THE TRANSFORMATION OF TEXAS' SOUTH PLAINS

(By the Editor of "The Earth," the Santa Fe Railroad publication.)

The development under way in a dozen counties is most remarkable. Flag stations have grown into towns in a few months. Big and little pastures are being converted into farms as rapidly as plows can turn the sod. New homes dot the prairie as far as the eye can see. New industries, well financed, are coming in. In short, the transformation of the South Plains of Texas is extraordinary.

The South Plains of Texas have made marvelous progress in recent months. The fertile prairies of the big pastures, placed on the market the past year, are inviting. Settlers are pouring in by train, by truck, by automobiles and by covered wagons. They waste no time in locating and getting down to work.

This growth is in no sense a boom brought on by speculators. The cattlemen are very much in earnest to turn their pastures into prosperous communities. They offer their land to actual settlers at $20 to $35 an acre. Only a small cash payment is required. The balance is divided into ten, fifteen or twenty annual payments at six per cent interest.

The natural conditions are favorable. The land is rich and ready for the plow. The climate is comfortable and healthful winter and summer. The average altitude is 3,200 feet. Good water is plentiful at 30 to 125 feet, depending upon location.

The long growing season permits a great variety of standard crops to be raised. Great truck gardens producing fine vegetables, melons, peaches, sweet potatoes and berries, besides orchards of peaches, apples and plums give frequent evidence of advancement and prosperity. Wheat, Indian corn, kaffir, milo, sudan, alfalfa and cotton are raised.

The South Plains are long past the experimental stage. Though big pastures covered much territory, a large acreage of small holdings has been available for farm development. Since the Santa Fe railroad built into the South Plains in 1910 and later added important branch lines, farm development has developed steadily from year to year. The growth of farm communities naturally about extensive town development. Modern conveniences have been established; good schools have been organized. Highways have been improved. Important industries have located at many points. Telephone service, electric light and power, and rural mail delivery have been provided. In short, the South Plains in a few years become a well balanced agricultural district.

It is therefore not surprising that settlers rushed in when big pastures so favorably located, are placed on the market. Yet the immigration during the fall and winter surpassed all expectations.

Nearly 1000 emigrant cars moved into this territory in 1923, and nearly 500 cars during the first three months of 1924. It is estimated that the number of new settlers arriving by truck and covered wagon, from nearby sections, exceeded the number coming in by rail. The school facilities have been unable to care for the ever increasing school population. In 1923 many new large school buildings were constructed, often providing more room than seemed necessary. But this season it will be necessary to build more and larger buildings to meet the demand for facilities created by the rush of new settlers.

Lubbock had a population of 1,836 in 1910, and 386 school children. In 1920 the town had 4,051 people and 1,134 school children enrolled. The scholastic enrollment for 1924 is 2,684 children. Lubbock county had 3,624 children in 1910. This had increased to 11,096 in 1920 with an enrollment of 2,999 children. The scholastic enrollment for 1924 is 6,132. The population in other counties on the South Plains is proportionally as large. Dawson county reports that 1000 new families have located on farms in the county in a year. Lynn, Garza, Crosby, Floyd, Hale, Lamb, Bailey, Farmer, Cochran, Hockley, Terry and Gain counties all report marked increases in population, cultivated area and town development.

Lubbock, the metropolis and railroad center of the South Plains, is located on the Gulf-Pacific trunk line of the Santa Fe Railway, with a direct line by way of Plainview and Amarillo to the east and branch lines to Seagraves and Crosbyton. Another line extends south from Stanton

REVIVAL SERVICES TO BEGIN SUNDAY, JULY 20

Rev. W. H. Marler, Evangelist of the Christian Church will hold a two weeks revival at the tabernacle. All church members are earnestly and cordially invited to attend and especially those not in the church. A splendid singer is with Bro. Marler and a great revival is in store.

Come! Come!

TERRY COUNTY BOY STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

While at work in the field last Thursday afternoon, a rain and thunder storm came up, and a bolt of lightning struck the team and tongue of a double row go-devil Oliver Hooker was running, killing the two outside mules, and knocking him unconscious. It is thought that owing to the fact that Oliver was sitting on his coat he had carried to the field, saved his life. It looked rainy after dinner and he had carried the coat to the field with him. He finally came to enough to grope his way to the house, where medical attention was given as soon as a physician could be summoned. He is able to be about at present.

He is the son of Commissioner and Mrs. T. O. Hooker of the Johnson community. This calamity is added to the Hooker family on top of the loss of his barn recently, and earlier in the spring Com. Hooker had his arm broken from the kick of a mule.

John Gracey carried his 11 year old daughter to Lubbock Sanitarium last Sunday for an operation.

THROUGH LYNN AND DAWSON COUNTIES TO LAMESA.

Plainview, county seat of Hale county is a close competitor of Lubbock, and is located in a rich shallow water belt with extensive irrigation development.

Among the other towns are Lamesa, O'Donnell, Tahoka, Wilson, Post, Stanton, Southland, Crosbyton, Rails, Lorenzo, Idalton, Abernathy, Hale Center, Lockney, Wolfarth, Ropes, Meadow, Brownfield, Seagraves, Farwell, Muleshoe, Sudan, Amherst and Littlefield. These are located on the Santa Fe Railway and each is the active center of development of new land. A number of inland towns are coming to the front. Levelland is the county seat of Hockley county, Ligon and Morton are active towns in Cochran county, where the Slaughter lands are being developed.

GIN MAN ADVERTISING HIS WONDERFUL BURR MACHINE

Mr. M. H. McSpadden, manager of the new Harrison & McSpadden gin in this city, has issued circulars that read as follows:

Actual tests made with this wonderful burr machine shows an increase in lint production of 2 to 5 per cent. This is due principally to the saving in cotton resulting in not having to raise the breast of the gin to discharge hulls.

Will not crush snap cotton bolls into the fibre of the cotton and will raise the grade from 100 to 200 per cent. It eliminates all sticks and the burrs from your seed.

It has no equal in obtaining results. We invite you to come to our gin and inspect this wonderful machine thoroughly.

We have a good camp ground at your disposal at all times. Big shade trees and plenty of fuel and water. Make our gin headquarters when in Brownfield. The first gin west of the depot.

You are always welcome at the Harrison & McSpadden Gin.

NOTICE TO FARMERS

The Farm Labor Union of Terry County has opened county headquarters in the Flippin building just east of the First National Bank.

We are prepared to handle every product of the Farm from an egg to a bale of cotton. Bring your produce to us; highest cash price paid for everything you have to offer.

Inquire at office about our plans of selling and buying. County Grader-Salesman T. W. Moss is in charge. Mr. Moss has had several years of experience in his line and will be glad to explain our marketing plan to both union and non-union farmers.

R. C. Graves, Co. President.

J. B. Swan, son and daughter, of Cross Plains, were here last week on a visit to his brother, G. B. and family. Mr. Swan seemed to be well pleased with old Terry.

HAVING GREAT REVIVAL AT THE TABERNACLE

You may not agree with half Jim Morris says. You may get mad or miffed a some things he says. You may even say your mind about him and his revival methods on the streets—but nine chances to one you go back to the very next service for another ear full.

