LOCAL GIN MAN BELIEVES IN ADVERTISING TOO

S. L. McDonald, proprietor of the Farmers Gin, one of the three new gins being built this year, does not believe in letting "George" do all the advertising for him, but had 1000 circulars printed to carry with him on the western trade trip Tuesday. They read about as follows:

When in Brownfield inspect the Farmers Gin, the big yellow gin just southwest of the depot. We have the most modern machinery money can buy, ginning 100 bales per 24 hours.

We will have the machinery in operation for the inspection of visitors at the Brownfield Picnic July 17-18.

If you wish to camp, you are more than welcome to come and use our buildings which are 200 feet long and 24 feet wide, of which it is two stories with nice clean floors. We also have a camp house where you can cook—plenty of fire wood and water. Also free shower baths.

Make our gin your home during the picnic.

TERRY COUNTY SINGERS TO MEET AT GOMEZ

The Terry County Singing Convention will meet with the Gomez class the third Sunday in July and Saturday night before.

Come one and all and make this meeting a great success.

A. L. Burnett, President

BROWNFIELD BOOSTERS REPORT A GREAT TRIP

Twenty-six car loads of Brownfield Boosters together with the Turkey Trot Band and the Home Brew boys quartette left just after seven o'clock Tuesday morning for the annual trip to boost our picnic July 17-18, and also to show 'em that Brownfield is in the market for their trade and good will.

These more than 100 men and women are the people who are putting our town on the map. Some of them were klucks and some anti-klucks, but that is not the main issue in their lives. Making a town and community of good churches, schools and society; a good place to raise a family and a good place to come to trade is their main slogan, and whatever their belief privately, this is suppressed when it comes to the point of an effort to put Brownfield on the map. They are all 100 per cent for Brownfield and are the cream of the town. They are the ones who are causing Brownfield to be heard of and the town of Brownfield and Terry county to be talked of to the furthest corners of the state and adjoining states.

The round was made without accident, and the boys say they were royally entertained and received over the entire journey. The business interests of the town kept the Herald on the jump for several days before

BIG REVIVAL GROWING IN INTEREST AND ATTENDANCE.

On account of the very cool weather for this time of year, the Methodist revival opened Sunday in their new church building with splendid crowds, and by Sunday night people had to be turned away.

Monday the weather somewhat moderated, and the meeting was moved to the community tabernacle, and has been comfortably filled at each night service.

Judge Morris presents his subjects in a unique way, quite different to anything ever heard here before, and seems to be pleasing to his audiences. The spirit of love and tolerance seems to be his main theme, and instead of trying to drive a wedge, his efforts seem to be to remove it entirely. We predict that when he leaves the town the people are going to be nearer together over their differences than in a long time. Would that we had more men of his make-up. While we may differ vastly over points of the scripture and doctrines; over politics and methods of law enforcement, we can, if we have the love of God in our hearts forget these things for a moment—yes, for eternity, and be real friends and neighbors. Anything of a dividing nature has no place in the community welfare.

Good singing is being heard at all services under the leadership of Mr. Cunningham, and it will of course grow better as he gets his class organized and whipped into shape. The special songs are also enjoyed.

You have a cordial invitation to attend this meeting regularly.

MAN ACCIDENTLY KILLS WIFE TUESDAY AFTERNOON

One of the saddest tragedies in the history of the county was enacted on Tuesday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock when Roy Rose, aged about 20, let his gun go off accidentally and killed his wife about 18 years of age.

It seems that Roy was preparing to go to work and discovered a rabbit near by and came into the house to get his gun to shoot the rabbit, accidentally discharging the weapon, the charge entering the breast of his wife just above the heart. She died immediately.

Funeral arrangements are being made at this writing for Wednesday afternoon after the afternoon train, as deceased mother is expected to come in on the train from Fredrick, Okla.

Herald deeply sympathizes with the bereft family who live in the Union community.

Hand getting advertising matter in shape to carry along is the only reason the Herald was not represented.

The boys report that Lovington sure did "pour it on 'em" at the noon hour, and that Seagraves was there with the goods with lunch at supper time. Why, they just loved to talk about it and make our mouths water who were unable to go. All are of one mind that the trip will be worth much more to the town than it cost.

WALTER SPLAWN ELECTED TO HEAD U. OF T.

Austin, July 5.—Dr. Walter Splawn, member of the Texas Railroad Commission, will be the next president of the University of Texas, according to an announcement made today by members of the Board of Regents.

Dr. Herbert F. Bolton of the University of California, who was elected to the place in May, definitely declined the place in a message to H. A. Wroe and Dr. Joseph Wooton, members of the Board of Regents, and it was announced by these two members that Splawn had been chosen at the same time of Bolton's election in the event the later declined the place.

Splawn is expected to take the position before Sept. 1.

A. HARRIS & CO. ENDORSE REX L. HEADSTREAM

Dallas, Texas, Feb. 6, 1924. The Terry County Herald, Brownfield, Texas.

To Whom it may Concern:—I am taking this opportunity of writing you in regard to Mr. Rex Headstream, whom I understand is a candidate of the office of County Clerk for Terry County.

Mr. Headstream was employed in the service of A. Harris & Company, Dallas, Texas, from March 9, 1918, to January 7, 1924, leaving this concern of his own accord, to enter the race for the above mentioned office.

While in the employment of A. Harris & Company, Mr. Headstream worked under my direct supervision and I can truthfully say that I always found him reliable and trustworthy, and capable of taking care of any task that might have been assigned him. His clerical work especially, is due mentioning as he was very accurate in all matters pertaining to correspondence and personal adjustments.

The writer is positive that Mr. Headstream lives a straight and upright christian life and I am sure that if elected to the office of County Clerk of Terry County he will improve his best in fulfilling the duties of his office oath.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) Chas. A. Paddell,
Supt. Del. A. Harris & Company

JNO. W. DAVIS NOMINATED ON THE 103RD BALLOT

After being in session for almost two weeks in one of the most notable conventions in the history of the oldest party in America, the National Democratic Party nominated John W. Davis, of West Virginia, on the 103rd ballot at the New York Convention, we learned, Wednesday afternoon.

It was seen from the very first that neither of the strong candidates, McAdoo or Smith could hope to be the nominee. Too much animosity of a racial and religious nature had been raised in the convention, and a compromise man had to be chosen.

Well, we'll voter 'er straight again boys.

WOMAN SERIOUSLY SHOT AT CROSBYTON

Mrs. C. E. Monroe was shot and seriously wounded Tuesday about 11 o'clock, about three miles south of town on the Bud Morris place. The shot was fired by her husband.

The parties had been divorced for several years, it was said, and according to reports the trouble grew out of the custody of the children.

The woman is alive and the man was brought to Crosbyton by Sheriff McDermott and placed in jail to await the action of the grand jury that is now in session.—Crosbyton Review.

Found Treasure Where Thrown Brick Landed

An ancient Sumerian library of cuneiform tablets has been found by the simple expedient of throwing a brick on a spot on the side of a hill under which the library has lain hidden for centuries. The discovery was made by Professor Langdon, the American-born Oxford Assyriologist, who is directing the Weld-Brundell expedition excavations at the ruins of the Babylonian city of Kish, near Bagdad.

The discovery of the library occurred just in time to stop the preparations for the suspension of the excavating work, for it was the opinion of the leaders of the expedition that the library had been destroyed with other missing sections of the city.

"I was convinced," said Professor Langdon in writing of the discovery, "that if still existing a certain library lay on the western side of a certain mound and I dug there vainly for weeks. The idea that the library was there disturbed my mind and even haunted my sleep. In despair, and grasping a chance of divination, I went alone to the top of the mound and chose a brick of the age of Nebuchadnezzar which lay at my feet, and marked on it an arrow. Then, after blindfolding myself and turning round many times to lose my bearings, I threw the brick backward over my head.

The next morning digging was recommenced at the place indicated by the arrow, and within two hours a large nest of valuable literary tablets was found."

The library is by far the most important find the expedition has made during its three years' work. It is expected to yield literary treasures which even the libraries of the Pharaohs have not contained. Already 20 rooms of the library have been uncovered, all of which are filled with tablets, and there are 20 more rooms yet to be explored.

