Fe is steadily increasing.

Every railroad has two classes of people interested in its financial structure—viz., the stockholders and the bondholders. In the minds of many, both classes are considered as owners. As a matter of fact, only the holders of the stock are owners. The bondholders are loaners of money, the bonds representing a mortgage on the property to insure payment of money loaned.

The Stockholders of the Santa Fe are, therefore, the owners of the road. Each share has an equal voice in all meetings of the Company. At the annual meeting vacancies in the Board of Directors are filled and such other business transacted as requires action by the stockholders.

Number of Stockholders—
There were on December 31st last 64,643 stockholders, of which 29,820 were men, 29,235 women, and the balance made up of firms, estates, and institutions, among the latter being—
122 insurance companies;
108 educational institutions;
93 religious organizations;
89 hospitals and charitable bodies.

Average Holding—
The average holding of stock was only 55.4 shares per person, but the holdings run from one share upwards—
14,583 held 5 shares or less;
26,355 held from 6 to 20 shares;
12,938 held from 21 to 50 shares;
6,378 held from 51 to 100 shares;
Only 4,409 held over 100 shares.

Two Classes of Stock—
There are two classes of stock, viz., Preferred and Common, there being outstanding on December 31st last—
1,241,737 shares of Preferred Stock;
2,270,525 shares of Common Stock;
Total—3,512,262 shares of both.

Dividend Payments—
The Preferred Stock is limited to 5% dividends. The balance of the earnings of the Company is available for Common Stock dividends. Dividends on the Preferred Stock have been paid for 25 years and for 23 years these have not been below 5%. Dividends on the Common began in 1901 and have not been below 6% since 1909. Something has been added to surplus each year since the reorganization of the company January 1, 1896.

Local Stockholders—
The number of stockholders in the states traversed by the Santa Fe is steadily increasing. In 1910 there were 1792 in these states, while in 1922 the number had grown to 7831.

The Bondholders—
While our bondholders have no share in the ownership or management of the property their importance is fully recognized. The Santa Fe had outstanding December 31, 1922, in round figures $367,000,000 of bonds. These are owned:
Insurance Companies.....$ 78,042,000
Savings Banks.....18,707,000
Charitable Institutions.....9,781,000
Corporations.....51,339,000
Individuals.....129,196,000
The total number of bondholders is about 32,000.