He may not intend to be funny—we don't think he does—but it would take a moon faced Egyptian mummy to withstand a grin or even a hearty chuckle when he mimic some of our moderns. It is not all laughter, however, for there is intermixed a world of pathos in his sermons that touch the human heart.

If there was not a conversion during the meeting—and there has been several already—his coming is good for the town, for he has the gaff to tell our warring factions just where they are going to head in at the final judgement if they don't stop their tommy-rot.

Mr. Cunningham is getting some real revival singing now out of his choir and he is also giving his audiences some pretty solos and other special music.

The meeting will run over Sunday, we understand. The crowds are taxing the capacity of the tabernacle.

MARRIAGES

C. George, popular Brownfield tailor or hied himself away to Post, Texas, July 4th, and married Miss Eula Everett of that city. She is now one of our citizens and welcome.

Joe Chisholm, one of our young grocerymen went over to Lamesa last Thursday and married Miss Anlice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Bruce. So you see Brownfield is depopulating two of its rival cities. Congratulations all around.

Jim Hatton and family returned last week from a visit to relatives in Oklahoma. They report a nice trip and a good time.

POULTRY INDUSTRY GIVEN BIG BOOST IN TERRY

How many citizens of the town are aware of the fact that an up-to-date poultry breeding farm is located just a mile south of town? But there is, and the proprietor, Mr. W. R. Farmer is a graduate of the A. & M. College and thoroughly understands his business.

The editor and family, accompanied by Pat Roberts and family, of Cochran, drove over there Sunday afternoon. The farm is situated about a mile south of town just across the draw. Mr. Farmer has already received two shipments of baby chick since he got established about two or three months ago from the A. & M. college. They are highest layer strain produced by the college. The first shipment contained some 1200 with a loss of only three or four, and they are now half grown. The second shipment contained about 1100 chickens which are only about a month old. All are single comb white Leghorns.

Mr. Farmer took great pleasure in showing us his brooder houses for the different sizes of chickens, how he kept them from crowding, and what and how he feeds. He took us to the house and showed us a thousand egg incubator, and explained that he had another 1000 and also a 2000 egg incubator coming. He also showed us several trays of sprouted oats that he permits the day olds to eat.

Mr. Farmer will, through the courtesy of the Brownfield Chamber of Commerce have a booth at the picnic this week, during which he will explain any question concerning poultry raising any farmer may want to know, as Mr. Farmer has not only been taught the theory of poultry raising, but has had no little experience on the practical side of the question.

Mr. Farmer said to the Herald man one day recently that the Brownfield Chamber of Commerce could do no better work than to see that every farm in Terry county have a flock of thorough bred, high laying strain of some standard breed of poultry.

GOOD SHOWERS VISIT MOST OF OLD TERRY

Last Thursday afternoon a good looking cloud came up from the west that gave us a precipitation of 43-100 of an inch rain according to the government gauge.

The western part of the county got the best end of the rain, as it did not extend very far east of Brownfield. Some places in western Terry got more than an inch. Good rains fell from here to Tatum, N. M. west.

TOKIO TALKINGS

By Reporter

Mrs. Snodgrass and daughter, Miss Nora Black, are visiting with friends here this week.

Mr. McCollough and family of Roby, are spending a few days with his son, Lee McCollough and family.

Messrs. Travis and Meeks, of Stanton, were here this week prospecting.

Mr. Gray Casey and brother, Guinn, left last week for the harvest fields and to visit their sister.

Mr. Lee Thompson and family, also Mr. Kidgway and family, from Plains, attended Sunday School here Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Patterson and family, of Plains attended church here Sunday and Sunday night.

We had a good shower over here last Wednesday afternoon which was a great benefit to the crops. Crops do look fine in this part of the country.

Rev. Key, of Abilene, closed his meeting last night at this place, and he and family, accompanied by J. A. Parks and family left Monday morning for a short stay at Roswell.

William Pippin spent the week end with home folks.

Miss Ethel Cargill visited with her friends near Willow Wells last week.

Hugh Snodgrass, prominent stock-farmer from Tokio, was in town one day last week and reported that his crop was coming fine.

William Neeb and family, also his son, Doyle Neeb and family, from Cross Plains, passed through here last week on their way to New Mexico, visiting and prospecting. They stopped over here a few days to visit their old friends, G. B. Swan and his family.

Several of our people attended the services in progress at Tokio, Sunday

EDITOR AND OTHERS SEE FINE CROPS NEAR TOKIO

With the rush of other matters, especially that of getting advertising matter for the Trade Trip west, the Herald neglected last week to say anything about seeing many good crops in west Terry on the Fourth of July.

Early that morning Tom May, who has more than 1000 acres in cultivation on the first tier of counties over in old Yoakum county asked us to go with him, and the invitation was gladly accepted. When he drove his big Hudson 6 around, we found that besides himself, we would have to put up with Daddy C. L. Wines, Will All Bell, cashier of the First National Bank, and Mr. H. W. McSpadden and two sons, proprietors of the big new McSpadden gin a his place. Also two automatic shotguns were part of the paraphernalia, and by which means many jack rabbits bit the dust on that memorable day.

We begin to arrive at the first May farms somewhere near the noon hour and found large fields of growing grain and cotton. Tom informed us that they had 960 acres in cotton on his farms, and with only a few exceptions, a good stand was had and the plant was up something like half knee high at that time and growing very fast. It was also putting on forms at a rapid rate, and we shall not be a bit surprised that more than 300 bales of cotton comes off these farms. They were not suffering for moisture there even at that time and have had good rains since then. We also found that Tom was fortunate in that he secured some real farmers to cultivate his farms, and as a consequence, they were unusually clean and well cultivated for this country.

Returning, we came back by way of the old south Plains road, and thru the hail belt of a month or two ago, and found the farmers in that strip were practically done planting and their young crops were up to good stands in most place and growing fast, though some in the sandier lands had been blown out again, and are having to replant in late feed.

We covered a big territory, and while the settlements are thick now compared to a few years ago, they are still scattering compared to the east, but they have each lots of land in cultivation, and it is going to make a big showing when it begins to move to this market this fall.

JIM CAVOLT SENTENCED 10 YEARS IN REFORMATORY

Jim Cavolt, charged with the slaying of his step father, J. E. Jenkins, by shooting him to death with a six-shooter at the family home west of Seminole, Monday June, 30th, was given a sentence of ten years in the reformatory at Gatesville, Texas, by County Judge T. O. Stark in juvenile court held Monday morning at the Courthouse in Seminole. Jim's brother, Bee, his accomplice in the murder, was given a suspended sentence by Judge Stark and allowed to return home with his mother who was present at the trial of her boys.

Jim Cavolt, who is only 11 years of age, if his time is served in full, will have to remain in the reformatory until he is 21 years of age. Sheriff Britton left with his youthful prisoner Tuesday morning for Gatesville.

The body of Jenkins was shipped east for burial.—Seminole Sentinel.

GOOD RAINS VISIT THE SEAGRAVES COUNTRY

Good rains have fallen again and crop prospects are brightening every day. A considerable lot of planting is going on yet, and will be for several days to come, and this will seem strange to folks in the east where everything is so much earlier than up here. But we have this advantage over the east; our crops grow so much faster than down there that it doesn't take near the time to mature, and we have field and garden products when in the east they are all gone.