Kish is the oldest capital of ancient Babylon, and was founded immediately after the flood. The excavated ruins show the city to have been five miles long and four miles wide and it is here that the oldest known kings of history lived. Much is known of the history of the city from other sources, but the story of its birth and prosperity still have to be found in the ancient records.

He Looked Ahead

An aged man in an interurban car near Dunreth glanced out of the car window at a clump of new trees and, growing reminiscent, said:

"When I was a youngster, mother told me that the back eighty acres would be mine some day. I thought that if it was going to be mine I'd do something for it. I gathered two bushels of fine walnuts one day and, taking them to the eighty, planted them all over the farm—wherever I thought they would be able to grow without future molestation.

"Fifty years later, when the farm was sold, the walnut timber on that farm brought me as much as the land itself."

All of which goes to show that reforestation may be more profitable than is indicated by the oriental proverb, which, viewing it from a slow-growth angle, runs:

"He who planteth a tree loveth others than himself."—Indianapolis News.

"Black Magic"

Black magic is as old as the black race and, if there were not some good in it, it would hardly have survived. Relief in it is universal throughout savage Africa. Even in the minds of our educated, American negroes dim echoes of magic times still reverberate. Uneducated negroes are still believers. If you wish to test the truth of this statement, shout "Voodoo!" at a negro in the dark. His rabbit's foot is a token of magic.

Black magic has never been scientifically studied. If it were thoroughly investigated, Captain Haselden, who spent two years in Central Africa before coming to California to take charge of Henry Huntington's medieval manuscripts, thinks that amid a mass of superstitious a few fundamental truths would be discovered, which might prove beneficial to humanity as a whole.—Ransome Sutton, in San Francisco Chronicle.

Advocates Old Habits

Twentieth-century man would be healthier and happier if he would sleep with a nightcap on his head and a warming pan at his feet, according to Sir James Cantle, one of England's best-known physicians. Sir James is seventy-three and claims he can dance as nimbly as he could at seventeen.

"Don't think because you live in an age of airplanes you know all about hygiene," he declared. "Your grandmothers were no fools."

Bald heads were much scarcer, Sir James asserted, in the days when men wore nightcaps. In a damp climate like England, he said, a nightcap is as necessary as clothes. Warming pans, likewise, aid the health of the sleeper by drying out the sheets before bedtime.

Coffee Once Cause for Divorce. In these days of the fashionable and easy divorce it will interest freedom-seeking husbands to read in All About Coffee that in Turkey, during the Seventeenth century, to refuse or neglect to give coffee to one's wife was a legitimate cause for divorce. The men made promises, when marrying, never to let their wives be without coffee. Nowadays the wife's neglect to serve her husband good coffee has led to many a separation.

ART TREASURES IN OLD BURIAL SPOT

Discoveries Date From English Pre-Christian Era.

At Bidford-on-Avon, a Saxon burial ground dating from the pre-Christian era of England has been discovered. The cemetery lies on the north bank of the Avon, and in this ground 214 burials are recorded. They include people of all ages and both sexes, principally young. The number of really old people is small. The bodies were extended, facing generally north; the interments were regular and methodical, and usually from two feet six inches to three feet from the surface.

Notwithstanding their burial of 1,400 years many of the skeletons are splendidly preserved. Henri Picard writes in the Cincinnati Enquirer. In two instances practically every bone is present. The skulls and teeth are remarkable—the former dolichocephalic in character, and the latter showing almost an entire absence of caries. The teeth usually closed edge to edge, and by the middle aged showed excessive signs of erosion from the coarse and gritty food which formed their diet. Often the tissues were worn down to the nerve chambers, where a dentine of repair as hard as enamel was formed simultaneously to protect the nutrient organ.

In almost every instance the arrangement of the teeth was perfectly symmetrical, without the crowding and the narrowing of the jaws, the product of our modern civilization. The chins and jaws were well developed, and the remains showed our ancestors to have been splendid specimens of manhood.

The men were buried with their spears, lances and long knives or daggers lying by their sides, and on the left breast was an iron umbo which originally protected the shield. With the woman was generally found her jewelry, bronze brooches, beautiful necklaces and a food pot on her right hand with a small food knife. The necklaces discovered were numerous, consisting of blue, red, white and green glass beads or pieces of amber, some of great size, with often a large crystal pendant, or a few Roman coins or paste beads with zoomorphic designs.

The bronze brooches, many of great size, were typical of pre-Christian Anglo-Saxon art; many were large and varied in shape, from the plain square-headed brooches, attributed to about the year A. D. 500, to the beautiful and highly ornamented heavily gilded saucer-shaped brooches, with a variety of designs, as the star and sun with rays patterns, and numerous complex zoomorphic forms, all showing a west Saxon origin. There are two perfect, large brooches with a Swastika pattern, evidently of Eastern origin. It is regarded as an emblem of the sun, sacred in many parts of the world from the earliest times.

There are pretty bronze and silver finger rings, polished jewels, quite modern in appearance, a pendant of a beaver's tooth, suggesting that the animal then frequented the River Avon. One glorious, massive square-headed brooch is a unique example of the art of this people, whom we have regarded as primitive. It is five and a quarter inches in length, ornamented with a maze of wonderful design and highly gilded, and is as bright and perfect as on the day it was buried 1,400 years ago.

Two extraordinary pendant-like ornaments of unusual pattern are of exceptional interest. One represents two intertwined snakes with open mouths; the other, circular in form, shows twenty snakes arranged within the circle, with open mouths pointing to the periphery, and bodies intertwined, with tails pointing to the center. It is most unusual to see the natural snake form represented, although the serpentine zoomorphic ornament is quite common.

Great Writer's Ideal

Beatrice Portinari was an Italian woman of rare beauty and loveliness of character, immortalized by Dante in his "Divine Comedy." In his "Vita Nuova," the poet tells how he first set eyes on "the glorious lady of his heart, Beatrice," he being at the time nine years old, and she a few months younger. There is no evidence that his love was ever returned. Beatrice, at an early age, married Simone de' Bardil; but neither this nor the poet's subsequent marriage ever interfered with his pure and exalted love for her. This love even became intensified after her death, which occurred June 9, 1290.—Kansas City Star.

Off in Geography

A vaudeville entertainer who was looking for a song to feature, was observed shaking his head dubiously over some sheet music. His partner, the other half of the sketch, came along and wanted to know what he had.

"Another Dixie song by a foreign writer."

"Well, what's wrong with it?"

"Oh, nothing much. He's got the Suwanee river located in California."

Writings Children Like

Five thousand children of Texas were recently "questioned" as to their favorite books. The ten "favorites" were "Little Women," "Treasure Island," "Tom Sawyer," "Robinson Crusoe," "Huckleberry Finn," "Robin Hood," "Little Men," "Bliss Beauty," "Pollyanna" and "The Call of the Wild."

WAYS OF TELLING LOVE'S OLD STORY

Different Nations Cling to Time-Honored Customs.

Love's old story repeats itself in every clime, and weddings in other parts of the world differ from the American ceremony only in details of costumes and local customs. The tender emotions that fill the heart of a bride when she stands before the altar are the same, whether the ceremony be celebrated in China or Chicago. And Easter is a popular time for weddings the world around, the same as June.

In rural parts of Germany, instead of the conventional engraved wedding invitation, a professional messenger is employed to invite guests to the wedding. As his tall figure passes through the streets, there is an air of eager expectancy among the villagers, for it is not known to whom the magic words of invitation may come, says the San Antonio Express. The messenger announces his mission in loud, sonorous tones, then proceeds to the next house on his list.

When a young man in Austria feels matrimonially inclined, he presents the girl of his choice a bunch of flowers as she comes from church on Sunday morning. If she accepts the floral tribute he calls at her home a few days later and the budding romance proceeds to its customary culmination.

In Saxony the groom, his best man and the ushers wear, instead of the conventional black suit, a long kimono-like garment trimmed with lace and ruffles, with bunches of flowers in the hands of their broad-brimmed hats. The bride carries a linen handkerchief which is sometimes as large as a small tablecloth. The size of the kerchief indicates the wealth of the bride's parents.