Mr. C. J. Bonham was in town Friday from the Willow Wells community. He states that his crop is in good condition and that he got a good rain Thursday afternoon.—Seagrave Progress.

Noah Bell, one of the old timers of the Needmore community met us on the street Saturday and pressed us to take another dollar on subscription. After a "short" argument we took the dollar and promised to give him credit for another year.

ATMOSPHERE

You know the pleasant invigorating effect of a cooling atmosphere on a hot summers day. You also know the welcomness of the atmosphere around the family fire side as a refuge from the Winters chilling winds.

There are atmospheric conditions in business as well as weather and we want you to know that the atmosphere of our bank is: That we cordially appreciate the presence of your account; welcome your visits—always glad to see you; and are grateful for your friendship and good will.

Introduce your friends and acquaintances to our bank; one that does business in a friendly and helpful way.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Spear recently returned from a trip to Hot Springs, N. M. Mr. Spear reports that the hot waters benefited him greatly, but it was so hot there he could not stay as long as he wanted to.

Pat Roberts came in Sunday from Coahoma after his family who had been visiting his aunt, Mrs. Stricklin. They left Sunday afternoon via Seagraves where they visited his brother, Elmer and wife before returning to their home at Coahoma.

S. W. Ragland, of Wichita Falls, general manager of the C. D. Shamburger Lumber Co. is in our city this week looking after the business of their company at this place. We understand that Mr. Ragland is well pleased with their business here and the outlook for future business.

A. V. Taylor, one of Tokio's old timers, was shopping and mingling with the crowds here Saturday.

There was a ball game at Wellman last Saturday between Wellman and Loop, which resulted in favor by a score of 7 to 5. Gomez then played the winner and won the game by a score of 6 to 8.

E. M. Wade, of Tokio, had business in the county seat Tuesday.

I. M. Smith and family left last week for Deerledge, Tenn., where they will visit their relatives and old friends in their old home state. I. M. said it had been about 14 years since they were back there.

John Day, of Tokio, was in town Tuesday and dropped in the Herald office for a short chat. John was in the hail belt, but says he now has a nice young crop.

W. B. Snodgrass, prominent ranchman of Fulvanna, but formerly of this county, was here on business one day last week.

Men You May Marry

By E. R. PEYSER

Has a man like this proposed to you?

Symptoms: Mysterious. You never know whether he will show up for a date or not. You never feel certain of him. You can't make out just what his business is. When you do he keeps mum about it. He is only shy when he is talked of—quite flippant with others. He walks stiffly in one place—has sort of a stary eye, seems to be looking in at Asia. He likes you he says—cause you don't bother him with 1,001 foolish questions.

IN FACT

He is the question mark of your life's sentence.

An Irish Square.

It was delicious just to sit there and see the things that went on, the personal life of the place, all its tranquil molecular movement, not hidden but only softeningly swathed in the light mist of that dull day. A tiny ass, drawing a tiny cart laden with peat, pensively picked its way, a wavy, enigmatic way, along the road bounding one side of the square, its frail shanks and the delicate feet moving daintily; near its head, but not intruding word or blow on the thoughts of the ass, an aged man mendered positively, too. . . . Presently children surged out of the schoolhouse, plunging with shrill cries of joy into the leafless outer air as into a bath, and this first ecstasy being spent, began to play soldiers and marched up and down, banging tin cans with extreme gravity. —C. E. McClure, in "They Paraded."

Have You An OIL COMPANYS PUMP

Below is a copy of a letter written by the Attorney General of Texas in regard to oil pumps that have been put out by some of the Oil Companies.

"Beg to say that this department has heretofore held that the leasing of gasoline pumps coupled with a contract to use the same exclusively for the handling and selling gasoline produced by the owner of the pump, is a violation of the Anti-Trust Law of Texas, and a suit is pending to test this law in the state of Texas now. And the Penalties provided by the law of Texas against those violating the Anti-Trust law apply to all parties, both the man who is using the pumps and the parties who furnished them and both are liable to a penalty of from $50.00 to $1500.00 for each and every day you use same or that the contract is in force, and as for the criminal offence the Attorney General refers you to your County or District Attorney as he has jurisdiction in the enforcement of the Criminal Law.

American Indian May

Have Come From Egypt

It is probable, if not certain, that the American Indian did not come from Egypt but that in centuries following the glacial era, or even later, tribes started to migrate. It is also very possible that at that particular time Asia and America were not separated by a body of water in the northern part—that is, between Kamchatka and Alaska by the Behring sea. Then why would it be improbable that a few tribes started on their migration in a northeast direction as later migrations started in a northwest direction?

Furthermore, one of the oldest symbols of the world can be found from Siberia to Ceylon and from Alaska to the Tierra del Fuego, if not in its entirety, always in a recognizable form. I am speaking of the swastika and we know that the swastika is Asian in its origin, says Dr. P. Anther in Adventure Magazine.

The features of the Indians are not Mongolian but Asian. There is no doubt there and in the eyes of some you find the same characteristics and also the cheekbones in both are prominent, but not like the Mongolian race.

Learn From Lazy Man

Managers of a department store were asked to pick out their best salesman, writes Fred Kelly in the Nation's Business, that others might study his methods. They looked up their records and picked a man, but an investigation of his methods quickly showed that he was only a mediocre salesman. True, he had sold more than anybody else in his department, but this was because he had the heavy expense of a sick wife and consequently unusual incentive to work hard for more commissions. While he sold a lot of goods, he did it with wasteful expenditure of his energies. Several other salesmen sold almost as much as he did with only about half the effort. As Frank Gilbreth says, "The ideal man to learn methods from is one so lazy that he works barely hard enough to avoid being fired."

There Is Much to See

Often as I work I stop to see, really see, see everything, or to listen, and it is the wonder of wonders how much there is in this old world which we never dreamed of, how many beautiful, curious, interesting sights and sounds there are which ordinarily make no impression upon our clogged, overfed and preoccupied minds. I have also had the feeling—it may be unscientific, but it is comforting—that any man might see like an Indian or smell like a hound if he gave to the senses the brains which the Indian and the hound apply to them. And I'm pretty sure about the Indian: It is marvelous what a man can do when he puts his entire mind upon one faculty and bears down hard.—David Grayson.

The Unwise Fisherman.

The fisherman was clever. Nine bass he caught that day, and five of them were from the nest, caught with the clever spring hook. One of the five was guarding 75,000 eggs, and the other four a total of 37,000. All told, he took the protection from 112,000 possible bass: 112,000 possible stock for the waters of the future—impoverishing the lake for the fisherman who should come after him—making obedience to law a handicap—contributing to the death of a species at its source.—From "Old Black Bass," by Albert Benjamin Cunningham.

An outsider perusing the Herald would naturally conclude that there was only two grocery stores in this city, whereas there are eight or nine. Only two of the nine are represented in the columns of the Herald, and these two have not only stayed with the Herald for several years through drouth and prosperity, sunshine and rain, but they have always stayed with and supplied their customers the same way. We ask you to consider these two grocery men.

We have been asked to write an editorial on boys who start hunting and begin firing their guns in the city limits, thus endangering people. This is probably small boys who take no thought that they are endangering the lives of anyone, but it should be stopped just the same. Our advice is that the parties being endangered report the matter to city officers if it occurs within the city limits and to the sheriff's office if without.

One of the greatest industries for the real business farmer is the egg, poultry and cream business. We are not a farmer, but it does not take a tiller of the soil to point out the farmers who have a surplus bank account in the fall. It is the man who pays or nearly does so, their way during the growing season with eggs, cream, butter and poultry that has a cash balance all the time. Give us more self boarding farmers and the old world will rock along as a lively clip.

To our notion John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan are the two men to whip harmony into the Democratic ranks from the split that came over the Klan issue in New York. Neither Davis or Bryan have, that we are aware of, taken any decided stand either way over the Klan issue, and both are dry enough to suit the driest, and as for the wets, they can never expect anything like two-thirds of the states to go back on the 18th Amendment, and can therefore be suited with Davis and Bryan. They also ought to suit the conservatives and the moderate radicals. Let's go.

The school board has had a problem of keeping windows in the building through the summer. Recently, some young boys have been caught actually breaking windows, seemingly just for the "fun" of it, and the trustees have employed a detective living close to the building to keep watch on the building, and this will include nights, so that spooning parties had better keep watch also, and move their business to a new location if they don't want to be hauled into police court some morning. It costs a lot of the people's money to keep a school building in shape and to keep a good school going, and they are responsible to the people for the condition of the building and the cost of maintenance, and they feel that an appeal to the public spirit and pride of most boys and girls will suffice, but there are always some who require sterner measures.

The Jones Dry Goods Co. had a large quantity of page circulars printed and are running same in the advertising columns of the Herald this week announcing a big sale. Be sure and attend this sale and secure some real bargains.

E. L. Klet, law partner with Judge Geo. R. Bean, was in our city one day this week in the interest of Judge Bean's race for District Judge.

Do you know for certain that the Title is clear on the property you are planning to leave your wife or children for their support if you should be taken away?

Many a time clouds on the title to a piece of property do not appear until the widow or the orphan tries to turn it into money. Then even if the property is finally sold, a big chunk comes off the price to offset the cloud. You know that—it is as sure as taxes. If you have never had an abstract of title made on your property by specialists, it will be worth the price in PEACE OF MIND to you to know that your loved ones will surely inherit a clear title to the property you intend them to have.

We do not do abstracting "on the side" as one small feature of a miscellaneous business. We specialize. Your abstract, if made here, will be made by experts, working with complete, accurate, systematized records.

We will explain in detail if you will call.

Partridge Swallows in Mongolia.

Almost everywhere in Mongolia we met with either single pairs or whole flocks of the grayish-yellow partridges or "partridge swallows" so called because they have long, sharp tails resembling those of swallows, and because their flight, is a close copy of that of the swallow, says Ferdinand Ossendowsky in his absorbing book "Beasts, Men and Gods." These birds are very tame or fearless, allowing men to come within 10 or 15 paces of them; but when they do break, they go high and fly long distances without lighting, whistling all the time quite like swallows. Their general markings are light gray and yellow, though the males have pretty chocolate spots on the backs and wings, while their legs and feet are heavily feathered.

Empire Furniture Period.

Sideboards were among the best pieces of furniture, 18th in design and structure, produced during the American Empire period. High chests of drawers having gone out of fashion, large wardrobes with doors extending from top to bottom became the vogue. Mirrors also were used more freely for home decoration, the frames being made in mahogany and gilt. The clocks were the mahogany case mantel or shelf clock, the lower part of the door being embellished with painting, scenes, etc. From this period also date the Willard banjo clocks and the lyre-shaped clocks. American writers record that all of the hanging clocks and all of the shelf clocks of American manufacture belong to the Empire period.

Readers Appreciate Poetry.

Not only are there a great many writers of real poetry, and still more writers of near poetry, but there must be an enormous number of readers who do not turn over the page hastily when they see a poem in a magazine. There is no way of getting a census of these poetry readers; but every one knows the axiom of editorial offices: Give the public what it wants. Magazine editors are printing more poetry and better poetry than they did a few decades back. Some magazines even feature poems instead of sticking them carelessly in odd corners at the end of stories and among advertisements. Hence the logical deduction that verse is now a live and popular subject.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Fish's Smelling Equipment.

Fishes possess a smelling faculty, according to a writer in Aquatic Life. An examination of the nostrils of a fish reveals the fact that they are not connected with the air tube system, as in most animals, he says, but lead into blind pockets, lined with delicate membranes well supplied with nerves. In fishes, water is not drawn through the nostrils, but merely into the small pockets, and these may be emptied and refilled. The quantity of water brought into contact with the nerves of smell must be comparatively small. In some few fishes, as in the globe fishes and puffers, for example, there is no nasal pocket, the nerves being directed into external processes.

Valuables.

After making her will, Mrs. Isabella Fowler put it "safely" away in a bureau drawer in her home at Ossining, N. Y. After twenty years, she dies. Her husband finds that rats had chewed the will into tatters. Luckily the probate clerk is able to piece it together so the estate can be administered as Mrs. Fowler desired. For all your valuables you should have three kinds of protection—against rats, fire and theft. A safe deposit box in the bank is best. If you insist on keeping them at home, use a tin can and line it with asbestos. Most of us are too careless with our valuables, unless they're in cash. Where are your insurance policies, will, etc.?

North River Is the Lower Hudson.

The application of the name North river to the lower part of the Hudson dates back to the time of the early Dutch settlements in New Jersey. North river is the historic name of the lower course of the river which flows between Manhattan and the Jerseys. It was north of the New Jersey settlements, just as the Delaware was south, and the two rivers were known to the Dutch colonists as the North river and the South river, respectively. The persistence of the alternate names of the river often is mentioned as one of the local idiosyncrasies of New York city.

"Confidence Man."

The phrase "confidence man," meaning one who by plausible stories and falsehoods or by assurance obtains the confidence of kind-hearted persons, is said to have originated in this way: Several years ago, a man in New York, well dressed and of genteel manners, went about saying, in a winning manner, to almost every gentleman he met, "Have you confidence enough in me, an entire stranger, to lend me $5 for an hour or two? He succeeded in obtaining a good deal of money, and came to be known in the courts and elsewhere as "the confidence man."

St. Pierre and Miquelon Islands.

The islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon are mostly barren rock, unsuitable for agriculture. They are of great importance as the center of the French cod fisheries.

Submarine Usefulness.

Present trade routes could be greatly shortened by submarine cargo carriers going by way of the Arctic ocean under the field of ice which seldom exceeds 14 feet in thickness.

HARRIS HAPPENINGS

By Sand Bar.

Misses Nancy and Elizabeth Dumas, from Brownfield, spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mrs. B. Clark and family.

Mrs. Millard Ellington and children and Mrs. George Alexander, spent Friday night and Saturday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Harris, of Brownfield.

From a recent communication from the Tandy family, who are spending the summer at Lyford, we learn that Terry county beats the valley too bad to talk about.

Miss Thelma Patterson from Seagraves, visited her cousins, Misses Winnie and Vivian Clark Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Murphey, and daughters, Jaunita and Dorothy, were dinner guests with F. M. Ellington and family, Sunday.