In Slav weddings the bridegroom fetches the bride from the home of her parents, a custom emblematic of the practice of his forebears who carried their mates away forcibly. At Albanian weddings it is correct for the bride to weep and show great reluctance in leaving home. The bridegroom must present his betrothed with a handsome dress for the marriage, no matter how poor he may be.

Of all oriental marriage ceremonies, those of Japan in the month when the cherry trees are in full blossom are the most beautiful. After making the momentous decision to accept each other "for better, for worse," the young couple consult the soothsayers to determine on what day they should wed to insure good fortune throughout their married life. The ceremony is usually performed in the afternoon, and at sunset the bride enters her "kago," or carrying hammock, and sets out for her new home. She is followed by gift-bearers who display the wedding presents to spectators along the streets.

The "ceremony of the bath" is a quaint feature of the Egyptian wedding. On her wedding morning the young bride-to-be, accompanied by her girl friends and several musicians, sets out for the public bath, riding on a camel. Above her head is a canopy of bright-colored silk, topped with bunches of palm leaves. After the bride and her friends have bathed together, they are entertained by flute players, singers and story tellers.

Tit-Bits

A cinema director who had been turning a Riviera film was praising at the "Lamb's" club the food of southern France.

"You even found the French snails good, eh?" said a tea importer. "But I wonder how some of the delicacies I have seen in China would strike you—delicacies such as water-billy roots, birds' nests, ducks' pluckies, bean sprouts, eggs that have been ripened for years like cheese, tinned earthworms, macarouille made from roses, dog steaks, dried and preserved oysters."

"All I can say," replied the cinema director, "is that if I ever go to China to turn a film you may be sure I'll never try the tinned earthworms or the dog beefsteaks."

The Long Bow

"Some of the ridiculous and transparent inventions circulated by publicity agents about their celebrated or would-be celebrated employers," said Mayor Kendrick of Philadelphia, "overshoot the mark. Like the two Texans who were bragging about their brothers.

"My brother," said the first Texan, "once went to a billiard saloon, picked up a ball in his right hand and another in his left, and the result was powder."

"Well, that's nothing," said the second Texan. "My brother once went to a ball fight, and he took a ball in the left hand and another in the right; he squeezed them; result—bottle of meat extract."

Eating Morning-Glories.

Hitherto it has been the early risers who have most enjoyed the morning-glory, for they alone have seen it in the full freshness of its beauty. Recently, however, a new variety has been discovered in China and imported to America. This species even the tardiest lie-abeds may enjoy—after another fashion. The plant is edible. Its leaves and hollow stem form a succulent spinach-like food. The edible morning-glory is not altogether new to this country for the common sweet potato is a cultivated member of the morning-glory family and was a staple food among the Indians of the region where it flourished.

One of the Alert

Lord Beaverbrook, the multimillionaire, told a story at a dinner in New York.

"You American business men are so alert," he said, "that it's easy to believe the anecdote about young Higginson."

"Young Higginson called on Banker Bonus and said:

"Mr. Bonus, I will take up only two minutes of your time. I have come to ask you for your daughter's hand, sir."

"Young man," said the wealthy banker, "do you—"

"Yes, sir," said young Higginson, "I do realize that Annette has been reared in the lap of luxury, but this luxury the dear girl is ready to forego."

"Can you—"

"Yes, sir, I can. Not as you have done, of course, but comfortably and respectively. My salary, sir, is a good one, and my prospects excellent."

"Will you—"

"Yes, sir, I will carry a life policy large enough to provide for Annette adequately in case I should be taken away."

"Would you—"

"No, sir; I would not expect to live with you in this palatial home. My savings have enabled me to purchase in the suburbs a modest ten-room bungalow with two baths, and I have actually had the good fortune to secure from a cook the promise to come to us at the very modest figure of $80 a month."

"The banker held out his hand cordially.

"Young man," he said, "I like your style. You can have her. Good—"

"Morning, sir." — Detroit Free Press.

Italy's Many Tongues

Some candidates at the Italian general election find a knowledge of languages useful.

In the towns of Lecce and Reggio di Calabria a majority of the inhabitants speak only Greek, while in other parts of southern Italy and Sicily Albanian is the prevailing tongue.

French is the mother-tongue of over 100,000 natives of the districts of Aosta, Pignerol and Suse, and German of some 12,000 in Piedmont and Venetia, while Catalan is largely spoken in Sardinia.

German, Serbian, Slovenian and other Slav dialects prevail in the provinces annexed since the war, where the inhabitants numbered 1,564,691 at the time of the 1921 census.

Me Is I.

Billy is supposed to come directly home from Sunday school, but one Sunday he did not appear until dinner was over. He had evidently stopped to play for his face and hands were dirty. His mother looked at him and said, "Well, whose little boy are you?" "Why, I'm Billy," he replied. "No, you are not Billy. He never came home with such a dirty face. I can't see who you are," she said. "I tell you I am me. You ought to know my shape, if you don't know my face."

Our Colorful Language.

The wealth of colors and shades in our language is a never-ending source of wonder. Speaking of a young man who has just lost his position the old home paper says: "Mr. Jones has resigned his place with Smith company to take a more lucrative position, which will be announced later." His old boss says: "Mr. Jones was discharged for incompetency." Mr. Jones himself says: "I got the gate 'cause the general manager seen I was a comer and got jealous."—Kansas City Star.

Name Worried Curate

I was named Ethelbert, but I was not christened in this country, and from year to year that formal ceremony was postponed until I had reached the ripe age of twelve. I suppose that my father was waiting for the time when my godfather, Maj. William Appleton, should come to England; but the time arrived when at Saint Margaret's at Westminster, I was christened. The curate who took me through my course was very much worried over my name, Ethelbert. I suppose he had some idea that in heaven I might be mistaken for a boy. He asked me very graciously if I would not take the Christian name of Mary, so there would not be any mistake on that score! I was confirmed by Bishop Ingraham at Saint Paul's, a most beautiful service which I shall never forget.—From Billie Burbe's "Reminiscences" in the Deliberator.

Felix D. Robertson

The Common Sense Candidate for Governor

The "Common Sense Candidate." That is the title by which Felix D. Robertson, candidate for Governor, is known throughout the State. It came to him through his record as judge of the City Court of Dallas and later of Criminal District Court No. 1 of Dallas and was earned through his native Texas ability to see through the tangled problems of law to the common sense and the human justice in these problems as they were presented to him.

As a common sense candidate Felix D. Robertson is opposed to the army of boards, bureaus and commissions that give a few men fat salaries and fine titles, but increase the burdens of the taxpayers. He believes there are too many idle public employees with their feet on mahogany desks spending their time doing nothing but waiting for their swollen salaries. "We have too much government; too many boards, bureaus and commissions; too much buck passing; too much theory; too many idle employees," he says.

When elected Governor Judge Robertson promises to sweep all this useless expense out of the state house at Austin.

Judge Robertson is an elder in the First Baptist church of Dallas. His reputation as a Sunday School lecturer extends throughout the State and he is regarded as one of the most inspired of speakers on religious subjects and the Protestant faith.

When he was City Judge the newspaper men of Dallas called him in all reverence of spirit, "the Praying Judge." This was because when often some erring youth or some slip of a girl confronted with ruin, was brought before him, he was not the unfeeling magistrate, but showed himself kindly in heart and ready with Christian advice. Often he would adjourn court and on his knees pray that such a one might be turned to the better life.

Himself a man who has made his way up by hard work, Judge Robertson sympathizes with the worker, whether in the field or in the shop.

He is a lifelong Democrat. He was born in McLennan county, his grandfather being General Jerome P. Robertson, commander in Hood's Brigade of the Confederate army. His father is Gen. Felix H. Robertson, who was a Brigadier General in Joe Wheeler's corps in the Confederate army. During the world war Judge Robertson was a major in the 132nd field artillery of the Thirty-Sixth Division.

Judge Robertson has been a lifelong prohibitionist, having been active in his fight against the liquor interests for more than twenty years, and an advocate of woman suffrage.