This is a wonderful age in which we are living, but the greatest wonder is yet to be achieved. We know how to fly; we draw speech and music out of the air; we talk, ride, sail or fly around. We are constantly on the verge of something new and we usually get what we go after, so let's go after the art and knowledge of living in peace and contentment by ourselves, and with our fellow beings. This should be the great wonder of man's achievement.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fitzgerald and sons, Raymond, Don and Maynard, and daughters, Lila B. and Omega, were Brownfield visitors, Saturday.

Joe Cheek is helping S. T. Murphey chop out his cotton this week. They get from one end of the field to the other at such a rate that one would think there were four men hoeing cotton instead of two.

Charley Jones and family have returned from Jones county where they have been spending a few days with friends and relatives. They report everything in fair condition down that way.

Everybody enjoyed the good rain which fell Thursday afternoon. Some folks didn't start for the house in time so had to absorb some of it.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Murphy and son, Dewey Jr., and little daughter, Geneva, spent Wednesday night with Sam Murphy and family.

Mr. Cheek and children are still in Jones county. The children are waiting to come back to Terry to get a cool drink of water, so they are all coming home next week.

Fox Hunter Puzzled

Over Scent Mystery

No one should write of hunting without alluding to the important question of scent. To ignore the subject is gravely unconventional, if not worse. That at least is the excuse which Miss E. E. Souzerville offers for quoting this incomprehensible incident in her memories of Irish life:

We were hunting in the hills. It was a bright and sunny day with a light and vanishing touch of frost. The hounds were drawing along the southern side of a high hill covered with short rough grass and heather, with furze brakes here and there among the rocks. We had not "found," but the hounds were busy "feathering" and were obviously sure that a fox had been about. Then one of the field rode up to me and said with the calm that so often masks the fullness of pride:

"There's your fox, master! He pointed with his whip to something that looked like a rusty can lying under a furze bush.

A fox? Not as I first feared dead, but very much alive, I cracked my whip at him, and he slid away over the hill, crossing after half a dozen yards or so a wide blackened patch where furze had been burnt. In an instant we brought the hounds to the place where he had lain. They made no outcry. They were interested, but no more than that. We took them on and crossed the burnt patch, and suddenly on its farther verge they all put their heads down and went away with a shout, and we had a brilliant forty minutes, till the fox beat us on the edge of the sea and got safe into a slit in the cliffs.

Why should the head of the fox have been less odoriferous than his light feet, and why did the hounds not acknowledge him until he had crossed the burnt bit of hill? These things are a mystery.—Youth's Companion.

Children's Dog Is Located by Radio

New York.—Lillian Leary, eight, and her brother, John, nine, are happy again because Buster, the curly-haired French poodle, is home with them again. A few days ago they tramped four miles looking for him, then induced the Jamaica police to send an alarm by radio. Thomas Daniel, ten, telephoned the children's mother he had the dog.

Lillian, with her penny bank containing $5.20, and John, with two bars of chocolate, accompanied their mother to the Daniel home. Lillian thrust her bank into the finder's hand, and John handed him the chocolate.

Stream Has a "Kick"

Each year millions of dollars' worth of salmon and trout are to be saved in the state of Washington by the installation in the irrigation ditches of simple electric signs.

The fruitful Yakima valley and other irrigated sections of Washington that get their life-saving waters from tributaries of the mighty Columbia, or directly from that great river, have heretofore raised products of the soil with an accompanying sacrifice of at least $2,000,000 worth of food-fish annually. This has been a tremendous sum to set against the value of the harvests of the fields, but while this wholesale destruction of salmon and trout seemed nothing short of criminal waste, there appeared no practicable way of stopping it.—St. Nicholas Magazine.

Sinister Mismomer

There is a certain little Russian restaurant in Paris, where there are so many Russian restaurants these days. It is altogether charming, the cooking is excellent and the wines and the music are first-rate. A violinist and several fellow conspirators perform like virtuosi. There is, in fact, but one discordant note, and that is in a placard tacked up near the orchestra, which reads: "Venez voir les celebres executeurs." (Come in and see the famous executioners.) "Executioners" in a Russian restaurant! The chills go up one's spine.—From Le Figaro, Paris (Translated for the Kansas City Star).

When Truth Hurts

One of the annual crop of car owners that disdains to drive the same model car for two seasons, advertised his auto for sale in an outside paper. Soon after the advertisement appeared, his phone was kept busy with such queries as "Do you think your car would hold out as far as Chicago?" "What do you think of its chances of getting as far as Columbus?" etc. In bewilderment, he looked up the advertisement and discovered that his own eulogy of the bargain had been faithfully copied, including the statement: "This one won't last long."—Indianapolis News.

MAGIC TRICKS MADE EASY BY WHITTLES

Clever Entertainer With Punch and Judy.

Philadelphia.—Have you ever wondered who makes the Punch and Judy figures you see on the stage? Did you ever stop to think of the man who makes the magician's trick box, his false bottom trunk, or the plug hat out of which he pulls a plant in full bloom? If you took the trouble to investigate these things you would find that the trail of many a magician's success leads to the home of Eli Hackman on West Queen Lane, Philadelphia. If you should pursue the matter still further, you would get the story of this man who has developed his hobby into a profitable business.

Mr. Hackman's vocation is prosaic enough. He is the building superintendent of the Spring Garden station and office building of the Reading system. When he is not railroading, however, he is pursuing his avocation of making Punch and Judy figures and other magician's devices. Though his avocation is paying him handsome dividends, he refuses to consider it a business, and always refers to it as his hobby.

Spent Hours Whittling.

Like most other boys, Mr. Hackman spent many hours whittling in his childhood home in Carlisle, Pa. Especially favorable opportunities were presented for the development of this bent, as his father was a wagonmaker and his son had access to his woodworking plant. Before he ventured to work with a jackknife and a piece of wood, Mr. Hackman entered the field of manufacturing Punch and Judy figures by experimenting on his mother's sewing machine and stuffing his rag creations with sawdust. Then he tried carving the figures out of wood. He worked at it only spasmodically, however, and up to the time when he moved his family to Philadelphia in 1900 he had only a few figures on hand.

About this time the attention of several ventriloquists was attracted to his work. Having had great difficulty in obtaining satisfactory figures from any other source, they asked the erstwhile boy whittler to make several sets for them. He undertook the work, delivering the figures, and ever since has been turning them out for ventriloquists in all parts of the country. One thing led to another and soon he had added a long list of magicians' devices to his output.

Just about everything used in the way of stage deception is included in Mr. Hackman's manufacturing repertoire. Punch and Judy figures play a prominent part. He cuts them out of wood—eyes, ears, nose and mouth and all. Then he walks across his second-story backroom to a cabinet filled with every color and shade of paint. Here they get their resplendent colors and are then turned over to Mr. Hackman's silent partner—Mrs. Hackman—who fits them out with clothing.

Entertains Kids.

While Mr. Hackman has always made a specialty of Punch and Judy figures, you will find in his collection a devil with moving jaw and flashing and smoke-emitting eyes, an anarchist with flaming red hair, a hangman, an assortment of colored babies, singing birds, a man-eating whale and a panting, wheezing alligator. In a cabinet on the other side of this second-story backroom is a collection of plug hats, dice, false-bottom boxes, magical flowers and trick watches.

He presents no mean figure on the stage with his floating voice and his box of tricks. He can make a daffodil grow in a man's vestpocket, pull live rabbits out of his ear and make his watch sing like an oriole. He can pick money out of the air, play a banjo where there is none and pull the American flag from under his thumb.

Most of Mr. Hackman's exhibitions—and he has given several hundred of them—have been for the benefit of children living in his neighborhood. Every week he announces the day and time of a party and the children from all the nearby streets flock to see the show.

London.—Because of lack of accommodations during what is known as the social season here, a party of 300 Gothenburg students have chartered a ship in which they will live while visiting England. The vessel is to anchor in the Thames.

The Poison of Idleness.

We are like wells. When the life is full the dregs of shallow selfishness at the bottom do not often rise to consciousness. But when we are empty our selfishness is necessarily exposed. The full life has so many interests that it does not busy itself with its own petty ills, defects and tormenting self-consciousness. We think of ourselves when we have no more healthful range of thought, who acquire the habit of centering their interest upon watching their own pulse. Self-consciousness cannot extinguish itself at will; it must hear some call from outside. That is why the daily work, at which we often rebel, is one of life's greatest blessings. And the jostling humanity around us, with its insistent calls on every side, is the gift God sends us instead of the idle peace we so often crave.

New Forest Is Old.
The adjective "new" in English sometimes describes something very old. For instance New College in Oxford has some nine centuries to its credit and New Forest was the wilderness William the Conqueror created by destroying a lot of Saxon homes, to have a place to hunt in, the old histories told us—really as a far-sighted act of statesmanship to provide national reserves of timber for naval shipbuilding. Its 1,600 acres of forest bog and common have remained much as they were when William Rufus the Conqueror's son, was killed while hunting there. Its leafy fastnesses and turreted ridges baffle the modern motorcar, and can only be explored as our forefathers explored them, on foot or on horseback. Also its rights and customs, as old as the forest, exist today untouched, and in the dusty modernity of a solicitor's office a cottager may still claim his inherited right to turn out his pigs or have his firewood supplied free by the crown.

Symbols.

At some time, perhaps many times in his life, every man is likely to meet with a thing in art or nature or human life or books which astonishes and gives him a profound satisfaction, not so much because it is rich or beautiful or strange, as because it is a symbol of a thing which, without the symbol, he could never grasp and enjoy. The German archers making a target of Leonardo's sculptured horse and horseman at Milan; the glory of purple that has flown from a painted church window and settled upon a peasant's shoulders for an hour; the eloquence . . . of one bare branch that juts out from a proud green wood into the little midnight stars and makes them smaller with its splendid pong . . . the world is one flame of these blossoms, could we but see. Music has many of them in her gift.—Edward Thomas.

The Final Economy.

Burrows was one of those weak individuals who had bought a fiver and then spent dollars equipping it with every gas-saving and engine efficiency device he could lay his hands on. If the savings to which these devices laid claim could have totaled the figures would have declared that the blooming engine should have manufactured gasoline and tires instead of using them. Burrows, however, is cured now. Last week he read an alluring letter from a stranger who guaranteed to show him how his gasoline bill could be cut in two. He sent his $2 in the first mail and could scarcely await the reply. When it came he tore open the envelope with trembling fingers, and read: "Walk half the time!"—Kansas City Star.

The Old Habit.

It was recently demonstrated in a civil service examination of a number of prospective game deputies that no matter how old we become, there is little doubt as to the possibility of our childhood characteristics coming to the fore. In the examination the class was working very industriously at their papers. One member who was many years past his childhood and who was about to enter his second childhood, raised his hand high above his head and shook it vigorously. When the examiner asked him what was the matter, he gave this reply: "Teacher, Pete here is copyin' off my examination paper."—Columbus, De patch.

Clocks 3,000 Years Old.

Costs of two ancient Egyptian water-clocks have been presented by the Egyptian government to the Science museum, South Kensington, England. One of the clocks comes from Karnak and dates from the reign of Amenhotep II, 1,400 years before Christ. The other is from Edfu, in the Ptolemaic epoch. From an examination of these clocks and the scale of measurements recorded on each it appears that the "hour" of that remote period was a variable length, being one-twelfth of the length of the day or night of the particular time of the year. A study of these ancient timepieces is considered important in the comparison of astronomical observation.

Sponge Is Animal.

The sponge belongs to the animal kingdom, though it is an animal very low in the scale of life. The sponge of commerce is the horny skeleton produced by this animal, from which the flesh has all been removed. The name Porifera is given to this group of animals on account of their porous structure, by which food and water are taken into their digestive organs. Except for a few fresh water species, all sponges live in the sea, chiefly in tropical and subtropical regions. Florida is the only state of the Union that has sponge fisheries.

What Are We Coming To?

The other day in this city an operative tenor offered as evidence of his affection for his wife the plea that he always washed the dishes, says the New York Evening Post. Such stories as these offer a fine opportunity for novelists to portray the wifely sturdy oaks and the husbandly clinging vines. The tired business woman coming home, finding the easy chair near the fire, her slippers warm, while the husband sits on the arm of her chair, lights her cigarette and prattles about his household cares—a very pretty picture. And the husband's need no mind, so long as their wives don't beat them.

No Car Like It!

42 horsepower! 50 miles and more an hour—hour after hour—without over-heating—without loss of power—without carbon cleaning!

And at the end of a long sustained high speed, your motor will be cooler, will need less water than any similar sized poppet-valve engine.

This engine's power curve keeps climbing up while the power of a poppet-valve car is dropping off. Furthermore, the Willys-Knight is entirely free from those engine repairs which make up 50% of the upkeep cost of practically all poppet-valve cars. It has no cams—no springs—to get out of order. A car you can keep season after season. Take a ride today.

Nicotine.

Nicotine is an alkaloid. It belongs to that important class of organic substances which are particularly characterized by their extremely potent physiological properties, observes the Scientific American. They are all very deadly poisons and generally of great utility to the physician. Such substances as morphine, cocaine, heroin, strychnine, caffeine are alkaloids. Nicotine can, accordingly, exert a powerful action on the human system; in fact, it is a deadly poison, almost as poisonous as prussic acid gas. Nicotine itself is used on rare occasions in medicine as an antidote in strychnine poisoning and in the treatment of tetanus. Nicotine contains the element nitrogen. Accordingly tobacco that is grown in a very rich soil which has been fertilized with a strong nitrogenous manure will be high in nicotine.

Woods Differ Materially.

Woods are chosen not only because of their special fitness for a certain piece of furniture but equally as much because of their accessibility. There were long periods of cabinet making when mahogany was out of vogue, simply because market conditions made it almost impossible to obtain it. Just so, today, mahogany is an accepted highbrow of the furniture world because the makers can rather readily obtain it. Oak, walnut and maple are considered more if fact than the chestnut, cedar, cypress and pine of long ago centuries, because they are more adaptable to the cabinet maker's hand. Then, too, beauty of grain, wearing qualities and necessary hardness or softness of the wood determine its use for different types of furniture.

They Learn by Reading.