He believes in and stands on the following planks:

- Better schools.
- Free textbooks.
- Strict law enforcement.
- Prison system reform.
- Better public roads.
- Help for ex-service men.
- Organized labor.
- Homes for tenant farmers.

The Commonsense Candidate is a firm believer in rural schools, declaring there should be an apportionment of at least $15.00 per capita for pupils of the same.

The motto to which he has always adhered is: "In a democracy like Texas the children of the poor must have their chance."

BASKET DINNER AT LOVINGTON TUESDAY NOON

It had been decided to give a noon-day luncheon at the hotel to the visiting members of the Brownfield Chamber of Commerce on the visit to Lovington next Tuesday the 8th. But since they had already made their arrangements to have a basket dinner with them, it has been decided that the people of Lovington and community should bring their baskets and meet with them. The dinner will be spread on tables arranged on the courthouse lawn.

A committee has been appointed to make arrangements for securing sufficient strawberries and cream to supply the crowd, and it is hoped that a goodly number of the local people will respond to the committee which will call upon them for well filled baskets for that occasion.—Lovington Leader.

The Herald family is rejoicing over the arrival last week of a big crate of oranges, complimentary from the father and brother of Mrs. Herald, who live at Anaheim, Calif. These oranges were hand picked by the above mentioned and are of exceedingly good flavor. Thanks, awfully.

C. K. Thornton returned home on Sunday from Kaufman county where he was called to the bedside of his mother some two weeks ago. His mother, Mrs. J. M. Thornton, passed away last Friday, June 27, and was buried on Saturday following. She was passed 80 years of age and was in the best of health until last Nov. when she had a stroke of paralysis, and his was the cause of her death. Mr. Thornton stated to us this week that crops in that part of Texas were very late this season and the grasshoppers and other insects were doing much damage to the crops.—Meadow Messenger.

Frank Martin I. and II., accompanied by Harry Dorman, took in the Floydada picnic last week.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

The State of Texas:—To the Sheriff or any Constable of Terry County—Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon Emma Rose by making publication of this Citation once each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your County, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in any newspaper published in the 72nd Judicial District; but if there be no newspaper published in said Judicial District, then in a newspaper published in the nearest District to said 72nd Judicial District, to appear at the next regular term of District Court of Terry County, to be holden at the Court House thereof, in Brownfield, on the fourth Monday in July, A.D. 1924, the same being the 28th day of July, A.D. 1924, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1924 in a suit numbered on the docket of said Court No. 764, wherein C. C. Rose is Plaintiff and Emma Rose is Defendant, and said petition alleging that plaintiff is and has been for a period of more than 12 months prior to the filing of this petition an actual bona fide resident of the State of Texas, and has resided in the county aforesaid for at least six months preceding the filing of this cause; that on or about the 14th day of February 1912, plaintiff and defendant were lawfully married, and lived together as man and wife until on or about the 8th day of June, 1924, when without any just cause defendant abandoned plaintiff and since said time has secreted and kept hidden from plaintiff and her present whereabouts at this time is unknown. And Plaintiff alleges that during the time he and the defendant lived together as man and wife, he was kind and affectionate to her and always provided for her support and maintenance, but defendant unmindful of the duties and obligations of her marital vows, for a long period of time prior to said abandonment, began a course of unkind, harsh, cruel and tyrannical treatment toward plaintiff, which continued until defendant, without just cause, on above said date abandoned plaintiff; plaintiff alleges that defendant's actions and conduct toward him generally are of such a nature as to render their further living together as husband and wife insupportable; that during the marriage of defendant and plaintiff they have had born to them one child, as the issue of said marriage, a boy aged 10 year, named Juo Bailey, which is still living; that defendant is unable on account of her other children to properly care for and educate said child; and is an unfit person to have his care, custody and control; that plaintiff is a farmer living within a short distance of a good school, has a comfortable home and is a proper and fit person to rear and educate said boy, and that under the circumstances it would be right and proper to award the custody of said minor to plaintiff. Wherefore plaintiff prays that defendant be cited to appear and answer this petition, and that upon final hearing hereof plaintiff have judgement dissolving said marriage relations; for the custody of said minor child; and for such other and further relief, both general and special, in law and in equity to which he may be entitled to receive.

Herein fail not but have before said Court, at its aforesaid regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said Court, at office in Brownfield, on this 26th day of June, 1924.

The theory of farming
To him is very plain,
Requires but little muscle—
Just use a lot of brains.
You seldom see him plowing,
He's waiting for a rain,
Till grass-burs gets his cotton,
Likewise his corn and cane.
His father owns a Buick six,
He says no one can pass,
While pap he pays his speeding fines
Dad stands for oil and gas.
He motored out one Sunday
To see his dearest Jane,
While on the trip he pulled a stunt Someone will pull again.
He dashed upon the railroad track,
A swiftly moving train,
They placed his fragments in a sack
But failed to find his brains.

One lesson most of us need to learn anew is that love and fellowship and co-operation are the best assets a community can have, while division and strife and bickerings and prejudice blight and destroy progress in any community. It is unfortunate that men cannot differ materially on even vital questions without their differences affecting their kindly feelings one for the other. None of us are perfect. All are human. As one rhymster expressed it: "There is so much good in the worst of us, and so much bad in the best of us, that it does not behoove any of us to speak evil of the rest of us." Just now there is danger of the people of Tahoka becoming divided into bitter factions on account of political and religious differences. All good citizens should use their influence to prevent such a calamity. Let us stand firm for our respective convictions, but at the same time let us be willing to concede that the other fellow is just as sincere and conscientious as ourselves. People who are radical and intemperate in speech and conduct have caused more strife and bitterness and bloodshed in the history of this country than all the confirmed criminals combined. Let us be temperate and tolerant. Let love and kindness have sway in our hearts and we will think more of one another, and petty bickerings and strife will vanish. Let all keep sweet and keep our outer garments on. There is plenty of prejudice in this world racial and religious without organizations being formed to incite and promote it. There is enough of class animosities without blocs and clans being formed to further fan them into flames. There is enough of misinformation and ignorance of the views and purposes of the great religious bodies who differ from us without it being necessary for organizations to be formed to dispense misinformation or exaggerated statements about their views and purposes. We deem it unfortunate therefore that we have in this country a great organization, the effect of not the purpose of whose teachings have been to stir up bitter religious and racial animosities. We can never win men by abusing them. We can never eradicate error by antagonizing those who are its victims. Hate never made any converts, to the cause of truth. We must win men and women by love, not hate, by sympathy, not scolding antipathy, by the power of truth, not by force of majorities. Organized prejudice and malice are calculated to do much harm and no good in this country. Let love reign in this old world, and let truth be disseminated in love. This is the best way to combat error, especially religious error, and the News regrets that great bodies of men throughout this nation are attempting to combat it with other weapons.—Tahoka News.

This editorial should be read and pondered well by our folks.

"Straw votes show which way the wind is blowing, and straw votes show which way the race is going." A straw vote taken Tuesday night aboard the special train of members of the Texas Press Association bound for the convention at Amarillo.

Two straw votes voluntarily taken recently among business and professional men of Texas in both cases gave Lynch Davidson over twice as many votes as all of his opponents combined.

In the vote aboard the Texas Press Association special Tuesday night with approximately 125 passengers, 123 votes were cast with Lynch Davidson receiving 76; Robertson 21; T. W. Davidson 13; Barton 2; Collins 7 and Mrs. Ferguson 1.

The other ballot referred to was made aboard the special train run by the Dallas Chamber of Commerce to El Paso. The passengers aboard this train consisted of purchasers of tickets sold city-wide over Dallas. In this instance 117 votes were cast with the following results: Lynch Davidson 83; T. W. Davidson 8; Collins 6; Robertson 12 and Ferguson 8.

At the time of the Dallas vote was taken, Mr. Ferguson's name had not been contested and Mr. Barton had not started actively campaigning.

The total of the votes in the two trials where names appeared in both cases follows: Lynch Davidson 159; T. W. Davidson 21; Collins 13; Robertson 33.

These two ballots constitute one of the strongest possible indications that Lynch Davidson's business platform is receiving the commendation of the people of Texas. The first ballot was taken among business men selected from every rank and group, and the second from the newspaper fraternity representing probably more than any other group, the class of men whose business is to know the business needs of their state, and possessing the keenest judgement as to who is capable of giving the best results.

We note from the press reports of speeches by the various candidates that they are most all romping on Lynch Davidson, which is a usually a pretty good indication that they are afraid of him in the race and recognize him a very strong contender for the honors.

We are of the opinion that he will be an easy winner in the race, and we also believe that if elected, he will be one of the strongest governors the state has ever had.—Lubbock Avalanche.

Yes and Lynch Davidson will be the governor of all the people.

The Herald had a letter this week from E. H. Tandy, erstwhile Tokioan, but who seems to be lodged temporarily at Lyford on the coast, where he is fishing and encouraging himself to venture over in Matamoras, Mexico and inspect the saloons, although he adds he is a dry. He most likely means "he is dry."

Do you know for certain that the Title is clear on the property you are planning to leave your wife or children for their support if you should be taken away?

Many a time clouds on the title to a piece of property do not appear until the widow or the orphan tries to turn it into money. Then even if the property is finally sold, a big chunk comes off the price to offset the cloud. You know that—it is as sure as taxes. If you have never had an abstract of title made on your property by specialists, it will be worth the price in PEACE OF MIND to you to know that your loved ones will surely inherit a clear title to the property you intend them to have.

We do not do abstracting "on the side" as one small feature of a miscellaneous business. We specialize. Your abstract, if made here, will be made by experts, working with complete, accurate, systematized records.

We will explain in detail if you will call.

Not Unusual to Find Humor Among Thieves

Criminals have almost invariably a sense of humor that proves their humanity, says G. S. Dougherty in the Saturday Evening Post. They especially relish a laugh when it is on themselves.

A rope ladder thief had successfully finished one of his difficult jobs. Fastening a rope ladder to a chimney on a roof he had to climb down to a window below, force an entrance, climb up with his loot and make his getaway.

Coming out of the door he saw his shadow in the yard and was so nervous that he fired at it, thereby bringing about his arrest. A mishap of that kind will cause great mirth in criminal circles.

A pickpocket worked all summer without an accident. Every week he sent a good proportion of his money home to his sister and mother. Coming home himself, after warm greetings, he wanted to know what had been done with the money.

"Why, Jim, I'll tell you," said the sister, hesitating a little. "You're in such a dangerous business that we often feel worried about you, so we gave the money to buy a stained glass window in the church."

After his arrest, a skillful counterfeiter told me how his undoing came about. He had been a sign painter and was decidedly artistic and skillful. Coming to New York he took a downtown office, painted "Real Estate" on the door, and used it as a workshop for painting imitation banknotes.

He said that though it took no more time or work to imitate a $100 bill than a $20, he had to make five $20s to get change for $100, because the $20 bills were more easily passed.

It was a $100 counterfeit that led to his downfall. Finishing it late one afternoon, he started for home, but stopped in a lower West side saloon to buy a drink and a bottle of whisky.
Laying his $100 imitation banknote on the bar, it came in contact with a little spilled whisky and the colors ran, leading to his arrest.

Some years later I saw him in a penitentiary and said, "Well, Emanuel, I see you're still working at the old line." He was plying a brush, white-washing a prison wall.

One Department Awake

Some departments of the government may be said, with justice, to fall asleep occasionally on the job, but one Detroit housewife is willing to testify to the wide-awakeness of the United States bureau of animal industry. The housewife had ordered a set of dishes from London, England, and long before their arrival was the recipient of a letter from the bureau stating a case of goods, packed in straw and excellent had been consigned to her and advising that, because of the danger of importing germs of the hoof-and-mouth disease into the country, the straw must be destroyed. However, the bureau heads did not trust to the housewife's discretion in burning the packing. She was requested to notify the local bureau of the consignee's arrival, whereupon an inspector would call to see personally to the destruction of the straw.—Detroit Free Press.

Farming in Portugal

Portugal will aid its agriculture by supplying farmers with implements and fertilizers and instruction in how to use them. The scheme, as announced by Doctor Oliveira of the Banco Agricola de Lisboa, involves teaching the unskilled farmer to get the most possible from his soil by means of intensive cultivation. The government will supply the necessary agricultural machinery and will also designate one or more directors who will have the supervision of the work undertaken. There is no intention to profit at the expense of the farmer. It is announced, and all profits gained by the intensive and systematic cultivation practiced will revert to the owner. There is a shortage of animal power in the country districts and this fact, it is thought, will stimulate the demand for tractors.

To Maintain Shine on Brass

Brass is a combination of two metals, copper and zinc. The best polish, but the hardest to obtain, is obtained by long rubbing with a mixture of rottenstone and linseed oil. This type of polish is soft and does not tarnish readily, but it is hard work to obtain. A quicker polish, and brighter one, can be obtained with the metal polishes. Brass bedsteads that have been lacquered can be cleaned at home if you first remove the lacquer with alcohol.

London's First Electric Sign

The first real electric sign was constructed and displayed in London about thirty years ago. This was a writing sign, which consisted of the lighting up of lamp by lamp so that the effect was that of the words being actually written out. The first advertising device on present-day lines showed a dinner party. The diners were represented as taking soup, and they raised their spoons to their mouths in a most realistic manner.

Meaning of Train Whistles.

According to a locomotive engineer, trains do not whistle at regular stops.
At a crossing the signal is two long and one short blast; signal stops, one long blast by the engineer which the conductor answers with two short blasts; for calling in a flagman, traveling south and west, four long blasts; north and east, five long and one short blast.

... of Greatness.
... among books and enjoy-
... them, I find in a certain sense that the more I enjoy them, the harder becomes the task of criticism, the less sure one's faith in critical canons, and the fewer the canons themselves. Of one thing, though, I grow more and more sure—that the real business of the critic is to find out what is right with a great work of art—book, song, statue, or picture—not what is wrong
... If the critic's work is to be worth while, it is the great element in the thing that he has to seek and find —to learn what it is that makes it live and gives it its appeal, so that, as Montaigne said of Plutarch, men "can not do without it"; why it is that in a world where everything that can be "scrapped" is "scrapped," is thrown aside and forgotten, this thing, this book or picture, refuses to be ignored but captures and charms men.—T. R.
Glover.

Sand in the Household.

Nothing is better than clean sand, mixed with warm water, for thoroughly cleaning the baby's nursing bottle, as it reaches every part of the inside when the bottle is shaken, scouring out every vestige of milk which may stick to the bottle. It is just as useful in cleaning any form of bottle or jar, whose interior is hard to get at. If some objectionable substance has fallen on the carpet or rug, it should be covered with sand before being taken up. Our grandmothers always kept sand in the kitchen for scouring the floor and they heated bags of sand to warm the beds, instead of water bottles. And everybody does not know that fine sand was used for drying ink long before blotting paper was thought of.

Elevator Bell Coward.

"If there's anything I loathe," remarked Bjork, the New York Sun states, "it's an elevator bell coward.
An elevator bell coward is one who comes to an elevator door at which you are awaiting the car and presses the bell button. Then if the car is slow in coming he loses his temper and steps again to the bell, this time ringing it continuously for some time or at frequent intervals. When the indicator shows the car is nearing the floor he draws back and lets you and your companions be the first to advance, thus giving the impression that you were the angry ringers and sometimes bringing down upon you the wrath of an irate elevator operator."

Fire Extinguishers.

Cheap fire extinguishers may be made by filling old electric lamp globes—or bottles can be used with some solution having special fire extinguishing properties. Such a solution can be made by taking 20 parts calcium chloride, 5 parts of common salt, and 75 parts of water. The globes are filled by immersing them in a large dish or pail containing the solution and breaking off the tips with a pair of pliers. They will fill quickly owing to the fact that the air has been largely exhausted from them during manufacture. When a fire occurs one or two of these globes are thrown at the burning object.

Have Regularity in Eating.