It is true that there is no better way to learn anything unusually well than by teaching what we know of a subject to others. In distant Liberia, a republic in western Africa, the schools have adopted the same plan. Just as soon as any student has mastered the rudiments of one class he begins imparting his knowledge to others. In fact, he is taught mostly by those who have just finished the class above him. Although this system has its disadvantages, according to American standards, it certainly helps the young teachers themselves, as regulation instructors are not easily obtained. So eager are the children for instruction that many of them walk eight miles to school through swamps and over poor roads.

Boring Hole in Glass.

It has been said that one way to bore a hole in a piece of glass was to build up a circular dam of damp clay or sand and pour molten lead into the "center." Now it has been learned that this method, while formerly in use for some types of glass boring, is not practical with present-day glass and when the holes are made in this way they are uneven and unsatisfactory. Glass experts say that the present approved method for small holes is to grind a three-cornered file down to a sharp point and use it as a drill after first pouring turpentine on the glass at the point where it is to be drilled.

Another Scheme.

A feminine voice was heard from the steps of a crowded car: "Oh, get n, dear, some one will give you a seat." The next moment two young women entered. The men in the car were on their mettle. They read papers sternly. Those who had no powers closed their eyes and pretended to be dumb. The too-certain women glanced down the car in vain. The car went on for half a mile, and then a man alighted. "There's a seat for one," said the conductor. "Don't take it, fear," said one of the young women, "some man will want it." In the moment of defeat she triumphed.

Lips Reveal Much.

Shapeless lips show a shapeless character, one which cannot easily decide things and has really no cheerfulness or happiness. Pointing lips show some selfishness and selfishness, and are only pretty in a very young child. Lips which remain open always show a selfish, rather vacant and inclined to be "hatty" nature, not very reliable and fond of comfort, ease and gaiety. A fat upper lip shows a want of refinement and a long, one shows obstinacy; a short curled upper lip is a good sign, showing a nice nature, genial, charming and refined.

Gustatory Immortality.

Tradition has it that Sally Lunn, who has been immortalized in the cake that bears her name, was a young lady who in the early Seventeenth century sold cakes on the streets of Bath. But who was that Major Grey whose name is attached to a certain brand of chutney? And which of the celebrated Charlottes gave her name to the Charlotte russe? Who were Tom and Jerry, and is it true that Tom Collins was a Boston bartender who moved to Montreal and there achieved fame by serving the concoction that bears his name?—New York Tribune.

"Tenrec" Is Odd Animal.

There are several living specimens in zoos, of the "tenrec," the hedgehog of Madagascar. It is said that stuffed specimens in museums give no adequate idea of these very curious creatures. Their resemblance to hedgehogs rests upon their possession of a spiny covering. The shape of their bodies resembles that of an inflated globe fish. They are insectivorous, and are declared to be restricted to the island of Madagascar. The specimens seen in this country are remarkable for their habit of yawning.

About the Chimpanzee.

Chimpanzee is the native Guinea name for a large ape of equatorial Africa, belonging to the anthropoid or man-like monkeys, and to the same family as the gorilla. It is sometimes five feet tall when full grown, with black hair, but is not so large and powerful as the gorilla. Like the orangutan, it has the hair on its forearm turned backward, but differs from it in having an additional dorsal vertebra and a thirteenth pair of ribs. It walks erect better than most of the apes. The chimpanzee feeds on fruits, often robs the gardens of the natives, and constructs a sort of nest among the branches. In menageries, where it is common, it shows much intelligence and docility.

How Sea Horses converse.

An observer named Kent, wishing to make some colored sketches of sea horses, placed two of them in separate glass dishes a few yards apart. Shortly afterward he was surprised to hear a sharp little snapping or chirping noise coming at brief, regular intervals from one of the dishes. Almost immediately these signals were answered from the other fish. On examination Kent found that the little sea horses were signaling or talking to each other in this manner. The noise was found to be made by the muscular closing and sudden expansion of the lower jaw. These sounds are produced by both sexes and they are both more frequent and louder than usual in the spawning season.—Exchange.

Pig Has Been Slandered.

The pig is a much-slandered animal. "As greedy as a pig" is a stock quotation. But a pig is not as greedy as a cat, which has been known to consume two and one-half times its own weight in one day. "As stupid as a pig" is another slander. The intelligence of the pig is only slightly inferior to that of the ape, and the ape's intelligence is next to that of a man. "As lazy as a pig" is to ignore the fact that in some countries the pig is trained to do the heaviest kind of work and he does it willingly and well. "As lazy as a cat" would be more proper, for the cat is really a lazy animal.

of Terry County, to be holden at the Court House thereof, in Brownfield, on the fourth Monday in July, A.D. 1924, the same being the 23th day of July, A.D. 1924, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1924 in a suit numbered on the docket of said Court No. 764, wherein C. C. Rose is Plaintiff and Emma Rose is Defendant, and said petition alleging that plaintiff is and has been for a period of more than 12 months prior to the filing of this petition an actual bona fide resident of the State of Texas, and has resided in the county aforesaid for at least six months preceding the filing of this cause; that on or about the 14th day of February 1912, plaintiff and defendant were lawfully married, and lived together as man and wife until on or about the 8th day of June, 1924, when without any just cause defendant abandoned plaintiff and since said time has secreted and kept hidden from plaintiff and her present whereabouts at this time is unknown. And Plaintiff alleges that during the time he and the defendant lived together as man and wife, he was kind and affectionate to her and always provided for her support and maintenance, but defendant unmindful of the duties and obligations of her marital vows, for a long period of time prior to said abandonment, began a course of unkind, harsh, cruel and tyrannical treatment toward plaintiff, which continued until defendant, without just cause, on above said date abandoned plaintiff; plaintiff alleges that defendant's actions and conduct toward him generally are of such a nature as to render their further living together as husband and wife insupportable; that during the marriage of defendant and plaintiff they have had born to them one child, as the issue of said marriage, a boy aged 10 year, named Jno Bailey, which is still living; that defendant is unable on account of her other children to properly care for and educate said child; and is an unfit person to have his care, custody and control; that plaintiff is a farmer living within a short distance of a good school, has a comfortable home and is a proper and fit person to rear and educate said boy; and that under the circumstances it would be right and proper to award the custody of said minor to plaintiff. Wherefore plaintiff prays that defendant be cited to appear and answer this petition, and that upon final hearing hereof plaintiff have judgement dissolving said marriage relations; for the custody of said minor child; and for such other and further relief, both general and special, in law and in equity to which he may be entitled to receive.

Herein fail not but have before said Court, at its aforesaid regular term this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said Court, at office in Brownfield, on this 26th day of June, 1924.

MEADOW BRIEFS

By Anaculapina.

The houses mentioned in our last are nearing completion. The Masonic hall is about ready for use, and the Masons are to have a lecturer with them the coming week.

Lee Dabney with Lawson Jones and their families are here visiting E. H. Jones and Willis White. So many are here from Desdemonia that Meadow somewhat resembles Hog Town in the good old days that are gone forever.

Jack Price and wife are the parents of a bouncing baby boy. Whether or not Jack will survive the ordeal is at present extremely doubtful. Nature, however, is usually kind to us and a favorable prognosis would be justified at this writing.