Habitual irregularity in eating disturbs digestion greatly and loads the blood with noxious waste products.
Such irregularity relates either to the time at which food is eaten or to the quality and quantity taken. Irregularity in either respect leads to irritability, loss of vitality, pessimism, tiredness, headaches, depression and obesity or emaciation, according to particular circumstances. Irrational living confronts the body with a series of emergencies which overtax the powers of our organs. While the body is well equipped for occasional emergencies nature resents too many insults.

Outspoken.

Our club had arranged a hard times party at which everyone was to dress in as ragged and forlorn looking apparel as could be secured. However, it was decided that those who did not desire to come so arrayed might come without disguise. Upon being questioned by a fellow member, as to what he should wear that would appear unusually ridiculous, I thoughtlessly replied, "O, never mind hunting up anything. Just come as you are and you'll be all right." Not until he coldly thanked me did I realize what I had said.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Saving Light Bills.

In our home we were forever neglecting to turn off the cellar light, says a writer. This is my reminding plan: I have a good-sized pasteboard placard on which is printed in black letters, "The Light Is On," hanging to the cellar light switch in the kitchen. Now, when a member of the family turns on the switch he removes the card before descending to the cellar.
Upon returning he sees the card, is reminded of the burning light, hangs up the card, and turns off the switch.
This saves much unnecessary burning of electricity.

HARRIS HAPPENINGS

By Sand Bar.

Charley Jones, father, uncle and cousin, from Jones county visited at his home last week. Mrs. Cheek and children returned with them for a visit with her parents.

Those who attended the Children's Day exercises at Tokio Sunday, enjoyed it very much. The children all did well in their songs, drills, recitations and exercises. One of the best features of the program was the flower drill by the older girls which closed the program. The cornet solo, "In the Sweet Bye and Bye," by Edwin Ham, was much appreciated by the audience, as was also the special song led by Mamie Lovelace. They who missed hearing "St. Peter at the Gate" by Vivian Clare, missed something too. They was lots of work connected with Children's Day, but it isn't fair to the children not to have it. It is the gala day of all the year when we all should be children and join in keeping this day of birds and flowers and young people. The lessons imparted on this day will be recalled oftentimes, and linger in the memory longer than any other of the year.

Brit Clare was a Brownfield visitor Tuesday.

Some from here attended the ball game at Brownfield, Friday, between Tokio and Brownfield. Brownfield won, but we failed to learn the score. While some people do not take any interest in a ball game, a clean straight game of ball at the right is as good a form of entertainment as any for the young people and for older ones who like it. We should not discourage the spirit of play—the right kind of play at the right time—for in Thess. 5: 16-18, we are told to rejoice evermore. We must be happy and cheerful; see the best side of everything and everybody and be ready to make others happy. The young person at play is the key to the young person at work. Those who play clean and fair will work the same way. How very important it is that we learn to play fair on the school ground and in match games of all kinds. There are some who pray before entering a game that they may play fair and straight, and then do their best, and if they win, well and good; if they do not win, well and good again. Of course the church and Sunday School must come first always—nothing should interfere with that.

Charley Jones and family left on Thursday for a visit with relatives in Jones county.

Grandpa and Grandma Davis, parents of Mrs. John A. King, came in this week from Balinger for a short visit.

Calvin Coolidge, Jr., son of President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, died in a Washington hospital at 10:30 on Monday night after a brief illness of septic poisoning, induced by a blistered foot from playing tennis. The whole nation sympathizes with the bereaved nation's head.

We notice that most of our people are really trying to observe the new traffic law, and the officials are also practicing leniency toward the people until they understand the rules. It is a fact however, that some are still in a big hurry to get nowhere, and it is the duty of citizens to turn in all such "bumbers." Officer Brown, we understand, has already tagged some of the cars, and the next offense will draw a fine.

The Fourth passed off pretty quiet in Brownfield, most of our citizens going out on rabbit drives. However many of them hung out Old Glory before they left their places of business. A few fire works left over from Christmas were brought into play. Dancing started at one of the cafes early in the afternoon and was enjoyed to far into the night by some who dance. Throw Away False Teeth.

Some one pulled the bell cord of a Midland train in England the other day and the engine put on the brakes. The conductor went through the cars, inquiring the reason for the sudden stopping of the train. He noticed an old woman, who appeared highly excited. She explained to the conductor that she had been eating plums, and had been throwing the pits out the window one by one. The last plum she had eaten had caused her false teeth to become dislodged, and reaching up for the pit, the teeth instead of the pit came out her mouth. She had thrown the teeth out the window, and would the conductor kindly hold the train until she went back to search for them? The conductor, however, pulled the bell cord and the train went on to its destination.

Washington to Conway.

The only letter Washington wrote to Conway was a note in which he pointed out that he had discovered Conway's discontent and malice against Washington. It ran: "A letter which I received last night contained the following paragraph: 'In a letter from General Conway to General Gates he says, 'Heaven has determined to save your country, or a weak general and bad counselors would have ruined it.' I am, sir, your humble servant, etc.'" Washington did not ask Conway for help; on the contrary he had so poor an opinion of that officer that he wrote, "His merits exist more in his own imagination than in reality. His promotion would be a real act of injustice."

Character in the Face.

People with high foreheads and long thin faces are fussy and energetic, unnecessarily so, always buzzing round, and inclined to interfere with others. They are impatient and hasty, and apt to "rush" at things, doing them hastily and not thoroughly. The broad face is, on the other hand, inclined to take life easily and calmly, doing things thoroughly; it all depends on how broad it is, the broader the more lymphatic and lazy the nature. The happy medium is a fairly broad or oval face, with a wide forehead and slightly showing cheekbones, a square chin, and the ears set slightly back. This nature will have a well-balanced mind, sound common sense, and much reasoning ability.

True Life.

To understand what he is, a man must first understand all this mysterious humanity, consisting of people such as himself, who do not understand one another. I now believe that my welfare and that of other people is only possible when each one labors, not for himself, but for others, and not only ceases to withhold his work from others, but gives it to anyone who needs it. That only is true life which carries on the life of the past, promotes the welfare of the present and prepares the welfare of the future.—Tolstoy.

Small Chair in Kitchen.

A small chair, such as is used in kindergartens, is a convenience in a kitchen, says a woman writer. "I find it more comfortable, when preparing fruits and vegetables for canning, to sit on this low chair with jars around me and one in my lap, than sitting on the ordinary chair and tiring my arms and shoulders by reaching up to the table height," she says. "I also find that by standing on this chair I can reach many things just out of reach and not have to strain for them or lift a heavy chair to stand on."

BILL WISE SEZ:

THEIR PAST LIFE THEIR OWN AFFAIR

"It Isn't What You Used to Be" in Wyoming.

I cannot pick out and describe, even in a line or two each, all those first neighbors of mine in Wyoming; fairly distant neighbors most of them, living anywhere from five to forty miles away, writes Struthers Burt in the Saturday Evening Post.

I cannot even give a satisfactory composite picture of the curiously cosmopolitan society, surfaced by common desires and common traditions, that distinguishes most cattle countries. In the case of my country, not so cosmopolitan as some others I have known.

There was, for instance, the handsome son of a great New York family, who had been sent West because he was thought to be a drunkard, but who developed—unlike most of his fellow remittance men—into the shrewdest and most sober of cattlemen; and there was the son of an American admiral the rest of whose family lived in Florence; and there was an ex-policeman from Pennsylvania who had shot a man justifiably but had decided to emigrate; and there was the illegitimate offspring of a race famous in New England; and Dodge, the Harvard man; and another man whose talk was of the roughest, but who occasionally let drop a phrase astonishing in its delicacy and sureness of education; and there was the mysterious heir of a South African official, who had a photograph of two beautiful sisters.

These, and more like them, and then a score of men whose real names and stories were never known at all.

The heir of the South African official is still in the country, and will be there forever. He was shot a few years ago by a boy who had worked for us, and the shooting was so necessary that the boy was never even arrested.

The Boer, between whom and the boy there had been bad blood for a long while, rode over to the boy's ranch, announcing his intention of murdering him; and arriving at the door, placed his horse between him and the cabin and attempted to shoot the boy and his wife through the window.

A strange fellow this Boer, a charming, blue-eyed, curly-headed young man with a slight foreign lisp. He had been a mounted policeman in the Canadian Northwest and a top copuncher everywhere, but he told me he had once fallen and injured his head, and

I don't think he had ever got over the injury, for he was undoubtedly lissane at moments.

He could never spend a night at a ranch without taking something away the next morning, and then you would find the thing he had taken, up the road where he had thrown it half an hour later. One time I was riding with him through the fringe of cottonwood that bounds the ranch on the south. He sniffed the scented air. "This always reminds me," he said, in his soft voice, "of bellflowers."

Unlucky Flowers.

The primrose now blooming in many districts is a flower of ill omen to the rural poultry keeper, says the London Morning Post. In many areas it is a firm belief that if the first primrose taken into the house be fewer than thirteen in number all hens "set" will hatch out only as many eggs as there are primroses in the bouquet. So firm is this belief that on one occasion a Norfolk clergyman was called upon to intervene in a quarrel which had arisen between two women because one had given the child of the other a single primrose, so as to insure that the mother's hens should hatch only one egg each. Daffodils are also unlucky, and must not be taken into the house while the hens are sitting, while another belief is that if yellow catkins, locally known as "pinks" or "galls," be taken into the house the goslings will all die.

TAHOKA KLAN AND ANTI-KLAN FACTIONS CLASH

It is currently reported on the streets that members of the Ku Klux Klan held a meeting in a pasture south of town last Friday night, and some members of the anti-klan faction, believing that a parade of the Klansmen was about to be staged, repaired to the scene of the meeting and there caused a minor disturbance by throwing missiles at some of the members of the hooded organization.

No violence was offered in return, however, and the matter passed off without further trouble. No parade was attempted. It is not thought that any further trouble of this nature will be had.—Tahoka News.

WHY NEWSPAPER EDITORS ARE WEALTHY

A child is born in the neighborhood; the attending physician gets $25. The editor gives the loud-mouthed baby and happy parents a send-off and gets $4. When it is christened the minister gets $10, the editor gets $20. It grows up and marries. The editor publishes another long-winded article; tells a dozen lies about the beautiful bride. The minister gets $10 and a piece of cake; the editor gets $50. In the course of time it dies. The doctor gets from $25 to $100; the undertaker from $50 to $100, and the editor publishes a notice of the death and obituaries two columns long, lodge, society and church resolutions and a free card of thanks and gets $300. No wonder so many editors get rich.—Exchange.

And we have noticed that the longest obituaries and cards of thanks come from the families who do not even take the paper.

The night of the 1st of July, we had the finest rain of the season; a regular down-pour that lasted for several hours and extended over a large part of three counties. The benefit is of untold value and cannot be told. Planting was never in such a rush before in this part of the country. It is not too late; plant anything you can get hold of while the season is in. The chances are largely in favor of a crop.—Seagraves Progress.

GEO. R. BEAN

of Lubbock

ENDORSED for DISTRICT JUDGE

Judge Bean is a candidate for District Judge because he believes there is a demand from the people for his services. He did not seek the office. Friends and acquaintances placed his name on the ticket. When scores of the best citizens of various walks of life signed and presented him a petition to run, he then announced for the office. Judge Bean asks for the office on his own merits and not on the demerits of any one else.

Judge Bean has practised law in Lubbock for 20 years; is a Christian gentleman; an able lawyer with wide experience in all branches of law; and will make an honest and a fearless Judge. He will endeavor to administer justice in, as a just Judge and not as a prejudiced partisan, to all classes according to the laws of the land, in the Court House.

Below is a partial list of those who endorsed and petitioned Bean to run.

MEADOW BRIEFS

By Ascalapian

The glorious Fourth has passed into history. Our town was unusually quiet and but for the closing of most of the stores and the absence of their keepers, no one would have suspected that a holiday of importance was being celebrated.

Only three flags were in evidence, and the Dead March in Saul would have been appropriate for the occasion. Most of the people hied away to Lubbock and other places. In New York the Democratic hosts have been gathered for days dead locked in an effort to nominate some fellow that the people don't want. What a difference in the two gatherings. One hundred and forty-eight years ago, a small band of patriots had assembled and declared their severance from British rule and tyranny; the other bunch of politicians and office holders are doing their best to thwart the will of those who sent them up there. Coolidge will be the next president.

We were favored with a nice rain Friday night, but it did not cover much of the country. To the northwest as far as Levelland and on southeast of Meadow. West of us it did not much more than lay the dust. But it is coming.

Earl Cadenhead took a little too much of something the Fourth and was rather sick the next day.

Mrs. Bobbie Terry, of Stephenville, her mother, Mrs. Shuler, her daughters, Ida, Leone, Eunice and Lee Edwin, are visiting Loomis Moorhead and wife. They are all married, however, except the two last named.

The ordinance of baptism was administered to four candidates Sunday afternoon by Bro. Burnett of the Baptist Church.

God's Acre—the Country Cemetery

There is a little mound in the graveyard

'T would scarce stop a child in its race. But to me and my thought it is wider Than the star-strewn vague of space."

Thus wrote Lowell the day after he had buried his wife. So think we all when we have laid to rest some loved one. As we stand about the grave with broken and bleeding hearts, we cannot bring ourselves to believe that we can ever fail to love and cherish the little bit of ground made sacred by the loved one's dust. The loss seems irreparable. Yet:

"The Heart that truly loves never forgets,
But as truly loves on to the close."

Was Moore mistaken, or was Munsterberg correct when he said: "We would cause our families real inconvenience and sorrow if we should return in a few years after death."

If we are to judge from the care usually bestowed on the country or small town grave-yard, Munsterberg was right.

Recently while traveling across the country I chanced on one of those eye-sores, an unkept country grave-yard. There was a small village near and the public highway ran on two sides of it. A high southwest wind was blowing at the time, and clouds of dust and sand obscured the country except for objects near by. It was near nightfall and but for the uncanny appearance of this burying ground compared with other neglected spots I have seen, I would perhaps have passed it by.

I stopped the car and climbed over the barbed wire fence that marked the boundary of this Silent City of the dead, and with hat in hand waded through the weeds and sand burs knee deep over most of it. Here and there were some pretentious monuments. Inscribed on most of them were loving words and terms of endearment. Yet they had been forgotten. In a few spots the weeds and burs had been cut away and an evergreen struggled for existence. For the most part however, graves had been neglected; some were sunken—perhaps not visited since the burial. In others some burrowing animal had dug into the mound, while all about the sand had been piled in mounds and ridges by the wind.

Mourning one of the piles of sand, I looked in sorrow at this wanton neglect of the dead. Musing, I asked myself if a place like his could have inspired Gray's splendid "Eligy?" No, no. A vision came over me of the old church of Stokes Porges with its ivy covered tower; in the foreground and on either side was covered with close cropped grass; at intervals a marble slab on which was inscribed, in quaint Old English the names of those who slept beneath. Broad sidewalks or driveways lined on either side with elms and ewe trees and beds of variegated flowers, while in the background the wooded hills lent dignity to the scene.

Well might such a place give rise to lofty thoughts, and imaginations climb the steps that lead up to Parnassus and the Muses. If we believe with Edgar Guest:

The dead return, they come to share Our laughter and our bit of care. They glory as they used to do

When we were splendid men and true.

In all the joy that we have won, And they are proud of what we've done.

They suffer when we suffer wee, All things about us here they know, And though we never see them here, Their spirits hover very near."

What must be their feelings when visiting earth to find their bodies buried neath the tangle of weeds and burs and piles of sand? In the midst of such surroundings, tears and lamentations are but hollow mockeries. I would much prefer to sleep alone on some mountain side or beneath some oak away from fields of sand and midst weeds and burs and briars.

When the angel, Rev. 10-5 shall proclaim that time shall be no more, * * * and backward roll—

The sealing stone and striding out, Claim its Eternity, and head Creation once again, and shout, "The Resurrection of the Dead."