Tuesday evening there was quite a procession of Don Quixotes through our village. Didn't count the vehicles but there were some fifteen or twenty, possibly more. The Meadow contingent were among the crusaders, and if there was anything to eat at the end of the line, this bunch wouldn't fight and rear guard action.

Some people have a penchant for appearing in print, and especially those who have gotten themselves into the public eye. They imagine they have a message and are anxious that the people should recognize the fact.

This time it is a play wright by name Margaret Mayo, a clever writer, and if I mistake not, an actress of some repute. You may have read her interview, but most likely you have not. The young seldom get beyond the sport and cartoon pages. So looking over the local paper for personals, you may come across this:

"Why marry? Nix on the wedded life. Why should a man marry a woman or a woman marry a man, with the thought that the thing should last forever? The child question will take care of itself. They should go to the ones that love them best."

Why marry? Well, in the case of those who hold such advanced views (?) it is hardly necessary except to avoid possible prosecution. In the beginning God made just one woman for the one man, and Adam lived nine hundred and thirty years and begot sons and daughters. If he ever had any other woman or concubine I have not found it in the record. The Creator and Giver of all good thought Eve was sufficient, and even she got Adam into serious trouble. That is one reason.

Nix on the wedded life. Well, she is said to be married and ought to be authority on her part of it. Sure it is just what she and her husband make it. "The children should go to the ones that love them most" which means that if they have any they will land in an orphan asylum or in outside homes if they don't end before that time in criminal abortion. This is the disposition of them by those supposed to love them most.

Those who harbor such sentiments care nothing for offsprings, and women occupying the position this one does in the public eye do untold damage to the young girl who is inclined to regard this class as models. Free love isn't a new doctrine in either theory or practice. If you would know the fate of most of them who have acted on such advice, talk with inmates of home for Fallen Women; visit the insane asylums, scan the list suicides. Most of all look over the records of police and other courts. They clutter up the streets and allies of the large cities and towns at night; inhabit many of the hotels—they literally swarm in many places. History will tell you of the most notable ones and for the remainder there is nothing but bitter disappointment. Marriage and a home with the protection and care of some man is the only logical solution of the relation of the sexes.

The role of the illegitimate child is pitiable indeed. Every child has a right to be well borned. I cannot recall a single great man or woman borned out of wedlock. Even many of the species of monkeys an domest domestic and wild fowls pair for life. A noble instinct. Pity it is that many cannot swap their brains for instinct.

The one man for the one woman, this is God's plan. We cannot violate it without paying the penalty. Away with such damnable doctrine, and the pillory for the man or woman who urge such things. It is worse than treason.

F. A. Hannah, representing the Western Newspaper Union, of Dallas, accompanied by S. B. Littleton, with the Temple Telegram were callers at the Herald office Wednesday. The former was paying a professional call, but the latter is taking vacation and is visiting his old friends the Schofield brothers of this county for a few days.

The Herald job department is now at work on a directory for the South Plains Telephone Co. They will be ready for distribution in the next week or two.

A. L. Turner and son, of Seagraves, were up Tuesday on business.

Lubbock Klan No. 325, Realm of Texas.

Esteemed Klansmen—

This is to repudiate the alleged report started by Mr. A. V. Dalrymple in his Anti-Klan talk to the effect that I had denounced the Klan and told them to take their things out of the Klan Hall erected by me for them. This statement is untrue and misleading and does not state the facts.

The facts are—in his Anti-Klan talk here in Brownfield, he (Dalrymple) stated that if he had to associate with a Klansman he would want a robe and mask.

After he had finished his bitter talk I went and shook hands with him and told him I was a Klansman and if he would go home with me I would let him wear my robe and mask while he was with me. I then introduced him to my wife and called his attention to the fiery cross she was wearing and also stated she was with me.

M. V. Brownfield.

This is to certify that M. V. Brownfield is at present a member in good standing of the Brownfield Klan No. 321, Realm of Texas, and that there is no dissention whatever among the members of said Klan, but all is peace and harmony within.

Yours in I.T.S.N.B.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION

Relating to Granting of Confederate Pension

Senate Joint Resolution No 10.

Proposing an amendment to Section 51 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Texas to provide that the Legislature may grant pensions to the Confederate soldiers, sailors and their widows, who have been citizens of Texas prior to January 1, 1910, providing that all soldiers, sailors and their widows eligible under the provisions hereof shall be entitled to be placed upon the rolls and participate in the pension fund created thereunder; levying a tax of seven (9/7) cents of the one hundred ($100.00) dollars valuation of property in this State for the payment of such pension, providing that the Legislature may reduce the rate of pensions for such purposes, fixing a time for the election to be held on such amendment and making an appropriation to pay the expenses thereof.

Be it Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas:

Section 1. Section 51 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Texas shall be amended so as to hereinafter read as follows:

Section 51. The Legislature shall have no power to make any grant of public money to any individual, association of individuals, municipal or other corporations, whatsoever, provided, however, the Legislature may grant aid to indigent or disabled Confederate soldiers and sailors, who came to Texas prior to January 1, 1910, and to their widows, in indigent circumstances and who have been bona fide residents of this State since January 1, 1910, and who were married to such soldiers and sailors prior to January 1, 1910, and to indigent and disabled soldiers who under the special laws of the State of Texas during the war between the States served in organizations for the protection of the frontier against Indian raiders or Mexican marauders and to indigent and disabled soldiers of the militia of the State of Texas who were in active service during the war between the States and to the widows of such soldiers who are in indigent circumstances and who were married to such soldiers prior to January 1, 1910, provided that the word "widow" in the preceding lines of this section shall not apply to women born since 1861, and all soldiers and sailors eligible under the above conditions shall be entitled to be placed upon the pension roll and participate in the distribution of the pension fund of this State under any existing law or laws hereafter passed by the Legislature, and also to grant aid to the establishment and maintenance of a home for said soldiers and sailors, their wives and widows and women who aided in the Confederacy under such regulations and limitations as may be provided by law, provided the Legislature may provide for such husband and wife to remain together in the home. There is hereby levied in addition to all other taxes heretofore permitted by the Constitution of Texas a State ad valorem tax on the property of seven (9/7) cents on the one hundred ($100.00) dollars valuation for the purpose of creating a special fund for the payment of pension for services in the Confederate army and navy, frontier organizations and the militia of the State of Texas, and for the widows of such soldiers serving in said armies, navies, organizations or militia; provided that the Legislature may reduce the tax rate hereinafter levied, and provided further that the provisions of this Section shall not be construed so as to prevent the grant of aid in cases of public calamity.

Sec. 2. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified voters of the State of Texas at an election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1924, at which all voters shall have printed or written on their ballots: "For amendment to 51 of Article 3 of the Constitution authorizing the Legislature to grant aid to Confederate soldiers, sailors and their widows who have been a resident of this State since January 1, 1910." and Against amendment to Section 51 of Article 3 of the Constitution authorizing the Legislature to grant aid to Confederate soldiers and their widows."

Sec. 3. The Governor is hereby directed to issue the proclamation for said election and have the same published as required by the Constitution and laws of this State, and the sum of five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated out of the general funds of this State not otherwise appropriated for expenses of publications and elections thereunder.

Approved, March 20, 1923.

S. L. STAPLES,
Secretary of State