I do not care to issue forth midst weeds and burs and piles of sand. Let's have clean homes, pure hearts that love our kind, and clean burying ground for our precious dead. God made the earth and carpeted its surface with grass and trees and flowers. Wherever unmolested by the ruthless hand of man there are no unsightly spots.

"And Sarah died in Kir-jah--ar-ha * * * and Abraham came to mourn for Sarah and to weep for her"—first recorded tears for the dead. He purchased the cave with the field of Mach-pe-lah, with all the trees that were in the field and borders round about, and Abraham buried Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Mach-pe-lah, purchased with four hundred shekles of silver from the sons of Heth—mans—first recorded burial. Thither was brought Abraham when he died, as also Isaac and Rebecca and Jacob and Leah. And the place of their burial continueth until this day."

HUMAN LIFE CHEAP IN BUENOS AIRES

Knives Apt to Flash at the Wink of an Eyelash.

The Boca, Buenos Aires, is one of the most strangely fascinating places in the world. Seafaring men in Sydney, Marseilles and along the wharves of the London docks will talk of it; but the casual visitor to Buenos Aires, speaking no Spanish and wearing a presentable suit, cannot easily go there, for in the Boca, they say, a man may lose his life for half a crown or the coat upon his back, writes Arthur Mills from Buenos Aires to the London Daily Mail.

This may well be, for life is cheap in Argentina, whether it be on the great rolling cattle plains of the rugged North or in the fashionable restaurants of Buenos Aires. It was in the Boca that I first saw something of the soul of Argentina, as much perhaps as in the marble halls of the Jockey club or among the picturesque horsemen of Entre Rios maneuvering their vast herds.

One Saturday, some while after midnight, I came to a cafe hard by the Pedro de Mendoza. There were assembled in that cafe all manner of men—sailors from a vessel bringing salt from Spain, Americans from a lumber boat, Norwegians, Greeks still con-begrimed, some British seamen arrived with railway material, estimable Chinese cooks, little wrinkled grinning Japanese, Italians, Syrians, Russians.

Bolshevik and aristocrat alike concealed beneath tattered coats and a week's growth of stubby beard—some looking for work, some avoiding it—the pariah dogs of a hundred ports. Across the rubbish-littered road, the ships that had brought these men lay at anchor in an endless stretching belt, themselves evidence of the mighty needs of the great South American capital.

On a raised platform four musicians in shirt sleeves played. But no one danced. The proprietor explained to me that, in a neighborhood where a man would draw his knife for the flicker of a woman's eyes, to encourage dancing was unwise.

The proprietor was something of a character himself, able to speak several languages, including Kafir. He was a burly fellow and his burman looked pretty useful, too, if trouble should arise. But rows were avoided, the proprietor explained, pointing to two men in plain clothes in either corner of the room, ready to signal to him the first sign of an angry glance.

As we talked a girl passed by. She had dark, luminous eyes, swung her shapely limbs with the smoothest of motions, and carried herself with an air of easy grace, the special inheritance of her people.

A burly Scandinavian sailor, a blue cloth knotted beneath a red beard, caught her arm. She tried to free herself. Then words were exchanged and I she turned and faced him like a wildcat. Next moment the proprietor jumped between the pair and plucked the girl's hand to the knife hilt in her stocking. The burman leaped over the counter. Two other men appeared. In less than a minute the sailor was outside the cafe and the girl seated calmly in his place.

The proprietor remonstrated with

Volcano Worth Owning

Prince Gineri-Conti of Italy has on his estates an old volcano which no longer spouts lava but which does blow out a great deal of steam and hot water. By boring holes in the ground the prince collects this steam and makes it drive electric generators. It gets power totaling more than 2,000 horse power. One of the steam after it has condensed, he extracts valuable quantities of boracic acid, the familiar drug used in eye drops.

Wanted Particulars

Several members of the United Confederate Veterans last Sunday afternoon were sitting around their quarters at the city hall, following the adjournment of the regular meeting. One of the veterans had been brought to the meeting in a friend's automobile, along with several of the family, all of whom attended church. The friend promised to call and pick up the oldtimer.

The old soldier was getting impatient. Finally, one of the younger members of the family hove into sight. Going to the car, the youngster said to the veteran, "We didn't mean to be late, but during church services, Brother Willie had a hard fit and we had to take him to the hospital."

"That so," replied the soldier. "Who was he fitted?"—Houston Post.

Oil From Corn

Oil made from corn is a more important product than most people imagine. During last year some 37,500 tons were consumed in the United States. It has many valuable uses. It is good for table purposes, whether for salad, for frying or for shortening. In the manufacture of soap, soap powder and oilcloth it is largely employed; and by a vulcanizing process it is converted into an artificial rubber that is extensively utilized for over shoes and motorcar tires. It is derived from the germ of the corn, which at the mills is thrown out in the preparing of meal and hominy. Were it ground up with the meal, the latter would not keep well; it would soon turn rancid. The germ thus separated are pressed for the oil.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION

Relating to Granting of Confederate Pension

Senate Joint Resolution No. 10.

Proposing an amendment to Section 51 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Texas to provide that the Legislature may grant pensions to the Confederate soldiers, sailors and their widows, who have been citizens of Texas prior to January 1, 1910, providing that all soldiers, sailors and their widows eligible under the provisions hereof shall be entitled to be placed upon the rolls and participate in the pension fund created thereunder; levying a tax of seven (0.07) cents on the one hundred ($100.00) dollars valuation of property in this State for the payment of such pension, providing that the Legislature may reduce the rate of pensions for such purposes, fixing a time for the election to be held on such amendment and making an appropriation to pay the expenses thereof.

Be it Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas:

Section 1. Section 51 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Texas shall be amended so as to hereafter read as follows:

Section 51. The Legislature shall have no power to make any grant of public money to any individual, association of individuals, municipal or other corporations, whatsoever, provided, however, the Legislature may grant aid to indigent or disabled Confederate soldiers and sailors, who came to Texas prior to January 1, 1910, and to their widows, in indigent circumstances and who have been bona fide residents of this State since January 1, 1910, and who were married to such soldiers and sailors prior to January 1, 1910, and to indigent and disabled soldiers who under the special laws of the State of Texas served in organizations for the protection of the frontier against Indian raiders or Mexican marauders and to indigent and disabled soldiers of the militia of the State of Texas who were in active service during the war between the States and to the widows of such soldiers who are in indigent circumstances and who were married to such soldiers prior to January 1, 1910, provided that the word "widow" in the preceding lines of this section shall not apply to women born since 1861, and all soldiers and sailors and widows of soldiers and sailors eligible under the above conditions shall be entitled to be placed upon the pension roll and participate in the distribution of the pension fund of this State under any existing law or laws hereafter passed by the Legislature, and also to grant aid to the establishment and maintenance of a home for said soldiers and sailors, their wives and widows and women who aided in the Confederacy under such regulations and limitations as may be provided by law, provided the Legislature may provide for such husband and wife to remain together in the home. There is hereby levied in addition to all other taxes heretofore permitted by the Constitution of Texas a State ad valorem tax on the property of seven (0.07) cents on the one hundred ($100.00) dollars valuation for the purpose of creating a special fund for the payment of pension for services in the Confederate army and navy, frontier organizations and the militia of the State of Texas, and for the widows of such soldiers serving in said armies, navies, organizations or militia; provided that the Legislature may reduce the tax rate hereinafter levied, and provided further that the provisions of this Section shall not be construed so as to prevent the grant of aid in cases of public calamity.

Sec. 2. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified voters of the State of Texas at an election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1924, at which all voters shall have printed or written on their ballots: "For amendment to 51 of Article 3 of the Constitution authorizing the Legislature to grant aid to Confederate soldiers, sailors and their widows who have been a resident of this State since January 1, 1910." and Against amendment to Section 51 of Article 3, of the Constitution authorizing the Legislature to grant aid to Confederate soldiers and their widows."

Sec. 3. The Governor is hereby directed to issue the proclamation for said election and have the same published as required by the Constitution and laws of this State, and the sum of five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated out of the general funds of this State not otherwise appropriated for expenses of publications and elections thereunder.

Approved, March 23, 1923.
S. L. STAPLES,
Secretary of State
